Rendleman said, to his knowledge, he had only failed to answer one mail query, and that was from the Campus Chest, of which Good is co-chairman.

"I tried to call Mr. Good three times in his dorm, but he's never in. I also tried to contact him through Jim Fullwood, chairman of the MRC Court. I also understand there are five other dorms which haven't answered Mr. Good's letter.

"I think the whole situation boils down to a personality conflict between Mr. Good and myself. I don't know why he's after me.

"Normally I wouldn't bother answering such ridiculous charges, but under the existing circumstances, I feel I am justified in doing so."

After Wednesday night's MRC meeting, at which Good made the charges against Rendleman, a petition was circulated in parts of Ehringhaus saying that Rendleman was doing an excellent job as president and was greatly responsible for Ehringhaus' quick rise in dormitory point competition.

Another petition was circulated in the dorm saying that Good's action was ridiculous and unjustified. Several hundred names are on the petition.

LAST CALL!!

Students in English 2 and 21 are reminded that today is the last day to purchase special low rate tickets for the Carolina Playmakers production of "J. B."

Tickets will be on sale in Y-Court from 8:45 until noon. Reserve seat tickets are one dollar each, a savings of fifty percent.

"J. B." will be presented March 10-16.

UNC Bill Defeated

RALEIGH — A bill introduced by UNC to make the state General Assembly unicameral was soundly defeated in the first session of the N. C. State Student Legislature Tuursday night.

The vote was 21 to 75 against the bill in the House of Representatives. It received only four votes in the Senate.

Whitney Durand introduced the bill for the UNC delegation in the House.

Durand said a one-House legislature would be more efficient, less costly and more responsible. He cited the Nebr. Legislature as an example of unicameralism.

Pete Wales, delegation chairman, and Phil Baddour also spoke for the bill in the House. They cited recent Supreme Court cases, particularly the "Georgia Case," indicated a trend to representation on the basis of population only. Thus, there is no need for a second house with representation based on geography.

Karen Rawlings, graduate student in Political Science, introduced the bill in the Senate, and Dick Ellis aided in the debate. A long parliamentary procedure battle accompanied the debate before the bill was defeated.

In other business, a public accommodations law proposed by North Carolina College passed both House and Senate. A vocational education bill proposed by Duke Men was tabled.

In business yesterday, a voice resolution was passed to boycott the segregated soda shop in the Hotel Carolina where the delegations are staying.

Two of the Negro delegates had been refused service at lunch period. The soda shop is not under the management of the hotel, which is integrated.

There was only one dissenting vote in the House and none in the Senate.

A Constitutional amendment to require that county coroners be licensed physicians, proposed by N. C. State, passed both houses unamended.

Bills to cut government subsidies to tobacco farmers and to grant state aid to students attending private colleges were defeated.

Chem Fraternity: It's Unique

By MAT FRIEDMAN

"We try to get away from chemistry and we try to advance chemistry."

This, according to President Gilbert Merritt, is the philosophy behind the Carolina chapter of Alpha Chi Sigma, the national chemistry fraternity. Merritt feels that the group has been successful on both counts.

"I think we are unique," he says, "in that we are a professional fraternity in orientation, but a fraternity that does something. I feel we do quite a bit with chemistry."

Merritt is one of 50 chemistry majors in the organization which is open to those going on to a career in the chemical field.

If you have ever been in a chemistry laboratory, you've probably seen some evidence of the work of ACS.

"We carry on a safety program," says Merritt, "by trying to make sure that working conditions in the laboratory are always safe. We put up safety posters and first aid boxes, and see that the fire extinguishers are in working order. So far, we haven't lost anyone.

"In addition, every fall we hold a slide rule class which is open to anyone who needs it. The response has always been excellent; this year, about 85 took the course."

But Merritt is quick to point out that the ACS theme is not "all work and no play."

"We feel," he says, "that the fraternity provides a way for chemistry majors to know each other on a social level. The group does not go in for big parties, just friendship and fellowship.

"Our work seldom gives us a chance to see the light of day. It seems that there is barely enough time to run from Venable to Lenoir and back to Venable again, so we don't really have time for any big social program."

Of the 50 active members in ACS, about half are married and half are graduate students. They come from all regions of the country and many are from other branches of the fraternity. "Membership," says Merritt, "is a lifetime thing."

The group began here in 1912. Dr. Venable was one of the original members.

"One of our activities," says Merritt, "is getting chemists from the Chapel Hill area to speak to the fraternity on chemical topics. Speakers come from UNC, Duke and Chemstrand. Our faculty adviser, Dr. D. C. Jicha, helps us get some very fine people."

Volume 72, Number 106 Saturday, February 29, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 933-1012. Business, circulation, advertising—933-1163. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

'What Is Forlorner Than Horner?'

Many people who have a limited knowledge of the ins and outs of boxing, including the Durham Herald's Jack Horner, are now crying fix over Sonny Liston's loss of the heavyweight crown Tuesday night. Of course one of the things that so annoys most sports writers about the outcome of the fight is that their prognostications made them look pretty foolish Wednesday morning. Jack Horner has managed to look foolish quite often, but rarely as foolish as he looked yesterday when he produced a small, bitter and ill-reasoned attack in boxing in general.

He points out that Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc. paid Clay $50,000 for the right to select Clay's next opponent, the fight site and date. This deal was made several months ago, and the really fishy part about it is that Liston happens to own 47½% of Inter-Continental. This could naturally lead some to believe that the fight was obviously fixed and that the participants and promotors were just looking for a killing in the re-match. Without further thinking Jack Horner managed to arrive at this conclusion.

We agree with Mr. Horner that it is highly questionable for Liston's promotion company to buy the promotion rights for Clay's next fight, and we feel that something should be done to put a halt to this practice in the future. But it is even more obvious that this is not a sound basis for assuming that the fight was fixed.

In the first place, the whole deal, added to the way the fight ended, is just too fishy to have been fixed. No one is so stupid as to fix a fight, buy the promotion rights of the opponent and then have the fight end in a manner that called for an investigation.

Also there happens to be a logistic problem in fixing a heavyweight fight in this day and age. First, it would have been neccessary to get to Liston and his advisers and owners. Clay would also have had to be in on it, and if Clay was, then Bill Faversham his manager was. If Bill Faversham was in on it, all of Clay's backers were. The only thing wrong with this hypothesis is that Clay's backers already have all the money in the world and are as about as respected a group of businessmen as you might find. They really aren't the least bit concerned about the money, but are greatly concerned about their reputations.

Okay, so you get to all eleven of them plus all of Liston's group, then it only remains to get the 10 doctors who examined Liston's shoulder after the fight and all proclaimed the injury to be serious enough to stop the bout. Two of these doctors were surgeons representing the Miami Athletic Association.

We seriously doubt that eleven respected businessmen are going to jeopardize their positions in the community and business world, and ten doctors are going to jeopardize their licenses to practice medicine, just so the promoters can make a haul on a re-match. It just can't be figured that way . . . by anyone except Jack Horner, that is.

'There IS A Difference' – Davidson

Greensboro Daily News

When Michael Scriven, a professing English atheist, spoke recently at Davidson College, it prompted such a stir in the Charlotte press that Davidson's president found it necessary to point out that his school is "an educational institution" and not "an indoctrination center."

To some, alas, the distinction is less than clear. Indeed there is ample evidence — not only in Davidson's pickle but the 1963 Legislature's speaker ban law — that many Tar Heels want to build Maginot lines around their beliefs and values.

They do this in the well-meaning but perilous view that beliefs and values are safer behind walls. France learned in 1940 what happens to military Maginot lines. Unless North Carolinians begin to reaffirm their belief in the value of dissent, even radical dissent, we may find a few ruined intellectual Maginot lines on our hands.

Is it such an unpalatable truth that great ideas grow strong by meeting, conquering and feeding upon the ideas they vanquish? That is the basic assumption of free speech.

Perhaps it is a good thing that St. John, not the present critics of Davidson College, had to spread the Gospel to the skeptical Hellenistic world. For who among these critics would not be scandalized by a faithful apostle who met his critics, not by stopping his ears to their criticism and laughter, but by putting himself into their thought-system and phrasing his message in their terms?

Today, no doubt, he would be damned in many quarters as an impractical, if not dangerous, egghead.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Bob Samsot
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
Sports Editor — John Montague
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry, Chip Barnard
Staff Artists:
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings

Words Of Wisdom

"The Marxist theory of an army of the poor swelling into a revolutionary majority has proved wholly false, but instead the poor have become in our affluent society a sealed-off community with its own crippled values, liable to erupt into crime and psychopathic violence. They form pockets of misery in city slums throughout the land as well as in remote rural areas, and they have to go if society is not to be poisoned. But the way to get rid of them is for the poor, who form a sub-class and who think of themselves as such, to be absorbed back into society as human beings; and for this the Peace Corps approach is required . . . The nation can do no less for Americans than it is already doing for Africans and Asians and other people who need help."

—The New Republic, Feb. 15, 1964

Snack For Curry, And GDSBAAA

Letters To The Editor

The GDSBAAA

Editors, The Tar Heel:

As a member of the GDSBAAA of the University of North Carolina (The Grubby Dirty Stinky Beatnik And Anarchy Association) I will be more than willing to give up forever what little part I have played in the current civil rights action in Chapel Hill. I would really enjoy much more spending my time shooting heroin, without the extra added kick of leaping in front of cars. I have had to take three baths in the last six months, not to mention two haircuts, because I had to attend church meetings. This is something both the Grubby Dirty and myself personally frowns upon. So, I present the following suggestion:

If the Chi O's and the ATO's, together with Mr. Fox, will join together in all their Dial soap armpit cleanliness and clear-headed sobriety and work for Negro civil rights in Chapel Hill, I, and all other members of GDSBAAA will resign from the Chapel Hill Freedom Movement and disappear into dirty walls and smoky backrooms in Carrboro and Greenwich Village, never to be found again until the day we all appear on your Welfare roles and Blacklists.

Perhaps, if that pyramid of hygiene, Dick Akers, will also join the Movement, all those nasty smelling Negroes will disappear too. And if they disappear, we won't have a Problem, will we? Why then Chapel Hill will be just like one big white warm womb again, like it was before the time when one Negro somewhere in the heart of America wised up and said DAMN!!!

Bill Hicks
116 Avery

Pictured above is a "Hurt Award" mailed to the editors of the DTH and Curry Kirkpatrick, former Sports Editor. Suggesting that Curry should be forced to eat his words after the surprising outcome of the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston battle, an enterprising reader mailed a copy of his column (in which he flatly predicted a quick Liston victory) sandwiched between two slices of bread. We feel this unusual letter should be printed for your enjoyment, even though the sender did not identify himself. — Photo by Jim Wallace.

Aha!

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Aha! I detected in the letters to the DTH of February 18 the clarion call of moral leadership. At last from the abyss of decently-clad and well-groomed apathy I shall rise to the noble occasion. Forward, ye sons of liberty, ye champions of justice, and march against our adversaries—servile conformity to social form and custom, the intolerable fetters of the law, and last, but not least, the craven shield of reason and common sense! Let every righteous individual wear his morality like a badge on his sleeve and strike out in the name of his convictions, as he did in the glorious Thirty Years War! Remember the French Revolution! All men are born equal; why shouldn't they be equal in spite of such trifling matters as personality, ability, and initiative? Liberty! Equality! Brotherhood! To the barricades!

Haywood Smith, Jr.
505 Ehringhaus

How To Do It

Editors, The Tar Heel:

I attended (hopeful of getting some answers) the Student Party meeting last Wednesday night and came away convinced all the more that any action taken in this town in the cause of desegregation and civil rights must be on an individual basis. Stay away from the stores you don't like and meet Negroes on a personal basis. Explain yourself to them—and do it ALONE. The meeting talked about leaders and immorality and footballs; it got a little too collegiate and I left hurriedly. Perhaps a little too hurriedly because I should have said a good word to Ray Farris and Father Wilkin, neither of whom had meal in his mouth. Finally I was a little embarrassed by the professor and Mr. Lawler; I think the latter was here before but his name was "Frank Crowther" (was it 1958?)

W. R. Call
Box 1303

Blast!

Editors, The Tar Heel:

In reprinting Loudon Wainwright's "Visit To A Grave," the Daily Tar Heel has reached a new journalistic low. Life Magazine, hardly world-famous for its standards of good taste, in printing this article originally, did nothing to further favorably the memory of John F. Kennedy. If the Life article were to be believed, John F. Kennedy managed to accomplish something beyond the scope of any ordinary mortal in his November death and burial. This article reinforces the idea that anything children say, no matter what subject it be on, is either uproariously funny or possesses a poignancy beyond the scope of adult tongues. An example is the incident in which the father, the daughter, and the son discuss briefly those interred in Arlington Cemetery. The little girl asks her father why those people are all under the ground. He is interrupted by his son, who says, "The got shot." The father's reply does nothing to refute the truth of this; he merely opines that there are other ways. The tastelessness of the remark about Pope John is offensive to all people, not just Roman Catholics. Following that the same child asks, "What do we do when we get there?" His mother's reply is typical of the apathy surrounding the death of the President, and oozes the gluttonous sympathy to be expected of a magazine of the caliber of Life. Anyone who wants to see an orange flame can watch the smudgepots on Cameron Street. Mr. Wainwright, obsessed with the grave-side glories of the late President, has produced an overt insult to what ever John F. Kennedy had in life.

This article was neither informative nor pleasant reading. Wainwright's maudlin article is a cheap attempt to play on the sympathy of the American people for financial gain.

The DAILY TAR HEEL of late has not been my choice as the paper which has employed the most taste in choosing what to print, but not even the great mental anxiety caused by the active part the editors are taking in helping to resolve Chapel Hill's racial difficulties is sufficient justification for printing this article which deals so flagrantly with the sordid details of the burial of John Kennedy. In the paper which appeared the day before the paper containing this article there was an editorial restriction limiting letters to two pages. That letters to the editor, one of the chief opportunities for freedom of speech, should be restricted so that drivel of the nature of Mr. Wainwright's article might be printed is not merely indicative of the low standard of values of the Daily Tar Heel's editorial staff, but also a splendid example of the lack of public good taste in the American people.

Richard Bynum-Parsons III
505 Ehringhaus

New Hampshire Lottery Is All Set

By ROBERT S. BOYD
The Charlotte Observer

CONCORD, N.H. — Tickets go on sale next month for the nation's first legalized lottery—the New Hampshire Sweepstakes.

The N.H. Sweepstakes Commission is busy renting computer's buying ticket vending machines, hiring workers and battling federal agents as the big day nears.

Clergymen and other foes of the Yankee version of the famed Irish "sweeps" have about given up hope of blocking the scheme in a series of local-option elections throughout the state on March 10.

Starting a week after the election, sweepstakes officials hope to sell more than 2½ million tickets — at $3 each — before the running of the first "sweeps" at Rockingham Race Track, near Salem, N.H., on Sept. 12.

The proceeds would:

—Pour nearly $4 million into New Hampshire's public schools.

—Provide purses of up to $150,000 for the nation's swiftest three-year-olds.

—Enrich sir lucky ticketholders by $100,000 each, plus several hundred lesser prizes.

Sweepstakes Executive Director Edward J. Powers, a former FBI agent who handled the Brinks truck robbery case in Boston a decade ago, explained the lottery this way:

Tickets will be sold only in New Hampshire, at the 49 state liquor stores or the three licensed race tracks.

Out-of-staters can't buy a ticket. A friend could buy a ticket in your name in New Hampshire, as long as he didn't send it through the mails.

When you buy a ticket, all you get is a receipt—which cannot be sold or cashed. The ticket itself will go to a New Hampshire bank, which will hold it until the drawings.

Drawings

About the end of August, the names of the horses entered in the race will be matched with the sweeps tickets drawn from drums.

For every million dollars worth of tickets sold, there will be one first-place winner of $100,000, a second prize of $40,000 to $50,000, and a third prize of $20,000 to $25,000.

Every ticketholder whose horses start the race will receive "several thousand dollars," according to Powers. Every ticket that is matched to a horse, even if the animal doesn't run, will earn "several hundred dollars."

Payment will be made to the persons whose name and address appear on the winning horse's tickets. You don't have to come to New Hampshire to collect your winnings.

Federal gambling laws may make it necessary to send your winnings by telegram or arrange a bank transfer. Mailing checks may be illegal.

Income Tax

The winnings will be subject, of course, to federal income tax. The Internal Revenue Service wanted the Sweepstakes Commission to deduct the tax. The commission refused.

The Federal government may also try to collect 10 per cent of the proceeds as federal wagering tax. New Hampshire will contest this, Powers said.

Another 10 per cent of the take will be eaten up by administrative costs, and about 30 per cent will go for prizes.

The remaining half will be distributed to the public schools. The first year, Powers estimated, each school should get $33 per pupil, and more in later years.

The hopes of raising school money without raising taxes was what led the New Hampshire Legislature to pass the sweepstakes law last year.

The program goes into effect after the March 10 election, when each city and town in the state votes whether to alow ticket sales within its borders.

Even if some communities refuse, Powers sad, the sweeps will go ahead anyway.

New Hampshire is also counting on selling "a substantial portion" of the tickets to out-of-staters, he said. It is not likely that 600,000 New Hampshire citizens, including infants and mental defectives, will buy more than 2½ million chances.

Powers said the commission is going to extraordinary lengths to keep the sweepstakes clean and uncorrupted.

No Gangsters

The ticket-and-receipt system is designed to make it impossible for racketeers to muscle in, he said.

Besides Powers, there is another ex-FBI agent on the staff, John M. Kennedy, a Harvard law school graduate who is director of field operations.

A master of science in mathematics, Leo A. Hogan is director of data processing and systems control.

The commission's 15-man staff will be carefully screened, Powers said. Everybody, including the "supervisors" who will collect the money (he objects to the term "bagmen"), will be on the regular state payroll, free of political patronage.

Although there was an enormous outcry from the Protestant clergy and other foes of legalized gambling during the legislative fight over the sweepstakes last year, the moral issue seems to have died down.

Heelprints

Looks like Anne Queen is all set to reign over the YMCA.

* * *

Then there's the UNC basketball team doll—it needs winding up.

* * *

Definition: Alimony—a system by which, when two people make a mistake, one keeps paying for it.

* * *

We see that Chapel Hill Congressman, Horace Kornegay, has announced he'll run for a third term in Congress. Fine, but on which ticket?

* * *

That tax cut bill won't be truly effective until the loopholes are knot.

* * *

A certain radio station around here doesn't provide us with many KIX.

* * *

It looks as if some of our local barbers are splitting hairs over the integration issue.

* * *

Simile: as high as the prices at the Book Ex.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites comments on current topics from its readers regardless of viewpoint. All letters to the editors should be typewritten, double-spaced and of reasonable length. All letters must be signed, with the address of the author. No letter considered libelous or in poor taste will be printed.

Hugh Stevens

'...2...3... You're OUT!

INS and OUTS, Part Two:

The last time I filled this space, we talked about Status On the Campus, or something like that, and about those things that are currently IN around here.

Before I undertake a listing of the OUTS, as I promised (or threatened) last time, I want to remind you that I couldn't (and wouldn't) do it without venerable old Don Curtis, the only man who's been IN and OUT at the same time.

Now in the higher circles around the nation, being IN or OUT can at times be an important thing. This is especially true in Washington, where everything is either in or out and seemly never in between.

I doubt that so much importance is attached to this imaginary status around here, at least consciously. (But the desire to conform betrays itself every time students do anything in a group, it seems.) For those of you who do desire to brush up a bit on status, however, we have a few simple but handy formulas to remember:

(1) You can move from IN to OUT, or vice versa, very quickly (witness John Dunne, for instance, though I'm not sure which situation he is an example for).

(2) You can move from IN to OUT very slowly (witness Wayne King.)

(3) You can contrive to come to Carolina and never be IN or OUT at all (witness most of those around you). This is the safest, but least daring, way.

Having seen the rules, you must now decide if you want to play the little game. If so, arm yourself with a copy of Tuesday's column (send a check if you've lost yours), read the OUTS listed below, and head straight for Y Court to make known your status.

From our GM observation post, it appears that you are currently OUT if:

—Dean Long likes you.

—You still wear white socks (if you wear them with a suit, give up.)

—You have ever read the "Carolina Quarterly."

—You have never broken the Campus Code.

—You have never played cards at the DKE house.

—You have never cut a quiz.

—You are a Library Science major.

—You have never had Mono.

—You picked Sonny Liston.

—You don't think Peanuts is funny.

—You admit that you have cracked a book this semester.

—You don't criticize the Daily Tar Heel.

—You made a "C" in Astronomy 31.

—You send your clothes to the UNC laundry.

—You have ever paid a parking ticket.

—You have never taken a No-Doz.

—You are not pinned.

—You are taking any Phys. Ed. course.

—You think Gary Edens is funny.

You've never been skiing.

—You're Bones McKinney.

—You have never been to summer school.

—You don't play pool at GM when you have better things to do.

—You ask "Where?" when someone mentions "the Lodge" or "Lyons Memorial."

—You are not going to Europe this summer.

—You do the required readings for Modern Civilization.

—You go to Duke (how's that again?)

—You date a high school girl.

—You are neither for or against the boycott.

—You date to the free flicks (or, for that matter, if you GO to the free flicks).

—You don't have a subscription to PLAYBOY.

—You didn't go to the Gator Bowl.

—You don't own a pair of blue jeans.

—You do own a pair of blue jeans (we haven't quite figured that one out yet.)

—You didn't quit smoking when the report came out.

—You don't own a camel hair sweater.

—You go home once a month.

—You watch Channel 4.

—You don't watch "Combat."

—Your favorite current adjective is something other than "fabulous."

—You have seen "Tom Jones" only once.

—You have no source of income besides your parents.

—You have never had your picture taken by Jim Wallace.

—You don't enter the Daily Tar Heel kite contest.

In closing, I'd like to add that if this column is read aloud this week in a certain Journalism course, I'm OUT (for good.)

PRIX LENGTHENED

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y. (UPI)—The Grand Prix of the United States this year was lengthened 23 miles to a total of 253 miles to assure a minimum duration of two hours.

133 JOIN ECAC

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Eastearn Collegiate Athletic Conference, the largest collegiate athletic conference in the U. S., was organized in 1938. It has a current membership of 133 colleges.

PEANUTS

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Weakens
5. Shatter
10. Conclusive evidence
12. A shout: var.
13. Coral reef
14. Church musical instrument
15. Norse god
16. Moslem title
18. Boy's nickname
19. A size of type
21. Vegetable of the parsley family
24. Protective barrier
28. Foreign
29. Kind of leather
30. Mother
31. Slipped away
32. Used up, as funds
34. Constellation
37. Free
38. Father: affect.
41. Thick soup
43. Lack of bodily tone
45. Gaze rudely
46. River embankment
47. City: Ger.
48. Tidings

DOWN
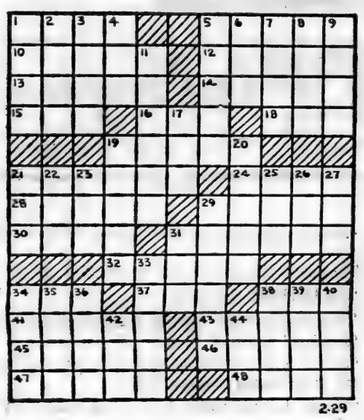
1. Petty quarrel
2. Ostentatiously artistic
3. Not wealthy
4. Peruvian coin
5. Young hog
6. Disfigure
7. Seaweed
8. Thick slice
9. Sharpen, as a razor
11. Flask
17. Gun: sl.
19. Regions
20. Break out in a rash
21. Sliding piece: Mach.
22. A wing
23. Border
25. Roman money
26. Fish
27. Guided
29. Kind of shoe
31. Wreath of flowers: Haw.
33. Dress, as feathers
34. Projection of a church
35. Wagon wheel grooves
36. Turkish river
38. Bird of peace
39. Afresh
40. Colors, as Easter eggs
42. Before
44. Number

BAAL CHUB
CIRCA LEMUR
OCCUR ARISE
NOT SPRAIN
TRIP UP KET
ENCAMPED PS
SCARRED
SP TRESSUPE
CEE IM KNOR
RELINE NIS
APACE SCALE
PETER PAGED
REDS APED

Yesterday's Answer



2-29

REYNOLDS COLISEUM
N. C. STATE CAMPUS, RALEIGH
MON., MARCH 2ND – 8 P.M.
Tickets 2.00, 2.50, 3.00 Coliseum Box Office & Kemps

BIG HALF TIME SHOW
FEATURING CAB CALLOWAY
PEG-LEG BATES & 5 OTHER
OUTSTANDING ACTS

GOOD SEATS AVAILABLE

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

Public Health Seminar—2 p.m., 228 School of Public Health, William G. Biggs, "Waste Handling Problems of the Milk Industry."

Basketball—2 p.m, Gym.

Free Flick—Bachelor in Paradise.

Combo Party—4-6 p.m., Ehringhaus lobby. Mark V.

MOVIES

Carolina—Mail Order Bride
Varsity—Red Lips

LOST AND FOUND

Found—black Gentry raincoat with zip-out lining Monday morning; owner call 208 Aycock.

Swap—took wrong coat from Pine Room Fri., to exchange call Dwight McAllister, 942-6130.

Lost—pair of gray-rimmed glasses in light tan, leather case; contact Terry Bellman, 306 Manly.

Lost—white London Fog from the girl's lounge in the library; if found, please leave at the GM information desk.

Lost—Chaucer text and black filler notebook in the Pine Room; contact John MacNicholas, 201 Stacy.

Lost—watch in Woollen Gym, reward if found; contact Rickey Thomas, 402 Mangum.

SUNDAY

Carolina Symposium — 4 p.m., Whitehead Lounge.

Carolina Political Union—9 p.m., RP I.

Society of Janus—7 p.m., Woodhouse.

SPU—12:30 p.m., upstairs Lenoir, C.O. or G.I..

Westminister Fellowship — 5:30 Presbyterian Student Center, worship; 6, supper; 6:45, "The Honest to God Controversy."

Wesley-Westminster Film Forum—8 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, "Breathless."

MONDAY

Carolina Symposium—4:30 p.m., RP III.

Newman Student Table—6 p.m., Lenior.

Town Students' Campus Chest Booth will be set up at Y-Court thru Thurs., 9-5, and in the library thru Wed., 7-10:30.

TUESDAY

Slimnastic Club — 3:45 p.m., Women's dance studio.

YMCA Nominating Comm. will interview candidates for the offices of pres., vice pres., sec., and treas., from 3-5 p.m. today and Wed.; sign up at the YM president's office.

Square Dance Club—7:30 p.m. Women's Gym.

ZBT Dedication On Tap Sunday At New House

Carolina's newest fraternity house may not be the largest on campus, but it's certainly the most modern.

The new Zeta Beta Tau House at Finley Golf Course is being dedicated this weekend, and alumni, national fraternity officials and state officials are expected to participate in the ceremonies.

The house, designed by Jerome Cooper of Atlanta, will be financed by funds from the local chapter as well as cash from the ZBT national. The total cost is $250,000.

The dedication weekend will start tonight with a formal banquet and cocktail party, with the formal dedication ceremony tomorrow.

YWCA Candidates For Office

YWCA Executive positions will be filled Thursday in an election in all women's residence halls. Candidates are: (1st row) Ellen Gilkeson of Alexandria, Va., and Mary Linda Lewis of McComb, Miss., president; Hilda Little of Wadesboro and Rosanne Hollis of Badin, vice president; Mary Reper of Kingsport, (2nd row) Tenn., and Jean Oliver of Lexington, secretary; Dee Johnson of Ardsled, N. Y., and Bernie Bazemore of Raleigh, (not pictured) membership chairman; and Gwen Grice of Winston-Salem and Louise Menefee of Durham, treasurer.—Photo by Wallace

Duke Professor Gets Term

Judge J. C. Hall yesterday sentenced Duke University Professor Dr. David Smith to 60 days on the roads after an Orange County Superior Court jury found him guilty of trespass.

The charge grew out of a sit-in demonstration at Watts Restaurant here Jan. 3.

Smith's attorney filed notice of appeal immediately after Judge Hall pronounced sentence.

Smith was one of five Duke professors charged with trespass after the sit-in.

Also charged and awaiting trial are Profs. Fred Herzog, Peter Klopfer, Robert Osborn and Harmon Smith.

The jury of ten men, one a Negro, and two women, both white, heard testimony Thursday from Austin Watts, owner of the establishment.

Watts testified that the group came to his place and refused to leave when asked to do so.

Defense attorney Wade Penny asked Watts if he specifically asked each of the defendants to leave. Watts replied he had.

Dr. Harmon Smith testified the group was never asked to leave, even in the presence of the Sheriff.

Deputy R. L. Clark had previously testified that Watts had asked each member of the group to leave in his presence.

Under cross examination, Solicitor Thomas Cooper asked Dr. Smith why he went to the restaurant after he had learned that an integrated group had been refused service the night before.

"They were students, we were college professors; I thought that would make a difference."

"As a college professor, shouldn't you be more aware of the rights of the owner?", the solicitor asked.

"I don't understand," he replied.

"As a college professor, shouldn't you be more aware of the rights of others?" the solicitor asked.

"That's why we went there," the professor replied.

The reply brought a large chuckle from the courtroom.

Judge Hall charged the jury after three hours of summation by the prosecution and the defense.

The jury returned after deliberating about two hours.

— FLY! —

(Continued from Page 1)

"We have a list of candidates," Seely announced yesterday, and we will announce the results of the Kite Queen next week in the Daily Tar Heel."

Seely concluded by saying that there is no truth to the rumor that the DTH will serve beer so that all participants may get high as a . . . (you guessed it).

Just a simple hillbilly weddin' . . . a guy, a gal and a shotgun!

"MAIL ORDER BRIDE"

Buddy EBSEN — Kier DULLEA — Louis NETTLETON

Carolina NOW PLAYING

Bull's Head Bookshop

SALE

Starting March 3

Bargains from Rental Library

SPECIAL BARGAINS – Books about the South and the Civil War–HALF PRICE

GROUND FLOOR — UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

HOURS: Mon-Fri., 9-5; Sat. 9-1

Jantzen follows the Action—in Galey and Lord's
Giveaway* stretch.
In bright plaids with the extra go of Lycra.†

Galey & Lord

1407 BROADWAY, NEW YORK 18, N.Y. A Division of Burlington Industries

*GALEY AND LORD T.M. BLEND ABOVE: COTTON, POLYESTER AND SPANDEX. †DU PONT T.M.

SUPERIORITY COMPLEX NOW SELLING FOR .50

So you're not a football hero, a big Brain, or a hot Hot-rodder. You can still be top man in the Girl Department!...if you let SHORT CUT take control of your top! It'll shape up the toughest crew cut, brush cut, any cut; give it life, body, manageability. Give you the best-looking hair around —and a feeling of natural superiority. So get with it! Get Old Spice SHORT CUT Hair Groom by Shulton... tube or jar, only .50 plus tax.

Conference On Poverty Scheduled

The George Washington University student council is sponsoring an Intercollegiate Conference on "Poverty in America," April 24-26.

The conference is directed at providing an understanding of the seriousness of poverty.

In addition to lectures by experts on poverty, workshops will be held Saturday, allowing students to freely exchange their ideas. Some of the topics to be discussed are minority group problems, depressed areas, and poverty and an expanding economy.

All schools are invited to send delegates who will receive accommodations on a first-come, first-served basis. There is a $3 registration fee which provides admission to lectures, workshops and the luncheon.

Enjoy the Finest Seafood
TIP TOP FISH HOUSE
Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West
Durham Tel. 286-4494

PETER RAMSEY
WAS IN EUROPE WITH
Carolina's Seminars Abroad

Peter Ramsey says "Having Traveled in Europe previously, I recommend Seminars Abroad, which provides a strong program but free time for individual pursuit and independent activity."

It is the MOST EXTENSIVE AND LEAST EXPENSIVE program on Europe: 12 countries, 66 days, $21.13 per day; whole Summer $1395.00 by Air.

—Ask ANYONE who has been.

—Compare it with ANY TOUR that's going. Information — Seminars Abroad — Y.M.C.A.

THE SAFE WAY to stay alert without harmful stimulants

NoDoz keeps you mentally alert with the same safe refresher found in coffee and tea. Yet NoDoz is faster, handier, more reliable. Absolutely not habit-forming.

Next time monotony makes you feel drowsy while driving, working or studying, do as millions do . . . perk up with safe, effective NoDoz tablets.

Another fine product of Grove Laboratories.

1. I just made a very smart buy. Would you like to hear about it?
You can see I'm all ears.

2. It's an item that will stand me in good stead throughout my life.
You don't say.

3. It guarantees security for the family I expect to have shortly.
Interesting.

4. It can provide money for my children's education.
Is that so?

5. It can pay off the mortgage if I die. Or make money available for emergencies or opportunities. Or provide a lifetime income when I retire.
Look, if anything was that good, a lot of people would have it.

6. Precisely. And over 11 million people do. Because I was telling you about Living Insurance from Equitable.
Tell me more.

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 © 1964

UNC Swimmers Rally To Close In On Terps

By PERRY McCARTY

North Carolina's stout-hearted Blue Dolphins staged a furious comeback in the ACC Swimming Championships last night, cutting the gap between first - place Maryland and second-place UNC to 9½ points. The difference after the first night had been 20.

To do it, Coach Pat Earey's boys grabbed four first places out of five 200-yard events held last night in Bowman Gray Pool. Two of the winners, Thompson Mann (backstroke) and Harrison Merrill( free), set new ACC records in the their victories.

Thursday night UNC swimmers turned in sparkling performances right down the line and it was only the all too frequent presence of red-clad Terps sprinkled among the seven finalists that accounted for the sizeable 20 point first night bulge.

The opening 500 freestyle found three fine sophomores in a nip and tuck duel. NC State's Pat Gavaghan emerged the victor with a new ACC standard of 5:08.9. Right behind Gavaghan were Maryland's Steve Nullymeyer and UNC's John Sheldon. Sheldon's 5:09.6 tied Harrison Merrill's old mark and was almost ten seconds faster than his qualifying time.

Far ahead of the field, UNC's incomparable Merrill and Terp Don Dunphy made the grueling 400 individual medley strictly a two-man affair. Dunphy held a slight edge through the fly, back, and breaststroke legs; but Merrill overpowered him in the final 100-yard freestyle to grab a seven point first place finish and post a new ACC mark of 4:36.6, almost five full seconds off his previous 4:41.0 set at last year's conference meet in Raleigh.

This marks the second consecutive year that Merrill has been ACC titlist in the 400 individual medley—regarded by many as the severest test of four-stroke swimming skill and endurance.

The margin between the seven finalists in the 50-yard free was no more than a foot. Kevin Gilson of Maryland won in 22.4. On a superb effort, UNC sprinter Chip Smith placed second for five big points.

Ron Squires successfully defended his diving crown but not before a colossal scare from Wake's Bill Taylor. Terp Squires shaved Taylor by a single point. UNC's Dave Moody qualified for the final round of competition but failed to place in the top five.

In Thursday evening's final event, UNC's medley relay team of Thompson Mann, Rick Forum, Fred Lipp, and Davis Roberts steaked home with a fine 3:42.1 clocking and 14 points. Maryland gleaned ten with a second place, while NC State finished third. Mann recorded a brilliant 54.9 on his 100 backstroke leg, for a new ACC mark.

Today in the short sprints and the 400 freestyle relay the competition will be fierce as the Dolphins and Terps enter the third and final day of tense competition.

UNC remains within striking distance by virtue of Friday night's herculean efforts.

STANDINGS
(thru Fri. night)

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | Maryland | 91½ |
| 2. | UNC. | 82 |
| 3. | NC State | 54 |
| 4. | Duke | 9 |
| 5. | Wake Forest | 5½ |
| 6. | Virginia | 0 |
| 6. | Clemson | 0 |
| 6. | South Carolina | 0 |

Wrestlers Upset NC State On Win By Dworin In 157

Coach Sam Barnes pulled a bit of strategy which paid off last night as the UNC wrestlers upset NC State, 16-15. The key match was won by Elliott Dworin in 157-pound class. Dworin had been shifted from his normal 167 class as Barnes felt there was little chance of a victory there. UNC thus closes its regular season at 6-6.

Paul Wellstone (123) finished up a perfect season, winning his eleventh match in as many tries. Other UNC winners were: Ken Furr (130), by a pin, and Russ Simmons (137), by a decision.

Fencers Meet W-S YMCA

By ZORRO

The UNC Fencing Club travels to Winston-Salem today for a meet with the Winston YMCA Club and Duke. The club has compiled a 4-4 record to date.

In a joint meet with VMI, Duke and the Citadel last Saturday, the fencers finished in second place, losing only to VMI. The sabre team was a little weak, losing to all three opponents. The foilers won their three meets by scores of 8-1, 6-3 and 5-4, while the epee team won their matches by scores of 6-3, 7-2 and 6-3.

SPORTS Daily Tar Heel

Page 4 Saturday, February 29, 1964

Tar Babies Topple Imps

With Bobby Lewis hitting 34 points and four other Tar Babies in double figures, the North Carolina freshmen showed their older brothers how Duke can be beaten, as they disposed of the Blue Imps for the third time this season, 89-76.

Members of the UNC Varsity, who will take the court today against the big Blue Devils, sat in the stands last night and watched. What they and 4,800 others saw was a good exhibition of basketball by Ken Rosemond's boys, who closed their season with a 13-3 record.

While Donnie Moe came up with a brilliant defensive job on Duke's ace Bob Verga, Danny Talbott, Ian Morrison and Tom Gauntlett joined Lewis in a balanced offensive attack.

Talbott, hitting from the top of the key for 13 points, enjoyed his best scoring performance of the season, Gauntlett also had 13 for the night, while Morrison, hitting six for 10 from the floor, garnered an even dozen. Moe also took time out to score, and had 10.

Verga really had an off-night. He hit only seven of 22 from the floor as Moe forced him to take many off-balance shots.

The Tar Babies jumped to a quick 10-4 lead as Lewis hit for the first time at 14:59. With Talbott leading a defense which harrassed the Imps into numerous poor passes which led to UNC steals, the Carolina yearlings upped the count to 25-16 at the 8:00 mark. Duke bounced back quickly from here. Stuart McKaig and Bob Reidy hitting, the Imps reeled off nine straight points to knot the score at 25-25 with 5:43 left. At 3:25 they went ahead by 34-32. But the Tar Babies came back on a jumper by John Hedrick, 39-38; then Hedrick turned a stolen ball into a lay-up by Talbott as UNC took the lead. They stayed there the rest of the night as the Imps never again got closer than three points.

Peacocks Win Handball Crown

The Peacocks capped the Grad Handball title, upsetting the Physics Fiends, 2-1 to break the Fiends' three year hold on the championship. Don Roth and Tom Parham won the deciding match over Gene Wells and Charles Cooke, 21-2, 21-5. Earlier the Peacocks' Fred Mueller won the singles by rallying to win, 6-21, 21-16, 21-9 over Mac Rugheimer. The Fiends' win came on Lou Snead and Jack Chaffin's 21-8, 21-10 victory over Bennett Williamson and Paul George.

In basketball action a fifteen foot jumper by Mike Spain rolled off the rim at the buzzer to enable the Ehringhaus-B Kings to tip the Avery Aggravators, 32-30. George Boutselis had 16 for the Kings while Spain had 15. In a big upset the TEP Trepids beat the ATO-I Whites, 34-31. ATO had gone into the game unbeaten. Trailing by two points with less than eight minutes remaining, the Craige-B Tlkaceltics exploded to beat the Ehringhaus Queens, 36-26. The Queens failed to capitalize on early chances at the foul line, hitting 6 for 22, and thus blew the opportunity to break the game open. Nat West led the Alkaceltics with 12. Chi Psi White defeated Phi Kappa Sig-A, 27-25, in a low scoring contest. Fred Seely and Steve Painter each had 7 for Chi Psi, who have now advanced to the semifinals.

Swimming Results

500 FREESTYLE
1. Gavaghan (NCS)
2. Nullmeyer (Md)
3. Sheldon (UNC)
4. Loomis (NCS)
5. Harding (Md)
(time: 5:08.6)

400 INDIV. MEDLEY
1. Merrill (UNC)
2. Dunphy (Md)
3. Green (Md)
4. Paoletti (NCS)
5. Wall (Md)
(time: 4:36.6)

50 FREESTYLE
1. Gilson (Md)
2. Smith (UNC)
3. Hitchcock (Duke)
3. Lampe (Md)
5. Geary (Md)
(time: 22.4)

LOW DIVE
1. Squires (Md)
2. Taylor (Wake)
3. Broadhurst (NCS)
4. Jennings (Md)
5. McCaslin (Md)

400 MEDLEY RELAY
1. UNC (Mann, Forum, Lipp, Roberts)
2. Maryland (Dunphy, Doheny, Rebillard, Lampe)
3. NC State (Paoletti, Gavaghan, Derby, McGinty)
4. Duke (Goodner, King, Combs, Hitchcock)
5. Virginia (Knight, Brown, Tompkins, Harrison)
(time: 3:42.1)

200 BUTTERFLY
1. Gavaghan (NCS)
2. Lipp (UNC)
3. Rebillard (Md)
4. Dunphy (Md)
5. Manfredi (Md)
(time: 2:01.7)

200 BACKSTROKE
1. Mann (UNC)
2. Paoletti (NCS)
3. Smiley (UNC)
4. Dahl (Md)
5. Vermuellean (NCS)
(time: 1:59.9)

200 BREASTSTROKE
1. Forum (UNC)
2. Doheny (Md)
3. Derby (NCS)
4. Green (Md)
5. Lea (UNC)
(time: 2:19.3)

200 FREESTYLE
1. Merrill (UNC)
2. Nullmeyer (Md)
3. Sheldon (UNC)
4. Roberts (UNC)
5. Loomis (NCS)
(time: 1:47.8)

200 INDIV. MEDLEY
1. Mann (UNC)
2. Forum (UNC)
3. Wall (Md)
4. Dahl (Md)
5. Gilson (Md)
(time: 2:07.1)

QUICK K.O.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — The quickest knockout in a nationally home - televised fight was big Mike DeJohn's 47-second kayo over Charley Powell at Syracuse, Nov. 6, 1959.

Seven Elected To Grid Shrine

NEW YORK (UPI)—Five football greats from the Roarin' 20's —including three Chicago Bear linemen — were elected to pro football's Hall of Fame Thursday along with Clarke Hinkle, who ranked with Bronko Nagurski as one of the game's finest runners.

Art Rooney, owner and founder of the Pittsburgh Steelers, was the seventh man and only non-player selected to be inducted into the Canton, Ohio, shrine next Sept. 6.

Joining Rooney and Hinkle were former Bear tackles Ed Healey and Link Lyman, Bear center George Trafton, halfback Jimmy Conzelman, a member of the original Bears, and guard Mike Michalske of the Old New York Yankees and Green Bay Packers.

ISOMETRIC MULTI-BAR

The best doorway gym bar made. Special neoprene non-slip ends, won't mar woodwork. Holds over 300 pounds, fits 26" to 32" doorways. Full sized 1¼" gold anodized bar will last a lifetime. Pin lock makes installation quick, easy, secure. Complete instructions provided

$6.95

The Sport Shop

It's Leap Year Give that Delightful but hesitant Guy a book!

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

This Is It!

Milton's February

Frogstrangler Ends

Today. All These

Glorious Buys Will

Be History After

Today

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

TOILETRIES FOR MEN

Bold, Casual . . . the Aztec man leads the life you like! From the Sun-worshipping Azteca comes the image of the modern man . . . refreshingly smooth, exclusively masculine.

After Shave—$2.50
Cologne for Men—$3.00
Shower Soap on a rope—$2.00
Roll-on Deodorant—$1.50

CAMPUS STYLE
W. Franklin St. - Phone 929-1558

Varsity

NOW PLAYING

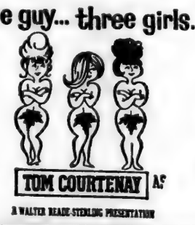
"A MOVIE GEM!

SO DAMNED FUNNY AT TIMES THAT YOU LAUGH UNTIL YOU CRY! A work of extraordinary fludity, power and expressiveness . . . Courtnay's performance is masterful, an extremely superior British Film.

"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST!"—N. Y. Post
"VIGOR, HIGH COMEDY, DRY WIT AND SUBTLETLY. The Performances are flawless!"—Judith Crist, Herald Tribune
"FOUR AND A HALF STAR"—Wanda Hale, Daily News

"I URGE YOU TO GO AND SEE IT! FUNNY . . . A JAUNTY PACE AND BRILLIANT!"—Brendon Gill, The New Yorker
" 'BILLY LIAR'—HE'S FUN! GAY AND AMUSING . . . BOLD AND GLAMOROUS!"—Bosley Crowther, New York Times

one guy... three girls... one ring!... Paradise?



TOM COURTENAY AS BILLY LIAR

A WALTER READE-STERLING PRESENTATION

Ye Olde Taverne Features:

AFTER THE GAME PIZZA SPECIAL

5:00 P.M. till 11:00 P.M.

ALL LARGE SIZE PIZZAS ..... ½ PRICE*

| | | Special Price |
|---|---|---|
| Large Plain | $1.25 | 65c |
| With Pepperoni | 1.50 | 75c |
| With Sausage | 1.50 | 75c |
| With Anchovia | 1.50 | 75c |
| Half & Half | 1.65 | 90c |
| Deluxe | 1.75 | 95c |

*Plus Tax

Pizza Special Continuing Mon., Tues., & Wed.

Ye Olde Taverne
Basement Professional Bldg. E. Franklin St.

Sparkling... flavorful... distinctive!

Miller High Life

Pleasure for everyone! A bright, clear taste... flavor with a deep-down goodness, sparkling with a special lightness... distinctive!

The Champagne of Bottle Beer

Miller HIGH LIFE

Brewed only in Milwaukee

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

EVOL SPELLED BACKWARDS IS LOVE

They met. His heart leapt. "I love you!" he cried.

"Me too, hey!" she cried.

"Tell me," he cried, "are you a girl of expensive tastes?"

"No, hey," she cried. "I am a girl of simple tastes."

"Good," he cried, "for my cruel father sends me an allowance barely large enough to support life."

"Money does not matter to me," she cried. "My tastes are simple; my wants are few. Just take me riding in a long, new, yellow convertible and I am content."

"Goodbye," he cried, and ran away as fast as his little stumpy legs would carry him, for he had no yellow convertible, nor the money to buy one, nor the means to get the money—short of picking up his stingy father by the ankles and shaking him till his wallet fell out.

He knew he must forget this girl, but lying on his pallet at the dormitory, whimpering and moaning, he knew he could not.

At last an idea came to him: though he did not have the money to buy a convertible, perhaps he had enough to rent one!

Hope reborn, he rushed on his little stumpy legs (curious to tell, he was six feet tall, but all his life he suffered from little stumpy legs) he rushed, I say, to an automobile rental company and rented a yellow convertible for $10 down plus ten cents a mile. Then, with many a laugh and cheer, he drove away to pick up the girl.

"Oh, bully!" she cried when she saw the car. "This suits my simple tastes to a 'T.' Come, let us speed over rolling highroads and through bosky dells."

Away they drove. All that day and night they drove and finally, tired but happy, they parked high on a wind-swept hill.

"Marlboro?" he said.

"Yum, yum," she said.

They lit their Marlboros. They puffed with deep contentment. "You know," he said, "you are like a Marlboro—clean and fresh and relaxing."

"Yes, I am clean and fresh and relaxing," she admitted. "But, all the same, there is a big difference between Marlboros and me, because I do not have an efficacious white Selectrate filter."

They laughed. They kissed. He screamed.

"What is it, hey?" she asked, her attention aroused.

"Look at the speedometer," he said. "We have driven 200 miles, and this car costs ten cents a mile, and I have only $20 left."

"But that is exactly enough," she said.

"Yes," he said, "but we still have to drive home."

"Oh," she said. They fell into a profound gloom. He started the motor and backed out of the parking place.

"Hey, look!" she cried. "The speedometer doesn't move when you are backing up."

He looked. It was true. "Eureka!" he cried. "That solves my problem. I will drive home in reverse. Then no more miles will register on the speedometer and I will have enough money to pay!"

"I think that is a smashing idea," she said, and she was right. Because today our hero is in the county jail where food, clothing, and lodging are provided free of charge, and his allowance is piling up so fast that in two or three years he will have enough money to take his girl riding again. ©1964 Max Shulman

* * *

Marlboro Cigarettes, good as they are, should not be smoked backwards. We, the makers of Marlboro, most earnestly urge you to light only the tobacco end. Otherwise your smoking pleasure will be substantially diminished.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
Clear and warmer.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, MARCH 1, 1964 | United Press International Service

Tar Heels Get Clobbered By Duke, 104-69

Spearman Elected To Head State Student Legislature

Bob Spearman, Student Body vice-president, was elected president of the North Carolina State Student Legislature for 1963-64 in Raleigh yesterday.

Spearman won over Curtiss Moore of N.C. State, 90 to 57, in the final plenary session.

The UNC delegation voted 13 to 1 in favor of Spearman. Mike Lawler, president of the Student Body and speaker of the House of Representatives during the legislative sessions, cast the only UNC ballot for Moore.

In other awards, the N.C. State delegation won the award for the best bill introduced. Charlie Winberry of Wake Forest and George Archibald of Chowan won the "best speaker" awards in the Senate and House respectively.

Lawler was awarded a gavel for serving as speaker of the House.

Pete Wales and Karen Rawling represented UNC on the 11-member Conference Committee, responsible for compromising on bills passed in different forms through the two houses. Wales was chairman of the committee.

State Sen. Ralph Scott of Haw River addressed the delegates at a banquet Friday night in the N.C. State Student Union.

Scott spoke out against the speaker ban and talked about the progress the Sanford administration had made.

"The gag law is the way of the coward, the fearful and the hysterical," he said.

He commended the delegates for their courage in opposing the law and asked them to help bring about its repeal by educating the citizenry of its faults.

Scott spoke of the great progress the Sanford administration had made in the fields of education and mental health.

Six of the bills on the agenda did not come up for debate during the three-day legislative session because time ran out.

Included among these were a bill to ban the flying of the confederate flag from public buildings and one to give the governor the veto power.

A special bill was passed in the plenary session to urge public officials not to be pressured against college teachers participating in social prot est. The bill was jointly introduced by about half the delegations and was presented by John Ulfelder of UNC and Moore of N.C. State.

'Bomb 'Em,' Says Barry

GREENSBORO (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, (R-Ariz.) proposed Saturday that the United States get tougher in South Viet Nam and start by bombing the supply routes used to provide Communist guerillas with food and ammunition.

The Arizona conservative, launching his Dixie bandwagon for the Republican presidential nomination at the state GOP convention, also suggested that the tobacco industry, rather than the federal government, finance any necessary tobacco research.

Goldwater also indicated he would vote for the controversial civil rights bill if the public accommodations section and a section establishing a fair employment practices commission were eliminated.

The Vietnamese government, Goldwater said, "does not want to go along with the military" in engaging in full-scale war against the Communist Viet Cong.

"Careers"

"Careers for Carolina," a unique program sponsored jointly by the Institute of Government and Student Government, has posted sign-up lists. The program will be limited to the first 25 sophomores and seniors and 50 juniors who apply.

Lanny Shuff, coordinator for the program, has announced a charge of $2.15 for the banquet. All participants will receive free class cuts.

The program will take place Friday.

2,000 MPH!

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson revealed Saturday that the United States is flying a 2,000-mile-an-hour fighter plane that far outclasses any other aircraft in the world and opens new vistas for civilian as well as military aviation.

He partially lifted four years of secrecy to announce at his first news conference with "live" radio-television coverage that the "All jet interceptor" has passed long-range flight tests at more than three times the speed of sound. He said several are being tested at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Lyndon B. Johnson

"The performance of the A11 far exceeds that of any other aircraft in the world today," the President declared. "The development of this aircraft has been made possible by major advances in aircraft technology of great significance to both military and commercial application."

His proud disclosure highlighted a 33-minute news session, his first since Feb. 1, in which he asserted confidence in the world's chances for a peaceful future, reaffirmed his stand against racial intolerance, turned aside political questions and ranged over other broad areas of international and domestic issues.

The President vowed no compromise on the far-reaching House-approved civil rights bill now awaiting Senate debate. He stood firm on U.S. policies in Southeast Asia and Panama. He defended the U.S. curb on an anticipated $2 million lard sale to Cuban Communist dictator Fidel Castro.

As he did at his last two news conferences, he declined to get into new specifics about the Senate Rules Committee's investigation of his former protege, ex-Senate Democratic Secretary Robert G. Bobby Baker.

Preyer Selects Charlie Shaffer For Campaign

Charlie Shaffer, UNC basketball and tennis star, was named yesterday as one of three students to direct a statewide Students for Preyer campaign.

L. Richardson Preyer, Democratic candidate for governor, announced Shaffer's selection.

Besides Shaffer, John Bynum, student body president at NC State, and Kitty Bernhardt, editor of the Wake Forest Annual, were chosen.

In making the announcement, Preyer said, "One of the great qualities of the Democratic Party traditionally has been its spirit of youth and vitality. This spirit will now glow brighter through Students For Preyer and the leadership of these three fine college students. We are delighted to have them on our team."

Students for Preyer is the first statewide student organization to support a candidate for governor of North Carolina.

In accepting the appointment, the three student leaders said, "We believe that Richardson Preyer will receive the overwhelming support of students all over North Carolina. We already feel that his candidacy has fired the imaginations of college students all over the state and generated tremendous enthusiasm that will be translated into new registrations and votes for him on May 30.

"We will announce very soon the establishment of Students for Prayer organizations on every college campus in the state."

Shaffer is a senior and is co-captain of the basketball and tennis teams. He is president of the senior class, president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and a member of the Order of Old Well, Order of Grail and Order of Golden Fleece. His home is Chapel Hil.

SLAUGHTERED—These were the faces of two members of the UNC pep band yesterday afternoon as the Duke basketball team became the first in history to score 100 or more points against the Tar Heels in Woollen Gym. The final score 104-69, was the worst Carolina has been beaten in many, many years. It was a dark afternoon. —Photo by Jim Wallace

Mullins, Harrison Lead Woollen Rout

By JOHN MONTAGUE

The Duke Blue Devils—by far the best team in the ACC—came to Woollen Gym yesterday afternoon. They left several hours later with their reputation intact.

This team from nearby Durham is one which is getting better. In early January, playing on their home court, the Blue Devils thrashed the Tar Heels by 20 points. Yesterday, playing on the Carolina home floor, they didn't even bother to raise a good sweat as they disposed of the Tar Heels by 35 points.

The final score read 104-69, but it hardly mattered except that Duke did become the first team ever to score 100 points against the Tar Heels in Woollen Gym. You didn't need to keep score to know who was winning. In fact, you probably could have stuck your head in the door, looked at any two-minute period of action, and come away knowing what it didn't take 5,000 spectators too long to find out — that Duke was by far the superior team.

North Carolina was "up" for this one, and the Tar Heels' determination was the only thing which kept them in the game far as long as they were in it — about five minutes.

Playing without the services of starting forward Charlie Shaffer (sprained ankle) and with their bench shortened by the loss of Billy Galantai (bad knee), the Tar Heels gave it a good try. But you have to do more than just try against these Blue Devils. You have to get the ball in the basket pratically every time you shoot. This the Tar Heels did not do.

Duke's big Hack Tison put in the first two for UNC when he goal-tended on a lay-up by Bryan McSweeney. Artie Katz then fed Ray Hassel for an easy one and it was 4-0, Tar Heels. The game should have ended here.

Blue Devil guard Buzzy Harrison spoiled the shut-out bid moments later with a long jumper. And from then on through the rest of the half, everytime you looked around, Harrison was throwing in a long jumper. At the intermission, this guy who has been averaging 8.5 a game had 14 points. He did it again in the second half to finish with 28 — his best performance of the season.

After Billy Cunningham swished a 30-foot jump shot to move the Tar Heels up by four again, 6-2, the visiting Devils reeled off 10 straight points, and UNC never got closer than four after that.

With big Jay Buckley and Tison mopping up under the boards, Harrison popping from the outside, and the whole team collaborating in a fast break that wouldn't quit, the ACC champs continued to up their lead.

Duke's All-American, Jeff Mullins, couldn't get started scoringwise until almost ten minutes had elapsed, but the quick forward clearly showed his greatness even when he wasn't hitting. After an offshot, he would follow up, grab the rebound and feed under to Tison or Buckley for an easy shot. The two big boys had so many easy shots that, from the floor, Buckley was six for six and Tison was six for nine.

There was another All-American on the court — Carolina's Cunningham, but he just didn't have the support that Mullins did. Ray Respess did sink a few jumpers, but most of the time Billy had to do it all. And even Billy was no match for the rebound-crazy Blue Devils under the boards.

In the first half UNC managed only seven rebounds. The Kid got five of them. Meanwhile Mullins had 10, Buckley 8 and Tison 7. For the whole game, the Blue Devils out-rebounded the Tar Heels by an unbelievable 59 to 34.

Through most of the first half, the Blue Devils toyed around with a lead which one minute

(Continued on Page 4)

| UNC | FG | FT | Reb | TP |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Cunningham | 28-12 | 5-4 | 9 | 28 |
| Cooke | 10-4 | 1-1 | 4 | 9 |
| McSweeney | 11-3 | 5-3 | 5 | 9 |
| R. Hassel | 6-1 | 4-2 | 1 | 4 |
| Respess | 11-5 | 1-1 | 1 | 11 |
| Katz | 1-1 | 0-0 | 3 | 2 |
| Yokley | 2-0 | 0-0 | 0 | 0 |
| P. Hassell | 3-2 | 2-1 | 2 | 5 |
| Iannarella | 1-0 | 0-0 | 0 | 0 |
| Bennett | 1-0 | 3-1 | 4 | 3 |
| TOTALS | 74-28 | 21-13 | 29 | 69 |
| Duke | FG | FT | Reb | TP |
| Mullins | 19-9 | 6-6 | 13 | 24 |
| Tison | 9-6 | 2-1 | 7 | 13 |
| Buckley | 6-6 | 5-4 | 15 | 16 |
| Harrison | 19-11 | 7-6 | 4 | 28 |
| Ferguson | 3-2 | 0-0 | 2 | 4 |
| Vacendak | 3-0 | 2-2 | 6 | 2 |
| Marin | 6-2 | 2-2 | 9 | 6 |
| Kitching | 4-1 | 0-0 | 2 | 2 |
| Herbster | 2-1 | 2-1 | 0 | 3 |
| Mann | 2-1 | 0-0 | 0 | 2 |
| Harsher | 1-0 | 2-2 | 0 | 2 |
| Cox | 0-0 | 0-0 | 0 | 0 |
| Alen | 1-1 | 0-0 | 0 | 2 |
| TOTALS | 75-40 | 28-24 | 58 | 104 |

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

Canterbury Club—6 p.m., Chapel of the Cross.

Carolina Symposium Discussion —4 p.m., Whitehead Lounge.

Carolina Symposium — 4 p.m., Whitehead Lounge.

Carolina Political Union—9 p.m., RP I.

Society of Janus—7 p.m., Woodhouse.

SPU—12:30 p.m., upstairs Lenoir, C.O. or G.I..

Westminister Fellowship — 5:30 Presbyterian Student Center, worship; 6, supper; 6:45, "The Honest to God Controversy."

Wesley-Westminster Film Forum —8 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, "Breathless."

MOVIES

Carolina—Sunday in New York
Varsity—Billy Liar

MONDAY

SP—7 p.m., Gerrard Hall, to elect vice chairman, sgt. -at-arms, and fill legislative seat in TM III.

Carolina Symposium Related Discussion—4:30 p.m., RP III

Course Booklet Comm. — 4:30 p.m., Woodhouse Room.

Newman Student Table—6 p.m., Lenior.

Town Students' Campus Chest Booth will be set up at Y-Court thru Thurs., 9-5, and in the library thru Wed., 7-10:30.

TUESDAY

Academic Affairs Comm. — 3 p.m., RPI.

Slimnastic Club — 3:45 p.m., Women's dance studio.

YMCA Nominating Comm. will interview candidates for the offices of pres., vice pres., sec., and treas., from 3-5 p.m. today and Wed.; sign up at the YM president's office.

Square Dance Club—7:30 p.m. Women's Gym.

UNC Sailing Club—7 p.m., 101 West Duke Bldg., Women's Campus Duke, Milt Ricketts, "Inter-collegiate Sailing," all interested persons welcome.

Philological Club — 7:45 p.m., Morehead Faculty Lounge, Dr. Carroll Hollis, "McDonald Clarke, the Mad Poet."

Archeological Seminar—8 p.m., 111 Murphey, Dr. Michael Gough, "The Last Decade of Christian Archeology in Asia Minor."

WEDNESDAY

Basketball Club—4 p.m., Women's Gym.

Stray Greeks—6 p.m., Lenior.

Badminton Club—7 p.m., Women's Gym.

Scuba Diving Club—7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

Italian Cultural Society — 7-9 p.m., Villa Tempesta, reservation for Italian dinner will be taken by Gail Garrison (929-1456) before Monday.

Residence College System Proposed By Cathey, Long

Dean of Men William G. Long has proposed a sweeping reorganization of campus living units in an effort to lessen students' feelings of being "little more than a few holes punched in an IBM card."

Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey says he and other University officials "are most favorably impressed with the potential the program has for the improvement of life on the campus.

"We plan to follow up on it right away," Cathey said.

Long's plan would probably result in:

—social activities centering upon specific residence areas and the pooling of financial resources.

—newspapers for specific residence hall areas.

—officially changing the names of areas to specific residence college names.

—each residence college having a president and each resident hall having a chancellor.

—faculty advisors for the various residence halls or units.

—campus chaplains for the residence colleges.

—deferred fall rush for freshmen.

Long proposed the following specific subdivisions as residence college areas:

(1) Battle-Vance-Pettigrew, Old East, Old West and Carr; (2) the Lower Quad; (3) the Upper Quad; (4) Winston, Connor, Joyner and Alexander; (5) Avery, Parker and Teague; (6) Ehringhaus Hall; (7) Craige Hall.

He suggested designing emblems for residence college areas that could be worn on blazers, placed on stationery and upon the fronts of the residence halls.

Long said that "certain steps have already taken place which could speed the development of a residence college program."

SP To Fill Seat In SL

Filling party positions and a legislative vacancy will be the main order of business at the Student Party meeting tomorrow night.

The meeting, scheduled for Gerrard Hall at 7 p.m., will also be the first time the new by-laws are distributed. Paul Dickson, party chairman, said yesterday that the ratified version has been printed and are available.

The legislative seat is in Town by Paul Chused. Party positions vacant include Sergeant-at-Arms and Publicity Chairman.

Dickson asked that anyone interested in filling the positions contact him at 968-9170 before the meeting.

He urged all members to attend, saying "the new by-laws require all members to attend two meetings before voting."

Plans for a new membership drive will also be announced.

Profs Meet Here Monday

The UNC chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) will hold a special meeting in the lounge of the Faculty Club Monday.

Resolutions dealing with UNC roles in racial relations in and around Chapel Hill, the University role in research leaves and University salary policies will be discussed at the meeting.

The two resolutions to be considered at the special meeting were proposed by the local AAUP chapter's Executive Committee. One resolution proposes that racial discrimination be permanently eliminated from every aspect of the official life of the University and the other proposes that the local AAUP chapter oppose imposition of penalties by university and college authorities against those members of faculties and student bodies participating in peaceful demonstrations on or off campus in support of causes which may be controversial in their communities.

Otelia Will Judge Contest

By CHARLIE BROWN

Otelia Conner, who has been urging students to string along with her etiquette for some time now, will be all wound up come Saturday. She accepted an invitation yesteday to be a judge in the DTH Kite Contest next weekend.

Mrs. Conner expressed delight at the invitation, and said "I only hope I'll do a good job.

"All I know how to fly is an umbrella," she said.

Mrs. Conner joins Joel Fleishman, legal advisor to Governor Terry Sanford, as judges for the contest. Billy Cunningham has also been invited, and DTH Kite Editor Hugh Stevens hinted that a special mystery guest might also be in store.

Fred Seely, DTH Kite Tail Editor, urged all readers to be watching for an announcement of the "Kite Queen," who will make her first (and only) public appearance at the contest.

Rules for the contest appeared in Saturday's DTH, and entrants are urged to sign up as early as possible. Prizes have been donated by the Hub, Kemps, La Pizza and other merchants.

The New Wave Leaves You 'Breathless'

By HENRY McINNIS

"Breathless" starirng Jean Seberg and Jean-Paul Belmondo.

Directed by Jean-Luc Godard

This French movie is about two young lovers who don't give a damn. Its original title meant "out of breath" and in a mere 89 minutes the audience is lucky if it can catch its breath.

"Breathless' will be shown tonight at 8 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center, sponsored by the Westminister Fellowship Admission for this movie, which is one out of several to be presented in their Film Forum series, is free.

Portraying an emancipated American girl living in Paris is Jean Seberg, a role the actress plays in real as well as reel life. The antelope-like Jean-Paul Belmondo is her lover for the season.

This being a significant exponent of France's New Wave cinema, "Breathless" tries to show the terrifying resluts of mass society afflicted with gross indifference to human values, and in this respect it is similar to "La Dolce Vita." The action of the story: Michel, a young Parisian hood, steals a car, kills a highway patrolman, chases after some money owed him for past thefts, so he and his young American girl friend can escape to Italy.

He finances this chase after the money by various other crimes along the way. Meanwhile the police are chasing him but both Michel's flight and the police hunt are half-hearted. Michel's indifference to life, even his own, makes his death almost as meaningless as the existence that preceded it.

In one bedroom scene Michel is lying in Patricia's bed and she blandly goes about arranging packages and belongings in her apartment while he observes her delectable derriere. Sex and its pleasures appears to be the only bond between them. She tells him that when she stares into his face, she sees nothing. It is not only his spiritual emptiness but hers that make them both so free that they have no sense of responsibility or guilt. Like trying on clothee, they are youth playing at living but never involved. Expediency is the standard for behavior and the ordinary moral judgments of society cannot touch them.

In the most profound way, Patricia and Michel are existentialists embittered with nihilism because they express through the formless pattern of their lives the denial and rejection of the existence of any basis for knowledge or truth. They are characters out of Sartre's world, which was brought into flower in France after World War II, and they represent his literary and philosophic premise that each man exists as an individual in a purposeless universe and that he must oppose his hostile environment through the exercise of his free will.

Direction by Godard is slick and unobtrusive. He coaxes relaxed and convincing performances from Seberg and Belmondo. To obtain a "breathless" effect, the scenes change with lightning speed, sometimes with a harsh and jarring unpleasantness. This device may be justified, granted the film should not be pleasant, but to chronicle a sense of sordid reality, one need not jerk from one frame to another.

"Breathless" contains a ravishing panorama of Paris, far above the superficial level of the vulgar travelogue. Its peculiar and intoxicating mystique lends a credibility to the amorphous affair of Michel and Patricia.

The skill of the screenplay, also the work of director Godard, is somewhat annoying in sub-title form, since the viewer will inevitably miss an actor's expression, but it is spontaneous and uncontrived.

Volume 72, Number 107 Sunday, March 1, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 933-1012. Business, circulation, advertising—933-1163. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Free Cuts Are A Fringe Benefit

Student response to the "Careers For Carolina" program has been excellent, and we find this most heartening.

The field of public service has long been misunderstood, and the slate of speakers coming here Friday should prove to be both interesting and enlightening.

The Institute of Government and Student Government have done the University as well as the state a service in organizing this program, which will bring in speakers from four states to discuss public service and the opportunities which lie therein.

Lanny Shuff, coordinator for the program, tells us there are still a few openings for the day-long program. The only charge is for the banquet, and that's just $2.15. Those participating will get free cuts.

It's well worth your time to participate. You can sign up in the Student Government office.

Snip, Snip, Snip

A college education, ideally executed, is really nothing more than one big intellectual and emotional haircut. One's cognitive cowlicks are trained to lay down and blend in with the rest of the scenery, and the once nondescript part in the hair becomes neatly-defined. A certain style is adopted which bests suits the personality of the wearer, and that style is maintained in a fairly consistent way. The sideburns of adolescence are shaved more neatly and worn less conspicuously. There is more of a finished air to the over-all appearance; purpose has replaced compulsiveness and one gets the impression that this person has a pretty good idea of where he is going; that he, in fact, is traveling by invitation.

Such is the result of a college education, ideally executed. How can one tell? Because of all the shaggy manes in sight.

Everett's Example

At a time of conflicting claims and charges over what the civil rights movement is all about, it is refreshing to see that some 30 residents of Everett Residence Hall decided to get at least one side of the story first-hand.

By inviting Quinton Baker, one of the leaders of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee and a college student himself, to speak at Everett Thursday night, Everett residents made plain their desire to understand—not just to blindly criticize—civil rights activity in Chapel Hill and elsewhere.

Significantly, only about an hour of Baker's three-hour visit was monologue. The other two hours were given over to searching questions from the audience. This is the sort of give-and-take session of which Carolina, and Chapel Hill, could stand a good deal more, especially on the pressing problem of civil rights.

Too Many Acorn-Sitters

By FRED HECHINGER
The New York Times

"Thank God for the civil rights movement," said Francis Keppel, United States Commissioner of Education, last week. He chose for this comment the opening session of the annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City. He said he was grateful that the battle for equal educational opportunities has shaken education out of its complacency and has forced educators to stop "the dreary recital" about poverty-stricken children's handicaps "as an excuse for poor schools and ineffective education."

But the Commissioner's optimistic words had barely faded away, when reporters discovered that Mr. Keppel's thanks may have been offered prematurely. The program, planned by the organization of the public school leaders, offered barely a mention of integration and only passing reference to the problems of slums among a total of ten general sessions. 120 section meetings and 30 "expert" sessions.

The association's president, asked about this, said that "most members were not facing problems of integration."

The Keppel speech and the A.A.S.A. attitude drove home these two facts about the leadership of American education:

(1) At best, education reacts to pressures of society, usually after the crisis has become acute, rather than taking the initiative to avert crisis.

(2) Even with the situation already critical, the leadership-at-large fails to grasp the seriousness and the immediacy of the situation.

As a result, many of the convention speeches produced some of the perennial platitudes ("Leave your door and your mind wide open to two-way communication between administrator and teacher") under such perennial cliche titles as "Getting New Teachers Off to a Good Start."

Notable exceptions to the apparent unconcern with reality were the men actually embroiled in current crisis. They spoke at private meetings or special press conferences. Thus, Calvin E. Gross, New York's Superintendent of Schools, had no doubt that the slum schools would make or break public education in the future. John H. Fischer, president of Teachers College, Columbia University, and former superintendent of the Baltimore schools, spoke eloquently of the need to distinguish between essential efforts of integration and improved education, without falling victim to extremists who are ready to destroy good education in the name of a mere physical reshuffling of children to achieve instant integration.

But these were the exceptions. Among the exceptions, the one to put his finger on the problem was George B. Brain, Dr. Fischer's successor in Baltimore. It was the United States Supreme Court decision ordering the public schools to desegregate in 1954 that served as the dynamic force "which has compelled the schools to face a social problem many had chosen to ignore at the local level previously," he said.

Facts underline the deficiencies of educational leadership. That the educational community had failed to come to grips with, or even to anticipate, the school integration issue was demonstrated by the need for the Supreme Court ruling itself as well as by the slow pace with which the educational leadership responded to the ruling. Indicative of the problem, the National Education Association could not agree on a resolution urging integration until its convention in 1961.

Lack of Initiative

Nor is the lack of initiative confined to public school leaders. While leading colleges and universities are now scouring the academic landscape for able Negro students, the higher education leadership failed to anticipate the emergency. Less than a generation ago, the prestige colleges still restricted admission, not only of Negroes but of a host of other minorities.

More important, the Negro colleges, despite their crucial importance to the upgrading of Negro youth in the South, have until recently received little, if any, personal, professional and scholarly helping hands from the nation's university leadership. The fact that, with notable exceptions, these institutions have been condemned to substandard support and quality has been discovered only under the impact of the current crisis. And the general neglect of any massive teacher training program for the urban slum schools needs no further underlining.

This, too, was in Mr. Keppel's mind when he charged that educators have been using such labels as "culturally deprived" or "disadvantaged" as excuses for the schools' failures. Only under pressure of crisis has it been shown that special problems require, in Mr. Keppel's words, "an imaginative change from ways of teaching which do not work and will not work."

Following Sputnik

Examples need not be sought in the field of civil rights alone. With a few notable exceptions (especially that of the Carnegie Corporation's establishment of the Commission on Mathematics in 1955) school reforms merely followed the first Soviet Sputnik into orbit.

Even the current strategy to fight against school dropouts orginated in the late President Kennedy's office rather than in state or local school boards.

Somewhere between the organized school administrators' insufficient awareness of reality and Mr. Keppel's optimistic feeling that the pressures of the day have eliminated complacency may be the true climate of the moment. Possibly, Dr. Van Miller, professor of education at the University of Illinois, described it accurately at last week's meetings. "Perhaps most of us are still riding along on the standard bureaucratized pattern of running schools, seeking to defend it and to modify it without upsetting it," he said. "But we do so more uneasily than ever before."

Or, to quote B. Frank Brown, the pioneering principal of the ungraded high school in Melbourne, Florida: "There are two ways to get to the top of an oak tree: Climb on it, or sit on an acorn. The conventional administrator has chosen to sit on an acorn . . . The cadre of innovators is much too small."

'Where's Everybody Gone?'

Apportionment

Rural Conservatism Is Dead

By RICHARD WILSON
The Washington Star

Old-fashioned rural conservatism in Congress is on the way out. The cartoonists will have to find a different symbol for Congress than the gaitered and goateed hayseed if they are to stay abreast of the times. But whether the old-timers are to be replaced by metropolitan liberals or a neew breed of metropolitan conservatives is another question.

The only sure thing the social scientists know is that change is in the air and the urbanization of Congress is in progress. The change began with the census of 1960. This irreversible effect of population changes in the nation now has been increased by two decisions of the Supreme Court.

One decision forced reapportion of State legislatures to reflect increasing urbanization. The most recent decision forces the redesigning of the congressional districts on as equal a population division as practicable. The effects will be to give the city masses and the suburban complexes greater representation in Congress, and the farm and village people less.

Courts Set Time

This will not all happen at once. The Supreme Court has pointed the way but the lower courts will probably set the pace. A reasonable guess is that the courts may give the states until the election of 1966 to make the changes in congressional districts which will reflect the higher concentrations of city people.

No measure of what is practicable has been given. It would be a reasonable guess that any district one-fourth smaller or one-fourth larger than the average in any state would be affeteed in the forced remaking of congressional districts.

Some 60 to 70 districts probably would be affected now. This would include about 15 percent of Congress as it is now composed. But this is only the beginning. The trend toward increasing urbanization of the population is continuing at a pace which will make America like Europe in the not-too-distant future.

Census Experts

Experts of the U. S. census bureau now say this country is 70 percent urban and 30 percent rural. In the 1970 census, they expect to find the United States approximately 74 percent urban and 26 percent rural. The 30-20 division of Europe between urban and rual is not far beyond that.

The Supreme Court has decreed that American representative government must get in tune with the population trends. Once this process is completed, the social scientists think Congress will move to take up urban problems it now only toys with. The farm bloc, already weakened and divided, probably will be washed up. The city blocs will rule Congress.

Perhaps it is not being too prohetic when the experts speculate that these recent decisions of the court will have a powerful long-range effect on domestic policy. These court decisions could ultimately bring within voting range in Congress the whole roster of social programs and urban improvement demanded by mass pressure in the social democracies of Europe.

Costly Proposals

As now projected these are among the most costly domestic proposals ever conceived: Medical services for people of all ages and stations, mass transportation development, far more extensive housing and educational redevelopment, and expanded aspects of the very limited "war on poverty" declared by President Johnson.

What the experts do not know, however, is whether metropolitan liberalism will prevail in the long run over metropolitan conservatism. Increased metropolitan representation has worked both ways: It has produced both flaming liberals and the new hard-shelled breed of educated conservatives who are in many ways more formidable than the rural conservatives of the past.

But even if the new-breed conservatives were to prevail, the lesson of recent history has been that the trend toward increased central government responsibility and authority overcomes the violent opposition against it.

Now the Supreme Court has once again unshackled the forces in American political life which push the central government to higher and higher levels of responsibility. The push for more and more central responsibility comes from the urban centers. In the next decade they will become more powerful in government than ever before.

Henry McInnis

'A Living American Flag'

Twinkle twinkle astro-star.
My how qualified you are!

Space hero John Glenn is an Ohio candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate. His celebrity value radiates the political skies. He has the ruddy complexion, pearly teeth and clear blue eyes that make him a living American flag.

John Glenn is a refreshing change from the traditional image of the seasoned professional politician. Everybody likes him because he's so wholesome and successful.

Col. Glenn has shown the world his courage and skill beyond doubt. He symbolizes the most admired and respected ideals of the American male. He passed the test when awesome and perilous forces of nature threatened his return to the earth in his space capsule. He has basked in glory ever since the feat.

He is a happily married man with an attractive wife and devoted children. His entry into U.S. politics has no previous background in local or state experience. Why should it? The public loves a hero.

Ohio's veteran Democratic senator, Stephen Young, has real cause to worry about Glenn. Ohio Democrats are lining up behind the former astronaut like wagons hitched to a star.

In fact, this is what appeals most about John Glenn. He is a star. But he is no more qualified to be a U.S. senator than Alhaji Abubaker Tafewa Balewa, Nigeria's prime minister, is qualified to fly to Pluto.

Glenn's candidacy is a disturbing cloud on the political horizon. It is an ominous indication of the approaching era in American poiltics when public relations can fire out of the cannon of inexperience the leaders of tomorrow.

The inevitable result of this trend is that we shall be a nation electing men for reasons that have little or nothing to do with the serious business of the world's leading government.

The "star quality" trend puts the country in the position of sending inexperienced men to Washington with the hope that they will learn to be politicians and statesmen, in a dangerous period of our history when even the qualified professional with years behind him in service is barely capable of performing his duties.

John F. Kennedy had the substance and experience to give depth to the aggressive surface image he so well projected, but John Glenn lacks any basic political credentials.

Let Glenn begin his ascendancy into public service by preparing himself in a political job somewhere between the presidency and precinct chairman, but excluding Congress and the governorship.

Col. Glenn can prove convincingly his desire to serve the nation in politics by refusing to capitalize on his fame.

He should also avail himself of the valuable apprenticeship required of other citizens who do not ride on the coattails of fame to reach the heights of leadership.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

Congratulations

Editors, The Tar Heel:

First of all let me say that I wish to congratulate the DTH and the students of Carolina for their excellent search for the end of segregation. After being to Columbia, where the word integration isn't to be found in dictionaries, it is both a shock and a relief to see the attitude displayed by most Carolina students. It is a shock that a student body only two hundred miles from here would be so much more understanding and rational of the problem confronting the United States today. It is a relief to see that there really are students of this caliber to be found in Southern colleges. The proposed boycott by President Lawler as I have read it is one of the most courageous steps towards ending this injustice that I have ever seen. The black-out crisis is not to be tampered with in the years to come (as suggested by the Gamecock-official publication of the University of South Carolina), but the key word is "now" and the students of Carolina seem to have grasped this problem sensibly, intelligently, and in the best of taste.

The job is far from over, but the steps that Tar Heel students have taken thus far is remarkable. Without a solid foundation the building up of the end of prejudice will cave in—it seems that you have carefully dealt with the problem and found the way to a peaceful solution. Best of luck on a problem in which the entire country is looking at.

Secondly I would like to add my regret that Curry Kirkpatrick has been dismissed. As a newswriter and sportswriter, he seems immensely talented and that whatever "matter of taste" ended his writings with the Heel, should be mended as soon as possible. With the knack of knowing when to satirize, when to joke, and when to be serious, I never missed a story by Kirkpatrick.

It may have been a "matter of taste" which caused the schism, but for the reader's sake the question isn't a matter of taste but a matter of talent. Sacrificing Kirkpatrick will—and has—caused the DTH to lose some of the luster and polish which he so ably had in his writings.

Thank you.
Richard K. Burg
Un. of South Carolina
Columbia, S.C.

Di-Phi

Editors, The Tar Heel:

A free and extensive interchange of ideas is something which every real university ought to have; but, unfortunately, our own university has in recent times not enjoyed this vital advantage. People have repeatedly complained that the DTH's editorial page does not act as a medium of intellectual exchange, and perhaps it should not indeed attempt to serve such a function.

People have rightly been concerned that UNC students do not assemble to air their disagreements, and it is said that an open forum should be available to them, a place where intellectual differences can clash head-on. It is hopefully assumed that such exchange will result in the resolution of some differences, better understanding about what other people really believe, and a healthy, unifying communication among the student body.

It now must be pointed out that function has been served for many years in a most effective way by the Di-Phi Senate, which meets every other Tuesday in New West. Every UNC student is welcome to attend these bi-weekly debate sessions for the purpose of expressing himself on any subject he chooses.

This year the Di-Phi has been the scene of some very thoughtful arguments on many varied subjects: speaker ban, public accommodations law, student professorships, fraternity discrimination, Viet Nam, civil disobedience, etc. Often the student presentations at these debates have been well-prepared and convincing; as often they have been quite spontaneous expressions of personal views. All such communication, I feel, is valuable beyond any dispute.

I want to make you aware that an open forum does exist on campus; it exists very adequately and actively in the Di-Phi Senate. The seating capacity of the New West debating hall has not been exceeded in a long time; when and if Di Hall overflows, then arrangements can easily be made elsewhere.

I urge you to speak out, and to listen to others when they speak out. A free exchange of all ideas is a vital part of any place of higher learning, and it can enhance one's whole university experience.

Hubert Hawkins, Jr.
105 Kenan Street

Your Bed . . .

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Is it not odd that those students who seem to have an abundance of leisure time to devote to picketing local establishments should not have sufficient time to "sitin" at the Orange County Superior Court?

Using your logic of "in loco parentis" may I also suggest that the university establish a few lab courses such as Picketing 41, Crybabies 42 and Sitdowns 101, so that the student may be further prepared to suffer the truth and consequences.

If you're going to make your own bed, learn how to sleep in it!!!

Pete Roessiger
Box 82

They Irk Me

Editors, The Tar Heel:

During the nearly three years I have been at Carolina I have often amused myself by thinking of some of the things which irk me. I wonder if some of my gripes are also those of my fellow students. At least, I need to lessen my burden by sharing a few. Some which come to mind are:

—the lady(ies) in Lenoir Hall who can drew a cup of coffee so fast that you're lucky if you get more than half a cup . . .

—the janitor who comes in each morning to bang your trash can on the floor—this action taking care of room cleaning for another day . . .

—merchants who charge two prices for their merchandise during most of the year and then act as though they're being tremendously big-hearted when they hold a sale and charge what their goods are worth to begin with . . .

—nice coeds who try their darndest to give everyone the impression they're either "betrothed" or at least dated up seven days a week and then gripe because Carolina guys don't ask them for dates . . .

—listening to "KIX" sing its own praises (no one else would) . . .

—having fish in Lenoir on any day except Fridayv (having fish on Friday, for that matter!) . . .

—not being able to get into a course in my major field of study when the class is full of persons taking the course as an elective . . .

—Profs who bend over backwards to be completely, scientifically objective and in the meantime bore you stiff . . .

—standing in line to get something I didn't want anyway . . .

—listening to those idiots forecast rain and then carrying my umbrella around all day in the sunshine . . .

—listening to someone present a sound argument which is contrary to my opinion . . .

—listening to someone gripe . . .

Robert Lee Griffin
232 Parker

Heelprints

Local scenes: The student who, upon getting to class early for the first time, told the professor sheepishly, "I guess I underslept."

* * *

Simile: as short-lived as a Chapel Hill snowstorm.

* * *

The Republicans have quite a problem this year. They have to find enough names to call each other and still have enough left over to call the Democrats.

* * *

Then there's the Joel Fleishman doll you wind it up and it drives from Raleigh to Chapel Hill.

* * *

Nursery rhyme of the week: Little Jack Horner sat in a corner crying "fix!"

* * *

Definition: Editor—a man who knows what he wants but doesn't know what it is.

Big Sports Weekend: The Story In Pictures

Varsity And Frosh Meet Blue Devils

Frosh Tom Parrish Looks For Teammate

Photos By Jim Wallace

Billy Jumps With Hack Tyson

The Crowd Packed Woollen For The Sad, Sad Game

Freshman Tom Gauntlett Makes One The Hard Way

Praying For The Miracle That Never Happened

ACC Swimming Finals Are Held In Woollen Pool

UVA's Harrison Dives For Water In 100 Yard Butterfly Event

Wrestlers Beat State Friday

Caorlina Wrestler Elliot Dworin Struggles As Coach Watches

UNC's Smiley And Mann Start Backstroke

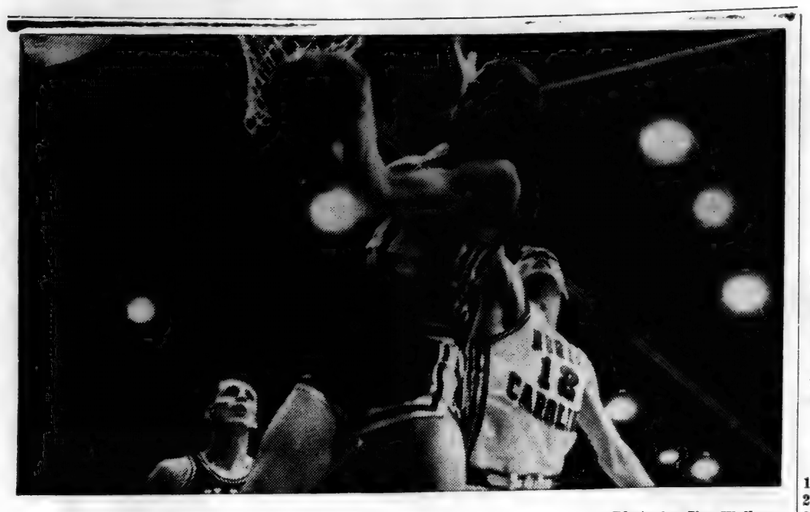
Maryland's Depth Brings ACC Splash Crown



—Photo by Jim Wallace

By PERRY McCARTY

After three days of fierce competition climaxed by a thrilling showdown Saturday, Maryland emerged the victor in the tenth annual ACC Championship Swimming Meet. The final margin was 145½-130, over second-place North Carolina.

Previously the Dolphins had annexed the duel meet crown, but the Terp victory in the championship meet means that the two teams share the conference title for 1963-64.

UNC staged a savage last-ditch effort before bowing to superior Terp depth. The Heels clawed their way from a nine-point deficit to within a single point of the leaders; but the Terps shook the death grip with three places in the 100-fly to close out the home crew.

A win in the final freestyle relay shoved the final victory count up another eight points. It took a record-breaking effort from the Terp quartet, 3:17.1, to shade UNC's Harrison Merrill, Chip Smith, John Sheldon, and Davis Roberts who finished a scant split second back with a 3:17.3.

Of the 17 total events counted toward the championship, UNC claimed eight first places, Maryland six, and NC State three. The record book took on quite a new appearance as six meet records perished, while one, Thompson Mann's 53.9 in the 100 back, tied his previous mark and is just one tenth off the national standard held by Tom Bennett of Southern California.

UNC's two fine All-Americas, Mann and Merrill, together with Pat Gavaghan of NC State each carted away three first place medals. Sophomore Gavaghan proved his versatiliy by record-breaking performances in the 1650 and 500-yard freestyle events, and a fine win in the 200-fly.

Junior Harrison Merrill posted new standards in both the 400 individual medley and the 200-free. He also won the 100 free, out-touching Bill Nullymeyer, the Terps fine sophomore freestyler. In two years, Merrill now has six individual titles to his credit plus ACC records n a host of events.

Senior backstroker Mann drew down the curtain on a fabulous four-year career with an equally stirring finale. Mann crashed through the two minute barrier in the 200 back with a 1:59.9, streaked to within a tenth of a second of the natonal 100-back mark, and won the 200 individual medley.

During his tenure here, Mann established himself as one of the nation's outstanding backstrokers and completely dominated all ACC opponents in this event.

Though you can be sure the Dolphins had aimed at undisputed claim on the ACC crown, this remains the finest season in recent UNC swimming history. Previous mentor and longtime observer of the activity in Bowman Gray Pool, Dick Jamerson was prompted to call this season "the best ever."

Perhaps the most pleasing surprise of the entire year was the magnificant effort of sophomores John Sheldon, Rick Forum, and Fred Lipp. These newcomers had to supply punch and all three turned in a host of sparkling performances.

Junior freestylers Smith and Roberts improved with every outing. Time and again Roberts delivered clutch tough-minded showings.

Then too senior co-captain Mike Bissell, backstroker Scot Smiley and Joe Lea contributed a great deal to the Dolphin's success.

With the regular season over what is in store now? Coach Pat Earey plans to take a small group to the Eastern Inter-collegiate Championships up at Dartmouth in another two weeks.

Next come the NCAA Championships at New Haven, March 24-27. Finally, freshman sensation Pete Worthen will join the top varsity men for the trip to Bartlesville, Oklahoma and the National AAU Championships the first weekend in April.

This meet will just about amount to the United States Olympic qualifying trials.

STANDINGS ;

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | Maryland | 145½ |
| 2. | UNC | 130 |
| 3. | NC State | 76 |
| 4. | Duke | 42½ |
| 5. | Wake Forest | 15 |
| 6. | Virginia | 8 |
| 7. | South Carolina | 5 |
| 8. | Clemson | 0 |

Swimming Results

1650 FREESTYLE
1. Gavaghan (NCS)
2. Loomis (NCS)
3. Sheldon (UNC)
4. Harding (Md)
5. McMahan (Md)
(time: 18:23.4)

100 FREESTYLE
1. Merrill (UNC)
2. Nullmeyer (Md)
3. Gilson (Md)
4. Roberts (UNC)
5. McGinty (NCS)
(time' 49.0)

100 BREATHSTROKE
1. Doheny (Md)
2. Forum (UNC)
3. Derby (NCS)
4. Lea (UNC)
5. Green (Md)
(time: 1:03.8)

100 BACKSTROKE
1. Mann (UNC)
2. Paoletti (NCS)
3. Carroway (Duke)
4. Smiley (UNC)
5. Vermuellean (NCS)
(time: 53.9)

100 BUTTERFLY
1. Rebillard (Md)
2. Dunpy (Md)
3. Lipp (UNC)
4. Manfredi (Md)
5. Harrison (Va)
(time: 54.6)

THREE-METER DIVING
1. Taylor (Wake)
2. Squires (Md)
3. Jennings (Md)
4. Moody (UNC)
5. Broadhurst (NCS)

400 FREESTYLE RELAY
1. Maryland (Nuilmeyer, Gilson, Lampe, Geary)
2. UNC (Merrill, Smith, Sheldon, Roberts)
3. Duke
4. NC State
5. Wake Forest
(time: 3:17.1

Kentucky Squeaks Past Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Nationally second ranked Kentucky edged past Tennessee 42-38 Saturday to give the Wildcats their 21st Southeastern Conference title in 32 years and a berth in the NCAA Tournament.

Tommy Kron, a 6-5 guard from Owensboro, Ky., was the Wildcats' hero. He has averaged only 4.7 points per game into Saturday's contest but picked up 17 points to help hand Tennessee its first loss at home this year.

As the outside man on Kentucky's 1-3-1 zone defense, Kron held Danny Schultz to 10 points.

The Vols' tight deefnse held Kentucky's All-American guard Cotton Nash to 5 points, all scored at the foul line.

Tennessee hit 14 goals to 12 for Kentucky but the Wildcats made up the difference in free throws connecting on 18 of 22 the Vols hit 10 of 14.

Roy Emerson Disqualified

MELBOURNE, Astralia (UPI)—Roy Emerson, considered by many the leading amateur tennis player in the world, was barred Saturday from Davis Cup selection in 1964.

The harsh move by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia virtually doomed Australia's bid to recapture the coveted trophy it lost to the United States last December. Emerson had automatically barred himself by defying the Australian body and playing in the Dixie International tennis tournament at Tampa, Fla., Friday.

'The Name Of The Game Is Rebound' Says Duke's Mullins

Remember Woollard? Heels Find Another

By LARRY TARLETON

Remember Bob Woollard? You know the "spas" from Wake Forest who always managed to somehow beat the Tar Heels. Well, we've found another one. This one wears a navy blue uniform, No. 34 with the name Harrison on his back.

The new Woollard, came to Woollen Gym yesterday with an 8.5 average, but left with a 9.5 average after tossing in 28 points from all over the floor. His outside shooting made the Tar Heels come out of their moderately successful 1-3-1 zone and go into a man-to-man. From then on, Carolina fans were wishing the game would end a little faster.

With Duke shooting and shooting until they finally scored, the Heels, who shot 37 per cent from the floor, were never again in the game. At one point, the Blue Devils put up five shots over the helpless, shorter Carolinians before finally scoring.

A business-like Vic Bubas was suprised at the easy manner in which his forces won. He said, "We didn't anticipate anything like this. We knew UNC would be fired up. They didn't have Charlie Shaffer, and they missed him, especially off the boards. They had seven rebounds at half-time and Billy Cunningham had five of them.

"Being up for the game isn't everything — look at that Southern Conference Tournament. I know those top three teams were ready. Now I don't have to preach to my boys."

Down the hall, a visibly disappointed Dean Smith stepped out of the dressing room, lit a cigarette and voiced the opinion of all the Carolina faithful, "It was a long game wasn't it?"

Pointing to Duke's 29-7 rebound advantage in the first half, Smith said, "Their board play in the first half was the big factor in the game. We were only getting one shot, and couldn't stop their fast break."

Smith was pleased with the play of Bob Bennett off the boards and hinted that Bob would see more action next week if he continued his fine rebounding.

He added that it was obvious that some changes would have to be made before the tournament. Smith pointed out that in 1960, the Heels beat Duke by 25 points in the last game of the season only to lose to them five days later. Well, we can dream, can't we?

Monday's Murals

BASKETBALL PLAYOFFS
Frat White Semifinals
TEP Trepids vs. Phi Delt-2 (5, Court 6)
Chi Psi White vs. w/PiKA-2-Sig Nu Shocks (8, Court 6)
Dorm Blue Semifinals
Navy vs. Town Toughies (8, Varsity)
Mangum vs. Ehringhaus B (9, Court 6)
Frat Blue Semifinal
Beta Theta Pi vs. Phi Kappa Sigma (9, Varsty)
(only games scheduled)

It Was Just As Bad On TV

By HUGH STEVENS

It was like a nightmare—but there it was, right on the TV screen. TED MANN took the set shot—and made it! Sound impossible? Sure it does—but the whole afternoon was sort of like that.

Most of the DTH staff didn't make it to Woollen Gym for yesterday's Duke-Carolina fiasco. But if it was any worse in person than on the silver screen, we couldn't have stood it.

We had started the day with high hopes, but where there's hope, there's disappointment. The game began at 2:05. By 2:07 it was all over.

The stage was set when Duke got five chances to make its first field goal (thanks to some fierce rebounding) and Ray Hassell took advantage of a beautiful pass to throw the ball away. A little over five minutes into the game we got the first high point of the afternoon—a commercial.

Billy Cunningham looked good (he was a one-man team for the first ten minutes), but Buzzy Harrison (who bothers to play only against Carolina) could have thrown it in a thimble, and the Blue Devils doubled the score at the 15:30 mark (12-6).

At this point, Gary Blanchard predicted a 12-point Duke victory, I said 20, and Fred Seely guessed 25. Dave Ethridge wondered aloud, "What's on Channel 5?"

Harrison and Jeff Mullins continued to lead the Duke surge in the face of some unbelievable shots by Billy, and with 47 seconds in the half, the Blue Devils led by 45-31. I looked at my watch. We had been enduring this torture for exactly 34 minutes.

During the last first-half commercial, Ethridge paused for a character analysis of Jay Buckley ("What a fink!"), and as the buzzer sounded, Arnold Palmer pounded one 370 yards off the fifth tee (we had turned to Challenge Golf by then).

Palmer and Gary Player won two holes before we turned back to the slaughter. Carolina was colder than Silent Sam's nose in the early minutes, and with 17:30 left, Seely suggested we turn back to the golf match. We should have.

Things perked up, though, and UNC chopped the lead to 64-36 with 14 minutes to go. ("We've got 'em on the run," Ethridge remarked.) Cunningham continued to outduel Mullins, but he had to score half of his team's first 55 points to do it. The UNC cheerleaders appeared on the screen, and even Frieda Collins looked tired.

Then it happened. Ted Mann, Jr., who has been called "the worst player ever to wear a Duke uniform," came in. He scored. We turned the set off and went home.

—Worst Defeat In 15 Years—

(Continued from Page 1)

would be 11, the next minute 13, and then back to 11. During this period, Cunningham, who had 15 points in the first half, was sinking a variety of shots to keep the Smithmen within striking distance.

But they never struck. As the final seconds of the first half ticked away, the Blue Devils opened up their biggest lead to that point as Mullins sank four free throws, Tison tapped in an easy basket and Buckley surprised everyone by shooting from 15 feet out and making it. Duke took a 48-31 lead to the dressing room.

The Tar Heels should have taken a tip from Sonny Liston and never come out for the second half. The Blue Devils took up right where they had left off. Mullins sank two quickies and Tison crammed in another. That made it, 54-31. If you hadn't been a believer in this Duke team before, you were by now.

Dean Smith and Vic Bubas spent the rest of the afternoon seeing who could send the most substitutes into the game the most number of times. If the Tar Heels won in this category, it was the only thing they won all afternoon. Duke outshot the Heels from the floor (53.3 per-cent to 37.1) and from the line (24-of-28 to 13-of-21). And the rebounding of course wasn't even close.

Cunningham finished the contest with 28 points to tie Harrison for game honors. Mullins was third in points with 24 and his 13 rebounds were second only to big Buckley's 15. Cunningham had nine.

It was the sixth loss in the last seven games for the Tar Heels, who finished the regular season with an 11-11 record. That it was UNC's worst defeat in 15 years should best be forgotten.

Junior Year in New York

An unusual one-year college program.

Write for brochure JY-4

Junior Year Program
Washington Square College
New York University
New York 3, N. Y.

REYNOLDS COLISEUM
N. C. STATE CAMPUS, RALEIGH
MON., MARCH 2ND – 8 P.M.
Tickets 2.00, 2.50, 3.00 Coliseum Box Office & Kemps

BIG HALF TIME SHOW
FEATURING CAB CALLOWAY
PEG-LEG BATES & 5 OTHER
OUTSTANDING ACTS

GOOD SEATS AVAILABLE

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M. featuring
BEEFKABOB
4 Meats—7 Vegetables ---------- $2.85
All You Can Eat—It's a Cowboy's Treat
Recommended by Duncan Hines and Gourmet
RANCH HOUSE

YOU CAN GET ANY KIND OF
GREETING CARD
IN THE WORLD AT LEDBETTER-PICKARDS . . .

1. BIRTHDAYS
2. WEDDINGS
3. NEW ARRIVALS
4. GET WELL
5. ANNIVERSARY
6. AND OTHERS

Ledbetter Pickard

What Could be More Complete?

SPECIAL Student-Instructor DISCOUNT!

WORLD FAMOUS GRUNDIG PORTABLE TAPE RECORDER
Nationally Advertised at $129.95
NOW $59.50 postpaid, less batteries & tape

Tapes lectures, field trips, concerts, debates, speech and language classes, party fun! Quality built in W. Germany. Flashlite battery operated, all-transistor recorder has simplified controls, microphone. 8 lbs.... 12" long... takes std. 3" reels, std. 3¾ ips speed. Has recording level indicator, powerful self-contained "Superphonic" speaker. Built into white leatherette carrying case.

10 DAY MONEY BACK SATISFACTION GUARANTEE!

PPP, Inc., Dept. SI, 18 Central Park Ave., Hartsdale, N.Y.
Enlosed is my check or money order:
Send me_____recorders—each $59.50 postpaid.
☐ Separate Power Pack for plug-in AC operation $9.50 ea.
SAVE on 3" reels of tape... ea. $.40. _____reels $_____
NAME_____
ADDRESS_____
CITY_____ ZONE_____ STATE_____

Varsity NOW PLAYING

"A MOVIE GEM!

SO DAMNED FUNNY AT TIMES THAT YOU LAUGH UNTIL YOU CRY! A work of extraordinary fludity, power and expressiveness . . . Courtnay's performance is masterful, an extremely superior British Film.

"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST!"—N. Y. Post
"VIGOR, HIGH COMEDY, DRY WIT AND SUBTLETLY. The Performances are flawless!"—Judith Crist, Herald Tribune
"FOUR AND A HALF STAR"—Wanda Hale, Daily News

"I URGE YOU TO GO AND SEE IT! FUNNY . . . A JAUNTY PACE AND BRILLIANT!"—Brendon Gill, The New Yorker
" 'BILLY LIAR'—HE'S FUN! GAY AND AMUSING . . . BOLD AND GLAMOROUS!"—Bosley Crowther, New York Times

one guy... three girls... one ring!... Paradise?

BILLY LIAR

TOM COURTENAY AS

A WALTER READE-STERLING PRESENTATION

A bold, blushing, outrageously funny movie...

Dedicated to the proposition that every girl gets... sooner or later!!!

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presents A Seven Arts Production

"SUNDAY in NEW YORK"

STARRING CLIFF Robertson * JANE Fonda * ROD Taylor
CO-STARRING ROBERT Culp * JO Morrow * JIM Backus
MUSIC BY PETER NERO SCREENPLAY BY NORMAN KRASNA PRODUCED BY EVERETT FREEMAN DIRECTED BY PETER TEWKSBURY
IN METROCOLOR

Carolina NOW PLAYING

POGO

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

★ ★ ★

Secret Ballot Edition

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
Good For Golf

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, MARCH 3, 1964 | United Press International Service

Federal Court Gets Sit-In Cases In Surprise Move

By JEFFREY DICK

HILLSBORO — Attorneys for civil rights demonstrators in a surprise move yesterday petitioned the Orange County Superior Court for the removal of some 932 cases to the Middle District Federal Court.

In presenting the petition to the Clerk of Court, attorneys Floyd McKissick, Clarence C. Malone Jr. and M. C. Burt charged that the defendants "could not receive a fair trial in any court in North Carolina."

Judge Raymond B. Mallard addressed himself to the defense attorneys and charged "This is a false and scurrilious attack upon every court in the state and upon the Supreme Court."

Upon presentation of the petition to the Clerk, the cases were automatically transferred to the Federal Court. According to Malone, the cases remain in the Federal Courts until such time as the court may decide to remand the cases back to another court. This could only be done, he added, if the court found the allegations in the petitions to be untrue.

A hearing will be called to bring the petition before the Federal Court. There attorneys for the demonstrators will argue the petition in opposition to attorneys for the State of North Carolina.

If the petition is found true, the cases will be heard in the Middle District Federal Court in Greensboro. If untrue, the cases may be remanded back to a state court.

In his initial appearance in court yesterday morning, Mallard immediately instructed those in the court room that "there will be no talking in the courtroom; there will be no eating or drinking in the courtroom; there will be no laughing in the courtroom; there will be no reading in the courtroom."

Sheriff's deputies instructed students on several occasions to cease reading in the room or be taken before the judge for contempt of court.

Mallard began instructing the Grand Jury shortly after Court convened at 10 o'clock. In his hour and one half lecture, Mallard specifically pointed out the situation on criminal conspiracy.

"I deem it necessary," Mallard said, "to point out, in particular, criminal conspiracy."

Criminal conspiracy is the unlawful concurrence of two or more persons to do an unlawful act, or to do a lawful act in an unlawful manner."

A spokesman for the civil rights movement later said he felt this action was pointed out with particular reference to civil rights leaders.

After instructing the Grand Jury, Mallard called the petit jury forward. Four perspective jurors were fined $20 when they failed to appear in court.

Several jurors were then dismissed, among them Dr. Maurice Natanson, professor of Philosophy at UNC.

Natanson told the Court he was "morally and intellectually committed to the ideals of the civil rights movement and can not render objective judgment."

After the petition was presented, Mallard preceded to call each defendant before him, one by one. He asked each one if the attorneys presenting the petition were in fact representing their case.

In all instances the reply was "yes." The judge excused the defendants from court for all cases presented in the petition.

When court adjourned, approximately 20 persons still had not been called before the judge to answer the questions.

CPU Interviews

The Carolina Political Union will hold interviews for the seven remaining positions this week.

Interviews will be held Friday from 2-5 p.m. in Roland Parker I of Graham Memorial. Interested students should sign up at GM Information Desk before noon Friday. Graduates and undergraduates may apply.

Charges Dropped

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — Illegal fishing charges against screen actor Marlon Brando and an Episcopal clergymen were dropped Monday when Pierce County prosecutor John G. McCutcheon refused to file them in court.

"Brando did this for show only," McCutcheon asserted. "We're not going to let him make a mockery of the law or of our office. He has made his point. There is no purpose in letting him sit in jail."

Brando and the Rev. John J. Yaryan, canon precentor of Grace Cathedral in San Francisco, were arrested earlier Monday by state game protectors for participating in an Indian "fish-in" on the Puyallup River here.

Brando and the Rev. Mr. Yaryan were booked into the Pierce County Jail before McCutcheon decided not to press charges.

Brando and Mr. Yaryan, neither of whom have Indian ancestry, said they went fishing to support Indian claims that treaty fishing rights had been violated.

Brando and Cannon Yaryan, pastor of Grace Episcopal Church in San Francisco, were arrested by Walter Neubrech, chief enforcement officer of the State Game Department.

Funeral Today For Chapel Hill Opera Singer

The funeral of retired opera star and Chapel Hill resident Norman Cordon will be held in Charlotte today at 2 p.m.

The former bass-baritone for the Metropolitan opera was engaged in a statewide music program and opera institute sponsored by UNC.

A native of Washington, N.C., Cordon graduated from the University and was encouraged to enter opera by the late Paul Weaver, director of UNC's music department.

Cordon was the lead baritone with the Metropolitan for 10 years. He sang in Lohengrin, Rigoletto, Carmen and other operas, but his favorite role was "Mephistopheles" in Faust.

Cordon was the commentator for 15 years on WUNC-FM's "Lets Listen to Opera" radio show. His last program was heard Friday night.

2 Pickets Assaulted Saturday

Two pickets were heckled and assaulted Saturday night in front of Clarence's Bar and Grill on West Franklin St.

Two students, one from Duke, were arrested when they were caught heckling and obstructing the pickets early in the evening.

They were John Allen English, of Duke, and William Henry Burwell, who did not state his school. He is not from UNC.

The two were charged and released on bond.

The two picketers, Mrs. Burt Segall and Kent Cooper, were assaulted about 11 p.m. by two men who had been standing in the side street.

The men hit Cooper twice with a rock used as a club and he fell. The side of his face was cut and he was bleeding inside his mouth. He was not taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Segall was then hit in the face and the two men fled.

A police car was stationed in front of Clarence's all night but had left to make a check down the street on both occasions.

Cooper, who came here to visit a professor Saturday afternoon, said he saw one of his assailants standing a short distance away when the police had returned. The police talked to the man but did not arrest him when Cooper could not make "positive identification."

Chief William Blake said yesterday that the suspect would be questioned. He said the man was known to the police.

The picketers were representing the recently formed Committee of Concerned Citizens (CCC).

A subcommittee of the CCC will meet today at 8 p.m. in the Community Church to discuss plans to lobby in Washington for the civil rights bill.

The full committee will meet Saturday at 2 p.m. to discuss picketing activities.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

UP—interviews for endorsement to SL, Woodhouse Room, Tues., 2-4 p.m.; Wed., 3-5 p.m.; Thurs., 3-5 p.m., and 8-9 p.m.

Seminars Abroad — 9 p.m., Y-Building, all interested in travel in Europe please come.

UNC Young Republican Club— 7:30 p.m., Howell Hall, UNC mock political convention.

Caro-Biners—7 p.m., 302 Woollen Gym.

Campus Chest Auction Comm.— 6:45 p.m., 2nd floor Y-Court.

WRC—6:45 p.m., Grail Room.

Academic Affairs Comm. — 3 p.m., RPI.

Slimnastic Club — 3:45 p.m., Women's dance studio.

YMCA Nominating Comm. will interview candidates for the offices of pres., vice pres., sec., and treas., from 3-5 p.m. today and Wed.; sign up at the YM president's office.

Square Dance Club—7:30 p.m. Women's Gym.

UNC Sailing Club—7 p.m., 101

(Continued on Page 3)

Court Rules Out Hospital Segregation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — By a brief but far-reaching order, the Supreme Court today let stand a lower court ruling that outlaws racial segregation of doctors and patients in hospitals built with the help of federal funds.

The court did so by refusing to review a decision against two Greensboro, N. C., hospitals which had obtained assistance under the federal Hill-Burton Act. Without comment, the court turned down a request of the two hospitals for a high court hearing on the case.

The impact of the action may extend to other states and communities which have used federal grants for hospital construction.

The decision banning segregation policies in such facilities was handed down last Nov. 1 by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which reversed a district federal judge's finding.

The lawsuit was initiated in 1962 by 11 Negro doctors, dentists and patients in the Greensboro area. The Justice Department later was allowed to participate in the case on the side of the Negroes.

In other actions today, the Supreme Court:

—Upheld by a 6-3 vote a ruling that all of Texas' 23 congressional districts must be redrawn but opened the way for delaying the action until after this year's elections. A lower federal court held that the Texas districts were unfairly drawn under the equal population yardstick set up in a Georgia case two weeks ago. The Supreme Court however gave the state until April 1 to obtain court relief "in light of the present circumstances including the imminence of the forthcoming election . . ."

—Refused to give a hearing to four New York City Negroes who claimed that the 1961 realignment of congressional districts in Queens created a "Negro ghetto." A special three judge federal court had dismissed their complaint because of lack of evidence.

—Ruled by a unanimous 9-0 vote that the Federal Power Commission has jurisdiction over wholesale sales of electric power in interstate commerce without regard to state regulation. The decision came in a dispute over a rate increase charged to Colton, Calif., by Southern California Edison Co.

SG, IG Sponsor 'Careers' Friday

Careers for Carolina, a program to make students aware of the opportunities available in public service, will be held Mar. 6.

Co-sponsored by Student Government and the Institute of Government, the symposium will bring to campus 18 speakers who are experts on various fields of state and national government.

Administration, education, social services and economic development are the major categories of government service which will be discussed.

The significance, personal and educational qualifications, opportunities for achievement and trends of each major category will be discussed.

Speakers will come from a three-state area to participate and discuss the topics which directly concern them.

Among those speaking will be Joel Fleishman, Legal Advisor to the Governor; William Veeder, City Manager of Charlotte; Russel Ranson, Administrator of Commerce and Industry for the Department of Conservation and Development; and Chancellor Aycock.

The program will last from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. with a two hour break for lunch at the Carolina Inn, which will cost $2.15.

Students participating in the program will be excused from classes.

Those interested in participating should sign up as soon as possible at the information desk at Graham Memorial. Only one hundred spaces are available.

Want A Smart Kid?

By KERRY SIPE

According to a report by physicist John R. Platt of the University of Chicago, a generation of 21st century Albert Einsteins is now in the making on America's college campuses.

It is a potent combination of sex and IQ that has as its genetic consequence a rising output of baby genius quiz kids.

Darwin might have guessed it. The top 10 per cent of our nation's smartest minds are being thrown together on co-educational campuses all across the land during the most susceptible mating season common to the species.

Says Dr. Platt, "These marriages are now producing five or ten times the total number of 150 IQ's, for example, that we would get from perfectly random marriages in the normal population," where IQs average 100.

James W. Little of the University Testing Bureau has facts to back up the Platt report. While UNC doesn't give IQ tests as such, College Board Examination scores can be considered a workable indication of mental capacity, says Little.

During the time between 1958 and 1964, the top 2 per cent of Board Scores have risen from a raw score of 1354 to 1443. "People are definitely getting smarter," Little said.

It's interesting to notice also that the lowest—that is, the dumbest—2 per cent of Board Scores have risen even a greater amount. This seems to indicate that people are not as dumb as they used to be.

Little, however, is not as quick to admit that heredity has anything to do with the rising trend. "I tend to believe that a great many selective factors rather than heredity is responsible for the change," he said.

If the Platt report is right, we can look forward to the time when eleven-year-old physicists will design our space craft and nine-year-old professors inhabit our classrooms.

Even more spectacular children than these might emerge from intellectual communities like

(Continued on Page 3)

Gubernatorial Candidate

Dan Moore To Speak In Gerrard Hall At 8

DAN K. MOORE

The three major Democratic gubernatorial candidates will bring their campaigns to the University campus this spring, starting with the appearance here tonight of Dan K. Moore.

Moore will speak in Gerrard Hall at 8 p.m. A question and answer session will follow his brief talk, and students and visitors will get a chance to meet him personally at a reception at Graham Memorial. The same format will be followed for all three candidates.

Wednesday morning a breakfast will be held at the Colonial Inn in Hillsboro from 7:30 to 9. The public is invited to meet Judge Moore on both occasions.

Candidates L. Richardson Preyer and I. Beverly Lake will make appearances here during the spring, under the same sponsorship. Judge Preyer held a meet-the-candidate breakfast at Camp New Hope last week. Judge Moore was honored last year at a reception at the home of Fred Cates, who was Orange YDC president at the time.

Moore was the first of the three to toss his hat into the political ring for the May primary. A University alumnus, he served as a Superior Court Judge for 10 years and then stepped off the bench in 1958 to become legal counsel for Champion Paper Corporation, which has a large plant at Canton, in the western part of the State.

He is desended from a line of pioneers that settled in North Carolina before the Revolutionary War and subsequently furnished a speaker of the State House of Representatives and three Superior Court Judges.

The University granted him its B.S. degree in Business Administration in 1927. He then entered the UNC School of Law and was admitted to the Bar in

(Continued on Page 3)

'64 Moreheads Are Announced On Tube Today

Final winners of the 1964 John Motley Morehead Scholarships will be announced at 5:30 p.m. today over WUNC-TV, a spokesman for the Foundation said yesterday.

Seventy-two high school and prep students were honored Sunday night at a Buffet supper given in honor of the competition finalists.

The finalists are from North Carolina public schools as well as from 16 accredited private schools in the eastern United States. They were selected from over 850 nominees.

John Motley Morehead, 94-year-old diplomat, industrialist and founder of the Morehead Foundation spoke to the group.

"Get ready to catch the train or it will leave without you," Morehead told the boys. "Never before has such a striving for knowledge been our duty."

Morehead pointed out that the graduating class at UNC has grown enormously during his lifetime.

Present also at the supper were John L. Morehead, vice-chairman of the Foundation; Consolidated University President William Friday; Chancellor Aycock; and Foundation trustees and faculty members.

Those finalists who do not win Morehead Foundation Scholarships will receive full four-year tuition scholarships to the University.

DOCS TO LOS ANGELES

Dr. John C. Brauer, dean and Dr. James W. Bawden, assistant dean of the UNC School of Dentistry, will be official delegates to the 41st annual session of the American Association of Dental Schools in Los Angeles on March 22-25.

Dean Brauer is chairman of a special committee on manpower and auxiliaries and Dr. Bennie D. Barker, of UNC, is a member of the committee on teaching.

Dr. Roy L. Lindahl will speak on a panel.

'Something More Than Just A Dorm' —Good

By FRED SEELY

A plan to give UNC residents "something more than a dorm to live in" is gaining impetus. Gerry Good, MRC president, yesterday released further information on the "residence college" plan.

"The idea of residence college is an outgrowth of an exchange of ideas between student government and the administration in an ad hoc committee formed early in the fall," he said.

The committee consists of Dean of Men Willian G. Long, Dr. Clifford B. Reifler, Arthur Tuttle, Dr. Claimorne S. Jones, Bob Spearman, Don Carson, Clark Brewer, Dick Ellis and Good.

"The committee meets every week in an effort to get an outline for establishing the system next year," Good added.

The system would probably result in:

—social activities centering upon specific residence areas and the pooling of financial resources.

—newspapers for specific residence hall areas.

—officially changing the names of areas to specific residence college names.

—each residence college having a president and each resident hall having a chancellor.

—faculty advisors for the various residence hall or units.

—campus chaplains for the residence colleges.

The campus probably would be subdivided into the following residence groups:

(1) Battle-Vance-Pettigrew, Old East, Old West and Carr; (2) the Lower Quad; (3) the Upper Quad; (4) Winston, Connor, Joyner and Alexander; (5) Avery, Parker and Teague; (6) Ehringhaus Hall; (7) Craige Hall.

"The Men's Residence Council has formed a special committee which will condense what the residence college would be like and prepare a report to be presented at the next MRC meeting," Good said.

"If approved, the plan will be printed and distributed to every resident of a men's living unit.

"The MRC executive committee will also be visiting all the residence halls to explain the proposed plan."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Mayor Wagner's Wife Dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Susan Wagner, 54, the first lady of New York City, died Monday of lung cancer.

Her husband, Mayor Robert F. Wagner, and her two sons, Robert F. Wagner 3rd, 20 and Duncan 17, were at her bedside at the end.

The cancer that took her life was discovered nearly one year ago and doctors had battled ever since to overcome it. But she took a turn for the worse over the weekend and it was announced this morning that she was near daeth.

She died at 12:35 p.m. (EST).

Doctors said there was nothing they could do other than make her last few hours as comfortable as possible with oxygen and sedatives. She failed to respond to such treatment as cobalt radiation and chemotherapy.

Glenn's Tumble Delays Campaign

COLUMBUS (UPI) — Former astronaut John Glenn Jr., who was supposed to have begun his campaign for the U.S. Senate nomination today, remained instead in a hospital recuperating from a mild brain concussion.

Alhtough Glenn was described as feeling "much more energetic" today than anytime since he fell in the bathroom of his apartment Wednesday, he will stay in the hospital a few more days.

MacArthur To Enter Hospital

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur left here today for Washington to enter Walter Reed Hospital for observation and evaluation of abdominal complaints, it was announced.

The 84-year-old general was accompanied by his wife, Jean, and an aide, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, according to an announcement by 1st Army Headquarters here.

Nobel Winner Speaks Tonite

By MAT FRIEDMAN

His favorite form of recreation is "conversation, especially with pretty women." His address is the "Golden Helix" at Cambridge University. And, he won the Nobel Prize in 1962 for deciphering one of the greatest mysteries of genetics.

Dr. Francis Harry Compton Crick, world-famous, world-traveled British biochemist, will present the first Elisha Mitchell Memorial Lecture tonight at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

In 1953, Dr. Crick and two associates rocked the scientific world with their findings on a strange complex substance called DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid). Nine years later, Drs. Crick, James D. Watson, and Maurice H. F. Wilkins won the Nobel Prize in medicine and physiology for working out the structure of DNA and explaining how it transmits characteristics from parent to child, and generation to generation.

"Their suggestion of DNA," says Dr. John B. Graham, president of Elisha Mitchell, "marks one of the most important milestones in biology in the last 15 or 20 years.

"They made suggestions which led to hypotheses about what makes us what we are. They explained how the whole series of human characteristics could be carried in a single cell yet lead to a whole person, and how that it could be passed on from generation to generation."

In addition to being famous for his biological work, Dr. Crick has a reputation for being something of a personality. Besides his propensity for talking with pretty women and living in the Golden Helix—named for the helix-shaped DNA molecule—Dr. Crick once resigned his fellowship at Churchill College because he didn't like the college chapel; in fact, he put up a 100-pound prize for an essay contest on "What can be done with the college Chapels?"

"Dr. Crick," says Dr. Graham, "is one of the real celebrities of science."

"Before Dr. Crick's discovery," he explains, 'it was thought that the genetic code was contained in a protein molecule. But Crick and his associates felt that protein was just too simple for the genetic code."

Their discoveries, says Dr. Graham, have had three major outgrowths:

1—They cracked the genetic code

2—They explained how DNA exactly replicates itself into the next generation

3—They showed how the genetic message is transcribed from one generation to the next.

"In addition to this," says Dr. Graham, "the scheme provides a quick and easy understanding of mutations (changes in the genes). Almost all present genetic work goes back to the Watson-Crick model."

Dr. Crick, who worked in Physics during World War II and made some important contributions to radar development, was started on the path to DNA through his X-ray work at the Cavendish Laboratories in England. Dr. Watson, a rich graduate student at the time and former child prodigy, got the idea of using X-ray diffractions for genetic studies while in India, and got in touch with Dr. Crick. With Dr. Wilkins, a New Zealand-born physicist, they became one of the most famous teams in modern science.

Dr. Crick, known for his global wanderings, will speak at both UNC Greensboro and Bowman Gray School of Medicine tomorrow, and will spend Thursday at NC State in Raleigh.

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1879.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Volume 72, Number 108 Tuesday, March 3, 1964

Judge Dan K. Moore, Democratic candidate for governor, will speak at 8 p.m. tonight at Gerrard Hall. This, and the appearance of Judge Richardson Preyer and I. Beverly Lake later in the semester, will give Carolina students unparalleled opportunity to find out and judge the stands of the Democratic candidates. One of these men will most likely be the next Governor of North Carolina.

Judge Moore is a graduate of this University, and as such, comes to us as a friend of Carolina, and a friend of higher education in general. We have read some of Moore's campaign speeches, and found one to be particularly germaine to our condition here at Chapel Hill.

In a speech to the Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity at Wake Forest, Judge Moore outlined his stand on the Speaker Ban Law and on rights, liberties, duties and the communist threat in general. He said, ". . .It is important that the nature of this threat be called repeatedly to the attention of the young men and women who are going out from our colleges and universities to occupy positions of leadership in our society. It is upon them that the responsibility for fighting this menace will rest in years ahead."

And, "In good conscience, I cannot conemn any honestly conceived action that is designed to deny the forum of our campuses to those who come bearing the chains of slavery in one hand and holding high the torch of atheism in the other.

"At the same time, I am in sympathy with those who are charged with the administration of our University and colleges, and certainly share their desire for independence in the pursuit of truth."

"As a graduate of the University of North Carolina, I believe I understand the great mission of higher education in a democracy. Certainly, I can never forget the deep and lasting impression made upon me by great teachers who backed up their scholarship with integrity and who taught me how to think—rather than what to think."

"I would be false to those who taught me, as well as to the great traditions of learning of which I have been the beneficiary, if I did not believe in the right of free men to pursue the truth unhampered by bisas or prejudice of any kind.

These are extracts from various parts of the Judge's speech, and we couldn't agree more with the sentiments he expresses. But then Mr. Moore got down to the Gag Law specifically, and we can't but help feel that his stand is somewhat contradictory to all the high purpose of the words which preceeded it.

He said, "I cannot advocate the outright repeal of the speaker ban law. I have communicated with both the advocates of and those opposed to this legislation, and I believe the present law can be amended to give the trustees and administrative officials discretion in inviting the speakers they deem proper to discuss cultural, scientific and related subjects. This kind of exchange, after all, provides a basis for better understanding and is important to the building of world peace."

We hope the Judge will elaborate specifically on just what sort of amendments he would favor and also on how he feels his brief proposition of what the law should accomplish differs with the intent and purpose of the 1941 law which prohibits advocacy of the overthrow of the government from forum of state supported educational institutions.

It would also be interesting to find just how he feels on each of the three restrictive categories in the law—any known member of the Communist Party, anyone known to advocate the overthrow of the US or state constitution, or anyone who has pleaded the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer any question with respect to communist or subversive connections—and whether he favors the deletion of any of these categories.

Another issue that seems to keep coming up in the campaign is Judge Moore's charge that Judge Preyer has the backing of the Sanford-Bennett-Crew machine, and that they are just trying to prolong their hold on state political power. Moore said the people of North Carolina "do not like to have their governors selected for them by political factions seeking to perpetuate themselves in power or gain new power."

We would like to ask the Judge just what he considers the difference between the Sanford-Bennett-Crew machine backing Preyer —a backing that has not been officially stated—and the Sam Ervin-Jordon-Kitchen-Broyhill machine that has officially endorsed his own candidacy?

There are many, many more questions that should be put to Mr. Moore, and if he is willing to answer them all candidly, the meeting here should prove to be most worthwhile.

Of Lawler And Loyalty

We have often found ourselves in agreement with Student Body President Mike Lawler in the recent past, and have also found ourselves in disagreement on several occasions. But never have we been so disappointed with any of his actions as we were last Saturday when he chose to vote against Vice-President Bob Spearman for President of the State Student Legislature.

We are at a loss to explain why Lawler chose to vote as he did, since we doubt that it could have much relevance to the fact that he and Spearman are of different campus political parties. Spearman is a member of the University Party, but members of the Student Party worked and voted for him at the SSL in Raleigh. Lawler was the only one of 12 UNC delegates to vote against Spearman.

It is highly unusual for a member of one school's delegation to vote against another member of that same delegation for any office in SSL unless there is some real question of compentency or integrity of the candidate. Certainly this could not be the case with Spearman since he has managed to distinguish himself and the University on every occasion he has represented us both outside and inside the community.

Whatever the case, it must be said that Lawler is guilty of a very shabby stunt that is unworthy of the stature of the President of the Student Body.

Some Questions That Need To Be Asked

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In theory, I agree with all my high-minded, liberty-loving friends who insist that we have "too many laws," that regulations and repressions and prohibitions are suffocating the body politic.

But they, while calling themselves "practical" and "realistic" conservatives, are the airiest Utopians in my view; they are much more starry-eyed than the liberals of whom they speak so contemptuously.

In order to have a minimum of laws, you have to have a maximum of gentlemen. I use that old-fashioned word purposely, for I think it is only the gentlemanly instinct (the dedication to "playing the game") that makes laws and regulations superfluous.

We don't have a social structure of that sort in America; our national game is more dirty pool than cricket. I don't know of a single large institution or trade association that is capable, and willing to police itself against abuses and malpractices.

Government always steps in to fill a vacuum. This vacuum is provided by a deficient sense of public morality, and an excessive sense of private greed. If we get "socialized medicine" in this country, in any form, it will be because the medical profession itself remains unconcerned with the public health of our citizens.

It is Federal insurance of bank deposits that gives depositors confidence in their bank accounts. It is Federal supervision of the stock exchanges that gives investors confidence in the market. Asking such groups to police themselves is neither practical nor realistic—for no group is good enough and disinterested enough to do so.

Too many laws, an excess of restrictions, are a symptom of national malaise, not a cause of it. It is a piquant paradox that the liberal, who is considered to be "idealistic" about life, knows that people cannot be expected to act against their short-term interest; while the conservative, who considers himself so hard-headed, seems to think that, if left alone, all the pressure groups and power groups would pass the marshmallows around the campfire on their Scout's honor.

All laws, in a sense, are unjust, for the law, once it is written, as Ortega pointed out, "turns into a reign of pure words, which, since words cannot be fulfilled to the letter, necessarily results in falsification of the law and governmental dishonesty." A nation of gentlemen, he observed, needs no constitution. England has fared very well without it.

I agree with my conservative friends: there are too many laws, too confusing, to complex, too restrictive, too idiotically capricious. But the only real alternative,—apart from silly campaign speeches—is to develop a citizenry that will play the game fairly without them.

"And, Over Here, The Enemy — People"

Letters To The Editors

Kirkpatrick Strikes Back

He Sure Is...

Editors, The Tar Heel:

"I AM THE GRATINGEST!"

Sonnily,
Curry Kirkpatrick

Odious?

Editors, The Tar Heel:

During a recent visit to your campus, on the weekend of February 14, I noticed the letter of Sid C. Turner which referred to "the bigoted drive to rid the world of communism," inferring, of course, that any drive to sustain and abet communism is the epitome of fairness and tolerance. Such a ridiculous and uneducated statement on Mr. Turner's part would hardly arouse my ire; it condemns itself and its author without further clarification on my part as to its obvious meaning.

However, Mr. Turner's subsequent mention of Secretary Thad Eure's "odious 'speaker ban' bill," HB 1395, warrants some comment. Mr. Turner is obviously in favor of hearing communists speak at state-supported institutions. It is he and his leftist fellow-travelers that call for "academic freedom", "truth", "democracy", etc., using the fallacious argument that this is denied the student when a communist is denied a forum at his school.

As Bill Buckley has so well stated, much time has been given over in our intellectual past to pounding home the necessity for freedom of speech, to celebrating the value of dissent, to singing the praises of academic freedom, that the impression is given that what they have most to look forward to is the process of flux, or, the changes that dissent and academic freedom will ring in. If, out of piety for the First Amendment, we end up encouraging man to use his freedom to cultivate and evangelize communism, we are actually very close to saying that our own disbelief in communism is less strong than our belief that communism should have continuing opportunities to win over a majority; we are renouncing, implicity, our belief that our indictment of communism is sufficient for all ages. If man is to be encouraged to exercise his freedom to deny the bases of American life, the bases of American life are presumptively suspect. Students are being encouraged to exercise their academic freedom in such a way as to encourage the notion that the operative ideals of our society are suspect. Suspect because we cannot really know (as Thomas Jefferson is thought to have implied) that our own way is right; because we cannot really know (as John Stuart Mill is misunderstood to have believed) that the many in 19th-century England were right, while the few were wrong, because (as Oliver Wendell Holmes quite truly believed) the only test of truth is its ability to win acceptance in the marketplace.

What every college in the land needs is spiritual composure. And that can be done when we make the fundamental distinction that recaptures the great insight of our forebears. That while we of the West are flawed, our ideals are not; and that the great problem of our time, both intellectual and moral, is to bring us, in the West, to adhere more closely to our ideals. It is curious that many people who are shocked at the proposal that Earl Warren should be impeached are utterly undisturbed by the proposal, advanced by so many members of the academic community, that we should impeach our ideals.

So I say to Mr. Turner, and to those who sympathize with his utterances, that we should let discretion be the better part of valor; we should let admiration for all that this country is based upon transcend those pressing little curiosities which cause us all to rationalize almost any behavior on the grounds that "we want to hear what these men have to say."

Finally, I do not believe HB 1395 to be as "odious" as Mr. Turner's condemnation of American ideals, and his willingness to give an open forum to all propagators of the communist cause. He seems only too happy to criticize Mr. Joe Bishop for his words, and equally happy to defend the "rights" of the communists and to denounce those who oppose them. With this in mind, I shall thus evaluate the content of his letter.

Respectfully yours,
George H. Archibald
Chowan College
Murfreesboro, N. C.

Boycott

Editors, The Tar Heel:

As persons believing in the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God, we assert that basic among the rights of each human being are these: respect for his person and the opportunity to share, to the fullness of his capacity, in his society and its benefits.

Therefore, we declare that when the policy of any place of public accommodation denies service to individuals on the basis of color, it is our duty to protest such discriminatory practices and our obligation to aid in claiming equal service for those thus denied it.

Acting in response to these convictions and to the statements of the student body president and the student legislature, we pledge ourselves: to determine where discrimination is a policy of business; to inform these establishments of our insistence that all members of the community be served on an equal basis; to withhold our patronage where discrimination continues; and to support appropriate and lawful means of encouraging businesses in this community to provide equal accommodation to members of all races.

The Baptist Student Union

(Ed. Note: This statement was adopted by the B.S.U. of UNC on February 21, 1964, by a vote of 52-17.)

Heelprints

That Raleigh radio station would be more accurate to call itself "The Giant of the Mouth."

* * *

Then there's the Buzzy Harrison doll—you wind it up and it beats Carolina every time.

* * *

In these days of short skirts, it's not the cost that worries women, it's the upcreep.

* * *

Definition: Work—the curse of the drinking classes.

* * *

After President Johnson's press conference, we now know that our money can fly higher and faster than ever before.

* * *

"Uncle Mot" has held his interviews, and soon there will be More scholars heading for UNC.

* * *

Well, Robert Gavin finally gave in.

* * *

Goldwater said in Greensboro that the South can be won. Perhaps, but if it votes for Barry, it will be wan.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

Micksup

By Mickey Blackwell

On Honor . . .

It's a dishonor to be "put on your honor."

But every Carolina student is supposed to live under an "Honor Code" that puts him on his honor, makes him swear that he will remain on his honor, and impresses upon him what will happen if he breaks his honor.

There's no honor to that.

Anytime a person must do something regardless of whether he wants to, the question of honor is beside the point. It is a question of necessity. Either you live under the Honor Code or you don't go to Carolina.

Each student entering Carolina signs a pledge by which he places himself on his honor.

What does that pledge mean? Why wouldn't any dishonorable man sign it? And how can an honorable man stomach the idea that his honor is questioned right off the bat by having to sign such a pledge?

The Honor Code is based on the assumption that a student who feels he is trusted will be honest. But the Carolina student isn't trusted.

He signs every quiz paper with the pledge that he did not give or receive aid. As if an honorable student would turn in a paper not entirely his own.

Not much faith is placed in the student's integrity. Or a man would not be required to have a signed excuse for an absence due to illness. An honorable man's word is enough. According to the rules, however, every man is deemed dishonorable until he proves his honor with an excuse signed by someone else.

Honor is a thing of decision and choice. Honor is when a person may choose the fair or the unfair way, and then chooses the right way. When a student can choose only one way, honor just doesn't exist.

If students put themselves on their honor, with the idea that each student may be the judge of his own conduct, why does the Honor Code include the stipulation that one student is honor-bound to report the violations of others?

It might be deduced that no student can be trusted to keep himself honest unless he is kept so by knowing that others will report him. In every case he is deemed dishonorable until he proves his honesty.

There's a better Honor System.

It works very simply. Students generally accept the idea that it is wrong and harmful to lie, cheat or steal. No one is forced to sign a pledge. No one must promise to report anyone else.

No one can make the mistake that promising honor is honor.

Then the honorable men and women live honestly, without having their honor questioned. And the dishonest ones lose in every respect.

The system should be propagandized. The good effects of honor should be made clear to everyone in practical terms. It should be pointed out in harsh terms where dishonor leads. The propaganda should be organized and effective. It should convince.

It would convince all those to whom honor would become a way of life rather than an ideal.

On Sex . . .

Sex is dynamite.

Sex is also, fun, money, mores, misery and misunderstanding. Sex always has been and will continue to be all of these things. Sex, incidentally, is reproduction.

Sex is money to movie magnates, newspaper publishers, manufactures of falsies, writers of popular books and pimps. It is money to thousands who use sex in one way or another as either product or inducement to buying a product.

Sex is mores to a self-righteous people as a whole, to churches and censor agencies as groups, and to strictly regimented individuals.

Sex is misery to that great majority of people who are attracted by its allure and denied its practice—these are the frustrated people. It is a misery to those who find it too easy too often and are caught with their pants down—caught by a wrathful society or an undiscerning disease.

Sex is fun to a lucky few.

Sex is the one thing that every one of us says he understands and the one thing that is the most misunderstood. Sex is the "thing that comes naturally" that has become such an unnatural thing.

Whatever the color, creed, gender, station or age, we are interested in sex: You, for example. If you're like most people, you will be more interested in sex over a long period of time than in anything else.

The interest comes naturally whether you like it or not. So much is said and done and planned around sex that it's with us from puberty to death.

And yet we know so little about it.

The main reason we know so little about it it that sex is a bastard son to us, in the sense that the bulk of what we hear and read and see gives us a highly distorted and completely unnatural picture.

Because sex is a thing of natural beauty and something truly basic to life and living, it is easy for people to lose touch with honest sex in their wild, headlong flight from reality of all kinds.

Maybe some of us don't really like the popular idea of sex. Perhaps that is just because some of us think there is something wrong with sex as a billboard bust and sleek thighs. There might be a question lurking in some minds as to the genuine pleasure in a sex that glitters.

We could choose now to begin thinking about sex, to ask questions and to find the answers. We could make an effort to honestly appraise our present ideas and attitudes and emotions in order to get at the truth. We might even overcome the obstacles of movies and books and old-fashioned reluctance to discuss the matter openly.

Then sex would be something other than a dirty joke or a forbidden subject.

But we narrow-minded, hypocritical, know-it-alls—we haven't got the guts to lift ourselves out of the mire.

A Review

'Gooey Gumdrops'

By HENRY McINNIS

A gelatinous glob of gooey gumdrops was hurled by the popular piano duo Ferrante and Teicher on the evening of Feb. 24 at Memorial Hall. A huge jam-packed Carolina audience caught the wad of musical goodies and stretched it for all it was worth . . . which wasn't much.

Instead of working up to a frothy and fullfilling climax, the pianists lunged into the finest and most genuinely musical of all the selections-Borodin's "Prince Igor." To their credit, they were faithful to the score as originally written and took few liberties except to artificially bridge the famous themes. The well-known melodies "borrowed" by Rodgers and Hammerstein for their "Kismet" were "Baubles, Bangles and Beads" and "Stranger in Paradise." Their re-creation by Ferrante and Teicher was a testament to the vast appeal of this sensuous and exotic music.

Clair De Lune, that old Debussy warhorse, was next to enchant the listeners. There was little difference between the original piano solo and their version and nothing was gained by simply scoring the piece for two when one pianist simply rested for long stretches while the other played the essential solo. Ah, well, it is a minor point.

It is curious that Fuzzy Wuzzy McInnis played the above mentioned pieces at the Freshman Talent Show several nights earlier, especially since Ferrante and Teicher had no programs printed.

Much ado about nothing summarizes their treatment of themes from "Exodus" and "The Apartment." After exhausting their bag of technical pianistic tricks, they indulged in the tasteless and vulgar practice of doubling octaves and banging out the melody at a deafening roar to a monotonous and musically sterile ra ta ta ta ta ta ta ta . . . ad nauseum.

After what seemed like an interminable round of tacky, tacky "jokes" between numbers, they finally returned to a piece worthy of their prodigious talents: Gershwn's Rhapsody in Blue" which was played with a stunning if facile bravura. Nobody but a pianist can know the formidable keyboard feats this hetic piece requires and Ferrante and Teicher met the specifications with distinction.

A striking ingredient of the program was when the two pianists announced they would make a movie instead of a movie theme, and the effect they achieved with the fluttering offstage lights served well to give a hilarious imitation of a silent Western bieng flashed before the audience's eyes.

As with the Borodin medley, themes from Bernstein's "West Side Story" were done with subtlety and spirit notably lacking in many of their other pieces.

"Stars and Stripes Forever" ignited the air with a rousing martial beat, somewhat redeeming the evening's more insipid fare. Thus, Ferrante and Teicher performed bon bons instead of the classics, but even so, they gave a thoroughly entertaining concert.

More Free Education On Tap?

WASHINGTON (CPS)—A plan providing two free, compulsory years of college is gaining the support of President Johnson's administration.

An indication of White House backing came in a speech this week by Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz who proposed extending the legal required education age to 18 in an effort "to get youth unemployment out of America's bloodstream."

Wirtz took time out from talks with labor officials over the boycott of wheat shipments to Russia to outline the plan.

If states now required students to continue their education for two years after high school, Wirtz said half of the 2.5 million youths in the hard-core unemployment lists would be back in school.

He noted that the number of unemployed youths with meager educations is radically higher than among those with 11 to 12 years of education.

While not offering the plan as an official government program, Wirtz emphasized that it was a thought germinating within the administration for the past several months.

Observers saw his statement as a further indication that administration economists fear that the historic income tax cut bill won't sufficiently help unemployment problems facing the nation.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D.-Conn.) the late President Kennedy's first Health, Education and Welfare Secretary, has led attacks on the income tax cut's ability to spur employment.

Ribicoff said the hard-core unemployed—including the large number of school drop-outs—are unskilled and no amount of money pumped in the U.S. economy can create jobs for the uneducated.

A state-federal all out effort for two years of public college would drastically drain the nation's limited teacher resources at first, But education officials feel a new demand would spark higher quality and salaries for U.S. teachers.

The largest U.S. education group—the National Education Association (NEA)—has termed present free education standards inadequate for life in a complicated U.S. society.

As Wirtz said, current standards "were adopted 150 years ago and are 150 years out of date."

Sponsored by the NEA, the Educational Policies Commission urged two free years of college-level study for U.S. high school graduates.

"The nation as a whole has never accepted the idea of universal opportunity as applying to education beyond high school," the commission said. "It is time to do so."

The NEA group said students should be given general courses rather than training for a specific job during the two years "to develop the tendency and ability to define problems as well as solve them."

Accessibility was just as important as flexibility for students during the two years of college, the group said.

Public colleges, the report said, "should exist in every population center, and they should expand through their range beyond their immediate environs through radio, television, self-teaching devices, extension programs and correspondence courses."

Neither Wirtz nor the NEA group mentioned the cost of a two-year free college program.

For vocational education alone in 1965, the administration plans to spend $183.3 million not to mention federal millions indirectly flowing into coffers of present junior colleges.

If the administration did throw its full support behind such a program, it would not only mark a turning point in U.S. education, but perhaps offer—at great cost—a concrete method of whittling down chronic unemployment.

Med Society Initiates 13

Alpha Epsilon Delta, the international premedical honor society, has inducted 13 new members and recognized nine candidates for initiation.

Members are recognized for their excellent achievement in premed studies, while candidates are freshmen who display excellence.

Initiates are Paul Brown, Vaughn Bullard, Dudley Chandler, Don Chaplin, Peter Dingeldein, Cleon Goodwin, Lloyd Hembree, Robery Kerns, Quincy McNeil, Henry Middleton, John Morrison, William Teachy and George Turnstall.

Candidates are Robert Cohan, James Coxe, James Goodwin, Lawrence Kaye, Lorenzo Lewis, John Ludington, Dwight Wait and James Stovall.

The Southeast Regional Conference of AED will meet at UNC Thursday through Saturday. Delegates from nearly 25 chapters will attend.

Campus Briefs

(Continued from Page 1)

West Duke Bldg., Women's Campus Duke, Milt Ricketts, "Inter-collegiate Sailing," all interested persons welcome.

Philological Club — 7:45 p.m., Morehead Faculty Lounge, Dr. Carroll Hollis, "McDonald Clarke, the Mad Poet."

Archeological Seminar—8 p.m., 111 Murphey, Dr. Michael Gough, "The Last Decade of Christian Archeology in Asia Minor."

WEDNESDAY

Basketball Club—4 p.m., Women's Gym.

Stray Greeks—6 p.m., Lenior.

Badminton Club—7 p.m., Women's Gym.

Scuba Diving Club—7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

Italian Cultural Society — 7-9 p.m., Villa Tempesta, reservation for Italian dinner will be taken by Gail Garrison (929-1456) before Monday.

CWC—6:30 p.m., Grail Room.

SL Ways & Means Comm. — 5 p.m., Woodhouse.

YM-YWCA—Y-Court, orientation for volunteer work at Dix Hill Hospital, Wed. and Thurs. mornings.

THURSDAY

Journalism Lecture — 8 p.m., Howell Auditorium. Marjorie Hunter, "From Beethoven to Branch Water."

UP Interviews

The University Party will hold interviews for endorsement for seats in Student Legislature this week.

Jeff Adams, party chairman, announced yesterday that interviews would be held today from 2-4 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday from 3-5 p.m. and Thursday from 8-9 p.m.

All SL seats will be represented by UP candidates, and Adams urges all interested students to interview.

All interviews will be held in the Woodhouse Room of Graham Memorial.

Need A Job? Here's A List!

The following organizations will recruit on campus next week:

Tuesday, March 3—Union Carbide Corp.—Consumer Products Division; West Virginia Pulp & Paper Company; Lehigh Portland Cement Company; State Farm Insurance Companies; Corning Glass Works; The American National Red Cross.

Wednesday, March 4 — The American National Red Cross; Arthur Young & Company; IBM Corporation; Sonoco Products Company; W. R. Grace & Co.; Wachovia Bank & Trust Company.

Thursday, March 5—Wachovia Bank & Trust Company; Rich's, Insurance Company; Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company; Container Corporation; Housing & Home Finance Agency.

Friday, March 6 — McLean Trucking Company; Pepsi-Cola Company; Air Products & Chemicals, Inc.

Saturday, March 7—The Chase Manhattan Bank.

Students desiring interviews with the company representatives should contact the Placement Service, 204 Gardner Hall.

Fordham To Speak At Pharmacy Meet

Dr. Christopher C. Fordham III will be the guest speaker tomorrow at a symposium of North Carolina and Virginia pharmacists.

The symposium of 40 pharmacists will study drugs which affect the chemical-producing pancreas in the human body.

Fordham, who is assistant professor of medicine at the UNC School of Medicine, will discuss insulin and active drugs taken by mouth and will explain other drugs used to reduce the amount of sugar in the blood.

He will speak at 8 p.m. in the School of Pharmacy.

LOOK AT MOMMY—Allan George Stephens and Jimmy Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Skippy Lee, watch Karen Stephens of Raleigh (left) as she models a dress to be worn in the Student Wives "Spring Fever" Fashion Show tonight at 8 p.m. in the Institute of Government Auditorium. Assisting Mrs. Stephens is Mrs. A. L. Featherston of Durham.

MRC Dance Is Saturday

The Men's Residence Council is sponsoring the first dance of the spring semester in the Carolina Inn Ballroom from 8 to 12 p.m. Saturday.

The Duke Ambassadors, a 14-piece orchestra, will provide dance music. The dress is coat and tie for men and party dresses and heels for women.

"This dance is the first of its kind to be sponsored by the MRC," said Gordon Appell, vice president.

People have complained to me about the loud combo parties and the fact that they never have a chance to dress up. If this is successful, we will have more dances like it."

Free refreshments will be served. Admission is $1 per couple.

—Moore—

(Continued from Page 1)

1928.

Moore is a mountain man, by birth and choice. He was born in Asheville and educated in the public school system of Sylva. Following admission to the Bar, he practiced law in Sylva almost continuously until 1946. During this period he served as Jackson County Attorney for 12 years, as Town Attorney for Sylva and as counsel for the Jackson County Board of Education.

In 1941 he served as Jackson's representative in the General Assembly. He enlisted in the Army in 1942 and served two years overseas before moving to the Judge Advocate General's office, where he served during the remainder of World War II.

Since announcing that he is seeking the gubernatorial post, Moore has campaigned across the state, appearing in hundreds of communities and visiting nearly all the State's 100 county seats.

—Smart Kid? Marry That Cute Coed!—

(Continued from Page 1)

Oak Ridge or Los Alamos, where one man in six has a Ph.D.

"In the general population, only one person in 300 reaches the 140 IQ level. But if whole communities reach an average of 140," asks Dr. Platt, "does one child in 300 reach 180?"

The Doctor suggests that only the next generation can answer that question for us.

Dr. John Fuller, a psychologist at Jackson Memorial Laboratory at Bar Harber, Me., has reported that in experiments with rats and dogs, "there are characteristic patterns of abilities which seem to be due to heredity."

Dr. Fuller found that barking mutts sire barking mutts and that Rin Tin Tins and Lassies have the blood of genius in their veins.

"The inheritance of variations in the structure of the brain and nervous systems," is Dr. Fuller's explanation.

One thing is for sure, sex is here to stay. If intelligence comes along in the bargain, then no one can complain.

Then again, if your boy child turns out to be the intellectual equivalent of J. Fred Muggs and thinks a Phi Beta Kappa key is to unlock Phi Beta Kappas, there's no one to blame except your genes.

Bull's Head Bookshop
SALE
Starting March 3
Bargains from Rental Library
SPECIAL BARGAINS – Books about the South and the Civil War–HALF PRICE
65 Dover Paperback books–Half Price
GROUND FLOOR — UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
HOURS: Mon-Fri., 9-5; Sat. 9-1

Europe bound? Tour the Continent in the Continental manner, behind the wheel of your own Mercedes-Benz. You are free to go as you please and enjoy the prestige of Europe's finest car. Details? We handle everything directly with the factory, as your franchised dealer. When you arrive over there, your Mercedes-Benz will be waiting for you, ready to go. Savings? Considerable. We guarantee you the lowest possible European retail price. And you have the further assurance of knowing when you bring your car home, that our dealership is responsible for your Warranty.
Come in and take a test drive. It will give you a hint of the fun to come when you arrive in Europe.
MERCEDES-BENZ
OLD HICKORY MOTORS
PHONE 477-2102
3341 Roxboro Rd. Durham

Varsity NOW PLAYING
"A MOVIE GEM!
SO DAMNED FUNNY AT TIMES THAT YOU LAUGH UNTIL YOU CRY! A work of extraordinary fludity, power and expressiveness . . . Courtnay's performance is masterful, an extremely superior British Film.
"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST!"—N. Y. Post
"VIGOR, HIGH COMEDY, DRY WIT AND SUBTLETLY. The Performances are flawless!"—Judith Crist, Herald Tribune
"FOUR AND A HALF STAR"—Wanda Hale, Daily News
"I URGE YOU TO GO AND SEE IT! FUNNY . . . A JAUNTY PACE AND BRILLIANT!"—Brendon Gill, The New Yorker
" 'BILLY LIAR'—HE'S FUN! GAY AND AMUSING . . . BOLD AND GLAMOROUS!"—Bosley Crowther, New York Times
one guy... three girls... one ring!... Paradise?

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

Official
Beatle Wigs
$2.98
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

Spiritus
Religious
Arts
BIG CLEARANCE SALE
11-4:30 Daily
(Over Sutton's Drug Store)

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES
Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES
• New Moon
• Ritz-Craft
• Palace
5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East
See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD
DURHAM
Phone 596-8302

Just Wanted To Make Sure You Knew
MARCH 17 Was ST. PATRICK'S DAY
And the Day For Wearing O' the Green.
WE OFFER
PARTY FAVORS AND CARDS FOR THE OCCASION
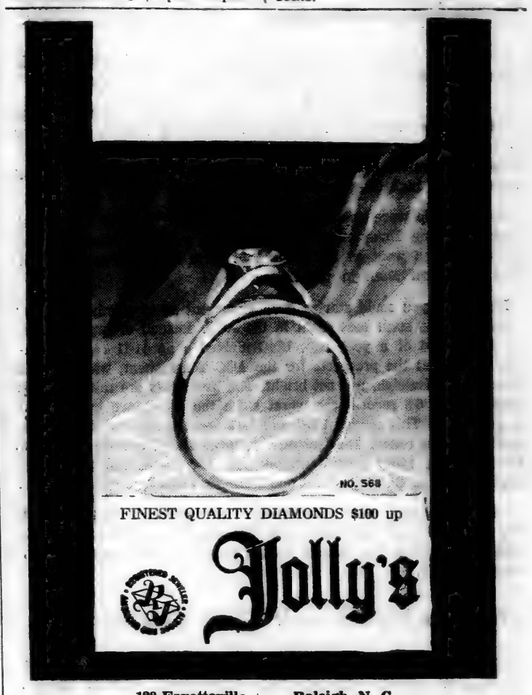
Ledbetter Pickard
Come in and browse around

PEANUTS

The New York Life Agent on your campus is a good man to know.
Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4358
NEW YORK LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY

CLASSIFIED ADS
Services Available
I. Q. . . . IN LIFE INSURANCE means Investment Quotient—what you get for what you pay in premiums. Our company leads, all others in I.Q. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.



FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
Jolly's
128 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

Special Doings at the Intimate
If you're interested in Military or Naval History, Take a look at our Old Book Feature Case!
Garden Books . . .
Believe it or not, Spring is just around the corner, and now's the time to think of changes. To help you along, the Intimate has set up a special table of all sorts of books to make your thumb greener.
Come in and dream!
Carolina on the Bargain Shelf
A LONG AND HAPPY LIFE — An impressive first novel, hailed by Eudora Welty, Harper Lee and others, and laid in North Carolina. A local best seller at $3.95. NOW ONLY $1.39
WATERS OF THE NEW WORLD, by Jan de Hartog. The true story of a voyage on the Intracoastal Waterway, including nice chapters on the Carolina coast. Published at $5.95. OUR SPECIAL ..... $2.49
The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St. Open Till 10 P.M.

La PIZZA ANNOUNCES

PIZZAGHETTI BOARD
For Those Who Really Like To Eat BIG and Spend little
A Smorges Board of Pizza and Spaghetti For ALL YOU CAN EAT Only 2.00
All Small one Ingredient Pizzas or all Large Spaghetti with Garlic Bread
ALL YOU CAN EAT!
LA PIZZA Every Tuesday Night (Between 7-9 p.m.) LA PIZZA

SPORTS
Daily Tar Heel
Page 4 Tuesday, March 3, 1964

Split-End Another Trouble Spot

Will Jim Hickey Find A Tackle In Next Six Months??

By JOHN MONTAGUE

All eyes are on the line as North Carolina's football team moves into its second week of spring practice. It's partially out of necessity, since three-fourths of next fall's starting backfield is playing baseball.

"Ronnie Jackson is the only one we'll have with us this spring," said Jim Hickey the other afternoon. "(Gary) Black, (Ken) Willard and (Eddie) Kesler are all out for baseball."

Hickey was quick to add that this does not disrupt his plans, however, as spring practice is aimed at developing freshmen and redshirts rather than working with the experienced players.

"We've got Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver to work with at quarterback, and actually our backfield is pretty well set," continued Hickey. "What we are trying to find out is who will be our tackles."

The tackle situation is anything but set. Only four players saw enough action at this position last fall to be considered experienced. Of this quartet only John Hill returns, Cole Kortner, Vic Esposito and Gene Sigmon all departing this June.

"We've definitely got a problem here," said Hickey. "We just don't have the experienced men. We hope to get help from some red-shirts and possibly from a rising sophomore or two."

In the red-shirt category are Bob Newman (228), Henry Sadler (195), Mike Dubis (195) and Bob Starczewski (215). Joe Churchill (215) could be considered in this group, though he did use up a year of eligibility by playing a few minutes last fall. Up from frosh are Omar Bradley (215), David Erimias (220) and John Cornelius (215). The latter is a center who will be tried at tackle.

Though most of the veterans won't report for the spring drills until the last 10 days of the 20-day practice, tackle Hill is getting an early start. With so many tackles leaving, he doesn't want Hickey to forget that he'll be back.

Just who will be the other starting tackle, in addition to Hill, is anybody's guess at the moment. However, fans may get some idea of how the red-hot battle for the key line position is coming along when next year's varsity meets the alumni in Kenan Stadium, Saturday, March 21. Hickey will have to start somebody at tackle, and his choice will probably be the one who shows the most during the next three weeks.

Another possible trouble-spot for the Tar Heels next fall is the vacancy left by All-America Bob Lacey at split-end. In fact, Lacey may be so difficult to replace that Hickey will alter his offense somewhat next season, using both ends tight more often than last year.

"The split-end position is one which requires specialization," said Hickey. "We might not be able to come up with a player next fall who will meet the requirements for this position. A split-end has to have good moves, good hands and good speed."

Right now UNC's easy-going coach doesn't know which of his ends will be playing where. In addition to Lacey, the Tar Heels lose tight ends John Hammett and Joe Robinson through graduation. Back are tight ends John Atherton and Jim Harrington, along with defensive specialist Frank Gallagher. Then there is split-end Tom Brooks, who has the speed, but not the size to fill Lacey's shoes.

Red-shirt Bill Darnall (6-2, 190) is being given much consideration for the wide-end chores. A flanker back on the 1962 freshman team, Darnall has real good speed. Up from the 1963 freshman roster are Bobby Knott (6-2, 190), Bob Powell (6-4, 200) and Bo Wood (6-3, 200) among others.

The other line positions—the two guards spots and center—seem well taken care of. Guards Clint Eudy, Richy Zarro and Jay Malobicky all return with a lot of experience. They'll be pressed hard by frosh sensation Joe Fratangelo (195) as well as red-shirt Ron Kaplan (200) and John Harmon (202). The latter was a promising soph this past fall, but broke his wrist in pre-season practice and saw no game action at all.

Veterans are three-deep at center with Chris Hanburger, Glenn Ogburn and Ed Stringer all back.

JIM HICKEY

ON THE LEVEL with JOHN MONTAGUE

"IT WAS A mighty long game, wasn't it?" a harried Dean Smith asked reporters after the Duke massacre Saturday afternoon.

You had to agree with him. In fact, you could take it a step or two further and say it's been a mighty long season. Right now December seems like ten years ago. It was in that month that the basketball season got started and hopes for roundball supremacy were high in high Chapel Hill.

Some people were saying, back in December, the Tar Heels just might dethrone Duke as champions of the ACC. A national sports magazine even went so far as to tab North Carolina as the sixth best basketball team in the nation.

Right now you could start a good argument as to whether the Tar Heels are the sixth best team in the ACC. Instead of improving on its 15-6 record of a year ago, UNC umbled o an 11-11 regular season mark, and the prospects for the ACC Tournament, which begins Thursday in Raleigh, are not bright. The Tar Heels are mired in fifth place with a 6-8 record—the worst since the conference was formed 11 years ago. This means UNC will face fourth-place South Carolina in the opening round. The Gamecocks, incidentally, are the only team in the league which hasn't whipped the Tar Heels. But they came mighty close in Charlotte, and one wonders whether they aren't due.

Disappointing? Yes. Surprising? Not entirely. Observers in the know will tell you that there are some rather concrete facts which have made this season what it was—or, more appropriately, what it wasn't.

The Man Who Wasn't There This Year

SORTING THROUGH THESE facts, you come up with the big one—and it's simple. Though Billy Cunningham, Charlie Shaffer, Mike Cooke and Ray Respess all returned from last year's "starting six" (Cooke rotated with the graduated Yogi Poteet), there was one very important face missing. The face belonged to Larry Brown, the little guard who was just as valuable as Cunningham to last year's team.

To be really strong, a basketball team needs a top-notch player outside as well as underneath. That outside man must be one who can shoot when the defense collapses on the big man, who can drive through a small opening for a lay-up, and who can flick a quick pass to the man underneath at the right moment.

Larry Brown fulfilled all of these requirements. To say that he did them better than Mike Cooke, or Ray Hassell, or Johnny Yokley is not to criticize these players, but rather to praise Brown.

Larry was a playmaker de luxe. He would set up Cunningham for an easy basket with a pass which was a thing of beauty. This year Billy has had to work for every bucket and has had to force many of his shots. Thus, while his point average has gone up from 22.7 to 25.6, his shooting percentage has dipped rather sharply from 48.7 to 43.2. In other words, this year his teammates have been depending on The Kid more, but helping him less.

Another ability which Brown mastered was that of being able to drive through a needle's eye for a lay-up. Cunningham would drift into the lane, then pull out of it. Brown would fake a pass to The Kid and drive past his man, down the middle of the lane, and up for the hardest easy-basket in basketball. Many times he would wind up this maneuver with three men on top of him—thus the three-point play which can turn the tide a lot quicker than many people realize. A three-point play near the end of a tight contest is like manna from heaven.

A Dream—The Season That Wasn't

FINALLY, LARRY BROWN knew how to protect a slim lead. In addition to being a first-rate defensive man, Brown could dribble around for two or three minutes, putting the game into a freeze which most teams couldn't melt. This guy was THE man to have in a game when it went down to the wire.

This year, the Tar Heels have lost three times in overtime—twice to Clemson and once to Virginia Tech. In all three contests the Tar Heels had a lead which they couldn't hold. One can't help but think that with Brown in there, the Tar Heels would have won these games. This would have changed that 11-11 to 14-8. Already an improvement.

In another game this season, the one-point loss to NYU, UNC had the lead with about a minute to go, but lost it when Cooke had the ball stolen and the Violets turned it into an easy two. The Heels had been trying to freeze it. This was Brown's specialty, so chalk up another one to Larry and make it 15-7.

As long as this fantasy has progressed this far, one might as well finish the dream. A look at the schedule tells you that, if the Tar Heels had won those four close ones, they would have taken an eight-game winning streak up to College Park two weeks ago. With such impetus, might not the losses to Maryland, NC State and Virginia all have been wins?

We'll concede the two losses to Duke, the one to Kentucky and even the one at Wake Forest, and settle for an 18-4 record.

It's hard to believe that one man could have made that much difference in a team, but in the case of the missing Larry Brown, it seems that the season which could've been would've been had not Mr. Brown been gone.

Heels To Face Gamecocks In Opening Round Action

By LARRY TARLETON

UNC's Tar Heels will try to redeem themselves in the ACC Tournament beginning Thursday afternoon at Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh. The Heels meet South Carolina, the only ACC team which failed to defeat Dean Smith's boys in the regular season, in the final game of the opening round. Gametime will be 9:30.

Top-seeded Duke has only to look at the Southern Conference Tournament this past week to remember what can happen in a post-season tournament. However, the Blue Devils can find some security in the fact that in eight of the ten seasons of the ACC's existence, the top-seeded team has won the tournament. Only in 1958, when Al Bunge and Bob McNeil led fourth place Maryland to the crown, and in 1960 when Hal Bradley's young Duke team surprised the Tar Heels has an underdog walked away with the conference championship.

In 1961, the Tar Heels won the regular season championship, but did not compete in the tournament because they were ineligible to participate in the NCAA playoffs. Second place but top-seeded Wake Forest took all the marbles in the tournament only to lose in the regionals.

Third-seeded Clemson and sixth place Maryland open this year's tournament action wth a 2 o'clock encounter. The Tigers, led by Jim Brennan and Gary Burnisky, rate the "dark horse" label in the tournament. They finished regular season play with an 8-6 conference record and won their last three games. Their only losses in the last month of play were an overtime loss to State in Charlotte and a one-point loss to Wake Forest. The Terps could be the surprise team if their sophomores can get together and play the type of ball they played against the Heels at College Park.

By virtue of a flip of the coin, Virginia is seventh-seeded while State is in the ACC cellar. This means that Virginia will meet second place Wake Forest and State will have to show up for a meeting with Duke. The Demon Deacons are expected to have little trouble disposing of the Cavaliers, who will be playing without Chip Conner. Bones McKinney's boys finished the season fast, winning six of their last seven games, and proved that Duke can be beaten on a given night. McKinney, stll gloating over a full-page spread in "The Sporting News," will be looking for his fifth straight appearance in the Saturday night finals.

It has been five years since the Tar Heels have been around for the final night of the tournament, and prospects for a final night appearance this year are not too good. If the Heels get by Ronnie Collins and his Gamecock teammates Thursday nght, they will have to face the winner of the Duke-State mismatch. After Saturday afternoon's demonstration, it seems that the only chance for the Tar Heels is for the "Old Gray Fox" to pull his biggest upset.

TOURNEY SCHEDULE
(First-Round Games)

2:00—Clemson (3rd) vs. Maryland (6th)
4:00—Wake Forest (2nd) vs. Virginia (7th)
7:30—Duke (1st) vs. NC State (8th)
9:30—South Carolina (4th) vs. UNC (5th)

Uclans Hold First In Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — UCLA moved a step closer to its first national basketball title Monday in the next-to-last United Press International major college ratings of the season.

The UPI major college basketball champion will be announced next week in the final ratings by the 35 coaches on the UPI Rating Board.

UCLA ranked No. 1 Monday for the ninth consecutive week, receiving 33 first-place votes for the third straight week.

TOP TEN

1. UCLA (24-0)
2. Kentucky (21-3)
3. Michigan (19-3)
4. Duke (20-4)
5. Oregon State (25-3)
6. Wichita (20-5)
7. Villanova (21-3)
8. Loyola (19-5)
9. Davidson (22-4)
10. Texas Western (23-2)

FCA MEETING

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes will hold its monthly meeting tonight at 7:30 in Room 304 of Woollen Gym. All members are urged to attend, and to bring guests. Anyone who is interested may attend.

Murals Scores

BASKETBALL PLAYOFFS
Frat White Semifinal
Phi Delt-2 42, TEP Trepids 30
TODAY'S BASKETBALL
Graduate Semifinal
Peacocks v. Dental-5 (5:30, Court 6)
Dorm White Semifinals
Joyner Jokes vs. Winston Waterboys (7, Court 6)
Ehringhaus-B Kings vs. Craige-B Alkaceltics (8, Court 6)
Dorm Blue Final
w/Navy-Town Toughies vs. w/Ehringhaus - B - Mangum (7, (Varsity)
Frat White Final
Phi Delt-2 vs. w/PiKA-Sigma Nu-Chi Psi (9, Varsity)
Frat Blue Semifinal
DKE vs. ATO (8, Varsity)

Miami, St. Joseph In NIT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Miami of Florida and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia were added to the field for the National Invitation Basketball Tournament Monday, increasing the lineup to eight teams.

Only four berths now remain to be filled for the 27th annual tourney to be held at Madison Square Garden, March 12-21.

Miami will bring the highest scoring team in collegiate history into New York. The Hurricanes scored an average of 96.1 points per game this season while compiling a 20-6 mark and nine times went over the century mark.

The other teams already named for the NIT are Pittsburg, DePaul, New York University, Duquesne, St. Bonaventure and Army.

It Happened In Charlotte

By MAT FRIEDMAN

There has been talk about the three-point field goal for some years now, but about 11,000 long-faced Davidson fans in the Charlotte Coliseum Friday night might have added a new dimension to the controversy—the one-point field goal.

You see, the Wildcats were down by one point to VMI when little Barry Teague cast off with a last-second jumper. The shot went in, rolled around the rim and out. When they are that close, it should be worth at least a free throw. Or so 11,000 unhappy spectators might tell you.

* * *

If you happened to be in the Coliseum that evening, and didn't know where Lefty Driesell got his nickname, you might have formed your own theory. Lefty, who has been known to leave his feet once or twice during the course of a game, looked like he had two left feet when he shuffled out on the court to accept his runner-up trophy. Looked like he didn't have the energy to say "yellow."

* * *

There was no consolation game Saturday night before VMI beat George Washington for the title. If there had been, it would have been Davidson vs. West Virginia. Consolation? If that had happened, everyone would have walked out before the "championship game," and from the way VMI and GW played, you couldn't have convinced too many that the second contest was really being played for the money.

* * *

If you were in the press section Saturday night, you knew something was missing. But it wasn't excitement—it was food. They forgot to put out refreshments for the championship game.

* * *

Four cute cheerleaders came down with West Virginia, and the absence of support they received from people in the stands was surpassed only by the lack of food for cheers by the Mountaineers on the court. About the best response they got all evening, in fact, was a reprimand from referee Lou Bello for questioning his officiating skills on a number of occasions.

* * *

But then there's a moral to the story—something about not counting your chickens. Right after the Davidson upset Friday, the West Virginia players came screaming out onto the court, jumping, laughing and generally feeling pretty good about their prospects. They figured themselves as the first team ever to win a three-game tournament in one game. Well, George Washington just sat on the Mountaineer eggs all evening (88-80)—and they never did hatch.

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.
BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1
Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes
115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

A bold, blushing, outrageously funny movie...
Dedicated to the proposition that every girl gets... sooner or later!
M-G-M presents A Seven Arts Production
"Sunday in New York"
Starring Cliff Robertson • Jane Fonda • Rod Taylor
In Metrocolor
Carolina
NOW PLAYING

Bass Outdoor Footwear

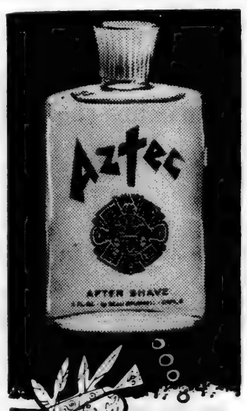
His: Antique Scotch Grain, Stained Brown & Genuine Cordovan

Hers: Navy, Antique Red, Scotch Grain & Stained Brown.
Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

Dacron®-Worsted Tropical Suits

Be confident of your appearance when temperatures rise. Feather-light wool worsted is blended with Dacron® to create a suit of matchless stamina. Subdued stripes, rich glen plaids, interesting iridescents and solids are available in interesting colors. Soft shoulder tailoring.
Priced from $55.00
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

Sunny
At first glance, it has the vivid peasant simplicity of the Austrian Alps. At second glance, it radiates a deep and natural sophistication too . . . the sort of serene sunniness nothing daunts. Blue chambray denim, with India madras and small tucking down the front, around the skirt. Madras sash; back zipper. Sizes 6 to 16.
The Villager



is 'SCENT-SATIONAL'!
Discriminating, casual, bold. AZTEC gives you an invigorating sense of self assurance . . . keeps your skin cool and comfortable all day!
AZTEC AFTER SHAVE—$2.50
CAMPUS STYLE
W. Franklin St. - Phone 929-1558

Ye Olde Taverne Features:
PIZZA SPECIAL
5:00 P.M. till 11:00 P.M.
ALL LARGE SIZE PIZZAS ..... ½ PRICE*

| | | Special Price |
|---|---|---|
| Large Plain | $1.25 | 65c |
| With Pepperoni | 1.50 | 75c |
| With Sausage | 1.50 | 75c |
| With Anchovia | 1.50 | 75c |
| Half & Half | 1.65 | 90c |
| Deluxe | 1.75 | 95c |

*Plus Tax
Pizza Special Continuing Thru Wednesday
Ye Olde Taverne
Basement Professional Bldg. E. Franklin St.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870 ★ ★
Chapel Hill, N.C.

All White Edition

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather

Joint Us In The DTH Truck For Beach Weekend!

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1964 | United Press International Service

Dr. Winn's Trial Opens In Hillsboro

Dr. William Winn, assistant professor of psychology at UNC, underwent trial yesterday on charges stemming from a sit-in demonstration.

He was one of five professors arrested at the demonstration at Watts Restaurant Jan. 3 One of the professors, Dr. David Smith of Duke, has already been tried and convicted. He was sentenced to sixty days on the roads, and later appealed the case.

Dr. Herbert Robinson, acting chairman of the Psychology Dept., told the DTH the department "had no intention of taking action if Winn is given a sentence.

"Every effort," he continued, "will be made to protect his academic freedom and to keep this from interfering with his actions as a private citizen." Orange County Superior Court, Judge Raymond B. Mallard completed calling the list of defendants in cases transferred Monday to Federal court. Mallard asked each defendant if the attorneys who had filed the petition on their behalf represented them when doing so.

Mallard refused to answer questions from reporters as to the reasons for these questions.

When court recessed for lunch, attorneys for Dr. Winn had not yet begun to question members of the jury in order to pass on them.

How D'Ya Make Elephants Fried?

(Feed Them Marula)

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Harrassed game rangers in South Africa's famed Kruger National Park are trying to cope with 1,750 tipsy elephants.

The elephants have been disgracefully drunk for the last five weeks from eating the yellow fruit of the marula trees which dot the game reserve.

Elephants, it seems, are rarely mean drunks but their alcoholic hijinks already have put one man in a hospital and their annual binge has another week or two to run.

The marula bears fruit for six or seven weeks each year. It has a cloyingly sweet, very rich flavor. Africans use it to brew a particularly potent beverage.

The elephants have a simpler process. They lumber from tree to tree, stuffing the fruit down their gullets. It ferments in their stomachs and in no time they are loaded.

They wander red-eyed through the park, waving their trunks happily from side to side and looking for more marulas.

"They very rarely get agressive," a national parks board spokesman said, "and they never get paralytically drunk. They are just like any human being after five or six drinks."

Student Party Elects Larry Ford As VP

Hockfield In SL; Stoddard Is Named

Larry Ford was elected vice-chairman and Dean Stoddard sergeant-at-arms of the Student Party in a meeting in Gerrard Hall last night.

Steve Hockfield was elected to fill a vacant legislative seat in Town Men's 3. All three elections were by acclamation.

Chairman Paul Dickson urged all candidates for spring elections to make themselves known to party officers.

Legislative candidates should see Jeff Davis, Lanny Shuff or Dickson. National Student Association candidates should see Phil Baddour or Neal Jackson. Candidates for senior class offices should see Dickson.

Bob Smith was appointed chairman of the Membership Committee by Dickson. Smith will coordinate chairmen of 15 districts in the spring membership drive.

The nominating convention will be held in Gerrard Hall March 17 and 18. The last party meeting before the convention will be Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Gerrard.

Party members are reminded that they must attend two spring meetings to be eligible to vote at the convention.

Women's Council Frees 2 Sit-Ins

By JOHN GREENBACKER

The Women's Council set a precedent in the prosecution of coeds guilty of infractions of the late hours rule Monday night. It decided to dismiss charges against a coed who was jailed after a civil rights demonstration.

In dismissing charges, the Council ruled, "Any violation of the women's residence rules as the result of being jailed by civil authorities will not be tried by the Women's Council."

"Infractions of the Honor and Campus Codes committed in connection with the above civil actions will, however, continue to be tried by the Council."

Stephanie Wilber, the defendant, was charged with being out of her dormitory without permission December 17 and 18 after being arrested by Chapel Hill Police.

Explaining that she "had no intention of not coming back on time," Miss Wilber said that she made "a split-second decision" to risk being jailed that night while at a civil rights meeting.

Miss Wilber said a member of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee was supposed to notify her dorm mother if she was arrested.

The defendant was taken into custody by police for trespas-

(Continued on Page 3)

THE CHAD MICHELL TRIO will appear at Memorial Hall tonight at at 8. The popular group combines folk music with humor, but, unfortunately, if you don't have a ticket yet you can't go. It's sold out.

Dan Moore Addresses 425 In Gerrard

Photo by Jim Wallace

Moore Dines At Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity . . .

By FRED SEELY

The mountains came to Chapel Hill last night, and the 425 people at Gerrard Hall seemed impressed.

Dan Moore, the first candidate for governor to visit UNC this year, spoke to a near-capacity crowd, and gave his views on the Speaker Ban, Public Accommodations and integration to the attentive audience.

"The 'Gag Law' is not a necessary law," he said, "but I am not in favor of Communists bringing their ideology to public owned land. If they want to talk, they should rent a hall.

"The law should be amended to allow speakers with non-political topics to discuss their fields."

He tied the Speaker Ban to an earlier plea—that for more money in the state. "I can't see any reason to spend so much money to fight Communism, money that could be used to improve conditions in this state, and still allow them to come and try to convince us that their way is best."

He drew his biggest round of applause when he answered a spectator's query on how he stood on the proposed Public Accommodations law with a simple, "I'm against it."

"This nation was founded on a system of free enterprise," he added. "I believe in this concept from head to toe.

"A man has a right to operate a business any way he desires, and he has the right to say who he will and who he won't accommodate."

On the subject of integration, he commented that it was his belief that "every citizen should have equality of opportunity—to make full use of his God-given abilities." But, he warned, "we should earn what we get."

Moore's speech was sponsored jointly by the Orange County and UNC Young Democratic Clubs. Lane Brown, president of the UNC-YDC, directed the program.

Moore was introduced by L. D. Hyde, his campaign manager at UNC. Hyde spoke of Moore's record in the legislative, judicial and executive fields and of his years of service to the state.

Moore, a former Superior Court judge, is a member of the UNC Law School Foundation, a director of the Alumni Association and serves on the Morehead Foundation. He received his B.S. degree here in 1927, attended law school and was admitted to the North Carolina Bar in 1928.

He served as Jackson County's representative to the General Assembly in the early 1940's, and later was appointed to the federal bench. He resigned the latter post to serve as attorney for Champion Paper and Fiber Co. in Canton.

Moore is married and has two children. He makes his home in Canton.

—Photo by Jim Wallace.

. . . Then Addressing A Gathering of 425 Listeners In Gerrard

AAUP Establishes Group To Check Discrimination

By KERRY SIPE

A committee to investigate racial discrimination in hiring practices at the University was established by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) Monday night.

The UNC chapter also passed a resolution opposing the punishment of faculty members and students participating in "peaceful demonstrations in support of controversial causes."

Proponents for the first measure pointed to the University's "all white" faculty as supporting the feeling that "there is reason to question whether the elimination of discrimination is complete." It was mentioned that many of the University's official application blanks still have a space for race information.

Opponents of the resolution argued that perhaps no nonwhite had ever applied for a position on the faculty.

In the absence of concrete and specific complaints of discrimination on the UNC campus, a special Committee on Civil Rights was established to investigate the matter and present a bill of particulars to the body. The report is expected to be completed this spring.

In a second order of business, the local chapter lent support to a national AAUP resolution urging University administrators "not to be misled by public pressure into punitive action" against participants in peaceful protest movements.

Supporters of the second measure held that "all law convictions are not a concern of the education profession." They said that sit-in arrests should be solely the responsibility of civil authorities.

Opposition to the resolution was strong. The phrase "peaceful demonstrations" was pointed out as ambiguous.

"To pass this resolution without explanation would be a moral violation," one opponent of the measure said. The vagueness of the phraseology "might make participants (in the demonstrations) feel morally right in breaking the law. The term may include those acts inhibiting the complete enforcement of the law," he said.

One professor asked, "Is it peaceful if you lie down in the middle of the street, in front of fire engines?"

"Jesus Christ didn't have to be pushed or dragged to the cross," one professor suggested in comparison.

"But chasing the money-changers out of the Temple could hardly be called a 'peaceful demonstration,'" another retorted.

A hot and lengthy debate led to a 32-7 vote in favor of the resolution. Only about 40 of the 750 members of the local chapter were present for the vote.

Newsmen were permitted to attend the meeting on a pledge to refrain from attributing actual quotes to individuals present.

CPU Interviews

The Carolina Political Union will hold interviews for the seven remaining positions this week.

Interviews will be held Friday from 2-5 p.m. in Roland Parker I of Graham Memorial. Interested students should sign up at GM Information Desk before noon Friday. Graduates and undergraduates may apply.

Anyone wishing to apply but unable to attend interviews Friday should contact Gerry Good in 310 Grimes before Friday.

Both Sides Of Rights Movement Hit

The Dean of the UNC Law School has blasted elements on both sides of the civil rights movement.

Dean Henry H. Brandis, speaking Monday before the Forsyth County Bar Association, urged the lawyers to "condemn with fine inpartiality the scofflaw elements on both sides."

He criticized "young fanatics for lying down in the streets of Chapel Hill and other communities, but said:

"It is very much more dangerous for a small minority in the Senate to block a vote" on the civil rights bill.

He said lawyers who have been loud in condemning street demonstrations have been generally silent as to the dangers inherent in the defiance of law "by the Barnetts, the Gen. Walkers, the Wallaces.

"It is just as immoral to penalize someone because he is a member of a community as it is because he is black . . . By destroying public order they may achieve a kind of equality—the tragic equality of injustice and insecurity for all."

On the other side of the coin, Brandis said history shows that one of the reasons the Roman republic became a dictatorship was because the Roman Senate refused to bend "even a little to the winds of change. There was nowhere to go but the streets. If you have a situation where you cannot get a hearing then you are going to have an explosion."

Dean's List Given For Fall Semester

Five hundred and twenty-seven students have made the Dean's List for the fall semester, the College of Arts and Sciences announced yesterday.

Of these, 25 made all A's:

Franklin Adkinson, Everett Baucom, Stephen Blackwelder, William Brown, Thomas Byrd, Mary Daniell, Joel Drinkard, Stuart Eizenstat, Charles Jones, Edward Kouri, John Leonard, Richard Lewis, Edward Martin, Marjorie Matthews, Charles McFadden, Betty McIntosh, Henry Middleton, James Nelson, Warren Ogden, Lavon Page, James Rossman, William Rowe, James Smith, Roy Sparrow, Robert Spearman, and Ann Thompson.

Requirements for the Dean's List are at least 15 semester hours and an over-all average of B with no grade under C.

The other students on the Dean's List are:

Henry Aldridge, Sandra Alexander, Elizabeth Allen, Edward Anderson, Willard Andes, David Ange, Carven Angel, John Angell, Floyd Angley.

Caleria Armstrong, Thomas Arnold, Robert Arthur, John Atkins, John Aull, David Bamberger, William Barclay, George Bare, Roberta Barkoff, Jesse Barnes, James Barnhill.

Vance Barron, Wanda Battle, Bernard Baucom, Jeffrey Bayer, Jonathan Baylin, Cyrus Bazemore, James Beall, Joseph Beatty, James Beck.

Daniel Bell, Marshall Bellovin, Robert Bennett, Robert Bennett, James Benson, Robert Benson, Jeffrey Bernstein, Hugh Blackwell, Lucius Blanchard, William Boggan, Ronald Bone, Carl Boswell, William Bowerman, John Boxley.

Eugene Bricklemyer, Corbett Britt, Mary Arnall Broach, Thomas Brooks, Bette Broome, Holman Brown, Thomas Brown, Wilbur Brown, Bruce Bruhwel, Richard Bryson, Robert Buchanan.

Elizabeth Bullard, Maida Burch, Fred Burdette, Randy Burge, David Burkette, Phillip Burks, Raymond Burns, William Busby, Thomas Byrum, Harold Cameron, Jon Caminez, William Campbell, Carlton Cann, Gene Capps, Robert Carden.

James Robert Carpenter, Sylvia Carpenter, George Carson, Michael Carson, Willard Case, James Cashion, Margaret Cathell, Dudley Chandler, Keywood Cheves, John Church, Hubert Clapp, Elizabeth Clark, James Clark.

Locke Clifford, Ann Cline, Winston Cochraneq, Phillip Coleman, Wesley Collins, Richard Cooler, Betty Cordell, Guy Crampton, Joanne Creasy, John Creech, Thomas Cribblin, David Crook, Lawrence Cross, Alvin Crowder.

Larry Crumpler, Janica Cutler, Jane Dallen, Bobby Dampier, Deanna Darr, Joseph Daugherty, Melanie Dauskart, Donald Davenport, Andrew Davidson, Archibald Davis, Beverly Davis, Ralph Davis, Thomas Davis.

William Davis, William Davis, Alain DeFontenay, Paul Delamar, Ann Dellinger, Jerry Dellinger, Stephen Dennis, Dailey Derr, Margot Deupree, Foy Devine, Lawrence Diedrick, Jean Dillin, George Dingeldein, Kent Dixon, Arthur Dodson, George Doyle, John Doyle.

Stephen Dudasik, Valerie Dumontier, Elliott Dworin, Leonard Dzelzitis, Alton Eason, Ellen Edenfield, Herbert Edwards, Sam Edwards, Helen Ehrhardt, Lawrence Ehrhart, Robert Ekstrom.

Louise Emerson, James Estridge, Carolyn Eubanks, Mary Evans, Richard Falls, Hyman Field, Beth Fineberg, Leslie Fleisher, Mary Fleming, Frank Fletcher, Faye Ford, Tara Forsyth, Kathryn Fort.

Alvin Fountain, John Froneberger, Holly Frost, Nancy Frye, Edwin Fuller, Martha Gardner, Richard Garner, David Garnett, Dorothy Gerth, Charles Gidney, Howard Godwin, Steven Goldstein, Cleon Goodwin.

Susan Gordon, Norman Gorsuch, Walter Graham, Annette Grant, James Gravely, James Gray, Richard Greenamyer, John Grier, William Griffeth, Francis Griffin, Joseph Griffin,

(Continued on Page 3)

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

UP Interviews for Endorsement to SL—3-5 p.m., Woodhouse.

Psychiatry Seminar — 1:30 p.m., South Wing, Dr. G. A. Tolley, "Schizophrenia."

Women interested in the $2 dance lessons, Thurs. 7-8:30 p.m., may sign up at GM information desk.

Basketball Club—4 p.m., Women's Gym.

Stray Greeks—6 p.m., Lenior.

Badminton Club—7 p.m., Women's Gym.

Scuba Diving Club—7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

Italian Cultural Society — 7-9 p.m., Villa Tempesta, reservation for Italian dinner will be taken by Gail Garrison (929-1456) before Monday.

CWC—6:30 p.m., Grail Room.

SL Ways & Means Comm. — 5 p.m., Woodhouse.

YM-YWCA Dix Hill Group—2 p.m., Y-Court, orientation for volunteer work.

Foreign Students' Comm. — 6 p.m., Lenoir.

Town Students Campus Chest Booth will be set up in Y-Court, today and Thursday., 9-5; and in the library today, 7-10:30.

Drug Symposium—8 p.m., School of Pharmacy, Dr. C. Fordham, "Drugs Acting on the Pancreas."

MOVIES

Carolina—Sunday in New York
Varsity—America, America
Rialto—Tom Jones

LOST AND FOUND

Lost—twisted gold circle pin between Pine Room and Mc-

(Continued on Page 3)

Aycock Meets With Students On Rights

Student investigations of discriminatory practices in the University continued yesterday at a meeting of students and administrators.

The Student Legislature's Special Committee on Discriminatory Practices, chaired by Neal Jackson (SP), met with Chancellor William Aycock and Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey.

The Committee had pre-

(Continued on Page 3)

Terry And The Pirates

Governor Terry Sanford hands over his check to UNC Campus Chest co-chairmen Betty Ward and Gerry Good. The solicitation fund drive starts on campus this week.

No Demonstrations

The town is now in its third week of comparative racial calm, although integration leaders have not officially extended their moratorium on protests which invite arrest.

The moratorium, called on Feb. 15, ran out Friday and the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee said it would not be extended. But there were no demonstrations of any kind over the weekend.

Some observers have expressed opinions that the switching of attention from the streets to the courts—whether in Hillsboro's Superior Court or Greensboro's Federal Court—means there will be no full-scale protests for at least several more weeks. Smaller protests are considered more likely.

If the demonstration cases are sent back to Hillsboro, most of the integration leaders, all with multiple counts, will have to spend most of each week in the courthouse.

One integration leader said, "We are leaving ourselves open to resume demonstrations." He pointed out that most protests which have resulted in the arrest of more than 600 since mid-December, have occurred at night and on weekends, when court is not in session.

The expulsion of two Lincoln High School students, both active in demonstrations, has subdued the enthusiasm of many Lincoln students for engaging in protests, integration leaders have indicated privately. High school students have formed a large part of recent protests.

A town official said, when the moratorium began, that the halt was called because the integrationists had run out of money and could not maintain the high momentum of their movement.

Rev. LaVert Taylor, an SCLC field secretary, is in Chapel Hill this week.

Volume 72, Number 109 Wednesday, March 4, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 933-1012. Business, circulation, advertising—933-1163. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Yes . . . But Then, Well, Let's See Now

The unusual extra session of the campus chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) last Monday night is yet another argument against the notion that the tactics of local civil rights demonstrators have accomplished nothing but alienation of their former friends.

True, no dramatic action emerged from the AAUP meeting. But then, professors en masse are not dramatic people. And besides, that was not the purpose of the meeting. Its purpose was to provide a forum of discussion of what the AAUP's role is, if any, in the current situation.

True, this is March and the demonstrations resumed last December. But professors en masse are not given to hasty actions.

True, the AAUP set up a committee to begin looking into possible discrimination on the campus at its last meeting several weeks ago. But just because this committee apparently hasn't met yet is no reason to wonder about how effective it will be when it does get moving.

True, the resolution the group passed Monday night, against administrative action being taken against professors and students who participate in peaceful demonstrations, amounted only to an endorsement of the status quo. But professors en masse are not a particularly daring bunch of people. After all, there's a lot to be said for being deliberate.

True, the professors didn't invite Chancellor Aycock or President Friday to come to the meeting and answer questions about the topic of their discussion—discrimination on the campus. But then, the AAUP is a professor's outfit and it might not be wise to let too many administrators in. After all, they might prejudice the proceedings.

Hmmm. Y'know, maybe we were wrong. Maybe that extra session isn't an argument against that alienation notion after all.

Like so many others, we'll have to wait and see.

A Good Idea, But Not A Cure-All

It is too soon to know what, if anything, will actually be done about the idea of reorganizing campus living units into a system of residence colleges. But the idea merits hearty endorsement, and the ad hoc committee of students and administrators which is working on the plan deserves strong encouragement and commendation.

Doubtless there will be many bugs to work out, if the system is put into effect. That is the way with all innovations. The important thing right now is that plans are moving ahead to give most UNC students who live on campus "something more than a dorm to live in," as MRC President Gerry Good put it.

For the fact of the matter is that UNC is afflicted with creeping anonymity as a result of its obligation to educate ever more of our burgeonng student population, in and out of the state. And it appears that the "residence college" idea could go far toward providing the communal glue that many of us need to realize our individuality.

But it would be well for us to remember that this program will not be a cure-all for the problem of being lonely in a crowd. It will be just another method available for us to use. In the final analysis, we are our own best saviors. That fact will not change.

There's Still Room At The INNstitute

Students interested in any phase of state or local government have the chance of their University careers to find out what the opportunities are this Friday at the "Careers for Carolina" program at the Institute of Government.

Students participating in the day-long program will have free cuts as well as a chance to hear some of the major authorities in the state on non-elective government work.

There are speeches by John Ehle, special assistant to the governor; Joel Fleishman, legal assistant to the governor; and George H. Esser Jr., executive director of the North Carolina Fund. Afternoon panels on education and administration will bring in local government officials from all over the state.

The program, coordinated by Lanny Shuff, is unique, and one of the most worthwhile things Student Government has done this year.

We urge you to apply at the Graham Memorial Information Desk immediately for a chance to participate.

Come Fly With Us

A few days ago, we printed an editorial concerning the fun we had when, at the suggestion of a reader, we went out and flew a kite. We had such a good time, in fact. that we continued to fly our kites for several days, inadvertently parking several in various trees around the campus and President Friday's back yard.

Now our Associate Editor has kicked off the idea of a Kite Contest, so that our readers may join in the fun. It will be held this Saturday at the Intramural Field, and promises to be a success, with prizes and top-flight judges. Even Gary Eden (of WKIX in Raleigh) has accepted an invitation, and of course Otelia will be on hand.

A number of individuals and organizations have entered the competition, and if you haven't come by to add your name to the list, why not do it today? It takes only a couple of hours at most to build a kite, and if worst comes to worst you can buy one. It's a lot of fun, we can guarantee that. And who knows, you just might have the twine of your life.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists:
Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter
Dick Baddour
Bob Vanderberry
Circulation Manager — John Evans

Book Review

Colleges: A Prof's View

By LINDA GRIFFITH

Chaos in Our Colleges by Morris Freedman. David McKay Co., Inc., 1963, 241 pages.

What's wrong with higher education in America today? In Chaos in Our Colleges, Morris Freedman of the English Department of the University of New Mexico gives a professor's-eye-view of the "American academic landscape," poses many thought-provoking questions, and even manages to supply some possible answers.

In the title essay, the author discusses the quest for status among American colleges and universities. What makes a university good? If it is the quality of teaching, how does one set up criteria for judging this? What about the increasing number of students? the external pressures from various groups who each have their ideas about what a university should be? After discussing these and other problems, Professor Freedman says, "In short, American higher education does not know where it is going, does not even know where it wants to go, all the while it is proposing new ways of going somewhere."

This book tries to suggest where American education should be going, and the author deals with many different areas of academic life. In "Let's Redistribute Our Academic Wealth," he states that "about one tenth of the nation's schools of higher learning have creamed off about 90 per cent of the nation's professorial wealth." Schools carry on intense rivalry for distinguished professors; administrators may not even require them to teach as long as they are able to use their names to attract more money and acquire greater prestige.

Freedman argues that students in smaller colleges need the valuable benefits received from association with great persons just as much as those in the "Big Twenty-five" do. Because of the large enrollments in these well-known colleges, their students may not be able to have contact with the distinguished professors even if they're on campus. Twenty outstanding professors spread out over several different colleges could do more to raise the standards there than if they were concentrated in one big-name school. For these reasons, the author advocates that foundations endow visiting professorships on a large scale to provide a "healthier academic balance," giving more areas a really good university.

In another chapter, "Why I Don't Wear My Phi Beta Kappa Key," Professor Freedman sounds off about the difference between theory and practice in Phi Beta Kappa. He feels that the society "does not stand in the modern world for liberal humanism in the largest, hardest, deepest, most exciting sense; it stands for it in the narrowest, lightest, most sterile, most superficial, and dullest sense." He criticizes the way the society judges schools applying for new chapters, especially its narrow concern with the school's athletic policy. He also questions the criteria for membership and urges Phi Beta Kappa to live up to its high purpose. (This chapter is most satisfying to those of us who didn't or won't make Phi Beta Kappa—now we can tell ourselves that we are not in the group who " 'mature too early . . . and exhaust their energies before graduation.' ")

The author, with his experience as a college student and teacher, provides many insights into the field of higher education. He deals with graduate school ("Breaking the Ph.D. Barrier" and "Graduate School: The Tail That Wags the Dog?"), the place of foundations in American education, the liberal versus the professional education, the "publish-or-perish" system, examinations, social life in the academic community, the grading system, and several other topics. He ends with an essay on the future of American higher education, which he feels is an optimistic one.

Professor Freedman is an observer of the academic scene who is also very much involved in it. For this reason, his thoughtful analysis of its problems and the solutions he proposes are pertinent and valid; he has a sincere concern for his field and believes wholeheartedly in its value and the contributions education can and will make to American life. With the growing demand and need for higher education and its increasing influence in every area of our lives, this book is an important one for every student, teacher, administrator, and citizen who is interested in the future of our country's colleges and universities.

"All Set For The Tax-Cut Countdown — Seven Days — Six — Five — Four — "

Letters To The Editors

'All Cannot Desegregate'

Businesses

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Out of a crisis often come great men and great decisions. The way that our honor council met its "moment of truth" should be highly praised. That a student should be tried and reburked only once when violating a civil ordinance or creating a civil disturbance is just. That the honor council saw fit to confine itself to campus violations in the cases of demonstrations that came before it and accept the judgment of the civil authorities is right. In short that the Student Honor Council saw fit to remain within its own realm speaks highly for it and is in line with the liberal,, reasonable tenor of the Carolina tradition that a student should be able to support a cause even to the extent of breakng city decrees and not have to fear that the heavy, vilifying judgment hand of his peers will fall on him because of his beliefs once come forth from the judgment of the civil authorities.

It is unfortunate though that another branch of our student autonomy system has not chosen the same reasoned decision to remain within its own realm. Our student body president has taken it on himself to declare that the student body supports him in his boycott of segregated establishments. This is not so. Even if this were so, I believe that a good number of the student body would find another banner under which to rally their cause, for a student body president is chosen to lead in the realm of student affairs and is not chosen to actively lead or claim to lead in the realm of civil affairs because most students feel that they are intelligent enough to form their own mature opinions and not fall behind the hasty flag waving of any representative of student business.

I, for one, and a good number of others on this campus would have to utterly reject the comparison one student made recently between the American President and the president of our student body, when he said, in effect, that Mr. Lawler's plea for a boycott is good for it is his business to lead just as it is the business of the American President to lead. That the business of both is leadership is true, but they lead in different realms—one in the realm of student affairs and the other in the realm of civil affairs.

To the enlightment of some of the flag-waving, angry, sensitive crusaders—this business of public accommodations applied to an individual level is serious business. For many of the individual marginal proprietors, it is also a bread and butter matter. Places such as Clarence's, the Rock Pile, and the Pines simply can not afford to accommodate everybody who wishes entrance to their doors. The poor souls who run these places, who have been cast down into the dark depths of infamy, would go broke. If one will look at the geographical location of these places and think realistically about some of the unfortunate socal and economic conditions that still exist in the South then he will realize why they can not afford to integrate their establishments like the "Rat" and Harry's restaurant which attract primarily the university Negro, simply because of their proximity to the University. The proprietors of these marginal establishments are men also. They are worthy of dignity and respect, also. They have wives and children to feed. So, besides being merely an ideological struggle, this is also a "bread and butter" matter.

What many are demanding today, shows the extreme to which causes often go. Some militant groups are demanding not only their rights but that the Federal government transcends the rights of the individual proprietor and transgress on the sanctity of a man's business to extend privileges of some—not guaranteed rights—into the domain of another man. The idea of the man's business being his private domain is as old as the English Common Law itself. It has always been the right of the proprietor to sell what he desires, buy what he desires, sell to whom he pleases, and to admit to his place of business whom he pleases. No cause is so right, so just—to demand that we close our eyes to the rights of any man.

The Black man and the White man should look to the solution of their problems not in the imposing of one's privileges on another's rights but in the conditions that cause the unreasonable actions of some proprietors. They should work on the economic and social conditions that cause such places as the Rock Pile and Clarence's not to be able to financially afford to integrate. But until these problems are solved, we can not afford to overlook the rights of these men.

Sincerely,
John Hart
29 Old East

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

We Count!

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Gentlemen, who counts? As members of the group who are apparently not in the know, we would like you to clarify your statement. Evidently Ray Farris and Professor Penegar count.

Personally, we can count. We can make it to one hundred without much trouble, and if necessary we can fake it from there.

We gather that if you are not a demonstrating, fire-breathing integrationist you lose your mathematical prowess. All we have to say in reply to your statement is: one . . . two . . . three . . . four . . .

Frank Elfland
Claude M. Reynolds, Jr.
Mary Parker
John Leonard
Frank Barnard
Tom Keefer
Jeanne Davant
John Reimers
Kris Silliman
Mac Lennon

(Ed Note: Five . . . six . . . seven . . . eight . . .)

Heelprints

A news reelase reports that Mississippi State University, now has a course in horseback riding. Well, it should spur some students toward better grades, especially if they get a cryp horse.

* * *

The other day we found ourselves in agreement with N. C. Attorney General Wade Bruton. Naturally, we hastily re-evaluated our position.

* * *

Definition: Atom—a subdivision of matter that is likely to be the death of the subdiviison business.

* * *

Then there's the Gerry Good doll—you wind it up and it says something off the record.

* * *

Charlotte may be the Queen City, but in that Southern Conference tourney, the champs were dethroned.

* * *

Simile: as rough as Rosemary Street between the police station and the Baptist Student Union.

Hugh Stevens

'That Alone Is Enough'

The Beachcomber, "The Voice of Palm Beach (Fla.) Jr. College," is not the sort of student newspaper that would normally attract your attention. But this week I happened to pick up the latest issue, and the headlines which greeted my gaze drew me temporarily away from whatever thoughts had been uppermost in my mind, and caused me to look more closely.

For at Palm Beach Jr. College, however trivial and unimportant it may seem to UNC students, the president of the Student Government Association has resigned. Bruce Ammerman is his name, and he resigned for a reason. His fellow students have failed him.

No, it doesn't sound very important, does it? But there is a sad lesson to be learned from Palm Beach Jr. College, and it is a big one as well. Student apathy at Palm Beach is on the verge of destroying everything that student government stands for, and student apathy could do the same thing here.

Now, let it be known right here and now that I'm not predicting the imminent demise of our student government, for I'd be one of the last people to do that.

It naturally follows that as the number of students increases, our Student Government must become more detached and impersonal. At the same time, however, it will be required to assume more and more responsibilities if it is to maintain its accustomed degree of autonomy. The problems should be obvious—future Student Government leaders will be forced to assume more rigorous tasks, the performance of which is likely to be appreciated less and less. It may be that Student Government service will grow to be an unpopular outlet for the individual's talents. If this happens, Student Government will die — slowly but surely — and student life will never be the same.

There's no certain or immediate cure for this malady. Talk or dreams won't help—only action, based on sound and constructive thought, can prevent the ultimate loss of any semblance of student independence.

There are many types of individuals who must be made to take such action, and most of them are obvious.

Perhaps the most unsympathetic character is the one who spends hours criticizing his Student Government, but who is unwilling to devote even a few minutes a day to its improvement. Is he scared to set foot in Graham Memorial? Can he not write his name on an application blank? It's hard to believe that this type of person sits in his room and does nothing but study all day and all night. All too few people are forced to carry Student Government's heavy load now —and in the future, it will only be a heavier one. Where are you people who want to see your leaders do this or that? Remember, they can't do it without you.

Then, of course, there are those individuals who don't even bother to inform themselves at all. "Student Government is Mickey Mouse," they cry, "and I wouldn't have anything to do with it." They usually can't name the four officers of the Student Government, many have no idea who passes the budget for the student fees, and a large number haven't the faintest notion what Student Legislature is, or does. These people are not only to criticized, they are also to be pitied. For when they step across the threshold of college into society, they will be just as inert and useless as they were at Carolina. They will be nothing, as they are now.

And with the lazy and the indifferent, we must class the glory-seekers—those who will do anything that requires no thought and no sacrifice, so long as everybody knows about it. Fortunately for our Student Government, such selfish characters are few in number, and even those few seldom make it very far. The knowledge that they are usually beaten by their own game restores a lot of my faith in Student Government.

Perhaps you don't fall into any of these categories—perhaps you don't have the time or the ability to really play a significant role in Student Government. But if you want Student Government to survive, and preserve with it our Carolina way of life, do at least your small part—inform yourself on the issues and the candidates, pick your man, work for his election, and most important of all, vote. That alone is enough.

–Campus Calendar–

(Continued from Page 1)

Iver; reward, contact Kay Childers, 221 McIver.

Found—black Gentry raincoat with zip-out lining Monday morning; owner call 208 Aycock.

Swap—took wrong coat from Pine Room Fri., to exchange call Dwight McAllister, 942-6130.

Lost—pair of gray-rimmed glasses in light tan, leather case; contact Terry Bellman, 306 Manly.

Lost—white London Fog from the girl's lounge in the library; if found, please leave at the GM information desk.

Lost—Chaucer text and black filler notebook in the Pine

Lost—watch in Woollen Gym, reward if found; contact Rickey Thomas, 402 Mangum.

Lost — black billfold containing important papers; leave at GM desk or contact Dan M. Walter.

Lost — brown wallet with identifications; contact Wayne Gilman, 405 Mangum.

THURSDAY

YM-YWCA — 2 p.m., Y-Court, orientation for volunteer workers of Dix Hill.

UP Interviews for Endorsement to SL—3-5 p.m., & 8-9 p.m., Woodhouse.

Journalism Lecture — 8 p.m., Howell Auditorium. Marjorie Hunter, "From Beethoven to Branch Water."

TRAVEL WITH A PURPOSE

July 2 - August 30, 1964

Unique education program in search of man's past

Archaeology of Palestine
Historical Geography of Palestine
Classical Hebrew
Courses are accredited by Associate Institutions

For further information, please write to Institute for Mediterranean Studies, 2054 University Avenue, Room 312, Berkeley, California, or contact your Local Travel Agent.

FLY

COLUMBIA RECORDS WITH BARBRA STREISAND

TAKE OFF WHEN THE SPIRIT MOVES YOU AND TRAVEL AT THE SPEED OF SOUND

CL 2154; CS 8954 Stereo

Barbra Streisand—the girl who made extraordinary a commonplace word—marks her third appearance on Columbia Records in a bewitching collection of standard ballads. "Make Believe," "As Time Goes By," "It Had to Be You."

CL 2084; CS 8854 Stereo; CQ 697 Tape

Barbra Streisand, the sensational Broadway, television and supper club personality sings "My Coloring Book," "Any Place I Hang My Hat Is Home," "Right As the Rain," and many others.

CL 2007; CS 8807 Stereo; CQ 593 Tape

From warm to wallop to whimsy . . . Barbra Streisand, delightful young star of Broadway's "I Can Get It for You Wholesale," goes the vocal gamut in her exciting Columbia album debut. "Cry Me a River," "A Taste of Honey," "Happy Days Are Here Again" and others.

THE SOUND OF ENTERTAINMENT ON COLUMBIA RECORDS

THE RECORD BAR

Chapel Hill Durham

–Fall Dean's List Released–

(Continued from Page 1)

Robert Griffin, Thomas Griggs.

Ernest Groman, Charles Gross, Michal Hall, Ralph Hall, John Hamilton, Jon Hammersberg, George Hanna, Kathryn Hardy, John Harmon, Joseph Harmon, Bonnie Harper, James Harrell.

Thomas Harrelson, Ellis Harrington, David Harris, Mary Harris, Sara Harris, James Hart, James Hartman, Lois Harvey, Frank Hauser, Grady Hawkins, William Hays, William Hazelton, Daniel Hefelfinger, Michael Hensley, Rufus Herring, Richard Hesse, Gerald Hodges, Barrie Hoke, Joseph Hollis, Fred Horton, John Hoyle, William Hoyle, Wilson Hoyle, Alice Hubner, Thomas Huey, Gary Huffman.

Robert Hughes, Betty Humphries, Robert Hunter, Edith Huntsberry, Abby Hurwitz, Harry Hutcheson, George Ingram, Judith James, Forrest Jamison, William Jenkins, Katherine Jenner, Beatrice Johansson, Nelly Johansson, Thomas Johnson.

David Johnston, Virginia Jolley, Richard Jonas, Nancy Jones, Harmon Jordan, Frederick Josephs, Daniel Julian, Roxanne Kalb, William Kearse, Douglas Kelly, Stephen Kennard, Robert Kerns, Ridley Kessler, Dale Keyser.

Marian Kimmerer, Malvern King, Victoria King, Betty Kirchdorfer, John Kiser, Harvey Kline, Kathleen Klumpp, Emily Klyce, Charanne Kurylo, Mary Lackey, Glenn Lancaster, Harold Lancaster, David Lane.

Robin LaPrelle, Moses Lasitter, Francis Lawther, John Lee, Margaret Lee, Herbert Leff, Charles Lefler, Mitchell Legler, Jean Leibold, James Leonard, Larry Lepionka, Saili Levan, Judith Levin, Richard Levin.

Sharon Levine, Frances Lichtenfels, Marshall Lichtenstein, William Linker, Alton Loftis, Carolyn Logue, Julian Lokey, Thomas Lominac, James Longest, William Lowrance, Hugh Lyon, Jessatha MacFarland, Daniel MacIntyre, John MacNicholas, Carol Manning.

James Mannino, Joseph Martin, Julia Mason, Mary Mason, Kent Massie, Herbert Mayo, Marion McAdoo, William McAllister, Catherine McCarthy, Keith McClelland, George McDaniel.

Ac McGalliard, Park McGinty, Brooke McKamy, William McKennanq, Harry McKinnon, Patricia McNulty, Bryan McSweeney, Betsy Meade, James Meade, John Medlin.

Barbara Mendelson, Elizabeth Menefee, Edward Messina, Suzanne Micaud, Claire Middlemas, Joel Miles, Joseph Mitchener, Jennie Moore, Joseph Moore, John Morris, John Morrison, Susan Mott.

Andrew Murphy, E. Murphy, Charles Neely, Joseph Nelson, James Nesbitt, John Neville, Frederick Nicholls, Herman Nichols, Elmer Oettinger, Kenneth Oettinger, Edwin Okoroma, John Olshinski, Lauritz Olson, Michael Owens.

William Parker, Walter, Parrish, John Paschal, Anne Patterson, Priscilla Patterson, Jeanne Payne, Linda Pearce, Paul Pegram, James Pender, Thomas Peterson, Bryan Pfingst, John Phillips, Kay Phillips, Edward Pierce, Louis Pierce, Glenda Pittman.

Houston Pittman, Florence Pitts, Carolyn Plott, Harriet Pope, Carl Pruit, William Purvis, Robert Pustilnik, James Quinn, John Quintus, Frank Rakestraw, Franklin Ramos, Joy Randall.

Peter Range, Charles Rankin, Nathan Ray, Katharine Redding, Beverly Reeb, Christopher Reed, Martha Reed, James Reid, Larry Rice, Linda Riggs, James Riley, Brian Roberts, Lawrence Robertshaw, Kenneth Robinson, Vernon Robinson.

William Robinson, James Rogers, Leonard Rogers, Jimmy Rogerson, James Rusher, Joseph Russell, Jerry Ruthledge, Robert Sandarg, Barbara Samuel, Richard Sargent, John Schultz.

Sue Schwender, Stewart Share, William Shell, Rowland Shelley, Mary Shelton, Twonette Shelton, Joyce Sherrill, Shelia Sherrill, Robert Shue, Dorothy Shugart, Frank Silver, Sallie Simmons, Herbert Siskron, Ann Skelly.

Edgar Sloop, Barbara Smith, June Smith, Reginald Smith, Robert Smith, Albert Sneed, Charles Snow, James Snyder, Thompson Southall, Roy Southerland, Elizabeth Spieght, Ann Spencer, Tracy Spencer, Richard Sperling, James Spruill.

Robert Stafford, Sharon Stanton, Jimmy Starnes, Nane Starnes, John Steele, Kenneth Steele, Billy Stegall, Mark Steinberg, David Stephens, Leonard Stephenson, Shari Stern, Herman Stewart, Mary Stewart, Trawick Stubbs, Roy Swaringen.

Penn Szittya, Charles Tate, Daniel Taylor, Patricia Taylor, Wade Taylor, William Taylor, William Teachey, John Temple, Howard Therrell, Martha Thomas, William Thomas, Sandra Tilley, Nancy Ting.

Spencer Tinkham, Richard Trenbath, Fred Trickey, Sara Trott, Samuel Truitt, Shuford Tucker, William Tucker, George Tunstall, Roy Turner, Curtis Twiddy, James Tyndall, Wallace Umberger, Catherine Underhill, Henry Underwood, Robert Updegrave.

Hatice Uskup, Robert Vanderberry, Katharine Van Doeren, Murray Van Lear, Ross Vaughan, Karen Vom Lehn, Craig Voss, Heathcote Wales, Everette Walton, Lawrence Walz, Richard Walz, Vance Ward, William Warmbrod, Charles Warren, John Warren.

Benjamin Warrick, James Wasson, Kristin Waterman, Mary Watson, Ritchie Watson, Eloise Wells, Paul Wellstone, Frances Welsh, Charles White, William Whitfield, Robert Wicker, Kenneth Willard, John Williams, Joseph Williams, Reynolds Williams, Russell Williams, Warren Williams.

David Wilson, Hugh Wilson, James Winslow, Julia Wise, Jerry Woodard, Hubert Wooten, Samuel Worley, Broadus Wright, Cydne Wright, Peggy Yeager, Munford Yates, Rosa Young.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Fondles
5. Portico: Gr.
9. An infusible compound
10. Packing container
12. Bay window
13. Older brother of Moses
14. Gas company customer
15. Cooks until brittle, as bacon
16. Recto: abbr.
17. Shallow
19. Mother of Irish gods
21. Province: Can.
25. Festive
27. Mend, as socks
28. Vinegar worm
32. Alcoholic beverage
33. Apart
35. Personal pronoun
36. Backed financially
39. Lhasa holy man
41. Book of Old Testament
42. Fray
43. A catkin
44. Arabian chieftains
45. Comfort
46. Hardy heroine

DOWN

1. Characters in a play
2. A Great Lake
3. Layers
4. Man's nickname
5. Beetle
6. Followed, as tracks
7. Rowing implements
8. On top
9. Fearlessness
11. Half ems
15. Mountain pass
18. Exclamation
20. Entire
22. Tattered cloth
23. Gardeners' tools
24. Heats, as glass
26. Arouses from sleep
29. Ester of oleic acid
30. Fisherman's pole
31. Missouri: abbr.
34. Glow
36. Shinto temple
37. Large volume
38. On the ocean
40. Girl's name
42. Soak flax

POGO

–Rights–

(Continued from Page 1)

sented the Chancellor with a list of questions concerning possible discrimination in five areas:

1) the hospital
2) the hiring of faculty
3) admissions
4) discrimination among staff and maintenance people
5) recruitment of athletes.

Questions were also raised about student housing and race information on application blanks.

Aycock told the students that application blanks have stricken the question on race.

He said that Negro students were generally placed in dormitory rooms with other Negroes unless they requested otherwise. This is because of pressure from parents.

Jackson's fact-finding committee will continue its investigations at lower levels and will write up a final report later this spring.

Be a scholar before graduation or a wit, hero, playmate, wolf. Authentic-looking certificates 179 various "Titles" available Fool people. Awe Profs. Send to Friends, Free Brochure. Write GAG Awards. Box 66745, Houston, Texas. 77006. Be a speculator.

–2 Freed By Council–

(Continued from Page 1)

ing at Clarence's Bar and Grill, but no one from the Freedom Committee notified her dorm.

Miss Wilber said she was not allowed to make any phone calls while she was in jail, though she tried repeatedly.

The question of whether Miss Wilber had complied with all the women's residence hall rules arose when she said she had signed a paper agreeing to stay in jail for two days if arrested.

The rules call for a coed who is late and unexcused to return to her dorm as soon as possible, but the defendant, citing her moral commitment to the civil rights movement, chose to stay in jail.

After nearly three hours of deliberation, the Council ruled to dismiss the charges.

Another defendant, Karen Parker, was charged with being out of her residence hall overnight without permission on December 19.

She pleaded indefinite to the charges, explaining that her decision to participate in a civil rights demonstration that night was "spontaneous."

"My decision to risk spending a night in jail did not arise out of a lack of respect to the dorm closing hours," her statement read in part.

Miss Parker said she had told her dorm mother that evening there was a possibiilty she would be arrested, but no official notification was received.

She said she was not allowed to make a phone call while she was in jail, though she tried repeatedly. Her return to her dorm was further delayed by the late arrival of a bondsman the following day.

Ruling her absence excusable, the Council told Miss Parker, "You did everything in your power to comply with the women's residence hall rules." The council commended her for her efforts to comply.

WOMEN'S DORM ROOMS

Women students of the University requiring dormitory space for a summer term or for the fall semester are asked to sign up in their dormitories between March 1 and March 8.

In the event that women students who have been living in town wish to move into a dormitory for the fall or summer, they should sign up in the Dean of Women's Office, 202 South Building.

At the time a student makes application for a room she pays a $25 deposit for a fall reservation and/or room rent of $35 (for a double room) or $55 (for a single room) for a summer reservation.

SCIENCE NEWS

KITE!

Gary Eden, popular disc jockey at WKIX in Raleigh, announced yesterday that he would help judge the DTH Kite Contest this Saturday.

In addition, kites were entered by the two campus political parties. The UP, using the slogan of "You can only go Up with the UP," entered in the distance category.

"Anything the UP can do, the SP can do better," said Jeff Davis, SP chairman. He also entered the distance category. Entries came in from individual contestants in Winston, Ehringhaus and Spencer (that's right, Spencer) Residence Halls.

Prizes for the contest, scheduled for the Intramural Field at 1:30 p.m., have been donated by the Hub, La Pizza, Kemp's and the Dairy Bar. Contestants should phone or come by the DTH office in Graham Memorial to sign up.

The winner of the Kite Queen contest will be announced later in the week.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

100% LIQUID . . . IN LIFE INSURance means that with a Northwestern Mutual policy your investment value grows faster than the amount you pay in. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

For Sale

FOR SALE: 1956 Cadillac "62" sedan, black, low mileage, excellent tires, absolutely perfect condition throughout. $800 cash, cheap at this price. S. Hetherington, Carrboro, 942-6946.

1963 HONDA SUPER HAWK, 350 cc., aluminum head and pistons, tubular frame, electric starter. Less than 4,000 miles, carefully broken in, excellent condition. Must sell because of entry into Navy in June. Gets over 80 miles per gallon. Will be sold to highest bidder. Contact Art Pearce, 968-9074 or 933-1163.

Lively Days in The Intimate

In the Old Book Corner

Military and Naval History

An interesting clump, over our heads, but if you're interested in great battles on land and sea, there may be treasure for you here.

—●—

On the Feature Table

Garden Books

Time for planning those great changes in your garden is getting short. Pick one of these books, oil up the old rocking chair, and before you know it, dogwoods will be barking in your garden.

—●—

On the Bargain Counter

Gateways and Doorways of Charleston

Another in the series of handsome books of photographs of old houses, and it's a beauty!

NOW ONLY
$2.98

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Sharyn Lynn Shoppe

★ ★ FINAL ★ ★

Clearance

For your added selection and savings we have brought all sale merchandise from our Durham store. We've really been weilding the ax . . . and prices have tumbled! Never before such savings! Wed. through Sat.

All Fall & Winter—Values to $35.00
DRESSES . . . . . $5–$7–$9
Including some Cottons, Sizes Petite 3 to 24½

One Rack Values to $5.98
BLOUSES . . . . . 2 for $3.00

One Only, Size 5
FUR TRIMMED COAT . . . . . $25

6 Only
COATS, UNTRIMMED . . . . . $20

Wools and Rayons, 18 Only
SUITS . . . . . $5

4 Only
BOY COATS . . . . . $15

SWEATERS & SKIRTS . . . . . $3 & $5

STRETCH SLAX . . . . . $5

Wools, Cottons, Corduroy
SLACKS . . . . . $3

3 Only
CAR COATS . . . . . $5

Wool, Madras, Corduroy
PARKAS . . . . . $4

Corduroy
PEDAL PUSHERS . . . . . $3

All Merchandise from our Regular Stock

Shop Early for Best Buys All Sales Final

NO PHONE ORDERS — NO EXCHANGES OR REFUNDS

Sharyn Lynn Shoppe

135 EAST FRANKLIN

Shaff, Galantai Still Tourney Doubtfuls

By LARRY TARLETON

Charlie Shaffer's ankle and Billy Galanti's knee are still troubling Dean Smith and his Tar Heels as they tune up for the ACC tournament.

Both boys are on the practice court every day, but their activities are limited to shooting. Smith says it is very doubtful that Galantai will see any action in the tournament and that he is uncertain whether Charlie will be able to play.

The freshmen are practicing with the varsity this week helping them get ready for South Carolina, their Thursday night opponent.

CHARLIE SHAFFER
. . . Will He Play?

The Gamecocks are the only ACC team which has failed to defeat the Tar Heels this season. The Heels defeated them 92-87 in the season opener and then squeezed out an 84-81 win at Charlotte when Shaffer hit two free throws in the last four seconds to ice the victory.

In regular season play, the Gamecocks finished in fourth place with a 7-7 conference mark and were 10-11 overall. Dwane Morrison's boys closed the season Saturday night with an easy win over Maryland, a team which a week earlier had downed the Tar Heels by 10 points.

Known for their agressive play and scrappy defense USC has only one starter over 6-3. Their biggest man at the start of the season, 6-9 Jim Fox, was floored by the books and has been ineligible the second half of the season.

Their starting lineup will probably consist of All-ACC Ronnie Collins and 6-1 Jimmy Collins at the forwards; 6-7 soph John Schroeder at center, and 6-0 senior Terry Lucansky and captain Bill Yarbrough at the guards.

Ronnie Collins, a 6-3 jumping jack from Winnsboro, S. C., has been the Rooster scoring leader all season. His average has hoovered around 24 with a high of 37 against Georgia. His 29 point second half against the Heels at Charlotte almost led the Gamecocks to a comeback victory. His 35 points for the game set a North-South Doubleheader record.

Ronnie's smaller namesake, 6-1 Jimmy, wasn't even a starter when the Roosters came to Woollen Gym for the season opener. He entered the game shortly after it started and pumped in 29 points to insure himself a starting position. He has started every game since and has averaged 16.1 points per game.

At center, Schroeder, a soph from Dundalk, Md., has shown steady improvement since taking over for Fox in mid-season. He scored 17 points against UNC at Charlotte.

Yarbrough has been proclaimed by Morrison as the "most underrated player in the ACC." He always has the job of guarding the opposing team's best scorer, and at 6-3, is the team's leading rebounder. Still he maintains a 14 point scoring average.

In the vital quarterback spot for the Gamecocks is Lucansky.A two-year letterman from Massillon, Ohio, Lucansky moved into the starting job vacated by Scotti Ward and has proved invaluable to USC.

Netters Won't Play Hurricanes In '64

Tennis Coach Don Skakle has announced an 18-match schedule for his 1964 netters, and the first thing you notice about the slate is that Miami, Fla., isn't on it.

The Hurricanes, one of the nation's powers, handed the Tar Heels their only loss of the season in both 1962 and 1963. Last year UNC, in winning the ACC title in a breeze, posted an 18-1 overall mark. Since the conference was formed, Skakle's netters have won 61 of 62 league matches.

Skakle predicts another strong squad this spring.

"Several of our top men are ready for action right now," said the bespectacled coach. "Their conditioning is immense."

The Tar Heels open with the Indiana Hoosiers on March 24 and have matches for five consecutive days. The UNC netmen will plunge into ACC competition on April 14, here against Wake Forest.

1964 TENNIS SCHEDULE
(Home matches in bold face)

| | |
|---|---|
| Mar. 24 | Indiana |
| Mar. 25 | George Washington |
| Mar. 26 | Michigan State |
| Mar. 27 | Michigan St. |
| Mar. 28 | Toledo |
| Mar. 30 | M.I.T. |
| Apr. 1 | Williams |
| Apr. 2 | Williams |
| Apr. 3 | Ohio |
| Apr. 10 | George Washington |
| Apr. 14 | Wake Forest |
| Apr. 18 | Maryland |
| Apr. 20 | Virginia |
| Apr. 22 | Duke |
| Apr. 27 | NC State |
| May 1 | South Carolina |
| May 2 | Clemson |
| May 5 | Davidson |
| May 7-9 | ACC Tournament (at Duke) |

Sports Shorts

Clay-Liston Sets Radio Record

NEW YORK (UPI) — The radio broadcast of the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston heavyweight championship fight from Miami Beach, Fla., last Tuesday night attracted a larger audience than any single commercial entertainment event in broadcast history, according to Robert R. Pauley, president of the American Broadcasting Company.

Pauley said Tuesday that figures compiled by Sindlinger & Co., market analysists, reveal that 75,395,000 people over 12 years of age in 50 states listened to the fight on radio. Of this number, 45 million were male.

The previous record was 67,783,000 which heard the first Liston-Floyd Patterson title fight Sept. 25, 1962.

Jim Hickey—A No Tie Man

Football coach Jim Hickey doesn't believe in deadlocks. His teams here have never played a tie game.

As a matterof fact, since the rules were changed to allow a two-point play after a touchdown, the Atlantic Coast Conference has all but avoided conclusions which have been likened in thrills to "kissing one's sister."

Last year, South Carolina and Virginia played to a 10-10 finish. In 1960, those same Gamecocks and N. C. State played to an 8-8 standstill. Those have been the only deadlocks in inter-conference competition since 1959.

GANT

BATISTE OXFORD HUGGER

Cool, crisp batiste oxford in a short sleeved button-down with trim tapered-body. It makes a handsome shirt for summer wearing.

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

PEANUTS

Carolina NOW PLAYING

Coach Sam Barnes' Wrestlers Look To College Park Tourney For Glory

By PETE GAMMONS

After splitting the twelve regular season meets, the Tar Heel grapplers head for College Park, Maryland to compete in the ACC Tournament Friday and Saturday. The first round is Friday afternoon, the semifinals Friday night, the consolations Saturday afternoon, and the finals Saturday night.

Carolina goes into the tourney a strong favorite for second place behind the Maryland Terrapins, who have never lost it. Although coach Sam Barnes feels there isn't too much chance of copping the title, he does feel that his team should get into the finals in many classes, and by winning a couple could set a new record for a runner-up team.

"We have beaten some real good teams," says Barnes, "such as VPI, who later went on to clobber SEC champion Auburn. VMI was strong, as was Duke. State was not weak, and we showed our strength by giving away ten points (since we had to finish and get off the floor by eight-thirty) and still winning. Yet we have turned around and lost to teams like Washington and Lee. Our record should have been in the vicinity of 10-2, not 6-6."

The meet should give a good indication of how strong UNC really is. Paul Wellstone (123) is seeded first in his weight and is expected to keep his unblemished record. Kenny Furr (130), Russ Simmons (137), Dick Blackmon (147), and captain Jerry Cabe (191) all should reach the finals, and any one of them might win. Cabe, normally a heavyweight, will be working in one of the two added weights for the meet, the other being 115. Other probable Carolina starters will be Jack Saunders (115), Elliott Dworin (157), Bill Cook (167), Steve Lister (177), and either Zack Tabler or Billy Warren (hw). This line-up is tentative, but appears to be what Barnes will go with.

Despite the improvement from 2-11 to 6-6, Barnes is still disappointed. He refuses to offer any alibis for the failure of the team to live up to expectations, but it must be pointed out that with injuries of various kinds, not once has he been able to field his starting team. Twenty-two boys have been used so far this year. But even with the disappointments, it still remains an improvement, especially in the case of Furr and Simmons, who have developed into top-flight men. Four unbeaten freshmen also offer some consolation and promise for the future.

But the regular season is over, and all the performances of the past must culminate in the big individual and team meet. For what is possibly the best Carolina team in history, it might be an interesting one.

Alexander Takes Handball Crown

By PETE GAMMONS

Alexander won the Dorm Handball championships Monday with a 2-1 victory over Old East. The first two matches were played last Friday, and were split. Paul Swing defeated Ben Wyche, 21-16, 17-21, 21-19 to give Alexander the lead. Wyche's performance was incredible, however, for it was discovered immediately after the match that he was quite sick.

Bill Magnor and Don Orgain of Old East evened it up by winning over Rick Cahoon and Bill Robinson, 21-5, 21-19. Rafe Jones and Ray Lee won the big match Monday, crushing Malvern King and James Long, 21-7, 21-4. The handball win puts Alexander in second place in the Dorm Division point-standings for the season.

In basketball, Ehringhaus-B continued its winning ways, rolling to a 63-45 victory over Mangum in the Dorm Blue semifinals. Ehringhaus, composed of football players and a lone baseball star, was paced by Eddie Kesler with 16, followed by Jimmy Gallagher and Junior Edge with 10. Bill Sessoms had 16 for Mangum.

Trailing 31-30 with ten minutes left, the Town Toughies blew two fouls shots, then watched Navy go wild as the Sailor Boys reached the semifinals of the Dorm Blue, 53-35. Bill Bouton had 15 for the Navy while Wayne Hardy got 18 for the Toughies.

Phi Kap Sig reached the finals of the Fraternity Blue by nipping Beta, 27-24. In what could only be called a sloppy game, neither team hit over 30 per cent. In the first half, which saw the Phi Kaps grab an 11-7 lead, the teams shot a torrid 22 per cent. The Sigma Nu Shocks reached the semis of the White Division by freezing out the Chi Psi Whites, 26-22. Jim Rhodes had 12 for the Shocks.

36.6: Bobby

Bobby Lewis, UNC's freshman wonder boy, finshed up the season Friday night against Duke with 34 points, giving him a final average of 36.6.

The Tar Babies' other high scorer was Ian Morrison, who ended up just below the magic 20 mark with a 19.7 average.

As a team, Coach Ken Rosemond's yearlings turned in an overall record of 13-3 and were 8-3 in the ACC. In the "Big Four Frosh" race, the Tar Babies took all the marbles with a 7-1 record.

Ye Olde Taverne Features:

PIZZA SPECIAL—LAST DAY

5:00 P.M. till 11:00 P.M.

All Large Size Pizzas . . . ½ PRICE

Special Price

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Large Plain | $1.25 | 65c |
| With Pepperoni | $1.50 | 75c |
| With Sausage | $1.50 | 75c |
| With Anchovia | $1.50 | 75c |
| Half & Half | $1.65 | 90c |
| Deluxe | $1.75 | 95c |

*Plus tax

Today is the Last Day for Pizza Special

YE OLDE TAVERNE

Basement Professional Bldg. E. Franklin St.

Grants KNOWN for VALUES

Held Over!
Last Three Days
Thurs. Fri. Sat. Only

LIL' DARLIN'® PIN-UPS Exclusive at GRANT'S

Mothers
get a beautiful 8x10 picture of your baby for only 98¢

BRING YOUR FRIENDS!

AGES: INFANTS TO 12 YEARS
Here's all you do! Just bring your children to our store on the dates shown and our specialist in child photography will take several cute poses. You'll get to see your lovely finished pictures in just a few days.

Your choice from beautifully finished pictures (not proofs) 8 x 10's, 5 x 7's and wallet size . . . the "Ideal Family Package."

One or two children in each family will be photographed singly for only 98c each, Groups $1.00 per person. Extra child: 8x10, $1.95.

EXTRA SPECIAL! Finished wallet-size pictures, 2½x3½, less than 50c each in a group of 4, same pose.

NO HANDLING OR MAILING COSTS.

W.T. GRANT CO

Photographers Hours: 10 A.M. to 6 P.M.
Eastgate Shopping Center

The Glen Lennox Pharmacy

announces that we now have a new Delivery Service—with our own driver and our own car . . . We can give the same quick, expert service on deliveries that we give in the store.

Give us a call – Notice how fast we answer the phone.

The Glen Lennox Shopping Center

GLEN LENNOX Pharmacy

PHONE 967-7014

Murals Scores

BASKETBALL PLAYOFFS
Dorm Blue Semi-Finals
Navy 53, Town Toughies 35
Ehringhaus-B 63, Mangum 45
Frat Blue Semi-Final
Phi Kappa Sig 27, Beta 24
Frat White Semi-Finals
Sigma Nu Shocks 26, Chi Psi Whites 22
Grad Semi-Final
Peacocks 47, Dental-5 34
TODAY'S BASKETBALL
Frat Blue Final
Phi Kappa sig vs. w/DKE-ATO (8:30, Vars. Court)
Dorm White Final
w/Winston Skirts-Winston Waterboys vs. w/Ehringhaus-B-Craige-B (7:30, Vars. Court)

5TH BIG WEEK
Nominated for 10 Academy Awards
TOM JONES
12:15, 2:30, 4:45, 7, & 9:15 p.m.
RIALTO, Durham

10% Discount on Artists Materials
To All Art Students

Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

Attention SENIOR and GRADUATE MEN Students
Who need some FINANCIAL HELP in order to complete their education this year and will then commence work.
Apply to STEVENS BROS. FOUNDATION, INC.
A Non-Profit Educational Fdn. 610 Endicott Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.
UNDERGRADS, CLIP AND SAVE

TROUSERED BY CORBIN
the man who put natural shoulders on trousers

Have you looked at your trousers lately?

Are they correct? Are they neatly narrow in the leg — or too narrow (or too wide)? Do they hang properly or do they drag on the floor? Do they come up too high or do they rest securely on your waist? Do your trousers enhance your appearance?

Corbin trousers do more than simply clothe

Corbin tailors them with trim pleatless fronts, regular pockets and belt loops.

Town & Campus

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Cunningham Scores 34 In Tourney Quarter Finals

UNC Beats USC 80-63, Will Face Duke Tonight

The Daily Tar Heel

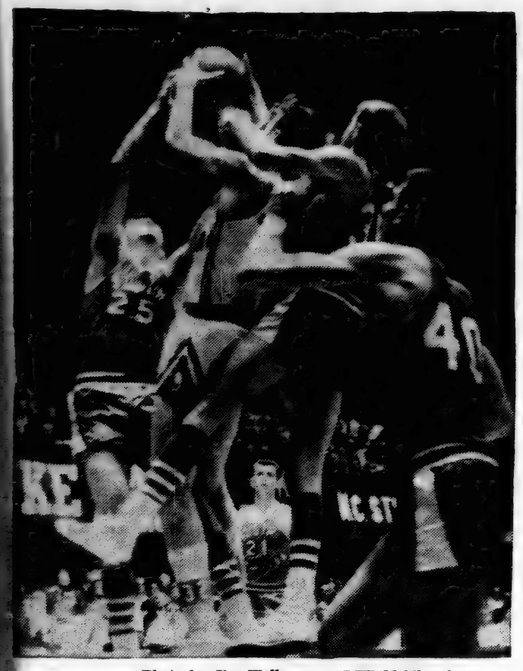
Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1964 | United Press International Service



—Photo by Jim Wallace and DTH Mobile Photo Lab

South Carolina Goes After Cunningham

Duke Busts State's Stall In 2nd Half

RALEIGH — Little N. C. State met big Duke here last night, and the Wolfpack, following their boss' orders, made an interesting game out of it—for one half.

Ahead by only six points at the half as a result of Ev Case's slowdown tactics, the Blue Devils decided they had had enough of this foolshness. And after the intermission Vic Bubas's boys simply scored and scored and scored, 51 points worth to put a decisive 75-44 end to all hopes of a first-round upset of the tourney favorite.

Tonight at 7:30 the Blue Devils, who are so good it is an insult to make them play in the tournament, will meet the winner of last night's UNC-USC clash.

Big 6-10 Jay Buckley was the man who ruined Case's well devised stall game last night. The guy, who has been playing like never before in the last three weeks, was magnificent as he hooked in 21 points (13 in the first half). Jeff Mullins was the only other Devil in double figures, getting 15—mostly on driving jump shots in the second half.

The first half was excitement in slow motion. The Pack waited for four minutes and six seconds before they took a shot. Then they missed, but Duke hadn't been scoring either (mainly because State had possession 90 per cent of that time), and when Pete Auksel hit State's first field goal at 14:52, it put the wolves ahead 3-2.

This pace continued, with Auksel doing the scoring when State decided to shoot. The big forward got 11 in the first half and 15 for the game. His two buckets right at the end of the first period cut what had been a 10-point Duke lead to 6 (24-18) as the half ended. If State had not thrown numerous passes away and missed easy shots, they might have had the lead at this point.

But Duke busted the whole thing wide open in the second half, and the only State man who could hit was Larry Worsley (15). When State tried to catch up, they were done for. Thus ended a valiant try by the "old Gray Fox."

Deacons Use Balance, Top Cavaliers

RALEIGH — Wake Forest, the only team in the ACC to beat Duke this season, wants another crack at the Blue Devils. The Demon Deacons think they can knock off the defending champs again—this time in the finals of the ACC tourney.

Yesterday Bones McKinney's crew fulfilled a prerequisite to its goal, turning back the game Virginia Cavaliers, 79-60, in a first-round game which at times looked as though it might produce an upset.

Playing without their high-scoring star, Chip Conner, the Virginians, on two different occasions, made quite a game out of the contest which wasn't supposed to be much of a contest.

At the start of the game, the Cavaliers decided to hold the ball. They did, and as a result Wake had nothing but a big goose egg on the scoreboard after three-and-a-half minutes of play. Unfortunately, Virginia had gotten only one for itself during this time.

Butch Hassell scored the first basket for the Deacons at 16:23, putting the Baptists in front, 2-1. For the next five minutes the lead see-sawed back and forth. The Deacs finally broke away mid-way in the half on consecutive buckets by Hassell, Dick Carmichael, Bob Leonard, two free throws by Leonard and another goal by Christie, making it 20-11.

Christie, hitting nine-of-ten from the floor, was the game's high scorer with 21 points. Ronny Watts was next with 18 (and 14 rebounds), and Hassell, Carmichael and Leonard each had a dozen, giving Wake its effective balanced scoring attack.

The Deacs withstood a second-half assault by Virginia, midway through that period, which saw the Cavs pull to within seven points. The surge was led by Jerry Sanders and Mac Caldwell, the latter being his team's high scorer (12 points).

Tonight the fidgety McKinney sends his second-place club against third-place Clemson in a 9:30 semi-final game.

APOLOGY

The Daily Tar Heel wishes to apologize for the misleading headline over yesterday's lead story. Bill Graham, rather than Vance Barron, was awarded the Goettingen Scholarship. Barron was selected as first alternate.

SG, Administration Agree On Managers

By JOHN GREENBACKER

Student Government and University Administration officials have reached an agreement of the payment of intramural managers salaries, ending a six month dispute.

The Administration and Student Government have agreed to each provide one half of the costs.

Student Government paid nearly $3000 from its budget last semester in support of the program, according to Student Body Vice President Bob Spearman.

Spearman said the decision to pay Student Government's half will be made by male residents in a referendum vote this spring. If the referendum passes, male residents will pay thirty cents each per semester to cover costs.

Student government's previous means of paying the intramural costs was termed unfair by Spearman, as it required taking money from the Student Government budget paid by all University students.

The intramural program began as an experiment in 1962 when it was sponsored entirely by Student Government.

The Physical Education Department agreed to help finance the costs in 1963 if the program was successful. It proved to be, and the Department decided to put the program on its fall budget.

The Department's request was turned down by the Administration, and for the entire fall semester Spearman and Men's Residence Council President Gerry Good worked to get the appropriation restored.

Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey announced the Administration's approval of the plan yesterday in a letter to Spearman.

Terming the intramural program very worthwhile, Spearman said, "I hope the fee will be passed in referendum. This would enable us to continue paying the intramural managers."

Chest Drive Ends Today

By UNHAPPY ALLISON

The Campus Chest has issued its annual plea for cash and hopes to have a record year.

The Chest has chosen to emphasize its contribution to the World Clothing Fund, one of several charities it supports. The solicitation drive ends today.

During the past year, the Fund has helped over 50,000 school children from Southern mountain communities return to school by providing them with adequate clothing.

Besides free lunch programs, the Fund has arranged for county schools to receive up to $1.50 per day of state aid for each day the child stays in class, thus helping to improve education facilities.

The Fund estimates 100,000 school children will require aid this year.

The Campus Chest has called on students to help the Fund attain its goal.

'Uncle Mot' Gets 57 New Nephews

"Uncle Mot" (John Motley Morehead) introduced his 57 Morehead Scholars for next year over WUNC television Tuesday afternoon.

The total is the highest ever for the four-year, no-strings scholarships. There were 53 awarded last year.

The grant is valued at $5,100 for in-state students and $6,800 for students from out of state.

The winners this year and their home towns are:

Barry Samuel Armour of Philadelphia, Pa., Groton School, Groton, Mass.; Henry Bell Benoit III of Charlotte, Myers Park High; James Bell Black III of Richmond, Va., Episcopal High School, Alexandria, Va; Franklin Taylor Branch of Atlanta, Ga., The Westminster Schools, Atlanta; John Michael Brown of Concord, Concord High School; Thomas Edward Carpenter of Waynesville, Ohio, Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind.

Also, Richard Warfield Cheek of Richmond, Va., Deerfield Academy, Deerfield, Mass.; William Thurston Cobb of Goldsboro, Goldsboro High School; Robert Feaster Coleman III of Wilmington, New Hanover High; William Robert Crowder of Candler, Enka High; Richard Oliver Cummins of Morehead City, Morehead City High; Malcolm David Eckel of Pittsfield, Mass., Groton School, Groton, Mass.; William Allan Findlay of Charlotte, South Mecklenburg High.

Also, Luther Anderson Galyon III of Knoxville, Tenn., McCallie School, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Jonathan Carl Gibson of Chattanooga, Tenn., McCallie School, Chattanooga; John Millard Gilkey Jr. of Marion, Marion Senior High; Peter Clift Gilmore of Michigan City, Ind., Deerfield Academy, Deerfield, Mass., William Moore, Gleason of Culver, Ind., Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind.; William Hill Guy of Statesville, Statesville Senior High; Kent Sheldon Hedman of Wilmington, New Hanover High; Peter Loomis Hellebush of Godfrey, Ill., Asheville School for Boys, Asheville, N. C.

Also, William Edwin Hollan Jr. of Winston-Salem, Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N.H.; Richard Turner Howe of Melrose, Mass., Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., Richard Edward Irving of Cherry Point, Havelock High; Richard Blaine Johnston Jr. of North Wilkesboro, Wilkes Central High; David Harris Kiel of High Point, High Point Central High; Walter Winburne King III of Greensboro, W. H. Page High; Alan Robert Kleinmaier of Kinston, Grainger High; Tim Houston Lea Jr. of Chattanooga, Tenn., Baylor School for Boys, Chattanooga; Ralph Brooks Levering of Ararat, Va., Mount Airy High, Mount Airy; William Everett Long of Newton, Newton-Conover High.

Also, Robert Davis McCallum Jr. of Memphis, Tenn, The Choate School, Wallingford, Conn.; David Darrah McFadden of Hickory, Claremont Central High; Roger Maynard Jr. of Wilton, Conn., The Taft School, Watertown, Conn.; Michael Albert Menius of China Grove,

(Continued on Page 3)

Debators Beat Wake

The UNC debate team defeated Wake Forest last Saturday on the NC State campus.

Bob Powell and Haywood Clayton, of UNC, took the negative on the topic "Resolved: that social security benefits should be extended to include complete medical care" and won by a 200-100 vote.

The UNC debate team is featured in a TV series on WUNC each Sunday at 3. The next debate will be between UNC and Wake Forest.

Dr. Donald Springen, faculty advisor for the UNC debators, said, "Since it was received with such enthusiasm by the audience, it will be telecast next year throughout the state."

The debate was the last in a series of exhibitions for high school students planned in conjunction with the NC Speech Association.

Invitations

Graduation invitations will be on sale in Y-Court from 9-3 today, Monday and Tuesday. These are the official invitations and are being sold by the Order of the Grail. All graduating seniors are urged to place their order, as this is the last chance.

Strauss Poem Read Tonite

It has been said that music soothes the savage beast. And the music of Richard Strauss is ideal to soothe even the most savage of beasts.

Especially if it's Strauss' "Enoch Arden" as performed tonight at 8 in Graham Memorial Lounge by Joel Carter and Charles Horton.

Carter, director of the UNC Men's Glee Club, will read the poem with background piano accompaniment by Horton, chairman of the Music Department at Campbell College.

Don't forget now . . . tonight at 8 in Graham Memorial Lounge. The music of Strauss' "Enoch Arden" performed by the duo of Carter and Horton.

Kathy Chalk Named DTH Kite Queen

Boom!

Miss Kathy Chalk, a blond bombshell from Morehead City, N. C., has been named queen of the first annual Daily Tar Heel Kite Contest.

She is a senior and a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

When informed of her selection, the queen commented, "but I don't know how to fly a kite."

Fred Seely, DTH Kite Tail Editor and chairman of the selection committee, said kite flying ability was not considered in the judging.

"Kathy should make an outstanding kite queen," he said, "even though she is neither flighty nor high-strung."

Kathy said she is looking forward to seeing Saturday's contest, which now has several entries in each category.

Among the entries yesterday was ATO fraternity, which has promised "the most beautiful kite in the contest." The Delta Upsilon pledges also entered, but are undecided on their category.

Hugh Stevens, DTH Kite Editor, said yesterday that all contestants should meet at the Intramural Field no later than 1:20 p.m. Saturday.

"We want to start by 1:30," he said, "so that the contestants will be able to recover all lost kites by nightfall."

He reminded all entries that in order to win in a particular division, all kites must fly "to the satisfaction of the judges."

"We will leave the precise qualifications up to them," he said, "and we will set a time limit on the distance category."

Stevens also indicated that the DTH Kite Team, "The Tar Heel Flyers," would be on hand to fly a kite, though not in competition.

Prizes for the contest have been donated by The Hub, the Dairy Bar, La Pizza, and Kemp's.

The judges will be Joel Fleishman, legal assistant to Governor Sanford; Otelia Connor; and Gary Eden, WKIX disc jockey.

Judging will be in four categories: distance, largest kite, smallest kite, and most beautiful kite.

Entrants may sign up by calling the DTH office at 933-1011 tween 1 and 6 p.m. today.

Miss Kathy Chalk

UNC Hosts AED Regional Meet

The 15th national convention of Alpha Epsilon Delta, international premedical honor society, opened here last night with an address of welcome by Dean Carlyle Sitterson.

Region III, consisting of chapters in seven Southeastern states is host for the three-day convention.

The opening business session last night was highlighted by reports from national officers, Dr. Maurice L. Moore, national secretary and director of new product development for Sterling Drug Inc. and executive vice president of Winthrop Laboratories in New York City, and Dr. Charles V. Reichart, national treasurer and chairman of the biology department at Providence (R.I.) College.

Morning and night business sessions and a tour of the medical school, N. C. Memorial Hospital and the dental school were on the agenda for today.

A three-hour "premedical conference" tomorrow morning will preview the next decade in medicine. Dean W. R. Berryhill of UNC and Dean Mason Meads of Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem will be on the program.

Other conference speakers will be Dean Mason Meads of Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Dr. William Joyner of Chapel Hill, Dr. Robert Zeppa of the School of Medicine, Dr. William W. Demeritt, assistant dean of the School of Dentistry, Dr. Edward McG. Hedgpeth, chairman of the admissions committee at the School of Medicine, Dr. Robert L. Tuttle, assistant dean and chairman of the admissions committee at Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Dr. Joseph E. Markee, assistant dean in charge of admissions at the Duke School of Medicine, and Dr. Roger E. Sturdevant, chairman of the admissions committee at the School of Dentistry.

Dr. Nathan A. Womack, professor and chairman of the Department of Surgery at the School of Medicine, will be the keynote speaker at the conference luncheon.

Awards will be presented at the luncheon meeting.

Tar Heels Take The 2nd Half

By JOHN MONTAGUE

RALEIGH — North Carolina broke out of its slump last night, outscoring South Carolina 48-33 in the second half, to come off with a sweet 80-63 victory in the first round of the ACC Tournament here.

The win, which was sparked by the first-class performance of four individuals, means the Tar Heels have the unbeleivable task of meeting Duke again—at 7:30 tonight in the semi-finals.

With Billy Cunningham as hot as a firecracker and Ray Respass turning in the best "inside" game of his career, the Tar Heels prevented the tragedy of ending the season with five straight defeats.

The Kid hit for 34 points (15 for 23 from the floor) and couldn't miss in the first half, when he got 21. Respess was not far behind .He had 24 points, many of these came under the basket in the midst of flying elbows it was Ray who led the decisive second-half pull-away, scoring 16 points.

Joining Billy and Ray were two sophomores—Johnny Yokley and and Bob Bennett—both of whom turned in long-awaited steady floor games.

It was definitely the second half that made the difference. UNC brought a slim 32-30 advantage out of the dressing room, and even in the second half it took them a while before they could bust open the nip-and-tuck contest.

They opened up an eight-point lead early in the second period, but saw it slip away to three points (42-39) before Respess turned the tide.

He converted a three-point play at 12:22 and followed with two more quick field goals to make it 49-41. Then the Kid got hot again, getting ten points in four minutes, giving UNC a 64-48 lead. The Tar Heels were never in trouble after that.

'Careers' Opens Today At UNC's Knapp Hall

"Careers For Carolina," a program designed to familiarize students with the opportunities in the field of public service, starts its one-day stand today at 9:30 a.m.

All sessions, with the exception of the luncheon, will be held in Knapp Hall (The Institute of Government).

Knapp Hall is located next to the intramural field adjacent to Woollen Gym. The luncheon, which costs $2.15, will be held at the Carolina Inn.

SOLICITOR ORDERED

The Judge of U.S. Middle District Court Wednesday ordered the Solicitor and three defense attorneys to answer or "respond" to a petition transferring 932 cases to Federal Courts.

Judge Edward M. Stanley gave the attorneys and the solicitor until March 12 to make their replies known to the Court. The action came after three defense attorneys pulled a surprise move in Orange County Superior Court by filing a petition charging the defendants could not get a "fair trial in any court in the State of North Carolina."

—Photo by Jim Wallace and DTH Mobile Photo Lab

11,800 Spectators Pack William Neal Reynolds Coliseum For The Start of ACC Basketball Meet

Volume 72, Number 111 Friday, March 6, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Justice & The News Of Orange County

On the general topic of editorial foibles, we notice that the News of Orange County has inadvertently lent weight to the claim of civil rights demonstrators in Hillsboro that their cases should be tried in federal court because they cannot receive a fair trial in state courts.

The News calls the demonstrators' claims "reckless," and predicts that:

". . . ultimately, we are confident, the orderly processes of justice and common sense will prevail, and the defendants will have to stand trial before their fellow citizens in Orange County. The only injustice that will have been done then will be unconscionable delay and expense of bringing violators of the criminal law to face their deserved and inevitable deserts."

Clearly, the News of Orange County has already tried the defendants and found them guilty. Its notion of justice appears to hinge on how quickly and severely the defendants are sentenced.

If The News' sentiments are at all representative of the public hereabouts —from which jurors are chosen—then it is entirely possible that the demonstrators' charges are not so "reckless" as they might otherwise appear.

But the crowning irony comes in the editor's "Newsman's Notepad" column elsewhere on the page. There he justly takes Life Magazine to task for printing a cover picture of Lee Oswald with —according to Life—"the weapon he used to kill President Kennedy and Policeman Tippit."

Says the editor of The News: "Indeed, this misguided maniac probably did kill President Kennedy. But at least some semblance of trial and orderly presentation of evidence, as is being compiled by the Presidential Commission, is in order before the man is found guilty-by-assumption on the cover of Life or in any other 'news' medium."

It appears that the pot is calling the kettle black.

If Only Old Soldiers Would Fade Away

At the end of the 1963 General Assembly, Senate President Clarence Stone with a tear in his eyes and a catch in his voice told his fellow Honorables that he was going home for good.

Whatever sentiment the announcement stirred in the House of Lords, there was considerable rejoicing elsewhere in the land.

The State Senate's Old Curmudgeon had just finished cramming the Gag Law into the University's mouth, and with his unique legislative style had outdistanced all his colleagues in irascibility, volatility, profanity, and small-change tyranny.

The rejoicing, it now seems, was somewhat premature. The Legislature is out of season, for which we are properly grateful. But Sir Clarence is still tilting hard. His current target is Al Lowenstein, a professor at State College.

Professor Lowenstein sinned, in Sir Clarence's eyes, by participating in the civil rights movement in North Carolina and Mississippi. Moving with his usual subtlety and grace, Sir Clarence sought to have Professor Lowenstein fired. He called the business manager at State to learn the professor's pay scale. Then he put in a call to University President William C. Friday.

Sir Clarence did a pretty fair job of firing the Senate chaplain last year, but since Professor Lowenstein's head hasn't been reported rolling as yet, it can be assumed that Stone's current effort has been effectively resisted.

According to his past performance chart, Sir Clarence can be expected to keep right on trying. We wish him luck.

He knows what kind.

How About That . . . Duke's Still There!

The Raleigh Times

Unless the matter was carefully concealed, not a single building collapsed at Duke University over the weekend, and not a single Duke student or professor defected to the Communists. Yet, a Communist spoke on the Duke campus over the weekend.

What is more, this Communist was actually from the Russian embassy in Washington. And he spoke on the Soviet concept of peaceful co-existence.

On the same program with him was Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges and other people who can safely be classified as completely patriotic and hundred percent American. Their presence with him on this Duke program should pretty well indicate their feeling as to whether it is all right to have a Communist speak on a university campus.

This same Communist, or any other Communist, couldn't speak on the Carolina campus 12 miles from Duke. We have on our statute books a law which prohibits that. Yet, any Carolina student or professor who wanted to do so could have gone the 12 miles to Duke.

The theory of this law seems to be that no public property should be used as a forum by Communists. In actual working, the law is simply trying to deny university communists the privilege of hearing, presumably on the theory that they cannot be trusted o understand what they hear. The theory, whether intended or not, is that Duke students are perfectly able to detect and reject Communist propaganda, but that Carolina sudents aren't capable of doing so.

In actual practice, this futile attempt to throttle Communism could well backfire. For, this is saying to the young people of North Carolina that there is something so mysterious about Communism that young North Carolinians simply can't be trusted to hear about it. That is like pouring kerosene on a lighted fire, for nothing makes any subject dear to the hearts of young people as an attempt to keep it from them.

The result could well be that our law is making something attractive out of Communism. Yet, there is nothing at all attractive about Communism, and there is so much about it that is evil and cheap and dangerous. Any North Carolina college student could see that for himself by just a moderately attentive hearing of a Communist talk.

So, this speech-gag law is simply a thing of fear of things which aren't there. And it is terrible to try to bring up our young people in a world in which fear is a deciding factor.

Young people shouldn't be taught to live by fear. They should be taught to live by honest inquiry, by honest seeking after the truth, by honestly living by the things they find to be true in such unrestricted seeking.

A man who lives by fear and under fear can never know how it is to live by faith and by hope and by belief in the American system. And a man who does live by faith and by hope and by true belief in the American system need never to know fear.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists:
Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter
Dick Baddour
Bob Vanderberry
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bob Holland

"Monopolist!"

U. N. Assembly Varied, Valuable

By STU EIZENSTAT

The 6th Annual United Nations Model General Assembly was held February 12-15 at Duke. Carolina had three delegations, one representing the United Arab Republic, another Brazil, and the third Yugoslavia. The Yugoslav delegation of Bill Lucas, Brick Oettinger, Karen Rawlins, Phil Shirley, Dave Abbott, and Stu Eizenstat, was choosen "Best Delegation". There were forty-one schools from eleven states at this unique United Nations.

Most of the delegate's time was spent in one of the four committees—Administrative and Budgetary, Economic, Political and Social, Humanitarian, and Cultural. It was at the Committee sessions that the resolutions which were to come up before the entire Assembly were submitted, debated and voted upon.

The General Assembly passed three resolutions. The first was a bill submitted by Brazil and the Ivory Coast which condemned the racial policies of South Africa and imposed upon her stringent economic and strategic-supply sanctions.

The second bill that the U.N. Assemby passed was submitted by the UNC delegation representing Brazil. This resolution increased membership in both the Economic and Social Committee and the Security Council and, in effect, abolished the veto of the 5 permanent members by stating that decisions in the Council could pass by an affirmative vote of any 12 of the 15 members of the Council.

The third resolution, submitted by Kenya and favorably passed out of the Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee earlier in the week, was aimed at alleviating the world's refugee problem by having member nations accept a certain amount of refugees per year when this did not conflict with national laws.

The most lively moment in the Assembly came when the Soviet Bloc nations walked out of the Assembly in protest of a vote taking away their voting rights due to the extent and amount of time they were arrears in their UN payments.

The value of the model U.N. was the realization one gets of the difficulty of passing important measures due to the diversity of views within the Assembly, and the experience of seeing problems from the eyes of another nation; one was a Yugoslav, or a Brazilian or a Panamanian not an American, and thus one could apreciate and understand the foreign nation's views in a real sense.

The highlight of the session was a speech by Dr. Arthur Larson, former head of the U.S.I.A. and now head of Duke's World Rule of Law Center, and a major address by Tran Van Choung, former South Vietnamese Ambassador to the U.S. and the father of Madame Nhu.

Dr. Larson's address was entitled "The Future Peace-Keeping Role of the United Nations". He stated that with the successful UN operation in the Congo the Organization had entered a new era, an era marked by confidence not crisis. Other events making for this new air of confidence was the alleviation of the UN's financial burden through the selling of U.N. Bonds, the defeat of Russia's "troika", and the subsequent election of U Thant as the sole Secretary-General, and the prevention of increasing hostilities in West New Guinea.

Dr. Larson mentioned three trouble posts in the world where he felt the U.N. action should be more seriously considered: Berlin, where national forces could be replaced by U.N. forces and several U.N. offices could be established; South Viet Nam where a U.N. force would be useful; as in Lebanon; Cyprus, where a Congo-like operation is called for. Larson felt that the nations most immediately involved should finance these operations. His picture of the present and future of the U.N. was indeed encouraging.

Tough, shrewd little Tran Van Choung gave the major address to the Model U.N. As former Vietnamese Ambassador to the U.S. and later an extreme critic of the Diem regime the delegates were especially anxious to hear him.

He castigated deGaulle's proposal to neutralize Viet Nam by saying that one could not be neutral when attacked, and that in essence South Viet Nam was still neutral under the 1954 Geneva Agreement. He felt that France lost the war in Indo-China because the people realized France was fighting for her own, not Viet Nam's, interest.

The Vietnamese people realize now, he continued, that America was not fighting for her own selfish reasons.

Choung gave several reasons for the lack of success of the present war against the Communist guerrillas: first, the International Control Commission established in 1954 had been ineffective; secondly, this type of war erodes the moral of a new nation yet is not "spectacular"

(Continued on Page 3)

Letters To The Editors

'The Gulf Has Widened'

Neglect

Editors, The Tar Heel:

In this growing mass university, serious questions have arisen concerning the effectiveness of Student Government in dealing with the mounting problems of the Student Body. In an address just recently made before the University Party, Dean of Men, William G. Long, questioned just how wide the gulf between Student Government on the second floor of Graham Memorial and the student living in one of the various residences on campus has gotten and is going to get.

The actions of Mike Lawler, the present President of the Student Body, in regard to his powers as defined in the Student Constitution have widened the gulf between the student on campus and the office of the President of the Student Body. Mike Lawler has neglected many of the duties of his office in the areas which are of most concern to the students in this fast growing university. He has failed to meet the challenges of a mass institution and has instead been mainly involved in sometimes unnecessary arguments with the administration and in actions on Civil Rights. This constant bickering with the administration and his actions on Civil Rights have done almost nothing to close the gulf between students and the office of President of the Student Body, and nothing towards accepting the challenges of the mass university.

The first duty or power of the President of the Student Body is "to appoint the chairman and members of all standing committees and boards not otherwise provided for in this (the student) Constitution"—that is, to appoint members to all committees created by the Student Legislature.

In specifically two major areas of concern i nthis growing university Mike Lawler has failed to fulfill this responsibility and duty according to the Student Constitution. First, great concern has arisen over the orientation of Freshmen entering this large school. President Lawler has failed next year's entering class by not only failing to appoint an orientation Chairman by October 20, 1963, as called for in the Student Government Laws, but by waiting until this late in the year when semester orientation, in which the new Chm. gets much of the experience needed for the much larger program in the fall, has passed and the budget for Orientation is almost before the Student Legislature. He was asked many times by persons active in orientation to appoint a chairman, but he has either been too busy or not considered it important enough until the present time, and this time last year the plans for Fall Orientation were well under way so that a well organized orientation could be held.

Second, as this university continues to grow, the problems of the students concerning their campus welfare continue to rise. The committee which is directly responsible for campus welfare is the Campus Affairs Board. Six months ago the Chairman of this committee anounced to Lawler his intention to resign because of his academic problems. Three months ago the former Chairman resigned. Yet still today no new Chairman has been chosen or announced to lead this important committee. Because of this, as recent reports by the UP Campus Action Board have revealed, many on campus projects and problems have been utterly neglected. The President of the Student Body has forgotten the campus welfare of the members of the Student Body.

Another duty or power of the President of the Student Body is "to administer and enforce laws enacted by the Student Legislature." In this large institution one of the major problems is that of communications, and, whether we agree with it or not, the Daily Tar Heel is the main organ for this purpose on our campus. A question has arisen whether or not the DTH will be able to continue to print on the presses it is now using. The President of the Student Body, Mike Lawler, has again failed to fulfill his duties and to meet the challenge of a growing Student Body by failing to appoint a committee to seek the purchase of a print shop for the DTH as called for in a law enacted by the Student Legislature which also appropriated $5000 for this purpose. With a growing student body and growing demands on campus communications it will probably be necessary for the DTH to own its own print shop as many other campus daily newspapers do already.

Looking over the Lawler administration, noting these and many other neglects, it is easy to see how the gulf between the student body and their President has widened and how Student Government has failed to respond to the challenges of the mass university.

Sincerely,
Jeff Adams
UP Chairman

Men's Room

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Sometimes editorial pages get in a rut and are no more than dull reading to be avoided. Occasionally, though, the pages come to life with a special brilliancy. Last week your Letters to the Editors column did just that. I refer to the exceptionally well-written letter by a student concerned about how the removal of the doors in the library men's room is responsible for supressing a minority group in Chapel Hill. This gentleman had to have armored courage in order to say what he said; but if he only knew of the hundreds and hundreds of supporters his letter has had, the thickness of his armor would double. I have rarely heard so much enthusiasm among students after reading a letter in The Daily Tar Heel.

I have the feeling that this is the beginning of a brilliant new era of tolerance of the individual in Open City, USA. I should expect the student legislature, which no doubt has its own sympathizers of the letter to which I refer, to begin to make moves to do something about the matter. Minority groups eventually become majority groups—then they are the ones who make the laws. But until then let's be tolerant of all those who may after all have a wider view of what life is really all about anyhow than we do. They may be the ones who are squeezing the juice from the orange—while the majority only looks at its color.

Duc Griffin
Ehringhaus

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

Heelprints

Right now, Cameron Avenue is one hole of a mess.

* * *

Definition: Arthritis — twinges in the hinges.

* * *

Jack Horner commented on a recent DTH editorial by calling the editors "mud-slingers." Didn't he mean "Clay-slingers?"

* * *

Then there's the Clarence Stone doll—you wind it up and it throws rocks at Al Lowenstein.

* * *

The governor's race, so far as the state papers are concerned, seems to be an issue with High Preyerority.

* * *

If you think politics is easy, try straddling a fence while keeping one ear to the ground.

'Are We Clever?'

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Oh, we are the clever ones, aren't we? We sit in our terribly collegiate rooms at seldom-used desks and whack out witty little notes to the Daily Tar Heel, advising the rest of our classmates to boycott—restaurants or attorney generals or student body presidents or perhaps just any unfortunate who stumbles into Graham Memorial, supposed haven of conservatives and liberals, CORE members and segregationists, the "I gotta cause"-types and the anti-everythings.

We fling accusations and praises, scarcely pausing to see where or to whom and usually with little information to back our statements. Midst this verbal barrage, however, shines one bright note—someone got up off his apathy and had a thought on the unpleasant situation about him and, deciding it certainly was his affair, summoned energy enough to dash down his very own opinions.

Regardless of our personal attitudes, we can't but admire these few who actually have an opinion and the courage to be unfashionable and express it. Even more awe-inspiring is that these letter-writers have, albeit sometimes confusedly, read and used the news, editorials and letters section in forming their ideas, whether or not they agreed with the various authors. They are wiser than the student who, when questioned about a recent article, replied, "That? Oh, I don't agree with him so I didn't care about reading it."

We cannot Ignore the pleas of any "side" in this question of discrimination, for as another John Donne said, "No man is an island." We are involved, and even we ostriches had best greet all this frightful reality face-to-face. We are adults, or, as our parents fervently hope, are approaching that status. We reached the "age of accountability" long ago—surely we now are old enough to meet our responsibility as citizens, a role surpassing even that of Christian or student. This responsibility at the very least entails gaining awareness—of the present situation, of the truths and lies behind it, of our own and others' attitudes and opinions. We each must make a decision to help in achieving a peaceable, swift solution to the problem in whatever way turns up most compatible with our personal values and feelings. There are groups embracing almost every view—why doesn't each of us get himself a view and do something about it? Besides trying to force it on someone else?? We are all intelligent people, so says Central Records, fully capable of forming opinions, making thoughtful decisions and acting effectively—all by ourselves.

Walker Percy, class of 1937, was awarded the 1962 National Book Award for Fiction for his The Moviegoer. In it he describes the sort of people even the Men's Honor Council thinks most of us are—gentlefolk:

"At the great moments of life — success, failure, marriage, death—our kind of folks have always possessed a native instinct for behavior, a natural piety or grace, I don't mind calling it. Whatever else we did or failed to do, we always had that. I'll make you a little confession. I'm not ashamed to use the word class. I will also plead guilty to another charge. The charge is that the people of my class think they're better. You're damn right we're better. We're better because we do not shirk our obligations either to ourselves or to others. We live by our lights, we die by our lights, and whoever the high gods may be, we'll look them in the eye without apology."

Need any more be said?

Sincerely,
Alice-Anne Tucker
256 Cobb West

113

Give More

and

Get More

in '64

Campus Chest

— U. N. Assembly —

(Continued from Page 2)

enough to arouse the West to provide enough help; thirdly, since so few firearms existed, one guerrilla could intimidate an entire village; fourth, American aid was belated and inadequate; lastly, the inefficiency of the Diem regime.

To win the war he proposed that a true national union government completely reorganize the civil administration; that the Vietnamese realize the communists were not fighting to "liberate" them and the West realize that if South Viet Nam felt no one else in Asia would dare resist the Communists; that bolder action i.e. military strikes at North Viet Nam, be taken. He felt such action should not elicit direct Red Chinese entrance because they feared escalation more than the U.S. did, since it knew a war would bring a popular revolt.

Though offering belligerent and seemingly unrealistic solutions and full of propaganda, Mr. Choung's statements were received with interest by all the delegates at the Model United Nations.

(Advertisement)

BEAUTY NOTES

BY ALICE STONE

Here are a few facts concerning scratchy, non-catchy Erythema solare—better known as sunburn. A leading dermatologist had this to say.

"Sun ages the skin. Too much of it over long peroids destroys the elastic fibers, or connective tissues, and they become degenerated.

"These fibers are like rubber bands and hold the skin taut. If you overdo it, even with a tan, the rays get down into the connective tissues."

Forgetting skin and sun for the moment, let's speak of your hair. Is it a problem — a lank, limp, spiritless problem? Actually, you don't have a great problem at all. There are always the excellent facilities and stylists of Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon, 133½ East Franklin to serve you. Try us. Phone 943-4335.

THIS WEEK'S HELPFUL HINT: Try refrigerating birthday cake candles the day before using; they will burn slower and with even glow.

LONG THROW

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Outfielder Don Grate of the Minneapolis Millers (American Association) threw a baseball a record 445 feet 1 inch at Minneapolis Metropolitan Stadium Aug. 27, 1956.

INSTANT SILENCE

STUDY ANYTIME ANYWHERE

Sound attenuators as utilized by military and commercial jet air. craft ground grew personnel are the perfect solution. For information write:

ACADEMIC AIDS

P. O. Box 969

Berkeley 1, Calif.

'J.B.' Opens Tuesday Night

Foster Fitz-Simons and David Gullette are two of the performers in the Playmakers' production of "J.B.," to be presented here next week.

Guild's Production Has Superb Acting

The Durham Theater Guild's latest production "Between Two Thieves" is one of the best acted productions to play in this area in some time.

The play revolves around a group of touring actors headed by a Jewish family—a mother, her son, and wife of another son who was killed in an anti-semitic riot. Impromptu, the actors enter the theater, clear the stage, set up scenery for a courtroom trial, draw parts, and announce a "retrial of Jesus."

Not a religious drama, the play does put forth important questions concerning society today. It is especially concerned with persecution and "the moments of silence that allow persecution to exist."

Does the loss of the innocent blood of Jesus demand the spilling of the blood of Jews today, the actors ask. A man from the audience steps up as defense counsel for Jesus. Mary the mother of Jesus, Mary Magdalene, Pontius Pilate, Caiaphas and Judas take the witness stand. Later a priest, a prostitute and a bigot come forth from the audience to air their views on Jesus.

Much of the credit for the success of this production must go to its director William Trotman. The entire play is essentially dialogue between two or three of the actors. Trotman has succeeded in keeping the pace steady, holding the audience's attention and building up to a powerful climax. He has drawn memorable performances from the majority of his cast.

The most moving performance of the night comes from Tom Benenson as a boy in the audience who deplores the actor's idea of this retrial of Jesus and cries out: "Leave Jesus alone, leave Him alone." Gordon Clark as the actor who draws the part of prosecutor of Jesus gives a powerful but sometimes overdramatic performance.

Other performances worth noting are those of Peggy Jones as the daughter-in-law, Elizabeth Axelrod as the prostitute, and John Bell as Judas. Also appearing in the play are James and Raven Gillikin, Buck Roberts, Betty Setzer, Tommy Thompson and Terry Chronaki.

Trotman has wisely chosen to present himself as the judge and Gerd Young as the mother in a calm, sensible mood which adds contrast to the guilt-ridden prosecutor of Jesus and the outraged young daughter-in-law.

Trotman has so suceeded in directing the actors that we are almost inclined to forget the weaker parts of the play. The play adapted by Warner Leroy from Diego Fabbri's "Processeo A Gesu" is a presentational play acknowledging the presence of the audience. The tone of the play is very informal. Actors appear and perform from the audience. The last act is largely presented from the audience. Despite the conventionality of this device, the last act is the most successful part of the play.

Director Trotman has taken a difficult play and turned it into a fascinating, thought-provoking production. The Durham Theater Guild is to be commended for attempting such a play — more important for making it such a success.

Need A Job?

The following companies will recuit on campus next week:

Mon., March 9 — McGraw-Hill Book Company; General Foods Corp; North Carolina National Bank; Arthur Anderson & Co.

Tues., March 10 — North Carolina National Bank; Arthur Anderson & Co.; W. T. Grant & Co; Campbell Sales Co.

Wed., March 11 — S. S. Kresge Co.; The Pennsylvania Railroad; Burroughs Wellcome & Co., Inc.; Smith Kline & French Laboratories; Security Life & Trust Co.

Thurs., March 12 — Security Life & Trust Co.; Ernst & Ernst; The Phoenix of Hartford Insurance Companies; State Planters Bank of Commerce & Trusts; The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.; The Kroger Company (group meeting — 3:00 p.m.)

Fri., March 13 — The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.; The Kroger Company; R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company; P. Lorillard Company; Dover Mill Company.

Students desiring interviews with the company representatives should contact the Placement Service, 204 Gardner Hall.

MRC DANCE

Come to the Men's Residence Council's dance Saturday and you'll probably run into some of your instructors too.

Enthusiasm for the dance in the Carolina Inn Ballroom is running high among faculty and graduate students as well as undergraduates, according to MRC Vice-President Gordon Appell.

The Duke Ambassadors, a fourteen-piece orchestra, will play from 8 to 12 p.m. and refreshments will be served free. Admission is $1 per couple. Dress is coat and tie for men and heels for the women.

"Thank heavens, the MRC is finally having decent music at their dances," one faculty member said.

Milasnovich Leads Tigers' Easy Win

RALEIGH — Nick Milasnovich is a guy with a lot of letters in his name, but very few points on the basketball court. Up until yesterday afternoon, that is.

Yesterday afternoon Milasnovich couldn't miss. He hit from inside and outside, scoring 30 points, as the Clemson Tigers tore up an inexperienced Maryland team, 81-65. The ease with which they won their first-round contest makes many believe the Tigers will prove worthy of something more than the "dark horse" tag which was slapped on them at the beginning of this ACC Tournament.

Tonight at 9:30, Clemson takes on Wake Forest in a semi-final contest and if they are allowed to play their methodical game, the big, tough, but slow Tigers will prove to be an insecure stepping stone for the Deacs' trip to the finals.

Guard Jim Brennan and forward Gary Burnisky normally do most of the point-making for the Tigers; who finished third in the ACC this year. But yesterday they were content to feed Milasnovich, who quite obviously held the "hot hand."

The senior guard enjoyed the highest scoring performance of his career, hitting 18 in the first half and another dozen in the second period. Many of his baskets came from right under the goal as the Tigers made mincemeat out of the Terrapins' zone defense.

Clemson jumped off to an early lead and the Tigers never let go of it. With eight minutes left in the first half, the South Carolinians were up, 25-18, and Milasnovich had 14 points.

Playing a "take-it-easy" offense, the Tigers simply waited for the open shot and they usually got it, gradually increasing their lead (37-29 at the half; 57-45 mid-way through the second half).

Burnisky finished with 15 points and Brennan had 14. Guard George Suder (13) and center Rick Wise (12) led the somewhat punchless Terrapin offense.

Miss Trott Will Head Council

By MAX MOWRY

Sara Anne Trott, a junior from Kannapolis, has been appointed chairman of the Women's Council to succeed Carolyn Pinion. Miss Pinion resigned because her nurses' training program would take her away from the UNC campus.

Miss Trott was elected to the Women's Council last fall as a representative from Whitehead Dorm. The members of the Council then chose her to be vice-chairman under Miss Pinion.

"The Women's Council is not just a group of girls serving for status purposes," stated Miss Trott. "I'm very impressed by the other members and I feel that the Council does an extremely good job. It is a very great responsibility to be chairman and I hope to fulfill my responsibility and to exhibit mature judgment.

"When they come here, the Carolina women students agree to abide by rules set up for them and I think that most women students live up to this responsibility."

A history major, Miss Trott is a transfer student from UNC-G. During the past summer she took part in the North Carolina State Government Intern Program. In 1960-61 she served as the Secretary of the North Carolina Student Council and as President of the Episcopal Young Churchmen of the Diocese of North Carolina.

DIMAGGIOS EVERYWHERE

BOSTON (UPI)— In the early 1940's the brothers Di Maggio were playing with these major league clubs: Joe, Yankees; Dominic, Red Rox, and Vincent, Pirates.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

Ride needed to Washington, D.C. this afternoon; contact Tom Settlemyre, 942-4878.

Wesley Supper—6 p.m., Wesley House, phone for reservations.

Hillel Sabbath Services — 7 p.m., Hillel House.

Westminster Fellowship — 6:45 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, bowling party.

CPU — 2-5 p.m., RP I, interested persons sign up for interviews at GM Information Desk.

French Table —12 -2 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

Editors' Roundtable — 4-5 p.m., Grail Room, discussion of financial needs of Roundtable.

CPU Membership Comm. — 1:30 — 5 p.m., RP I.

CCF —6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

SP—anyone interested in running for legislature, NSA, or senior class office contact Paul Dickson, 968-9170.

Order of the Grail sale of graduation invitations, 9-3, Y-Court, today-Tues.

Faculty Council — 4 p.m., Howell, regular monthly meeting.

Public Health Seminar—4 p.m., 304 School of Public Health, Dr. Robert Lindsay, "The Health of Migrant Families."

All persons interested in being interviewed for freshman co-ordinator sign up at GM information desk; interviews will be held Tues.-Thurs. from 3-5 p.m.

MOVIES

Carolina—The Prize

Varsity — America, America

Free Flick—Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse

SATURDAY

Public Health Seminar—10 a.m., 228 School of Public Health, James C. Lamb III, "Solid Waste Handling and Environmental Planning."

Free Flick—Lover Come Back

SUNDAY

Free Flick—A Summer to Remember

SPU — 12:30 p.m., Lenoir, Dr. Mann, "Reflections of an Expacifist."

Order of the Old Beanbirds—3 p.m., SAE House.

Hillel College Bowl Interfraternity Competition — 3 p.m., Hillel House.

Westminster Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., worship; 6 p.m., supper; 6:45 p.m., program "Sex in Context," Presbyterian Student Center.

Graduate Newman Club — 8:30 p.m., Catholic Student Center.

Newman Club — 6 p.m., St. Thomas More Hall, supper and discussion.

CPU — 7:30 p.m., Grail Room, membership interviews, address by Daniel H. Pollitt on the Civil Rights Bill.

Canterbury — 6 p.m., supper, flick — "Picnic."

Spiritus
Religious
Arts
BIG CLEARANCE SALE
11-4:30 Daily
(Over Sutton's Drug Store)

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES

Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES

- New Moon
- Ritz-Craft
- Palace

5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East

See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD

DURHAM

Phone 596-8302

'America, America'; A Beautiful Film . . . But

By RON SPAINHOUR

Elia Kazan's "America, America" is a beautiful film of superb technical quality. It is the best photographed picture of the year, but it is also a disappointing film.

"America, America" is the story of a young Greek boy, Stavros Topousoglou, whose burning passion to get to America leads him from Turkey to New York. In his fight to get to America, Stavros is robbed of his family's life savings by a Turkish swindler who tells him, "You don't drink. You don't fight. You've no use for women. What kind of a man are you?"

The boy learns to kill. He is going to America—"no matter how, no matter, no matter, no matter how!" He is robbed once more by a prostitute, fights the dogs in the streets for food, plans to marry a rich Greek girl for her dowry and finally becomes a gigolo. He vows to keep his honor inside of himself and says: "I believe . . . that in America . . . I believe I will be washed clean."

The film, nominated for four academy awards, has many virtues. Its brilliant photography captures the landscapes of Turkey and Greece, painting a wonderful picture of the beauty and brutality of life as Stavros meets it. Kazan relies little on dialogue but instead allows actions and objects to act for him. But the film suffers from one major flaw—it is too long and says too little.

Kazan seems to have been unable to condense his scenes and to keep a steady, moving pace. He throws us into scene after scene, lingers there until he bores us, and then moves to the next scene. Most of the episodes in the film could have been cut greatly — especially those with the Turkish swindler, the rich Greek family and the American woman who finally gives Stavros money for a boat ticket.

One sequence involving Stavros with an anarchist movement is not necessary and does not fit into the picture. Stavros is concerned with getting to America, not with fighting the Turks.

Stathis Giallelis, a young Greek who actually fought to get to this country, to learn English, and to get the part of Stavros, is excellent in the leading role. The acting of minor characters is uneven. Linda Marsh, as the girl Stavros almost marries, and Paul Mann, as her father, add color and warmth to the film. Lou Antonio gives a terribly artificial performance as the Turkish swindler.

Kazan has given us such film greats as "On the Waterfront," the haunting film version of Tennessee Williams' "Streetcar Named Desire," and William Inge's "Splendor in the Grass." "America, America," the first of a trilogy on immigration is a disappointing but noble failure.

"America, America" could have been the best American picture of the year. Its photography is of special merit, but it suffers heavily from uneven acting and Kazan's inability to condense his scenes.

–Morehead–

(Continued from Page 1)

Propst Miller of Concord, Concord High; William Morris Mitchell Jr. of Greensboro, Grimsley High; John Burden Noland of Baton Rouge, La., Christ School, Arden.

Also, Francis Marion Parker Jr. of Asheville, Lee H. Edwards High; Victor Scott Peterson of Bryson City, Swain County High; William Richard Purdy of Burlington, W. M. Williams High; Petrie Morrison Rainey of Chattanooga, Tenn., Baylor School for Boys, Chattanooga; Haywood Forney Rankin of Mount Holly, Mount Holly High; William Edward Riggan Jr. of Raliegh, W. G. Enloe High.

Also, George Walter Saenger of Asheville, Lee H. Edwards High; Logan Everett Sawyer Jr. of Elizabeth City, Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.; Ernest Jordan Simmons of Roseboro, Roseboro - Salem High; James Moore Tatum Jr. of Chapel Hill, Woodberry Forest School, Woodberry Forest, Va.; George Major Teague of Morganton, Virginia Episcopal School, Lynchburg, Va.

Also, Robert Creighton Toomey of Greenville, S. C., Christ School, Arden, N. C.; William MacNider Trott of Raleigh, N. B. Broughton High; John Robbins Webster of Rockingham, Rockingham High; Benjamin Taylor White of Atlanta, Ga., The Taft School, Watertown, Conn.; George Bell Wiley of Atlanta, Ga., The Westminster Schools, Atlanta, Ga.; Leon Festus Woodruff Jr. of Selma, Selma High; John William Yates II of Asheboro, Woodberry Forest School, Woodberry Forest, Va.; James Richard Young of Raleigh, N. B. Broughton High.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
A BOLD NEW LOOK IN SUSPENSE!
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER presents
PAUL NEWMAN

THE PRIZE
Co-starring
ELKE SOMMER (Glamorous New Star Discovery!)
EDWARD G. ROBINSON
as Dr. Stratmann
PANAVISION™ and METROCOLOR

Lively Days in The Intimate
In the Old Book Corner
Military and Naval History
An interesting clump, over our heads, but if you're interested in great battles on land and sea, there may be treasure for you here.
—●—
On the Feature Table
Garden Books
Time for planning those great changes in your garden is getting short. Pick one of these books, oil up the old rocking chair, and before you know it, dogwoods will be barking in your garden.
—●—
On the Bargain Counter
Gateways and Doorways of Charleston
Another in the series of handsome books of photographs of old houses, and it's a beauty!
NOW ONLY $2.98
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

CLASSIFIED ADS

For Sale

AUCTION SALE SATURDAY, March 7—10:30 a.m. Living, bed and kitchen furniture, also antiques. Tapp's Gulf Station on New 86.

FOR SALE: 1964 HONDA Motorcycle (50 cc), excellent condition, gives 200 MPG, top speed of 55 MPH, less than 500 miles on it. Must sell quickly. Call 942-2282.

IF you're getting tired of noisy combo parties and would like to relax in the pleasant, sophisticated atmosphere of the
CAROLINA INN BALLROOM
while you dance to the romantic music of the nationally-known fourteen piece orchestra
THE DUKE AMBASSADORS and eat and drink your fill of
FREE REFRESHMENTS
You can have all this and whatever other benefits you can personally arrange all for a dollar a couple.
OPEN TO ALL
THIS SATURDAY NIGHT 8-12:30 P.M.
Sponsored by the M.R.C. Social Committee

POGO

Terps Host To ACC Rassle Tournament

By PETE GAMMONS

This afternoon the Tar Heel Wrestlers will be squared off against the other seven ACC schools in the annual ACC Tournament at College Park, Md. Carolina, 6-6 during the regular season, is seeded second behind defending champion Maryland.

Maryland, who has never lost the tourney, shouldn't have too much of a problem with anyone except the Heels, and they drubbed them 22-6 February 22 at College Park. Last year the Terps grabbed off nine of the ten individual trophies, and copped the team prize with an astounding 103 points. Returning to defend their individual crowns are Dave Ott (137), Bob Kopinsky (157), Amando Soto (167), Marshall Dauberman (177), Tim Geiger (191), and Gary Wilkander (hw). Kopninsky was voted the outstanding wrestler of last year's tourney. Other lettermen entries are Nelson Aurond (123) and Capt. Fred Sentner (147).

State, who defeated Carolina in a four-way mach at Blacksburg, Va., January 11, and was tripped here last Friday 16-15, is the main roadblock in UNC's runner-up finish. They are led by three well renowned stars, all of whom placed last year. Pete Fountain (191), who beat Jerry Cabe Friday after being clobbered by him earlier this year, is seeded second behind Geiger. Pete Sawhill (177) also is seeded second, since he only lost at Maryland. The other State star is Steve Barnes (137).

To match three State veterans Sam Barnes puts up Cabe, Steve Lister, and Russ Simmons, Barnes feels all three can get second. Cabe was only defeated by one point by Fountain, and was considered to have a bad night. Lister, whose weight was up due to football, was forced to forfeit. Simmons, who has come on very strong lately, easily pinned Barnes. Despite his speed he has an excellent chance of winning, for he also defeated Maryland's Ott at College Park. He has been erratic throughout the season, but certainly has the capabilities to go all the way. Paul Wellstone (123) is seeded first and is a heavy favorite to win his class. Kenny Furr (130), also a winner at Maryland, has an excellent chance in his class, mainly ly on the basis of his remarkable progress during the season. Dick Blackman (147) will be closing out his career, and joins other Carolina starters Jack Saunders (115), Elliott Dworin (157), Bill Cook (167), and Bill Warren(hw).

The opening round and semi-finals will be played today, the first round at 2 and the semis at 8. Tomorrow afternoon the consolation and that night the finals will round out the tourney.

ATO Cops Blue Intramural Championship Easily, 36-22

By PETE GAMMONS

ATO broke into a hot streak early in the second half and went on to defeat Phi Kap Sig 36-22 in the Fraternity Blue Finals. Leading 18-10 at the half, the ATO's outscored the Phi Kaps 11-2 to break the game wide open and coast to the championship. They were aided greatly by both the frequency of fouls and the horrendous shooting of the Phi Kaps. Sammy Simpson, as usual, was top scorer with 15, followed by Jim Corbett of ATO and Gordon Wood of Phi Kappa Sig with 9.

In the Dormitory White Championship, it was a similar second half burst that enabled the Ehringhaus B Kings to run away from the Winston Skirtchasers 46-31. Leading only 18-16 at the half, the Kings scored ten straight points to coast to the title. George Boutselis (16) and Sandy Kinney (9) led the victors, while the losers were paced by Glenn Cuthrell with 11. The Ehringhaus B Blue team, also comprised mainly of football players, won the Blue Division earlier this week.

Soccer results have started to trickle in, and already some teams are looking like the ones to beat. Aycock slaughtered Pi Kappa Phi 6-0, highlighted by Sam Hunt's three goals. Chi Psi defeated Avery, 4-1, led by varsity star Marty Krumming's two goals. Sandy Loudon scored late in the fourth quarter to give the Air Force a 1-0 win over Craige B. Other games saw SAE win over Chi Phi 2-1, and DU top Beta 3-1. St. Anthony Hall, Aycock, the Peacocks, the Town Boarders, and Chi Psi appear to be the favorites as of right now.

Pick, Career Cut Classes

"Careers for Carolina," a program designed to acquaint students with careers in public service will be presented here March 6.

The program is sponsored by Student Government and the Institute of Government.

A two hour luncheon at the Carolina Inn is part of the all-day program scheduled from 9 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

All students who attend the program will be excused from classes for the day.

Persons interested in attending the program may sign up at the Information Desk at Graham Memorial. There will be a $2.15 charge for those attending the luncheon.

Since space is alloted for only 100 persons, those interested are urged to sign up early.

Among the speakers scheduled to appear are Joel Fleishman, legal assistant to the Governor; Chancellor William Aycock; and William Veeder, Charlotte city manager.

German Lefty Battles Terrell Tonight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tall southpaw Gerhard Zech, heavyweight champion of Germany, launches his American campaign for a shot at the world crown Friday night in a fight with third-ranking contender Ernie Terrell, of Chicago.

Their scheduled 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden brings together the two tallest boxers ever to meet in a nationally televised fight.

Terrell, seeking his ninth straight victory, stretches up six-feet-six but is streamlined at about 205 pounds. Blond Zech appears an inch shorter when he and Terrell stand back-to-back, but weighs 212.

Twenty-five-year-old Gerhard, who has the reputation of an aggressive slugger, seeks his seventh straight knockout. He also hopes to stretch his unbeaten string to 13 bouts, including one draw. His 26 fights show but one defeat. He scored 17 knockouts.

Enjoy the Finest Seafood
TIP TOP FISH HOUSE
Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West
Durham Tel. 286-4494

ELIA KAZAN'S "AMERICA AMERICA" is the "best American film of the year!" NEWSWEEK HOLLIS ALPERT, SATURDAY REVIEW JUDITH CRIST, HERALD TRIBUNE

Nominated for 7 GOLDEN GLOBE AWARDS including BEST DRAMA, BEST ACTOR–Stathis Giallelis, BEST DIRECTOR–Elia Kazan.
"PICTURE OF THE MONTH!"–Seventeen Magazine
"A GLOWING ACHIEVEMENT!"–Good Housekeeping

Starring STATHIS GIALLELIS - Written, Produced and Directed by ELIA KAZAN
Warner Bros. magnificent soundtrack album now available! Presented by WARNER BROS.

Shows at 12:30 - 3:30 - 6:30 - 9:30

Varsity NOW PLAYING

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. A popular sport
5. Urges on
9. Protective covering
10. Assumed name
12. Pert. to laymen
13. Country house
14. Unmarried woman
15. Gained, as clear profit
16. City trains
17. Gone by
18. Likeness
20. Girl's name
24. Piece of turf: golf
26. Any araceous plant
27. On the ocean
28. Too
29. Supporting bar
31. Biblical land
34. Expunged
37. Receptacle for dishes
38. Steam pipe
39. Woody fragment from flax
40. Drupelets
41. Fertile spots in deserts
42. Comfort
43. Perishes

DOWN
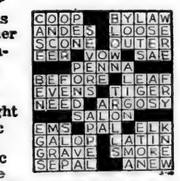
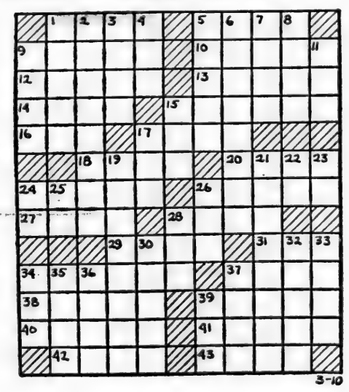
1. The "Holy ——," Galahad's quest
2. Omitting
3. Plots
4. To cook, as in fat
5. Projecting edges of roof
6. Shines
7. Female hog
8. Transaction
9. Egyptian dancing girl
11. Mournful
15. Girl's name
17. Kettle
19. Makes harsher
21. Beginning of light at night
22. Music note
23. Public notice
24. District Attorney: abbr.
25. Part of "to be"
26. Entire
28. Succor
30. Eagle's nest
32. Simpletons
33. Colors, as cloth
34. Epoch
35. "Dream Girl" playwright
36. East
37. Siamese
39. Turf



Yesterday's Answer



3-10

Pete Needs Your Help!

Please come by and pick up your winter clothes. Spring is approaching fast. I need to move out all winter clothes in order to make room for new spring alterations.

PETE THE TAILOR
133½ E. Franklin St.

HOOTENANNY
This Saterday Night
(Tempo Style)

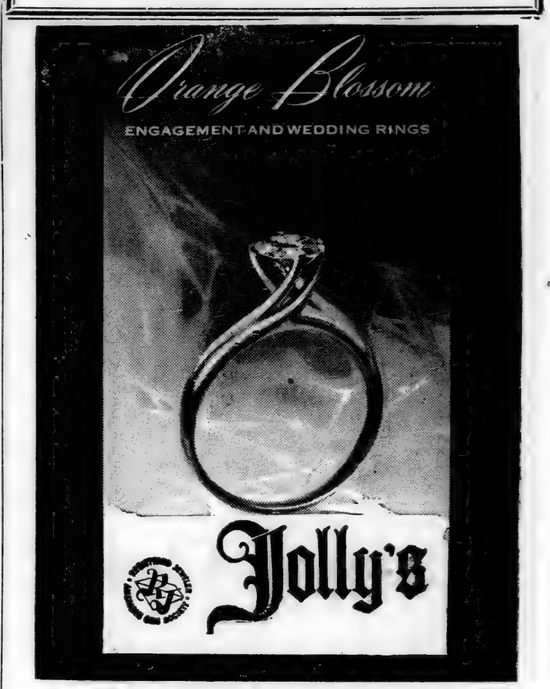
In line with our "Beer brings out the Best in You" Campaign, we are having a Hootenanny Saturday night to "bring out what's left. For the first time in Chapel Hill, The Neo Tempo under Neo-Management presents a real live Hootenanny with two real live young ladies singing to their own accompaniment.

TEMPO TEMPO

Saterday Night
In the
Neo-ly Decorated Tempo
(Bring a Date—and Imbibe Together)

PEANUTS

ONE DOZEN
SHIRTS . . . $25.00
CAMPUS STYLE
W. Franklin St. Phone 929-1558



FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
128 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

clear sailing . . .

Looking its newest in genuine bleeding India madras, the shift you'll shift to this spring is Old Salem's® middy-shift . . . that covers the campus, puts in eight hours at the office and solves the what-to-wear problem in a fingersnap! Big, bold sailor collar, detachable bow and self belt with leather tabs. Sizes 8-14.

J. B. Robbins

The Glen Lennox Pharmacy

announces that we now have a new Delivery Service–with our own driver and our own car . . . We can give the same quick, expert service on deliveries that we give in the store.

Give us a call – Notice how fast we answer the phone.

The Glen Lennox Shopping Center
GLEN LENNOX Pharmacy
PHONE 967-7014

Ladybug

Wait till you see the hurray-hurray-Spring-is-here look of our LADYBUGS® Wait till you try one on. Because a LADYBUG® has to be worn to be appreciated. They adapt themselves subtly to the Person Inside. They extract the fullest essence of You. And, along with it, the fullest essence of Spring. Come and try. We have them all.

Town & Campus

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Early Edition

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
Good For Kite Flying

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, MARCH 7, 1964 | United Press International Service

Duke Could Not Be Beaten—See Pg. 4

UNC's Leading Scorer Dribbles Around Duke's Buckley And Tison

—Photo by Jim Wallace and DTH Mobile Photo Lab

Cites Facts

'No Discrimination In Hiring' — Aycock

Citing facts and figures, Chancellor William B. Aycock yesterday rebutted charges of racial discrimination in University employment practices.

In a message to the Faculty Council, elected representative body of the faculty, Aycock said "discrimination in employment is contrary to University policy . . . no job classification is reserved for any race. All jobs are open to all races."

He promised: "If there is evidence of a violation, corrective action will be taken."

Aycock's statement follows:

From time to time I have made reports to the Faculty Council on matters of interest to all of us. Of late a few members of the faculty have expressed concern with the possibility that the employment practices of the University discriminate against members of the Negro race. In most matters it would suffice to respond with assurances that the University is measuring up to its responsibilities but I gather to do so in this situation is not sufficient. This is related to the fact that there appears to be a wide variety of views on what constitutes discrimination. Consequently, I shall state the policies and provide facts on employment practices and leave conclusions to you.

The employment policy of the University at Chapel Hill is to hire persons on the basis of their qualification. Race is not a qualifying or disqualifying consideration. In respect to "Classified Personnel" the Personnel Office is a service agency to all schools and departments. It determines the qualifications of all applicants and provides this information to the prospective supervisor of an applicant or applicants. The final selection of any candidate for a position is the responsibility of the supervisor concerned, subject to applicable state personnel regulations and procedures. In short, hiring is decentralized and not centralized. On the other hand, standards for employment are determined by central authority. Race, however, is not a part of these standards.

Currently the University employs 2545 persons who are "classified under the state system. Of these 2545 employees, 961 or more than 40% are Negroes. Obviously, the University does not have a quota for the Negro race. Those persons who are suspicious about employment practices of the University apparently have no quarrel with the number of Negros who are currently on the pay roll.

Presumably, therefore, the concern is with the kind of jobs they hold. No job classification is reserved for any race. All jobs are open to all races. The present distribution of jobs by category is as follows:

—In technical jobs, including nurses, laboratory technicians and the like, there are 538 jobs, and 132 are held by Negroes.

—In office and clerical jobs there are 869 employees and 17 are Negroes.

—There are 140 skilled workers on the campus, 25 of them are Negroes.

—Twenty-eight of the 92 semi-skilled workers are Negroes.

—Fifty-five of the 72 unskilled workers are Negroes.

—Of the 829 service workers, 649 are Negroes.

There presently are 82 Practical Nurses, 11 General Duty Nurses and 16 Medical Laboratory workers, including 1 Medical Laboratory Supervisor, who are of the Negro race. In this area we have job opportunities and many qualified Negroes apply. Consequently, the employment rate for Negroes is high.

The situation with regard to typist, stenographic, clerical and administrative service positions is quite different. Graduation from high school is required for the beginning levels of these positions, and related

(Continued on Page 3)

150 Faculty Agree To Respect Boycott

Some 150 faculty members have signed a petition vowing not to patronize segregated establishments in Chapel Hill.

The faculty petition listed 22 businesses as being segregated. The list was the same as that issued by the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee except that it excluded local gas stations.

As faculty members at the University of North Carolina, we commend the president of the student body and the Student Legislature for their recent resolution urging all merchants of Chapel Hill to desegregate and calling for a boycott of segregated establishments.

Those signing the list included: Oscar K. Rice, R. C. Jarnagin, William Hatfield, John A Parker, F. S. Chapin Jr., Lawrence D. Mann, Ralph A. Gakenheimer, S. F. Weiss, Miriam Epps, George J. Pillorge, Albert Suskin, Kenneth J. Reckford, Hubert M. Martin Jr., R. Ross Holloway, John E. Ziolkowski, Philop A. Stadter, Edwin L. Brown, Charles Henderson Jr., William H. Willis, Berthe M. Marti, Russell Graves, James H. Blackman, J. M. Flora, John Knowles, Robert Fitzgerald, R. H. Schramm, Charles D. Wright, David J. Hughes, H. R. Russell, Richard C. Lyon, Ernest W. Talbert, Siegfried Wenzel, Herbert W. Reichert, Walter W. Arndt, Vasa D. Mihailovich, Frenk W. Ryan, Joel R. Williams, John K. Nelson, Henry Boren, Herbert L. Bodman Jr., Ralph L. Woodward, C. M. Foust, W. R. Fallaw Jr., William M. Geer, Peter F. Walker, Daniel H. Pollitt, R. E. Day, Dan B. Dobbs, K. L. Puegar, Alfred Brauer, J. D. Buckholtz, Wilton Mason, Richard A. Smyth, A. D. Falk, Robert M. Sitton, Daniel A. Okun, James C. Brown, James C. Lamb, Lyman A. Ripperton, Fritz Sulzer, Lloyd W. Regier, J. K. Sherwani, Emil T. Chanlett, Charles M. Weiss, Sidney S. Chipman, Barbara Hocking, Dorothy J. Kiester, E. C. Smart, Robert L. Hilliard, Eric Salmon, Donald Upsham, Earl Wynn, William M. Hardy, John Dixon, Bernard Boyd, Sam Hill, Arnold S. Nash, Gino Rizzo, William McCrary, R. L. Frautschi, Barbara Cleaveland, Isabelle K. Carter, Jim Morrissey, Beverly Heitman, Albert W. King, Arthur E. Fink, F. J. Peirce, Hallowell Pope, M. Richard Cramer, Harry J. Crockett Jr., Richard W. Fieban, Jean H. Thrasher, Gerald Bell, Richard L. Simpson, John Honigmenn, John Gulick, Hurbert M. Blalock Jr., John P. Reed, H. D. Sessoms, G. B. B. Hnnter, Maurice Natansan, Isabelle K. Carter, Marvin Silver, Donald B. Thomas, Joseph Straley, Mrs. Raymond J. Green, James W. Prothro, Andrew M. Scott, Donald R. Matthews, Robert Boynton, R. A. Rupen, John D. Martz, F. G. Gil, George Yu, Robert Daland, Frederic N. Cleaveland, A. von Lazar, Harry S. Upshaw, Samuel Fillenbaum, Halbert B. Robinson, E. R. Long, Albert Arnon, John Schopler, Frederic O. Weinfeld, Tom Donnelly, Lise Wallach, William Wynn, George Baroff, Owen McConnell, Kurt Schlesinger, Harriet Rheingold, E. E. Baughman, Ralph C. Patrick, John Cassel, Cecil Slome, H. A. Tyroler, Robert N. Wilson, John R. McDonough, M.D., John T. Fulton, Ira Laster Jr., Lucy S. Morgan, Eunice N. Tyler, Hiawatha B. Walker, Elizabeth L. McMahan, Ralph H. Boatman, Geraldine Gourley, Ann C. Hansen, Margaret B. Dolan, Margaret Shetland, Beatrice Mongeau, Berton H. Kaplan, John P. Filley, Frances S. McConnell.

King Paul Dies At 62

ATHENS (UPI) — King Paul, a hero of Greece's civil war against communism in the days that followed World War II, died Friday in Tatoi palace at the age of 62.

Paul's son, Prince Constantine, was sworn in three hours later at 7:15 p.m. 12:15 p.m. EST as King Constantine II of the Hellenes. At 23 he became Europe's youngest chief of state.

Paul underwent an operation for stomach ulcer Feb. 21. He had appeared to be recovering but developed blood clots in his lung and leg and uremic poisoning.

He had been in a deep coma but roused this morning and told his barber, "I think I feel better." He died soon afterwards at 4:12 p.m. (9:12 a.m., EST).

A FACE IN THE CROWD—Among some 12,000 plus fans at Thursday night's quarter-finals of the ACC Basketball Tournament was popular folksinger Burl Ives, shown here at halftime as he signed autographs and chatted with other spectators.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

ITEMS

Dental Conference To Feature Pig

A UNC sophomore dental student and a pregnant guinea pig will enter the scientific limelight in October at the national meeting of the American Dental Association at San Francisco.

David M. Simpson of Winston-Salem has been selected to report on a research project dealing with the transfer of calcium to unborn quinea offspring.

Simpson and two other students developed a surgical technique which makes it possible to accurately measure blood calcium levels in pregnant guinea pigs and their unborn babies.

NYC Museum Wants Student Members

The Museum of Modern Art in New York City is sponsoring a drive to obtain new student members.

Students who join the Student Group Membership Plan for an annual fee of $10 will receive four free publications and a discount of 50 per cent on a selected number of the museum's publications and reproductions.

Additional advantages of membership are reduced subscription rates to some art magazines, use of museum library, free admission to film showings and use of the members' penthouse.

Peace Corps Vet Speaks To Wesley

James Homes, a UNC graudate and a veteran of two years with the Peace Corps in South America, will be the featured speaker at the Wesley Foundation lecture Sunday at 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

Homes will attempt to describe life in Colombia, including the political and economic currents in Latin America and the possibilities in our future relationships with Latin Americans.

Coffee will be served in Wesley House following the discussion. The public is invited to attend.

Deadline Is Soon For Dorm Sign-Up

Women students of the University requiring dormitory space for a summer term or for the fall semester are asked to sign up in their dormitories before March 8.

In the event that women students who have been living in town wish to move into a dormitory for the fall or summer, they should sign up in the Dean of Women's Office, 202 South Building.

At the time a student makes application for a room she pays a $25 deposit for a fall reservation and/or room rent of $35 (for a double room) or $55 (for a single room for a summer reservation.

Discussion On Life Insurance Is Set

The Current Affairs Committee of GMAB will present a program on life insurance at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Larry Crawford, superintendent of agencies of the Jefferson Standard Life Co. of Greensboro, will speak.

The program will consist of a discussion of the provisions of life insurance policies and will attempt to answer the common questions of college students considering purchasing life policies.

Legislature Hears CR Presentation

By JOHN GREENBACKER

Student Legislature received a comprehensive report on civil rights in Chapel Hill from six local citizens Thursday night.

The series of 10 minute speeches, sponsored by Student Body President Mike Lawler, attempted to cover all aspects of community life.

The first speaker, Mrs. Charlotte Adams, told of efforts by local Negro parents to set up a study hall for Negro children who were about to enter integrated schools.

The study hall was originally located in St. Paul's Church, but overcrowding forced teachers to move it to the senior high school.

The program was so successful that it was extended to all grades, though originally intended for the junior high school level.

Mrs. Virginia Tolliver told the body how the Chapel Hill Cooperative Free School was established. Supported by volunteer teachers, the nursery school offers its services to children of all races and backgrounds and charges parents according to their means.

Mrs. J. C. Herrin described the local school board's actions in circumventing school integration since it was achieved three years ago.

According to Mrs. Herrin, the board used various means to keep Negroes out of predominately white schools, including "Gerrymandering."

Mrs. Herrin warned that the new housing redevelopment program would halt decentralization of the Negro community into other residential areas by relocating families near the old community. This, she claimed, would prolong school segregation.

The Chapel Hill recreation programs were discussed by Mr. Hilliard Caldwell. The Chapel Hill Recreation Department presently operates two segregated centers, one for Negroes and one for whites. The white center has never had a permanent location, and the Negro center is understaffed and delapidated. Caldwell said approximately 800 Negro children use their center.

The State Government has planned to enact a tax bill which would give $50,000 for the construction of a new center.

UNC student Tony Mason told the body an improvement of 15 per cent in this year's voter registration drive among Negroes had been reported.

Dr. Frank Williams, a member of the Mayor's Human Relations committee, has investigated employment practices in the Chapel Hill area and charges discriminatory hiring.

Williams said the employment problem has been improved by the initiation of vocational training, clerical studies programs and a high school degree program.

(Continued from Page 3)

New Committee To Make Study

A committee of the State Legislative Council has been appointed to make a study of programming on WUNC-TV, the state-owned educational television station.

State Rep. Hugh Johnson Jr., head of the newly-created State Legislative Council, appointed the committee Monday.

John Young, director of television at WUNC-TV, said yesterday the committee is making the study at the request of the 1963 Legislature.

The committee is expected to probe the possibility of expanding educational TV in North Carolina. "The immediate problem of educational TV is to get additional transmitting facilities in other locations throughout the state.

(Continued on Page 3)

New Dormitory Policy Brings Lots Of Gripes

By DAVID NORDAN

A major change in dorm housing policy for next year is already bringing howls of discontent from UNC male students.

This move, initiated by Dean William G. Long, will require freshmen to live on campus and will involve a major shakeup in the entire residence system.

In order to make room for the influx of freshmen, those vacancies left by this year's graduates in many dorms will have to be filled by freshmen, thus reducing the hopes of many who had hoped to move out of a three-man room.

Rooms for male graduate students have been restricted to Connor, Carr and fifth and sixth floors Craige. Any undergraduate living in these spaces must move, and any graduate male living elsewhere on campus will have to move into these spaces.

Complaints have come from those who had hoped to move out of a triple room into Avery, Teague or Parker. Last year freshmen were not allowed to move into these dorms, but this year the majority of residents will be freshmen.

The quota for freshmen is as follows: Avery 47 per cent, Parker 42 per cent and Teague 46 per cent. Most other dorms will have similar distributions. A few dorms will have no freshmen.

Director of Housing James Wadsworth said the increase of freshmen men in the dorms will necessitate the addition of advisors. There will be one advisor on each floor next year.

There will be many freshmen rooming together, but also many upperclassmen and freshmen combinations, he said. The goal is to scatter freshmen around as much as possible.

Campus Chest Solicitation Is On Until Monday

Carolina men have only three more days to raise themselves from the depths of miserly disgrace.

Gerry Good, co-chairman of the Campus Chest Drive, announced that the drive which was scheduled to end Friday will be continued until Monday night due to the fact that UNC men have contributed only $900 as compared to over $1200 for the women students. But this, she said, is still a far cry from the original goal of $1.00 per student which would net about $8,000.

Good said that the women have approached this goal by about 90 per cent. The men have not done so well. She said the drive has been supported by about 50 per cent of the faculty, 90 per cent of the fraternities and 95 per cent of the sororities.

A booth will be directed in the Y-Court Saturday morning to accept contributions from these off-campus students who have not been reached by the drive. Dorm solicitors will be ready to accept last minute contributions until Monday night.

The drive hopes to reach its goal with an auction at Graham Memorial on the 17th and a carnival on March 20th and 21st.

MRC DANCE TONIGHT

Come to a real dance tonight.

Not the "Screaming 5" or the "Screaming 13," but the Duke Ambassadors, a 14-piece orchestra. You can actually dance to their music.

It's in the Carolina Inn Ballroom from 8 to 12 p.m. and admission is $1 per couple. Refreshments are free and it's sponsored by the Men's Residence Council. Men, wear coat and tie; women, wear party dress and heels.

DTH Kite Contest Set For Today

By WERT YUIOP

Up in the air, Jr. Birdmen!

If you have entered the Daily Tar Heel Kite Contest (or even if you haven't (remember—today's the day.

Fly-off time for the contest is 1:30 p.m. on the Intramural Field adjacent to Woollen Gym.

Fraternities, sororities, and other groups led a flurry of late entries yesterday, and competition for the numerous prizes promises to be stiff in every division.

Pi Kappa Phi and Delta Upsilon fraternities and Pi Beta Phi sorority logged entries, along with Manly Hall, the Di and Phi Societies, and Ehringhaus Hall.

Major Elliot Lane placed an entry for the NROTC, but the Air Force had not been heard from last night.

Those groups, along with a number of individual entrants, will compete for awards such as Beatle wigs and pizza dinners.

Billy Arthur's of Eastgate has donated the wigs, and La Pizza is giving away the dinners (with beer). Other prizes include UNC sweatshirts from The Hub; record albums from Kemp's; and all the banana splits you can eat at one sitting at the Dairy Bar.

Volume 72, Number 113 Saturday, March 7, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Let's Give To Help Those Who Hurt

Once a year a University-wide drive is held to get students and other members of the University community to donate money to the Campus Chest for support of five worthy charities.

That time is upon us. The drive began Monday and runs through next Monday. It's a one-shot affair and every penny helps.

The money goes to the Murdoch School at Butner, a residential treatment facility for children with severe emotional illnesses; the O'Berry Center in Goldsboro, a school and training center for retarded and mentally-ill children; the World Clothing Fund, only charitable organization providing free clothes to the county school children of 50 of the most distressed Southern mountain counties; the American Friends Service Committee, which among other things provides aid to the Cherokee Indians of North Carolina; and the World University Service, a world-wide mutual assistance program to needy students in 50 countries.

Rarely do you run into a group of charities so deserving of your help as these five.

Besides solicitations in campus living units, donations may be left in Y-Court.

Let's all give, at least a little.

When In Doubt, Turn Right

Most of us have a decided aversion to being regimented, and justly so. Regimentation almost always is involves some loss of one's individuality. But often without realizing it, most of us make regimentation necessary.

A good case in point is the way we go in and out of campus buildings, particularly when classes are changing and there are a lot of us hurrying to the next class.

Do most of us move in some sort of orderly manner, so that people going the other way can get where they're going too?

Nope.

Instead, most of us just kind of mosey along in no particular pattern.

But this is self-defeating. It slows us up as well as the people going the other way.

We suggest a traffic rule of sorts be unofficially adopted and followed by all of us. No matter which way you're moving, bear to the right.

This way there'll be a clean flow of people in and out of buildings, with a minimum of stumbling around.

Intelligent self-regulation is the best way to precent enforced regimentation.

Tip-Toeing On The Scales Of Justice

Raymond Mallard is not all cast-iron in a flowing black robe. He just seems that way when he is presiding in court.

Judge Mallard is on the bench now in Orange Superior Court in Hillsboro. He arrived on Monday morning, preceded by awesome tales of his courtroom discipline.

One advance report had it that the Judge had at one time fined himself $25 for being 10 minutes late to court. Several days before his Hillsboro appearance, he had fined a young man in Durham for contempt. The young man had laughed at the wrong time.

There were other stories: of a reporter who had been wandering around the courtroom being assigned to a straight-back chair for a couple of hours, of a woman being assigned to a jail cell for ignoring Judge Mallard's rules of decorum, and so on, and on.

In Hillsboro Monday morning, you would have thought the Courthouse was standing on crates of eggs. Sheriff's deputies soft-shoed around, wall-eyed and jumpy. Anyone standing in the corridor outside the courtroom was enough to throw the deputies into trauma. The judge required an unobstructed view.

A student sitting in the courtroom with an open book on his lap was hustled outside forthwith. The judge had ruled among other things that there would be no reading, talking or moving about in his courtroom. The student insisted he hadn't been reading. The deputy said he would have to face the Judge's wrath anyway.

The atmosphere became somewhat more relaxed when the jurors were being called. One prospective juror told the Judge his children had mumps and he expected to catch them in a day or so himself. The Judge wasn't impressed. "You're too old to catch mumps," he said with a trace of a smile. There was chuckling among the audience. The expectant mumps victim shuffled his feet. Nobody was found in contempt.

The relaxed atmosphere wasn't allowed to get out of hand, though. At one point, one of the defense attorneys forgot to stand when he said Yes Sir to the Judge. Judge Mallard reminded him pointedly to be on his feet when addressing the bench. The defense attorney didn't forget again.

There were long, seemingly purposeless pauses in the Mallard court on Monday, some of them lasting for minutes. At times you began to wonder if the wheels of justice had run off the axle and become lost in aimless wandering.

After several hours of this iron-hard courtroom discipline, you begin to get an idiotic urge to stand, stretch, yawn, and say to Judge Mallard something like, "Well, I've had enough of this nonsense. I'm going home."

Having seen that stern, forbidding gentleman in action, you realize, of course, that only one thing could happen: North Carolina, if not most of the Eastern Seaboard, would break off from the Continent and slip gently beneath Bounding Main, with not even an oil slick to mark its passing. It isn't worth it.

MRC & Thee

The social life provided by the Men's Residence Council takes a definite turn for the better tonight.

At last, Social Chairman Gordon Appell has yielded to the call for an honest-to-God dance, the kind you can dance at.

The MRC is sponsoring a dress-up dance in the Carolina Inn Ballroom and has got the Duke Ambassadors to play for it. Students can put on nice clothes and dance for perhaps the first time since they came to college.

Now that students will actually be able to hear themselves think, they may find they'll have to talk to their dates, a novel but interesting task.

How intellectual can you get?

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists:
Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bob Holland

A Review

'No Night For Apple Pie . . .'

By HENRY McINNIS

The pied pipers of folksmanship invaded campus Wednesday night, bringing a torrent of cultural criticism and slashing social satire.

No, it wasn't a good night for Mother, apple pie or the flag, but Carolina lads and lassies were titillated by the rousing and triumphant three musketeers of folk music . . . the Chad Mitchell Trio.

Memorial Hall rocked and quivered with each song as well it should have, for the slick sounds that wafted through the air were thoroughly fresh, vivid and professional.

The house was crammed like a can of sardines, indicating once again the desperate need of UNC for a larger auditorium. Too many superb concerts are denied students and the problem is getting more vexing with every campus attraction.

The trio consists of four men, yes, four, in their early twenties: Joe Frazier, Chad Mitchell, Mike Kobluk and their guitarist Jim McGuinn.

Their first piece, "A Mighty Day," promised a mighty night for the audience and the goods were delivered as pledged. "The Unfortunate Man" was a cliff-hanging bit of fluff one could legitimately term a horror tune, about a poor man whose honeymoon is spiked at the root by a bride who isn't quite all there.

Cooing and billing the soothing ditty, "Four Strong Winds," a plaintive but passionate note was struck. Next came a "tribute" to the University of Mississippi. "We Sing To Thee Ole Miss." The Singers spoofed the barricades, the National Guard, the hand grenades, the effigies and the riot queen with relish and good humor.

The group can hardly avoid comparison with the Kingston Trio either in their material or their tone quality.

Even though the woods are full of folk singers these days, the Chad Mitchell Trio can light the kindling quicker and hotter than most comparative commercialized groups.

"What Did You Learn In School Today" was a satirical little tune with lessons that had the bite of sarcasm such as, "I learned Our Government Must Be Strong and that they are never wrong." This musical poking at the piety and platitudes of our American heritage is a wonderful, healthy way for a free people to get outside of themselves and examine attitudes and traditions. Thus, we all profit and enjoy ourselves at no one's expense but our own.

"The Hip Song" was not sung but spoken, more or less by Chad Mitchell, the blond. It was rather cute the way that he caressed the lyrics with a suave urbanity.

The piece that did the most to justify audience appreciation for the trio's pre-occupation with social protest was "Blowing in the Wind." The words that hit hardest asked . . . "How many times can a people exist before they can be free, and how many deaths will it take before people will know how many have died?" (The answer is written on the wind.)

Although the singers began their association at Gonzaga University and were encouraged to go professional by a campus priest, it is fortunate to note the apparent sincerity with which they sang their freedom songs. Certain people will regard the Chad Mitchell Trio as socialists, radicals or leftists, and compare them with Joan Baez, but the right and duty to criticize one's society is the cornerstone of freedom and democracy, so sing on men, sing on!

"Moscow Nights" was sung in Russian with great warmth and beauty, making it the most lovely selection of the evening. "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again" combined the Irish version of the lamenting wife whose warbound husband will not return with the American version. The trio's shouting of "hurrah, hurrah" was effervescent and extremely exciting. The sad lyrics told a tragic tale . . . "your dancing days are over. Oh Johnny I hardly knew ya."

Other songs that were memorable and well done satirized Billy Sol Estes and the John Birch Society. However, a few lyrical observations fell flat such as: "They have a lot of ammonia up there. That's why they call it the White House; next to you Bobby Baker is a Little Lord Fauntelroy."

Letters To The Editors

Akers And The Quarterly

Quarterly

Editors, The Tar Heel:

If Clemenceau was right about war being too important to leave to the generals, Dick Akers has recently proved that literature is too important to leave to petty bureaucrats. According to the Feburary 26 DTH, he is considering ending the SG subsidy to the CAROLINA QUARTERLY, and therefore the QUARTERLY itself, next year. He said in justification of this step that the magazine is "behind schedule in publication and down in its number of advertisements" due to a lack of interest on campus and among the staff. If this is true, threatening to kill the QUARTERLY will hardly change it.

And even when Mr. Akers' threat fails to produce a magazine published on schedule and crammed with advertisements, there will still be no excuse for his carrying it out. Futhermore, provoking "interest on campus" is not one of the QUARTERLY'S concerns. Its sole responsibility is to provide writers a place to publish and readers a chance to see the best writing currently available. I won't try to convince Mr. Akers of this, but I would like to remind the student body that this is the only standard on which to judge the QUARTERLY and by it, under the editorship of Louis Bourne at least, the magazine has been excellent. In the year I have been gone from Chapel Hill, I have met such diverse people as Paul Goodman, David Manning White, and Arais Nin who thought of UNC as "the place that puts out the CAROLINA QUARTERLY." As treasurer of the student government, Mr. Akers is a bureaucrat, a completely honorable and harmless function. But bureaucrats must not be allowed to interfere with those whose function is promoting and dispensing literature.

A more constructive mind than Mr. Akers', however, would have concocted any number of schemes to solve the problems he cited. A Student Government sufficiently interested in literature to bring in a writer-in-residence could surely be persuaded to commission, through the QUARTERLY, a poem, short-story, or play from some established figure in American letters every year. Perhaps one of the superb young poets who have appeared in the magazine could be brought to UNC for a week of seminars, lectures, and parties to meet and talk with students. Teachers of creative writing might agree to ease the editorial burden by assigning some of the work to their students. This would be valuable exercise for the students and speed up publication of the QUARTERLY. Maybe the DTH advertising manager could help with advertising. These are only a few of the ideas which can be explored. Why they did not occur to Mr. Akers will be obvious to those who have had my ill fortune of encountering other of his opinions.

Norwood Pratt
New York

Rendleman

Editors, The Tar Heel:

The fact that Dave Rendleman, sophomore president of Ehringhaus has brought his dorm into a third place rating among all men's dorms is surely proof enough of his capabilities and accomplishments. Ehringhaus is almost all freshman, and until this year very little was heard from it. Because there are 750 residents in Ehringhaus, Dave has two, three, or even four times as many headaches as any other dorm president. It is quite a job, and Dave has handled it well.

Mr. Good claimed at the MRC meeting that Dave should be impeached for "malperformance of duties," yet he did not give a single example of this "malperformance." Surely an unsupported grievance can not even be considered for the seriousness of an impeachment trial. The Tar Heel item on Dave and Mr. Good that appeared in the Feb. 29 issue seems to indicate that the plaintiff has all but been laughed out of the case already.

Whenever Dave sees or hears of a violation of dorm rules, he doesn't hesitate to investigate. His honesty and dedication to perform the not-so-pleasant task of turning a man in for a violation was proved to me recently when he regretfully reported one of his best friends for a water fight. It is an exceptional man who would do this. But it is this very dedication that makes the residents of Ehringhaus respect him. As Dave has backed any man of Ehringhaus in the past, I am sure all will stand up for him in this case.

It shouldn't have come up, and with a one-man prosecution I feel sure it will soon "go down."

Harry Blair, Jr.
528 Ehringhaus

Fraternity

Editors, The Tar Heel:

To the ATO's, the Chi O's, and other kindred-in-spirit, I offer this bit of sage by E. B. White, the famous essayist:

"Clubs, fraternities, nations—these are the beloved barriers in the way of a workable world; these will have to surrender some of their rights and some of their ribs. A "fraternity" is the antithesis of fraternity. The first (that is, the order of organization) is predicated on the idea of exclusion; the second (that is, the abstract thing) is based on a feeling of total equality. Anyone who remembers back to his fraternity days at college recalls the enthusiasts in his group, the rabid members, both old and young, who were obsessed with the mystical charm of membership in their particular order. They were usually men who were incapable of genuine brotherhood or at least unaware of its basic implications. Fraternity begins when the exclusion formula is found to be distasteful. The effect of any organization of a social and brotherly nature is to strengthen rather than to diminish the lines which divide people into classes; the effect of states and nations is the same, and eventually these lines will have to be softened; these powers will have to be generalized. It is written on the wall that this is so. I'm not inventing it, I'm just copying it off the wall."

Perhaps Mr. White was referring to a wall of discrimination of the sort the ATO's and Chi O's are helping perpetuate.

Robert O'Steen
1609 Sedgefield, Durham

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

Hugh Stevens

'Spring? Yes, It's Here . . .'

It isn't springtime in Chapel Hill yet — not really. It only seems that way.

The little yellow flowers kneeling in front of the Episcopal Church still shiver early in the morning, and the calendar tells me that the Vernal Equinox is still two weeks away.

At the same time, though, there's a certain feeling in the air that can only mean one thing — if spring isn't really here with her cup overflowing, we've at least sipped her heady wine.

I've always thought that spring comes to Chapel Hill before all other towns in North Carolina. It doesn't, of course — the first robin probably showed up somewhere else at least a couple of days earlier. But spring is a unique sensation here and though nature has been more than generous in her timing, the phenomenon is partially manmade. For even when it isn't spring in Chapel Hill, you can't forget it.

The students and townspeople who have experienced spring here keep it alive in their hearts and minds all year long. It smoulders in their souls even through the most severe days of winter, ready to leap out and envelop the town at the appearance of the first defiant crocus.

It isn't a sudden thing — it buds, then swells, then bursts into full bloom with the radiance of the most brilliant poppy or the tenderness of a dogwood blossom.

It starts earlier and lingers longer than nature probably intended, preserved from languor by the gay spirits of college youth and protected from over-indulgence by the demands of college life.

It is a thing to savor, to hold, to remember. It nourishes the hearts and brains turned grey by winter, and injects a new vitality into all who are willing to reach out and clutch it. It is the time that comes to mind when you are far away and someone speaks the magic word "Carolina." It is a million impressions, a million soft voices, a million dreams.

There is no answer to the question, "What is spring like in Chapel Hill?" You can only look upon questioner with some pity because he hasn't experienced it for himself, and say that spring is many things:

Spring is the sound of small birds gossiping on my windowsill on a warm morning, or the trees bending beneath snowy blossoms.

Spring is the clink of a clean white golf ball rolling in on the eighth green at Finley, or the clang of new horseshoes against a shiny stake.

Spring is the pure whiteness of the Presbyterian Church spire thrusting itself into God's blue sky, or the green grass carpet in front of the Morehead Building, covered in dramatic silver by a billion dew drops.

Spring is the first pair of white pants, the first bright madras, or the girls sunbathing on the porch roof at Spencer.

Spring is a walk through the detached, mystic world of a darkened Arboretum, or the first top-down ride in a Christmas—present convertible.

Spring is white tennis balls against grey courts, or the roar of a crowd from Emerson Field.

Spring is trips — to Hogan's Lake, Myrtle Beach, New York—anywhere.

Spring is the snugness of a water ski on your winterized foot, or the tingling in your toes as the cool surf catches you after a chase across tan sand.

Spring is the ivy on Old East, the pale pink of a soft sunset, or the scent of young violets. Spring is having the sun beat you out of bed, eating supper while it's still daylight, or whistling despite yourself as you walk to class.

Spring is the lemon-yellow coat in a clothing store window, ice cream from the Circus Room before bedtime, or dancing in the cool darkness.

Spring is laughter, music, sentiment, emotion, happiness — love. But most of all, now and for all our lives, spring IS Chapel Hill.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites comments on current topics from its readers regardless of viewpoint. All letters to the editors should be typewritten, double-spaced and of reasonable length. All letters must be signed, with the address of the author. No letter considered libelous or in poor taste will be printed.

Letters To The Editors

Lawler

Editors, The Tar Heel:

The Letter of Laszlo Birinyi (Sat., Feb. 15) contains within it a seriously misleading statement. Aside from the fact and importance of whether or not we have Mr. Stubbs or Mike Lawler to thank for the Honor Council's decision charging demonstrators with campus violations, I am interested in clearing up the phrase ". . . Henry Lawler, decided to usurp Mr. Stubb's power and make the decision himself." Mike Lawler did not usurp the Attorney General's power. The Constitution of the Student Body clearly states, "The Attorney General of the Student Body shall assist and represent the President in the performance of his duties as the President shall direct." Notice the last pharse which gives the President unqualified power over the office of the Attorney General.

There have been in recent letters in reference to Lawler's "boycott" statement and the Student Legislature's consequent action, certain opinions that reflect the average American's misconception of political democracy. These letters raise certain moral and ethical questions. I am referring to the fact that some writers feel that Lawler, and in particular the Legislature, were ethically and politically wrong in their actions.

Despite the fact that I may or may not agree with the opinion expressed in those actions I heartily uphold the Legislature's and the President's right to commit them. I for one do not want a common denominator of the average man as my representative in government. When I voted I chose a man who not only seemed to have political sympathies in agreement with mine, but also for a man who possessed certain qualities, among them leadership and principles.

Contrary to popular opinion the President and the Legislature do not merely represent their constituency, they also represent that continuous and corporate body known as the Student Body. The difference between the two lies in the fact that the constituency exists only in the present, while the Student Body remains as an entity in itself which continues to live while individuals enter and leave it. It exists not only in the present, but in the past and the future also, and all these conditions must be considered in the government of a political body, for if we care not, as Walter Lippmann has said, "for posterity, why should posterity care for us and our contracts and committments"? Those we elect to office are in a position, either unattainable or undesired by the average student (or citizen), to take a broader view of issues and judge them in consideration of their long range and total effect.

"Our representatives' duty is to their office and not to the electorate, and the electorate's duty is to fill that office." (Lippmann) This conception of democracy is not unrepresentative, for the power to fill the office still remains in the hands of the student and in our case there is the added assurance of the referendum.

Despite Mr. Robinson's opinion (re: Tues., Feb. 18) I do not vote for men who would merely "reflect our thoughts," I voted for men with more character, ability, and conscience than that needed or desired of automatic "yes" men. I did not vote for a machine to record my desires or those of the majority but for thinking, judging, individuals. We do not, it is true, elect men to do our thinking for us. We elect them to two things: to represent us, and to an office with certain duties and responsibilities and that those duties may at times be at variance with the popular will is not only true, it is imperative in order for sound government to exist.

Might does not make right and neither does mass opinion make right. The question of what is right, is of course, an entirely subjective one and the decision as to who is to make that value judgement has already been pre-determined when we elect a man to office.

I should also like to point out that Mike Lawler never hid his views on the subject of equal service to all students. He campaigned on a platform containing a plank which advocated equal service to all students and his views were freely expressed on that subject during the campaign.

I do wish to infer in this letter that Mike Lawler and the Student Legislature should not pay the political cost of their actions. It is only natural and just that they be held politically accountable and pay the consequences. My point is that it is not only their right to act as they did, it is their duty, and they are to admired for their ability to rise above the petty currents of the time, for it is men like these, able to stand by their convictions, that have led America to her present greatness. (re. JFK's "Profiles in Courage.")

Jack Gregory
5 Old West

Liberalism

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Undoubtedly you must admit to yourselves that the present board of the Daily TAR HEEL is committed to liberalism. Being fortunate enough to read this from the editorials to the columns to the Herblock cartoons.

While I do not question your right to express your leftist viewpoint, I woud submit that the Tar Heel has a responsibility to give space to conservatives other than the medium I am now using.

In the name of justice, fair play, equality, and all the sundry cliches the left inundates the nation with, a conservative columnist and/or cartoonist should be added to your pages.

I hope you live up to your words in practice as well as spirit.

Victor Ashe
New Haven, Conn.

Eggs!

Editors, The Tar Heel:

May I suggest that instead of printing the prices on the egg market, you resume a practice neglected for some while: printing the WUNC (FM) program schedule. If not of interest to anyone, at least it would be more so than your latest resort to fill up space.

Thurman L. Smith
209 W. Franklin St.
(Ed. Note: Eggsactly.)

DRILL TEAM HERE

Five crack Air Force ROTC drill teams will compete here for an opportunity to participate in the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D. C. this spring.

Units from UNC, Duke, NC State, North Carolina A&T and East Carolina College will compete on the floor of Woollen Gym today.

Each drill team will be composed of 16 to 24 men competing in a three-phase competition. The first phase will be an inspection conducted by officers of the U. S. Air Force. The second phase, regulation drill, is a series of maneuvers taken from the Air Force drill manual. During the regulation drill, teams are judged on sequence and time.

Yack Interviews

Interviews for Editor and Business Manager of the Yackety Yack will be held Tuesday.

The interviews will be conducted in the Grail Room at 4:30 p.m. Applicants should sign their names to a sign-up sheet posted on the door of the interview room at 4.

Past yearbook experience is necessary, preferably with the Yack.

— Legislature —

(Continued from Page 1)

All speakers said student aid in the various programs would be greatly appreciated.

In the legislative actions of the evening, a Legislature-approved bill to provide $200 to WUNC Radio was vetoed by President Lawler because of the precedent it might set and the question of its constitutionality. The body sustained the veto.

A bill to appropriate $500 to the Mock Political Convention was passed, as was one to appropriate $600 to the Executive Branch of Student Government.

A resolution urging students to attend "Careers for Carolina was passed, and another to aid exeavations in England was defeated.

A bill to amend the by-laws of the publications Board was passed.

—Aycock—

(Continued from Page 1)

work experience is required for higher classifications. In addition, tests are administered to all applicants for these jobs. The tests may be taken at any of the employment Security Offices or at the University Testing Service in Chapel Hill. Although the tests are not competitive, the majority of the departments heads and other supervisors who make the final selection of their employees are most reluctant to employ candidates whose test scores fall below the average range.

Now for a few facts. Over the past two years only 45 Negroes have made applications for these types of jobs. Of the 45 Negroes who applied for these jobs, only eight took the required tests. Seven of these eight were referred for interviews. Four were offered jobs but they accepted employment elsewhere; unlike nurses and technicians in the hospital, the number of qualified applicants who apply for these jobs is quite limited. Thus currently only 17 Negroes are employed in Clerical and Office positions. Facts are available on carpenters an dother job classifications as well as about each applicant.

I repeat, discrimination in employment is contrary to University policy. If there is evidence of a violation, corrective action will be taken. Until such evidence is produced, I hope those persons charged with the responsibility for hiring will enjoy the presumption that they are fulfilling their responsibilities in accord with University policy.

The Chancellor's speech was met with a single question posed by an unidentified faculty member—"Has a Negro ever applied for a position at the University?"

He replied, "Not to my knowledge." He further pointed out that the Chancellor is not the one who does the hiring, that that is left for the most part to the individual departments.

Coed Gets Probation

The Woman's Council placed a coed on indefinite probation Thursday night after she was found guilty of violating both a woman's residence rule and the Honor Code.

The student was charged with being out of her dormitory without permission making her approximately nine hours late and lying to her dormitory officials.

The coed plead guilty to both charges.

Lentz And Moore Represent Carolina

Ellen Lentz, a sophomore, and Janice Moore, a senior, are representing UNC on Mademoiselle's College Board.

The Board is composed of students from both the U. S. and abroad who report news of their colleges to Mademoiselle. They are also eligible to compete for the Guest Editorship that will be awarded in May.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

Public Health Seminar—4 p.m., 304 School of Public Health. Dr. Robert Lindsay, "The Health of Migrant Families."

MOVIES

Carolina—The Prize
Varsity — America, America
Free Flick — Lover Come Back

LOST AND FOUND

Lost—twisted gold circle pin between Pine Room and McIver; reward, contact Kay Childers, 221 McIver.

Lost — black billfold containing important papers; leave at GM desk or contact Dan M. Walter.

Lost — brown wallet with identifications; contact Wayne Gilman, 405 Mangum.

Found — brown-rimmed glasses in Woollen Gym locker room Wed. at 4 p.m., marked "William," can be recovered at GM information desk.

SUNDAY

Free Flick—A Summer to Remember

SPU — 12:30 p.m., Lenoir, Dr. Mann, "Reflections of an Expacifist."

Order of the Old Beanbirds—3 p.m., SAE House.

Hillel College Bowl Interfraternity Competition — 3 p.m., Hillel House.

Westminster Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., worship; 6 p.m., supper; 6:45 p.m., program "Sex in Context," Presbyterian Student Center.

Graduate Newman Club — 8:30 p.m., Catholic Student Center.

Newman Club — 6 p.m., St. Thomas More Hall, supper and discussion.

CPU — 7:30 p.m., Grail Room, membership interviews, address by Daniel H. Pollitt on the Civil Rights Bill.

Nursing Group Initiates 11

Sigma Theta Tau, national honorary nursing society, initiated 11 new members in pre-dawn ceremonies today.

New members are: Margaret Eleanor Campbell, Chapel Hill; Doris Hizdor Crutchfield, Salisbury; Margaret Virginia Hargett, New Bern; Karen Lyon Hopkins, Durham; Dorothy Rose Isom, Raleigh; Frances Jeannette Thomas, Durham; Anna Patricia Whitley, Smithfield; Catherine Smith Roark, Spartanburg, S. C.; and Betty Jane Sones, Williamsport, Pa.

New associate members are: Mrs. Elizabeth Scott Carrington, of Burlington, first chairman of the School of Nursing Committee of the Medical Foundation of North Carolina and Mrs. Margaret Baggett Dolan, of Chapel Hill, professor and head of the Department of Public Health Nursing and president of the American Nurses Association.

Associate members are recognized for marked accomplishment in the field of nursing at local, state and national levels.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Defraud
6. Not tight
11. Very slow: mus.
12. Forbidden
13. Arabian gazelle
14. Affirms
15. Male adults
16. Tags
18. Pinaceous trees
19. Jewish month
21. Cat
24. Lily
26. Amidst
27. Wanders
28. Java tree
29. Vex
30. Negative reply
31. Slight incline
32. Tributary of Ohio River
35. Middle
38. Lit anew
39. Evade
41. Angry
42. Vexes
43. Donkeys
44. Say

DOWN
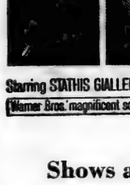
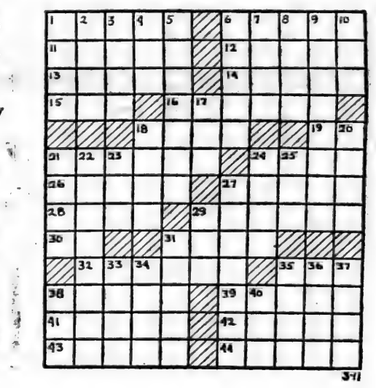
1. Bivalve
2. Rodent
3. Ireland: poet.
4. Grow old
5. Pealing, as bells
6. Pierces
7. Wash
8. Cain's brother
9. Bouquets
10. Measure of distance: India
17. Part of "to be"
18. Paddle-like processes
20. Foreman
21. Sylvan deity
22. Authorizes
23. Afr. worm
24. Painful
25. Girl's name
27. Thin slices of bacon
29. Belonging to him
31. Prices
33. Woe is me!
34. Morsel
35. West Point mascot
36. Notion
37. Writing table
38. Estuary
40. Back talk: sl.



Yesterday's Answer



3-11

—TV Probe—

(Continued from Page 1)

"This," Young added, "will expose educational TV to increased numbers of citizens in our state."

Named to the committee were State Sen. Thomas White, chairman; Rep. Johnson, House Speaker Clifton Blue; Senate Pres. Clarence Stone; Senators Irwin Belk and Henry Shelton; and Representatives Sam Whitehurst, Earl Tate, James Volgle; and A. A. Zollicoffer.

ELIA KAZAN'S "AMERICA AMERICA" is the "best American film of the year!" NEWSWEEK HOLLIS ALPERT, SATURDAY REVIEW JUDITH CRIST, HERALD TRIBUNE

Nominated for 7 GOLDEN GLOBE AWARDS including BEST DRAMA, BEST ACTOR—Stathis Giallelis, BEST DIRECTOR—Elia Kazan.

"PICTURE OF THE MONTH!"—Seventeen Magazine

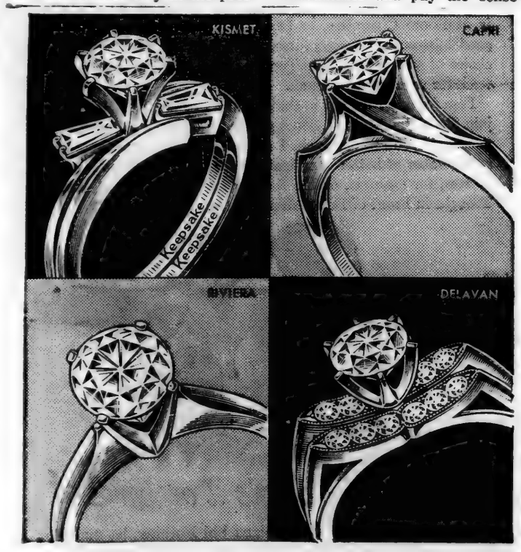
"A GLOWING ACHIEVEMENT!"—Good Housekeeping

Starring STATHIS GIALLELIS - Written, Produced and Directed by ELIA KAZAN

(Warner Bros. magnificent soundtrack album now available!) Presented by WARNER BROS.

Shows at 12:30 - 3:30 - 6:30 - 9:30

Varsity NOW PLAYING



THE ENGAGEMENT RING WITH THE PERFECT CENTER DIAMOND

Keepsake

True artistry is expressed in the brilliant fashion styling of every Keepsake diamond engagement ring. Each setting is a masterpiece of design, reflecting the full brilliance and beauty of the center diamond . . . a perfect gem of flawless clarity, fine color and meticulous modern cut.

The name, Keepsake, in the ring and on the tag is your assurance of fine quality and lasting satisfaction. Your very personal Keepsake diamond ring is awaiting your selection at your Keepsake Jeweler's store. Find him in the yellow pages. Prices from $100 to $2500. Rings enlarged to show beauty of detail ®Trade-mark registered.

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING

Please send two new booklets, "How to Plan Your Engagement and Wedding" and "Choosing Your Diamond Rings," both for only 25c. Also send special offer of beautiful 44 page Bride's Book.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ Co. _____ State _____

KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, SYRACUSE, NEW YORK

A new volume for the student of romance languages

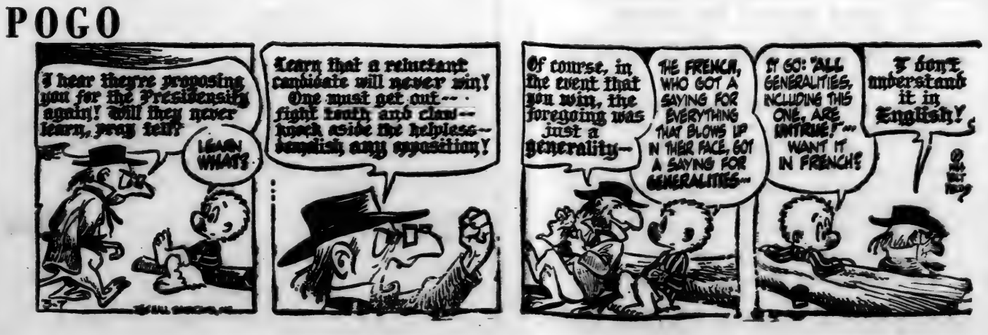
Indian Madras

ARROW

From the region made famous in history and poetry ARROW brings this distinctive shirting ...Khyber Cloth. Woven on native looms and dyed with the incomparable vegetable madder hues, it is tailored in our own impeccable ivy styling. Here is a sport shirt for your wardrobe that because of its distinguished appearance might end up being your favorite of them all.

$7.95

POGO



1. I've been giving a lot of thought to the future—career-wise and goal-wise.

I've been pretty busy working on my hook shot.

2. As recipients of a college education, I feel it is incumbent upon us to work in areas which allow us to make a contribution to society.

Watch me dribble right around you.

3. Material reward is important, too—so long as the job is one of profound significance.

I'm a terror off the boards.

4. What's more, the company I work for must be forward-looking and encourage initiative.

Notice the feather touch on the ball.

5. How about you? What are your goals?

I'd like to score 30 against Tech.

6. I mean after graduation.

Oh, I've got a swell job with Equitable. They've got everything you're looking for. And they're a good team to work with.

See your Placement Officer for the date Equitable's employment representative will be on campus. Or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 © 1964

Second-Half Surge Gives Duke 65-49 Victory Over Tar Heels

Coach Dean Smith Points Out A Play To The Tar Heels

—Photo by Jim Wallace and DTH Mobile Photo Lab

Billy The Kid Great As the Curtain Falls

By JOHN MONTAGUE

RALEIGH—Duke can not be beaten.

That's the only conclusion you could come to after watching the machine-like Blue Devils wait through a tension-packed first half slow-down by North Carolina, then come on in the second half and beat the Tar Heels, 65-49.

All credit must be given to the Tar Heels. They tried—oh how they tried. But when you have to depend on a 40-minute freeze to beat a team, you can't afford many slipups. UNC made very few in the first half, and as a result forced Duke to a 20-20 draw at the intermission. But the law of averages caught up with the Smithmen in the second stanza, and the Blue Devils simply pulled away and, in the process, put themselves into tonight's 8:30 finals.

Duke's two big men—Hack Tison and Jay Buckley—were held scoreless throughout the first half, and Tison also drew a blank in the final 20 minutes. But for Buckley it was another story.

The 6-10 center was the man who cracked the game open. The gangling giant managed to find an opening in the up-till-then air-tight UNC defense. And when big Buckley moved in under the basket, his teammates gave him the ball and he scored. They were easy shots, but they counted. Of the Blue Devils' first 15 points in the second half, Buckley got 13 of them. And he finished with 20.

At 12:20 Buckley sank a foul shot to make it 35-25 Duke. The ten-point lead ended the Tar Heels stall. They had to open up their offense and try to catch up. They couldn't do it.

Billy Cunningham, who was without a doubt the best man on the court last night, tried to get UNC back in the game with some long jumpers. But the Kid, despite his 25 points wasn't as deadly from the outside as he was Thursday night against S. Carolina. Billy did control the boards (14 rebounds), however, and did a tremendous defensive job on Tison.

The Kid got 12 of his team's 20 first-half points, all from the inside. In fact all 12 of UNC's shots in the first half were from the inside, as the Tar Heels worked the deliberate offense to near-perfection.

Cunningham also pulled in eight of UNC's 13 rebounds in that period, and the whole Duke team managed only eight. For the game the Tar Heels outrebounded the Blue Devils, 31-27; Billy leading the park with 14. Next was Buckley with six.

The first half was the high point of this ACC tournament so far. Dean Smith went for ball handling and defense as he started forwards, Billy Galantai and Pud Hassell, and guards Bill Brown and Mike Cooke, along with center Cunningham.

Tison started the game off just like last Saturday at UNC, goal-tending the Tar Heels to a 2-0 lead. Then Buzzy Harrison tied it up with a jumper—again just like last week when the Duke guard couldn't miss.

The rest of the half cintinued on an un-oh-so-slow, but oh-so-exciting pace. UNC, refusing everything except the easiest of shots held a slim lead most of the time (never more than three) while Duke never was up my more than two.

It even looked like Carolina might take a 20-18 lead into the break, but Steve Vacendak tied it up with a jumper right before the buzzer.

Cooke (six points), Charlie Shaffer (also six), Johnny Yokley, Galantai and Brown all turned in superb floor work during the stall.

Jeff Mullins (seven) and Vacendak (five) led the Blue Devils first-half attack and ended up with 19 and 13, respectively for the game.

Cassius X. Clay Announces Tour Of Africa, Asia

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay announced Friday that about March 30 he expects to fly to Lagos, Nigeria, on a month tour of Africa and Asia.

He made that announcement at headquarters of the Nigerian Mission to the United Naations.

Cassius also admitted that he had "changed his name" from Cassius Marcellus Clay to Cassius X. Clay. He declined to explain the reason for the change.

However, the famous Malcolm X. — a New York leader of the Islamic Black Muslim sect, who was with Cassius explained:

"X represents the unknown. That's all we can say about it at this time."

$84,114.60!

HALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Two $10-a-day cooks stepped into the parimutuels office at Gulfstream Park today and collected the largest payoff in American horse racing history—$84,114.20 for one $2 wager on the twin double.

They identified themselves as Danny Tuazon, a native Filipino bachelor, now a United States citizen of Hoboken, N. J., and Juan Lopez Lopez, a Puerto Rican whose wife, 17-year-old daughter and 16-year-old son still live in Puerto Rico.

Each received $2,057.10 in cash and a check for $40,000 from Gulfstream mutels manager Jay Matthews, then they embraced happily.

They said they would spend the cash playing the races today but declined to disclose their plans for the other money.

Tuazon said he probably will quit his job as an assistant cook at the Miami Beach hotel where both work in the winter. Lopez said he would continue working.

Speaking in Spanish-tinged English, the cooks said they have been frequent partners in betting.

Lopez went to the track Thursday, paid $1 for his admission to the new Gulfstream annex and made one $2 wager on the twin double.

He bet the 2-7-5-2 combination because Tuazon had noticed that the 2-7 combination had been paying off frequently at local dog tracks. Lopez picked the 5-2 off his Social Security card.

Bill Jarman's 17 Propels Med-4 By Dent Foilers

By PETE GAMMONS

Bill Jarman, who averaged around seventeen points for three years at Davidson, dominated the backboards in leading the Med School-4 to a 60-23 win over the Dental Foilers. Jarman hit 8-10 from the floor, blocked 8 shots, clearly dominated the rebounding, and all in all made the game a runaway.

The Meds hit their first seven shots and proceeded to run up a 32-9 halftime lead, hitting for the half an incredible 73 per cent. When Jarman wasn't controlling something, Tom Koontz and Ben Ward drove through the Foilers, defying all their defense tactics. For the whole game the Meds hit 63 per cent, to a weak 18 pe cent for the Dents. Jarman was high scorer with 17, followed by Ward and Koontz with 10 apiece.

They will meet the Phys Ed Peacocks in the Grad Finals Monday at 5:15. The Peacocks, who have yet to have a close contest, have consistently shot over 50 per cent themselves with a game high of 62 per cent. Harry Johnstone, Dan Roth, J. C. Hood, and Tom Parham have been the big guns, and their depth should give Jarman and Co. a severe test. If the Peacocks win, they will not be able to play for the All-Campus title, and should the Med Scholars win, they will be forced to play without the services of Jarman, who will be ineligible since he played for three years at Davidson.

Ken Boykin To Fill Gap In Right Field

By LARRY TARLETON

Jim Hickey may not have found another tackle yet, but it looks as if Walt Rabb has found a right fielder.

Taking note of Hickey's success when he moved Chris Hanburger from end to center last year, Rabb has converted catcher Ken Boykin to an outfielder.

Boykin, who was one of the Tar Heels leading hitters last year with a .333 mark, has taken to his new position much like Hanburger did last spring. Ken has been rapping the ball hard in the early practice sessions, and yesterday, in the first scrimmage of the training season, Boykin made a running one-hand stab of a sinking liner near the right-field foul line.

The Heels, who finished second in the ACC to Wake Forest last season, should have one of their best seasons. They lost only two starters, outfielder Buddy Tilden and Heywood Hull, from last years 20-9 team.

Pitching is always a question mark in a short season, but the Heels seem to be particularly deep in this category. Back from last season are the "big three" righthanders, co-captain Bill Haywood (6-4 and 1.65 ERA), Spence Willard (5-1 and 2.31 2.22 ERA). However, Rabb must find a southpaw to fill the gap left by graduated Larry Jenkins (3-1 and 3.75 ERA). Junior Jerry Davis (2-0 and 6.15 ERA) has the inside track on the job at the moment because of his experience, but sophs Beattie Leonard and Buddy Cohoon have been impressive in practice. In yesterday's scrimmage, Leonard pitched two innings, gave up no hits, walked one man and struck out five.

Lanky sophomore right-hander Mike McLaughlin, who pitched in a college league in Illinois last summer, has impressed everyone with his stuff and needs only to master his control to be one of the Heels' top pitchers.

In yesterday's scrimmage, Rabb started this tentative lineup: 1b-Bill Brown, 2b Dickie Prindle, 3b-Tom Wright ss-Jim Speight, lf-Ken Willard, cf-Gary Black, rf-Ken Boykin and catcher-Merle Kruer.

No Outsiders In Meet

For the first time in a decade there will be no Non-Conference Division in the ACC Indoor Track Championships, scheduled for Woollen Gymnasium March 14.

UNC indoor track Coach Joe Hilton, who has charge of the meet, explains the conference's actions this way.

"We originally decided to eliminate the Non-Conference Division when we thought Woollen Gym would be unavailable and we would have to hold the meet in Carolina's Tin Can.

"When the expected construction on Woollen was held up and the gym became available for the Championships, we decided to stand by our earlier decision as an experiment. We wanted to streamline the meet this year to see if it would improve it."

Coach Hilton's prediction that Maryland would capture the team title comes as no surprise. The Terps have won every year since 1955, when North Carolina upset them.

Omnia Gallia . . . .

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A test given a sophomore Latin class at Rockhurst High School called for a translation of the sentence:

"Cassius dicit, 'Ego ipse maximum sum'."

The correct answer was: "Cassius says, 'I am the greatest'."

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

A BOLD NEW LOOK IN SUSPENSE!

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER presents PAUL NEWMAN

THE PRIZE

Co-starring ELKE SOMMER (Glamorous New Star Discovery) EDWARD G. ROBINSON as Dr. Strauman

PANAVISION™ and METROCOLOR

CHARMACK

The Magician

P. O. Box 118

New York 9, N. Y.

Triangle Coffee House

(Corner Chapel Hill St. - Duke Univ. Rd.—Durham)

Sun. Nite

9:30

THE WISE AND FOOLISH VIRGIN

A New Comedy By TOM BENENSON

Also Wed. & Next Sun. Nites

Enjoy the Finest Seafood

TIP TOP FISH HOUSE

Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West

Durham Tel. 286-4494

Easter Vacation?
See our man on campus if you want to save money and see the world.

The Sheraton Campus Representative will give you free a Sheraton Student ID or Faculty Guest Card. With it you can stay at any of 90 Sheraton Hotels round the world at special low discount rates . . . even in single rooms! Save even more with 2 or 3 in a room. Group rates for clubs and teams. Wherever Sheraton is, there's a world of things to see and do. For more information and your ID or Faculty Card, contact this Sheraton Campus Representative:

W. E. BRAGNNIER

31 Old West, Chapel Hill, N. C. Phone 968-9165

Sheraton Hotels & Motor Inns

Coast to coast in U.S.A.; in Hawaii; Canada; Nassau; Jamaica; Mexico; Puerto Rico; Venezuela; Tel Aviv, Israel.

For Sale

AUCTION SALE SATURDAY, FOR SALE: 1964 HONDA Motorcycle (50 cc), excellent condition, gives 200 MPG, top speed of 55 MPH, less than 500 miles on

FOR SALE: REASONABLE PRICE, B and L Monocular microscope and case. Approved by medical and dental schools. Call 968-6096 after six.

FOR SALE — MARTIN D-18 GUITar. Excellent condition. Call 968-8392.

Lively Days in The Intimate

In the Old Book Corner

Military and Naval History

An interesting clump, over our heads, but if you're interested in great battles on land and sea, there may be treasure for you here.

—●—

On the Feature Table

Garden Books

Time for planning those great changes in your garden is getting short. Pick one of these books, oil up the old rocking chair, and before you know it, dogwoods will be barking in your garden.

—●—

On the Bargain Counter

Gateways and Doorways of Charleston

Another in the series of handsome books of photographs of old houses, and it's a beauty!

NOW ONLY $2.98

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin St.

Open Till 10 P.M.

PEANUTS

HOOTENANNY

This Saturday Night

(Tempo Style)

In line with our "Beer brings out the Best in You" Campaign, we are having a Hootenanny Saturday night to "bring out what's left. For the first time in Chapel Hill, The Neo Tempo under Neo-Management presents a real live Hootenanny with two real live, lovely, young ladies singing to their own accompaniment. Holding forth from 8:30 to 10:30.

TEMPO TEMPO

Saturday Night

In the

Neo-ly Decorated Tempo

(Bring a Date—and Imbibe Together)

How to join in the fun of Shakespeare's Year in Britain for less than $45 a week

April 23, 1964, is Shakespeare's 400th birthday, and Britain is celebrating with nine months of festivals and fun. Read facts below. Note Britain's low prices. Then clip coupon for free 10-piece Student's Travel Kit.

THIS YEAR, Britain will be the liveliest spot in Europe. Here are just a few of the events you can enjoy:

Shakespeare Season of Plays. Opening night at Stratford-upon-Avon is April 23. Season lasts 7 months, includes a trilogy of histories. Seats from 56 cents.

Edinburgh International Festival. From August 16 through September 5, the Scots put on a feast of Shakespeare, music, ballet, avant garde movies—even a floodlit military tattoo. Prices start at 14 cents.

Goings-on in London. You can see Sir Laurence Olivier play Othello with the new National Theatre Company. Watch Shakespeare indoors on an Elizabethan stage at the riverside Mermaid Theatre. Or out of doors in Regent's Park (all through summer).

Having fun in Britain on $45 a week

| | |
|---|---|
| 3 nights in London, with breakfast | $ 8.25 |
| 4 nights in student hotels outside London, with breakfast | 8.00 |
| Lunch and dinner for 7 days | 14.00 |
| 200 miles travel by train or bus | 6.00 |
| Visit to Royal Shakespeare Theatre | .56 |
| Three visits to London theatres | 6.00 |
| Incidentals | 2.00 |
| Total | $44.81 |

See the box above for encouraging facts about Britain's low prices. For more facts, clip coupon below. Your free 10-piece Travel Kit tells you about Shakespeare's Year celebrations, gives hints on traveling around Britain on a shoestring, and includes a list of comfortable but inexpensive accommodations.

CLIP COUPON FOR FREE TRAVEL KIT

Mail coupon to British Travel Association at one of these addresses:

NEW YORK: 680 Fifth Avenue

LOS ANGELES: 612 So. Flower St.

CHICAGO: 39 So. LaSalle St.

CANADA: 151 Bloor St. West, Toronto

Please send my free 10-piece Student's Travel Kit:

Name _____ (Please print clearly)

College _____

Address _____

City _____ Zone _____

State _____

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and "Barefoot Boy With Cheek".)

THE SLOW RUSH

Illustrated below is the membership pin of a brand-new national fraternity called Signa Phi Nothing. To join Signa Phi Nothing and get this hideous membership pin absolutely free, simply take a pair of scissors, cut out the illustration, and paste it on your chest.

Let me hasten to state that I do not recommend your joining Signa Phi Nothing. The only thing I recommend in this column is Marlboro Cigarettes, as any honest man would who likes good tobacco and a good filter, whose heart is quickened by a choice of soft pack or Flip-Top Box, and who gets paid every week for writing this column.

I am frankly hard put to think of any reason why you should join Signa Phi Nothing. Some people, of course, are joiners by nature; if you are one such, I am bound to tell you there are any number of better organizations for you to join—the Cosa Nostra, for example, or the Society for the Placing of Water Troughs in Front of Equestrian Statues.

Cut it out and paste it on your chest

But if you insist on joining Signa Phi Nothing, let me give you several warnings. First off, it is the only fraternity which admits girls. Second, there is no pledge period; each new member immediately goes active. Perhaps "inactive" is a more accurate word: there are no meetings, no drives, no campaigns, no sports, no games, no dues, no grip, and no house.

The only thing Signa Phi Nothing has in common with other fraternities is a fraternity hymn. In fact, two hymns were submitted to a recent meeting of the national board of directors (none of whom attended). The first hymn goes:

Signa Phi Nothing,
Shining star,
How we wonder
If you are.

The second hymn, rather more poetic in content, is to be sung to the tune of Also Sprach Zarathustra:

A Guernsey's a cow,
A road is a lane,
When you're eating chow,
Remember the mein.

Pending the next meeting of the national board of directors (which will never be held) members are authorized to sing either hymn. Or, for that matter, Frenesi.

Perhaps you are wondering why there should be such a fraternity as Signa Phi Nothing. I can give you an answer—an answer with which you cannot possibly disagree: Signa Phi Nothing fills a well-needed gap.

Are you suffering from mental health? Is logic distorting your thinking? Is ambition encroaching on your native sloth? Is your long-cherished misinformation retreating before a sea of facts? In short, has education caught up with you?

If so, congratulations. But spring is upon us and the sap is rising, and the mind looks back with poignant longing to the days when it was a puddle of unreason.

If—just for a moment—you want to recapture those careless vaporings, that warm, squishy confusion, then join Signa Phi Nothing and renew your acquaintance with feckleesness. We promise nothing, and, by George, we deliver it!

© 1964 Max Shulman

* * *

We, the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, promise smoking enjoyment, and we think you'll think we deliver it—in all fifty states of this Union. Marlboro Country is where you are.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

★ ★ ★

Flower Girl Edition

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather

Ain't it nice?

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, MARCH 8, 1964 | United Press International Service

Billy Cunningham Makes All-American

—Photo by Jim Wallace.

Billy Cunningham: All-American

'Look' Cites UNC Jumper In Top Ten

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Billy "The Kid" Cunningham who thrilled thousands with his spectacular play in the ACC Tournament Thursday and Friday, has been named to the 1963-64 Look All America team it was announced yesterday.

The March 24th isue of the magazine, which came on the newsstands Saturday, lists UNC's Billy along with nine others as the cream of the crop for this basketball season. It is the first official All-America recognition for the junior from Brooklyn who has made the honorable mention list of every dream team announced so far.

The Kid, who at 6-6 is known for his ability to out-jump players four and five inches taller, led the ACC in scoring this season with a 26.0 average. He also was No. 1 in rebounds with a 15.8 average and finished with a 44.3 shooting percentage.

Joining Cunningham on the team are: Gary Bradds (Ohio State senior), Bill Bradley (Princeton junior), Mel Counts (Oregon State senior), Walt Hazzard (UCLA), Bud Koper (Oklahoma City senior), Jeff Mullins (Duke senior), Cotton Nash (Kentucky senior), Dave Stallworth (Wichita junior) and Cazzie Russell (Michigan sophomore).

One significant aspect of the ten-man team is that Cunningham is the only player named who plays neither for a nationally top-ranked team or for a team in the NCAA Tournament.

Billy, like many other Tar Heel basketball greats, came to Chapel Hill from the greater New York area through the recruiting of Frank McGuire, who coached at UNC from 1952 to 1961. He graduated from Erasmus High School (Brooklyn) in January 1961, and played for the Carolina freshmen during the first semester of the 1961-62 season. While Billy played, the Tar Babies were unbeaten in ten games.

Last season, as a soph, the heralded Cunningham led the varsity to a 15-6 record, averaged 22.7 points a game and shattered fellow Brooklynite Doug Moe's school rebounding mark with a 16.1 per-game performance off the boards.

Top single game performances for The Kid came against Maryland in Woollen Gym on the night of January 13 of this year, when he scored 40 points and hauled down 28 rebounds. The latter is a single-game UNC mark.

In both seasons, Cunningham has been a unanimous selection to the All-Atlantic Coast Conference team. And in two seasons Billy has scored 1100 points and gotten 718 rebounds.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

'It'll Never Get Off The Ground'

State Government Discussed Friday

By JOHN GREENBACKER

Careers For Carolina, a program of discussion of opportunities in state government, held Friday, presented a comprehensive picture of state government's various activities.

The program, sponsored by The Institute of Government and Student Government, began with an address by George Esser, executive director of the North Carolina Fund.

Esser said public service in the nation does not have a good image, and state and local governments in particular are not doing much to combat misconceptions.

Citing the need for more qualified young people in government, Esser said government partnership in a complex society is needed more than ever.

"North Carolina is falling behind," Esser said. "Our gravest problem is a wrong industry mix.

"One-fourth to one-third of the total people in North Carolina lack the necessary education to compete in an urban society," he said. "Fifty per cent of our population never finishes high school."

Esser maintained that equal educational opportunity was not enough, as various environmental factors lead to discouragement among the underprivileged.

"The best minds in the state are needed for public service," Esser said. He cited four qualifications of a good public service officer:

"A good public servant must be competent, but, more important than competence, he must be creative.

"He must be committed in his career to the welfare of the people of North Carolina," Esser said. "He must also have the courage to push ahead towards his objectives.

"A career in public service is no easy life," he said, "but there is no greater opportunity for achievement than here."

Esser's introductory speech was followed by comments from Joel Fleishman, legal assistant to Governor Sanford.

Fleishman cited the efforts of the present state government to combat poverty and described some of the programs sponsored by the North Carolina Fund.

Fleishman called for the type of enthusiasm here that is present in the Peace Corps and spoke of state government's need for college graduates.

"A society is only as good as its leaders," Fleishman added.

Assistant Director of the Institute of Government George Lewis gave a description of the emergency of county government.

Although the county unit is almost directly under the control of the state government, Lewis said counties are currently assuming municipal-type powers formerly exclusive to urban areas.

"County administrative and technical jobs have increased 100 per cent in the past twelve years," he said. "County jobs are expected to increase 110 per cent within the next ten years."

Lewis also stressed the need for qualified persons to fill this need.

William Veeder, city manager

(Continued on Page 3)

Mallard Hits Wynn With Contempt Rule

UNC Prof Gets Hung Jury Friday

Tomorrow morning a jury will begin again its deliberation of the case of UNC Professor William H. Wynn, charged with trespassing in a recent sit-in at Watts Restaurant. The jury deadlocked 11-1 Friday, and as it did, Professor Wynn was charged with contempt of curt for reading a newspaper during his trial.

Judge Raymond Mallard ordered Professor Wynn to appear in court tomorrow at 10 p.m. to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for "contemptuously and insolently reading a newspaper in the courtroom" during the trial.

Witnesses in the courtroom at the time said that the jury had been out for an hour when Wynn picked up his newspaper. People were talking in low voices at the time, they said. They were awaiting the return of the jury and no proceedings were going on. The lunch recess was called 15 minutes later.

When last week's special session of Orange Superior Court convened. Judge Mallard issued orders against reading and talking in court, and posted deputies around the courtroom to bring before the bench anyone found violating the instructions.

Several persons were brought before the bench last week for reading while court was in session.

The contempt citation came several hours before the jury returned at 10:32 p.m. to announce it had not agreed upon a verdict. It was the second time during its deliberations, which lasted exactly eight hours, that the jury announced it was deadlocked 11-1.

Foreman D. P. Schorr of Chapel Hill, a retired Army general and Duke University instructor, first announced the split at 1:15 p.m. The case went to the jury at 12:03 p.m. Friday.

Judge Mallard, upon hearing the jury's results, ordered it to return tomorrow morning and resume deliberation.

Nine men and three women comprise the jury, two of them Negroes.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

'I've Got To Put This Up There?'

250 Watch Kites Try To Fly High

A dearth of March breezes put the damper on distance but not on enthusiasm yesterday as the Daily Tar Heel held its first annual Kite Contest.

Approximately 250 persons were on hand to watch big kites, little kites, pretty kites, and kites that weren't kites compete more fiercely against the calm than against each other.

Wiley Ritter of 233A Jackson Circle managed to fly his kite to a respectable flight despite the lack of wind, and walked off with the first prize in the distance category.

Ritter won only after a technical ruling by the judges, who said an entry by the Tar Pit (Craige Hall's humor magazine) was not a kite. The Tar Pit, which flew a conglomeration of tissue paper and helium-filled balloons, was awarded a prize for the most unusual entry.

Joe Ward was the only double winner, taking first place in the largest kite division (10 feet) and second in the smallest kite category (wit ha different kite).

First prize for the smallest kite was awarded to Larry Kodak of Winston Hall after some careful measuring by the judges. Andy Bobroff of Winston finished third.

Mike Livesay's butterfly kite won the most beautiful prize, while Alpha Delta Pi sorority copped second place. "Mother," an entry of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, was a reluctant third.

Judge Gary Eden, WKIX disc jockey, was unsuccessful in his attempt to create enough breeze to fly kites, but agreed that it was a success.

Hugh Stevens, DTH Kite Editor, said, "I want to express our appreciation to all those who flew, or tried to fly, kites. It was most gratifying to see the many entries, and we wil certainly consider this a high point of the year."

He also thanked the merchants who donated prizes for the event, and reminded winners that they can pick up certificates Monday at the DTH offices in Graham Memorial.

New Medical Center For Charlotte?

"North Carolina needs another medical center and Charlotte is a good place for it," Dr. Robert A. Ross of the Medical School faculty said Friday at the opening session of the southeastern convention of the pre-medical fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Delta, meeting in Chapel Hill through March 8.

Dr. Ross, head of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University Schooi of Medicine here, talked to the students from a dozen southern states on careers in medicine.

The populous Charlotte area and opportunities for medical practice, and the likelihood that an undergraduate unit of the University of North Carolina will be established in Charlotte," said Dr. Ross, "make it logical that ultimately a new medical school will be established in Charlotte."

Columbia, S. C. also is an area most likely to have the need for a new medical school in the upper south region, but Charlotte is even better as an area, in the immediate future, Dr. Ross said.

Ron Joyner, a student here, is chairman of the meeting here this weekend, as president of the local chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta.

Dr. Ross spoke on the history of medical development in the South since the Civil War.

Three awards were presented Friday for the "best chapter report." UNC was first, followed by Millsaps College in Mississippi, and Auburn University in Alabama.

Repeal Of Gag May Come Soon

By JOEL BULKLEY

The Speaker Ban Law will be repealed or amended next year, although it will be no easy task, a top-ranking State Democratic official predicted here Thursday night.

Democratic Party Chairman W. Lunsford Crew told a meeting of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Junior Chamber of Commerce, "I am convinced that in 1965 legislators and educators thinking and reasoning together will amend or repeal this law . . ."

The Speaker Ban, enacted in the closing days of last year's General Assembly, prohibits known Communists or persons who have taken the Fifth Amendment in loyalty investigations from speaking on State-supported campuses.

Mr. Crew said, "Repeal of this law will not be as simple as some might think. It is a difficult matter to explain academic freedom and freedom of the mind to many people throughout North Carolina . . ."

Senator, who prefaced his pre-

The Roanoke Rapids State pared remarks by saying that he was speaking on his own and not in his capacity as State Democratic chieftain, also praised Town officials for their handling of recent racial demonstrations.

Mr. Crew said, "I know those people who introduced this bill (the Gag Law) in the General Assembly; they are men of good faith and they believe in higher education, but they and other members of the General Assembly were living in a world of fear.

"I hasten to say that it is my firm belief that, if this bill had been given the proper consideration with the usual committee meetings, it would never have passed the General Assembly. I was the first member of the Senate to oppose this bill, and I must admit I arose with some reluctance. I realized that the public in general would feel that any person who opposed the bill would be labeled as friendly to communism . . . I do not fear communism nearly so much as I fear the ultimate consequences of tyranny of man's mind, and shackles that might be placed upon the voices and minds of Americans.

Coffee House Has New Play By Benenson

"The Wise and Foolish Virgin," an original play by Tom Benenson of Chapel Hill, opens at the Triangle Coffee House, 1205 Duke University Rd., Durham, tonight at 9:30. The short play, which is described by Mr. Benenson as "a New Yorkish sophisticated expose of our modern generation, a situation comedy," will be performed again on Wednesday evening and on Sunday, March 15.

Benenson, a graduate student in drama at UNC, had another of his original plays, "A Matter of Distinction," presented by the Triangle Players at the Coffee House in December. Tommy Thompson, who was recently seen in Durham Theatre Guild's production of "Between Two Thieves," will direct the play.

A trio of characters, a young lady and two New York playboys "play the same, old game of swapsy with platonic overtones." Appearing in the cast are: Peggy Jones as Regina; Charles Hoye of Duke University as Blake, and James Bollinger, a Wesley Player, as Dale.

Each new play at the Triangle Coffee House runs for three performances on a Sunday-Wednesday-Sunday schedule, with performances at 9:30 each evening. A new art show, featuring a painter of the Triangle community, goes up each month. Mrs. Zada Miller, also of Durham, is now showing a selection of her paintings through April 2.

Diversified entertainment by comedians, folk and topical singers and musicians is presented each Friday and Saturday evening.

$2,800 Is Collected For Police Fund

Chapel Hill Town Manager Robert Peck announced yesterday that over $2,800 has been collected to date for the Chapel Hill Police fund.

The money is to be divided equally among the men of the town's police force as compensation for the extra work involved in controlling racial demonstrations here, Peck said.

The largest donation has been from the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Chamber of Commerce which pledged $2,000 to the fund early in the drive.

Local service stations agreed to donate two cents for every gallon of gasoline sold during Thursday of this week.

Peck said that no time limit will be placed on the effort.

WUNC-Radio Offers 'Bach Spectacular'

WUNC Radio's "Bach Spectacular" begins today at 1 p.m.

Over 21 selections of Bach will be played on the 10-hour program. Listeners are urged to call in during the program with comments to host and music director Thurman Smith.

Other spectaculars will be presented on April 5 and 26.

WUNC is heard at 91.5 FM.

Religious Prints Shown At Duke

An exhibition of about 50 modern religious prints by internationally famous artists is now on display at Duke University.

The prints are mostly from the New York Museum of Modern Art and depict scenes of Biblical and non-Biblical events with the majority of the prints portraying incidents from the Old Testament.

The various movements in the art world from naturalism to abstract expressionism are represented by artists such as Salvodor Dali, Emile Bernard, Roualt and Kanamori. Also on display are examples of wood-cuts, etchings and lithographs.

The exhibit is open daily, including Sundays, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. through March 22. There is no admission charge.

Mkie Lawler, president of the Student Body, addresses the 'Careers for Carolina' program Friday afternoon at the Institute of Government. On the stage with Lawler is (L-R) Lanny Shuff, coordinator of the program; John Sanders, director of the Institute, which cosponsored the program; and George Esser, Executive Director of the North Carolina Fund, who was the featured speaker.

Volume 72, Number 112 Sunday, March 8, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel
71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

UNIVERSITY

Karl Shapiro

To hurt the Negro and avoid the Jew
Is the curriculum. In mid-September
The entering boys, identified by hats,
Wander in a maze of mannered brick
Where boxwood and magnolia brood
And columns with imperious stance
Like rows of ante-bellum girls
Eye them, outlanders.

In whited cells, on lawns equipped for pace,
Under the arch, and lofty banister,
Equals shake hands, unequals blankly pass;
The exemplary weather whispers, "Quiet, quiet".
And visitors on tiptoe leave
For the raw North, the unfinished West,
As the young, detecting an advantage,
Practice a face.

Where, on their separate hill, the colleges,
Like manor houses of an older law,
Gaze down embankments on a land in fee,
The Deans, dry spinsters over family plate,
Ring out the English name like coin,
Humor the snob and lure the lout.
Within the precincts of this world
Poise is a club.

But on the neighboring range, misty and high,
The past is absolute: some luckless race
Dull with inbreeding and conformity
Wears out its heart, and comes barefoot and bad
For charity or jail. The scholar
Sanctions their obsolete disease;
The gentleman revolts with shame
At his ancestor.

And the true nobleman, once a democrat,
Sleeps on his private mountain. He was one
Whose thought was shapely and whose dream was broad;
This school he held his art and epitaph.
But now it takes from him his name,
Falls open like a dishonest look,
And shows us, rotted and endowed,
Its senile pleasure.

Help Save Bill: We Need Him(?)

We have been accosted as an act of faith by William F. Buckley Jr., the editor of the National Review, and asked to help that stalwart defender of 19th Century political philosophy keep his magazine from going under.

It seems the National Review was counting on some sort of large subscription drive late last year to get it over the financial hump, but the death of the President occurred on the same day the subscription drive started. As a result the drive was a dud and the magazine lost about $46,000 in revenue it had anticipated, and so Buckley is asking for donations.

While we usually manage to disagree rather violently with everything Buckley and his journal come up with—we hate to admit it, but we even had to side with Henry Mayer in his fight with Buckley last year—we would hate to see the Review go out of business. In the first place the Review is one of the few conservative journals in the country—which raises the question of why is it going under if the conservative movement is as strong as claimed—and the conservative viewpoint needs to be stated just to keep the rest of us honest.

Also, the National Review does manage in many cases to provide comic relief from the serious political magazines.

If you happen to be a conservative, or if you happen to be a liberal who gets a bigger kick out of the National Review than the Sunday funnies, you can send any donations to The National Review, 50 . 35th St., New York, N. Y.

Behind The Bigger Noise

By JAMES RESTON
The New York Times

WASHINGTON — The explanation of the increasing noise and turmoil between the nations lies at least partly in the new mathematics and personalities of world politics.

There are now, for example, more nations with more frontiers to squabble over, and more ambitious and inexperienced leaders to do the squabbling, than ever before in the history of the human race.

There are, also, more centers of effective world power today—not only Washington and Moscow, but Peking and Paris, among others—than at any time since the last war, and there are more major national elections coming up and more aging world leaders fading out than at any time in a generation.

This does not encourage much serenity. Africa has discovered that getting rid of the white master is not the whole answer to the complexity of life. Washington and Moscow have discovered that the other nations, including their neighbors, are no longer content to do what they are told, and the old centers of power, particularly France and China, are insisting on a hand in the future.

The future of Southeast Asia is a good illustration of the problem. President Johnson is now warning North Vietnam, or Communist China, or the Soviet Union, or all three—he doesn't make clear which—that a continuation of the policy of directing and supplying the war against South Vietnam "is a deeply dangerous game."

He says that the war there "is first and foremost a contest to be won by the Government and the people of that country (South Vietnam) for themselves," but he repeats the United States commitment to support the freedom of South Vietnam.

The Western allies, however, are deeply divided on all this. President Johnson thinks the Communist intervention in Vietnam is "a deeply dangerous game" for the Communists, but de Gaulle thinks the American intervention in that peninsula is an even more dangerous game for Washington and some of President Johnson's own closest advisers agree.

De Gaulle has tried to convince President Johnson through diplomatic channels that China will not tolerate a pro-Western government in Vietnam on China's border any more than the United States would tolerate a pro-Communist government in Mexico. But President Johnson disagrees, or at least feels that, for political reasons, he must disagree and avoid negotiations with Peking on the subject.

Trade with Cuba is another illustration of the increasing diversity of allied problems. Both President Johnson and Prime Minister Alec Douglas-Home of Britain are facing elections and they are squabbling about trade with Castro because they think it is good politics at home to do so.

President Johnson does not want to be accused by the Republicans of tolerating anything that seems to help Castro, so he cuts off aid to Britain for selling buses to Cuba, even though he knows this will have no effect either on Britain or Cuba.

Similarly, the British Prime Minister defends the sale of buses because he does not want to be accused by Britain's Socialists in an election year of dancing to Johnson's tune.

The points of controversy could be multiplied indefinitely. There is more international contention, not because there is actually greater danger of war in the world, but because the nations now think it is safe to play politics with foreign policy.

President Johnson recently remarked in California that if all the dangers of today were to be solved tomorrow, then there would be a whole new crop of controversies next week.

He is probably right. The big cold war between Moscow and Washington has been broken up into a score or more of little cold wars, which in turn engage the interests or the prestige of the major powers and personalities.

De Gaulle, having lost influence in Asia and Africa when he had military power, now seems determined to try to regain influence in Africa, Asia, and even Latin America without any power.

This will undoubtedly produce new controversies in the future, but President Johnson is adjusting to it. If de Gaulle wants to share the misery of leadership in such a complicated world, says Johnson, why not let him try it?

Letters To The Editors

Stone, Lawler And Other Woes

Stoned

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Many of us have signed a petition to boycott all segregated facilities in Chapel Hill, however, we must rise in protest of the actions of our great Senator Clarence Stone. The progress of the fight for Civil Rights would not have gone this far if it had not have been for the unselfish and dedicated work of Allard K. Lowenstein. Mr. Lowenstein is the nemisis of all conservatives and for justifiable reasons . . . he is making progress. His progress is the fuel of the Civil Rights machine. Not only is Mr. Lowenstein a dedicated Civil Rights leader, he is also a great educator. Men like Al Lowenstein are needed to be free to educate . . .not to be dismissed just because elections are nearing. Please join me in protest.

Robert Gullette
111 Daniels Rd.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Lawler's Vote

Editors, The Tar Heel:

It is our purpose to write a definitive statement of the obligations and commitments of any school delegation at the State Student Legislature.

Jointly appointed by President Lawler and Vice-President Spearman, a committee composed of Peter Wales, Neal Jackson, Armistead Maupin, and Darst Murphy interviewed applicants prior to making a final selection of the delegation. Selection criteria included knowledge of contemporary affairs, manipulation of parliamentary procedure, ability in thought formulation and verbal argument presentation. In no way was selection based on campus political involvement: witness the selection of three graduate students, all virtually estranged from campus politics.

According to the Constitution of the State Student Legislature Article I, Section 2), "It is understood that the views of the delegates do not necessarily represent the views of their respective student bodies."

It should be clearly understood on the campus that while the delegates were obligated to conduct themselves in accordance with a dignified and responsible representation of this University, they were in no way obligated to reflect an arbitrary standard of "loyalty" to any integrity but their own.

The twelve of us all voted for Spearman in the election of SSL President. Mr. Lawler cast the only UNC vote for Spearman's opponent. We do not agree with Mr. Lawler's choice. But it should be completely obvious that Mr. Lawler had every right, obligation, and privilege to vote for any candidate he might select.

Mr. Lawler was acting in the capacity of a UNC delegation member, and not as the president of the Student Body. So also, were the rest of us acting as members of the UNC delegation, and not as spoksemen for the various interest groups we represent. It should likewise be recorded that Mr. Spearman was not a member of the UNC delegation nor was he functioning as Student Body vice-president; rather he was serving as an SSL officer.

A vote is a personal decision of the voter, and as such, has little to do with group loyalty. We might point out that in many circles, the man who votes against a prevalent movement is not considered a dis unctional perpetrator of shabby stunts, but, is regarded, rather, as a possessor of courage.

For these reasons we feel that the comments of the DAILY TAR HEEL on Mr. Lawler's vote was not only unnecessary but also unjustifiable.

Chairman of the UNC delegation and reporter for the DTH, Mr. Peter Wales, who also voted for Mr. Spearman, has declined to lend his support to this statement.

Most sincerely,
Phil Baddour
Kate Blackwell
Jeff Davis
Bo Edwards
Dick Ellis
Neal Jackson
Martin Lancaster
William A. Lucas
Evelyn Morris
Darst Murphy
Karen Rawling
John C. Ulfelder

Alumnus

Editors, The Tar Heel:

As an alumnus of over twenty years, I think it is about time I wrote a letter to your paper. I remember the days when Old Tom Wolfe edited the paper. Those were the great old days. but I'm really more inteersted in today. Spending a few days in Chapel Hill with my wife, I had an occasion to read the DTH every morning. One day last week I ran across a gem of a letter written by Mr. Arthur. It made me proud of America all over again to know that the freedom of the press still prevails in this land of ours. In Chapel Hill a man has a right to speak and say what he pleases. More than that in Chapel Hill a man has the right to do what he pleases. By God, I've been cooped up here in Littleton, Virginia so long I don't know what total freedom is. If I could come back to Chapel Hill and start over, I mean ALL over, I'd do it today. But since I don't have my way, today I'm leaving.

Now back to Mr. Arthur's letter. When I was in school, the library had its doors. I was sorry to hear that they had been taken down. A man still has a right to all that and all that. Forgive my being personal, but when such intimate news as this gets all the way to Littleton, some people, you might know, are mighty disturbed. I hope that Mr. Arthur has his way. I hope that I have my way. I hope that all other tolerant and intelligent people in my alma mater town will have their way.Then the doors will go back up. And I don't mean back upstairs in the supple house.

Your trustworthy alumnus,

A. L. Goodford
General Delivery,
Littleton, Va.

Other View

Editors, The Tar Heel:

This past weekend in Raleigh at the State Student Legislature there was one thing important lacking in the Carolina delegation—this was failure of the conservatives from Carolina to participate even though the selections Committee was careful to make sure that "the other point-of-view" was represented. Now I personally have nothing against conservatives if they make some sense, but this to me makes no sense at all. In the past it has been the conservatives who have complained the most about the various actions taken by State Student Legislature, yet this time they did not make any attempt to attend and have their opinions on the various issues represented. Armisted Maupin was Co-Chairman of the Selections Committee, but he for some reason could not attend the Assembly in Raleigh and had Will Taylor represent his point-of-view. Unfortunately Will Taylor is not the best substitute and it was Mr. Maupin's responsibility to be there himself. Both Clark Crampton and Borden Parker were selected to be Unofficial Alternates, but for some raeson neither one of them was able to make it over to Raleigh for any of the proceedings.

Up to this point, I have had enough of the conservatives complaining about their unfair representation. Even when they get the chance to be well represented and to present their views, they throw away the opportunity.

John C. Ulfelder

Diatribe

Editors, The Tar Heel:

If "mental anxiety" of the type so ill-concealed in Richard Bynum-Parsons III's Leap Year Diatribe, published in the Febrary 29 edition of the Daily Tar Heel, reflects even a minority concept of the purpose of the Press, then such well meaning but cynical, naive observations worry me.

Because he has tried to keep alive memory and respect for the late President, Mr. Bynum-Parsons deserves praise. But he has crudely gone about it and nakedly exposed, beneath the critic's veneer, a shallow understanding of the real meaning and purpose behind his victims' efforts, as well as the assumption that standards of value and postulates of propriety are his own brittle, untouchable child. Bynum-Parsons has failed to be objective and fair in his interpretation of Loudon Wainwright's Special Report written for Life magazine. He has obscured the message of his letter with private grievances, and backhanded the DTH for reprinting Wainwright's Report; but the issues he raises concern us all. They are an indictment of each of us who in fact made such a "Visit to the Grave" of John F. Kennedy, read Wainwright's article, and stand confirmed that he did an accurate and honest job. He did more than that.

Good Taste is a means to but not the ultimate goal of the written word. Mr. Bynum-Parsons' letter is a strange animal; it focuses upon apathy but never seizes upon its reason for being. It censures those who would endorse the Tar Heel's inclusion of Life's "cheap attempt to play on the sympathy of the American people for financial gain." In fact, we are nearly to suppose the reprint relates to some shrewd integrationist editorial policy!

Hardly more than cursory review of Wainwright's Report of the Arlington Cemetery is essential for the realization that what was recorded, not created, by his visit to the grave is not gluttonous sympathy. All its sublety and truth are aimed at us, not as overt insult to the memory of J.F.K. In short, Mr. Bynum-Parsons resembles Prufrock or Billy Liar, daring himself to accept the fact that the Press does not purport to provide "informative or pleasant reading". Rather, its caliber is determined by how well it exposes to the people the often comical or ugly image of itself. Its purpose is neither to dictate and conform to home brewed notions of Good Taste, nor to conceal the way things are, that some of us may be secure against our own sensitivities.

Wainwright's article has value because it exposes; it shows the awe and curiosity which overcame anyone who took the trouble to make the visit to the grave. Where there was apathy, humor, or feeling, he records it. He offers no more than the very pulse of the occasion to those too lazy or at too great a distance to go. This includes an adult's realization of the difficulty in explaining death to a child, and subtle condemnation of the shutterbugs catching a Great Public Event. But there is no obsession with what Mr. Bynum-Parsons labels "grave-side glories". The candor and respect of the author himself is overt tribute to a man who valued truth so highly he could not remain in Office without demanding recognition of it by the People. Nor would he pretend, like some of us, it wasn't there. To Wainwright. "it was a very simple grave . . . but still, simple as it looked, one could not take it all in. The long, slow walk achieved, there was suddenly too much to see and too little time to see it." The policy of the DTH is admirable. Where apathy and poor taste do abound, only the courage to take a stand, to surpass "accepted" journalistic standards, will prevent their survival.

William M. Garnett
Law School

How's That?

Editors, The Tar Heel:

In the light of the recently passed civil rights bill and President Johnson's strong pushing for it, perhaps this quote would be of interest:

"This civil rights program . . . is a farce and a sham—an effort to set up a police state in the guise of liberty. I am opposed to that program. I fought it in Congress. It is the province of the State to run its own elections. I am opposed to the anti-lynch bill because the Federal government has no more business enacting a law against one form of murder than another. I am against the FEPC because if a man can tell you whom to hire, he can tell you whom not to employ. I have met this head-on."—Lyndon B. Johnson, Austin, Texas, in 1948, as quoted in the Texas Observer.

Thurman L. Smith
209 W. Franklin St.

Move Over!

Editors, The Tar Heel:

I am a gentle man. It takes a great deal to make me angry. At the same time, I have an intense dislike of bureaucrats and their arbitrary and unnecessary fumblings — and too, I am a very sentimental individual—and it is on these two counts that I have become outraged.

The Housing Department has, in the depths of its mechanical soul, decided that I must leave my present room (115 Avery) after this semester, so that the resident advisor may live there next fall; they have very graciously allowed me an opportunity to move to the present advisor's room (114 Avery). This is all very nice—except that I don't want to move. I have lived in this room for two and one-half years—it is my home, my very womb—I have said that I am a sentimental man, and the little things that I have in life mean very much to me—they are all that I do have.

In pursuit of changing this rule (thinking foolishly that all men are rational and possess human feeling and understanding), I went to the Office of the Dean of Men—there, I was cut off curtly with "That's the way it is. I'm sorry." I was also told if I didn't like the change I could move out of Avery—which is pretty damned considerate of them.

Generally speaking, I'm a fairly irrational individual — but in matters such as this, I am willing to listen to reason and to cooperate—so I asked what was the rationale behind this shift—the two rooms are situated on the first floor, flanking opposite sides of the lobby, and both are in three-room suites. The only difference in the two rooms is that my present one is smaller and does not have desks built into the wall—hence being more convenient for one person than for two—but this should disturb only myself and my roommate, and not the Housing Office or anyone else. It is our inconvenience, which we prefer to live with.

I was told, along with the reason described above, that 115 was a more convenient location for the resident advisor—which is the most ridiculous statement that I have ever heard—the rooms exactly complement each other. In fact, the whole attitude that he expressed was just who the hell are you to have the effrontery to question the Sacred Decrees and Proclamations of the Almighty Housing Office—

I'll say what I am not—I am not No. 515380, to be shuttled around according to the cosmic and unfeeling will of some deadened bureaucrat—I am a conscious individual, independent and used to making my own way—and the frustration of my present futility is very discouraging—to know that I can do nothing but curse South Building, as the pompous bureaucrats continue unquestioned to shuffle the numbers that were once beings of flesh and blood.

Larry Lepionka
115 Avery

Heelprints

As any good Kite Contest will prove, a kite in the air is worth two in a tree.

* * *

Definition: Chair — headquarters for the hindquarters.

* * *

We notice that the S. C. Legislature has voted to change the name of Clemson College to Clemson University. Well, a high school by any other name . . .

* * *

Then there's the Billy Cunningham doll—you wind it up and it plays like an All-American.

* * *

Why do they call it the 5 O'clock rush hour when you sit in your car for half an hour waiting for traffic to move 10 feet?

* * *

With that mouth of his, our new heavyweight champ should have changed his name to Cassius Say.

* * *

Simile: As dangerous as the intersection of Rosemary and Hillsboro Streets.

ITEMS

Two Recitals Are Presented Today

Two individual recitals, one on piano and one on organ, will be presented by UNC students today in Hill Hall.

Carlene Watson, senior from Brevard, will lead off at 3 p.m. with works of Handel, Beethoven, Chopin and Bartok on the piano.

At 4:30 p.m., Henry Tysinger, a junior from Charlotte, will play Bach's Sixth Trio Sonata and Dupre's "Cortege et Litanie" on the organ, along with works of Dunstable and Sowerby.

The public is invited.

Strauss Music Tonight In GM

It has been said that music soothes the savage beast. And the music of Richard Strauss is ideal to soothe even the most savage of beasts.

Epecially if it's Strauss' "Enoch Arden" as performed tonight at 8 in Graham Memorial Lounge by Joel Carter and Charles Horton.

The DTH mistakenly reported in Friday's paper that the performance would be Friday.

Carter, director of the UNC Men's Glee Club, will read the poem with background piano accompaniment by Horton, chairman of the Music Department at Campbell College.

Don't forget now . . . tonight at 8.

Scholarships Up For Grabs Soon

Candidates for several of the UNC undergraduate scholarships will be coming to the campus on the next three weekends for final interviews.

Interviews for the William Asbury Whitaker Scholarships were held yesterday.

Final interviews for the Herbert North Jackson Memorial Scholarships will be held on the UNC campus, Saturday, March 14. One of these scholarships is awarded each year for four years of study.

On Saturday, March 21, final interviews will be held for the Andrew Bershak Interfraternity Scholarship and the Marvin B. Smith Jr. Memorial Scholarship. The Bershak Scholarship is awarded for four years of study, subject to maintenance of a high scholastic standing.

The Smith Scholarship is awarded for four years, also subject to high scholastic maintenance, to an entering student planning to do major work in the School of Business Administration.

Final interviews for the Alston-Pleasants Scholarship will be held in Louisburg on April 4.

Winners of these scholarships will be announced during the week following each interview.

Accreditation Group Is Here

Carolina is at its spit-and-polish best this week pending an inspecition and accreditation tour by representatives of the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

The visitors will be leaders from outstanding southern universities whose duty it is to reevaluate the accreditation of Southern Association members every ten years.

They will be on campus today through Wednesday as part of the event that the university has been preparing for since February 1962.

Chairman of the Committee is Cecil G. Taylor, dean of the Louisiana State University College of Arts and Sciences. He and other committee members will visit each department, school and section of the university, in addition to studying a "Self-Study Summary Report," prepared by a faculty committee.

The viistors will be the guests of honor at a dinner given by Chancellor William B. Aycock at the Carolina Inn Wednesday.

Late Wednesday, Chairman Taylor will meet with Chancellor Aycock and President William C. Friday to discuss the preliminary conclusions.

Grant Wheeler Gets Scholarship

Grant W. Wheeler of Chapel Hill, graduate of UNC in 1963, has been awarded a Rockefeller Brothers Theological Fellowship for one year's study at an accredited Christian theological seminary.

Wheeler is currently assistant dean of men at the University and was chairman of the Men's Honor Council during his senior year.

The fellowship was one of 67 awarded in a talent search in the United States and Canada. It is an all expense paid fellowship presented on a "trial year" basis.

Wheeler has made no plans for use of the felowship.

'So I Got The Kite, Where's The Wind?'

—'Careers For Carolina' Held Friday—

(Continued from Page 1)

of Charlotte, emphasized the emerging role of the city in state affairs.

He listed a few of the numerous urban services which are performed every day, and cited the employment of 24,000 persons by North Carolina cities in 1963.

"By 1980, three-fourths of the total in the United States will live in metropolitan areas," Veeder said. "We will need more people to fill our ever increasing staffs."

Afternoon panel discussions of state government's activities featured many speakers on numerous topics.

Institute of Government Director John Sanders headed a discussion of government administration.

The problems of city and county management were described by Carl Johnson, manager of Guilford County. The Institute's Robert Stipe spoke on city and county planning.

Claude Caldwell, supervisor of the North Carolina Merit System, covered the difficulties of personal administration. He emphasized the necessity for rewarding civil servants for good performance.

The second panel, headed by Student Body President Mike Lawler, was devoted to problems in North Carolina education.

Chancellor William B. Aycock spoke of the need for incresaed development in North Carolina colleges. He said by 1970 only one-half of the needed professors will be available.

Chapel Hill School Superintendent Howard Thompson told the group that low salaries are the greatest detriment to public school education. He called for more specialization among school officials and a greater public interest in school problems.

I. E. Ready, director of the Department of Community Colleges, urged the state provide low cost public education facilities for students past the twelfth grade.

At the present time, 21 of these "community colleges" are in operation in North Carolina. They charge $120 tuition for nine months and have an open door admission policy.

Student Body Vice President Bob Spearman chaired the panel discussing social services.

Dorothy Kiester of the Institute of Government stressed the role of welfare in the state, giving particular emphasis to "putting the floor under minimum living conditions."

The transition from punitive prisons to correctional ones was outlined by the Institute's Ben Overstreet. He told of the new program to keep young offenders from becoming hardened criminals.

The fourth discussion group, headed by the Student Party's Student Legislature Floor Leader Phil Baddour, was concerned with economic development in the state.

The problems in attracting new industries to the state were described by Russell Hanson of the State's Department of Conservation and Development. He said 4.5 per cent of North Carolinians are unemployed and the state must find 30,000 new jobs each year merely to maintain this level.

Travel information expert Ted Davis spoke of the need for conservation of mineral resources and the development of the state's potential as a resort area.

"North Carolina has the greatest potential for development in the South," Davis said.

Associate Professor of Sociology and Anthropology H. D. Sessoms called recreation on a national level "big business."

Sessoms said that as recreational time becomes a status symbol, leisure will become a consumer product.

Lanny Shuff, coordinator of the program, expressed his thanks to those who helped him arrange the schedule.

UN INTERVIEWS

Interviews for the UN seminars will be held Wednesday through Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the YMCA-CCUN office. Positions are open for those concerned with the United Nations and the student's role in UN activities.

UNC Drill Team Sweeps Competition

ROBERT THOMPSON, commander of the UNC AFROTC Drill Team Smiles through a wet uniform after being thrown in Woollen Pool yesterday after his unit beat five other state colleges in Area Drill Competition. The UNC team will compete in the Cherry Blossom Festival later this spring.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

PERRY IN BRAZIL

Arnold Perry, dean of the UNC School of Education, is currently in Brazil as a member of an educational investigating team inspecting teacher education programs and elementary and secondary administrative procedures in that country.

A report prepared by the team will be used by the U. S. and Brazil in appraising projects in the Alliance for Progress program.

The three-member team was selected by the National Education Association (NEA). The NEA has a contract with the Agency for International Development (AID) to select teams of educators to evaluate AID educational programs in foreign countries.

A. S. L. L. P. T. F
"G.D.I. Paradise"
Coming Soon

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

ARMS AND THE MAN RELATED DISCUSSION

March 9, 1964 (Monday)

Place: Alpha Delta Pi
Time: 5:45
Leader: Dr. Robert Sitton
Place: Chi Omega
Time: 5:45
Leader: Dr. David Brown
Place: Pi Beta Phi
Time: 5:45
Leader: Dr. George Daniel
Place: Alpha Gamma Delta
Time: 5:45
Leader: Dr. Douglas Sessoms

Terry Says 'No Reds' At Schools

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPI) — The FBI has reported no Communists or Communist sympathizers could be found on the campus of state-supported universities, Gov. Terry Sanford said Saturday.

Speaking to a statewide meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the governor said, "the FBI recently reported to me there is not one single Communist or Communist sympathizer on any faculty, nor a communist sympathizer in any student body of any state-supported university or college in North Carolina."

Sanford, commending the Jaycees for their effort to improve education, said, "having been an agent of the FBI, I have complete confidence in its ability to keep a constant eye on subversive activities."

Sanford spoke at the Third Annual Jaycee Day in the statehouse here, attended by some 500 to 600 Jaycees from all over the state.

Freshman Class Weekend Delayed

Forget it. It's been postponed.

The Freshman Class weekend will not be March 13 and 14 as originally scheduled, according to class president Jim Brame.

The weekend has been rescheduled for the second week in May. The definite date will be announced later.

For Sale

FOR SALE: REASONABLE PRICE, B and L Monocular microscope and case. Approved by medical and dental schools. Call 968-6096 after six.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

SPU — 12:30 p.m., Lenoir, Dr. Mann. "Reflections of an Expacifist."
Order of the Old Beanbirds—3 p.m., SAE House.
Hillel College Bowl Interfraternity Competition — 3 p.m., Hillel House.
Westminster Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., worship; 6 p.m., supper; 6:45 p.m., program "Sex in Context," Presbyterian Student Center.
Graduate Newman Club — 8:30 p.m., Catholic Student Center.
Newman Club — 6 p.m., St. Thomas More Hall, supper and discussion.
CPU — 7:30 p.m., Grail Room, membership interviews, address by Daniel H. Pollitt on the Civil Rights Bill.
Umstead Hosp. Comm — 1:30 p.m., Y-Court.
Butner Comm. — 1:30 p.m. Episcopal Church.
SP Membership Comm. — 2 p.m., 205 Alumni, all district chairmen please attend.
Senior Recital — 3 p.m., Hill Hall, Carlene Watson, pianist.
Junior Recital — 4:30 p.m., Hill Hall, Henry W. Tysinger, organist.
Canterbury Club — 6 p.m., Episcopal Church, supper and movie, "Picnic."
Jr. Class Cabinet — 7 p.m., Woodhouse.
Student Advisory Board — 7 p.m., RP III, if members can not attend call Larry Ford, 942-6004.
All persons interested in being interviewed for freshman co-ordinator sign up at GM information desk; interviews will be held Tues.-Thurs. from 3-5 p.m.
UP Executive Comm. — 7:30 p. m., Grail, interview for vacancy in TM III.
Wesley Foundation — 8 p.m., Gerrard, James Holmes, "Experiences with the Peace Corps in Colombia," to be followed by coffee at the Wesley House.
Petite Musicale — 8 p.m., Dr. Joel Carter in the melodrama "Enoch Arden," Charles Horton, accompanist.
Society of Janus — 9 p.m., Woodhouse.

WRC INTERVIEWS

Interviews will be held Tuesday through Thursday for the Women's Residence Council Freshman Coordinator.

The Freshman Coordinator is a new position created this year to serve on the Women's Residence Council. The coordinator is to work with freshmen as an advisor and coordinator for freshman activities.

"Those interested in the position are urged to sign up for an interview at the Graham Memorial Information Desk," said unhappy Alison.

MOVIES

Carolina—The Prize
Varsity — America, America
Cinema — A Summer to Remember.

MONDAY

Intramural Softball Rules Clinic — 301-A Woollen, Mon.-Wed.
Order of the Old Beanbirds — 7 p.m., Goody Shop.
Men's Council — 4-5 p.m., SG Office, interviews for vacancy in fraternity district.
SG Course Evaluation Comm. — 4:30 p.m., Woodhouse, organizational meeting.

SP Nominates Spring Officers On Mar. 17-18

The nomination convention of the Student Party will be held March 17-18, chairman Paul Dickson announced yesterday.

The party will nominate candidates for positions in Student Legislature, Student Government, NSA and the Senior Class.

Dickson told the DTH the nominations were open to all those who chose to seek them. "We have no executive committee which approves candidates seeking the positions. Our procedure is strictly democratic with everything done in convention."

The SP will meet Tuesday night at 7 in Gerrard Hall to fill a seat vacated in Student Legislature. The seat, vacated by Judy Frieder, is open to residents of Cobb Dormitory.

Also featured at the meeting will be a panel discussion of "What's Wrong with the Tar Heel." DTH co-editor Dave Ethridge will speak on the panel.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
A BOLD NEW LOOK IN SUSPENSE!
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER presents
PAUL NEWMAN

THE PRIZE
Co-starring
ELKE SOMMER (Glamorous New Star Discovery)
and EDWARD G. ROBINSON
as Dr. Stratman
PANAVISION™ and METROCOLOR

JUMP WITH JOY!
HAPPINESS IS A CONTEMPORARY CARD
Ledbetter Pickard

Big Doings at the Intimate!
Spring Bargains
The big feature table is loaded with shiny new books — books you've yearned for and couldn't quite afford. Now they're on the bargain table at low prices.
Quantities are limited, and it's first come first served!
New Brush Strokes
A big new shipment of Brush Stroke prints has just come in, and they're waiting for you in the Print Room. This includes lots of new pictures, plus the most popular of the old list.
Spring's coming! Brighten up your walls with a new Brush Stroke reproduction of a famous painting.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.
featuring
RARE ROAST BEEF
4 Meats—7 Vegetables ---------- $2.85
All You Can Eat—It's a Cowboy's Treat
Recommended by Duncan Hines and Gourmet
RANCH HOUSE

PEANUTS

ACROSS
1. Kind of apple
5. Food fish
9. Sooty dirt
10. A TV group
12. Competitor
13. Join
14. Uncle: Scot.
15. Conclude
16. And: L.
17. Enraged
20. Residue of burned material
21. Less difficult
22. Poker stake
23. Railroad: abbr.
24. Exodus: abbr.
25. African river
28. A sudden pain
32. Highest card
33. To judge
34. Carry out
35. Site of Royal Botanic Gardens
36. Hint
37. Silly
39. Cooked, as in an oven
41. Firm
42. Incites
43. Mousers
44. Wanders about idly

DOWN
1. Soviet peninsula
2. Large streams
3. Wine receptacle
4. Chief god: Babyl.
5. Mettle: colloq.
6. Four-inch measure
7. Cuckoo
8. Hate
9. Diving bird
11. River of forgetfulness
15. Blunder
18. Forefather
19. Ever: poet.
20. Indefinite article
22. Central line
24. Greek letter
25. Lowest point
26. Pert. to an icon
27. French article
28. To fasten with needle and thread
29. Made into folds and fastened
30. Bottles for oil and vinegar
31. Pays attention
33. Rewards: poetic
35. Mend, as a bone
38. Moslem title
39. Sack
40. Arab sleeveless garment

Yesterday's Answer

POGO

—Ups And Downs For Tar Heels At Raleigh—

Ronnie Collins Takes Down The Kid

The Lobo, Buzzy Harrison Have A Ball

—Phtos by Jim Wallace

The Kid Goes Up And Jay Buckley Watches Flight

Jack Horn's SPORTS CORN

A Strange Result

The kite contest at Chapel Hill yesterday produced a surprising result, so to speak. Now many people could see no way in which Irving Flickinberry could defeat Simon Ishmael in the major competition, but it happened.

Now anything this surprising must have to be questioned, so to speak. Of course, just because this pillar chose Ishmael, it is not to be taken that this is sour grapes, so to speak. But the fact remains that the contest had an unusual finish, and this leads me to believe that there were extraneous circumstances surrounding the decision—namely, it was fixed.

Many people stood a lot to gain by the fix. The people who ran the contest naturally would get all the benefits of a rematch, which would attract another huge crowd, too. Needless to say, the contestants would stand to gain, so to speak.

Now this pillar believes that the contest was as fixed as the 1960 election.

That ol' cagey fox Everett Case is at it again. This time he deliberately ordered his cagers to toss the game to the Blue Devils in the ACC dribble derby this weekend. Ol' cagey Everett, one of the ol' cagey people of this ol' cagey state, gave his boys the word. Now this corner did lose money on this one too, and needless to say this pillar sort of predicted a State win, but ol' cagey Everett Case crossed us up, so to speak.

As this corner saw, when Pete Auksel took that 40-foot jump shot and missed, it knew it was fixed. And as I said right then to my next-door neighbor (who I always bring to the games on my extra press ticket), "It's a fix."

By the way, have you fans around Tarheelia and the Atlantic Coast Conference cage country noticed, like this corner has, that there haven't been any fisticuffs on the ol' Atlantic Coast Conference hardwood since not-so-cagey ol' Frank McGuire beat it out of Chapel Hill? Of course now it is not that I have any intent of inferring that good ol' Frank was behind any of the tempermental flare-ups of the collegiate roundballers. I was just sorta noticing it as I looked around from my pillar.

Two Great All-Americans

Getting back to the ACC dribble derby, those two great All-Americans, Billy Cunningham and Jeff Mullins, showed the fans just how All-American they are. Of course, everyone has off nights every now and then, and this is, needless to say, the reason for Mullins' somewhat sub-par performance. But they indeed showed their All-American ability by walking off the court together after the Blue Devil game, too.

For my money, I'll take this pair against any in the nation. Put these two together with Denny Ferguson, Wayne Mallard and Brent Kitching, and you have a hard-to-beat combination, too.

Many of us here caught a bit of nostalgia yesterday when Herman 'Fuzzles' Gradood dropped by the office. Longtime Duke fans will remember Fuzzles as the Duke Blue Devils' first All-Conference selection in football wiping. This pillar looks back fondly at the sight of this great star standing on the sidelines at beautiful Duke Stadium wiping off the wet balls and getting them back on the playing field in one motion, so to speak.

Mike Souchak, one of the world's greatest golfers, seems to have broken his slump. Many critics of the former Duke Blue Devil footballer believed him to be washed up, just because he had failed to win any money on the pro tour in 77 tournaments. Mike smashed through the barrier, so to speak, last week when the shot a great final round of 78 to finish 67th in the Carrboro Open, pocketing $3.42.

Comeback In Making

Speaking of comebacks, Roger Craig, Durham's great pitching star, should have a great year now that he is traded to the Cards. The southpaw toiler had the bad luck of being with a terrible team, which accounts for his 5.45 ERA.

He'll be playing with ex-Blue Devil great Dick Groat this year, and this terrific, talented twosome will be hard to beat.

Speaking of baseball, season ticket sales for the Durham Bulls go on sale Monday. Now this is really a worthy cause, and it behooves the town to really get behind this worthy cause so we can keep this high-caliber national pastime here in Durham. And I'll be the official scorer again, and since the team pay $5 per game and the league $7.50 per game to the official scorer, I'll be sure of getting the extra money if everyone will support this worthy cause.

Looking through the cagey ol' mailbag, this cagey ol' pillar finds a cagey ol' letter from cagey ol' Charlie Cranwell, 576 North Mangum St., Durham, who hasn't missed a Dukebluedevil home game in 87 years. Cagey ol' Charlie writes, "Horn, you stink." Now needless to say, this corner is always happy to hear comment about this pillor because this corner realizes that it sometimes writes material too professional for a small town such as Durham, and wants to give the people what they want to hear, even though it is, so to speak, stupid.

In other words, this pillar has been writing so many years (don't be mislead by that picture at the top of this column, it was taken in 1920) that this pillar indeed knows what it is doing, needless to say.

Footballers Battle In This Week's Intramural Action

By PETE GAMMONS

After tomorrow's Peacock-Med School 4 game, the All-Campus tournament will get under way this week culminating the season's basketball action. Neither the Peacocks nor the Doctors will compete in the championship, leaving the Fraternity Blue and White Champs, ATO and Phi Delt-2, and the Dorm Blue and White winners, Ehringhaus-B and the Ehringhaus B Kings, to fight it out.

Monday night at 7:30 Ehringhaus-B and the Kings will square off in a battle of football players. The Blue B's are led by four football stars and the baseball captain. The four gridders are Junior Edge, Eddie Kesler, Frank and Jimmy Gallagher, while baseball captain Bill Haywood rounds out the starting lineup. The kings have been consistently paced by George Boutselis, football captain Gene Sigmon, Sandy Kinney, and Oggie Ogburn. The game should be, to say the least, rough as well as interesting.

Monday's Murals

BASKETBALL PLAYOFFS

Grad Final
Peacocks vs. Med-4 (5:15)
All-Campus Semifinals
Ehringhaus-B vs. Ehringhaus-B Kings (7:30)
ATO Blue vs. Phi Delt-2 White (8:30)

SOCCER

4:00
4—St. A's vs. w/Joyner-Physics
5—Alexander vs. w/Carr-TEP
5:00
4—Everett Rogahs vs. w/Craige A-Kappa Psi
5—w/Aycock-Town vs. w/Craige A-Kappa Psi

Will End Varsity Spring Drills

Alumni Game At Kenan On March 21

By LARRY TARLETON

With the basketball season over and the baseball season two weeks off, there will be a slight lull in varsity sports activities.

The Varsity-Alumni football game shapes up as the top sports attraction of the two-week period. The game, which will pit alumni and this year's seniors against the varsity, is set for Kenan Stadium on March 21.

With many former Carolina greats already lined up for the third annual game, the alumni expect to give the varsity a real battle. After the first two games, the alumni owns a 1-0 advantage, winning the first encounter and playing to a 6-6 tie last year.

Minnesota Viking linebacker and former All-American center Rip Hawkins has agreed to put in another appearance at Kenan Stadium. He camped in the Heel backfield last year as he led a ferocious alumni defense, which stymied the varsity running game.

Joining him will probably be such former greats as Jim LeCompte, Phil Blazer, Ray Farris, Art Wiener, Gib Carson, and possibly, the incomparable "Choo Choo" Justice.

Among this year's seniors who will compete in the game are three performers who have signed pro contracts, Bob Lacey (Minnesota), Junior Edge (Hamilton) and Cole Kortner (Ottawa). Co-captains Gene Sigmon and Roger Smith, John Hammett, Vic Esposito, Jerry Cabe, Jim Alderman and Joe Robinson round out the members from last year's 9-2 team who will switch sides for the game.

Coach Jim Hickey hopes to come up with another tackle and solve his end problems in the game which climaxes his spring practice. The tackle problem is giving Hickey the most headaches as he tries to fill the gap left by Esposito, Kortner and Sigmon. Big John Hill has one of the tackle slots sewed up, but there is a battle royal for the other spot. Joe Churchill, Bob Newman, Henry Sadler and Bob Starczewski are the leading candidates for the position at the moment.

The varsity will be without three-fourths of its starting backfield in the game because Ken Willard, Gary Black and Eddie Kesler have passed up spring practice for baseball. However, Ron Tuthill, Frank Bowman, Hank Barden and Danny Talbott are expected to provide the varsity with a scoring threat.

An uneducated guess at the starting lineup for the varsity would be: Ends—John Atherton and Frank Gallagher, Tackles—John Hill and Bob Newman, Guards—Richy Zarro and Clint Eudy, Center—Chris Hanburger, Quarterback—Danny Talbott, Halfback—Ron Tuthill, Wingback Ronnie Jackson and Fullback—Frank Bowman.

Several of last year's freshmen are expected to push for some of the starting positions. Guards Joe Fratangelo and Dave Erimas, who has been moved to tackle are prime candidates for starting positions.

Peahead Walker, the impish scout for the New York Giants, is telling everyone the rag-mop Beatles remind him of Clemson's Frank Howard as a boy.

"Frank's folks were very poor," explained Peahead, "and they couldn't afford a dog. Instead they allowed Frank's hair to grow and his daily chore was to bark the cows to the barn at night. The animals thought he was a sheep dog. When Frank got bald, he took his present name. He was originally known as Rin-Tin-Tin Howard."

Sunday Sports Shorts

Falcons Honor Three Heels

North Carolina football players received additional honors recently.

The Air Force Academy, victim of a 35-0 defeat at Tar Heel hands in the Gator Bowl, selected its All-Opponent team. Three Carolina players made the list.

Ken Willard, voted the Gator Bowl's MVP, was chosen as a halfback. All-America Bob Lacey rated a spot at end. Center Chris Hanburger, a superlative linebacker, took votes at the pivot.

Willard, who churned for more than 700 yards during 1963, and Hanburger, one of the most rugged players ever to perform for UNC, both return next season.

John Thomas Jumps 6-10

CHICAGO (UPI) — John Thomas, the top high jumper prospect for the U. S. Olympic team, cleared 6 feet 10 inches Friday night to win his event in the 28th Chicago Daily News Relays, retaining his meet title with his third victory in the last five years.

It was the eighth indoor win for Thomas in indoor meets, but in seven of them he cleared greater heights.

Kortner Signs With Ottawa

One of the most underrated linemen in the Atlantic Coast Conference last fall was Cole Kortner, of Greenwich, Conn. Cole played a solid tackle for the Tar Heels, a man of few words and considerable strength.

It was learned this week that Cole has signed a contract with the Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian football league. Thus. Thus he joins Bob Lacey (Minnesota) and Junior Edge (Hamilton) in professional ranks.

Coach Hickey always referred to Kortner as "the old pro." Cole simply did his job, without any frills. One afternoon the coaching staff was showing films. A Carolina lineman made a vicious tackle against the opposition. Kortner said, "Wow!"

Coach Hickey stopped the film. Said he: "That must have been a good play. First time Kortner has expressed himself all year."

THE WAY TO DO IT PIEDMONT

When the thing is travel—take a Piedmont Pacemaker. Flying lets you spend your holiday at home or vacationing with friends, instead of on the road. And it's economical, too. Save 75% of your return fare, with the Piedmont Xcursion Plan! Just leave on Saturday, and return any Saturday or Sunday within 30 days. Check on convenient schedules and thrifty fares the next time you travel. Call Piedmont Airlines.

PIEDMONT AIRLINES

ELIA KAZAN'S "AMERICA AMERICA" is the "best American film of the year!" NEWSWEEK HOLLIS ALPERT, SATURDAY REVIEW JUDITH CRIST, HERALD TRIBUNE

Nominated for 7 GOLDEN GLOBE AWARDS including BEST DRAMA, BEST ACTOR—Stathis Giallelis, BEST DIRECTOR—Elia Kazan.
"PICTURE OF THE MONTH!"—Seventeen Magazine
"A GLOWING ACHIEVEMENT!"—Good Housekeeping

Starring STATHIS GIALLELIS - Written, Produced and Directed by ELIA KAZAN
(Warner Bros.' magnificent soundtrack album now available) Presented by WARNER BROS.

Shows at 12:30 - 3:30 - 6:30 - 9:30

Varsity NOW PLAYING

Old Spice—with that crisp, clean masculine aroma!

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.
★ ★ ★

British Edition

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
Fewer clouds and cooler.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, MARCH 10, 1964 | United Press International Service

Speaks On Civil Liberties

Kentucky's Senator Cooper Will Address Symposium

By SUZANNE MICAUD

John Sherman Cooper, U.S. Senior Senator from Kentucky, will speak here Monday, April 6, for the Carolina Symposium.

Senator Cooper's topic "Civil Liberties and National Security", emphasizes the effect of increased security on civil rights.

Senator Cooper, a Republican, was elected to the Senate in 1960 by the largest majority Kentuckians have ever given any candidate for any office. He is a member of four Senate committees: Rules and Administration, Agriculture and Forestry, Public Works and the Select Committee on Small Business.

He is a former ambassador to India, a consultant to the Secretary of State and a member of the judiciary.

An article in the May, 1962 issue of Harper's terms Senator Cooper "The Thinking Man's Politician."

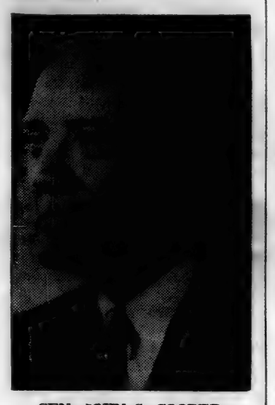
William S. White, author of this article, writes: "In his quiet way he is attempting to provide a rallying point for those parts of the Republican party — call them 'liberal' or 'moderate' or what not—which he fears are being outtalked and possibly outmaneuvered by the gusty virility of what is now called Goldwater Republicanism."

The article summarizes Cooper's three fundamental beliefs which he considers to be the fundamental principles of the Republican Party. These are civil rights, fiscal soundness, and an internationalist mind.

Shortly after having received his B.A. from Yale and his law degree from Harvard, Senator Cooper entered politics. In 1928 he was elected to a term in the Lower House of the Kentucky Legislature. He next became a judge, being appointed Circuit Judge in 1945.

A year later Senator Cooper was elected to the U.S. Senate to fill the unexpired term of A. B. (Happy) Chandler, but he was defeated for re-election. In 1952 he again was elected to complete an unexpired term and again defeated when he ran for a full term in 1954.

His third election to complete an unexpired term came in 1956. In 1960 he was elected for a full term.



SEN. JOHN S. COOPER

Cyprus Leader Here Thursday For Conference

Zenon Rossides, United Nations ambassador from Cyprus, Mediterranean hot spot, will address the 14th annual Conference on World Affairs Thursday at Memorial Hall.

Cyprus is currently on the verge of civil war. The heaviest fighting in three weeks broke out yesterday and Turkey renewed its warning that it would intervene on behalf of the minority Turkish Sypriots if the present fighting continues.

ROSSIDES

Rossides will take time from his ambassadorship duties to address the Conference at an early morning meeting on the subject of "World Peace."

Following his address will be one by Mrs. Katie S. Louchleim, deputy secretary of state for public affairs and by Dr. Eugene Pfaff, professor of the Dept. of History.

Officers of the North Carolina Council on World Affairs, representing 20 men's and women's organizations in the state will participate in the day-long program.

In program will begin with two films entitled "The Only War We Seek" and "A Place in the Sun."

Students are to be admitted free of charge as guests of the North Carolina Council on World Affairs.

JOB SEMINAR

A Summer Job Seminar will be held Tuesday, March 10 at 4:30 p.m. in 105 Gardner Hall. Students interested in camp, resort, sales, or park jobs are especially encouraged to attend.

CR Bill In Senate; Battle Royal Starts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield moved formally Monday to call up the administration's civil rights bill, triggering an historic Senate battle over racial equality.

The Montana Democrat made his motion after urging the Senate to "seek the national good in its noblest terms" by acting on the House-passed legislation.

Mansfield said it is time for the Senate to follow the lead of the courts, private groups, the House and the President to correct the "oldest and most dangerous faults in the structure of this nation."

His motion came after Sen. Richard B. Russell, (D-Ga.) leader of the Southern bloc opposing the bill, spoke at length against the bill after using an opening parliamentary delaying tactic.

Mansfield first tried to call the bill up by unanimous consent. But Sen. Lister Hill, (D-Ala.), one of the Dixie floor captains, quietly intervened saying: "I'd have to object to that."

Mansfield then formally made a motion to call up the bill dealing with voting, employment, public accommodations, education and other rights for Negroes.

He urged the Senate to debate the bill "as long as is necessary for all views to be presented and argued." After that, he said, "I implore the Senate to vote on it."

The outnumbered but fiercely determined Southerners opened the debate with a scathing attack on the bill and its supporters who, they say, "ride the wave of emotion and prejudice."

Russell vowed "no compromise" as he led his forces into what may be the most critical legislative battle in a presidential election year.

Both sides squared off for possibly months of debate on the Kennedy-Johnson measure proposing tough new safeguards against discrimination in voting, education, employment, use of federal funds and access to public places.

The bill was approved by the House a month ago by a 290-130 vote, with substantial Republican support.

As soon as the Senate convened Monday, Russell unveiled a well-greased war machine combining intricate parliamentary maneuvering and longwinded oratory.

"We will fight to the last ditch," said Russell before he went on the Senate floor. Mansfield warned of gradually longer hours, starting with Saturday sessions this week.

Russell, head of the Southern Sen. Hill complained loudly that block, and his lead-off speaker, traditional Senate procedures had been ignored in the haste for action on the bill.

PICKET(?) ARRESTED

A UNC sophomore was arrested and charged with public drunkenness Saturday night while relieving one of the pickets in front of the Tar Heel Sandwich Shop.

The student had been warned once by a police officer to move away but failed to do so.

He then asked one of the picketers if he was tired and if he could replace him for a while.

The officer returned, found the student picketing and arrested him.

He was released on $25 bond later that night.

DTH Panel At SP Meet

The Student Party will sponsor a panel discussion on "What's Wrong with the Daily Tar Heel" at 7:30 p.m., tomorrow in Gerrard Hall.

Participating on the panel will be DTH Co-Editor Dave Ethridge, DTH Managing Editor Fred Seely, and one dormitory and one fraternity resident.

A meeting of the SP scheduled for tonight was cancelled.

SP Chairman Paul Dickson has asked that anyone interested in running for a student government office, NSA delegate or Student Legislature should contact Dickson, Lanny Shuff, Jeff Davis or Phil Baddour as soon as possible.

Supreme Court Taps Law Grad For Coveted Job

George C. Cochran, Editor in Chief of the North Carolina Law Review, has been awarded a clerkship for the U.S. Supreme Court effective August 1, 1964.

It is believed to be the first time in history that a graduating student in any North Carolina law school has been selected for the coverted appointment. Only 19 clerks serve the Supreme Court.

Cochran received confrimation this week of his selection as full-time clerk for retired Justices Stanley Reed and Harold Burton. He will also devote part of his time as clerk for Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Dean Henry Brandis of the Law School said he was "very pleased from the standpoint of both George and the school.

Professor Daniel Pollitt of the UNC Law School called the clerkship "the most prestigious, sought-after job of a graduating law student."

Justice Reed is still active on the lower court benches, being subject to appointment to special terms in the Court of Claims and Appellate Court for the District of Columbia to clear heavy dockets.

Justice Burton no longer sits in the federal court due to ill health but, with Reed, maintains offices in the Supreme Court building.

The appointment is for a one-year period but may be continued for a second year at the discretion of the justices.

Cochran said his time will be devoted to petitions of appeal and certiorari made to the courts in which Justice Reed sits, and in the Supreme Court through his joint work with two other clerks who serve the chief justice.

Scholastic achievement is the chief criteria for the selection but historically the bulk of the appointments have gone to students from such schools as Harvard, Yale, Notre Dame and the University of California at Berkeley.

Cochran, a native of Mayesville, Ky., is from Justice Reed's home state. Cochran has served on the N.C. Law Review since his first year in the law school and, on the basis of being the top man in his class, was selected to be its editor for 1963-64.

He went to preparatory school at Cranbrook School in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., then attended N.C. State College in Raleigh where he majored in textile management.

Cochran served in the United States Army from 1958 to 1961, the latter year being the year he enrolled in the law school at the University of North Carolina.

As a first and second year student in the law school, Cochran worked with the Institute of Government redrafting the mental health laws for the State of North Carolina. He is a member of Delta Theta Legal Fraternity.

'No Speaker Ban' Says Stansbury

Ray Stansbury, the banjo-picking grocer from Hillsboro, became the first gubernatorial candidate to come out against the speaker ban Saturday.

"These people in Raleigh think they can fool the people of North Carolina," Stansbury said. "They point at the teacher and try to blame the teacher for . . . something. It's a sad day."

Stansbury said he trusted President Friday to decide which speakers should be allowed to speak.

Mistrial Called For Wynn; Jury Hopelessly Deadlocked

By JEFFREY DICK

HILLSBORO — A mistrial was declared yesterday in the case of Dr. William Wynn, UNC assistant professor of psychology.

★ ★ ★

Six Are Charged With Conspiracy

The Orange County Grand Jury returned a true bill of indictment yesterday, charging six persons with "conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor.

The six — Tom Bynum, Ben Spaulding, John Dunne, Quentin Baker, and Buddy Tieger — were charged with having "induced Duke professor Robert Osborn to trespass at Watts Restaurant on the night of Jan. 3."

In charging the Grand Jury at the start of the present special session of Orange County Superior Court, Judge Raymond B. Mallard specifically admonished the jury to investigate such charges.

The six are charged with inducing Osborn to trespass in the case where he has been found guilty and sentenced to 60 days on the roads. Osborn's conviction is currently pending appeal.

Fall Dean's List Released By BA

Dean Maurice W. Lee of the School of Business Administration has named the following students as eligible for the Dean's List for the Fall Semester, 1963:

Thomas Barrier, Chad Barringer, William Benson, William Blum, William Boone, Joseph Branley, Nowlan Brown, Barry Carroll, Emmett Cline, Wayne Cline, Robert Corder,

Donald Creech, James Davis, James Duggins, Gerald Gaither, Eric Goldby, Earl Good, Eleanor Greene, Joseph Hahn, Thomas Harney, Herbert Harriss, Neill Hines, Elizabeth Hotchkin, Edwin Howard, Joe Jones, Max Jones, Richard Jones, Ronald Lambe, Bobby Langston,

Jerry Little, George Lockhart, Willis Lawrence, John

(Continued on Page 3)

The declaration came after the jury had remained divided eleven to one for the day and a half's duration of its deliberations.

The lone dissenter on the jury was Otha Thompson, a Negro and NAACP member who continually voted for a not guilty verdict.

Wynn was tried for trespass growing out of an anti-segregation protest at Watts Restaurant on Jan. 3. In an earlier trial, Dr. Robert Osborn, a Duke Professor was found guilty after a ten-minute deliberation on an identical charge concerning the same sit-in. Osborn was sentenced to 60 days on the roads.

Superior Court Judge Raymond B. Mallard sent for the jury shortly before 5 p.m., Monday. They had been in deliberation since noon, Friday.

When asked if they had reached a verdict, the foreman of the jury, David P. Schorr told the court, "No, Your Honor, we have not. We stand eleven and one."

Mallard then asked the jury, "Do you honestly believe you have exhausted every way of reaching a verdict?"

Schorr replied, "I believe we have exhausted every conceivable means toward reaching a verdict."

All jurrors raised their hands when asked to do so by the judge if they agreed with the statement by the foreman.

Thompson, the dissenter, later confirmed the fact that he was a member of the NAACP. "I told them that when I was on the stand."

When asked to elaborate on his reasons for holding the defendant not guilty, he replied, "I ain't gonna 'scuss it no more. We been through that over and over again in the jury room."

Thompson was then asked if he was put under any undue pressure during deliberations. He exclaimed, "Was I!"

Mallard told Solicitor Thomas "Dick" Cooper to prepare for a retrial Monday.

An hour after the jury had retired to the jury room on Friday, Mallard cited Wynn for contempt of court for reading a newspaper in the courtroom. Mallard ordered Wynn to appear before him on Monday to show reason why he should not be found in contempt.

Yesterday morning, Mallard postponed hearing the case "until the jury has reached a verdict." After declaring the mistrial, he told Wynn he "would settle that other matter" after next Monday when the retrial is scheduled to start.

In other action yesterday, a jury was selected for the trial of Dr. Fredrick Herzog, a professor at Duke University, charged with trespass arising from the same sit-in at Watts Restaurant. The state is expected to present its first witness when court reconvenes at 9:30 a.m. today.

Fast Planned By Movement

Local integration leaders are planning a fast starting next week, it was learned yesterday by the Daily Tar Heel.

The fast will probably take place on the lawn of the post office, and would be held in an effort to dramatize the integration movement.

Leaders of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee had no comment yesterday, and would not issue a statement.

Police Chief William D. Blake told the Daily Tar Heel that he heard nothing of the fast, but "if it were to be held on the post office lawn it would be out of our jurisdiction, as that is federal property." He indicated that the FBI would be responsible for the protection of the demonstrators.

If held, the fast would be the first public demonstration in a month. Local integrationists had declared a moratorium several weeks ago, citing improvement in the work of local racial committees, but have lifted the moratorium since.

UNC STUDENT SERIOUSLY HURT IN ACCIDENT

David Hammer, senior from Atlantic, suffered several broken bones and lacerations of the face when his car hit a tree eight miles east of Greensboro on Interstate 85 Saturday night.

Hammer was returning to Chapel Hill shortly after midnight when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel. He was taken to Memorial Hospital in Greensboro.

'J. B.' Opens To Sellout

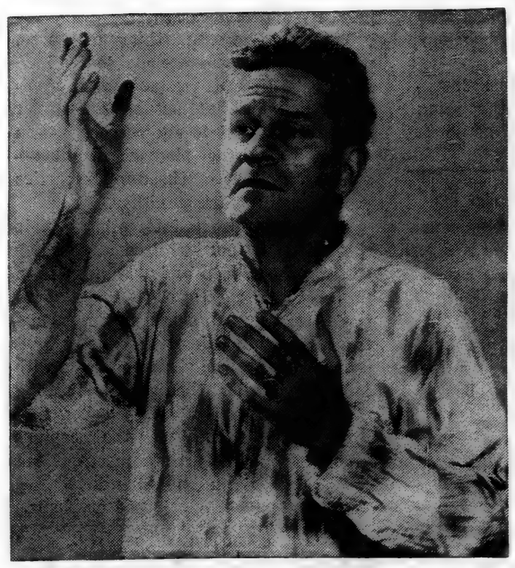
The Carolina Playmaker's production of Archibald MacLeish's Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, "J.B.," will open tonight to a sell-out audience, Playmakers Business Manager John W. Parker announced yesterday.

The Playmakers production, originally scheduled to end its Chapel Hill run on Sunday, has been held over for an additional performance on Monday due to the success of ticket sales. No more tickets are available at the special "student night" price of $1.00.

Featured in the title role is David Hooks, a UNC alumnus, who has become active in the New York theatre on Broadway. Hooks has been brought back to Carolina for this production of the MacLeish play.

Directed by Harry E. Davis, chairman of the Department of Dramatic Art, "J.B." also features UNC students David G. Gullette, Pascal Tone, Harry Callahan, Mickey Blackwell, Hyman Field and Fred L. Trickey in major roles.

Tickets for all performances except this evening's are now on sale at the Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernathy Hall.



David Hooks As "J.B."

ITEMS

Clinard Is New Head Of Cosmopolitan Club

John Clinard, a Ph.D. candidate in Classics, was elected President of the Cosmopolitan Club last Sunday.

Essa Abdulla, a Fulbright scholar from Pakistan and a Ph.D. candidate in chemistry, was elected Vice President.

Other officers include Elizabeth Clark, Secretary, Larry Stern, Treasurer, S. P. Viswannathan, Social Chairman and Abdu Bardawail, Cultural Chairman.

Piano Concert In Hill Hall

Barbara Blegen will give a piano concert tonight at 8 in Hill Hall.

Miss Blegen is sponsored by the Tuesday Evening Series, and is a scholarship student at Philadelphia's Curtis Institute of Music.

She will begin her presentation with a selection from Mozart and continue with Beethoven, Chopin and Debussy.

Admission is free.

Language Lecture Features Shwayder

Dr. David Shwayder will speak "On Defining Language" tonight at 8 in 213 Caldwell Hall.

Shwayder, a Philosophy Colloquium guest lecturer, is a visiting associate professor of philosophy at UNC on leave of absence from the University of California at Berkeley.

The lecture is open to the public.

Planetarium Opens Easter Presentation

The Morehead Planetarium has announced their new program, "Easter the Awakening." This is the 15th season for the narrated sound-and-light depiction of the beginning of the world.

The first half of the program is devoted to a description of the Biblical references to the science of astronomy. The celestial half concludes with a short history of the date of Easter.

"Easter the Awakening" is presented weekdays at 8:30 p.m.; Saturdays at 11 a.m., 3, 4, and 8:30 p.m.; and Sundays at 2, 3, 4 and 8:30 p.m. including Palm and Easter Sundays. Extra performances will be given at 3 p.m. on Good Friday and Easter Monday.

The Planetarium is open daily for visitors to see the current art and science exhibitions, without charge.

Art, Architecture In Seminar Tonight

"Art and Architecture of Europe" will be the subject of this week's seminar sponsored by Seminars Abroad. The program is being held for all students who will travel in Europe this summer.

It will be held in 115 Ackland tonight at 9 p.m. Dr. John Schnorrenberg wll be the speaker, and will illustrate his lecture with slides.

University Party Sets Convention For Sunday

Jeff Adams, University Party Chairman, yesterday announced that the UP will hold its annual spring convention Sunday night at 6:30 in Carroll Hall.

At that time, nominations will be made for Student Body president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer; student legislature; Senior Class officers; and NSA delegates.

Nominations for all offices will follow UP procedures with the exception of legislature, where the party Executive Committee will submit a list of candidates for the convention's approval. At that time, any persons wishing to contest certain positions or nominate new candidates may do so.

Anyone interested in seeking UP endorsement for any of positions is urged to call Adams at 968-9063.

Adams also said that a letter will be sent to each residential area advising party members of the number of delegates they are allotted to the convention.

UNC Debate Team Goes To Regionals

By JOHN GREENBACKER

The UNC Debate Team has been selected as one of the ten teams in the South to attend regional competition of the West Point National Debate Tournament. This is the first time in its history that the team has been so honored.

Debate Team Captain Haywood Clayton and freshman Bob Powell will be the participants at the regional competition, to be held in Atlanta.

Clayton has a three year record of 69 wins and 41 losses, and Powell has a record of 20 wins and 8 losses. Powell is a former winner of North Carolina High School debate competition.

Each school will debate with the teams of the nine other schools participating in the tournament, and will argue both sides of the topic.

The other nine schools UNC will face are South Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Duke, Emory, Vanderbilt, Carson-Newman and Wake Forest.

The winner of the regional competition will go into the finals at West Point, New York.

In previous encounters this year the UNC team has defeated the United States Military Academy, Duke, William and Mary, Stanford, Wisconsin, Brooklyn and Chicago.

UNC director of debate Dr. Donald Springen has described the West Point National as "the closest thing we have to a true national tournament."

"It's just like basketball," Springen said, "you don't know how it's going to turn out."

Senators Assail Loan Swindlers

News Analysis

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Two angry midwestern Senators this week launched an attack on what they termed "outrageous and incredible" interest rates charged for U.S. college and university student loans.

Initiating a plan to clamp a limit on interest rates charged for student loans was Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind.). Hartke, who has introduced legislation providing massive college student aid including low-interest commercial loans, said some commercial lenders are charging as much as 60 per cent interest annually.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), told CPS that he will introduce a bill holding interest rates charged for college student loans to a maximum of nine per cent annually.

Hartke said some of the commercial firms were "unknowingly recommended by college authorities without realization of their ownership or usurious terms."

Named by Hartke as charging 60 per cent annual interest was the Tuition Plan, Inc. of New York, a subsidiary of C. I. T. Financial Corp.

In a Congressional Record statement, Hartke explained the firm's operation this way:

"The plan will furnish a student $500 a semester for eight semesters in return for a fixed service charge of $240 (the total) paid, at $106 a month for 40 months beginning a month after the first advance.

"The student or his parents repays $530 on a $500 advance during each of the first two semesters and then repays (during the summer) $212 before the start of the third semester.

"This means the third advance is only $288 plus the $212 which has been prepaid.

"By the beginning of the third year, the parent is given $424 of his own money back and a $76 advance to equal $500. Still, the monthly payments of $106 continue until the parent receives no more advances but is given back his own money for the final two semesters."

Hartke also named other firms charging the high interest rates with similar programs. They included Education Funds, Inc. of Providence, R. I., a Household Finance Corp. subsidiary, which Hartke said charged as much as 54 per cent annually in interest.

His study showed that federal (including the National Defense Education Act (NDEA)), state and other non-profit student loan rates ranged from 3 to 6 per cent.

"There can be no question of the need for more favorable loan terms," Hartke said.

Sen. Douglas, a former Chicago University economist, said he would propose his maximum nine per cent interest rate as an amendment to the NDEA Act.

It would provide that "no education institution participating in the NDEA loan act may also participate in or cooperate with" any private college-loan program charging students more than 9 per cent a year.

Douglas said he was astonished "at the high rates charged even by institutions which proudly proclaim they are low-cost lenders." He cited the 11-plus per cent interest rates charged by "typical" banks in Allentown, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio.

But, Douglas said the worst offenders were "small loan and finance companies which have established subsidiaries with philanthropic sounding names.

Volume 72, Nnmber 113 Tuesday, March 10, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel
71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Intrepid Strom In Foul Territory

It has been almost two weeks since we had heard from or heard of Senator Strom (Forget Hell!) Thurmond and we were getting worried about his whereabouts and health and other sundry misfortunes which might have beset him. Actually we didn't worry too much since we figured he was just off in seclusion rehearsing for the debut of the impending filibuster, but it has sort of kept us on edge.

But now the silence is broken and Old Reliable Strom is back in the news and all is right with the Tar Heel office. The first little dribble came in a few days ago as it was disclosed that the Senator had recently issued an appeal for funds for the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF,—the other group on campus that pickets).

YAF is a loudly self-proclaimed patriotic, anti-communist, conservative youth group of the more irrational garden variety. Thurmond, in a letter on Senate stationery, asked for contributions for the organization so that it might establish chapters on 1,000 college campuses. He said, "A YAF chapter will prepare a young man or woman for the struggle ahead with liberalism, socialism, and communism. In making addresses on various campuses across the country I have been impressed with the decided difference in the atmosphere where YAF chapters are in existence." There's a chapter here and we're impressed too.

To a man like Senator Thurmond the YAF gambit is just small potatoes in his news-making bag of tricks, but late last week he hit his stride and yesterday morning he was back in the headlines in his old championship form. The story is pretty complicated, but worth retelling since it does seem to comment rather well on the shoddy morality which currently guides some of our senators.

It all started when an Army medic, Major Erich Ryll, tried to buy a house in Frederick, Md., from Dr. Robert Crouch. The deal fell through, but Dr. Crouch would not return a $900 payment Ryll had made and so the Major sued.

Unfortunately for Major Ryll, Dr. Crouch is Senator Thurmond's brother-in-law. Now the Senator is not only the Army's biggest gun in the Senate, but he also happens to be a major general in the reserves during his spare time; and using his Senate position, he has had few, if any, qualms about making the Army jump through hoops at his slightest whim.

Shortly thereafter, Major Ryll was up before his Army superiors answering sharp questions about the lawsuit. His wife said the Army might transfer her husband just to placate Strom. Col. Dan Crozier, Ryll's immediate superior, confirmed that the Senator had called, but said it was just to find out whether Ryll was on permanent or temporary duty. Ryll's base commander, Col. Carl Casto, verified that he had been asked to submit a full report on Ryll by Lt. Col. James McNab at the Pentagon.

McNab would only say that he was doing what he was told, but would not say who told him.

Later, an Army spokesman assured the press that Senator Thurmond had not instigated the inquiry but that the Army had acted on a written complaint from a completely different source. The spokesman also said that Major Ryll was in no danger of being transferred. The next day Ryll was quietly told he could expect a transfer in June.

It turned out that the Senator had called the Pentagon and complained about Ryll, but it was also true that the Army had received a written complaint from David H. Kennedy of Williston, S.C.

David H. Kennedy is Strom Thurmond's other brother-in-law.

If the good South Carolina Senator is interested in keeping the Senate sacrosanct, virtuous and strong, he better wash out some of his dirty laundry. Right now the Senate is just strong; so strong you can smell it in Altoona.

Our Readers Go Fly Kites

To those of our readers who labored in the dust and heat Saturday attempting to fly their kites in our first annual Kite Contest, and to those who simply came to sympathize, we say "Thank You."

When we began the contest sponsorship we wondered whether the thing would ever get off the ground at all. It did, thanks to the marvelous spirit shown by contestants, judges, and the merchants who so graciously donated prizes. We 'preciate it.

The most important thing, of course, was that everyone seemed to be having a good time. It was somewhat significant to note that neither the Di nor the Phi managed to fly very high,—an ill omen for the planned disunion—and that neither of the campus parties were exactly soaring, either.

But it was just as interesting to note the fierce but good-natured competition between dorm men and fraternity men, liberals and conservatives, and even perfect strangers. There may be something worth nothing in the fact that people will naturally string along with each other when the issue is nothing more than how to enjoy a beautiful spring day. It could be that campus leaders should hold their meetings out of doors on warm, gorgeous days.

Might just solve a lot of problems.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor ..... Fred Seely
Associate Editor ..... Hugh Stevens
News Editors ..... Mickey Blackwell
Peter Wales
Copy Editor ..... Linda Riggs
Sports Editor ..... John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor ..... Larry Tarlton
Photo Editor ..... Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken

No Sleeping Down Front

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

"Why don't people take seats in the front rows?" a school superintendent recently asked me just before a lecture. "The teachers are just like the kids—they'd rather crowd in back than fill the first rows."

I had noticed this many times myself when giving a talk. Most people prefer to sit up front while watching a movie or play or other such entertainment—but for a lecture, they want to be as far back as possible.

This old tendency, I think, can be explained as a form of reverse modesty, as a way of avoiding embarrassing the speaker if he is dull or verbose or tries to be funny and falls flat.

Watching a show, we are not looking at characters being themselves but someone else. A lecturer, however, is nobody but himself in his naked essence. There is no writer, no editor, no producer, no cosumer to blame for his failure.

If he turns out to be a dreary speaker, the people sitting in the front rows (usually the only ones he can see) reflect his failure in their expressions and postures. They yawn or whisper or squirm or simply sit glassy-eyed with ennui. And he can feel this like a slap in the face.

The refusal to sit in front is a display of the tribal sense of delicacy; we do not unnecessarily want to shame anyone who is performing badly in his own person. This is why an audience in a darkened hall is much more comfortable than one in a lighted auditorium. We can evince displeasure without discourtesy.

Actually, to a trained performer, even darkness cannot conceal the mood and responsivness of the audience. An actor can "smell" the reatcion of any audience a few minutes after his appearance on the stage. He knows when they are neutral, when they are irretrievably lost. An audience gives off a collective psychic "odor" which an atcor can sense the way a dog can tell fear in a stranger.

Along with guilt, shame is one of the most powerful of human emotions. We are so apprehensive of being shamed that it even embarrasses us to make others feel ashamed. In order to avoid this possibility, we remove ourselves as far as we decently can from the orbit of an unknown speaker who might make a spectacle of himself. (If he is known to be good, of course, everyone wants as close a seat as possible.)

I have perhaps left the most important factor for the last: you can't sleep if you're sitting in the front row, and it's not considered cricket to request the speaker to talk more softly.

Letters To The Editors

Letters Lament MRC And Music

MRC's Vision

Editors, The Tar Heel:

There has been much talk concerning the concept of a "residence college". In a broad sense there are two colleges on every campus. One college is made up of classroom courses for credit which lead to graduation. The other college is made up of student activities carried on outside of class and removed from college requirements. Included in these activities is everything the student does outside the classroom including eating, sleeping, studying, and engaged in student projects whatever the nature. Too often, student life in this other college is overlooked. The residence halls can provide a means of individualizing the university.

The problem in the residence hall is indifference and apathy. Interest and participation in the MRC and residence hall are only being enjoyed by a few. There is no concrete tie or awareness between the residents and the MRC to bind them together. The typical resident doesn't identify with the MRC—an indentification which he is badly in need of. Lack of communication and homogenity is another problem in the resident area.

It takes something more than a residence college to cure these present ills in the residence halls. The MRC, high up in its tree, looked up into the sky and saw a great vision of a "residence hall college". Indeed, this must have some merits. But I wonder whether this bright vision has in some way blinded them. The abundance of floral growth in the tree has in some way prevented them from seeing the ground. Looking down I see rotten fruit and decaying roots at the base. Won't this render the tree ineffective in time? How can the tree grow or expand if it is not fully aware and ignores the ills at its foundations?

Unless we can look upon and evaluate the faults and failures in the residence halls as they are here and now in an objective manner and solve them, then the future will only produce other problems, if anything.

Spirit and interest must be developed within each residence hall. Here lies the essence. I wonder whether we rest our hopes too much upon structure or new social rooms. I think these are false hopes. Spirit for an organization lies in our hearts, and when it dies there no social room can do much to help it; no residence college can save it.

And what is spirit? I cannot define it. I can only tell you in my own words. It is spirit when residents get together. It is spirit when cooperation is shown; it is spirit when residents cheer for their team on the intramural field. It is spirit when college students can say "I am proud of my university." It is this spirit, a spirit which can never be obtained except by the love of the members which help to create it.

The future of the residence hall program exists already in ideas, in hopes, in the minds of many people on this campus. The MRC has an open door to opportunity. It has the greatest potential of any organization on this campus. All it has to do is to awaken to what lies within its grasp. All it has to do is keep its feet on the ground, do some spade work at its base and then reach for that vision in the sky.

Larry Kurland
2 Vance

Music, Music

Editors, The Tar Heel:

This university, for all its fine facilities, is definitely lacking in one area, the School of Music. Only two instruments taught at this university are not at least semi-portable, VIDELICET organ and piano. While the University has seen fit to provide numerous pianos of varying quality, they have failed to provide the music school with a single organ of any musical value. The two practice organs are laughable. Their complete unification and electro-pneumatic action make them valueless for instruction or sincere music. The only justification (and a questionable one at that) for a unified organ is the use of such a instrument in perfecting the student's pedaling and fingering techniques. This is obviously impossible on an electro-pneumatic instrument.

The large "concert" organ in the auditorium is a complete disgrace to our music department. Its unification makes it a musical mockery. Its loud, harsh, thick-tongued voicing robs it of any tonal beauty it could conceivably possess. Its location, buried in chambers and sequestered in the attic, denies the pipes an opportunity to make a musical sound. Their voicing must be so loud for them to be heard that they lack any harmonic definement; they have assumed the nature of truck horns. The stops which are available are worthless without the harmonic corroborative stops that are nonexistent on this farcial construction.

The console and action are electro-pneumatic; this is sufficient to nullify any claims this organ might have to being a musical instrument. Ninety percent of the music played on this instrument cannot be PROPERLY performed on it.

The disgraceful state of the organ department casts aspersions on all the music faculty for their apathy about the Hill Hall organs. It would seem to me that this condition calls for an investigation of the entire music department. Organists cannot be taught properly at UNC; it is inexcusable to graduate anyone from UNC as a qualified organist.

Numerous organ builders, both in the U.S. and in Europe, offer tracker-action organs with classic, polyphonic voicing; it is up to the University Music Department to see that such an instrument is installed on this campus.

Richard Bynum-Parsons III
505 Ehringhaus Dormitory

Convictions

Editors, The Tar Heel:

TO FELLOW STUDENTS OF THE BAPTIST STUDENT UNION:

Our resolution regarding discrimination in public business establishments, which was passed during assembly the night of Feb. 21 and which appeared in the DAILY TAR HEEL on Mar. 3, stated that we object to discrimination because we hold that it is incompatible with our beliefs in the brotherhood of man under the fatherhood of God (a paraphasing). But where is our Christian witness? If the clause about the fatherhood of God were struck from the resolution, Bertrand Russell or Julian Huxley could eaily have said the same thing we said. No bone to pick with Messrs. Russell and Huxley, but don't we have something to say that is unique?

How many religions of the world believe in the brotherhood of man under the fatherhood of God? Doesn't our Christian faith have more specific things to say about God-to-man, Man-to-God, man-to-man relationships? If it doesn't, then we Christians are the most mixed-up people of all, because we claim that there is much more to be said, often of a radically unique nature.

One of the students told me that the resolution was so worded to avoid offending others. If a non-Christian were offended when I speak my Christian beliefs on an issue, it would mean that he was either insecure in his own beliefs or that he thought I was slinging mud at him because he disagreed with my ideas. If he were insecure, that wouldn't be my fault. And to speak my beliefs doesn't have to involve religious bigotry. Phillip S. Bernstein, the author of What the Jews Believe, gave a wonderful and moving picture of the Jewish faith, but he took no shots at the Gentiles.

Perhaps a fellow Christian would disagree with the contention that Christianity speaks against discrimination. If so, I feel that our resolution would offend him as strongly as a more decisive statement could offend him.

Dare we say that we didn't need to state our feelings in a more explicitly Christian way? I distrust this position, for too many people already think that "those Christians" only have answers to social problems. We are the BSU at UNC at Chapel Hill. If we don't speak as Christians, why speak as the BSU? We are not an organization primarily dedicated to social betterment; we are dedicated to proclaiming in word and deed that Christ is the Lord of our lives. We're not a faction of desegregation sentiment; we are a part of the body of Christ. Have we become victims of amnesia?

The leaders of Christianity shaped history by acting on their convictions, but they kept themselves aware of the source of their convictions. They strove not only to bring life to the hearts of their fellow men but to tell them always of the source of this life. I am sure that we have neither lost our convictions nor the initiative to act on them, but have we forgotten why we are motivated to act? Following Christ today does not call for street-corner revivals with wheezing field organs and Grandfather's favorite gospel songs, but it does demand that we stand up to be counted as Christians. God doesn't ask us to freeze ourselves in the theology of a hundred years ago, but He does command us to speak for Him with that quality of conviction which has carried a vibrant message from Pentecost to the Atomic age.

Bill Manning
118 Mallette St.

Boycott

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Though all of the methods currently employed by those who actively seek equal rights for all citizens may not be completely desirable or productive, the undersigned are convinced of the rightness of this cause. We feel that the best and most effective expression of our strong belief in the cause of civil rights is through patronage of only those business which we know to have demonstrated their belief in the basis equality of all men by accomodating all equally, regardless of race, creed, or national origin.

John S. Cogswell
Priscilla Roetzel
Jethro M. Hurt, III
John M. Schnorrenberg
Carol Fryar
Neal Thomas
Joseph C. Sloane
Janet Sloane
Robin Jones
Diana Harmon
Paul Richelson
Jean Wein
Charles Davis
Michael Livesay
Michael B. Harper
Sally Schilling

Beware!

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Having read Mr. Pratt's (Mar. 7) comment on the move by student government (be it Mr. Akers or the student legislature; I am vague as to where the responsibility lies), to cut off subsidization of the Carolina Quarterly, I felt that at least one student should come forward in protest against such action.

I don't want to repeat what has already been pointed out as to the status and stature of the Carolina Quarterly. I simply want to voice my indignation and despair at the kind of thinking which, first, takes profit as value. We should be willing to subsidize the Quarterly even if it never made a cent. We aren't dependent on it for sustenance, though I suspect that the motives for refusing the Quarterly subsidization are not altogether independent of an appetite for pleasure (more parties, dances, etc.).

Second, the kind of thinking which conceives of the University as some indulgent, protective mother with a tit for every student, even for every faculty member. Such a mother-image not only breeds contempt for anything that transcends the student's interest (as the Quarterly is reported to do), but also breeds such stifling measures as the speaker ban.

I am saying, then, that the kind of people who would refuse to subsidize such an intrinsically valuable effort as the Quarterly are the kind of people who will someday be voting for speaker bans. Voters beware.

Dennis Carney
213 Joyner

Pre-School

Editors, The Tar Heel:

I would like to correct a couple of misinterpretations in your report of the presentation made by Mrs. Virginia Tolliver, Director of the Chapel Hill Cooperative Pre-School, to the Student Legislature. The Pre-School is a private, cooperative membership organization. It is not free in the financial sense; it is supported by fees which are adjusted to the parents' means and needs to the extent that this is possible, by parents' serving as teachers' aids and in other "do-it-yourself" activities, and by contributions of money and time by other individuals and organizations, including some within the University community.

The reason for the existence of the Pre-School is recognition of the fact that a century of segregation, educational backwardness, and economic deprivation is our heritage. The effect of this heritage is not limited to a single group defined by "race", although these disadvantages do fall most heavily on Negroes, in general. We do three things at the Pre-School. First, we provide a good education for four- and five-year-old children of all kinds of backgrounds, preparing them for the all-important business of learning the fundamentals of reading, writing, and arithmetic. Any First-Grade teacher in Chapel Hill will tell you how important this kindergarten training is for success in later years, especially for children whose parents are not and never will be college graduates. Secondly, we demonstrate to the community the benefits of a kindergarten education. The teachers know this lesson; but we will not have public kindergartens, as some 40 other states do, until the community, as a whole can see these benefits. We provide the community with 15 to 20 living examples each year. Thirdly, we, a group which works together and which leads to many friendships among its members are unconscious of racial distinctions among us except when outside factors force recognition of these distinctions upon us. We demonstrate to the community the fact that real integration is not only possible but enjoyable, for both adults and children.

Our teachers are not volunteers. They are among the best in the area, and their salaries reflect their specialized training, experience, and unusual ability in their very demanding profession.

Henry C. Hightower
Chairman, The Chapel Hill Cooperative Pre-School

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

Heelprints

Definition: Efficiency Expert: —a girl who finds what she is looking for on the first dive into her handbag.

* * *

Billy not only plays like an All-American — he LOOKS like one, too.

* * *

Now the question seems to be, who helped Bobby Baker cook up all those Washington stews?

* * *

As far as today's New Hampshire primary is concerned, Goldwater is hoping for a right in, not a write-in.

* * *

Then there's the Vic Bubas doll — you wind it up and it wins.

* * *

Concerning the race for the student body presidency, many people are looking for an ex-SPEARienced MAN.

* * *

What we'd like to know is this — who fixes Jack Horner?

* * *

Simile: as shallow as Lake.

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.

BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1

Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes

115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

—Use Our Classified Ad Service—

VOLVO

NOW IN STOCK

NEW

ONE P-1800 SPORTS COUPE (with overdrive)
ONE T-1225 4 DOOR VOLVO
ONE PV 544 2 DOOR VOLVO

USED

A 1963 P-1800 VOLVO Sport Coupe, red with Over-Drive, Radio, Heater. Extra Clean $3195.00
A 1962 P-1800 VOLVO Sport Coupe. Ivory with Over-Drive, Radio, Heater. Extra clean $2,695.00

Weaver Brothers Rambler, Inc.
214 W. Cabarrus St.
Raleigh, N. C. TE-46266

ELIA KAZAN'S "AMERICA AMERICA" is the "best American film of the year!" NEWSWEEK HOLLIS ALPERT, SATURDAY REVIEW JUDITH CRIST, HERALD TRIBUNE

Nominated for 7 GOLDEN GLOBE AWARDS including BEST DRAMA, BEST ACTOR—Stathis Giallelis, BEST DIRECTOR—Elia Kazan.
"PICTURE OF THE MONTH!"—Seventeen Magazine
"A GLOWING ACHIEVEMENT!"—Good Housekeeping

Starring STATHIS GIALLELIS - Written, Produced and Directed by ELIA KAZAN
(Warner Bros.' magnificent soundtrack album now available) Presented by WARNER BROS.

Shows at 12:30 - 3:30 - 6:30 - 9:30

Varsity NOW PLAYING

Bounds Dance Studio

announces

A SPECIAL

Slimming Exercise Course

for Ladies

New Classes begin March 9 and will meet every morning, Monday through Friday, 10 A.M. to 11. Evenings, 8:00 to 9:00

Get Ready for Spring and Summer Now!

CALL 942-1088
If no answer, 968-6847

Don't Quote Me!

"But it was supposed to be a secret ballot!"

—Dean's List—

(Continued from Page 1)

Mackethan, James McCombs, Samuel McNairy, William McNairy, Everette Mills,

Robert Moore, Ralph Mosley, David Orcutt, Ronald Orovan, Ruth Paine, Elizabeth Parker, James Parnell, George Petree,

Roger Petty, Joseph Pool, Harold Proctor, Hunter Richardson, Lanny Roof, Albert Schiff, Robert Shoffner, Gay Showell, Jerry Sifford, Robert Skees, Marion Smith, Harry Snook, Larry Somers, Michael Thomas, Harold Tysinger, Jane Walker, Edgar Wood, Robert Woodruff, Billy Wooten.

Orientation Committee Interviews Today

Interviews for the fall orientation committee will be held this week.

Perry McCarty, chairman of men's orientation, and Bonnie Raines, chairman of women's orientation, announced yesterday that interviews would be held in GM Tuesday and Wednesday from 4-6 p.m. and Thursday 2-6 p.m.

"We need people who are willing to devote a lot of time," McCarty commented yesterday. "Most of the work for fall orientation is done before summer vacation."

Carolina NOW PLAYING

A BOLD NEW LOOK IN SUSPENSE!
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER presents
PAUL NEWMAN

THE PRIZE
Co-starring ELKE SOMMER (Glamorous New Star Discovery) and EDWARD G. ROBINSON as Dr. Stratman
PANAVISION® and METROCOLOR

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

Elections Board—3 p.m., Woodhouse Room.
Carolina Handbook Staff—7 p.m., RP I.
Academic Affairs Comm. — 3 p.m., RP I.
Di-Phi—7:30 p.m., 3rd Floor New West, Public Debate: Should a man or woman have sexual relations before marriage?
Publications Selections Board—4:30 p.m., Grail Room, select Editor and Business Manager of Yack.
Seminars Abroad — 9 p.m., 115 Ackland Art Center, Art and Architecture in Europe discussed and slides shown by Dr. John S. Schnorrenberg.
Tuesday Evening Series—8 p.m., Hill Hall, piano recital by Barbara Blegen.
Orientation Comm. — 4-6 today, Wed., and Fri., and 2-6 Thurs., RP III, interviews for Orientation Comm.
Carolina Handbook — 7-8 p.m., RP I, organization of staff.
WRC — 3-5 today, Wed. and Thurs., RP I, interviews for freshman co-ordinator, sign up for interviews at GM information desk.
Square Dancing Club—7:30 p.m., Women's Gym floor.
Slimnastics Club — 3:45 p.m., Women's dance studio.

MOVIES

Carolina—The Prize
Varsity — America, America

WEDNESDAY

Math Colloquium — 4 p.m., 383 Phillips, William L. Duren, "Calculus of Variations Revisited: The Theory of Optimal Control," coffee served at 3:30 in 383 Phillips.
Physics Colloquium—4 p.m., 265 Phillips, A. Zucker, "Heavy Ions in the Study of the statistical Model of the Nucleus," coffee served in 277 Phillips at 3:30.
Finance Comm.—3-5 p.m., Woodhouse Room, primary hearings of budget.
SP—7:30 p.m., Gerrard, panel discussion—"What's the matter with The Tar Heel," also will fill legislative seat from Cobb and position on Advisory Board.
CWC—2:30-4 p.m., Grail Room, interviews for president of CWC.
SL Ways and Means Comm.—5 p.m., Woodhouse Room.
CCUN—3-5 p.m., today-Fri., interviews for UN Seminars, New York, YMCA-CCUN Office.
MRC — 7 p.m., 4th floor, New East, business.
Scuba Diving Club — meeting time has been changed from Wed. to Thurs. night.
Philosophy of Science & Math—5:15 p.m., 213 Caldwell, meeting for anyone interested in forming a discussion group, if interested but unable to attend, call Hunter, 933-2046.
Basketball Club — 4 p.m., Women's Gym.
Badminton Club — 7 p.m., Women's Gym.
Stray Greeks—6 p.m., upstairs Lenior.

THURSDAY

Scuba Diving Club—7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES

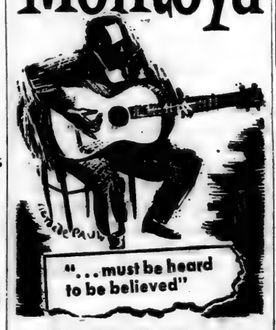
Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES

- New Moon
- Ritz-Craft
- Palace

5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East

See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD
DURHAM
Phone 596-8302

The Incredible Carlos Montoya



"... must be heard to be believed"

Ticket Sale (Students only)
Starts Wed., March 11, 12:30 p.m.
At Graham Memorial

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

TEACHERS NEEDED ROCKY MT. West Coast states. Salaries $4800-$8000. Widely patronized agency — excellent schools. Nice towns and cities. Teachers Specialists Bureau, Boulder, Colo.

QUALITY . . . IN LIFE INSURANCE costs you nothing extra. In fact, it may actually save you money. May I prove this to you? Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates telephone No. 942-6966

For Sale

FOR SALE: REASONABLE PRICE, B and L Monocular microscope and case. Approved by medical and dental schools. Call 968-6086 after six.

FOR SALE: MARTIN D-18 GUITAR — Excellent condition. Call 968-8392.

I WILL PAY $5.00 FOR TWO TICKETS to J.B. Friday night. Call Carman; 929-1290.

Used Cars For Sale

FOR SALE: 1955 CADILLAC Coupe DeVille. Power steering, brakes, seats and windows. Also, seat belts and Eldorado wheels. Extra clean—$725.00. Call 968-9163, Dick Singer.

FOR SALE: 1956 CADILLAC "62" sedan. Black, low mileage, excellent tires, absolutely perfect condition throughout. $800 cash, cheap at this price — S. Hetherington, Carrboro, 942-69646.

Pete Needs Your Help!

Please come by and pick up your winter clothes. Spring is approaching fast. I need to move out all winter clothes in order to make room for new spring alterations.

PETE THE TAILOR
133½ E. Franklin St.

LEDBETTER PICKARD

Offers to the Carolina Student an assortment of items for any occasion or need.

- Studio Cards
- Contemporary Cards
- The Card for the Occasion

CAROLINA:

- Beer Mugs
- Scarfs
- Pennants and Sweatshirts

Not only can these items be found but also we offer:

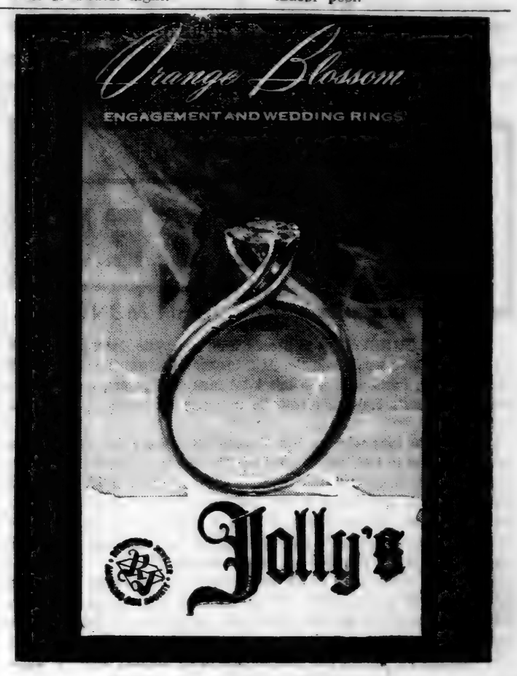
A COMPLETE SELECTION OF STATIONERY OF ALL KINDS

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

ON STAGE
Jackie "MOMS" MABLEY and her BIG ALL-STAR SHOW featuring

MARTHA and the VANDELLAS
MARY WELLS • CHUCK JACKSON
SOLOMON BURKE • TOMMY TUCKER
RUFUS "walk the dog" THOMAS
LEO PRICE AND HIS GREAT ORCHESTRA

J. S. DORTON ARENA
N. C. STATE FAIRGROUND
Tickets on sale—Thiem's Record Shop & Hamlin Drug.
ONE NIGHT ONLY
All Seats Reserved
$2.00 $2.50 $3.00
FRIDAY MARCH 13
8 P. M. Doors Open 7 P.M.



FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
128 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

Spring Session About to Begin at

WHITE OAK STABLE

Old Durham-Chapel Hill Road
489-6191
The Professional Stable

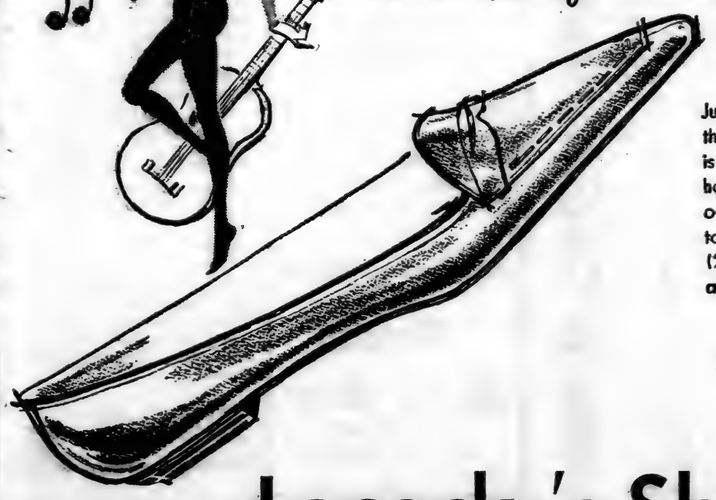
Qualified Instructors Teach
Hunt, Seat Equitation
JUMPING
Dressing

Special Classes for University Students. Transportation will be provided for minimum groups of 6.
Horses Boarded & Trained — Bought — Sold

sing out for

HOOTENANNY

...with the soft touch of Edith Henry®



Just say the word, and this hands-clapping styling is all yours. You never had it so soft in leathers, or so flexible. Instant Fit® lining, too. This shoe fits . . . everyone (2½ to 14, AAAAA to C) . . . and every good time!

$9.95
Choice of 7 colors

Lacock 's Shoe Shop
143 East Franklin Phone 942-4896

Wellstone Wins Again

Grapplers Finish 2nd To Maryland In ACC Tourney

By PETE GAMMONS

Maryland, as expected, easily won their tenth ACC Wrestling tourney in ten tries, as they took seven of the first ten places and two seconds. They rolled up 104 points to 47 for UNC, 45 for State and Virginia, and 28 for Duke.

Tony Schleicher (115) started the deluge by winning in the finals over Dave Jones of State. Sam Cole (130) decisioned Kenny Furr of UNC for his title. John Henderson (137) easily outpointed John Holden of Duke to win the Terps' third individual trophy. The defending 147 champ and winner of last year's trophy for the ACC's top wrestler, Bob Koplinsky, again won despite the valiant efforts of UNC's Dick Blackmon as did defending 157 champ Nelson Aurand. Marshall Dauberman (177) again won his class for the third straight year, edging out Jim Sawhill of State. Gary Wilkander (191) successfully defended his championship, winning on the only pin of the finals, over Bill Wyland of State. Maryland has never lost the ACC tournament in its ten years, and in the first year of competition in 1954, was recognized as ACC champs off the regular season records.

Bob Brawley of State won the 167 class, decisioning Gary Stewart of Virginia. His win, coupled with the seconds earned by Jones and Wyland, enabled State to tie Virginia for third. Luke Sharp, whose size (6-7, 250) alone made him the favorite, brought Duke its only first, winning the heavyweight division. Sharp's only loss in his life was inflicted by Jerry Cabe in Carolina's win over the Blue Devils at Woollen Gym. John Holden (137) was the only other Blue Devil to reach the finals. Virginia failed to get any firsts, but won two seconds and three thirds to tie State for third. Alex Wells (157) and Gary Stewart (167) captured seconds for the Cavaliers.

Carolina's Paul Wellstone (123) won his fourteenth consecutive match by edging out Maryland's Gary Langer in the finals. In bringing UNC its only first, the sophomore from Arlington, Va. had to come from behind and rally for his 4-3 win. He now moves on to the NCAA championships later this month. Kenny Furr and Dick Blackmon each reached the finals before falling to their Terp opponents. Furr's placement was especially pleasing to Coach Sam Barnes, because Furr has come a long way during the season. Blackmon's loss in his last match was no disgrace because Koplinsky is probably the top wrestler in the area. Elliott Dworin (157), Jack Saunders (115), and Capt. Jerry Cabe (191) all won their consolation matches ,and thus garnered third places.

Saunders' win was the difference between second and fourth place in the overall standings for the Tar Heels, as he came from behind and pinned his opponent in the closing minute. This was only the second meet for the sophomore from Madison, N. C., and the other time he was pinned at Pfeiffer. At 109 he may be the smallest Carolina letter winner of all time. Winning their first round matches and earning fourth place finishes were Steve Lister (177), Russ Simmons (137), and Bill Warren (hw).

While the varsity was struggling on their level for second place the Freshmen were scoring impressive results at the Southern Open Wrestling Tournament at Atlanta. Competing against predominantly varsity teams from the Southeastern and Southern Conferences, and a few amateur wrestling clubs, the Tar Babies won fifth place, a scant five points out of third. What was even more remarkable than the fact that they were only freshmen, was the fact that they took only four men, while the other schools had ten.

Jimmy Goodwin (130) lost his first match of the year, but it was in the finals, and to the Pfeiffer varsity captain. Jake Jacobson (157), who earlier this year had broken Paul Wellstone's Freshman scoring record with 36 points, also earned a second place. Gary Meyer lost in the semifinals to the eventual 137 champion, but gained third place by winning in the consolation. Wayne Verlenden (147) won fourth place.

The Freshmen now have finished their season, and although the varsity is through, Wellstone will go on to the NCAA's.

FINAL NOTE ON THE TOURNEY—After it was all over Saturday night and Duke had taken the ACC Crown, Big 6-10 Blue Devil Hack Tison spread out on the court, the net around his neck and drank a Coke. His only comment—"Boy, am I tired!"
—Photo by Jim Wallace

ON THE LEVEL with JOHN MONTAGUE

IT TOOK THREE days to decide what everyone knew in the first place—that Duke would win the ACC basketball crown for the second straight year. Perhaps it was this total lack of the unexpected which made this year's Raleigh clambake a somewhat subdued, even dull affair.

The 12,000 fans who packed Reynolds Coliseum for each of the three days had to look pretty hard for something to get excited over. One of the highlights of the tournament was when a Wake Forest player went up for a shot in the first-round game against Virginia, and the ball never came down. It wedged itself in between the backboard and the rim. It came down only when Bones McKinney pointed his finger at it and pounded his foot on the floor.

The only other thing which made Thursday afternoon worth the price of a free pass was the 90-foot set shot fired up by a reserve Maryland guard two seconds before the gun went off to end the first half of the tension-packed Maryland-Clemson skirmish. The prodigious shot rimmed the basket and was tapped in by another Terp. It woke the crowd up from its half-hour siesta.

NC State's Everett Case did provide some excitement Thursday evening when he had his Wolfpack play keep-away with the Blue Devils. The fun lasted about 20 minutes, before Vic Bubas decided the crowd had been given its money's worth. He told his Duke team to get going and it did.

After they'd finished mopping up what remained of the Wolfpack, Billy Cunningham and The Collins Boys came onto the floor and gave a pretty good 20-minute shooting exhibition. But in the second half Jimmy couldn't hit his jumpers, Ronnie couldn't even get his off, and The Kid didn't need to do either as the Gamecocks fell apart and the Tar Heels turned it into a sloppy rout.

Of Chewing Gum, Giraffes And Fouls

THOUGH THEIR 31, 16 and 21-point victories brought something less than suspense to the tournament, the Blue Devils did make up a pretty fair side-show for the fans. First, there was Hack "Beechnut" Tison ambling and chewing around the court. If P. K. Wrigley ever starts a pro basketball team, Tison is the man to get.

Then there's Jay "Giraffe" Buckley, who took time out from scoring hook shots to delight the fans by holding a one-man sit-down strike in the middle of the court during a fast break. This was during the UNC-Duke game Friday night, and the Tar Heels wish Buckley had just kept his seat.

And of course there was Brent "The Human Foul" Kitching. Step right up, folks, and see a guy commit three fouls in 29 seconds. That's just what the Duke reserve did in the closing moments of Saturday night's final with Wake.

But these were just sidelights, just like Burl Ives and former Miss America Maria Beale Fletcher and L. Richardson Preyer's campaign girls and Buddy Benedict (the 5-7 guard from Clemson). The fact remains that the actual basketball action was pretty much one-sided. The closest game was the first one—Clemson's 14-point win over Maryland.

The most excitement generated was that done by the first-half slowdowns of State and UNC in their games with Duke. But even then, you knew all along who would win. The closest anybody came to an upset in the whole tourney was when the Tar Heels took a 9-6 lead over the Blue Devils.

Why Hold The Tournament Anyway?

MAYBE WHAT HAPPENED this year will point out the incongruity of all this tournament business. All these teams play all season long just to decide who plays in the tournament. When the favorite wins the tournament, the whole thing seems rather unexciting, and one wonders more than ever why they bothered to hold it in the first place. And if Duke had been upset? Well, things probably would have been a little more interesting, but as a result the ACC would have had a second-rate club represent it in the NCAA play-offs while the nation's No. 4 team watched it on TV.

In other words, whether the favored team wins the tourney or not, we still wonder why the ACC Tournament is held. The defunct Dixie Classic made a lot more sense.

Duke To Breeze Through Easterns

THERE WAS, of course, some good basketball played during the course of events. Most of it was by Duke. Really, this Blue Devil team should have little trouble in finding its way through the Eastern Regionals next Friday and Saturday nights in Raleigh. Friday night they'll play the winner of last night's Villanova-Providence battle (played at The Palestra in Philadelphia). If they win that one, they'll play whoever has emerged from the other half of the heap (VMI, Princeton, Connecticut and Temple) in the finals Saturday night.

Buckley was Duke's killer in the tournament. He along with Billy The Kid led this writer's All-Tournament team. Along with Buckley and Cunningham should go Jeff Mullins of Duke and Wake Forest's Bob Leonard and Frank Christie.

A good second team, based on tourney performances, would be Pete Auskey (NC State), Donnie Mahaffey (Clemson), Ronny Watts (Wake), Denny Ferguson (Duke) and Ronnie Collins (South Carolina).

Clay Is Boxer Of Month

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Newly crowned heavyweight champion Cassius Clay was named boxer of the month Monday by the World Boxing Association.

Clay, the 22-year-old Louisville Lip, beat Sonny Liston for the title Feb. 25 when the brawny ex-champ failed to answer the bell for the seventh round.

The Clay-Liston battle caused a major shakeup in the heavyweight division.

Liston was knocked down to third place in rankings, behind Doug Jones and Ernie Terrell. This was usual WBA procedure.

Eddie Machen was put in fourth place this month, followed by Zora Folley in fifth.

Bouton Receives Ultimatum

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Jim Bouton was warned Monday to sign his contract with the New York Yankees by midnight Wednesday or face a $100 per day salary deduction, but the holdout pitcher questioned the legality of such a move.

Bouton, who won 21 games and lost only seven for the Yankees last year and was one of the big reasons for their pennant success, reportedly is asking that the club double his $10,000 salary of last year. The Yankees are offering $18,000.

General Manager Ralph Houk, who issued his ultimatum to Bouton by telephone Sunday night, said Monday that the pitcher's request was "unreasonable" and added: "If he does not agree to terms by midnight Wednesday I will deduct $100 per day from the contract we have offered him."

Veteran Golfers Open March 16

By AL KAPLAN

Experience is the key word to the 1964 golf team. Led by six returning lettermen, coach Ed Kenney is out to improve on last spring's mark of 6-4-1.

Only Abe Andes, mainstay of the team which finished 3-3-1 in ACC play and fifth in the ACC tourney, is missing on this season's squad. Andes was graduated a semester early and is now attending med school.

The Heels have a sixteen match schedule, with the first match March 16, only a week off. The encounter is a Medal Play match against pre-season conference favorites Duke and Wake Forest. The play, slated at Winston Salem, is the first round of a 54 hole match played between the three teams each year. Round two will be played April 17, at home, and the finale at Durham, April 27. Wake Forest, defending ACC champs, was the winner last year, while Carolina finished third.

The seven starting spots on the team are practically filled. Probable starters include Tommy Arnold, Les Fleischer, George Reams, Skip Tucker, Billy Stevenson and Harvey Hill. The seventh spot will go to Ed Hoopes, Jim Gray, a transfer student, or possibly a sophomore.

Coach Kenney has high hopes for the coming season, saying "We should be an improved team this season. A year of experience insures as much."

1964 GOLF SCHEDULE
(Home matches in boldface)
Mar. 16—Medal Play Match—Duke and Wake Forest
Mar. 19—Clemson
Mar. 20—South Carolina
Mar. 24—Davidson
Mar. 26—Davidson
Mar. 27—Georgia
Mar. 28—Mercer
Apr. 1—M.I.T.
Apr. 2—Ohio U.
Apr. 3—Williams College
Apr. 14—N.C. State
Apr. 17—Medal Play Match—(Duke and Wake Forest)
Apr. 25—Maryland and Wake Forest
Apr. 27—Medal Play Match—(Duke and Wake Forest)
Apr. 30—Virginia
May 6—Duke
May 8, 9—ACC Tournament (at South Carolina)

The New York Life Agent on your campus is a good man to know.
Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4358
NEW YORK LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY

GANT

STRIPED OXFORD
For when it sizzles—a half sleeve Gant shirt in classic batiste oxford stripings. Meticulously tailored in the typical Gant tradition . . . with softly flared button-down collar.
Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Winner at Every Paddock—Crazy Horse!

Just received another tempting tantalizing shipment of fabulous Crazy Horse Shifts for that zesty spring exhilaration.

You can now round out your vacation wardrobe—with the best looking group of two piece swim suits with the boy leg and high halter—$17.95.

Our Lady Milton Shop is undergoing a face-lifting to enhance our surroundings and make room for added delectables.

Lady Milton Shop
Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Spring Bargains

Once again, the feature table at the Intimate is full to overflowing with Spring Bargains. Fresh copies of last season's titles, their prices shopped to the bone. Come in early for the best selection.

Prints and Frames

Along with a new lot of frames in several styles, we have new numbers in the brush stroke prints of famous paintings and matted reproductions of famous drawings. Prices are from $1.00 to $2.98. Frames from $2.00 to $4.98. There's pleasant pickings this week at the Intimate. Do stop in for a visit!

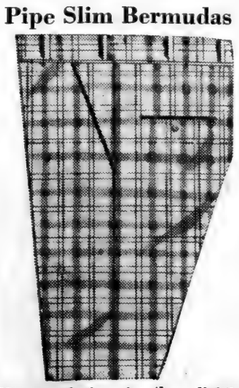
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

LET'S TALK TROUSERS

Words like Stylish, Distinctive, and Tasteful have one thing in common. They describe the new Dacron-Cotton Slax Now on Display at THE HUB. The new Dac-Cottons at THE HUB give you the Style you want at a Price you can afford. A wide array of colors including Navy, Olive, Grey, Light Green and Khaki Tan await your approval. Priced from 7.95.

THE HUB of CHAPEL HILL

Milton's New Stove-Pipe Slim Bermudas



New exclusive in the slightly shorter trimmer leg for added smartness, all at new within-reach quotations.

1. New white duck wrinkle-free cotton-avnon blend — $4.95
2. Seven perfect coordinating tones in dacron-cotton poplins-suntan, mid-blue, gray, light olive, char-olive, blue olive, at only $5.95.
3. Classic cotton seersucker stripes in white with blue, gray or red—$4.95

New deal on half sleeve madras shirts—

Imported madras plaids in finest single needle tailoring, with plaids expertly matched, at only $6.95

You'll Love Milton's New Spring Look—Stocks Complete, Selections Superb!

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

BERMUDA SPECIAL
$4.95

This is just the first of many great Specials of Spring. Choose from Madras in Blue Tones, Batiks, Solid Dac-cotton and others.

Don't miss this great buy.

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

the poised world of the Deansgate man welcomes a crisp DACRON® look

The tropicals are here . . . looking better than ever in a blend of 55% Dacron® polyester, 45% rayon that refuses to wrinkle or crush . . . a natural for the purposeful tailoring that features the greatest natural shoulder in America. In a range of solid colors.
®DuPont fibre

Town & Campus

IMPORTANT TRAVEL NEWS!

RESERVED SEATS AT NO EXTRA CHARGE to NEW YORK BALTIMORE WASHINGTON RICHMOND on TRAILWAYS

Air-conditioned comfort . . . luxurious reclining seats . . . clean-as-a-whistle restrooms. Travel non-stop over super-highways. Arrive refreshed and relaxed in the heart of town.

CALL 942-3356 OPEN 24 HOURS EVERY DAY

| From Chapel Hill | 1-Way |
|---|---|
| NEW YORK ..... Thru Express-reserved seats | $15.50 |
| WASHINGTON ..... Thru Express-seats reserved | $8.40 |
| ASHEVILLE ..... Thru Express-convenient departures | $7.45 |
| MIAMI ..... New service via short route | $24.60 |

CHARTERS/TOURS/PACKAGE EXPRESS

UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin Phone 942-3356

TRAILWAYS.
Easiest travel on earth

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

BOB QUINCY WITH SPORTS—5:45 (New Time)—WCHL—1360

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill ★ N.C. ★

114

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
JUST LOVELY

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11, 1964 | United Press International Service

ITEMS

Venezuela Invites Dr. Gil As Guest

A UNC professor of political science has been invited to be a special guest of the Venezuelan government at the inauguration ceremonies of their incumbent president, Raul Leoni, Wednesday in Caracas, Venzuela.

Federico G. Gil, who is currently serving as director of the Institute of Latin American Studies at the University will be in Caracas for the inauguration week ceremonies, March 9-14.

President-elect Leoni, of the Venezuelan Action Democratica Party, will suceed Romulo Betancourt in Venezuela's highest elective office. The Action Democratica Party is one of Venzuela's three leading political parties.

Gil has been a close personal friend of President Betancourt for over 20 years. When President Betancourt visited Washington, D. C., last year for meetings with the late President Kennedy, Gil was invited to join his party.

President Of CWC Interviews Thursday

The Carolina Women's Council will hold interviews for president this week.

Interviews will be held Thursday in the Grail Room of GM from 2:30-4 p.m.

Judy Freider, present chairman of the Council, announced yesterday that interested girls should pick up a short information form at the office of the Dean of Women. Both non-council and council members may apply.

Any girl unable to interview Thursday should contact Miss Freider in 138 W. Cobb by Wednesday.

Ex-Kentucky Gov. Speaks Here Soon

Bert T. Combs, former Kentucky governor, will speak here Monday afternoon.

Anyone interested is invited to attend the session from 2-4:15 in 203 Howell Hall.

The former governor and Mark T. Ethridge, now a journalism instructor here, planned the exchange lecture whereby Ethridge will lecture at the University of Massachusetts and Combs will come here.

Combs will discuss Public Affairs and Newspapers and Ethridge will speak on Newspapers and Public Affairs.

Governor fom 1959-63, Combs is presently teaching a seminar in Public Affairs at the University of Massachusetts.

Ethridge, the former executive of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times in Louisville, Kentucky, is now editor of Newsday in addition to his teaching.

Drama Tryouts Set For Saturday

Tryouts for seven outdoor dramas will be held at the Forest Theater on Saturday from noon til 5 p.m.

Anyone 18 years of age or older may tryout for parts and positions and is expected to be available for the entire production season.

Auditions and interviews are being held for actors, singers, dancers and technicians for the 1964 season. Call-backs for actors whom directors may want to hear a second time will be held Sunday.

The companies auditioning are

(Continued on Page Three)

SAE's Implicated In Bus Vandalism

By JOHN GREENBACKER

Members of the pledge class of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, returning from an outing at Sweetbriar College in Lynchburg, Virginia, allegedly did "extensive damage" to a chartered Trailways bus last Saturday.

Dean of Men William Long said the 22 pledges were "having a party on the bus," and they forced inner ceiling panels up to the roof, tore up 13 seat cushions, broke out windows and destroyed the panels and door assembly of the rest room.

Long said apparently three or four of the pledges "went off the deep end" and the others tried with little success to stop them.

Damage to the bus has been reported at $750, but Trailways officials declined to discuss the matter.

A Trailways information officer in Raleigh said, "Our contracts stipulate that any charter party defacing the bus will be billed for damages." The company loses $50 each day the bus is out of commission.

The bus has been inspected and photographed by Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont and members of the Attorney General's staff. Evidence of drinking on the bus was present officials said.

Long said the decision has not been made whether to prosecute the offenders as individuals or to take action against the house through the Interfraternity Council Court.

"I am quite disappointed that some members of the group could not restrain the others," Long said. "It is unfortunate that this had to happen during a year in which fraternity behavior has been good."

Long stressed, "This is not just a phenomenon of fraternity people," but said that the offenders were identified as a group.

Sam Applegate, president of SAE, told a DTH reporter, "I don't feel you all should be trying the case before it comes up in court."

Saying the incident "wasn't intended," Applegate remarked, "Of course we're sorry.

"This was not a house sponsored activity," Applegate said. "The money came from the pockets of those who went on the trip, and they plan to make full restitution for the damages.

"I wish it had been handled differently," he said. "The bus company could have contacted us rather than calling the University administration first."

When asked about the bus driver's reaction to the proceedings, the Raleigh official said, "Our drivers are all experienced men."

Evening College Is Awarded Higher Status

The UNC Evening College has been given full credit academic status on a basis similar to that of the day-time school, Chancellor William B. Aycock said today.

Prior to this time Evening College students were allowed to earn only the equivalent of one year of college work toward a degree.

Now, a maximum of two years of residence degree credit may be earned by students in the evening program.

The Evening College is designed chiefly as an adult education program in answer to demands for commuter education for working adults who want to continue work toward college degrees.

Evening College subjects currently being taught are English, romance languages, sociology and anthropology, mathematics, history, business administration, political science, music, psychology, classics, economics, education, Germanic languages, art, philosophy, religion, geology and geography.

Adults who have been graduated from high school five years or more may enter the Evening College upon satisfactory evidence of work in an accredited high school.

Regular day-time students will be allowed to take evening classes only by special permission from their deans.

DTH Staffers On SP Panel

Here's your chance!

Two members of the Daily Tar Heel staff will sit on a panel discussion of "What's Wrong With The DTH" tonight at a Student Party meeting in Gerrard Hall at 7:30.

DTH Co-Editor Dave Ethridge and Managing Editor Fred Seely will participate along with one residence hall and one fraternity resident.

SP Chairman Paul Dickson also has asked that anyone interested in running for a student government office, NSA delegate or Student Legislature should contact himself, Lanny Shuff, Jeff Davis or Phil Baddour as soon as possible.

Gene Wilson of Gastonia, North Carolina Easter Seal Child, beams as Governor Terry Sanford presents a proclamation designating March as Easter Seal Month. Onlookers are (left to right) Clarence E. Whitefield, President of the North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults; Duke Basketball Coach Vic Bubas, North Carolina Easter Seal Chairman; and UNC Basketball Co-captain Mike Cooke of Mount Airy, State Youth Chairman of the Easter Seal Campaign.

BULLETIN

CONCORD N.H. (UPI) — Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge appeared early Tuesday night to be the winner of New Hampshire's Republican presidential primary. He steadily amassed a lead over Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

On the basis of early returns, Lodge—10,000 miles away in Saigon and not a declared candidate — recorded margins in bellwether communities and made exceptionally good showings in territory considered favorable to the two declared candidates.

It's A Boy!

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth II gave birth Tuesday night to her fourth child, a boy. The infant prince will be third in the line of succession to the British throne.

Both the 37-year-old queen and her baby were reported doing well following the delivery in Buckingham Palace.

Crowds outside the palace broke into cheers at the news of the birth. The crowd, mostly women, had started gathering as word spread that the physicians had been summoned to the palace.

A team of five physicians and a midwife assisted in the royal delivery, which occurred at 8:20 p.m. (3:20 p.m., EST).

The group was headed by Sir John Peel, the queen's surgeon gynecologist who had also assisted at the birth of Elizabeth's three oher children—Prince Charles, 15-year-old heir to the throne; Princess Anne, 13, and Prince Andrew, 4.

The baby will be next in line of succession after Charles and Andrew. Princess Anne goes from third to fourth in line.

A medical bulletin signed by all five doctors who were summoned to the palace in the evening said:

"The queen was delivered of a son at 8:20 this evening. Her majesty and the infant prince are both well."

SPRING HAS SPRUNG—The first warm breezes of Spring swept over the campus this week bringing out the first flowers of the season, and giving way to thoughts of the beach, lawn parties, the beach, convertibles, the beach, baseball and of course—the beach.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Easter Show At Morehead

"Easter The Awakening" has opened its 15th consecutive season at the Morehead Planetarium. The program will be performed daily through April 6.

This year's "Easter The Awakening" is similar to last year's. The second half of the program remains devoted to the spectacular and inspiring pageant, in sound and natural color, depicting the Last Supper, Agony at Gethsemane, Berayal, Crucifixion, and Resurrection of Christ. The pageant has been seen by almost 350,000 people since the original 1950 version.

The first half of the program concerns the many Bibical references to the stars and constellations, whose positions in the sky have shifted appreciably since the Bible was written. Concluding the first half of the program is a brief clarification of the wandering date of Easter.

Record attendance at last year's "Easter" by school, scout, church, adult and other groups is expected to be repeated this year. Last year thousands of North Carolina children were drawn to the Chapel Hill area to see "Easter" at the Planetarium and this year Planetarium director A. F. Jenzano expects that many groups will arrange for "dual" attendance with their visit to the North Carolina Health Fair being held at Duke indoor stadium on April 1, 2, 3, and 4.

School groups may see "Easter the Awakening", by advance reservation only, at 11 a.m., 1 or 4 p.m. on any weekday. Or, without reservation at any of the public programs presented nightly at 8:30 p.m.; on Saturdays at 11 a.m., 3, 4 and 8:30 p.m.; and on Sundays at 2, 3, 4, and 8:30 p.m.

Clergymen are admitted free to all programs, and group chaperones are admitted one free with each ten group members.

Miss Loucheim Here Tomorrow

Katie S. Loucheim, deputy secretary of state for Public Affairs, will speak at the 14th Annual Conference on World Affairs in Memorial Hall.

She will deliver the keynote address tomorrow at the World Affairs program sponsored by the North Carolina Council on World Affairs.

In addition to her government role as deputy secretary, Mrs. Louchheim is a member of the Women's National Press Club, and the Women's National Democratic Club and has written several articles for journals and newspapers.

Speaking also at the meeting will be Zenon Rossides, United Nations ambassador from Cyprus and Dr. Eugene Pfaff, professor in the Department of History.

Officers of the North Carolina Council on World Affairs, representing 20 men and women's clubs in the state, will participate in the program.

Students are to be admitted free to the program as guests of the Council on World Affairs.

AAUP Supports Demonstrations

A resolution affirming the right of university professors and students to participate in demonstrations was passed by "an overwhelming majority" at a State meeting of the American Association of University Professors in Durham Saturday.

Proposed by professors of NC State at Raleigh, the resolution was prompted in part by the recent reported actions of State Senator Clarence Stone to have integration leader Dr. Allard Lowenstein relieved of his position as assistant professor of social sciences at NC State.

The resolution was referred to executive committee for clarification of wording after it was passed.

Another resolution which called on the trustees of North Carolina colleges and universities to "employ faculty and staff on the basis of merit rather than color," was passed unanimously.

A panel discussion on the Speaker Ban Law was held, and all aspects of its influence were discussed.

At one point during the discussion, Dr. Francis Paschal of Duke University said, "If there is any one here who is in favor of the law, he has a right to speak up." Paschal was answered with laughter.

A total of 106 representatives from 21 colleges throughout the state attended the meeting held at North Carolina College.

Case Mysteriously Put Off By Cole

By JEFF DICK

Chapel Hill Recorder's Court Solicitor Roy Cole mysteriously moved for nol pros in the case of Clyde R. Jones, charged with disorderly conduct stemming from a racial demonstration which took place here in early February.

The nol pros is, in effect, an indefinite continuance of the case.

The Solicitor made the motion shortly before the adjournment of court yesterday. Cole told Judge William S. Stewart he would like the court to "nol pros the case with leave."

"This man," Cole said, "was helping police load demonstrators into a van. They had to charge him with something."

The warrant charging Jones with disorderly conduct stated he had used "vile and profane language in public." Jones was arrested after police had warned him to leave demonstrators alone. A scuffle occurred when a policeman attempted to escort Jones from the area. The scuffle was not mentioned on the warrant.

Although the police officer who signed the warrant was in the building when the case was brought up, he was not summoned to the courtroom when the case was called. The defendant, Jones, was not observed to be in the courtroom.

The officer, Captain C. E. Durham, did not know that the solicitor was going to request a nol pros.

Cole adamantly refused to state his reasons for the motion, both after court adjourned and later in a telephone conversation.

Judge William S. Stewart said he grants a motion of nol pros with leave "as a matter of course whenever the solicitor requests it."

Captain Durham said he intended to "ask the solicitor to put the case back on the docket." Durham said he would "like to see the case tried."

A secretary in the office of the Clerk of Court said that "when a case is decided 'nol pros with leave,' it doesn't usually come up again."

Durham said yesterday, however, that he intended to reopen the case within the next couple of weeks.

★ ★ ★

Leaders Arrested

One UNC professor and two UNC students are among six local integration leaders whose arrest was ordered Monday by Judge Raymond B. Mallard.

The order came after the Orange County Grand Jury in Hillsboro returned a true bill of indictment against the six, charging them with "conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor." It said they induced a Duke University faculty member to commit trespass by participating in a sit-in demonstration at Watts Retsaurant Jan. 3.

The six are: Albert H. Amon, a member of the UNC faculty, John B. Dunne, chairman of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee; Ben Tieger, a field worker for the Congress of Racial Equality; Quinton Baker; and UNC students Thomas Bynum and Benjamin Spaulding. Baker, Bynum and Spaulding are Negroes.

Spaulding was also indicted on a charge of issuing a worthless check to the court in payment of court costs. The check was listed in the bank on the account of CORE, with Spaulding signing the check as treasurer.

Mallard set bond for these cases at $500. Trial is scheduled to begin after next Monday.

All six persons indicted were named in testimony by Dr. Robert Osborn, a member of the Duke University faculty, when he appeared as a witness in the case of Dr. David Smith, another Duke professor, who was convicted of trespess and sentenced to 60 days on the roads.

AT HIS 'STORY'

New York (UPI) — Babe Ruth's last public appearance was at the New York premiere of the movie "The Babe Ruth Story," July 26,1945—21 days before his death.

Boycotters Boycotted

"We reserve the right to refuse service to anyone" has taken a new twist here.

The Chapel Hill Florists, which has sold flowers on a non-discriminatory basis, now refuses to serve a number of townspeople and students. Mostly white, the won't-be-served list group includes advocates of a boycott of segregated businesses in town and a few others for undisclosed reasons, owner Manning Simons said Saturday.

The list came to light Friday when Dave Ethridge, co-editor of the pro-boycott Daily Tar Heel, walked into the shop to buy some flowers. He was refused service and referred to another florist's shop. Ethridge's name is on the list, posted in the store, which instructs employes not to serve them or allow them on the premises.

Simons, the Chapel Hillian whose suits delayed the fluoridation of Chapel Hill's water supply for several years, declined to give the names on the list, "until I see my lawyer."

A reliable report said the list included several faculty members, leaders of the Committee of Concerned Citizens and the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee, editors of the Tar Heel and the Lincoln High School newspaper, and officials of the campus YM-YWCA.

Need A Job? Get One Here

If you are a senior girl looking for a job, but don't know what kind of job you want, the Placement Bureau is for you.

Interviews are being held now, but the number of senior girls who have been interviewed is very low.

The Job Placement Bureau on campus is located on the second floor of Gardner.

The staff will give you questionnaires for their personnel record and then arrange to interview you personally. After this, they will try to suggest job opportunities and help you arrange an on-campus interview with some of the many visiting companies.

If you desire an unusual job or a specific location, they have the information or access to it. Another important source of infomation is the bulletin board outside the Placement Bureau offices. All job openings are posted there.

On-campus interviewing is at its peak right now. Companies have been interviewing since October. In a few weeks it may be too late to get a choice job.

Last year the girls placed by the Bureau had salaries ranging from $240 to $594 a month. The median wage was $325.

Girls who majored in mathematics had the highest wages — between $450 and $594. Science majors had the second highest salaries, $300, to $450.

A large majority of the other jobs taken by last year's senior girls were in personnel work, retailing, banking, teaching, social work and journalism.

Government jobs have good starting salaries and are often selected.

Most applicants wish to work in the big cities. This presents a shortage of desirable jobs available in these locations. However, the Bureau has a library, 206 Gardner, that might help you find a position if you are not immediately satisfied with the ones available.

Of last year's female applicants, 33 per cent took jobs in North Carolina, 55 per cent left the state and 12 per cent went to graduate school.

Of the graduates who chose to work out-of-state, the majority went to Washington, Atlanta, New York and Richmond. Of those girls who chose to stay in North Carolina, the largest group chose to stay in the Chapel Hill-Durham area, and the second largest group took jobs in either Charlotte or Raleigh.

Medical School Bats A Thousand

By MAT FRIEDMAN

This year, for the first time in its history, the UNC School of Medicine has not lost a single student. Everyone who started in September, according to Dr. John B. Graham, is still here.

"Not a single student in any class," says Dr. Graham, chairman of the Medical School's Student Advisory Board, "has flunked out or left. All freshmen are on hand despite the fact that four or five usually drop out. There is generally a seven to ten per cent mortality rate."

Dr. Graham feels that the school's new counseling system is at least partly responsible for its losing no students.

"Under the system," he says, "each class has its own faculty advisor, or 'shepherd,' who stays with the class until it graduates. The plan gives faculty members a chance to look at the Medical School from the student's point of view. It is a formal mechanism where suggestions are constantly going back and forth.

"You would be surprised at how many petty things are brought to our attention. Now we can easily correct them and make things easier for everyone. I think we are probably in better contact with the students than we have ever been."

Dr. Graham believes that many students dodge the School of Medicine because they feel it has a quota of "flunk-outs." But, he says, nothing could be further from the truth.

"We do everything we can to keep a student in," he says, "and try to give him all the help he needs. We would like to have every student graduate."

In connection with this problem, notes Dr. Graham, who has his own ideas on the subject, the School is reexamining its curriculum and will probably make some basic changes in the near future.

"I think," he says, "everyone would be better off if the lower fifth of the class could take the usual first two years in three. We should recognize that some students are different than others. Many would work much better if they weren't faced with such an overwhelming volume of work.

"Under the present system, we make or ask, certain students to repeat portions of the first two years. I think more should be told at an early stage that they have to do this. Many would be reluctant to take an extra year for financial reasons, but I think they would get a lot more out of it.

"Many medical students think they have to work 80 hours a week to justify themselves. I think it would be much more productive if the work were spread out, and would make for a much better living situation. Right now, a student has to work 60-70 hours a week just to stay even.

"Some people think such a system would just give the student a chance to take things easy, but if you had to pay the tuition yourself, I think you would take it seriously."

Volume 72, Number 114 Wednesday, March 11, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Tarnishing The Image Of Justice

Town Solicitor Roy Cole seems set on proving that the kind of justice he is concerned with is not only arbitrary, but beyond the scrutiny of any of the citizens he supposedly acts for.

In Recorder's Court yesterday, Cole unexpectedly and successfully moved that a disorderly conduct charge against a local white man accused of interfering with police in a civil rights demonstration, be nol-prossed, or suspended indefinitely. Twice he refused a polite and valid request from a reporter for an explanation of why he did so. The arresting officer was in the hall outside the courtroom, but he wasn't called in or even specifically notified about the matter.

The pity of the situation is not so much that Cole's reputation for being high-handed is worsening; the real pity is that the image of justice in Chapel Hill may well be distorted as a result of Cole's actions.

This would be most regrettable, because arbitrary justice is foreign to Chapel Hill's law-enforcement standards. As we have repeatedly noted in the past, Chief William D. Blake runs one of the finest Police forces in the country, and Chapel Hill's Recorder's Court judges are noted for their fairness.

But it undoubtedly will happen unless someone impresses upon Cole the fact that his official decisions are very much the business of the public which elected him, his apparent notions to the contrary notwithstanding.

Suspending The Law Of Supply & Demand

Advice, the old saw goes, is worth exactly as much as you pay for it. Usually, of course, this means it isn't worth much because so much of it is offered free.

The same rule operates with regard to candor, or frankness. Because there's so little of it, most of it is precious.

Thus it is that we felt especially rewarded the other day when we ran into two separate cases of candor in places where you'd least expect to find it.

One of the two cases concerns Wake Forest's new football coach, Bill Tate, former assistant coach at the University of Illinois. The other involves a Presbyterian minister in Brooklyn.

Tate told a group of Wake Forest alumni that he intends to recruit Negro players despite anyone's personal feelings on the matter, and alumni had better get behind the school's athletic program or drop out of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"You may approve of Negro football players at Wake Forest or you may not," Tate said. "It doesn't bother me. We're going to recruit them."

In asking for alumni backing, Tate continued: "We're in show business. There's no other way to describe it. If you want a successful athletic program, then support it. Or else drop out of the Atlantic Coast Conference."

This is candor of a high order. No mish-mash about building character and so forth, just straight out truth. Truth of the variety we could use more of here at UNC—and reflective of the same sort of courage we could also use more of.

The second instance of frankness we came across was equally refreshing.

The Rev. William Glenesk, pastor of a Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, defended from his pulpit the controversial 18th Century novel "Fanny Hill," which tells of a 15-year-old girl who was lured into prostitution.

The Reverend said the book was moral.

"Man cannot choose between right and wrong without having knowledge of them both," he told his overflow congregation. The girl in the novel "was not out for kicks," he continued, "she was out for love." He quoted several passages from the novel to illustrate his point.

"I say that if the act of sex is wrong, then let the censors of the nation start cleaning up every bedroom . . . Let the censors of the church begin with the Bible . . . The prophets didn't beat around the bush in describing sex, so what are we afraid of?"

The minister said he has been "flooded with about 25 protest letters a day since I spoke out in defense of the book . . . and believe me, they contained vile language not found anywhere in 'Fanny Hill.'"

This too is candor of a high order; the type we could use more of not only here at UNC but throughout the state and the world.

Somehow we don't think, contrary to that old saw, that it's value would decrease because there was more of it.

Communism And The Campus

By JACK ANDERSON

THE LATEST FAD among college students is to invite political freaks, the fanatics of the left and right, to appear on the lecture platform. These intellectual sideshows usually attract swarms of students, drawn by curiousity or the prospect of off-beat entertainment.

The biggest attractions are the Communists who have made dozens of college appearances, drawing large crowds, giving press interviews, making personal contacts.

Perhaps it is only natural that American students, who have grown up reading scare stories about Communists, should want to see one for themselves. Now the Reds are cashing in on this cold war curiosity.

The new brand of Communist speaker, however, is far removed from the Red-tied rabble rouser of the past. He is disarmingly genial, seemingly reasonable.

His whole deportment conveys the idea: "Look me over. I haven't got horns. I merely represent another way of thinking."

A party publication reported exultantly that the slippery-tongued Gus Hall, American's No. 1 Communist, spoke to 19,000 students in five campus appearances in six days.

After addressing a group of New York students, Communist Party Secretary Benjamin Davis said: "I could tell they were impressed with me. These were people of potential action whose activities must be directed."

Lesser luminaries, such as Youth Director Mortimer Rubin and Daily Worker editor James Jackson, have never lacked for listeners on the college circuit.

Buoyed up by this success, the party has established an official Communist Lecture Bureau, which offers speakers for "lectures, forums and debates on communism, who can speak with knowledge and authority, and will give a truthful view of communism."

Circular letters have gone out to editors of college newspapers, advising them of this service and adding modestly: "Fees for speakers is not a main consideration."

This is the first time the Reds, being back-door specialists, have tried to infiltrate our colleges by the front door.

Of course, only a few students have been beguiled. Some 600 Hamilton College students, for instance, listened quietly to party popoff Arnold Johnson harangue them on the shortcomings of the United States Government. The audience wasn't responsive until Johnson, attempting to illustrate a point, referred to a personal experience.

"Recently," he said, "I received a three-year sentence in a Federal prison . . ."

He was immediately interrupted by a tremendous burst of applause.

Even the aplomb of Party leader Gus Hall was shaken during an appearance at Swarthmore College. He had an audience of some 900 students and was fielding questions glibly when one student insisted on knowing the relationship between communism and religion.

Suddenly Hall lost his veneer and snapped: "I presume you are asking whether I believe in God?"

There was a moment of stillness, then defiantly Hall declared: "I do not believe in God."

He was booed so lustily that he had to scuttle from the hall by the back door.

The Reds are scarcely dismayed, however, that there is no great rush to join the Party. In their view, every appearance of a communist on a campus helps to build up their claim to be a legitimate political party.

Yet eager as they are to speak, communist lecturers are far from unhappy to be banned by the faculty. It is merely more grist for Moscow's mill.

Curb one man's speech, it is true, and others will find themselves silent. So what is the answer to the communist challenge on the campus? What happened at Michigan State University may be the answer.

More than 200 students crowded the banks of the Red Cedar River or floated in canoes to hear the noted Red, Robert G. Thompson, speak.

At last Michael Erdei, a professor who had escaped from Hungary with the Freedom Fighters, could stand it no longer. He cried out against Thompson's double-tongued oratory, reminded the students that freedom is the world's primary goal.

In that moment of truth, the American communist stood illminated before the crowd, a sickly grin on his face.

The right of free speech is too precious to be denied even to the enemy. Let the communist lecturer speak, but also let him be answered.

This Is How It All Began . . .

By KERRY SIPE

I could not sleep. The moon was bright and big and yellow, and the earth was wet with autumn rain and a breeze blew messages of sleep into my window. But, still, I could not sleep.

I wondered instead how it all began. How many people had occupied by bed before me here? How many people had spent sleepless nights in this same room. The lights were out in every window of the dorms across the quad. All was quiet. I slipped from bed and dressed.

A brisk pace around the block cleared my head, and I started back towards my domitory in anticipation of some long-awaited rest, when, to my alarm, I noticed what seemed to be a parade of men and women heading down Cameron Avenue in the direction of the Old Well. I don't ask that you believe what I am about to tell you, for indeed I have doubts of my own, but only accept it as the hapless invention of a weary mind and gain from it such knowledge as you will

Such a completely diverse group I had not seen before in my life. Each bore characteristics widely separated in time and custom from his associates. If my mouth was open, it was in awe of them. Their faces broke the night with a pallor that set a feeling of uneasiness about me. I hid behind a large Sugar Maple and waited to see what would happen.

As the ghostly procession drew nearer, I was able to read on their clothes what I took to be their names. Strange as it was, their names were as familiar to me as the addresses of my friends. "Battle," "Manly," "Aycock": Words once reminding me of buildings were now the names of faces, and I marveled at the wonder of it all.

The first was Waightstill Avery, the oldest of them all, whom I recognized as the author of the clause of the North Carolina Constitution calling for the foundation of the first state university. He wore a moth-eaten Princeton letter on his sweater and carried in his hand a sheaf of parchment inscribed with the words, "A school or schools shall be established by the legislature for the convenient instruction of youth, with such salaries to the masters, paid by the public, as may enable them to instruct at low prices . . ." I chuckled at the path of history. In a single paragraph, Avery had not only founded a university, but had perpetuated a trend that would not be overcome even after 187 years — that of the underpaid teacher.

Close behind Dr. Avery, I recognized, in robe and mortarboard, Gov. Charles Brantly Aycock. His placard read "The Education Governor," a title he earned by building an average of one school a day in North Carolina for the first four years of his administration. I could tell by the look in his eyes that he was proud of what he had done. I began to see what Kemp Battle meant when he referred to Gov. Aycock as a man "distinguished for intelligence, for bold manly pluck to standing to his convictions." On the Governor's finger I noticed a UNC class ring — Class of 1880.

I saw the flag of Dixie blowing high in the night and beneath it marched a tiny two-man confederate regiment. I recalled stories of Lt. James Johnson Pettigrew, captain of the UNC fencing team in 1827, who led the greater part of Gen. Longstreet's troops against the Union at the Battle of Gettysberg. Beside him, in perfect cadence, marched his honor Gov. Zebulon B. Vance of the Confederate State of North Carolina. He was a tall man, a strong man with a metal gray beard. Dixie stars were in his eyes as I watched him march before me. There was no doubt in my mind that he was a loyal Southerner, though history questions the point at his expense.

It was in 1865 that Gov. Vance received word that General Sherman had plans to conduct one of his notorious wasteland campaigns through the center of North Carolina. The destruction of the university seemed inevitable. In an effort to save the school, the governor asked University President Swain and ex-governor Graham to try to come to an agreement with the Union Army. An agreement to spare Chapel Hill was made in exchange for the use of the town as an encampment for 4000 Union soldiers.

President Jefferson Davis, when he heard of the bargain, declared Swain and Graham traitors to their country, and ordered their arrest.

Staunchly behind the good governor marched the stern-faced, proper Kemp Plummer Battle, who also knew a story about the war. He recalled with certain sadness a time when the survival of the great university was in the nervous hands of fate, a time when enrollment dropped from 456 to 2 in a period of ten years, a time when horses and cattle were stabled in the hallowed halls of the old South Building, a time which promoted an undentified student to scribble on an abandoned blackboard the hopeless retreat: "This old university has busted and gone to hell today."

It was Kemp P. Battle, standing before me in the moonlight, who had single-handedly raised the $20,000 necessary to put the severely wounded University of North Carolina back on its feet again. It is to him, more than any of the others, that I, as a Carolina student, felt the need to honor.

As the procession marched closer to the Old Well, I feared my hiding place might be discovered, but soon realized that each man was too involved with his own remembrances to notice me. President Battle and President Edwin Alderman were engaged in a conversation tempered to the interest of the both — the Old Well.

Mr. Battle built the Old Well in the interest of water sanitation in 1890. It was simple and utilitary. Fresh water was pumped into large tanks in the attic of the South Building each night and used by the University during the next day. It was an admirable arrangement. Mr. Alderman, however, argued that the University should have something "more marked by dignity and beauty" than Battle's "squalid and ramshackle" old well. During his administration in 1896, he built the arcade which covers the well today. As he described it, the structure was "the sixth cousin of a Greek shrine, the third cousin of the temple of Vesta, and the second cousin of the Temple of Versailles."

The group broke ranks upon approaching the well and suddenly I recognized more of them, one by one.

There was JOHN WASHINGTON GRAHAM, President of the University during the early part of the century and his faithful and co-operative Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, MARVIN H. STACY whose names will always be written together as one of the teams in the education profession. "Both," according to an editorial in a 1919 trade journal, "were masters of the problems of student-life; both were successful interpreters of the University's ideals not only to students but to the people of the State who never saw the campus; both were gifted public speakers; both were endowed with a passion for fair play and square-dealing; both possessed unusual qualities of leadership among young men. As President and Dean . . . they labored together, planned together, and almost died together."

It was President Graham who had refused to accept women as applicants to the University, though under great pressure to do so, because he believed that Southern women were inferior to all men and even Northern women in their inborn, intelligence.

Standing tall toward the back of the group, I recognized Dr. W. N. EVERETT, a prominent member of the N.C. General Assembly who had stood firmly against the admission of women to the student body. I recalled reading about that day of March 14, 1923 when the TAR HEEL blasted into the controversial argument with the headline, "Shall Co-Eds Have Dormitory Built Here?" and then answered its own question by declaring, "Representative Student Opinion Says 'No.'" The slogan of the student body became "Women Students not Wanted Here!" and "Shaves and Shines but not Rats and Rouge!" A student referendum voted on by 1,100 students revealed a mass opposition to the education of females 937-173. "Angels on Campus" were banned once again and thanks to Dr. Everett, Manhood was spared another blow of insult.

Marching victoriously behind the stalwart opposers of women sufferage and women's rights, was CHARLES DUNCAN McIVER, the father of higher education for women in North Carolina. Mr. McIver had personally taught 40 of every 100 female teachers in the state during his time.

Among the group of men around the well, I noticed for the first time, the distinctive female figure of Mrs. Cornelia Phillips Spencer, Democrat, journalist, author, poet, and the first woman to receive a Doctor of Laws degree from a Southern institution. She was an impressive woman. Gov. Vance referred to her as "the smartest woman in North Carolina," and then would add, "the smartest man too." I remember the story of Mrs. Spencer's great love for UNC. It is a fact that she died with an invocation of God's blessings for the school on her lips.

As I looked at the weird array before me, with the memories of the Gator Bowl fresh in my mind, Dr. Eben Alexander took the floor to tell an early Carolina football story. I listened eagerly. "Football, in its early forms, was a dangerous game," I heard him say. "The fans not only yealled and cheered the team to victory, but quite often rushed onto the field to tackle, trip, and kick the opposing players. I believe a group called the Minataurs have not yet abandoned the custom here. At any rate, the Trustees were up at arms over the whole thing, and in a fury declared the game of football an illegal sport. Well, you know how much good it does to tell a Carolina student what not to do! The students got together and decided that if they couldn't play football, they wouldn't play anything. The athletic teams were non-existent in the year 1890. The old playing field was allowed to grow up in grass and weeds." Dr. Alexander continued, "I just had to get up that petition to abolish the football ban." I recalled that Carolina sporting teams have been on the upswing ever since.

The Old, Old Well . . . Grandpa Was No Greek

Rah, Rah White! Rah, Rah Blue! Hoopla, Hoopla, NCU!

Old East . . . Still Proud After 170 Years

A younger man, Richard H. Lewis received the attention of the gathering, when he rose to speak. "I've always felt that it was the duty of a university to provide for both the mental and physical health of its students," he said. "During my lifetime, there was no gymnasium where students could exercise on long rainy days. When the university trustees once again were pressured by certain Baptist ladies clubs to abolish the practice of dancing on the campus, I saw an opportunity to combine two problems under a single solution. Money was raised and a wooden frame building was constructed on private property off of the University campus, to serve both as gymnasium and dance hall. The students were so relieved to find a way around a rule they considered senseless, that they emblazoned on the wall of the place the words, "We welcome the daughters of North Carolina to our own hall, on our own floor, where the critics of our pleasure have no rights nor power to deny us."

The more I watched the more meaning each face in the crowd assumed. There was Col. J. Bryan Grimes whom my friends in Ehringhaus and Craige can thank for the suggestion that future construction on the campus should be done to the south, away from Chapel Hill.

There was the Rev. Adolphus W. Mangum, Methodist minister and professor of Moral Philosophy and Religion, who was so beloved by his students. I remembered the story that Prof. Mangum used to tell about a class he was teaching concerning the effects of a good orator on a mass audience. The students all stared at him with wide eyes and open mouths and gradually moved from their seats and surrounded him at his desk, as if spellbound by his voice. With a flourishing burst of good-natured laughter, he dismissed the class for the day.

I recognized the professional aire of Dr. Charles Manley, who in 1857 obtained the money to build the first university hospital, a two-story, wooden structure affectionately called the "retreat" by students who often found it easier to get desperately ill than to take a mid-term exam. One of the first full-time physicians employed at the retreat was Dr. Richard H. Whitehead. At that time, the School of Medicine was not an official part of the University, so Dr. Whitehead was forced to charge a $5 fee from each of his students in return for medical care, in lieu of a regular salary.

Mr. HAYWOOD PARKER, stood near by with a profession air about him. It was he who moved that a reccommendation to found a Law School at Carolina be passed. The field of law was new to the University, though, and the neighboring Law School at the University of Virginia saw the opportunity to give helpful advice. "The University of Virginia has never had a great teacher who was a practitioner of any long standing," the sprouting school was warned. "Their job is to teach law, not to practice it. The technique of the practice is easily learned." Ironically, I thought, sixteen of the eighteen members of the law school faculty today have had experience as legal practitioners before going into teaching. Advice, after all, is only advice.

Sitting on the steps of the well, I saw Collier Cobb, the first publisher of THE DAILY TAR HEEL and the founder of the WHITE AND BLUE, a second campus newspaper which was discontinued in 1895. I saw C. E. Teague, champion debator of the class of 1912. I saw Julian Carr who contributed $20,000 towards the construction of the dormitory which bears his name. I saw R. D. W. Conner, reportedly the grandfather-in-law of our own dear Otelia. Mr. Conner missed getting the University presidency in 1899 by a single vote.

I saw the sweetly feminine form of Mary Ann Smith, whose $37,000 donation to the University Chemistry Department has not yet been claimed in full because she made out her will just before being admitted to a North Carolina asylum for the mentally disturbed. Insane or not, she is credited with the foresight of realizing what an important This Is How I am edit CC part chemistry was to play in future years. To the rear of the group, nearer me, I saw the faces of Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus and Mr. James Craige, both of whom made tremendous contributions to North Carolina education in more recent years.

Farther away, I saw J. Y. JOYNER and MARY LILY KENAN whose contributions to the University are all but lost in the archives of history, but whose love for UNC lives on.

I watched the tiny group of 30 men and women stand and move in quietness back to that region of the night from where they came. As I thought of all the love, work and devotion that has been spent on the last 187 years at Chapel Hill, I felt tremendously proud. I knew the meaning of the words that Cornelia Spencer had written for that commencement exercise over sixty years ago:

"Tis 'welcome' now, - and then 'farewell';-Let not thy men be few. Thy sons shall yet to their sons tell How dear the White and Blue."

The First Gymnasium . . . "Where the Critics Of Our Pleasure Have No Rights Nor Power to Deny Us."

Aid To Education Doubtful

WASHINGTON (CSP) — A massive aid program aimed at the U.S. college student has slim chances of getting through Congress this year.

Casting a shadow of doubts over the higher education program is the upcoming civil rights bill battle in the Senate.

No one knows for sure how long the Senate will be embroiled in what promises to be a long, bitter fight over the most sweeping integration measure since reconstruction days. Best estimates now see a congressional snarl imposed on other major legislation until the Senate finishes the civil rights bill — one way or another — by late fall.

Still pending in committee are House and Senate versions of mammoth student aid programs to get able but dollar-short students through college.

Getting strong administration support is the Senate version, introduced this month by Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) It comprises ideas germinating in the White House, the Office of Education and congressional circles of higher education supporters.

Similar to the Hartke bill — but containing enough differences for a tough compromise fight — is an old program of Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.)

Mrs. Green, chairman of the House Education Subcommittee, was defeated when backing the same plan last year in a conference committee.

Both House and Senate backers fear that the civil rights bill will eat up congressional attention until the November elections.

Even if the fight is finished by August, they will be hard pressed for supporters bent on stumping for reelection.

Any last minute attention before campaigning or racing to the summer national party conventions will probably be directed at higher-priority programs such as the administration's war on proverty.

The only glimmer of hope could come from decisive action by Senate supporters of the civil rights package. It would be approval of cloture — a gag rule imposed on southern filibuster forces early in the debate.

Cloture, however, is a dirty word to both Sen. Mike Mansfield, Senate Democratic leader, and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, his GOP counterpart.

While the two support the civil rights package passed by the House Feb. 10, Dirksen has some strong objections to the key public accomodations and fair employment practices sections. Pacifying the voice of the Senate GOP, however, could be a compromise on the most controversial sections.

Here's how the House and Senate versions of the student aid program look: (The House version is in the form of an amendment to the National Defense Education Act (NDEA).

LOANS — Senate would increase NDEA loans to $200 million in 1965 and $250 million in next three years. House would increase loans to $150 million a year. Both would remove $800,000 ceiling on loans to individual institutions.

Senate would increase total loan to undergraduate students to $1,500, graduate students to $2,500. House would maintain current $1,000 annual loan for undergrads, but would increase to Senate level for grad students.

Both would extend forgiveness feature to college, private elementary and secondary school teachers.

SCHOLARSHIPS — The Senate would authorize $37.5 million a year for four years in scholarships to students winning them on competitive and financial need basis. They would be $1,000 a year for four years. House under NDEA, would increase current graduate fellowships to 5,000 in 1965, 7,500 in 1966 and 10,000 by 1967.

LOAN INSURANCE — Not provided by House. Senate would authorize initial expenditure of $1 million for insurance on commercial loans made by college students not exceeding $2,000 a year. It would carry a low government interest rate, and loans would be insured up to 90 percent.

WORK STUDY PROGRAM — Not provided by House. Senate would authorize $250 million a year for four years to finance working-study programs. Undergrad student could earn up to $1,250 during two semesters while a grad student could earn $2,500. The federal share of the institutions' payments to the students would be 100 per cent in the first year, 75 per cent in succeeding years.

GREAT ROMANTIC STORY!
HIS LOVE CHALLENGED THE FLAMES OF REVOLT!
RONALD COLMAN
in Charles Dickens'
A TALE OF TWO CITIES
TODAY ONLY
Carolina

Fire! Fire!

Smokey the Bear just wasn't there. At least that's the way it looked behind the Tin Can yesterday afternoon.

The Chapel Hill Fire Department answered a call to put out a brush fire behind the makeshift gym. The fire, although causing considerable smoke, did little damage. Police attributed the fire to a discarded cigarette burning in the leaves.

The smouldering fire was put out quickly by a pumper truck.

6TH BIG WEEK
Nominated for 10 Academy Awards
TOM JONES
12:18, 2:30, 4:45, 7, & 9:15 p.m.
RIALTO, Durham

TRAVEL WITH A PURPOSE
July 2 - August 30, 1964
Unique education program in search of man's past
Archaeological seminar
Visit Ancient Sites in
GREECE, JORDAN, ISRAEL
Participate in
ARCHAEOLOGICAL EXCAVATION AND PROGRAM
Archaeology of Palestine
Historical Geography of Palestine
Classical Hebrew
Courses are accredited by Associate Institutions
For further information, please write to Institute for Mediterranean Studies, 2054 University Avenue, Room 312, Berkeley, California, or contact your Local Travel Agent.

8a.m.calculus...late rush...arrive...quiz... Eng...read...write... ...correct...Psych... psychotic...neurotic Pavlov...bell...lunch whew...pause things go better with Coke
"Coca-Cola" and "Coke" are registered trade-marks which identify only the product of the Coca-Cola Company
Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

-Items-

(Continued from Page 1)

Hills," "Horn in the West," "The Stephen Foster Story," "Honey in the Rock," "The Founders" and "Home is the Hunter."

"The Lost Colony," "Unto These

McNairy Wins Scholarship

William McNairy, a UNC junior from Greensboro, has been awarded the $500 Pilot Freight Carriers Scholarship.

McNairy, who is majoring in Traffic and Transportation, is a member of YRC, GM Music Committee, and Chi Psi fraternity.

Reckford Will Lead Discussion

Dr. Kenneth J. Reckford of the Department of Classics will lead a pre-Symposium discussion group today at 5:45 p.m. at Pi Lambda Phi fraternity.

Social Security Is Speech Topic

Mrs. Nina Matthews will address women's dormitory counselors today at 2:30 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. Her topic is "Social Security."

CORRECTION

The Daily Tar Heel regrets the error it printed in its Tues- stated that Dr. Robert Osborn was convicted of a trespass charge and sentenced to 60 days on the roads. The article should have said Dr. David Smith was found guilty of trespass and sentenced to 60 days on the roads.

DR. E. MAYNARD ADAMS

Dr. E. Maynard Adams, of the Philosophy Dept., will give the third in a series of four lectures on "The Individual and His Religion," at 8 p.m. tonight at the Community Church. The public is invited.

Services Available

A FRIEND OF YOURS . . . PRObably already has begun to build a life insurance program with Northwestern Mutual. Ask about the service we provide. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

FOR RENT: NICE ROOMS, within walking distance of campus, for girls over night or weekends. 302 Pritchard Ave., call 942-5686.

For Sale

FOR SALE: MARTIN D-18 GUItar. Excellent condition. Call 968-8392.

FOR SALE: "1960" LAMBRETta Scooter, excellent condition with two seats and book rack. $130.00. Call 968-9021. Ask for Robert Schneider.

Used Cars For Sale

FOR SALE: 1956 CADILLAC "62" sedan. Black, low mileage, excellent tires, absolutely perfect condition throughout. $800 cash, cheap at this price — S. Hetherington, Carrboro, 942-6946.

1959 CHEVROLET, 4-DOOR; silver blue, heater, radio, automatic transmission. $850 firm. Barbara Lauder, 968-9015.

Applications Will Be Four Times Too High:Friday

There will probably be about four times as many applicants to the Consolidated University as the University can enroll next fall, President William C. Friday told the UNC board of trustees here recently.

Rate of applications are running about 20 per cent ahead of last year at the Raleigh and Greensboro institutions, he said.

Friday said that University facilities were not capable of handling such a great increase in the student body at the present time.

"The pressure is on us now," he said. "We had thought the overwhelming pressure wouldn't come until 1965, but it's now . . . ," and things indicate that the situation will get worse before it gets better.

The only solution to the problem is more money.

— Money to establish more comprehensive community colleges.

— Money to expand existing faculties and facilities.

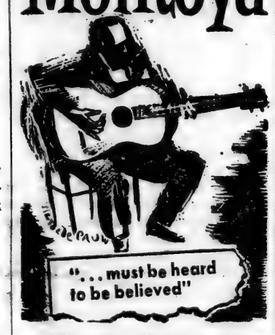
— Money to encourage the expansion of private colleges in the state.

"If these needs are not met, then priorities for admission must be established.

"The increasing competition is not going to abate," Friday said. "We are not falling behind, but we are not gaining ground in any marked way. We are still behind."

Prints and Frames
There's a new lot of colorful prints of famous paintings and drawings up in our Print Gallery, just right for that wall that needs cheering up. New frames, too, including a Victory Village Special at only $2.98 — a lightweight frame for matted drawings.
Bargains
Our feature table is running over with tempting titles, most at half-price or less. Hurry in for the pick of the crop!
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 p.m.

The Incredible Carlos Montoya



Ticket Sale (Students only)
Starts Today, March 11, 12:30 p.m.
At Graham Memorial

ON STAGE
Jackie "MOMS" MABLEY and her BIG ALL-STAR SHOW featuring
MARTHA and the VANDELLAS
MARY WELLS • CHUCK JACKSON
SOLOMON BURKE • TOMMY TUCKER
RUFUS "walk the dog" THOMAS
LEO PRICE AND HIS GREAT ORCHESTRA
J. S. DORTON ARENA
N. C. STATE FAIRGROUND
Tickets on sale—Thiem's Record Shop & Hamlin Drug.
ONE NIGHT ONLY
All Seats Reserved
$2.00 $2.50 $3.00
FRIDAY MARCH 13
8 P. M.
Doors Open 7 P.M.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Tooth
6. Paralysis
11. Semblance
12. Join
13. Harass
14. Girl's name
15. Seniors: abbr.
16. Viper
18. Land measures
19. Bad-tempered
21. Meadows
24. Look askance
28. Formulated opinions
29. To eat greedily
30. Trust
31. Injustices
32. Brush away
34. Fuel
37. Devoured
38. Place
41. Turkish money of account
43. Potassium nitrate
45. Kitchen utensil
46. Expunge
47. Detests
48. Insurgent

DOWN
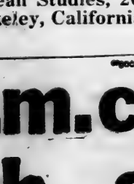
1. Game of marbles
2. Hebrew measure
3. Young girl
4. Grow old
5. Delays
6. Low shoes
7. Mother of Irish gods
8. Italian coin
9. Mix
10. Affirmative votes
17. Distress signal
19. Pottery materials
20. Kind of boat
21. Pinaceous tree
22. Fish
23. Lamprey
25. Sea eagle
26. Urge on
27. Property: L.
29. More verdant
31. Moist
33. Goods
34. A deep cut
35. World's largest continent
36. Small barracuda
38. Pierce
39. Scottish-Gaelic
40. Sesame
42. Adam's wife
44. Wrath



Yesterday's Answer

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

Ad Hoc Comm. for Residence Halls—4:30 p.m., RP I, to discuss residence college system.

Foreign Students Comm. — 6 p.m., Lenoir, roll of reincarnation in Hindu philosophy.

Math Colloquium — 4 p.m., 383 Phillips, William L. Duren, "Calculus of Variations Revisited: The Theory of Optimal Control," coffee served at 3:30 in 383 Phillips.

Physics Colloquium—4 p.m., 265 Phillips, A. Zucker, "Heavy Ions in the Study of the statistical Model of the Nucleus," coffee served in 277 Phillips at 3:30.

Finance Comm.—3-5 p.m., Woodhouse Room, primary hearings of budget.

SP—7:30 p.m., Gerrard, panel discussion — "What's Wrong With The Tar Heel," also will fill legislative seat from Cobb and position on Advisory Board.

CWC—2:30-4 p.m., Grail Room, interviews for president of CWC.

SL Ways and Means Comm.—5 p.m., Woodhouse Room.

CCUN—3-5 p.m., today-Fri., interviews for UN Seminars, New York. YMCA-CCUN Office.

MRC — 7 p.m., 4th floor, New East, business.

Scuba Diving Club — meeting time has been changed from Wed. to Thurs. night.

Philosophy of Science & Math— 5:15 p.m., 213 Caldwell, meeting for anyone interested in forming a discussion group, if interested but unable to attend, call Hunter, 933-2046.

Basketball Club — 4 p.m., Women's Gym.

Badminton Club — 7 p.m., Women's Gym.

Stray Greeks—6 p.m., upstairs Lenior.

WRC—3-5 today, and Thurs., RP I, interviews for freshman co-ordinator, sign up for interviews at GM information desk.

Orientation Comm. — 4-6 today, and Fri., and 2-6 Thurs., RP III, interviews for Orientation Comm.

MOVIES

Carolina — Tale of Two Cities
Varsity — Dangerous Love Affair
Rialto — Tom Jones

LOST AND FOUND

Found — brown-rimmed glasses in Woollen Gym locker room on Wed., marked "Williar:" recover at GM information desk.

Lost—pair of plastic black-rimmed glasses on Fri., contact Dane Fox, 968-9150.

THURSDAY

Spanish Table—6-7 p.m., Lenoir.
Mock Political Convention—7:15 p.m., Carroll, meeting for all delegation chairmen.
Scuba Diving Club—7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

SATURDAY

The Panhellenic Council will sell Katydids fom 9-5 downtown and in Eastgate.

Varsity
NOW SHOWING
ROGER VADIM'S
"DANGEROUS LOVE AFFAIRS"
(Les Liaisons Dangereuses)
An ASTOR Release • Not recommended for the immature.

The Record Bar Invites You To SAVE $$$ ON ANGEL LP's
Angel
1/3
Yes 33⅓% Off
(Hi-Fi & Stereo)
Angel
All 3.98 Angel LP's NOW ..... $2.65
All 4.98 Angel LP's NOW ..... $3.35
All 5.98 Angel LP's NOW ..... $3.98
SAVE NOW
A BIG ⅓ OFF
RECORD BAR
108 Henderson Street
Chapel Hill
Corner Church & Parrish Sts.
Downtown Durham

SPORTS
Daily Tar Heel
Page 4 Wednesday, March 11, 1964

Track Team Hosts ACC Indoor Games

By BILL LEE

Carolina's indoor track team will conclude a highly successful season this Saturday as they play host to the ACC Indoor Championship Meet.

Undefeated in regular season conference competition, the Tar Heels find themselves up against the strong Maryland team of Coach James Kehoe who have won the championship every year since 1955.

Carolina did not meet Maryland in regular competition, but came away with victories over NC State, Clemson and South Carolina in dual meets, and Duke, Wake Forest, Davidson and State again in the Big 5 Indoor Championship.

Coach Joe Hilton, however, has an optimistic view. "Maryland is, of course, odds-on favorite to win, but Wake Forest and UNC have improved this year. Also, Clemson and USC have gotten better, which I hope will not make Maryland as top-heavy as they have been."

Hilton went on to talk about his team. "From the UNC standpoint, we are in pretty fair shape except for a few colds. We haven't had any competition in three weeks, but we're still conditioned to a degree. Folk and Meade may be available, and I'm expecting a relatively good performance from them.

"Also, we expect superlative performances from Art Maillet and Tommy Clark."

Mike Folk has been out with a leg injury since early February, and James Meade has not run at all during the indoor season due to a knee injury.

Leading the Tar Heels will be old reliables Ronnie Jackson, who broke the school 60-yard mark his last time out, Bob Bennet in the 600, Bill Graham in the shot, Milt Bauguess and Dale White in the hurdles, and Al Dobritch in the 440.

The University of South Carolina, who were beaten by the Tar Heels 65-40 during the season, are back for another try. Their strength lies in the field events with Woody Chapman in the broad-jump, Roland Brown in the pole-vault, and Walt Christiansen in the shot-put.

Leading their runners are Al Rose, an excellent miler, and Bob Cromby, an 880 star.

Clemson, under coach H. C. Greenfield, went down to UNC 60-48 during the regular season. They are led by Avery Nelson in the broad-jump, and Bill Jackson, who vaulted 14 feet against Carolina, in the pole-vault.

Ernie Drown, miler, is their top runner, while the mile-relay team of Doug Adams, Hayes Cone, Cecil Huey, and Jim Wynn turned in a 3:28 time against UNC.

Top names from the "Big Four" include Julian Rainwater of Wake Forest, in the pole-vault, Rod Stewart of Duke in the shot-put, Bob Fogle of Duke in the high hurdles, and George Khale of Wake Forest in the broad-jump.

Duke also comes over with a strong 2-mile relay team which turned in an 8:15.5 at the Big 5 meet. The team is composed of Scott Hickman, Dave Johnson, John Weiasiger and Dick Newton.

Maryland's mighty thinclads bring down a team of great depth and several years of experience. Expected to head the Terps will be Ed Bennet in the pole-vault, Ernie Hearon in the shot-put, and Mike Cole in the broad-jump and sprints. Cole, last week, broke the ACC broad jump mark that has held since 1935, but has to do it in a meet to make it official.

Leading the Maryland's runners are Mike George and Thomas Kreuger in the 2-mile run and Steve Lamb and John Prettyman in the 600. Ramsey Thomas leads the mile, while Robert Vermillion heads the hurdle events.

Ehringhaus-B, ATO Advance To Finals

By PETE GAMMONS

The Peacocks Monday night won the Graduate Championship in basketball, defeating the Med School 4, 53-47. Trailing 25-24 at the half, the Peacocks capitalized on the Doctors' missed free throws (6-17 at the line) and slowly pulled away. They were able to move former Davidson star Bill Jarman out enough to stop him from controlling the boards, and enabled Harry Johnstone to score 19 and Larry Nolan 17. Tom Parham was the third Peacock in double figures with 10. Jarman, hurt by his six missed free throws, ended up with 16, while Bill Hubbard and Tommy Koontz had 11 and 10 respectively.

The All-Campus playoffs, without the grads, got under way Monday night. In the Dorm Playoff the Ehringhaus B Aces nipped the Ehringhaus B Kings, 42-37, in a duel of football stars. The Blue Division Aces led most of the way, as they earned the right to meet the Fraternity champs. Junior Edge had 14, Eddie Kesler 11, and Frank Gallgher 10 for the Aces. George Boutsellis had 15 and Gene Sigmon, whose loss due to fouls hurt the Kings, had 9.

ATO Blue whipped Phi Delt-2, the Frat White Champ, 49-37, to become the Ehringhaus Aces' competition for the campus finals. Leading by only two at the end of the first half, mostly due to some horrendus foul shooting, the ATO's exploded in the second half and made the game a runaway. Sammy Simpson as usual led the winners with 15, followed by Watts Carr and Buff Moore with 10. Harry Stovall had 16 for Phi Delt.

Murals Scores

BASKETBALL PLAYOFFS

Graduate Finals
Peacocks 53, Med School 4 47

All-Campus Semifinals
Ehringhaus Acres 42, Ehringhaus Kings 37
ATO 49, Phi Delt 2 37

SOCCER

Alexander 5, Carr 0
St. Anthony Hall 2, Physics 0
Everett Rogahs 2, Craige A 1
Aycock 1, Kappa Psi 0 (default)

Six Tankmen Leave For Championships

By PERRY McCARTY

Coach Pat Earey and six of his tankmen bundle up and head north today. Their destination is Dartmouth College, Hanover, New Hampshire, and the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming Championships.

Despite the fact that 15 inches of snow has been reported in the adjacent area, the Heels are eager for the distant sojourn and the chance to match skills with the best swimmers from the entire eastern seaboard.

Thompson Mann, Harrison Merrill, Davis Roberts, John Sheldon, Fred Lipp, and Rick Forum will compete in the three day championship contest. UNC's medley relay team of Mann, Forum Lipp, and Roberts figures to finish near the top. Only two schools have recorded faster marks in this event — Yale and Army. Both will be on hand at Dartmouth.

Mann, Merrill, Forum and Roberts will combine for the 400 freestyle relay; and, again, the Dolphin quartet are among the swiftest entered.

All Americas Mann and Merrill stand the best chance to come away with individual honors. Backstroker Mann is currently pushing the NCAA mark for 100 yards and is a strong threat in the longer 200. However, he will have to contend with Princeton's Jed Graef.

Merrill is entered in the 500, 200, and 100 yard freestyle events. He is yet to be turned loose in the 500 this year and will surely improve on his old ACC mark of 5:09. His 1:47.8 clocking in the 200 puts him among the national leaders, and he should give Yale's freestyle stable a real scare. No doubt Merrill will get into the 100 finals, but his best chance is the longer races.

Two other fine freestylers Roberts and Sheldon will both swim the 200. Sheldon will test his superior strength and staying power in the 500; while sprinter Roberts will compete in the 100. Incidentally, some observers feel that Sheldon might have won the ACC 500 from NC State's Pat Gavaghan. Doing flip turns Sheldon lost count and thought he had more laps ahead than he actually did. He virtually sprinted the final 50 yards and finished a close second to Gavaghan.

Butterflier Fred Lipp and breaststroker Rick Forum will go both the 100 and 200 races in their specialties. Both hold UNC records and this will be the first test of a national flavor for these two splendid sophomores.

While this should be UNC's best showing ever at the Eastern Championships, the Dolphins can scarcely hope to finish higher than fourth or fifth which represents quite an achievement in itself. Yale, Army, and Villanova have very talented groups. Blessed with the best national collegiate freshmen team last year, the West Point cadets swamped the usually dominating middies in their own element, the water, by a concincing 40 point margin earlier this season.

Fencers Down VMI By 18-9

Carolina's fencing team came roaring back from a 14-13 defeat suffered at the hands of VMI two weeks ago at Woollen Gym and delivered a stinging 18-9 defeat to VMI's Keydets on their home strips.

The most decisive defeat of the day was handed the hapless Keydets in their previously strongest weapon when the Tar Heels bruised them by 8-1 in foil. The epee team also did well as they defeated VMI 6-3.

The only bright spot of the day for VMI came when their sabre team won 5-4.

Duke-Villanova Highlights NCAA Regionals At Raleigh Friday Night

By LARRY TARLETON

The Duke-Villanova game Friday night shapes up as the best attraction in the NCAA Eastern Regionals at Reynolds Coliseum this weekend.

Villanova, Princeton and Connecticut earned tickets to Raleigh by winning Monday night games at Philadelphia. Villanova dumped Providence 77-66, Connecticut upset Temple 53-48 and Princeton used a 34-point effort from Bill Bradley and a second-half spurt to bury Southern Conference champ VMI.

In this week's issue of the "Sporting News," columnist-referee Jim Enright predicts a national championship for Duke's Blue Devils. Through his horoscope, Enright sees a UCLA-Duke championship game with the Blue Devils prevailing.

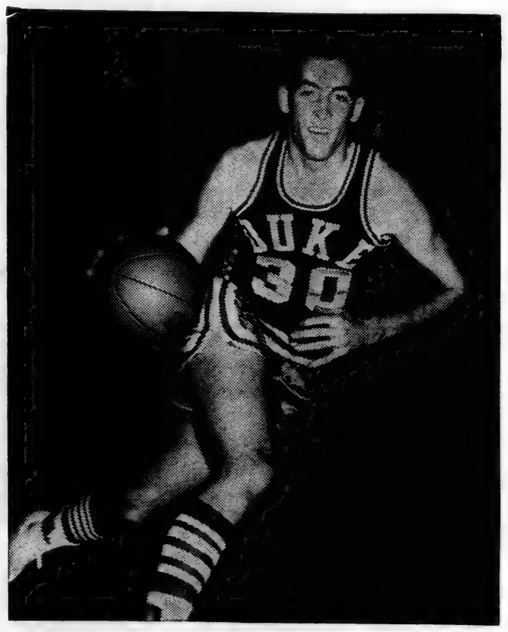
Vic Bubas' team may be the best ACC team since Frank McGuire's 1957 Tar Heels. One astute observer, the old "Gray Fox" from State, says that this year's Blue Devils may be superior to the '57 National Champions. Although we won't go that far, the boys from Durham do seem to have what it takes to be national champs. They have the height, speed and defense, however the road to Kansas City won't be an easy one for Jeff Mullins and Company. Jay Buckley bailed them out three times in the ACC tournament, but he may find out he won't be able to shoot his sidearm hook against Jim Washington (Villanova center), Les Hunter (Loyola center) or some other top performer.

Sophomore guard Steve Vacendak, who suffered a bruised lung in a collision with Billy Galantai in the Carolina-Duke game, was released from the hospital yesterday and is expected to see action this weekend. Vacendak was playing his best game of the year when he was injured Friday night. The Blue Devils will need Vacendak, the best ball-handler on the team, against Villanova who likes to press the other team into ball-handling mistakes.

The seventh-ranked Wildcats have used this harassing defense to compile a 23-3 record to date. Led by All-American guard Wally Jones, Coach Jack Kraft's team has been called the trickiest circus act this side of Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey. Jones' ball handling wizardry has caused some opponents to label him as a "showboat;" but Kraft is quick to discount this by noting that this is the way Jones has played all his life and the behind-the-back passes come natural to him.

Junior center Jim Washington is probably the most-underated Wildcat. At 6-7 he has repeatedly outplayed taller and better-known opponents. Monday night he held Providence's John Thompson to 18 points and three rebounds. Sophomores Richie Moore, who scored 25 points against Providence, Bill Melchionni and 6-8 Al Salle join Jones and Washington in the starting lineup. Melchionni came on fast toward the end of the season to push last season's starter, George Leftwich, out of his starting position.

The top performer in the tournament will probably be Princeton's Bill Bradley, who has already been voted "Player of the Year" in some All-American polls. Bradley and four guys named Joe will meet perennial Yankee Conference champion Connecticut in other Friday night action. Former Duke aide Fred Shabel produced a winner in his first year as UConn mentor and would dearly love to meet the Blue Devils in the finals. Toby Kimball and "Big Ed" Slomcenski (6-10) lead the devastating UConn board attack. Kimball (6-7) leads the team in scoring and has a 17.4 rebound average.



MISTER COOL of the machine-like Duke Blue Devils is senior guard Buzzy Harrison. Twice this season he killed UNC with his outside jump shots. Friday he'll be trying to do the same thing to Villanova, in the Eastern Regionals in Raleigh.

BROADCAST FEE

CHICAGO (UPI) — A record TV-Radio network fight fee of $300,000 was paid for the second Rocky Marciano-Joe Walcott title bout in 1953, which lasted two minutes and 25 seconds.

PEANUTS

COMBO TONIGHT
At The Tempo Room
Featuring the:
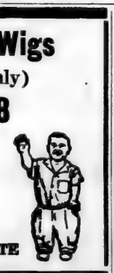
"SEVEN KEYS"
We are happy to introduce another Tempo first, Ladies Night, Free bouquet of tulips and draft beer at ½ Price for all Ladies.

The Hub
TELLS YOU HOW TO LOOK NEAT WITHOUT REALLY TRYING

THE SECRET...
Is in the Dress Shirt and begins with the fundamentals: The fine weave of the fabric, delicate handline of a seam, detailing of a cuff or pocket, comfort of a well-designed collar.
This spring you will find all the above qualities in our dress shirts, plus an exciting variety of fashionable colors — Bold, slender, or compressed stripes. All styled to put the emphasis where it belongs, for a smart fitting, trim appearance. Now in demand.
You must personally view our collection of dress shirts for spring—Find the answer to your most exacting need . . .
Where Sprinf Fashions Begin
The Hub of Chapel Hill
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Beatle Wigs
(Red Only)
$1.98
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE



CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

Half Sleeve Shirts

Don't be half right, be all right in a Half Sleeve shirt from our fabulous stock of plaids, stripes & solids.
These half sleeve shirts are made of the finest pima cotton with such respected names as Eagle and Wren, Ltd.
The perfect collar roll and 11 inch sleeve make these shirts a must for spring.
Priced from only 4.95
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin
Clothiers of Distinction

VALIANT

Although this shirt was created for oarsmen who race in shells, it may be worn for all summer activity or inactivity. It is cool cotton knit, and nicely nautical.
Town & Campus

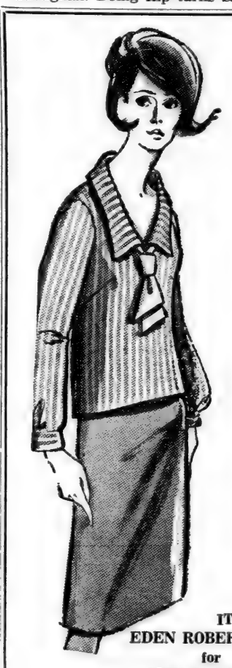
ITS EDEN ROBERTS for CITY SAILORS
Your wardrobe will be in shipshape with these mixable MITTY COORDINATES. Choose from the BELTED BLAZER or SLIPOVER JACKET. Then select the A-line, Action Pleated, or Straight Skirt that gives you the look you want. For a Sleek slant, add the white, fully-lined CAPRIS. Don't overlook the sleeveless MITTY SHIFT.
The Casual perfection of this group will insure smooth sailing every hour of the day.
Spring Fashions Are in Full Bloom At
THE CO-ED CORNER
THE HUB of CHAPEL HILL



CORBIN

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

You can be more BEAUTIFUL

PERFECT HAIR COLORING TAKES BOTH KNOWLEDGE AND SKILL
Don't trust your priceless hair to inexperienced hands. Our colorists and body wave experts can give you younger, livelier-looking hair such as you've always wanted. Under the supervision of Joseph.

CAROLINA BEAUTY SHOP
Open Mon.-Sat.
8:30-5:30
FREE PARKING
942-4058
MERLE NORMAN COSMETICS

POGO

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Lodge Edition

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
Clear and mild.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1964 | United Press International Service

ITEMS

Women At University Topic Of Lecture

Mrs. Albert Coates will address the final meeting of In-Service training program for staff members of the office of the Dean of Women next Thursday.

The subject of her talk will be "The Position of Women in the University of North Carolina."

The meeting will be held in Room 105 of Hanes Hall at 4:30 p.m.

Planetarium Show Art Exhibit

A one-man art show featuring the works of Mrs. Elizabeth Zachary of Long Beach is currently on display in the north gallery of the Morehead Planetarium.

The 28 paintings in the show will continue to be on display throughout the month.

Mrs. Zachary studied art under several Florida artists and is currently teaching art in the South Port public schools. Mrs. Zachary's work has been exhibited previously in several other North Carolina cities and in Florida.

Peace Corps Test Is Given Tonight

The Peace Corps Placement Test will be given again tonight at 7 in Room 209, Gardner Hall.

Needed most are volunteers in the fields of agriculture, health, engineering, construction and education, but openings in practically all categories are available.

The General Aptitude Test and the Modern Language Aptitude Test will both be required.

Application forms are available from Anne Queen at the YMCA or from Frank Hall in 527 Craige.

DTH Editorship Interviews Soon

Want to change the Tar Heel?

Interviews for the editorship will be held Wednesday by the Selections Board of the Publications Board in Woodhouse Room at Graham Memorial.

Although the editor is chosen in the spring elections all candidates must be interviewed and approved by the Selections Board for their name to appear on the official ballot.

The editor and business manager of the Yackety Yack will also be chosen. Experience for both of these jobs is neccessary. The salary for Yack editor is $750 per year and for business manager is $600.

The Board will also review the Joint Advertising plan with which the DTH has been experimenting for the yast three months and will decide whether or not to abandon it.

Teachers For Africa Wanted By AID

A representative of the U.S. Agency for International Development will be here today recruiting students for possible teaching positions in East African secondary schools.

Miss Kathleen Isker, representing the Teachers for East Africa Project (TEA) will conduct the recruiting program in cooperation with the Teacher's College of Columbia University.

The program is an effort by the United States, the United Kingdom, Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda to meet urgent educational needs of East Africa.

Professionally trained college graduates with a background in biology, chemistry, English, geography, history, mathematics, or physics will be eligible for the program. No educa-

(Continued on Page 5)

Race Mediation Committee Decides To Keep On Trying

The Board of Aldermen Monday night took the first of possible steps to curtail the future use of suburban commercial zoning in the Town's planing area.

The Aldermen called a special public hearing April 13 to consider three zoning requests and to establish a policy on the future use of suburban commercial zoning. The Board also requested the Planning Board to make a recommendation at the hearing.

Mayor Sandy McClamroch told the Aldermen that the Mediation Committee, of which he is chairman, would not disband because of lack of progress, but would consider a new course of action at a meeting tonight.

The nine-member committee was established in January to negotiate the voluntary desegregation of the Town's holdout businesses.

In reply to a question from Board member Mrs. Adelaide Walters, Mayor McClamroch said, "The committee is not happy with the results it has gotten, but has decided to stay in existence. Committee members will work as individuals and be on call for negotiations if the need arises. He said the Committee had not received replies to some letters mailed to owners of segregated businesses.

"The Committee may be expanded to work in other areas," he said. "We have a meeting Wednesday night to consider some other courses of action."

Discussion of a formal limitation of future suburban commercial zoning followed the Aldermen's rejection of three requests for such zoning. The Board turned down requests by Bruce and C. L. Martindale, W. B. Upchurch, and C. M. Mayse for rezoning of their properties from residential to suburban commercial.

The Aldermen supported a Planning Board recommendation that the requests be turned down because suburban commercial zoning is too lax.

The three later changed their requests to regional commercial. Town Manager Robert Peck said such zoning was more stringent, requiring a greater right-of-way from the street and it prevented people from building right up to their side property lines. It also restricts the kinds of businesses that can be built on it, he said.

The Board approved Alderman Roland Giduz's motion calling for a special meeting in April to consider these three requests for regional commercial and requested the Planners to make a recommendation.

"We want to let people know that we will not grant any more suburban commercial zoning in the future," Mayor McClamroch said. "It's an unusable zone."

Alderman Gene Strowd proposed that suburban commercial be removed from the zoning ordinances and be put under the non-conforming section.

Planning Board chairman

(Continued on Page 5)

Meet Starts Today On World Affairs

Zennon Rossides, ambassador from Cyprus to the United Nations and to the United States, and Katie S. Louchheim, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, are the principal speakers for the 14th Annual Conference on World Affairs today at UNC.

Ambassador Rossides and Deputy Assistant Secretary Louchheim will speak in Memorial Hall at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. respectively. The theme of the conference is "World Peace."

Seven discussion groups will be devoted to these subjects: "Economic Equilibrium;" "Disarmament;" "World Law;" "Racial Justice;" "The Role of Youth;" "The East-West Dialogue;" "The Spiritual Forces."

An address will be given by Dr. Eugene E. Pfaff, professor of history, The University of North Carolina at Greensboro, in the afternoon.

The institute will begin with two films entitled "The Only War We Seek" and "A Place in the Sun."

Officers of the North Carolina Council on World Affairs, representing 20 men's and women's organizations in the state will participate in the day-long program.

Others on the program are: Waldo Beach, professor of Christian Ethics, Duke University; James H. Blackman, professor of economics and director of Graduate Studies in Economics, UNC; Henry P. Brandis Jr., professor of law and Dean of the School of Law, UNC; Henry Elkins, director, United Campus Christian Ministers, North Carolina College; Jack Lasley, Chapel Hill attorney; Daniel G. Partan, Research Associate, the World Rule of Law Center, Duke University School of Law; Robert A. Rupen, associate professor of Political Science and research associate in the Institute for Research in Social Science, UNC; and Robert E. Seymour, minister of the Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church in Chapel Hill. Program chairman for the North Carolina Council on World Affairs is Mrs. Susan Smith of Durham.

Katie S. Louchheim is the first woman to be appointed Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs in the history of the department. She was Assistant Diretcor of Public Information for UNNRA from 1942-1946; on special assignment in connection with displaced persons camps in Germany in 1945; a member of the District of Columbia delegation to the Democratic Convention. She has traveled in the Near East, South Asia, Latin America and Europe.

Preyer Selects UNC Student For Campaign

Phil Baddour, majority floor leader in Student Legislature, was one of three student leaders picked Tuesday as area organizers in gubernatorial candidate Richardson Preyer's student campaign.

The Goldsboro senior will travel to colleges and universities in central North Carolina to organize student support for Preyer.

Charles Shaffer Jr., Chapel Hill senior, was picked as a student aide for the same area last week.

The other two aides selected were Gene Horne of Charlotte, editor of the student newspaper at Charlotte College, and Mike Wilson of Tarboro, an East Carolina College student and former vice-chairman of the state Federation of Young Democrats.

WAA Interviews

The Women's Athletic Association (WAA) will hold interviews for president for next year Tuesday at 5 p.m. in the Women's Gym. All interested students are asked to apply.

Isaac Stern Concert Planned Next Monday

Isaac Stern, noted American violinist, will appear in concert at Memorial Hall Mon., March 16, at 8 p.m. He will be assisted by Alexander Zakin at the piano.

The program includes: Brahms, Sonata No. 2 in A Major, Opus 100; Bach, Partita No. 1 in B minor for solo violin; Prokofeiff, Sonata in D Major, Opus 94; Chausson, Poeme; Wieniawski, Polonaise Brilliante No. 2 in A Major.

DR. HENRY T. CLARK

Clark Named To National Council Post

Dr. Henry T. Clark Jr., administrator of the University's Division of Health Affairs, has been selected as one of 15 members of the National Advisory Council on Education for the Health Professions. The appointment to Council membership were made by Anthony Celebrezze, Secretary of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The primary functions of the Council are to advise the U. S. Surgeon General on policy matters arising out of the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1963, legislation which calls for spending $175 million in federal matching funds in the next three fiscal years to construct training faciilties for physicians, pharmacists, optometrists podiatrists, nurses and public health personnel.

The Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service is chairman of the Council and the U. S. Commissioner of Education is an ex-officio members.

Dr. Clark's appointment is for a four-year term. Terms of other members vary from two to four years.

The Health Professions Educational Assistance Art of 1963 (commonly known as HR 12) is the outgrowth of years of studies to determine the need to train health professionals. It is viewed as the beginning of a major effort by the federal government to help balance programs of health education with its enormous research activities.

Dr. Clark has been administrator of the University's Division of Health Affairs since 1950, moving here after two years as director of Vanderbilt University Hospital in Nashville, Tenn.

In addition to his new national appointment, he has the following responsibilities on the national scene:

He is chairman of the American Hospital Association's Council on Research and Education; a member of the Advisory Committee to the Mountain States Medical Education Study sponsored by the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education; a member since 1961 of the General Clinical Research Center Committee of the U. S. Public Health Service; and for eight years a special consultant to the Government of Puerto Rico in planning and developing its Puerto Rico Medical Center in San Juan.

Jacoby Heads Bridge Meet In Durham

The American Contract Bridge League has voted to award an extra red point day for the Mid-Atlantic Spring Regional Bridge Tournament to be held at the Jack Tar Hotel in Durham, April 8-12, it has been announced.

The additional red point day will be Thursday, April 9, featuring 2 sessions each of the Men's pairs and the Women's pairs.

Oswald Jacoby, the top ranking bridge player of the world, will be an honor guest of the tournament which is expected to draw over 1,000 bridge players from all parts of the country.

Jacoby will be featured in television, lecture at Duke University and moderate a panel of experts including Mrs. Margaret Wager of Atlanta, Ivar Stakgold of Chicago, Billy Woodson of Charlotte, Dick Freeman of Atlanta, and other international bridge celebrities.

Mr. John Norwool, Jr. of Greenville, S. C., the Carolina's representative on the American Contract Bridge League's board of directors called Vic Huggins to report the decision of the board to extend the red point competition for the Durham Tournament. The ACBL board met in Portland, Oregon where the Spring National Tournament is now in play.

To become a life master in bridge a player must have earned 300 master points, including 50 red points which can only be won in Regional or National Competition.

With Mr. Jacoby in attendance at a full 4 day red point regional —Vic Huggins, anticipates 1,500 tables in play and is planning this prize studded, entertainment featured, bridge festival to be the best attended regional ever held in this area.

CORRECTION

The DTH mistakenly referred to Sam Applegate as president of the SAE house in yesterday's story about vandalism on a bus. Applegate is the former president. The remarks quoted in the story were made by newly elected President Richard Lewis.

Herzog Found Guilty; Sentence Set For Thursday

The jury in the case of Dr. Frederick Herzog returned a verdick of guilty on charges of trespass yesterday after deliberating for one hour and 40 minutes.

Judge Raymond B. Mallard of Orange County Superior Court delayed sentence until next Thursday. Herzog has posted bond for appearance at that time.

The trial of Dr. Peter Klopfer, a Duke faculty member, was started and went to the jury yesterday also. The jury retired shortly after 4 p.m., but had not reached a verdict by 5:40 p.m. Mallard then sent the jury home for the evening. They will resume deliberations again in the morning.

The trial of Dr. Robert Osborn also got under way today. Osborn pleaded not quilty to the charge of trespass on the property of Austin Watts on the night of Jan. 3.

The charges grew out of the same sit-in in which Dr. David Smith and Dr. Frederick Herzog have been found guilty of trespass. The charges were brought after the group staged an anti-segregation protest at the restaurant belonging to Watts.

The trial got no further than the seating of 12 prospective jurors to be interrogated by the prosecution and defense. No questions were asked of the jurors yesterday. Attorneys plan to start selecting the jury today.

Solicitor Dick Cooper speculated that Mallard had postponed sentencing Herzog to keep future jurors from being prejudiced in other cases concerning the same incident.

WRECK GUARDED

USAF Jet Crewmen Alive In Germany

WIESBADEN, Germany—(UPI) An East German official said Wednesday night that the three crewmen of a U. S. Air Force jet reconnaissance bomber shot down over Communist East Germany on Tuesday were alive.

The Soviet Union officially admitted one of their fighters shot down the American plane.

The report that the Americans were alive came from the mayor of Stendal, the town where the U. S. RB66 bomber was downed after it strayed into East German skies.

U. S. Air Force spokesmen said the Communists may have used false radio signals to lure the American plane off course before shooting it down.

"They are alive," the mayor told UPI by telephone. "They have been taken away from here. I do not know their physical condition. I only know they are alive."

The mayor said the wreckage of the plane was north of Stendal and "they are guarding it." He did not say who he meant by "they." "We have nothing to do with it," he added.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union charged in a protest note to the United States that the plane was on a military intelligence mission when it was shot down.

The Soviet note, delivered to U. S. Charge d'Affairs Walter J. Stroessel, said the plane crashed near Gardelegen, East Germany. as the result of "action taken by a Soviet fighter plane."

Gardelegen is about 20 miles west-southwest of Stendal. The two towns are in an area north of the east German city of Magdeburg.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Moscow said the American charge d'affaires promised to relay the contents of the Soviet protest note to Washington but took the occasion to deny the Soviet charges.

Stroessel maintianed the RB66 was on a training flight and inadvertently strayed over East German territory, the American spokesman said. The diplomat told Soviet Vladimir Semenov that this fact was regretted but he strongly protested "the precipitate action in shooting the plane down."

Word from the East German mayor that the three Americans were alive was the first word received on their fate, part from a State Department report Tuesday night that the men had parachuted from their disabled aircraft.

It was the second U. S. military aircraft to be shot down in Communist East Germany this year. The Russians downed a T39 jet trainer on Jan, 28, and the three men aboard the plane were killed.

Earlier U. S. Air Force spokesmen said the RB66 reconnaissance bomber may have been lured into East German skies.

"We must assume the RB66 did not know it was lost—otherwise it would have streaked west and almost certainly made it," one spokesman told UPI at Air Force headquarters in Wiesbaden.

Another spokesman, Col. Mark Gilman, said: "It cannot be ruled out the plane was led off course by radio jamming and false signals."

No Decision Made On SAE Case

It has not yet been decided whether the case of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon pledges who vandalized a Trailways Chartered bus Saturday will be tried in an IFC or an Honor Council Court, said Bill Taylor of the Attorney General's Staff today.

Twenty-two SAE pledges have been charged with tearing up the bus's ceiling, ripping seat cushions, breaking windows and destroying the door assembly of a bus while returning from an outing at Sweetbriar College in Lynchburg, Virginia.

Richard Lewis, president of the SAE House said that none of the legal transactions have been handled through the fraternity. "I presume the Trailways Company will deal with the people involved directly," said Lewis.

A bill of $754.31 for damages and labor has been presented by the bus company. This includes a $50 a day charge for each day the bus was out of service.

Training Program Starts For Council

Jaene Yeager, Chairman of the Honor System Commission, has announced that the compulsory training program for all candidates for the Men's and Women's Honor Councils will begin next week.

The program consists of three meetings. The first meeting will be held on Tuesday, March 17, and will be a discussion on the philosophy of the Honor System and the functions of the Attorney General and his staff. The second meeting will be held the next day and the proceedings and penalties of the councils will be discussed. On Tuesday, March 24, a test will be given on the information discussed during the previous meeting. All meetings will be held at 7:00 p.m. in Roland Parker I, GM

A candidate must attend the two meetings and receive a grade of 80 on the test in order to receive the Honor System Commission endorsement for election. Those candidates running for re-election need not attend the first two meetings but must take and pass the test.

It is imperative that all candidates who intend to run in the spring elections for council positions submit a card showing name address, class and district in which they are running to Jaene Yeager by Monday at 4 p.m. The cards can be placed in the Honor System Commission mailbox in Student Government offices.

Cross Burned In Negro's Front Yard

A cross was burned Tuesday night in front of a home formerly occupied by Hilliard Caldwell, 27, a local Negro integration leader. Police said they felt the incident was a prank by children or teenagers due to the crude construction of the cross, but Caldwell disagreed.

Lt. Graham Creel said the cross was made "with a broomhandle, Daily Tar Heel newspapers, wire, and a crude stick.

"Because this is not the usual way to construct a cross," Creel said in his report of the incident, "it was assumed that it was the work of children or teenagers. However, it was near the house which Hilliard Caldwell lived in up until six months ago."

Chief William D. Blake said it was "the first time in a year there's been a cross-burning. It happens very rarely. Some kids probably did it just for kicks."

Cross-burning is an old Ku Klux Klan method of warning someone he is in disfavor, particularly over racial matters.

The incident occurred shortly before 10 p.m. Tuesday.

(Continued on Page 5)

New Hampshire GOP Results

with complete unofficial returns returns from all of N. H.'s 302 precents, here are the votes for the candidates in the New Hampshire primary:

Lodge — 32,207 (write-in)
Goldwater — 20,741
Rockefeller — 19,933
Nixon — 15,487 (write-in)
Sen. Margaret Chase Smith — 2,004
Harold E. Stassen — 1,320
Gov. George Romney of Michigan—86 (write-in)
Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennyslvania — 72 (write-in)

LARRY McDEVITT NAMED ASST. DEAN OF MEN

Lawrence Stephen McDevitt of Asheville has been appointed to the position of assistant to the Dean of Men, replacing Grant M. Wheeler.

McDevitt is a Morehead Scholar majoring in English. He is vice-president of Beta Theta Pi social fraternity, a delegate of the Order of the Grail, and President of the Order of the Old Well.

McDevitt will assume his responsibilities in September.

BSU To Sponsor Nursing Student

A Nursing student is being sent to Korea this summer by the local Baptist Student Union to participate in a Korean Work Project. Donna Jean Limburg, a senior from Hagerstown, Md., who has her R.N. and is working toward her B.S. degree in Nursing will represent UNC in this unique project. The Rev. James O. Cansler, chaplain to Baptist students at Carolina, will be the project director.

The Korean Work Project will involve eight North Carolina students and sixteen Korean students who will compose the work camp. They will concentrate on community development in the village of Soksam-ni which is located in the central part of South Korea on the Kum River near Taejon. The work campers will construct a multi-purpose meeting hall to be used for local government, a medical clinic, a school, and a church. Donna will serve as the chief medical worker and the entire work camp will serve as teachers in vocational skills as well as serving in other capacities. This is the most comprehensive project yet attempted by Baptist students in North Carolina who have sent material and personal aid to many countries since 1953.

The funds for Donna's transportation are being raised entirely by the students through the coordination of the LISTEN (Love Impels Sacrifice Towards Every Need) program. The students provide a work service whereby they accept such jobs as babysitting, typing, yardwork and housework. The wages from these jobs are used to finance the project. Anyone desiring these services is invited to call the Baptist Student Union.

DONNA LIMBURG

A week of special emphasis is planned for March 14-20. On Saturday, March 14, there will be a bake sale at Fowler's Food Store and Eastgate Shopping Center. Various kinds of cakes and cookies will be available. Also on Saturday there will be a car wash at the Baptist Student Center on Rosemary Street. On March 16 and 17 there wil be a cookie sale on campus at Y-court.

The Dean Of Women: An Interview

By EVE HIGGINS

Katherine Kennedy Carmichael is an imposing woman, despite her five foot, two inch height.

Her face is kind, yet not weak; understanding without patronage; and lined with experience, hard work and devotion to her job.

And she has an air about her which indicates that when she wants something done, she gets results.

"I have always felt that if something is necessary, right or better — whether it is a new program generally disapproved, a policy under attack by the Daily Tar Heel or a problem with an individual student — then it's worth getting your back up for."

Graduating from Birmingham-Southern College at 19, Dean Carmichael received her masters and Ph.D. degrees from Vanderbilt. She has done post-doctoral work at SMU, UNC and Michigan.

"It is difficult for those of us in administration to get back on French each morning from 8 to 9, but languages go by the board," she smiled sadly, "and I'm often too involved with early morning telephone calls. I've attempted to keep up with German, Spanish and Latin, also."

Carolina's Dean of Women sat in her comfortable, cherry office and commented on the changes she has seen since her college days, and since her graduation from college.

"College women," she said, "vary little today from the college women of my time, although they seem more interested in jobs than in careers. But I'm not certain that girls today aren't more dynamic."

(Continued on Page 4)

Volume 72, Number 115 Thursday, March 12, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

'Arms And The Man'; A Vital Question

This Spring the Carolina Symposium will bring many speakers of great stature to the campus to discuss some of the most vital issues facing our society and the individual. Is the development of a "warfare-welfare state" destroying our traditional concepts of individual freedom and action? What are the changing values of our society and what are the changing values of the individual? Can the civilian government maintain control over a mammouth, well established military complex?

These questions are of moment in our rapidly changing society, and this year's symposium promises to be one of the most productive and exciting ventures into this realm that has yet been held. But the subject is complicated, and for each student to get the most out of it, it will be necessary for him to prepare and study beforehand.

This month discussions are being held with some of the outstanding faculty members on this year's subject, "Arms and the Man". These discussions are being held in fraternities, sororities and dormitories, and will provide an excellent opportunity to engage in real interchange with some of the better faculty members—an opportunity that presents itself all too rarely in this University.

We urge all students who plan to attend the symposium to attend as many of these preparatory discussions as possible. Watch for announcements of the discussions in the DTH, and go.

Akers Ignores Change Of Clothes

Not only does Dick Akers consider all civil rights demonstrators unwashed and badly dressed, he has officially refused to recognize the name change of the Inter-Dormitory Council to the Men's Residence Council.

Akers, Student Body treasurer, told MRC President Gerry Good that he would enter the MRC's appropriation for next year under the IDC in his budget proposal. He told Good that he would not recognize the name change made last semester.

Akers is the same gentleman who wrote us a letter earlier this spring complaining about the dress of the average civil rights demonstrator, saying that one could always judge a man by his clothes.

However, he refuses to acknowledge the attempted clothes change of the MRC (from IDC).

Trite as Akers' action may be, we are compelled to point it up and observe his absurd bigotry.

We would readily and happily pass him by were he not in such an important position, reflecting upon all of Student Government and the students themselves.

The First Gut Shot: Are More To Come?

Raleigh News and Observer

Wherever the original blame may lie, they are manufacturing ill-will for North Carolina in the trial of the professors in the Orange County Superior Court in Hillsboro.

Already in important centers in the North shock and surprise has been registered as a result of the 60-day sentence given a young Duke math teacher for joining a group including Negroes peaceably seeking service at a Chapel Hill cafe. Perhaps, though we'll have to wait for the result of his appeal to find out, he violated valid law. He may have been indiscreet. Certainly his action was unpopular with some. But it cannot be forgotten that many will share his own feeling that he acted in terms of his conscience for what he believed was equality under law in his country.

The 60-day sentence for trespass at a public cafe will seem vindictive to many people elsewhere. And already the words, "Chapel Hill," which once seemed a term for enlightenment, are now being bandied about as words in the company of Oxford, Mississippi, and Albany, Georgia.

The protestors and demonstrators may be responsible for this. So may some of those who stand stubborn in changing times. The word already has been spread in Chapel Hill and the nation, too, that the wife of the proprietor of one segregated cafe stood above a floored demonstrator and urinated upon him. Such action in supposed defense of Southern customs gives a sickening impresson of some of those who assume to defend old ways in Chapel Hill.

Of course, some of the demonstrators have gone to idiotic extremes, though, so far as is known, none to such indecent extremes. It is clear, however, that there are extremists on the side of custom as well as change in Chapel Hill. And the unusually severe punishment of a young Duke professor who made his demonstration in orderly fashion gives the impression that in the Chapel Hill area the scales of justice are sagging on the side of one group of extremists against others who seem extremists, too.

The University, the development of the Research Triangle, the State's prestige are innocent bystanders in this situation but they could be the chief victims, also.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters: Kerry Sipe, Administration; Jeff Dick, Municipal; John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants: Shirley Travis, Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists: Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bob Holland

A Double Honor

UNC Law School senior George C. Cochran has brought new and meaningful honor to Carolina in distinguishing himself to the extent that he has been awarded a coveted clerkship to the U. S. Supreme Court.

This is believed to be the first time that a graduating student in any North Carolina law school has ever been selected for such an appointment. Historically the appointments, whose chief criteria is scholastic achievement, have gone to students at institutons such as Harvard, Yale, Notre Dame and the Unversity of California at Berkeley. And even then, only 19 law clerks are appointed, so being selected identifies you as the absolute cream of the crop.

George had already given great evidence of being that anyway, but this appointment removes all doubt.

We wish him luck in his new position. And we wish Carolina luck in continuing to produce scholars of such estimable rank.

Our Spy

'Onward And Upward . . .'

By FRANK CROWTHER
DTH Spy

WASHINGTON — The time has passed when I am able to remain silent about certain events in Chapel Hill. One may preserve one's restraint only with carefully nurtured discipline, but my near apoplectic state of the moment and my instinctively competitive nature impel me to protest most vigorously.

I refer, of course, to the recent public conflagration of Kite Flying in Chapel Hill.

Were I not of reasonable marrow, my indignation would burst forth with a more dyspeptic ferocity. But one adapts oneself to a temperate mien in middle age (where I find myself at 31, after an agonizing reappraisal of things temporal, and when weighed against the lamentable child minds of the Republic).

There were but few things held sacred by my nether world contemporaries, and Kite Flying was supreme among them. It was something we cherished in reserve, a separate peace, if you will, wherein life's patent absurdities were sheeted into the solace of a breeze.

This latest display of public defilement, however, egged on by the once good offices of the Daily Tar Heel and abetted by one Joel Fleishman (who now must be branded a traitor to my generation for actually having participated, with seeming impunity, in such debacle), has cast a dank shadow of aspersion on Kite Flying as a Way of Life.

Gentlemen, I must confess to being appalled. You have made an egregious error in so vulgarizing a traditional profession. The eternal curse of Ben Franklin upon all your houses.

The very thought of a public display! Crass publicity! Beauty queens! Ill-begot and maligned rules and regimentations! Why, one is almost disposed to consider your actions less than innocent perpetrations of a sub rosa communist plot, yet another mad encroachment of aristocratic pleasures. It also smacks of the 'those-that-think-young' set.

Well, well, I go on, don't I? In the final analysis (to invoke a favorite campus catch-phrase), no ex post facto revulsion is of any purtenance. Behoid, the thing is done, and neither God nor Barry Goldwater may revoke it. So be it.

Within the limits of security imposed upon me by sacred rite and considerable letting of blood, I am at liberty to reveal that I find myself among the charter members of the St. Thomas Society of Kite Flying Fellows (with Ladies in Waiting), duly chartered by the Diet of Cassowary (vide, Windward Islands Concordat of 1867)—and, pity sake, don't ask me what an Australian bird was doing in the Caribbean. As a Founding Flying Father of said society, I do herewith, herein and whereas tender, but without extending diplomatic recognition, an invitation to engage in mortal combat with our happy few. In that your shabby contingent reeks of amateur standing, this engagement will be entered into on the home estate of the ranking champions, that is, St. Thomas in the American Virgin Islands, at a date mutually convenient but under rules stipulated under the aforementioned Concordat.

If you must persist in your current endeavors, bear the following in mind.

No machine-made kites are permissible. They must be made by hand or imported. (Japanese kites are out, but German kites, which attack and cut down other kites, are most desirable—don't you just love the inventive German mind?)

It is required that nothing other than Martinis be partaken while you are in action —one may lose more kites that way, but then who the hell cares after the first pitcher?

Night flying is very fashionable. You may either paint your kite with luminous mixtures. or hang a small lantern on the tail. Westinghouse makes an excellent fine wire for heavy kites, and it is most effective in bringing down small planes.

Chinese kites are not the best flyers, but they are often decorated with marvelously pornographic etchings.

Women are barred from launching and flying kites, unfortunately, but you'll find they're very good at reeling them in while you mix another batch.

Enough. This correspondent will be in Chapel Hill sometime before June on a State visit; I shall be happy to meet with your local representative, on neutral grounds, at that time.

Meanwhile, onward and upward.

EVERY KILOWATT COUNTS—

Letters To The Editors

'The Political Pigeonholes'

Right Or Left

Editors, The Tar Heel:

I read with particular interest a story in the Feburary 25th issue of THE DAILY TAR HEEL reporting the results of a survey designed to reveal the composition of the study body with respect to political orientation. The thought that someone considered the survey a significant and worth-while undertaking prompted me to voice a long standing disenchantment of mine with the character of political discussion, among students and others, over the past two or three (or more) years. The general type of question or statement that I want to single out as the object of my disenchantment reflects, as does the survey reported in THE TAR HEEL, a concern primarily with where some person or political outlook belongs on the political specturm, i.e., whether candidate X is a conservative or a liberal, whether the author of this or that book is a rightist or a leftist, whether so-and-so is a Marxist or a Jeffersonian. I don't want to deny that this sort of issue has a place in political discussion. But I do want to deny emphatically that there are no issues which are more important, that there are no issues which clearly take precedence over any question about which political pigeonhole someone belongs in. If no issues are acknowledged to be more urgent than questions political classification, then it seems to me that political discussion at that level can only become progressively more pointless and futile.

The reason, it seems, should be relatively simple to grasp. I had a teacher once who put it to me this way. "It doesn't do you any good," he never tired of saying, "to know all the answers if you don't know any of the questions." I think that his remark sums up in a sentence the PRIMARY (though certainly not the only) task facing students in a university. Their task, in my own fallible judgment, is to strive toward an increasing sensitivity for and grasp of the large and pressing PROBLEMS that confront them as participants in their own changing culture. This seems just as true in the area of politics as in any other.

The reason that it disturbs me to see students dissipate so much of their intellectual and imaginative energy in trying to decide which political pigeonhole people and positions belong in is that such a concern, taken as a dominant one, obscures and subverts the more urgent task of trying to understand what the PROBLEMS are to which various political positions are addressed. Cultural, including political, problems, if they are genuinely significant, are neither conservative, liberal, rightist, leftist, nor even Marxist or Jeffersonian. They are simply there, HUMAN problems so fundamental that they undercut all the schemes of political classification that we might be prompted to devise.

I'm sure that it is a source of some comfort, even for those who have not lost sight of such problems, to have their responses decided for them once and for all by calling themselves liberals or conservatives. But this convenience is bought only at a very high price when one allows one's place on the political spectrum to displace one's own CONSIDERED JUDGMENT in determining how political and social problems are to be met.

That the "liberals" or the "conservatives" will succeed or fail to dominate the affairs of the nation seems to me less a threat than that in our concern to find a political pigeonhole we fail to call the pigeonholes themselves into question, that we fail to ask how adequately the responses associated with places on a political spectrum can resolve the problems we face, and, most importantly, that we fail to weigh the cost of relinquishing the advantages of independent and genuinely responsible inquiry into our problems against the cost of the easy comfort of a political pigeonhole with its ready-made solutions, whether liberal, conservative, rightist, leftist or what have you. It is my contention that the growing concern, evident in political discussions of the past several years, with classifying people and positions which puts a higher premium on the results of a survey giving the distribution on campus of conservatives, liberals, moderate liberals, moderates conservatives, etc., ad nauseam, than on the serious consideration of the question that Walter Lippmann raises in THE PUBLIC PHILOSOPHY, viz., whether states can be governed adequately in the modern world within the institutional framework of democratic constitutionalism. I would hate to think that my students, to whom I have assigned Lippmann's book as a text, are really more concerned with placing him as a liberal or a conservative than with thinking seriously about the urgent problem that the book calls attention to, the problem of examining the effectiveness, not of this or that political program, but of the very framework of democratic constitutionalism itself. I cannot help but think that a shift of emphasis in the direction of questions of the latter sort is long overdue. I hope it will not be long in coming.

Leon Galis
Department of Philosophy

Boycott

Editors, The Tar Heel:

We, the undersigned, would like to have it known that, even though we may, or may not, approve of the tactics of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee, we agree with its basic ideals, those of racial equality. Although some of us have no desire to become involved in the Civil Rights Demonstrations and have never so much as carried a picket's sign, we intend to at least do our own small part by boycotting those businesses which refuse to admit that all men are equal, regardless of race, creed, or national origin.

Eddie Hoover
Cyril Allen
Richard H. Kraft
Walter P. Forys, Jr.
Van Cornelius
Alan Case
Mensah Addison
Edwin R. Henken
Bob Thofas
Roger Kelley
Lorenzo Lewis
Virgil S. Crisafulli
Emerson G. Dickey, Jr.
Fred Hinton
Tommy Spencer
Charles Crumley
Tommy Daugherty
James F. Hicks, Jr.

Heelprints

Looks like certain elements in the House are trying to get the Farm Bill plowed under.

* * *

Then there's the Don Carson doll—you wind it up and it runs.

* * *

Four bandits dressed as priests held up a post office in New York state. Hmmm, sounds like a cassock-and-dagger story.

* * *

Definition: Camel — an animal that looks as though it had been put together by a committee.

Southern senators will have to Russel up some help to stop the Civil Rights Bill.

* * *

Simile: as hard on your tires as that "construction" on Cameron Ave.

* * *

Spring training has started, but some campus politicians don't appear too eager to play ball.

* * *

Is there some significance in the announcement that local demonstration leaders plan to stage their fast next door to Harry's?

High Stevens

'A Hidden Booby Trap'

There's a lot more to the Residence College System than meets the eye.

The system, proposed last week by Dean of Men William G. Long and given rousing approval by a number of University officials, has been called a means to make students feel they are more than "holes punched in an IBM card."

At first glance, and even after some scrutiny, the system has the appearance of a positive approach toward an admirable goal. But there is a hidden booby trap, and perhaps more than one.

First of all, let's look at the plan for a moment. Dean Long's design, if carried out, would probably result in:

—social activities centering upon specific residence areas and the pooling of financial resources for social purposes.

—newspapers for the specific residence hall areas.

—giving official residence college names to the various residence areas.

—each residence college having a president and each resident hall having a chancellor.

—faculty advisors for the various residence halls or units.

—campus chaplains for the residence colleges.

—deferred fall rush for freshmen.

Dean Long has even gone so far as to suggest that the residents of the various residence colleges might wear emblems on their jackets to signify their positions.

Now, as I stated above, certain aspects of this plan seem to be practical and desirable. If they are successful, there is little room to doubt that the residence hall dweller will be more secure, better cared for, and consequently happier. But now let's look for the booby trap I mentioned.

First of all, keep in mind that obnoxious new rule that will require all freshmen to live in residence halls next year. Then we'll follow Freddie Freshman to UNC and watch him take up life in say, Carmichael Residence College. Sooner or later we'll find the trap.

Freddie moves into Carmichael College (formerly the upper quad) and immediately finds a wholesome, pleasant atmosphere. His roommate is a senior who has lived in dear old Carmichael for three years, and loves it dearly. Freddie is quickly introduced to his fellow residents and given a beautiful patch to wear on his jacket.

A few days later, Freddie signs up for the Carmichael Cuties tag football team, and he is encouraged to battle tooth and nail against the Friday College Freeloaders. He proves himself by scoring twice and is rapidly accepted into the group.

Next Freddie is informed that the first big social event of the year, a Homecoming Party, is scheduled for the weekend. His roommate helps him find a date, Freddie shows up at Maultsby's Cabin wearing weejuns and white pants, and wakes up the next morning with a hangover.

Every week there is a meeting of the College, and the president takes special pains to see that the new freshmen are growing to love dear old Carmichael. He sells sweat shirts in the official colors, leads group singing of the official Carmichael songs, and reminds the new boys to wear their official emblems at all times.

During the year, Freddie uses the Carmichael quiz file to pass Math 6, reads the "Carmichael Chronicle" (the official residence college newspaper), and meets with his college's faculty adviser about his courses for the second semester. When he meets a resident of another college on the street, he is apt to give out a mild jeer, for after all, everybody knows that the guys over in Cathey Residence College are a bunch of "lizards."

By the time semester break rolls around, Freddie is thanking his lucky IBM cards for strategically dropping him in the very best residence college on campus. He is ready to die for dear old Carmichael, and heaven help the man who suggests that he might be better off doing something for Student Government or some campus organization, rather than selfishly devoting his time to his residence college.

Then, early in the second semester, it happens. Freddie picks up a copy of the "Daily Tar Heel," and there, in big headlines, he reads: "FRATERNITY RUSH BEGINS TODAY." He turns to his roommate. "What's a fraternity?" he asks?

"Never heard of 'em," says his roommate.

'States Rights' Today: Philosophy Of Fear

(Ed. Note: Henry Steele Commager is professor of History and American Studies at Amherst College.)

By HENRY S. COMMAGER
New York Times Magazine

Not for more than a century has the doctrine of states' rights been so defiantly proclaimed as now; not since Appomattox has it found such widespread support.

We can dismiss as irrelevant the demagoguery of a Governor Wallace or a Governor Barnett. But we cannot dismiss so easily the formal endorsement by as many as a dozen states of constitutional amendments which embody a states' rights philosophy and assert "no confidence" in the Constitution and the Government of the United States. Revolutionary as these proposed amendments are, they have received curiously little public attention. Indeed, it is safe to say that the average American is wholly unaware of them or of the changes they would bring about in the American constitutional system.

The first of these proposed amendments is a clumsy effort to repeal the Supreme Court decision, in Baker vs. Carr, that Federal courts may take a hand in reapportioning seats in state legislatures; it would deny them any jurisdiction in this area. The second, and most pernicious, would allow state legislatures to bypass the Congress entirely in the amendment process by permitting amendments to the Federal Constitution solely through state action. The third would create a super Supreme Court to be composed of the chief justices of the fifty states, with power to overrule decisions of the United States Supreme Court in all cases involving state-Federal relations. So far, the first of these amendments has been approved by 12 states, the second by 11, the third by four.

There is perhaps little likelihood that these gestures toward constitutional anarchy will command the support of three-fourths of the states, or that they will be endorsed by the Congress. Yet we should not forget that the Bricker amendment—designed to paralyze Presidential conduct of foreign relations—failed of passage in the Senate by but one vote, and that the 22nd Amendment limiting Presidents to two terms—an amendment which President Eisenhower himself called an example of retroactive vindictiveness—slipped through the Congress and the state legislatures almost without notice.

What we are witnessing in these amendments—and in the defiance of the Supreme Court by state governors, in the assault on the constitutional powers of the President to conduct foreign affairs, in the ground swell of revolt against what is vaguely called "Federal centralization"—is not merely a recrudescence of states' rights. It is an expression of something deeper—of a philosophy of anti-government and of no-government. Whereas the Constitution was designed "to form a more perfect Union," this is an effort to form a much less perfect Union. It is a philosophy, in fact if not in concept, of constitutional anarchy.

For one thing which is clear is that the proponents of these amendments are not genuinely concerned with the powers of the states. They are concerned with non-powers in the nation. They do not want to see state governments invigorated, carrying through broad legislative programs; they want to see the national Government frustrated, incompetent to carry through legislative programs. The ambition which animates them is not to strengthen the states, but to paralyze the nation.

Does anyone for a moment suppose that if the apportionment amendment should by some quirk become law, the states would then proceed to reapportion legislative seats on a fair basis? They have had 50 years in which to deal with the problem and have failed to do so; some states have actually defied their own constitutional mandates requiring decennial reapportionment.

Does anyone really suppose that if the amendment permitting the states to bypass the Congress in the amending process became law, the states would proceed to set their domestic houses in order—to end the scandal of racial discrimination themselves, to reform antiquated tax structures, to deal vigorously with the problems of conservation and of public lands, to take care of the needs of public education and public health through a series of constitutional amendments? Clearly, the new authority would be used not to carry through programs of public welfare but to repeal existing programs of public welfare.

Does anyone for a moment suppose that if the fantastic proposal for a super Supreme Court were to materialize, that court would rule impartially between the claims of state and nation? That amendment would enable 26 chief justices representing (and representing unfairly) states with one-sixth the population of the United States, to rewrite constitutional law. In all likelihood, such a court would strip the Supreme Court of that crucial function of harmonizing the Federal system which is quintessential to the survival of the nation. As Justice Holmes said half a century ago: "I do not think the United States would come to an end if we lost our power to declare an act of Congress void. I do think the Union would be imperiled if we could not make the declaration as to the laws of the several states. For one in my place sees how often a local policy prevails with those who are not trained to national views."

Make no mistake about it. These amendments, and the forces behind them, are inspired by deep-seated hostility to the national government. They are designed to weaken the whole constitutional structure — not only the postive power of government under the Constitution, but rights guaranteed to persons under the Constitution. They look ultimately to paralyzing the effective operation of the Constitution, which means, of course, paralyzing the nation itself.

There is nothing new about this. Thomas Jefferson invoked the principle of states' rights on behalf of freedom, but he was almost the last statesman who did so. For well over a century now, this pernicious doctrine has been invoked for two major purposes, and almost exclusively for those purposes: to weaken government and to endanger freedom.

The most notorious, and historically the most decisive, use of the doctrine of states' rights was, of course, to protect the institution of Negro slavery. States' rights were invoked, too, to delay expansion into the West, to defent the regulation of trusts and railroads, to frustrate prohibition of child labor, to hold up the grant of suffrage to women, and to oppose social security, the conservation of natural resources, the creation of hydroelectric power for national purposes, the encouragement of public education and the protection of equality. It is worth adding—it is something Southerners might note — that the doctrine of states' rights was used, too, to disrupt and eventually to destroy the Confederacy itself.

No political doctrine in American history has been more consistently invoked on behalf of privilege; none has had a more egregious record of error and calamity.

What is the explanation of this record, and of attitude which it reflects?

It is not, I think, to be found in any deep passionate attachment to the states. There was some of that earlier, and we are still reminded of it on ceremonial occasions. But there is no persuasive evidence that what animated a John Adams, a Jefferson, even a Calhoun, is still a vital force.

The modern champions of states' rights have none of that loyalty to the community which impelled a Jefferson to build the University of Virginia and cherish its integrity; which persuaded a Franklin to lavish his rich talents on his adopted city of Philadelphia; which convinced earlier generations of Bostonians that they had built Zion upon a hill, and later generations that their city was the Hub of the Solar System ("You couldn't pry that out of a Boston man." said Oliver Wendell Holmes, "if you had the tire of all creation straightened out for a crowbar"). They have not even that generous vanity which compels Texans and Californians to vie with each other in building universities and museums and foundations, and in preserving the natural resources and beauty of their states.

No, the states' rights champion of our time displays no real pride in his state, no sense of its past, no feeling for its traditions, no respect for its dignity, no pride in its future. What has he done, what does he do, to preserve its natural resources, to cherish its institutions of learning, to protect its good name? What interest does he show in the richest possession of any state—the welfare of its men and women and children? The mobs invading the university campus at Oxford, the Negro children huddled behind wire fences in Birmingham and police dogs in the streets—these are the stigmata of states' rights today.

What shall we say of the other side of the shield: that fear of nationalism, that suspicion of the Federal Government, which motivates not only the whole crusade against the political effectiveness of the national Government?

What an extraordinary spectacle it is, this fear of the United States by its own citizens! The generation of the Founding Fathers worried and bickered over the potential hostility between large states and small, and wrote safeguards against the exploitation of small states into the Constitution. We can see now that these fears were unreal and absurd. But they were neither as unreal nor as absurd as the fear that grips large segments of our population today—the fear of the national Government itself.

What an extraordinary spectacle it is! One might imagine, to hear some of our contemporary nihilists talk, that we were not one people but many, not Americans but Virginians and Mississippians; one might suppose that Jefferson Davis was right when he wrote, long after the Civil War, that "no such political community or corporate unit as one people of the United States existed, has ever been organized, or yet exists, and that no political action by the people of the United States in the aggregate has ever taken place, or ever can take place, under the Constitution." One might suppose that we had not existed as a nation for 175 years. One might conclude that the attempt at federal union, so hopefully inaugurated in 1787, and so widely copied throughout the globe, had proved a failure, and that we were now called upon to go back to 1787, reject the Constitution, and cleave to the old Articles of Confederation.

Is there any foundation for the misgivings that animate the champions of states' rights; is there any justification for their fears?

Has the national Government proved dangerous to the liberties of Americans, or to the rights of the states?

Certainly it would be asking a great deal to ask Negroes to believe that the national Government has been the enemy of freedom, and the states the guardians of freedom. It would be asking a great deal to ask labo rto subscribe to the doctrine that it should look to the states, not to the nation, for the preservation of its rights.

Opponents of national "centralization" never cease to deplore the invasion of the "rights" of private citizens by the national Government, and Governor Wallace played variations on that weary theme in his proclamation. It is fair to ask: What rights have they lost? Freedom of religion, of speech, of press, of assembly, of petition, or association? Due process of law, the right to a jury, immunity from unreasonable search and seizure, from cruel and unusual punishment, from self-incrimination?

To ask these questions is to answer them. As far as the Federal Government is concerned (and it is very much concerned) these rights are still unimpaired—or impaired only where considerations of national security have appeared to require qualification. For the past thirty years or so the Federal courts have engaged not in restricting but in enlarging the scope and meaning of these rights. The same, cannot be said for the states. Who can deny that in the overwhelming majority of instances impairment of the rights and liberties of men has come from the states—and in large measure from precisely those states whose spokesmen are the most vigorous proponents of states' rights. If ever it can be said that advocates do not come into court with clean hands, it can be said of those who today lament the "destruction" of liberties of the states by the national Government.

Who, knowing our history, can doubt for a moment that the real source of danger to the freedoms of Americans has been the states themselves? There are some exceptions, to be sure—the episode of the Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798, for example, the respressive legislation of the First World War, the manifestations of McCarthyism in the fifties.

But anyone familiar with the history of freedom in the United States knows that it is the states that interfere most frequently with academic freedom, the states that set up censorship of press and stage and films, the states that threaten freedom of association, the states whose unAmerican activities committees have chalked up the most shameful records, the states that have most frequently flouted the due process of law and denied equal protection of the laws, and challenged or denied religious freedom. The vast majority of civil-liberties cases in the Supreme Court come up from the states, and involve local ordinances or state laws.

Do those who now invoke states' rights do so because they want higher standards of freedom, or because they fear the Supreme Court is too active on behalf of freedom?

Has the national Government threatened those institutions on whose prosperity our society depends for its social and moral health? Has it threatened the independence of the church? The Federal Government started off with complete separation of church and state; it was in the states that discrimination on the basis of religion lingered on. When Madison proposed that the prohibitions of the First Amendment be applied to the states, his proposal was defeated.

Has the national Government threatened the integrity of arts and letters and science? On the contrary. Since the early years of the 19th century, the national Government has maintained such institutions as the Library of Congress, the United States Geological Survey, the National Observatory, the Smithsonion Institution and, more recently, the National Archives and the National Gallery of Art. Have these institutions been free? Certainly they have been more free than many state universities. Congress has never interfered with the Library of Congress, for example, as the legislatures of Ohio and Colorado are even now interfering with their state universities.

It is precisely because the national Government is so generous to arts and sciences that the proponents of states' rights fear it, for they do not really believe in freedom, nor in those institutions that preserve and prosper freedom: universities, libraries, scientific institutes. All of these foster the open mind and the cosmopolitan spirit. How alien these are to the philosophy of states' rights can be observed in the South of 1860—or of 1960.

Has the national Government threatened the general welfare, or failed to promote it? On the contrary. That whole body of welfare legislation whose woof is interwoven with the warp of private enterprise to make the fabric of our life today finds its authority and support largely in the national Government: Social Security, public health, conservation and, now, education and civil rights.

It is precisely because the Federal Government does promote the general welfare that proponents of states' rights fear it. They proclaim that these enterprises should not be performed by the national Government, but by the states. But they are not truly concerned with the general welfare, but only with that of members of their own faction. And they have failed egregiously to promote the welfare of even these—to provide schools and housing, for example. All too often, the states have wasted their resources of water and forest and soil, or handed them over to predatory private interests. Ever since the days of Theodore Roosevelt it has been the United States which has stepped in to protect these resources.

Has the national Government failed to form a more perfect union, to provide for the general defense, to insure domestic tranquillity? Quite the contrary. There has never been a serious threat to the union from the national Government, or to the domestic tranquility. There has never been ana dventurer, a soldier or fortune, a dictator, or a tyrant in the executive chair.

The only threats to the Union have come from the states. States' rights imperiled the Union in 1803 when New England states flirted at secession because Congress had bought Louisiana. States' rights threatened the disruption of the Union during the War of 1812, when states refuse to permit their militias to serve outside state territories. States' rights threatened the integrity of the Union in the eighteen-twenties when Georgia nullified Federal treaties and Supreme Court decisions protecting the Cherokee Indians, and in the eighteen-thirties when South Carolina nullified tariff laws and enforcement laws. States' rights actually broke up the union in 1861, and precipitated the most tragic war in which the American people have ever been engaged. We cannot say that the doctrine of states' rights threatens the Union today, but clearly it disturbs domestic tranquillity by defying the consitutional mandate of equality and justice.

And what of the states? Have they, in fact, lost any of the rights or powers they originally possessed? They have lost the "right" to secede. That, at least, was settled by Appomattox. They have lost the "right" to deprive persons of life, liberty or property without due process of law, or deny the equal protection of the laws; they have lost the "right" to deprive any person of suffrage on account of race or color. These "rights" they did indeed forfeit, and it was Appomattox which settled them all.

It would be a mistake to imply that the current revival of states' rights has been entirely insincere or misguided. Bigness is dangerous; the welfare state can dry up initiative; power does tend to corrupt, and there is much to be said for fragmentation of political authority; eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

But a states' rights philosophy that has its origin in fear of government itself, and is rooted in a deep distrust of majority rule and of the democratic processes, forfeits its claim to respect. A states' rights philosophy which is never inspired by generosity, never excited by a passion for freedom or for justice, never exalted by magnanimity, but takes refuge in narrowness and selfishness and vindictiveness, exhausts its claim to tolerance.

ON STAGE

Jackie "MOMS" MABLEY

and her BIG ALL-STAR SHOW

featuring

MARTHA and the VANDELLAS

MARY WELLS • CHUCK JACKSON

SOLOMON BURKE • TOMMY TUCKER

RUFUS "walk the dog" THOMAS

LEO PRICE AND HIS GREAT ORCHESTRA

J. S. DORTON ARENA

N. C. STATE FAIRGROUND

Tickets on sale—Thiem's Record Shop & Hamlin Drug.

ONE NIGHT ONLY

All Seats Reserved

$2.00 $2.50 $3.00

FRIDAY MARCH 13

8 P. M.

Doors Open 7 P.M.

PEANUTS

Spring Bargains

Once again, the feature table at the Intimate is full to overflowing with Spring Bargains. Fresh copies of last season's titles, their prices shopped to the bone. Come in early for the best selection.

Prints and Frames

Along with a new lot of frames in several styles, we have new numbers in the brush stroke prints of famous paintings and matted reproductions of famous drawings. Prices are from $1.00 to $2.98. Frames from $2.00 to $4.98. There's pleasant pickings this week at the Intimate. Do stop in for a visit!

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin St.

Open Till 10 p.m.

A career where it's an asset to be a woman

ADVERTISING

ADVERTISING is one field where your innate ability to think, feel, and act like a woman is an advantage. Why? Because our business is selling—and women do most of the buying. And who understands a woman like another woman?

Forty years ago, the J. Walter Thompson Company pioneered the idea of women in advertising. Today we have scores of women professionals, including television producers, writers and copy group heads. We have ten women who are vice presidents, one a member of our Board of Directors.

But don't separate Thompson women from men. They work side by side in every department. Many of our "career" women are wives and mothers. Family life enriches a person's understanding of the needs, wants, and aims of the women to whom she is advertising.

"A many-faceted girl—with a Renaissance mind"

The girl with an eager mind—hungry to learn, curious about the old, fascinated by the new—seems to make the best "raw material" for advertising. She's as much a part of present as past. Tuned in on "pop" art and "pop" tunes. Shakespeare and the Sitwells. "Peanuts" and Plato. The Metropolitan and "The Mets." Her interests are as broad as the infinitely varied interests of the people who are her business.

"I'm able to express myself in many different ways."

This is why one girl likes Thompson. And it's true that Thompson offers you a unique opportunity to grow and develop in a variety of directions. There is an extensive series of seminars; where you may learn about the activities of the agency's many departments—Copy, Art, Fashion, Broadcasting, Public Relations, Marketing, Media, Research, Production, Administration and Personnel. There are workshops where you may explore in depth the different facets of the profession. If copywriting holds special interest for you, you may try your wings in the Women's Copy Study Group.

"Where else could I find such an exciting place to work?"

We often hear this question at Thompson. Advertising is the stimulating, fast-changing business of ideas. That makes it fun—and hard work too. It is a business that welcomes young people and young ideas in every department. Thompson is interested in what you can do, just as fast as you can do it. You don't start at the top anywhere; but, as a woman at Thompson, you have a remarkable chance to build a stimulating and successful career.

"It's almost like going to graduate school."

This is how a young copywriter described her particular development program at J. Walter Thompson.

You learn on the job, side by side with seasoned experts. Your continuing study is people—their wants, their habits, their hopes. It is, in a sense, a broad curriculum of philosophy, anthropology, sociology, psychology, economics, and many other subjects.

The research behind Thompson advertising must be as meticulous as the research you now do for a term paper. But if your goal is writing advertising copy, your digging may be somewhat unconventional. In addition to our Library and Information Center, it may take you to our Television Workshop, testing ideas on camera . . . or to a supermarket . . . perhaps to the "lab" of a research chemist . . . or to your own kitchen, where you may create a new barbecue sauce.

Does the "big pond" attract you?

Thompson may be just the place for you. Here you will find the challenge and flavor of a major enterprise. Yet you work, learn and grow in the warm and friendly atmosphere of small, intimate groups. And if you're like most Thompsonites, you'll develop strong feelings of loyalty and belonging. People stay at Thompson. And because Thompson is big, and because it builds from within, there are great opportunities to move up.

If you want to learn more about a career with J. Walter Thompson and about how you might join us, please write to Personnel Director for Women, J. Walter Thompson Company, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

J. Walter Thompson Company

New York, Chicago, Detroit, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Hollywood, Washington, D.C., Miami, Montreal, Toronto, Mexico City, San Juan, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, São Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, Porto Alegre, Recife, Belo Horizonte, Santiago (Chile), Lima, London, Paris, Antwerp, Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Milan, Vienna, Johannesburg, Cape Town, Durban, Port Elizabeth, Salisbury (Southern Rhodesia), Bombay, Calcutta, New Delhi, Madras, Karachi, Colombo (Ceylon), Sydney, Melbourne, Tokyo, Osaka, Manila

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

Victory Village's Prefabricated Housing Still Stands

'Temporary' Housing Built In 1946 Contrasts Sharply . . .

—Photo by Jim Wallace

By JEFFREY DICK

The seven-year house that the University built 18 years ago is still standing and is growing in demand with the passing of time.

In 1946 the University constructed temporary prefabricated housing to alleviate an acute shortage which had developed with the great influx of married veterans returning from WW II to continue their education under the GI Bill.

The housing was built to stand for seven years, at which time its was supposed to be removed and replaced with permanent construction.

Most of the buildings are still being used today for married student housing. The development is old Victory Village.

The fact that the housing is still in use has been consistently criticized by newspapers, campus political parties and student government leaders.

The housing has been referred to as egg-crate construction, firetraps, and bandboxes.

There is, however, at least one man on this campus who defends the housing as a necessity and an asset. The man is James E. Wadsworth.

Wadsworth, a graduate of UNC in 1934, is now director of student housing for the University. He has held that post since its creation in 1946.

"There is a need for low cost housing which presently can not be met through any other way," he said. Wadsworth pointed out that rising construction costs have made the building of low cost married student housing impossible. "The University is not willing to borrow money for the construction of temporary housing such as old Victory Village," he added.

Wadsworth said a paradox has arisen out of the latest effort to provide married students with adequate housing. Just recently, the University spent two million dollars for the construction of 308 brick apartment units.

The new apartments rent for $72 to $82 per month. The prefabricated apartmeents in old Victory Village rent for $23 to $27 per month.

"We have at least 25 students who have moved into the new housing and then have requested to be allowed to move into the old units as soon as possible because they can not afford the rent they now pay."

Wadsworth said there was just enough room to grant all of these requests.

The result, Wadsworth said, was that quite a few students have to drop out of school simply because they could not afford the new housing or privately owned housing in town.

Wadsworth maintained the physical status of the housing was as good as most of the apartments being offered in Chapel Hill. The hazard of fire, he added, is equally as negligible.

"The most wonderful thing about old Victory Village, Wadsworth said, "is that it has enabled a great many people to go through school when they would not have been able to do so because of financial reasons. There are many men," he continued, "now at UNC who have lived in old Victory Village at one time or another." The list included President Friday and Chancellor Aycock.

. . . With The Modern Brick Variety—But So Does The Rent

—Photo by Jim Wallace

—Katherine Kennedy Carmichael—A Good Egg—

(Continued from Page 1)

Dressed with quiet elegance, she wore her pince-nez on a silver chain about her neck. Short blonde hair and blue eyes were complimented by her black suit and charming old-fashioned jewelry.

Most of her time at UNC has been spent in an administrative capacity, although for her first five years she taught several English classes. She has kept up with teaching, concentrating primarily in the area of "English as a second language."

Dean Carmichael came to UNC in 1946 from Wisconsin, where she was visiting lecturer in English.

"The most obvious change in Carolina," she noted, "has been in the size of the student body. When I came here, there were 1100 women students. Now there are 2,300 but at one time enrollment dropped below 900."

One of Dean Carmichael's greatest accomplishments, she feels, in her administrative career, has been the maintenance of personal contact with each woman student in the University. There is a personal worker for each 60 women in the student body, unusual in schools the size of UNC.

When travel is mentioned there is an immediate gleam of response from Dean Carmichael because it is one of her favorite topics.

She has traveled in Mexico, Canada, the Caribbean and has been twice around the world. In 1951-52 she was a Fulbright Lecturer at the Philippine Normal College in Manila. She also taught in Saigon, South Vietnam, where she set up a course in English as a second language.

"Students are similar the world over," she said. "All are, of course, creatures of their culture, but among students there are many more similarities than differences."

A well-filled bookcase lines one will of the busy Dean's office, scattered with mementoes of her travels and her years of teaching. Books with red, buff, blue Vietnamese bindings, gold and purple baskets from India, Burma and the South Seas and book ends from the Philippines are colorful reminders of her trips.

These point out her great interest in Southeast Asia, one of her favorite topics an done she is often invited to speak on. Last month she was at Wilmington College for Fine Arts Week, where she spoke on the cultural background of Southeast Asia. Next month she will attend a Southeast Asian seminar at Duke.

African violets and planters of greenery are prominent in her South Building office. These are hobbies, along with a cat she was given when she was in Saigon.

"She was just a white fluff then, and we've been through much together, including a raid and a bombing. She was mated to a Siamese who now lives on the rooftops of Paris, and later had three kittens. My friends call her MiMi, but in Saigon she was called 'Miaou', the usual name for kitty in that area.

Miaou, she says may be intelligent for a cat, but not for anything else.

Chapel Hill Social Lions In Big City

By PHEOBE GEARBOX
DTH Society Reporter

Mrs. Sybil Macklin, heiress to the fabulous Macklin restaurant fortune, confirmed reports that she has been invited to an Executive Mansion coffee klutch on March 17, in Raleigh.

Mrs. Macklin will go to the coffee hour given by Mrs. Terry Sanford in honor of the North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Mrs. Macklin will wear an orange taffeta suit with complimenting lavender hosiery.

Mr. Macklin, also attending, will wear a sharkskin suit.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

Monogram Club — 7:30 p.m., Monogram Club Room, Woollen Gym, subject—Varsity - Alumni game.

International Students Board — 4 p.m., Y-Court.

Amateur Radio Club — 7:30 p.m., Caldwell "Y".

Scabbard and Blade — 7 p.m., Air Science Classroom No. 3, business meeting.

Orientation Comm — Interviews for the 22-member Orientation Committee, today and tomorrow, 4-6 p.m. in RP III. Interested students fill out an application blank at GM information desk.

Orientation Reform Comm — 4:30 p.m. in Orientation office to discuss student government orientation.

UNC Peace Corps Comm. — 7 p.m., 209 Gardner, Peace Corps Placement Tests, all interested persons sign up at Y-Court.

GM Dance Lessons — 7-9 p.m., RP Lounge.

Spanish Table—6-7 p.m., Lenoir.

Mock Political Convention—7:15 p.m., Carroll, meeting for all delegation chairmen.

Scuba Diving Club—7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

CWC—2:30-4 p.m., Grail Room. interviews for president of CWC.

CCUN—3-5 p.m., today-Fri., interviews for UN Seminars, New York, YMCA-CCUN Office.

MOVIES

Carolina — Swan Lake Ballet
Varsity — Sword in the Stone

FRIDAY

Sabbath Services — 7 p.m., Hillel House.

Riggins Lecture — Prof H. Gerson will speak in 115 Ackland Art Center at 11 a.m. on "Early Rembrandt" and in 111 Murphy at 8 p.m., on "Art and Society in 17th Century Holland."

SP Advisory Board — 4 p.m. RP I.

Free Flick — Outsider

SATURDAY

The Panhellenic Council will sell Katydids fom 9-5 downtown and in Eastgate.

GM Combo Party — 8-12 p.m., Rendezvous Room, Bavarian's Combo.

Free Flick — The Spiral Road

SUNDAY

Hillel Brunch: 12:30, Hillel House, Dr. Herberg will speak on "What it Means to be a Jew."

Public Lecture — 8 p.m., Hill Hall, Dr. Will Herbery will speak on "Religion in America," public is invited.

"A Festival of Jewish Music"— 4 p.m., East Duke Music Room, Duke University, public invited to attend, admission free.

SP — 7 p.m., 08 Peabody, panel discussion on Women's Rules.

Canterbury — 6 p.m., topic: "Death and Resurrection."

BERRYHILL HONORED

The annual Alumni Day program at the UNC School of Medicine on March 20 has been planned in honor of Dean W. Reece Berryhill.

Dr. Berryhill, dean since 1941, leaves the deanship this summer. He is neither retiring from full-time work at the medical school nor is he planning to return to full-time teaching.

Coming Soon?

"G. D. I. PARADISE"

COMING TOMORROW!

VOLVO

NOW IN STOCK

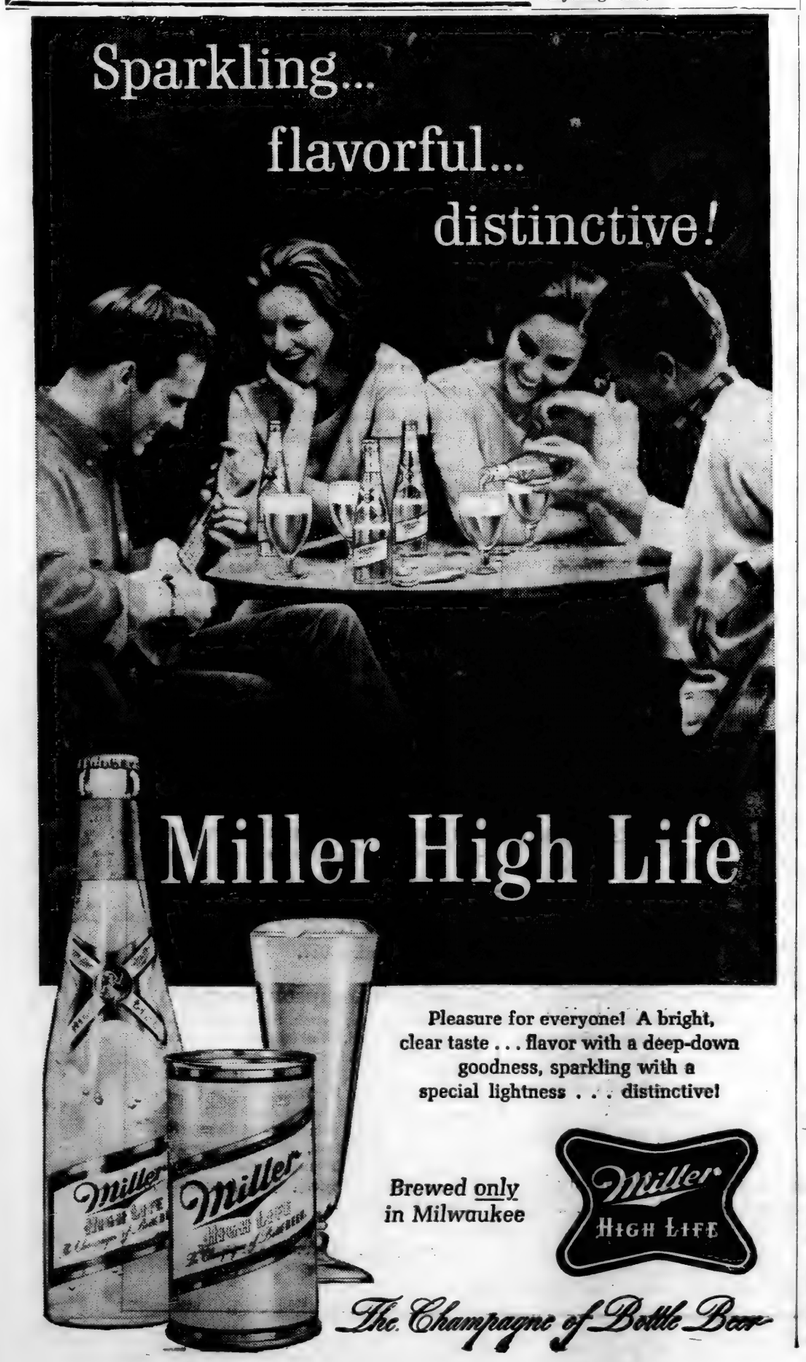
NEW

ONE P-1800 SPORTS COUPE (with overdrive)
ONE T-1225 4 DOOR VOLVO
ONE PV 544 2 DOOR VOLVO

USED

A 1963 P-1800 VOLVO Sport Coupe, red with Over-Drive, Radio, Heater. Extra Clean $3195.00
A 1962 P-1800 VOLVO Sport Coupe. Ivory with Over-Drive, Radio, Heater. Extra clean $2,695.00

Weaver Brothers Rambler, Inc.
214 W. Cabarrus St.
Raleigh, N. C. TE-46266



EXTRA Low Prices!

DURING OUR BIG "STOCK YOUR FREEZER" BEEF SALE, COME SAVE!

"SUPER-RIGHT" HEAVY GRAIN FED BEEF
STEAKS • T-BONE • PORTER-HOUSE • SIRLOIN • CUBED YOUR CHOICE LB. 79¢

"SUPER-RIGHT" HEAVY GRAIN FED BEEF
STEAKS BONELESS Top or Bottom ROUND LB. 69¢
CHUCK BLADE STEAK LB. 45c
BONELESS RIB STEAK LB. 85c

"SUPER-RIGHT" HEAVY GRAIN FED BEEF
ROASTS CHUCK BLADE LB. 35¢
Boneless Chuck LB. 49c
Boneless Brisket LB. 49c
Boneless Shoulder Clod Roast LB. 53c
Standing Rib Roasts 5TH & 6TH RIB CUT LB. 49c

"SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY LEAN, FRESHLY GROUND BEEF LB. 37¢

BEEF SALE
A&P
STOCK YOUR FREEZER WITH "Super-Right" Heavy Grain Fed Beef

330 TO 390 LB. AVG. Whole Beef Side LB. 39c
170 TO 200 LB. AVG. Beef Forequarter LB. 33c
160 TO 190 LB. AVG. Beef Hindquarter LB. 49c
80 TO 100 LB. AVG. Trimmed Round LB. 49c
80 TO 100 LB. AVG. Beef Arm Chuck LB. 35c
45 TO 60 LB. AVG. Trimmed Full Loin LB. 63c
25 TO 30 LB. AVG. Beef Short Loin LB. 69c
25 TO 30 LB. AVG. Beef Sirloin Butt LB. 59c
10-Inch Cut-Beef Rib LB. 49c

'Super Right' Heavy Beef BONELESS STEW BEEF Lb. 49c
PLATE STEW Lb. 13c

NO LIMIT ON PURCHASES ★
Prices In This Ad Effective Through Sat. March 14th.

Final End To Polio In Sight

The final end to polio is in sight, according to Dr. Robert J. Senior, Chapel Hill pediatrician.

Dr. Senior said the means to eradicate completely the dreaded, crippling disease is at hand, waiting to be used.

It is the newly perfected Sabin oral vaccine, which has passed all safety tests and is being produced in large enough quantity to offer to the public.

The Durham-Orange Medical Foundation is offering the vaccine to residents of Durham and Orange Counties March 22 in a mass feeding program the foundation hopes will cover the area.

Similar programs are being conducted simultaneously this spring throughout the State, in an effort by North Carolina physicians to wipe out polio for good.

The type being used in Durham and Orange Counties is the Trivalent, two-dose vaccine that is being administered on a lump of sugar. Patients will simply eat a cube of sugar on which a physician has placed two drops of the concentrated vaccine. Eight weeks later they repeat the dose for maximum protection against all three strains of viruses which have been isolated as the causes of polio.

Dr. Senior said the Trivalent vaccine is an improvement over the Salk serum which marred the first breakthrough in the fight against polio.

The Salk, injection-type vaccine, which was made from killed polio virus and was introduced into the body through the muscle tissue, has saved many lives, Dr. Senior explained. But with the more complete protection of the new Sabin development, he noted, there is hope that polio can be made a disease of the past.

The viruses responsible for causing polio are thought to enter the body through the mouth and nose and to multiply in the intestines, Dr. Senior explained.

Since the new Sabin-developed vaccine is taken orally, it can, for the first time, combat the virus on its own battleground.

Sanford Promises To Study Chapel Hill Road Problems

(The Chapel Hill Weekly)

A delegation of eight people from Chapel Hill and Carrboro went to see Governor Sanford about roads Tuesday afternoon. The Governor said he'd see what he could do to get road projects moving in this area. The delegation came home reasonably satisfied that the Governor meant what he said, and that the Thoroughfare Plan deadlock between Chapel Hill-Carrboro and the State Highway Commission might soon be broken.

The meeting, held in the Governor's office, was short but congenial. Attending as representatives of the recently-formed Chapel Hill - Carrboro Committee for Safe and Improved Roads were Carrboro Commissioner Wiley Franklin, Chapel Hill Alderman Mrs. Harold Walters, Chapel Hill Town Manager Robert Peck, Planning Board chairman Ross Scroggs, Planning Board member Jack Lasley, Chamber of Commerce executive Joe Augustine, Lucien Faust of the Research Triangle Regional Planning Commission, and Arthur Tuttle of the University's Planning Division.

Governor Sanford seemed impressed. After introductions had been performed he asked who an accompanying newspaper reporter was representing, and added that he hoped the reporter might be representing the Governor.

Mr. Lasley explained the problem: the Chapel Hill area is growing fast. By 1980 its population should double, possibly will triple. To prepare for this, major local highway projects should be undertaken now and continued, ideally at the rate of one a year, until the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Long Range Thoroughfare Plan is completely in effect. But realization of the Thoroughfare Plan's road projects requires cooperation between the Town and the Highway Commission, and this cooperation does not exist.

Mr. Lasley also explained that his delegation had not come "precipitately" to the Governor to tattle on recalcitrant highway officials. Channels had been gone through without results over the past few months, he said, and the Governor was the last resource available.

Mr. Peck explained that progress in putting the Thoroughfare Plan into effect was at a standstill over a southbound radial road, which the Town claims is unnecessary, and which the Highway Commission claims must be shown on the Thoroughfare Plan map before any roads can actually be built.

"(Seventh District Highway Commissioner James) MacLamroc says 'nothing doing' (on the Thoroughfare Plan) until the Town concedes on the radial road," said Mr. Peck. "We want the Plan approved without the radial road," which, he added, might be included in the Plan later if needed.

Mrs. Walters pointed out that the Highway Commission was making a "feasibility study" of the radial road, and that "meanwhile the whole thing just sits there."

It was also pointed out that although Highway Commission Chairman Merrill Evans was waiting for Mr. Faust to complete a Regional Planning Commission study which would involve roads, Mr. Faust himself supported the Town's contention that the bulk of the Thoroughfare Plan could—in fact should—be approved immediately.

"That doesn't seem to be a serious problem," said Governor Sanford.

"It has been to us," said Mrs. Walters.

Mr. Augustine said approval and work on the Thoroughfare Plan was necessary also for safety. "We've been real lucky not to have any school buses turned over," he said.

This struck a spark off the Governor, who asked for amplification.

Mr. Augustine said that in the school district were "a couple of roads," particularly the Airport Road, which had been resurfaced, while their shoulders had been raised to the level of the new surface, and had not been widened either. The resulting sharp drop-offs could capsize an unwieldy vehicle like a school bus, he said.

Mr. Tuttle threw in the observation that the University at Chapel Hill is serving the State as a whole—that, in fact, the Health Affairs complex was "a community in itself" involving over 5,000 people daily.

"I have been part of the Thoroughfare Plan study for the past five years," said Mr. Tuttle, "and I think you'd have to search a long way to find a town with a thoroughfare plan as thoroughly studied as Chapel Hill's."

Governor Sanford looked at a map of the Chapel Hill area. "Let me talk to 'em," he said. "We'll see what we can do about it."

He did not say when the Roads Committee should expect word on his action, but members of the delegation agreed that the Governor's response to their presentation, and his manner, indicated favorable results.

University Student Wins In Met Opera Competition

A University student, Bert Adams, has won first place in Metropolitan Opera state competition and will vie for the district title in Atlanta on March 13.

If he is successful, the young baritone will take part in national competition in New Yrok on March 20. The national winner receives a contract with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Mrs. Marilyn Burris, a soprano from Chapel Hill, was second alternate winner in the state competition. Both singers were sponsored by Dr. Wilton Mason, director of the University Opera Workshop and professor of music.

Adams is a Ph.D. candidate in sociology at UNC and will continue in his chosen field despite his accomplishment as an operatic singer.

Adams and Mrs. Burris were selected on the basis of a presentation of three arias which displayed various aspects of their operatic repertoire and command of languages, their stage presence and movement, and their potential as operatic performers.

"These awards mark a significant recognition of the splendid progress of these two young singers," said Dr. Mason, "and I feel confident in predicting highly successful singing futures for each of them."

In 1961, Adams was the recipient of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, and he is presently completing study for his Ph.D. degree under a National Institute of Mental Health grant. Last summer he had a Career Teaching Fellowship from the Department of Sociology and Anthropology here. Upon completion of his studies, he hopes to teach sociology on the college level, do sociological research, and to continue with his singing.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. White Arctic bear
6. Greek letter
11. Harden
12. A shade of purple
13. Enclosures
14. Angry
15. Kitchen range
17. Craggy hill
20. Piece out
21. Presidential nickname
24. Vine-covered
26. Competitor
28. To become vapid
29. Prison enclosure
30. Branches
32. Poetry
33. Affirmative reply
34. Malt beverage
36. A shade of brown
37. A certain dance craze
39. Rot
42. Small drum
46. Conscious
47. Discharge through pores
48. Measure
49. Ate dinner

DOWN
1. Turkish distance measure
2. Cape Horn native
3. Haul
4. God of war
5. Paused
6. A Dickens' boy
7. Bog
8. Guido's highest note
9. Gun: sl.
10. Trick-taker: cards
16. All correct
17. Fuddled
18. Egg-shaped
19. Vexes
21. Prevent
22. Tropical tree
23. —— Terry, actress
25. Shade tree
27. Frozen water
31. "Tom ——," by Mark Twain
32. Endowed
35. Chinese measure
37. Vetch
38. Public vehicle
39. Embankment
40. Female sheep
41. Family pet
43. Kind of roll
44. Poem
45. Primary color

Saturday's Answer

Playmakers Score Again With 'J.B.'

"J.B." by Archibald MacLeish. Presented by the Carolina Playmakers. Directed by Harry Davis. Cast: David Hooks, Foster Fitz-Simons, Davis Gullette, Martha Nell Hardy, Harry Callahan, Pascal Tone.

By BOB O'STEEN

The Lord's voice thundered forth saying, "Whence commest thou?" And Satan answered the Lord and said, "From going to and fro in the world and from walking up and down in it." Thus began the dialog between good and evil, vying for the truth in Man's relationship to God, questioned through the sufferings of one man, Job.

This eternal story of suffering, dramatized poetically in Archibald MacLeish's Pulitzer Prize winning "J.B.," is the basis for another Carolina Playmakers success, in a presentation requiring a delicate blend of interpretation, staging, timing, and emotional emphasis.

The symbolical setting is a grey old circus tent in which two vendors assume the roles of God and Satan. Mr. Zuss (Foster Fitz-Simons) mounts a high balcony, dons his magistrate's robes, and begins the dialog with Nickles (David Gullette) who, wearing a Satanic cape, remains on stage level to roam "to and fro" about the earth. Throughout the play they carry on an intermittent dialog over the suffering J.B., Nickles wanting J.B. to curse God, Mr. Zuss wanting J.B. to accept his fate with bowed head.

I heard upon his dry dung heap
That man cry out who cannot sleep
"If God is God He is not good,
If God is good he is not God."

Then enter J.B. (David Hooks), his wife, Sarah (Martha Nell Hardy and five children played by Billy Britt, Tema Okun, Melissa Hardy, Peter Hardy, Melanie Lewis, all to sit joyfully around a Thanksgiving meal. J.B., a wealthy banker, is thankful for what they have; the wife is concerned that they be overtly thankful lest they lose everything through God's wrath.

Nickles argues with Zuss that J.B. is "perfect and upright" only because he is prosperous, and Zuss, to test J.B.'s righteousness, commends him into whatever fate Nickles wills for him.

In a matter of minutes the blows fall with three quick, slashing sordid episodes. Two drunken soldiers blurt out the news of David's death in the war, one soldier (Pascal Tone) hard and brutal, the other (Harry Callahan) guilt ridden and dissolute; a newsman shockingly photographs their reactions as J.B. and Sarah are told brutally of Mary's and Jonathan's deaths in an auto accident; two cops give them a red toy umbrella of Ruth's telling them of her rape and murder by an idiot; he loses his wealth and remaining daughter in an explosion, and when he refuses to "curse God and Die," as Sarah asks, she leaves him in disgust.

Deserted and writhing atop a dung heap, J.B. is visited by the Three Comforters of the Bible: in this case, a psychoanalyst, a condemning priest, and a Marxist, who each offer his own solution to the cause of J.B.'s suffering, explaining it away, giving no comfort.

But J.B. is resolute. He cries out: "Guilt must always matter. Unless guilt matters the whole world is meaningless. God too is nothing."

Finally, J.B. hears the voice of God and is sustained by it, though his questions are not answered. Satan implores him to fling his restoration back into God's face, but J.B. instead takes back his wife and tells both Zuss and Nickles to get away from him; he will trust in the Lord, but not dumbly; he will make his own way in the world without bowed head:

"Life is a filthy face, you say/And nothing but a bloody stage can bring down the curtain/And men must have ironic hearts and perish laughing/Well, I will not laugh!"

J.B. is not a realistic play but rather a poetic dramatization dependent on a combination of many subtle factors to carry the dramatic illusion. Surely as the universal theme of man's relationship to God is expressed through the suffering of one man, so does the dramatic fulfillment of this production ride on the power and intensity of the central figure, given wondrous depth and tragic beauty by guest actor David Hooks. In the second act Hooks kneels on the "dung heap" twisting in torment as he cries out in dismay to an unanswering God for the cause of his anguish: "What fault! . . . What fault!"—and the audience believes in his suffering, is moved by his plea. What more is there?

The overall success, the combination of interpretation, timing, blocking, acting—too much to name—all brought to a unity, is the fulfillment of Harry Davis' fine directing hand.

Archibald MacLeish and the Carolina Playmakers combine with force to explore the eternal theme of Man's suffering. The result is poetry and drama.

Big Jim Would've Swelled With Pride

By BOB QUINCY

The late Jim Tatum turned out six bowl teams and one national champion in football, but if he were living today he would proclaim his greatest thrill the recent accomplishment of son Jimmy.

Jimmy, now 17 and owner of a physique to rival the friendly Green Giant, was tapped for a Morehead Scholarship here last week. His acceptance means he will enroll at North Carolina next fall.

Sam Frey, a member of the faculty at Woodberry Forest (Va.), where Jimmy is an honor student, had high praise for young Tatum. Said Frey: "He is a good athlete, a campus leader and his classroom excellence would qualify him for any school in the country."

Jimmy, who stands 6-6 and weighs 230, is a three-sport athlete. Like his father, he is a tackle in football. He also plays basketball and has distinguished himself in field events (discus, shot) in track.

At Woodberry, the students set up their own governing process, guided by some 12 prefects. Jimmy is one of the dozen leaders.

Jimmy's college board examination produced a score in excess of 1400. The average student beams if he can record as much as 800. Tatum shows a proficiency at math and chemistry.

Jimmy's prowess on the athletic field and in the classroom is excelled only by an appetite which brands him a human incinerator. His mom, Edna, who resides here at 308 Laurel Hill Road, recalls one lunch last summer which consisted of four sandwiches, five hotdogs and a bowl of soup. Jimmy said he hated to stop, but he was trying to cut down.

—Cross—

(Continued from Page 1)

Caldwell, a laboratory technician at the UNC Medical School, is a former leader of the Committee for Open Business (COB) which disbanded last summer.

Caldwell said he felt the incident was directed at him as he is still listed in the local telephone directory as residing at the house which is located on Sunset Drive just inside the Chapel Hill-Carrboro line.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

Want Exciting to Do For A Date?
"G. D. I. PARADISE"
COMING TOMORROW!

Gil Is Attending Leoni Inauguration

Fedrico G. Gil, professor of political science and director of the Institute of Latin American Studies at the University, is a special guest of the Venezuelan government at the inauguration ceremonies of the Venezuelan president, Raul Leoni today in Caracas, Venezuela.

President-elect Leoni, of the Venezuelan Accion Democratica Party, will succeed Romulo Betancourt in Venezuela's highest elective office. The Accion Democratic Party is one of Venezuela's three leading political parties.

Dr. Gil has been a close personal friend of President Betancourt's for over 20 years. When President Betancourt visited Washington, D. C., last year for meetings, with the late President Kennedy, Prof. Gil was invited to join his party.

Just elected to serve as president of UNC's Faculty Club, Dr. Gil's research areas and teaching specialties are in Latin American government and Latin American political parties. He is director of the Venezuelan Peace Corps Training Project which prepared Peace Corps volunteers for service in Venezuela. These volunteers trained at UNC during the fall of 1962 and began their two-year service in Venezuelan universities in December, 1962.

Dr. Gil's latest publication is a section entitled "Latin America Social Revolution and U. S. Foreign Policy," appearing in the book entitled "World Pressures on American Foreign Policy," just published by Prentice-Hall. Dr. Gil is one of eight specialists contributing to the book on various subjects dealing with the outer limits of American foreign policy. Prof. Gil is co-author of "The Governments of Latin America," written with UNC Kenan Professor of History and Political Science William W. Pierson and published by McGraw-Hill in 1956.

Greek Week Is All Set

Greek Week, the annual competition for fraternity pledges, will begin Monday, according to IFC President Ned Martin.

The best pledge class will be selected on a point basis determined by scholarship and community service.

The week's activities will begin Monday and Tuesday evenings with "exchange dinners" for the pledges. Tuesday afternoon the pledges will do community service work in the town.

"Field Day" will be held in Woollen Gym Wednesday afternoon and pledges will enter booths in the Campus Chest Carnival on Saturday.

The week's activities will conclude Sunday with the announcement of the best pledge class and a talk by a member of the administration.

Co-chairmen for Greek Week are Mike Hoyt, DKE, and Gordon Fitz-Simons, Chi Psi.

FIRST FOREIGN TV

Montreal (UPI) — The Archie Moore - Yvon Durelle light heavyweight championship bout at Montreal, Dec. 10, 1958, was the first title fight to be televised from a foreign country to the United States.

—Committee—

(Continued from Page 1)

Ross Scroggs said this would be a major battle that would create lots of problems.

In other business the Aldermen:

—Approved an amendment to the home occupation regulations limiting occupations to 25 per cent of the floor space or a maximum of 500 sq. feet; excluding persons not livin on the premises from employment there, and requiring adequate parking.

—Approved amendment to the subdivision ordinances requiring the posting of bond for all improvements listed on the the approved preliminary plat.

—Approved an amendment to sketch for Colony Woods subdivision section 2; approved the preliminary sketch for part of Farrington Hills subdivision with a minor condition; and approved the preliminary sketch of J. H. Riggsbee Estate section 2.

—Postponed further consideration of a new fire insurance policy for Town-owned buildings pending a recommendation by the Town Manager on bids submitted.

—Postponed action on two amendments to the table of special use permits.

Professor Joseph Straley, chairman of the Committee of Concerned Citizens, urged the Aldermen to enact a proposed public accommodations law.

Mr. Straley said "the federal civil rights bill will not eliminate the need of a local ordinance prohibiting segregation in places of public accommodations.

"The Town may better protect itself from federal interference (if the bill pending in the Senate is adopted) by taking local initiative and enacting an accommodations law," Mr. Straley said.

Robert Page, representing John Cates of the Chapel Hill Realty Company, requested the Aldermen to authorize a new survey of the land on East Rosemary Street between North Columbia and Henderson Streets to establish new lines to correct an alleged shortage of land. The Aldermen requested the Town surveyor, the Town Manager and Mr. Page to get together to discuss it.

—Items—

(Continued from Page 1)

tional training or experience is required.

Those desiring appointments with Miss Isker may arrange them through the University's School of Education Teacher Placement Office.

Education Association May Accept Negroes

The North Carolina Education Association announced yesterday that it was considering proposals to admit Negroes to the all-white organization of teachers and educators.

"Our board of directors already has approved integration proposals," Dr. A. C. Dawson, executive secretary of the organization said, but he admitted that it would take a year to make constitutional charges necessary to admit Negroes.

Dawson said that the move would lead to a merger of the NCEA with its Negro equivalent, the North Carolina Teachers Association.

The integration proposals adopted by the board of directors require a two-thirds majority of 37,000 members of the NCEA.

Gerson Will Give 1st Riggins Lecture

Professor H. Gerson, Director of The Netherlands Institute for Art History, The Hague, will speak at the first Riggins Lecture in Art in Room 115 of the Ackland Art Center on March 13.

He is currently visiting professor at the Institute of Fine Arts, New York University. He will give two lectures, one at 11 a.m. and the other at 8 p.m. The first will be an illustrated, informal talk on "The Early Rembrandt" and the other will be an illustrated lecture on "Art and Society in Seventeenth Century Holland."

Professor Joseph C. Sloane, chairman of the UNC department of art, announced the new lectureship. It was established by Mildred and McLeod Riggins of New York City, to be called the Riggins Lecture in Art.

The endowment was made for the purpose of supporting a lectureship by a distinguished person in the area of art, preferably in the field of painting.

The public is invited to both lectures.

Varsity
NOW SHOWING
ROGER VADIM'S
"DANGEROUS LOVE AFFAIRS"
(Les Liaisons Dangereuses)
An ASTOR Release • Not recommended for the immature.

Weekend Special!
Ready to Fly Airplanes
Reg. $9.95, Now $7.77
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

NOW ON THE SCREEN!
The most acclaimed ballet of all time performed in its entirety by the
BOLSHOI BALLET
TSCHAIKOWSKY'S
Swan Lake
In Lavish Eastman COLOR
starring
MAYA PLISETSKAYA & NIKOLAI FADEYECHEV
Distributed by COLUMBIA PICTURES
Carolina
Shows at 3 - 8
Adults 90c Children 35c
TODAY ONLY

The Incredible
Carlos Montoya
"... must be heard to be believed"
Tickets Now On Sale Daily at 12:30 P.M. At GM

Delivery Service Phone 968-4571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.
BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1
Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes
115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

Orange Blossom
ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING RINGS
Jolly's
FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
128 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

NIT Opens Tonite; Boasts Strong Field

NEW YORK (UPI) — The granddaddy of post-season basketball classics — the National Invitational Tournament — opens tonight at Madison Square Garden with one of its strongest fields in recent years and a favorite that is not even seeded.

In the opening first-round doubleheader, Miami, Fla., the highest scoring team in the history of major college competition, faces St. Joseph's, Pa. at 7 p.m., EST, and New York University tangles with Syracuse at 9 p.m.

The first round in the 12-team tourney will be completed Saturday afternoon when Army (16-6) plays St. Bonaventure (16-7) at 2 p.m., and Pittsburgh (17-7) meets Drake (20-6) in a 4 p.m. nationally televised game on NBC.

DePaul, 11th-ranked nationally in the final UPI ratings, is seeded No. 1, Bradley second, Duquesne third and 16th-rated New Mexico fourth.

The Drake Bulldogs, 13th-ranked nationally and regular season co-champion with Wichita in the rugged Missouri Valley Conference, did not enter the NIT field until Saturday, after the seedings had already been made. The NIT selection committee had to wait until after Drake lost its playoff game with Wichita Friday to extend an invitation.

The Bulldogs defeated second seeded Bradley, winner of the NIT in 1957 and 1960, twice during the regular season en route to a 20-6 record, and, despite the seedings, many observers consider Drake the class of the field, on the basis of its schedule and performance.

The quarter-finals next Tuesday night pit Duquesne (15-6) against the Army-St. Bonaventure survivor and New Mexico (20-5) against the Pittsburgh-Drake winner.

Semi-finals are scheduled for Thursday, March 19, and the final Saturday afternoon, March 21, at 4 p.m. in a nationally televised contest on NBC.

DTH PICKS NIT WINNERS

(first round games)

St. Joseph's over Miami, Fla

St. Bonavenfure over Army

NYU over Syracuse

Drake over Pittsburgh

Bob Bettis

The Tennis Scene

Story Of Suffering

Don Skakle is an expert.

More specifically, he is an expert at winning tennis matches. As a UNC tennis star from 1946-50, he won 60 of 61 matches. As the present UNC tennis coach, he has captured five consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference Championships, and has yet to experience a loss in conference competition.

On the 24th of this month Skakle and his Tar Heel netmen will attempt to add to their remarkable record by inaugurating their 1964 season. They open hostilities with the Indiana Hoosiers, and the match will be played in Chapel Hill. But before action begins the casual observer may want to know something about this year's squad. How does it compare, for example, to the 1963 champs? What players will comprise the starting six? And what ACC teams will provide the toughest opposition to Carolina?

A talk with the amicable coach produced the desired answers.

"Overall we are going to be just a little weaker," Skakle said. "Keith Stoneman graduated in June and Bitsy Harrison is now in the Army."

Stoneman, lone senior on last year's team and ACC doubles champion in 1961 and 1963, was a smooth, steady player who lost just five matches in his three-year career here. He was seeded number 47 in the country. Harrison, a 6-7 Virginian, rated number 40 in the U.S., was a threat at all times because of his big serve and excellent timing. Had he not been drafted in September, Harrison would have continued to be a starter.

"Naturally it hurts to lose two players like Stoneman and Harrison," remarked Skakle. "That means the shoes for our number five and six positions are left open. For that reason we will not have the great overall strength and experience of last year, even though we will be somewhat stronger in our returning positions."

Big Four Brings A Mississippi Smile

And when Skakle talks about his returning lettermen, his face exhibits a smile that is as wide as the Mississippi River. George Sokol, Ted Hoehn, Charlie Shaffer, and O. H. Parrish—all lettermen and all very good tennis players—are back again. Just who will join these four to make up the first six is not certain. Two individuals who might see action, however, are Pete Myers, a senior and top reserve last year, and Carl Evans, the 1963 freshman champion in singles and doubles.

Sokol, of course, is the team's pride and joy. A blonde, 5-9 stockily-built kid, Sokol has performed on the number one Carolina court ever since he joined the varsity. Last May the Czechoslovakian-born netter won the ACC singles crown for the second straight year.

Surprising as it may seem, Skakle says that little George has improved his game during the past eight months. "George should have a good year. He gained experience last summer while playing in the Eastern Collegiate Championships and the NCAA finals. His overall game is stronger now, and his backhand stroke is nearly as strong as his forehand."

Hoehn, a red-headed senior who formed, with Sokol, the brilliant one-two freshman punch three years ago, also has improved, if that is possible. "Ted is already better," explained Skakle. "His service, volley, overhead shot—they've all been improved. Overall he's much above average in comparison to last spring."

In practice sessions this month Parrish, too, has displayed a progressing game. As a sophomore during the past season, Parrish broke into the starting lnieup and at one time moved up as high as number three on the team ladder. Parrish, like Stoneman, plays a stable game and can hold his own against anyone in the conference.

Shaffer, the fourth letterman to return, was delayed in joining the team because of the overlapping basketball season. Thus Skakle does not yet know if Charlie has progressed as much as the other players. But he adds that Shaffer, a quick, strong, unusually agile athlete, "should be as strong, if not stronger, than last year."

"We're Looking Forward To Season"

As he talked Don Skakle was receiving telephone call after telephone call, and there were other business matters to attend to. But would he please give us a quick synopsis of ACC tennis competition this spring. "Clemson has a veteran team and should be near the top of the conference," Skakle expounded. "And Maryland may have a pretty good group too. It's a toss-up between Duke and Virginia as to which will follow these teams."

How about Carolina, coach? "I'll just say that we're looking forward to the season and that I expect us to do extra well in conference play."

Few tennis enthusiasts hereabouts will find reason to doubt his words.

Monogram Club Meeting Tonight

The Monogram Club will meet tonight in the Monogram Room in Woollen Gym.

President John Hammett says that it is essential that all committee heads and all members be there, because final arrangements will be made for the Varsity-Alumni game set for March 21.

Hammett reports that many former Carolina greats have already been lined up for the game and invites everyone to come out and watch the varsity get "slaughtered."

Kid Considers Olympic Offer

UNC's All-American basketball star, Billy Cunningham has received an invitation to try out for the Olympic basketball team.

The Kid will be one of 36 players, including Jeff Mullins and Fred Hetzel, representing the NCAA in the trials. Players from the National Industrial Basketball League will also be competing for positions on the honor team.

If he accepts the invitation, Billy will become the first Tar Heel to compete in the Olympic trials. Since he will miss about two weeks of school during the trials, Billy says he must check with his instructors before making a final decision.

Kentucky coach Adolph Rupp will be in charge of the tryouts. Billy says that he would have to go to Lexington, Ky. on March 22nd and then to New York the first of April. He would be back in school on April 5th.

Twelve players will be chosen to represent the U.S. in Tokyo, site of this year's Olympics. Six alternates will be carried on the early summer tour of Hawaii, but they will not make the trip to Japan.

Steelemen Open First Varsity Year

By PAT STITH

At North Carolina, Lacrosse is the sport for boys strong enough to play football, fast enough to run track, and rough enough to play ice hockey. Men of Steele, they're called.

Coach Cony Steel recruited his team with those qualities in mind.

After years of fielding a team on a "club" basis, UNC granted the sport varsity recognition this spring. Coach Steele is anxious that his boys get off to a good start.

The schedule offers a tough row to hoe. Steele's men face Virginia, the third ranked team in the country, and Maryland, ranked number four. Other opponents are Duke, Washington & Lee, Swarthmore College and Washington College.

Cony didn't begin this year from scratch. His "club" last spring played seven matches, winning three and losing four—all in overtime. His starters this year are all veterans off that team.

Several would be standouts anywhere. Sophomore Harvey Stanley, an All-Maryland goalie as a prep, is the defensive take-charge man. He handles his job as well as any around.

Another Baltimore boy, six foot, five inch attackman Jeff Parker, carries fireworks in his stick. Jeff scored 14 assists and 19 goals last spring, an average of better than four per game.

Six North Carolinians will play regularly. Co-captain Morris Griffin of Davidson plays first team defense, Tom Thayer of Asheville is on the attack, and Jeff Bischoff (Chapel Hill), Dan House (Greensboro), Stewart Ellington (Jacksonville) and Pumpkin Reid (Charlotte) play on alternating midfields.

Cony is optimistic about his team's prospects. "We're farther along now," he said, 't'han we were at the end of last season." But the squad has its problems. It's young (only four of 25 are seniors) and it must make up with desire what it lacks in know-how. But the Tar Heels are confident. They are, after all, men of Steele.

1964 LACROSSE SCHEDULE

(Home games in boldface)

Mar. 23—Washington College
Mar. 25—Swarthmore
Mar. 26—Swarthmore
Apr. 3—Virginia
Apr. 20—Maryland
Apr. 25—Washington & Lee
May 1—Freshman-Varsity Game
May 9—Duke

Denver Cops KO Gun-Totin' Sonny

DENVER (UPI) — Sonny Liston, ex-convict and also ex-champion of the world, was out on $300 bond Wednesday after being arrested on three traffic charges and a concealed-weapon count.

Liston was stopped Tuesday night by a policeman who said he clocked the ex-champion's car at 76 miles per hour in a 30 mph zone, found he had no valid driver's license and was carrying a 22-caliber revolver.

The officer, James Snyder, also said Liston threatened to "whip" him.

Liston said he had been driving 50 miles per hour and that he was carrying the gun. He denied making trouble for the policeman.

Milton's New Stove-Pipe Slim Bermudas

New exclusive in the slightly shorter trimmer leg for added smartness, all at new within-reach quotations.

1. New white duck wrinkle-free cotton-avnon blend — $4.95

2. Seven perfect coordinating tones in dacron-cotton poplins-suntan, mid-blue, gray, light olive, char-olive, blue olive, at only $5.95.

3. Classic cotton seersucker stripes in white with blue, gray or red—$4.95

New deal on half sleeve madras shirts—

Imported madras plaids in finest single needle tailoring, with plaids expertly matched, at only $6.95

You'll Love Milton's New Spring Look—Stocks Complete, Selections Superb!

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

CORBIN

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Half Sleeve Shirts

Don't be half right, be all right in a Half Sleeve shirt from our fabulous stock of plaids, stripes & solids.

These half sleeve shirts are made of the finest pima cotton with such respected names as Eagle and Wren, Ltd.

The perfect collar roll and 11 inch sleeve make these shirts a must for spring.

Priced from only 4.95

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin
Clothiers of Distinction

Spring Session About to Begin at

WHITE OAK STABLE

Old Durham-Chapel Hill Road

489-6191

The Professional Stable

Qualified Instructors Teach
Hunt Seat Equitation
JUMPING
Dressage

Special Classes for University Students. Transportation will be provided for minimum groups of 6.
Horses Boarded & Trained — Bought — Sold

Introducing . . .

NEW LOOKS in SPRING SPORT COATS

Add excitement to your wardrobe with the most imaginative — New expressions in Spring Sport Coats. There's special emphasis on color, stripe and plaid variations, and Fabric perfection. Featuring—

- Steeplechase, Madras, and Racing Plaids.
- Stripe Combinations — Ranging from Boldest Expressions to most subtle whispers.
- Tattersall Checks
- Denim Solids

Check our well-balanced assortment of Sport Coats—at Prices that please

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

TROUSERED BY CORBIN

the man who put natural shoulders on trousers

Have you looked at your trousers lately?

Are they correct? Are they neatly narrow in the leg — or too narrow (or too wide)? Do they hang properly or do they drag on the floor? Do they come up too high or do they rest securely on your waist? Do your trousers enhance your appearance?

Corbin trousers do more than simply clothe

Corbin tailors them with trim pleatless fronts, regular pockets and belt loops.

The Winner at Every Paddock—Crazy Horse!

Just received another tempting tantalizing shipment of fabulous Crazy Horse Shifts for that zesty spring exhilaration.

You can now round out your vacation wardrobe—with the best looking group of two piece swim suits with the boy leg and high halter—$17.95.

Our Lady Milton Shop is undergoing a face-lifting to enhance our surroundings and make room for added delectables.

Lady Milton Shop

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

DU Wins Ping-Pong Crown

By PETE GAMMONS

The All-Campus Championship game between the Ehringhaus-B Aces and ATO has been postponed until next Tuesday night at 7:30. Both won in their respective classes Monday over their White opponents.

In what turned out to be something less than an exciting day Tuesday, the picture was highlighted by Table Tennis. In the Fraternity Blue Finals DU won both singles matches and walked off with a 2-1 upset over DKE. Brick Oettinger and Morgan Dennis each won their singles, and clinched the title before Bryan Simpson and Bobby Gray could win the doubles for the Dekes. In the Dorm finals Battle-Vance-Pettigrew defeated the Parker Panthers, also by capturing the singles. Gene Corpining and Larry Edwards won for Battle, while the Panthers' Ralph Howe and Mike Joyce took the doubles. Phi Delt-1 took the Frat White title by shutting out the TEP Tepids, 3-0. Bud Phillips and Tommy Chewning won the singles, while Nat Taylor and Rick Crowder won the doubles.

In Monday's soccer action Alexander crushed Carr, 5-0. They will meet St. A's Thursday, who Monday defeated Physics, 2-0, with Hal Minis scoring both goals. Tuesday's top game saw Chi Psi defeat SAE by virtue of two more corner kicks. The actual score was 2-2, but under intramural rules the team with more corner kicks wins in the event of a tie. Other games saw Craige A beat Pi Kappa Phi, 1-0, and TEP blank Ruffin, 2-0.

"G.D.I. Paradise"

Coming Soon

Town & Campus

CLASSIFIED ADS

Used Cars For Sale

FOR SALE: 1956 CADILLAC "62" sedan. Black, low mileage, excellent tires, absolutely perfect condition throughout. $800 cash, cheap at this price — S. Hetherington, Carrboro, 942-6946.

For Sale

FOR SALE: "1960" LAMBRET a Scooter, excellent condition with two seats and book rack $130.00. Call 968-9021. Ask for Robert Schneider.

Services Available

REFERENCES AVAILABLE . . . America's leading business and professional men choose Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance. There's a reason and we'll be happy to explain it. Arthur DeBerry, Jr. C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

MOTORCYCLE MOVIES AT TRAV-el-On, 504 W. Franklin, Friday night, 8 p.m., March 13. Free refreshments. Gun and cyle prices reduced, Friday night only. 929-2364.

THE NETWORK PROGRAM

"Our Best to You"

has moved to new Radio Stations in order to expand to more stations Jimmy Capps invites you to listen on AM Radio to WDNC Durham or FM Radio to WDNC-FM or WRAL-FM Raleigh.

POGO

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

116

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
Perfect for black cats.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, MARCH 13, 1964 | United Press International Service

WILL GIVE FINAL TALK

George Ball To Speak To Carolina Symposium

By HARRY DeLUNG

George Ball, undersecretary of state, will speak at the Carolina Symposium, April 9, at 8 p.m.

Chairman Dick Hesse announced Ball's acceptance to give the final address last night. The topic will be "Values and the Individual; implications for the individual in a state organized for war."

Ball, who is the second-ranking State Department official, was appointed by President Kennedy in November, 1962. Immediately before, he served as undersecretary for economic affairs, and wrote the late president's report on balance of payments and the gold drain.

This report exposed to national publicity the serious loss of gold to European nations which formed a principal part of Kennedy's campaign platform in international affairs.

GEORGE BALL

Ball was the State Department's chief spokesman for the sale of U. S. wheat to Russia. In testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he vigorously defended the extension of credit to communist countries.

The Undersecretary is credited with shaping the major part of U. S. policy towards the Diem regime in South Viet Nam.

In January, Ball urged a major reorientation of American foreign aid. He attacked the use of aid as a cold war "weapon," and urged support for undeveloped nations on a more positive basis.

Proposing that foreign aid be directly taken over by the State Department, he stressed the need for more "altruistic motives" in the administration of these funds.

JIMMY HOFFA

Jimmy Hoffa Gets 8-Year Sentence

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) —Teamsters President James R. Hoffa today was sentenced to 8 years in federal prison for trying to bribe a jury that heard conspiracy charges against him.

"I stand here today and state I am innocent," the 51-year-old president of the nation's largest labor union solemnly told Federal District Judge Frank Wilson who sternly rebuked Hoffa in handing down the sentence.

Hoffa drew four years on each of two counts of jury tampering and was fined $10,000.

His attorneys already have announced plans to appeal the conviction by a 12-member federal jury last week all the way to the Supreme Court if necessary. Hoffa is expected to remain free under $75,000 bond pending the appeals.

Wilson also cited Jacques Schiffer of New York, attorney for one of Hoffa's co-defendants, for contempt of court. Wilson said Schiffer attempted to prevent and obstruct justice and "degrade and debase" respect for the court during the trial.

Wilson referred specifically to Schiffer's use of such language as "drumhead court martial," and "Stalinism . . . Hitlerism . . . and all kinds of 'isms" during his arguments in behalf of parks.

Schiffer was fined $1,000 and sentenced to 60 days in jail. Schiffer said he would appeal. Hoffa, standing about 12 feet in front of Wilson, showed no visible sign of emotion when the sentence was pronounced.

He looked the judge in the eye as Wilson sharply rebuked him in the small oak paneled courtroom where the long trial took place.

'DON'T PROD CYPRUS'

Cypriot Leader Says GB, Turkey At Fault

'Hands Off', Says Cyprus Ambassador

By PETE IVEY

Greeks and Turks on the island of Cyprus lived in peace for hundreds of years, with no threat of hostility, but British colonization policies of "divide and conquer" and demands by Turkey for partition has brought the present fighting and killing in Cyprus, it was declared here today by Ambassador Zenon Rossides, addressing the North Carolina Council on World Affairs meeting.

Ambassador Rossides, who represents his government in the United Nations and also as envoy to the United States, called for a "unified Cyprus" and hands off by both the nations of Greece and Turkey. "Cyprus must be unprodded," he said.

He advocated strengthening of the United Nations as a first step in assuring peace in the world.

"Forget the chauvinistic ideas of partition," he said.

The Cyprus ambassador said the UN must have an effective permanent peace force, rather than rely on voluntary emergency peace force groups. The lack of alacrity and the unwillingness of several nations to provide forces to go to Cyprus and restore peace in behalf of the UN and world peace is one striking example of why a permanent world peace force is necessary, he said. Similar quibbling and foot-dragging in the Congo prolonged hostilities there, he said.

Citing the over 4,000 years of history of Cyprus, Ambassador Rossides referred to the island as one of the cradles of civilization and culture in the world. Speaking of the nationalistic philosophies of the Greeks espoused by Plato and Aristotle, he declared that the emphasis by Zenon in his own "Republic" took a world view—and was the first call in history for a world rule of law.

Two "accidents" brought about the turmoil in Cyprus, he said:

(1) Occupation by the Turks over 3,000 years ago; "the remnants now remain," he said. One of every 18 Cypriots is a Turk.

(2) When Cyprus became a British colony, the colonial rule applied — divide and conquer. Greeks and Turks on Cyprus had lived in harmony for centuries, despite ethic differences and even during the Greco-Turkish War and during World War I, he said. But the British insisted that Greek and Turkish Cypriots vote separately. Due to British influence, also, the new Constitution of Cyprus contained built-in elements that produced enmity between Greeks and Turks on the island, said the Ambassador.

Division and partition, fostered by the British and the Turks, brought about the hatred that now prevails, according to Dr. Rossides.

If Cyprus is not unified, the only resource is "abandoning the island by one of the groups" and that minority would be the Turks, Dr. Rossides concluded. But unification is to be preferred, he said.

Ambassador Rossides said "nations must give up a part of their sovereignty, if world peace is to be obtained. Disarmament by negotiation between a few nations cannot give peace, he said. First there must be assurance of security; then peace will follow. He quoted the late President John F. Kennedy: "Absolute sovereignty no longer assures us of absolute security."

Two top international figures were the featured speakers at the N. C. Council on World Affairs yesterday at Memorial Hall. Seated are Katie S. Louchheim of the State Department and Zenon Rossides, Ambassador to the UN and United States from Cyprus. Standing is Miss Ruth Current, state chairman of the Council.

Louchheim Speaks Here To Women

"Bringing grassroots Americcas into closer touch with distant outposts of the world is a constant challenge.

"Women's organizations can make and strengthen ties from the grassroots to these outposts abroad," said Mrs. Katie Louchheim, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, Thursday to 150 persons attending the World Affairs Conference Luncheon at the Carolina Inn.

"The future of women is bright," she said. "At this moment in history, it is good to be a woman. At last she is being both praised and promoted. She is gaining ground in the drive for equality of opportunity.

"To be our brother's keeper is part of our heritage. Despite the fact that women in government are sometimes still viewed through antiquated glasses, women hold executive governmental positions of great extent and variety."

Of the U.S. State Department's 3,700 persons in foreign service, 300 or eight per cent of these are women, said Mrs. Louchheim. She cited Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, minister to Bulgaria, and Mrs. Catherine White, appointed as a minister by President Lyndon B. Johnson last week. Mrs. White's country has not yet been formally announced.

Speaking of the foreign service in general, Miss Louchheim, said that too often foreign service officers are held in low regard by Americans who think of them as living far removed from the people of the countries to which they go. "The 421 foreign service officers," she said, "represent graduates of 156 different colleges.

Odds 'n' Ends 'n' Campus Items

Council Interviews Slated Wednesday

Interviews for a vacant seat on the Men's Honor Council will be held Wednesday in the Council Room in Graham Memorial.

Pete Jason, Men's Council chairman, will interview candidates from Judicial District IV for the seat which expires in the fall.

Mac Boxley, president of Phi Delta Theta social fraternity, vacated the seat last week to leave time for his other activities. Boxley will graduate in June.

The district includes all students living within the city limits excluding the residence halls.

Lost Items Gather In J-School

The Journalism School takes great pride in announcing its first annual Spring Clearance Sale!

During the winter, students have left many curious articles in Howell Hall classrooms, and after exhaustive efforts to contact the rightful owners, the Journalism School is throwing open its doors to all comers.

Miss Vivien Lyle, departmental secretary, said yesterday, "We have a complete stock of scarves, sweaters, mittens, gloves, umbrellas, eyeglasses and glasses cases, textbooks, notebooks, class rings, pipes, cigarette lighters, pens and pencils."

"It's one-stop shopping for Spring!" she said excitedly.

Lampshades To Hold Meeting Monday

Are you worthless?

Are you not the typical Carolina coed?

If you meet these two stringent and contradictory requirements, chances are you may be tapped for the Order of the Old Lampshades next month.

Head Bulb Ellen Solomon has called a meeting at 4 p.m. Monday in the parlor of the Nurses Dorm of all present worthless members to discuss several very worthless things, including the April tapping.

Most of the new members tapped will probably be nurses as most of the typical worthless people on campus are among this select group.

Pan-Hellenic Sells 'Katydids' Here

Spring is here—and with it, thousands of "Katydids."

The Pan-Hellenic Council will be selling "Katydids," a type of candy that resembles "Turtles," tomorrow on Franklin Street and at Eastgate Shopping Center.

The council is selling the candy in order to raise money for the eight classes for mentally retarded children in the Chapel Hill school system.

These classes are designed to help mentally retarded children develop elementary and special skills. The classes need certain extra supplies to carry out these objectives. The sororities, under the leadership of the council, hope to sell enough candy to be able to donate $30 to each class.

The sale will take place from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Look for the booths with the girls and the "Katydids."

ADVISOR APPLICANTS

All applicants for the Resident Advisor Program are requested to make an appointment for an interview by Friday.

Fifteen minute interviews will be held through March 13.

Any applicant unable to meet the above schedule should notify the office.

Rendleman Is Freed Of Charges By MRC

By KERRY SIPE

The impeachment proceedings against Ehringhaus President Dave Rendleman were dropped Wednesday night after a report by a Men's Residence Council investigating committee supported Rendleman's innocence.

MRC President Gerry Good had charged Rendleman with malperformance of duties and suggested that he be removed from office.

Jim Fullwood, chairman of the MRC Court, presented an investigation report concerning the alleged offenses. In the report it was concluded that Rendleman had not been unusually absent during his term of office from Council meetings, as Good had charged.

Rendleman was supported with petitions signed by over 60 per cent of the Ehringhaus residents.

It was brought out that only half of the contest points that Ehringhaus Hall has accumulated has been due to Rendleman's efforts. The remaining points are the results of intramural activities organized by the intramural manager.

After discussion of the case, the Executive Committee voted to clear Rendleman of the charges against him and allow him to remain in office.

In other business, Paul Dickson, President of Everett Hall withdrew his proposed ammendment to the by-laws that would have required residence hall newspapers to be reviewed by the Editor's Roundtable of the MRC.

Nominated for MRC offices next year were Jim Fullwood, president; Dwayne Apple, vice-president; Ron Hendre, secretary; Sonny Pepper, treasurer; Larry Coleman, Court chairman; and Jerry Droae, vice chairman of the Court.

Further nominations and elections will be held at the next meeting.

Gordon Appell, chairman of the Social Committee, announced that combo dances co-sponsored with the Carolina Women's Council have been scheduled for March 21 and April 1.

DTH Staffers Take On SP At Meeting

DTH woes were blamed on lack of funds and a small staff in a panel discussion on "What's the Matter with the Tar Heel" at a Student Party meeting Wednesday night.

Participating on the panel were Armistead Maupin, Neal Jackson, Co-Editor Dave Ethridge and Managing Editor Fred Seely.

The session turned into a question and answer period with members of the audience asking Seely and Ethridge about problems and various complaints with the DTH.

Ethridge mentioned that the executive Budget Committee had cut the DTH budget request both for increase in circulation and for the news staff salaries.

The DTH must reach the married students to get more advertising, he said. Right now, there isn't enough money to get the papers to these students.

"When the Chapel Hill Weekly goes daily, as it will in the next couple of years, they'll take all our advertising from us unless we're reaching the married students."

Seely noted the generally "good" news balance in the DTH.

Replying to a charge about slanted news stories he noted that the majority of the news staff is moderate to conservative.

In other business, Sherry Stanley was elected to a legislative seat from the Cobb district replacing Judy Frieder, who resigned to practice teach.

Baxter Linney won over Jim Johnston for a vacancy on the SP Advisory Board.

The next party meeting will be Sunday at 7 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

SPLASH! Attractive Mary King launches the G.D.I. Paradise Bus which will be transporting single students and couples tonight for an evening of fun. In cooperation with the MRC, two Chapel Hill merchants have worked out a plan to provide free transportation from campus on a regular schedule to a pizza candlelight dinner and a night of bowling.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

'Peace Pilgrim' Invades The Hill

By JOHN GREENBACKER

While you are traveling along the nation's highways or stopping at the local tavern for a beer you may see her, a little old lady with remarkably tanned skin and bright, light blue eyes.

A second glance reveals that she is dressed in solid blue clothing which is broken only by the large white lettering on her tunic. It reads "Peace Pilgrim."

"A walking advertisement," you ask? Yes, she is.

She has walked the pavements of 23,600 towns in the United States, Mexico and Canada while persuing a personal pilgrimage for peace and disarmament.

The Pilgrim has another name, but she dropped it 15 years ago when she started her journey, and she hasn't used it since.

"In my early life I found money making easy and meaningless," she will tell you. "I had everything you could want, fine clothes, money, a beauti ul apartment, and fancy cars.

"When I began to live to give instead of get my life became meaningful and I knew I would seek peace. There followed 15 years of serving and seeking.

"I am not on a crusade," she maintains. "A crusade is an attempt to force people into something; I am a pilgrim who seeks to influence people by prayer and example."

"My weapon is love and faith, not the animal law of tooth and claw."

The Pilgrim will frequently stress her belief in the basic goodness of mankind. "Every person is a human being underneath," she says.

"God's laws" are what the Pilgrim respects, especially the Golden Rule. "People should stop saying these laws are no good: we know better. Ours is an immature attitude.

"I think disarmament will come after our wish to survive causes an uneasy peace." she claims. "Mankind will have a great inner awakening."

"If we have great spiritual courage we can lay down arms," she says. "I am very realistic, however; I see little evidence of this spirit today."

The Pilgrim cannot conceive

(Continued on Page 3)

Peace Pilgrim

NEW YORK TRIP

The Wesley House of Chapel Hill announced today that it is organizing a chartered bus trip to New York City during the week of March 26-31, spring vacation.

Approximate cost for the trip including rooms at the Hotel Sheraton-Atlantic and tickets for two Broadway plays will be $50.

Another trip is being planned for later in the year to Charlotte.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Wesley House.

State Takes Name Change To Trustees

The NC State Alumni Association will take its much-argued proposal for a name change and equal representation on the Board of Trustees before the executive committee of the Board of Trustees today at 10:30 a.m.

"We are not seeking the deconsolidation of the University," President of the State Alumni Association M. Edmund Aycock said.

The alumni will present two proposals:

1) To change the name of the Raleigh division to North Carolina State University. The present name is the University of North Carolina State of the University of North Carolina at Raleigh.

2) To provide for equal representation of the three branches on the Board of Trustees.

To accomplish this, there would be 32 representatives from each division of the Consolidated University on the Board. The Board is presently composed of 100 members, each representing all three institutions.

McGuire Hired At USC

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI) — Frank McGuire, the New Yorker who produced a string of basketball powerhouses at North Carolina in the '50's, was hired Thursday as head basketball coach at the University of South Carolina.

McGuire, who lives in Chapel Hill, N. C., was head coach at UNC for nine seasons and produced the 1957 national champion Tar Heels. He resigned that post in 1961 in the wake of controversy over recruiting practices.

The 47-year-old McGuire will be returning to college coaching after a two-year absence which included a season as head coach of the old Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Association.

Athletic Director Marvin Bass, a close friend, said McGuire would be associate athletic director as well as head basketball coach. This places him in complete charge of the university's basketball program.

As coach, McGuire succeeds Chuck Noe, a nervy and talented basketball leader who was hospitalized with extreme exhaustion and resigned at midseason.

Curriculum Changes Come Fall Semester

Students entering the BA School in the fall will find a significant change in the curriculum required for graduation.

Dean Maurice W. Lee said the change will basically affect the way in which a major is obtained. Students will no longer be allowed to specialize within the department in such majors as marketing, transportation, finance or production.

Volume 72, Number 116 — Friday, March 13, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel
71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Atchison, Topeka And The 'GDI'

The "GDI" Paradise" gets underway tonight, and a lot hinges on its success.

The "GDI Paradise" is a combination transportation-recreation-dining effort aimed at widening the recreational possibilities of the dormitory man without a car, and/or his date.

There are absolutely no strings attached to the deal. For $2.75 per person, or $5.00 per couple, you get a pizza or spaghetti supper at La Pizza, four games of bowling at All Star Lanes in the Eastgate Shopping Center and free transportation all the way.

A bus will stop at Ehringhaus Parking Lot on the hour between 5 and 11 p.m., at 10 past the hour in front of Lewis Residence Hall in the Lower Quad, at 20 past the hour in front of Aldermen, and at half past the hour in front of Kemp's downtown .

The "GDI Paradise" will roll only on Friday nights until the success of the project can be determined.

Jimmy Weeks, the UNC Law School student who dreamed up the idea and worked it out with the merchants concerned, says success means the program will be extended to Saturdays and perhaps to additional merchants as well. In fact, success could lead to a whole range of such programs, including trips to Women's College in Greensboro and other places.

The purpose, again, is simply to provide the man without a car a place to go and take a date to which is well out of walking distance.

This project deserves the inspection of every auto-less student. There will probably be a few bugs to get worked out in the beginning, but every initial indicator points to its success.

See you on the "GDI Paradise"?

Tonight, from 5 to 11.

The Sam And Henry Letters: More Please

Greensboro Daily News

Debate by correspondence may have reached its zenith in the 18th century, but we are pleased to see that two distinguished North Carolinians think enough of the tradition to sustain it.

To debate by letter requires two indispensible requisites: There must be differences of opinion but mutual respect between adversaries. These requisites are met beyond question in the case of Dean Henry Brandis of the University of North Carolina Law School and Sen. Sam J. Ervin of the U. S. Senate. They admire each other; they have differences—on civil rights and otherwise—and one lives in Chapel Hill and the other Washington, thus making debate-by-letter appropriate.

Recently these two have engaged in a colloquy—we might call it the Sam and Henry Letters—about the pending civil rights bill; and their latest correspondence as published in The Chapel Hill Weekly displays great erudition.

Senator Ervin is reiterating his conviction that a considerable distinction exists between a filibuster and an educational debate in the U. S. Senate. The latter is his objective. "In participating in the forthcoming debate in the Senate," the senator writes, "I will be keeping faith with that reactionary American, George Washington, who declared in his farewell address to the American people that it was just as important to preserve constitutional principles against destruction as it was to establish them."

Then the senior senator wades directly into the issues raised by various segments of the civil rights bill, which he calls a "drastic assault" upon the "indestructible union composed of indestructible states":

(1) The bill attempts to transfer from the states to the federal government the power vested in the states by Article I, to prescribe the qualifications for voters in federal elections;

(2) It confers upon all departments and agencies administering any program involving the use of federal funds the power to use untold billions of dollars of federal appropriations to bribe or browbeat states, political subdivisions of states, charitable institutions, industry and individuals into acceptance of their views in matters relating to race;

(3) Title III would allow a federal government to "tell a barber operating in a hotel anywhere in the United States whom he must shave, a beautician operating in a hotel anywhere in the United States what woman she must attempt to beautify, and a shoeshine boy operating in a hotel anywhere in the United States whose shoes he must shine."

(4) Title II would allow the government to tell every lawful business or industry whom he shall hire, discharge, promote or lay off.

Senator Ervin contends that he cannot "be silent upon these matters as long as the rules of the Senate permit me to speak."

In answer to these assertions Dean Brandis replies:

(1) Nothing he has written suggests curtailment of "full debate" upon the merits of the civil rights bill; he has never anticipated that Senator Ervin would engage in any such filibustering tactics as reading stock market quotations or other irrelevant material. But "even in an educational debate the critical point is reached when the end sought by the speakers ceases to be the presentation of argument as a desirable preliminary to a vote on the merits and comes to be the prevention of such a vote. At that point a filibuster is in full cry; and I reiterate my belief that this is highly prejudicial to the future of democratic government in the United States."

(2) While he (Dean Brandis )is not attempting to argue the merits of the civil rights bill, he thinks it could be "greatly improved by amendments substantially modifying some of its provisions" however;

(a) The ultimate authority on the constitutionality of legislation remains the U. S. Supreme Court and while one may be critical of its decisions, he still should accept them as law;

(b) The Senator is greatly perturbed by the effect of legislation restricting an individual's freedom, yet he has never been similarly exercised "over numerous state statutes, enforced for so many years not only restricting freedom of choice but also denying equality of privileges and rights by requiring segregation";

(c) The Senator believes that civil rights should remain the responsibility of the states, yet the same argument was made about slavery 100 years ago and led to civil war; today civil rights is a national problem and not one to "be inconsistently dealt with or neglected by the states."

(d) Finally the Dean shares the Senator's "reverence for individual rights guaranteed by the Constitution but believes in "making them, including the provision regarding equal protection, true and meaningful for all our citizens."

* * *

Thus the Sam and Henry Letters maintain throughout and consistently the eloquent tone of two learned scholars counseling each other.

And one must conclude that their differences, while substantial, are those of emphasis. Senator Ervin would focus his concern on the centralization of authority and the long arm of federal force reaching down into the local community to work its will; while the Dean emphasizes exisiting inequities and the need to do justice in areas of "equal protection of the laws" which too many states have long neglected and still, in many cases, refuse to heed.

In truth both emphases are important. And it seems plain to us that individual freedom for all citizens assured by the Constitution will remain in danger and be further whittled away (as Senator Ervin fears) unless individual states and local communities voluntarily correct the inequities noted by Dean Brandis.

Would the Senator and the Dean care to continue the Sam and Henry Letters and address themselves more directly to these points?

Letters To The Editors

Reader Sends Two Gripes

More Pregnant Guinea Pigs?

Editors, The Tar Heel:

I would like to say two things.

First. In the past few weeks Dick Akers has been cut to the quick by people who didn't hold with his beliefs and policies. Well, I want to know where this boy is? Is he going to stand by and be ridiculed by the unfeeling dastards of UNC who haven't the intelligence to lay off the poor guy? Obviously the guy is overworked and we, the student body, should realize this and let the poor guy alone. Chin up, Dick.

Second. How can you, the editorial board of The Daily Tar heel (sic), go so low as to waste one whole column on a lousy review. Specifically the one by Mr. McInnis in the Saturday (sic) paper. I say hell, you would have done better to tell us more about pregnant guinea pigs.

Keep up the good work, fellas.

Sincerely,
Terry Hannon
313 Grimes

Nothing New In 505 Ehringhaus

Editors, The Tar Heel:

I am quite willing to relinquish the title of "Diatribe King" given me in the March 8th edition of the Daily Tar Heel by William Garnett of the Law School. The publication of his letter should make it clear to all of us that there is a new master of the illogical insult, and I felicitate Mr. Garnett. I would like to point out a few inaccuracies in Mr. Garnett's letter in the hope that I may relieve Mr. Garnett of a part of the great burthen under which he is labouring.

It would be very nice if all of us had Mr. Garnett's papal infallibility. Unfortunately I am not allowed to make any statements without incurring Mr. Garnett's wrath for my assuming "that standards of value and postulates of propriety are . . . (my) . . . own brittle, untouchable child," whereas he can with perfect freedom condemn my statements as crude and shallow.

The relationship between good taste and shrewd integrationist editorial policy is a little abstruse. If the editors' fatigue from their work with the civil rights movement is responsible for their declining powers of journalistic discrimination, then they ought to make other arrangements for choosing the material which composes the editorial page. No matter how Mr. Garnett states it, exploiting the sympathy of the American public for financial gain is in no way defensible. There is no justification for apathy. If making statements without giving reasons, as Mr. Garnett claims I have done, is so execrable, then he should tell the unenlightened what apathy's reason for being is.

There is nothing subtle about Mr. Wainwright's article; it oozes lower-class emotion well-calculated to appeal to Mr. Garnett. Mr. Wainwright no doubt had in mind that readers of his article would accept President Kennedy's greatness as based on the funeral pageant and the graveside services; thus the actual greatness of President Kennedy is conveniently obscured, and no one need question whether a president elected by such a tiny margin is as great as those who were laid on the same bier and drawn on the same caisson before him. Mr. Garnett has lionized John F. Kennedy to such a degree that there is not the least hint of objective evaluation of the accomplishments of President Kennedy, the greatest of which were not being shot in Dallas, eulogized in Washington, and buried in Arlington.

The purpose of the press is not exclusively to provide informative or pleasant reading, nor its its purpose to be as offensive as possible. There is no reason for any article's being poorly written. To Wainwright "it was a very simple grave . . . but still, simple as it looked, one could not take it all in. The long, slow walk having been achieved, there was suddenly too much to see and too little time to see it." If this is not obsession with "graveside glories," what is? John F. Kennedy was in no way responsible for that hillside in Arlington. It is only a monument to his death and to Mrs. Kennedy's ability to obtain inappropriate markers. There is another Eternal Flame in Arlington, and apparently a great many people have forgotten the one whose grave it marks. Would John Kennedy have gotten such a memorial had he died a more prosaic death? Is assassination sufficient reason for such a memorial? If so, why aren't the graves of Lincoln, Garfield, and McKinley so marked? They died just as dead as John F. Kennedy.

The policy of the Daily Tar Heel in this matter is inexcusably despicable. Where apathy and poor taste abound, only the courage to take a stand, to violate "accepted" journalistic standards, will assure their continued existence. Surely Mr. Garnett's statement that I failed to be objective and fair was an oversight, in view of the lack of objectivity and fairness so overt in Mr. Garnett's petty tour-de-farce.

Richard Bynum-Parsons III
505 Ehringhaus

Episcopal Group Joins Boycott

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Whereas we believe in the equal and infinite preciousness of every human person to God, as shown by his Son Jesus Christ, who died for all men, and

Whereas we affirm the right of all men to equal protection under the law, and

Whereas we support the methods of boycott, picketing and other lawful demonstrations or the attainment of social justice, and

Whereas we commend and are thankful for the witness borne to the above principles by other individuals and groups, both local and national,

Therefore, we, the duly appointed executive committee of the Episcopal Student Congregation, hereby

(1) urge all proprietors and patrons of segregated establishments to open their hearts and doors to all persons regardless of their race, and

(2) ask the cooperation of all students and citizens in helping to save our society from the pernicious system of segregation, and

(3) recommend such methods to attain this end as conferring with owners who segregate racially; as picketing and other lawful means of demonstrations; and as refusing to patronize businesses which irrationally discriminate against our fellow citizens and brothers in Christ.

(The above resolution was passed by an 11-0 vote of the entire membership of the Episcopal Student Planning and Action Committee.)

The Episcopal Student Planning and Action Committee

More Names For The Boycott

Though all the methods currently employed by those who actively seek equal rights for all citizens may not be completely desirable or productive, the undersigned are convinced of the rightness of this cause. We feel that the best and most effective expression of our strong belief in the cause of civil rights is through patronage of only those businesses which we know to have demonstrated their belief in the basic equality of all men by accommodating all equally, regardless of race, creed, or national origin.

Larry L. Poe
Bill Horne
P. Doublas Fann
Lawrence M. Kaye
Luchman Al-Ahady
Dick Smith
Edwin Alan Taylor
Thomas Marbury
John Pugh
Fred W. Roush
Charles Pettis
Lewis M. Burton
Ralph C. Hendren
J. Judson Jones
Travis Venters
Charles W. Dunham
Scott Morganstern
Paul Eugene Brown

"Sure — I'm For Equalizing Things"

Kerrying On

By Kerry Sipe

There is a hero in our midst. A man who, despite a million effigies of Surgeon General Luther Terry hanging in tobacco barns all over the South, a man who, despite the $8 million tobacco industry which teeters overheard in a "catch-as-catch-cancer" situation, is willing to do further research in the field of cigarette-caused disease.

"Some 70 million Americans smoke cigarettes," says Dr. Edward Annis, president of the American Medical Association. "We're lucky if we can get 5 million to quit, even with the reports. I see no reason why, with all our scientific knowhow and some money, we can't make smoking safe."

This does not mean that Dr. Annis is the first to tackle the problem. Seventy million smokers the world over are not taking this thing lying down.

Great Britain has developed a tobacco substitute that presumably takes the place of the craving for tobacco smoke. German scientists have passed the buck for lung cancer to automobile exhaust fumes rather than tobacco. The Germans suggest that their countrymen enjoy their smokes while walking to work in the morning.

Americans say it's not the tobacco that does it, but the paper and the glue that holds the thing together.

The John Birch Society calls it a Communist conspiracy to perpetuate the Havana cigar industry.

To them all the Surgeon General has made his reply. "Any vegetable material (whether tobacco, gasoline, paper, or corn shucks) when burned under the conditions prevailing when tobacco is smoked, will produce hazardous substances."

All of us are doing a lot more exhaling and a lot less inhaling than we did last month.

And so, as the sale of Bantron and No-Smoke soars to a new high, the nation's fifth largest cash crop, user of one fourth of America's metal foil, the third largest user of cellophane, is balanced on the brink of financial disaster. I remember when we would decorate our Christmas tree with the little red pull strings. Another precious memory falls victim to progress.

One wonders what is going to be done with all the industry's surplus filter tips. I'm storing a crateful in my fallout shelter. They'll come in handy in case of gas warfare.

"Most cancer-producing compounds are not present in the tobacco leaf," the abomidable Dr. Terry continues, "but are formed during the burning process." Apparantly he has no objections to our chewing our cigarettes raw.

But there can be no repair to the egos of cigarette smokers everywhere, who have been shamed in the eyes of their pipe and cigar smoking associates, who poke their fingers into their instruments, mumbling knowingly about heel and dottle, spitting on the sidewalks, and assuring themselves quiet confidently that they knew it all the time. There is a human side to every important question.

If Dr. Annis can come through as he has promised with absolute proof that the Sergeon General is just a befuddled old man that, moreover, tobacco smoke is the long-lost cure for the common cold, think of the glory that will be his.

Liggett and Meyers can give up their leaf collection. Edward R. Murrow can go back to work. The Kool Penguin can come out of retirement. And, more important, if Uncle Sam can prove that cigarettes are not tacks for the coffin, he can rest assured that they will continue to be tax for the internal revenue.

'The Shallow UP'

Editors, The Tar Heel:

The recent letter by UP chairman, Jeff Adams, shows exactly how shallow the philosophy of the University Party actually is. He has said that President Lawler has "failed to meet the challenges of a mass institution." This is ridiculous. No UP president has ever met the important challenges like Mike Lawler. Far too many of them have been smooth "nice-guy" types, largely lacking in courage.

In his letter Adams refers to "unnecessary arguments with the administration." Apparently this refers to the apartment rule and student-faculty review board disputes. These are hardly ranked as minor. They are issues that threatened the very existence of student government. But then perhaps such "little things" as fair trials, due process, and student autonomy are meaningless to the UP. The SP has faced these problems, even when it was out of office, and attempted to solve them. These are admittedly areas where few students are directly affected, but nonetheless, they are as important as roaches in the Lower Quad (few people need a special UP committee to tell them about this problem).

Also, Lawler is not the person to blame for any inaction by the Campus Affairs committee. Just ask anyone on it about its activity (or lack of activity!). The blame is on the shoulders of Don Curtis, former UP chairman. Curtis did try to resign shortly after he was appointed, but Lawler would not accept his resignation until he had submitted a report of the committee's work in order that the new chairman would know the status of the committee. This is not an unreasonable thing to ask from a chairman. But Curtis persisted in not giving a report to the President and Lawler finally fired him.

The most ridiculous charge of all concerns the Tar Heel Print Shop Bill. Adams says that there was $5,000, appropriated for this bill's administration. This is in total error. No money was appropriated on the passage of the bill. Also, no special committee was appointed because, by the time when Lawler came into office, the Publications Board had investigated the establishment of a print shop and found the cost so high it as to be ludicrous. If our student body were the size of the University of Michigan or California, then we might be able to justify the expenditure.

President Lawler's stand on civil rights has been discussed enough. However, one thing has been overlooked in the melee. There are Negro students in the student body. Student Government has a responsibility to them also. I think that it is a necessary part of the executive's job to look out for their welfare too. This is all that President Lawler was trying to do.

I hope that I have made my point clear. Adam's letter was so full of misrepresentations and wrong facts that it is deserving of a rebuttal. I hope that in the future the UP rise from petty name-calling and face the significant issues which confort Student Government.

Neal Jackson, Chairman
Ways and Means Committee

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites comments on current topics from its readers regardless of viewpoint. All letters to the editors should be typewritten, double-spaced and of reasonable length. All letters must be signed, with the address of the author. No letter considered libelous or in poor taste will be printed.

Heelprints

Primarily, the New Hampshire voters lodged a few complaints against Goldwater and Rocky.

* * *

Then there's the Diane Hile doll—you wind it up and it snarls.

* * *

Well, Queen Elizabeth had a real prince of a baby.

* * *

Simile: as ugly as the Tin Can.

* * *

The mountain of statistics from Washington does prove something—that there are a lot of statisticians in Washington.

* * *

Definition: Coiffure—a French word meaning "You'll keep coming back because you'll never be able to do it this way yourself."

* * *

Looks like some Eastern rivers are getting too big for their bridges.

* * *

More and Moore people seem to be moving over to the Preyer side.

Weekend Special!
Ready to Fly Airplanes
Reg. $9.95, Now $7.77
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

Riggins Lecture — Ackland, H. Gerson, 11 a.m., "Rembrandt;" 8 p.m., "Art and Society in 17th Century Holland."

CCUN—3-5 p.m., YM-CCUN office, interviews for delegates to UN Seminar in New York.

SP Advisory Board—4 p.m., RP I.

Jr. Class Girls' "Powder - puff Football" League — 4:30 p.m., pictures will be taken in front of Woollen Gym.

Wesley Foundation—6 p.m., Wesley House, supper, call for reservations by 2 p.m.

Hillel Foundation—7 p.m., Hillel House, Sabbath services.

MOVIES

Varsity—Sword in the Stone
Carolina—A Global Affair
Free Flick—Outsider

SATURDAY

Free Flick—7 & 9:30 p.m., The Spiral Road.

Bavarian's Combo — 8-12 p.m., Rendezvous Room.

Panhellenic Council will sell Katydids from 9-5 downtown and in Eastgate.

WRC will hold interviews on March 17-18 for candidates for chairman of WRC in the spring elections; girls interested should sign up at the GM information desk before Tues.

SUNDAY

Hillel Brunch—12:30 p.m., Hillel House, Dr. Will Herberg, "What I Means to be A Jew."

Festival of Jewish Music — 4 p.m., East Duke Music Room at Duke, Julia Mueller, viola; Ruth Friedberg, piano; John Hanks, tenor; Isabel Samfield, soprano; Peter Hellman, flute; and Frank Bennett, percussion.

Canterbury — 6 p.m., Episcopal Church, "Death and Resurrection."

SP—7 p.m., 08 Peabody, panel discussion on women's rules.

Religion Lecture — 8 p.m., Hill Hall, Dr. Will Herberg, "Religions in America: Paradox and Problems," public is invited.

Jr. Class Girls' "Powder-puff Football" League — 2 p.m., Fetzer Field, discussion of rules, technique and possible scrimmage.

MONDAY

Religion 32A class—1 p.m., Mur-phey auditorium, Dr. Herberg, "Religious Group Conflict in America Today," public is welcome.

SP Advisory Board—4 p.m., RP I.

Order of the Old Lampshades— 4-5:30 p.m., parlor of Nurses' Dorm.

Symposium Related Discussion— 4:30 p.m., RP II.

Course Evaluation Comm.—4:30 p.m., Woodhouse, organizational meeting.

Jr. Class Finance Comm. — 5-6 p.m., Grail, to discuss powder-puff football game.

Newman Table—6 p.m., Lenoir, informal dinner.

Dr. Henry Clark On National Council

Dr. Henry T. Clark, Jr., director of health affairs in the UNC School of Medicine, has been appointed to the newly formed National Advisory Council on Education for Health Professions.

Secretary of Health Education and Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze named the council last week. It will advise Surgeon General Luther L. Terry of the Public Health Service on administration of the 1963 Health Professions Education Assistance Act.

The council members were named for terms ranging from two to four years.

– Pilgrim –

(Continued from Page 1)

a person without some good in him. She maintains the Nazis of Germany began killing the jews only when the jews began to arm the ghettos.

She has had many ideas for promoting human understanding. Many, such as a peace corps and a position on the President's Cabinet for a "Secretary of Peace," have been tried to some extent in the past.

One of her most important ideas calls for the teaching of a world language as a second language in schools. She feels this would be an excellent way to promote international understanding.

"I have never been harmed during my travels," she says. "People lose their resentment when they talk and write to me."

The Pilgrim has one piece of advice to give to everyone: "Commend every good thing that comes to your attention. This will give it strength."

One of the dominant questions which runs through the minds of many the Pilgrim meets is "Who is really immature person, this lady or most of the world's people?"

A little thought will bring the answer.

Tomorrow she leaves for Burlington, where, she hopes, others may stop and listen to her message. Let us hope some will.

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES
Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES
• New Moon
• Ritz-Craft
• Palace
5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East
See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD
DURHAM
Phone 596-8302

INSTANT SILENCE
STUDY ANYTIME ANYWHERE
Sound attenuators as utilized by military and commercial jet air craft ground grew personnel are the perfect solution. For information write:
ACADEMIC AIDS
P. O. Box 909
Berkeley 1, Calif.

THE NETWORK PROGRAM
"Our Best to You"
has moved to new Radio Stations in order to expand to more stations
Jimmy Capps invites you to listen on AM Radio to WDNC Durham or FM Radio to WDNC-FM or WRAL-FM Raleigh.

For Someone You Love

PRICED FROM $150.00
NEW SPECIAL STUDENT TERMS
Weldon's Jewelers
327 W. Main Street DURHAM, N. C.
The Students' Jeweler

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

CLASSIFIED ADS

For Sale

FOR SALE: "1960" LAMBRETta Scooter, excellent condition with two seats and book rack. $130.00. Call 968-9021. Ask for Robert Schneider.

SPECTACULAR MOTORCYCLE movies at Travel-On Motorcycle and Gun Co., 504 W. Franklin, Friday night at 8 p.m. Bluegrass entertainment, big sale, free refreshments. 929-2364.

Enjoy the Finest Seafood
TIP TOP FISH HOUSE
Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West
Durham Tel. 286-4494

He Puts Your VW On A Special Pedestal
Our Volkswagen mechanics are the best around. They're specially trained in exacting VW factory methods. They're equipped with special VW tools and hoists that help save you time and money.
More important, our mechanics know your VW through and through. They don't have to keep up with drastic model changes every year. They're so familiar with your VW they could repair it blindfolded.
Next time you talk with a VW owner ask him about our VW service. He'll tell you it's as unusual as the VW itself. Or better yet, come in and see for yourself.
TRIANGLE MOTORS Inc.
W. Chapel Hill St. Durham, N. C.
Open Friday Night Til 9 — Weekdays until 6:30

Bob's on the road to paternity!
Bob Hope

NOW PLAYING
Carolina

—Use Our Classified Ad Service—

rose marie reid
No girl need fish for compliments when she wears "La Seine" two-piece swimsuit! Rose Marie Reid shapes this dare-bare maillot and molded bra in fishnet over cotton knit that's piped with plush elastic; 8-14,

J. B. Robbins

(Advertisement)
BEAUTY NOTES
BY ALICE STONE
Here are a few facts concerning scratchy, non-catchy Erythema solare—better known as sunburn. A leading dermatologist had this to say.
"Sun ages the skin. Too much of it over long peroids destroys the elastic fibers, or connective tissues, and they become degenerated.
"These fibers are like rubber bands and hold the skin taut. If you overdo it, even with a tan, the rays get down into the connective tissues."
Forgetting skin and sun for the moment, let's speak of your hair. Is it a problem — a lank, limp, spiritless problem? Actually, you don't have a great problem at all. There are always the excellent facilities and stylists of Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon, 133½ East Franklin to serve you. Try us. Phone 943-4335.
THIS WEEK'S HELPFUL HINT: Try refrigerating birthday cake candles the day before using; they will burn slower and with even glow.

TENNIS

RACKETS
18 models, $4.95-$15.95
FRAMES
22 models $15-$34
Custom
STRINGING
By McGINTY
The Sport Shop
"It Pays to Play"

PEANUTS

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Blue dye
5. Furnished with shoes
9. Gateway: Jap.
10. Recorded, as a program
12. Girl's name: poss.
14. "Peter Pan" dog
15. A wing
16. LXXX
18. Remnant
21. Whether
22. Skill
23. Money-drawer
25. Pricked, as by a wasp
28. A low-growing flower
29. Botch
30. Mountain defile
31. Hesitation sound
32. Type of shoe
36. About
39. Body of water
40. Tatters
41. Frothy
44. Titles of respect toward kings
46. Incites
47. A headland
48. City: Nev.

DOWN
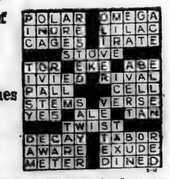
1. Earth
2. Mountain nymph
3. French river
4. Perish
5. Street: abbr.
6. Suspend
7. Brilliant fish
8. Tooth-like blocks under cornice
9. Money of account: Chin.
11. A May fly
13. Dispatched
17. Player in game of tag
19. Fortifies
20. Unit of work
23. High
24. At home
25. Blotches
26. Environment
27. Pronoun
28. "Raven" author
30. American scout and plainsman
32. Thoron: sym.
33. City: Ger.
34. Bout
35. Speaks
37. Monster
38. Employs
42. Hearing organ
43. "Honest ——"
45. Steamship: abbr.



Yesterday's Answer

Grow with Us

At Xerox, you become a part of a dynamic, well established company which is a world leader in the exciting and expanding field of graphic communications. More than 85% commercially oriented, Xerox devotes much of its operating revenue in researching dramatic new applications of electricity and light. For example:

- ☐ Total operating revenues for 1963 were $176,036,387, an increase of 66 per cent or $9,107,534 over 1962 figures.
- ☐ Expenditures for research and engineering were increased from $9 million in 1962 to more than $14.5 million in 1963.

In five years, the number of Xerox employees has grown from 1500 to more than 8000. Such growth creates key job opportunities in many technical and non-technical areas for applicants with exceptional abilities.

Many facets of our growth include:

- ☐ 157 new products marketed since 1950.
- ☐ 47 new patents were issued in 1962 alone.
- ☐ A new manufacturing and research complex situated on 1,000 acres of campus-like setting to which more than 800,000 square feet of modern facilities have been added since 1956.

Among the exciting projects presently underway within the broad discipline of graphic communications are:

- ☐ Information storage and retrieval systems
- ☐ Information transmission
- ☐ New product concepts in the medium of electro-photographic copying equipment

If you would like the satisfaction and challenge of working for such a company . . . and have the potential and desire to grow . . . there's a place and a future for you at Xerox. Opportunities exist in the following areas:

- ☐ Research and engineering
- ☐ Finance
- ☐ Manufacturing
- ☐ Marketing
- ☐ Control

Contact your placement office to arrange an interview with a Xerox representative who will be on your campus . . .

March 20

or, write: Xerox Corporation • Dept. 64 • College Relations Box 1540 • Rochester 4, N. Y.

XEROX
an equal opportunity employer

Blue Devils To Begin Quest For National Title

By LARRY TARLETON

There will be two brands of basketball played at Raleigh tonight.

Duke and Villanova will play one brand, the type of ball representative of two teams in the top ten. Princeton and Connecticut will play the other brand, the brand of basketball built around one man.

The Blue Devils from Durham rate a slight favorite over the Wildcats of Villanova, but the Princeton-Connecticut has been labeled a toss-up.

Because of previous parings, the two strongest teams will be facing each other in the first round. Villanova, seventh in the nation with a 23-3 record, has the best record, but Duke, third in the nation with a 23-4 record, seems to have the stronger team.

Villanova's losses have come at the hands of Niagara, St. Joseph's and LaSalle while the Blue Devils have lost to second-ranked Michigan, fourth-ranked Kentucky, Wake Forest and Vanderbilt. The Blue Dukes lost two of their games by a single point and one in overtime.

Blue Devil coach Vic Bubas is worried about the Wildcats defense, a pressing zone which has forced their opponents into numerous ball-handling mistakes. The Devils must show more offensive punch than they showed in the ACC tournament if they expect to solve the Villanova defense. Jay Buckley and Hack Tison also must keep the Wildcat's "jumping jack" Jim Washington and Al Sallee off the boards.

Guard Wally Jones, whom Coach Bubas calls one of the top guards in the country, leads the 'Cats offensive attack, Jones is averaging 15.7 points per game, but his greatest value to the team comes as a playmaker.

Sophomore forward Richie Moore (6-4) is the leading scorer with a 16.1 average and is also the second leading rebounder. Washington is the leading rebounder with a 14.4 average and also scores 13 points per game. Sophomores Bill Melchionni and Al Sallee (6-8) round out the starting lineup.

The Blue Devils will have the height advantage with 6-10 giants Buckley and Tison, but the Wildcats will probably be able to control the boards. The biggest problem facing the Villanova defense will be stopping All-American Jeff Mullins. The zone defense will probably succeed in keeping Mullins outside, but Jeff is deadly from anywhere. Guards Buzzy Harrison and Denny Ferguson will complete the Devil starting lineup. Reserve guard Steve Vacendak is out of the hospital and will be ready to see action.

In the second game of the night, All-American Bill Bradley (32.7 average) will lead his Princeton teammates against Toby Kimball, Ed Slomcenski and their Uconn mates. Kimball, a 6-8, 230 pound junior, is the key to former Duke aide Fred Shabel's attack. Kimball is averaging 20 points and 17 rebounds a game. Slomcenski, 6-11, and 240, is averaging 8.2 rebounds and 8 points a game. Dom Perno (11.0)), Al Ritter (9.9) and Dan Hesford (5.0) complete the Uconn starting lineup.

Bob Haarlow (9.8) Don Niemann (6.1), Don Roth (2.8) and Don Rodenback join Bradley in Princeton's lineup. Coach Bill van Breda Kolf uses several players with Bradley in every game in hopes of finding the right combination.

PREDICTION: Duke and Bradley tonight. Duke tomorrow night.

Duke-Villanova Clash On Tube

The Duke-Villanova basketball game will be televised locally tonight by WFMY-TV, Channel 2, Greensboro. The important semi-finals match in the Eastern Regionals will begin at 7 o'clock. If the Blue Devils win, the finals will be carried tomorrow night at 9 o'clock.

Mid-Easterns

At MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.

Michigan (Big Ten) vs. Loyola of Chicago (at large)

Ohio (Mid-American) vs. Kentucky (Southeastern)

On a night of great games, the Michigan-Loyola battle stands out as the greatest. In fact, in a weekend of great regionals, the Mid-Eastern feud stacks up as the most interesting, for here in living color are three of the nation's top eight teams. Only one will go to Kansas City.

Michigan (No. 2) meets Loyola (No. 8) in what should be a regular knock-down, drag-out brawl. The Wolverines finished with a 20-4 mark, but two of the losses have come in the last three weeks ,including an upset loss to Purdue Monday night in the final game of the regular season. That one meant that Ohio State gained a share of the Big Ten crown, but Michigan automatically got the NCAA berth as the Buckeyes have been in the NCAA play-offs since the Wolverines last showed up, which was way back in 1948.

On the other hand, Loyola finished strong. The Ramblers, who won the whole thing last year by upsetting Cincinnati in overtime, may be the hottest team in the nation right now, while Michigan is perhaps a year away from real greatness.

Leading the Ramblers (21-5) are seniors Ron Miller (22.2), Les Hunter (21.4), John Egan (18.9), and Vic Rouse. Obviously the team has scoring punch—worth about 91 points a game. The fifth starter, Jim Coleman, scored 27 points in the first-round win over Murray State Tuesday night.

Michigan boasts two young All-Americans in 6-5 soph Cazzie Russell and 6-7 junior Bill Buntin, and coach Dave Strack uses the two to spearhead a fast-breaking, board-crazy offense—similar to that of Duke. Other starters are 6-7 Oliver Darden, 6-5 Larry Tregoning and playmaker Bob Cantrell.

In the excitement over the Michigan-Loyola contest, one tends to forget about No. 3 Kentucky. But tomorrow night, the Michigan-Loyola winner will have to play again, and the opponent will probably be Kentucky. The Wildcats, who make a habit out of this tourney business, are led by All-American Cotton Nash (25.0), and should have little trouble in disposing of the balanced, but inferior Ohio Bobcats.

PREDICTION: Loyola and Kentucky tonight. Loyola tomorrow night.

Mid-Westerns

At WICHITA, Kansas

Wichita (Missouri Valley) vs. Creighton (at large)

Kansas State (Big Eight) vs. Texas Western (at large)

There is no place like home in basketball and that's exactly where the No. 6 Wichita Wheatshockers will be tonight. And if you're the kind of basketball fan who likes dazzling play by the big man under the boards, then you should be in Wichita tonight too.

Leading a solid Wichita team is 6-7 Dave Stallworth who averaged 26.2 in the regular season. Top man for Texas Western is 6-8 Jim "Bad News" Barnes, who sports a neat 30.2 average. And Creighton has the nation's top rebounder in 6-7 Paul Silas, who hauled 'em down at the rate of 22.1 per game.

The fact that these three All-Americans will all be playing on different teams should make for a very interesting weekend in Wichita. But the Wheatshockers (22-5) should be able to win in the familiar surroundings.

Besides Stallworth, the Shockers have a top-rate guard in Len Kelley and 6-10 Nate Bowman. Their over-all strength should be too much for a Creighton team which surprised everybody with a 22-5 mark.

Kansas State has 6-6 Willie Murrell and 7-foot Roger Suttner, but Texas Western (23-2) with "Bad News" scoring, should prevail over the Wildcats in a nip-and-tuck affair.

PREDICTION: Wichita and Texas Western tonight. Wichita tomorrow night.

Far-Westerns

At CORVALLIS, Oregon

San Francisco (WCAC) vs. Utah State (at large)

UCLA (Big Six) vs. Seattle (at large

The expected battle between first-ranked UCLA and fifth-ranked Oregon State will not come off here tonight simply because an upstart Seattle University team eliminated the Beavers Tuesday night 61-57.

Seattle, directed for the first season by Ben Boyd, compiled a 21-5 record this season but the Chiefs are not given much chance to continue its success against a faster and more-experienced UCLA team.

Johnny Wooden's UCLA Bruins have breezed through 26 games with surprising ease. Led by ball-handling magician Walt Hazzard, the Bruins own a devastating fast break and like to play a run-and-shoot game. All-American Hazzard is joined in the starting lineup by junior guard Gail Goodrich, the Big Six's leading scorer, 6-5 center Fred Slaughter, 6-3 Fred Hirsch and 6-5 Keith Erikson.

Seattle does not have the horses to run with the Bruins and will probably play a slow-down game. Chief starters will probably be John Tresvant, Greg Vermillion, Dick Turney, Charlie Williams and Ralph Heyward.

In the other game, San Francisco's Dons, the winners of 18 straight, hope to get a crack at UCLA by getting by Utah State. The Dons are led by Ollie Johnson, their best player since Bill Russell, who averaged over 20 points a game.

Johnson and his mates will be trying to stop a Utah State attack led by a 6-6 Wayne Estes (38 against Arizona State Tuesday). Coached by LaDell Anderson, Utah State compiled a 21-6 record during the season.

PREDICTION: UCLA and USF tonight, UCLA tomorrow night.

Vikings' Rip Hawkins Leads List Of Returning Gridders

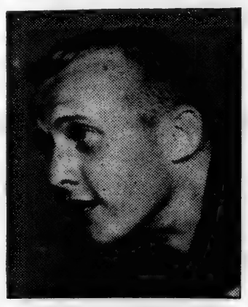
Monogram Club President John Hammett says that 18 former Carolina football greats have already accepted invitations to participate in the third annual Varsity-Alumni football game.

Hammett says that he is expecting to hear from several more players before the week is over. The game, set for Kenan Stadium at 2 o'clock on March 21, ends the varsity spring practice sessions.

Minnesota Viking linebacker Rip Hawkins heads the lists of former Tar Heels who have agreed to return to Kenan Stadium. Big Tony Hennessey, Joe Craver, Bruce and Duff Greene, Jack Tillery and Don Stallings are linemen of recent Carolina teams who will perform in the alumni line.

Flankermen John Schroeder, George Knox, Rabe Walton and Conrad Sloop hope to bolster the alumni passing game. Lenny Beck, Moyer Smith, Andy Miketa, Fred Swearingen, Jud Spainhour and Jeff Newton round out the 18.

With this year's seniors added to this list, the alumni should be able to send an imposing lineup on the field. The end position should be exceptionally well-fortified with Bob Lacey, Hammett and Joe Robinson joining the "old grads."



JOHN SCHROEDER
. . . . He'll Be Back

Only 2 Track Meets Here

If you plan to see much of the Carolina track team this spring you had better start saving for the traveling expenses. The Tar Heels travel from Gainesville, Fla. to College Park, Md., and appear at home only twice.

A week from Saturday (March 21) they will open up against Clemson in the first half of the home schedule. After that they hit the road for nearly a month, not returning to Chapel Hill until April 18 against Maryland. During that time they will travel to State the 24th, Gainesville Fla. the 28th or the Florida Relays, to Columbia, S.C. April 4 for th South Carolina the 11th in a dual meet against the Gamecocks.

After meeting the defending champs, Maryland, they go back on the road for the rest of the season, all in ACC competition. The Tar Heels face Wake Forest the 21st, Virginia the 27th, Duke May 2, move on to College Park for the ACC Championships the 8th and 9th, and finally to Raleigh the 16th for the Carolina AAU.

The eleventh annual ACC Indoor Championships, in Woollen Gym Saturday, will be dedicated to former Tar Heel coach Dale Ranson, who died last September after coaching here for 38 years. Maryland, winner every year except 1955, again is the favorite, but will not have as easy a time as it is accustomed to.

The Terps still bring in the big stars. Mike Cole, defending champion in the broad jump, is expected to break the Tar Heels' Rev. Charles Hubbard's 29-year-old record of 23'8½". Walt Samora is the favorite in the shot put, boasting a best throw of 55 feet. John Pettyman (600-dash) and Ed Bennett (pole vault) are other Terps expected to lead the way in their respected events.

Other visiting teams boast stars as well, led by Clemson's Jim Wynn, who does the 70 yd. low hurdles in 7.6. Bob Coombie of South Carolina could easily do better than his best time in the 880 of 1:53.0. Duke's Bob Fogle has done the 70 yd. high hurdles in 8:7 and rules the favorite there. Carolina, of course, has its own stars, led by football wingback Ronnie Jackson (6.1 for the 60), Art Maillet (mile), Milt Bauguess (70 high hurdles) and Tom Clark (high jump).

1964 TRACK SCHEDULE

(Home meets in bold face)

Mar. 21 Clemson
Mar. 24 NC State
Mar. 28 Florida Relays
Apr. 4 Carolina Relays
Apr. 11 South Carolina
Apr. 18 Maryland
Apr. 21 Wake Forest
Apr. 27 Virginia
May 2 Duke
May 8-9 ACC Championships at College Park, Md.
May 16 Carolina AAU Meet

Sonny Can't Argue

DENVER — Boxer Sonny Liston, after being arrested for speeding 76 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone with a pistol in his pocket:

"I imagine that I was speeding. I couldn't argue the point there."

LA Dodgers' F. Howard Quits Baseball

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Slugging outfielder Frank Howard of the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday announced his retirement from baseball in a letter to General Manager E. J. Buzzie Bavasie.

Howard's letter states: "Physically and mentally I don't feel like baseball. I would not be any good as a player or a person to either the Dodgers or myself. I am quitting baseball and I do so regretfully."

"I have been quite serious about quitting since last fall," Howard continued in his letter.

"I'm sorry I waited so long but I wanted to be sure of my final decision. I know I won't make anywhere near as much money outside of baseball but money isn't the cure for all ills."

Howard and Bavasi had stated in negotiations in spring that the big outfielder's prolonged holdout was strictly a "personal matter."

Club President Walter O'Malley said that he hoped Howard will change his mind. He conceded Howard's decision was a blow to the team's hopes of winning the National League Pennant again but added, "these things happen in baseball."

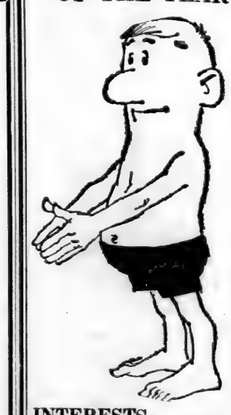
JUST ARRIVED
New
BERMUDAS
Just for these spring days, Dacron Cotton slim leg bermudas, in five new colors. Also Dac-Cotton Seersucker in blue and white duck
only 4.95
The best yet, for the casual man, all cotton seersucker
only 3.95
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

Early Easter
The Easter Bunny reminds us that he'll be here in March this year, and suggests a few titles that are sure to delight that young heart Easter Morning . . .
A new Joan Walsh Anglund
A Pocketful of Proverbs
with its own slip-case, ..... $1.95
and
The Fuzzy Duckling
and
The Golden Bunny
big picture books, each .... $1.00
in the delightful children's book section at
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Until 10 P.M.

"GDI PARADISE!"
PIZZA or SPAGHETTI SUPPER
And
4 GAMES OF BOWLING
Free Round-Trip Ttransportation
ALL for $2.75
Couples $5.00
Bus Schedule
EHRINGHAUS PARKING LOT ---------- On The Hour
LOWER QUAD at LEWIS ---------- 10 Past The Hour
ALDERMAN ---------- 20 Past The Hour
KEMP'S ---------- 30 Past The Hour
5 P.M. to 11 P.M. TODAY
Ticket Sales on the bus only—For information call
ALL STAR LANES—968-4404 LA PIZZA—967-1451
Dorm Rats You Are Entitled to Some Fun

Milton's Inimitable Stove-Pipe Slims

New warm weather selections in the best fitting wash 'n' wear slims available.
1. Our basic dacron-cotton drip dry poplins in many new tones including a white white, mid-blue, blue olive, light olive, dark olive, char gray, deep rich navy—only $7.95
2. Combed cotton seersucker in cluster stripes of white with blue or gray — $5.95
3. Dacron-cotton duck in sturdier fabric that defies wrinkling, in many shades of the poplin plus a rich off white — $8.95
Bermudas in 1, same slim model —$5.95
Bermudas in No. 2 — $4.95
Cordinating new madras half sleeve shirts at only $6.95
You'll Love Milton's New Spring Look At With-in Reach Quotations
Milton's Clothing Cupboard

IT'S THAT TIME OF THE YEAR!


INTERESTS ARE GNINRUT TO THE OUTDOOR SCENE
and THE HUB is ready to help you will need to check our col- any occasion. Playing golf? Then you wil need to check our collection of KNIT SHIRTS. BERMUDAS are a warm weather must and we are featuring • Elephant Plaid Madras • Seersucker • Oxford stripes • Denim • Etc — With spring vacations just 'round the corner, you will need a new BATHING SUIT. Our selection is terrific! Come early—
Spend those leisure hours in Style at the Least Expense
The Hub of Chapel Hill
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Sun Fashions

ENJOY SPRING IN STYLE . . .
with SLACK and BERMUDA SETS styled for the lady who appreciates unique design.
THE CO-ED CORNER
THE HUB of CHAPEL HILL

Varsity
NOW SHOWING

WALT DISNEY'S
NEWEST AND MOST HILARIOUS ALL-CARTOON FEATURE
The Sword in the Stone
TECHNICOLOR®
Released by BUENA VISTA Distribution Co., Inc.
©1963 Walt Disney Productions

Pappagallo

Town & Campus

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
Raindrops

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1964 | United Press International Service

117

Herberg To Speak Tomorrow At Eight

By PETE WALES

Dr. Will Herberg, leading expert on the role of Judaism in American culture, will speak tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall, sponsored by the Department of Religion.

He will speak on "Religion in America: Paradox and Problem."

"Dr. Herberg is both erratic and brilliant," said Dr. Sam Hill, chairman of the Department of Religion.

"He is one of the most popular college lecturers in the country."

Dr. Herberg is well-known to students here for his book "Protestant, Catholic, Jew," which has been described as the main source of all analysis of religion in American culture.

The book is a text for courses in sociology, history, and religion here.

Another book, "Judaism and Modern Man: An Interpretation of Jewish Religion," has been acclaimed by Reinhold Niebuhr as a "milestone in American religion thought."

WILL HERBERG

Herberg will speak at a brunch at the Hillel Foundation tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. Interested persons may make reservations with Rabbi Joseph Levine.

In addition, he will lecture to the Religion 32A class at 1 p.m. Monday in the Murphey Hall auditorium. His subject will be "Religious Group Conflict in America Today." The class is open to the public.

"Dr. Herberg is the main Jewish spokesman in the Protestant, Catholic, Jewish dialogue in America today," Hill said.

"More than a dozen major studies have been opened up by his book, "Protestant, Catholic, Jew." The book is a kind of norm in the field of religion in American society. It has opened up a whole new field of scholarship."

Herberg is a graduate professor of Philosophy and Culture at Drew University, a Methodist school. He was formerly on the staff of the Wash-

(Continued from Page 3)

Issac Stern, one of the world's great violinists, will play in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. Monday. Students will be admitted with ID cards.

Election Laws Revised By SL

By JOHN GREENBACKER

A bill revising the elections law and another appropriating $330 for the UNC Debate Team were passed by Student Legislature Thursday night.

The elections law amendments make legislative districts coincide with judicial districts on campus, clarifying qualifications, renumber the districts, and improve the polling station placements.

Rep. Bill Straughn (SP) objected to the listing of candidates on ballots in alphabetical order, saying in a close election the candidate highest on the list usually won. His proposal to have positions chosen by lot was defeated by the body.

Student Party Floor Leader Phil Baddour expressed surprise that the University Party did not object to the bill's provision which prohibits a member of a judiciary body to live outside his district.

"We've (the SP) been trying to get this thing through for years," Baddour said, "but the UP always stopped us."

The bill was passed unanimously after several minor changes were made.

A bill to appropriate $1500 to the Sophomore Class for the publication of a handbook describing the fields a student may major in at the University was sent back to committee.

Rep. Arthur Hays (SP) questioned the advisability of appropriating so large an amount for the unproven project.

Recommitment to committee was moved by Rep. Darst Murphey (UP), who wished the body to consider immediately the appropriation to the Debate Team.

Privileges to the floor were given to Haywood Clayton, debate team president. Clayton itemized his request for travel expenses that the team would accrue in attending a regional debate tournament.

The body debated the advisability of the team's traveling by plane to the event, but the added money for the trip by plane was left intact after Clayton explained the reasons for his request.

The body recommited to committee a bill to define the process on executive appointments.

The Welfare Committee re-

(Continued on Page 3)

Action!

By FARYL SINS

Romance?
Crime?

Whatever the subject, the UP Campus Action Board should be able to shed some light on it.

A recent survey taken by the Board revealed that many students thought the campus was too dark, so the UP has arranged with University officials to have large wattage bulbs installed in our lamp posts.

In addition to finding that the campus was largely in the dark, the board also discovered that certain people had been left out in the cold. Lower Quad residents complained about cold drafts in their shower rooms. Currently, new thresholds are being installed and weather stripping is being put around the doors.

'WHAT'S CONSPIRACY?'

Sitton Challenges District Solicitor

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Dr. Sitton's Letter

Solicitor Thomas Cooper
Orange County Courthouse
Hillsboro, N. C.

Dear Mr. Cooper:

Having read in various newspapers about the charges of conspiracy that have been brought against several individuals associated with the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee, I have become puzzled as to whether or not I too am liable for indictment. There are many of us here in Chapel Hill who have assisted in the work of the Freedom Committee, although we have not actively engaged in sit-ins or other forms of civil disobedience. We were not aware that a person could be cited for conspiracy for having helped in the planning or organization of an act of civil disobedience. For this reason I write to ask that you clarify for us the meaning of conspiracy, so that those of us who may be guilty might abide by the law and give ourselves up.

Speaking for myself, I have on two occasions driven demonstrators to restaurants for the purpose of their asking for service and refusing to leave if service was denied them. I knew what they were doing. I agreed with it and I wilfully and knowingly assisted them in their act. I also drove several young people to the Pittsboro Road, I believe it was on February 8, whereupon they sat in the path of traffic for the purpose of representing as dramatically as possible the critical need for action in our racial problem. My wife Sharon, a senior at Duke and editor of the Duke literary magazine, was among those participating. A party of about twelve white men emerged from a nearby gasoline station and attacked the demonstrators, including my wife, beating them, tearing at their clothes and dragging them by their collars out of the road. One of my students in our group was a young crippled boy who walked with difficutly, his legs slightly bent at all times. Yet he too was viciously beaten by the men. I must say that in my estimation the behavior of the demonstrators throughout this horrifying ordeal was thoroughly courageous and admirable, showing a restraint and dignity not shown, unfortunately, by the cowardly individuals who wantonly attacked them.

I have also upon occasion donated money to the Freedom Committee, as have many respectable citizens of Chapel Hill. Not knowing the law, I am also puzzled as to whether this would count as conspiracy. I have lent this group my sympathy, advice and support in every way I thought lawful. The recent action citing certain people for conspiracy thus makes me wonder if perhaps my actions were unlawful. If so, I would like it known that I am willing to comply in my arrest and am willing to supply any and all information about my actions that I ran recall.

I should point out that my involvement with the Chapel Hill civil rights movement came only after thoroughly examining the situation and my own motives and was a deliberate, willful act on my part for which I have no shame and am willing to take full responsibility. Before lending my support to the Committee, I had a lengthy conversation with Chancellor Aycock here at the University where I am employed as an Instructor in the Philosophy department. The Chancellor advised me not to participate in acts of civil disobedience. It was his opinion that reprisals might be made against the University by certain legislators in Raleigh if I or any other faculty member got arrested. I disagreed with him. My conviction was and is that the free exercise of one's conscience can never under any circumstances harm an educational institution, whereas the cowardly refusal to take a stand would certainly sooner or later hurt our University most seriously. I say this, by the way, as a native-born North Carolinian who loves and respects our state and her great University. Nonetheless, I complied with the Chancellor's wishes, or at least I thought I did until I learned of the recent citations for conspiracy. Now I am unable to decide whether or not I am guilty of wrongdoing. I ask you, then, not only for my own sake but for the benefit of many others in Chapel Hill to make an explicit statement on what is to count as conspiracy.

Should I be liable to arrest, I may be found during the day at my office at 112C Caldwell Hall on the U.N.C. campus. At nights I am at my home at 106 Buchanan Blvd. in Durham.

Respectfully,
/s/ Robert M. Sitton

By GARY BLANCHARD

UNC Philosophy professor Robert Sitton has challenged the validity of conspiracy charges filed against local integration leaders in connection with recent racial demonstrations here.

In a letter which he sent copies of to several daily state newspapers, Dr. Sitton asked District Solicitor Thomas Cooper "to make an explicit statement on what is to count as conspiracy" so he can determine if he ought to give himself up for his indirect involvement in the demonstrations.

Sitton's letter also quoted UNC Chancellor William B. Aycock as advising him against participating in civil disobedience tactics because "reprisals might be made against the University by certain legislators in Raleigh."

Contacted for possible comment, the Chancellor said he had "no comment whatsoever" on the matter.

Sitton's letter says he "disagreed" with the Chancellor.

"My conviction was and is that the free exercise of one's conscience can never, under any circumstances, harm an educational institution, whereas the cowardly refusal to take a stand would certainly sooner or later hurt our University.

"I say this, by the way, as a native-born North Carolinian who loves and respects our state and her great University.

"Nonetheless, I complied with the Chancellor's wishes, or at least thought I did, until I learned of the recent citations for conspiracy. Now I am unable to decide whether or not I am guilty of wrongdoing."

Sittin told Cooper his letter of inquiry was prompted by news reports of conspiracy charges being brought against leaders of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee, a coalition of five civil rights organizations which has directed recent street demonstrations here.

The leaders include UNC assistant psychology professor Albert Amon and two UNC students, Ben Spaulding and Thomas Bynum. All are free on $500 bond, pending a hearing Monday in Orange County Superior Court In Hillsboro. They are charged with inducing Duke Professor Robert Osborn to violate the state trespass law by taking part in a sit-in demonstration at Watts Grill Jan. 3.

Sitton said he has lent the Freedom Committee "my sympathy, advice and support in every way I thought lawful."

(Continued on Page 3)

Name Change Proposal To UNC Trustees

RALEIGH (UPI) — The secretary of the Execuitve Committee of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina today said "the executive committee apparently feels the present name" for NC State "leaves something to be desired."

Archie Allen made the statement after the committee had been approached by members of the NC State Alumni Association for the name change and equitable distribution of the university trustees.

Alumni President M. Edmund Aycock told United Press International that he felt the proposals received a cordial reception, but added that the name change was more favorably received than the alumni's position of equal representation for the three units of the Consolidated University on the board of trustees.

Aycock suggested NC State University as a possible alternative.

Allen said the name change proposition was taken under advisement and further hearings on the matter would begin with special sessions of the executive committee, probably beginning in April.

English Prof Named Editor Of Journal

Dr. Norman Eliason, UNC professor of English, has been named co-editor of "Anglistica," a journal of English language and literature published in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Eliason replaces Prof. Kemp Malone of Johns Hopkins University as American editor of the series edited by three internationally-known scholars.

Eliason has won international recognition in his specialty of the language and literature of England in Anglo-Saxon times.

He is the author of "Tarheel Talk," an account of the state's vocabulary and word origins. He joined the UNC Department of English in 1946.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

BSU Bake Sale—all day, Fowler's Food Store; Eastgate Shopping Center; car wash at BSU Center, 151 E. Rosemary; proceeds to LISTEN, summer Korean missions project.

Bavarian's Combo — 8-12 p.m., Rendezvous Room.

Panhellenic Council will sell Katydids from 9-5 downtown and in Eastgate.

WRC will hold interviews on March 17-18 for candidates for chairman of WRC in the spring elections; girls interested should sign up at the GM information desk before Tues.

MOVIES

Carolina—A Global Affair
Varsity—Sword in the Stone
Free Flick—7 & 9:30 p.m., The Spiral Road.

LOST & FOUND

Lost—pair brown-rimmed glasses, contact Bill Marks, 129 Ehringhaus.

Lost—heavy white carcoat with hood, 2 books—Guide to Washington, D. C. and French Made Simple; contact Bill Amos, 423 Ehringhaus, reward.

Lost—pair of plastic black-rimmed glasses; contact Dane Fox. 968-9150.

SUNDAY

Hillel Brunch—12:30 p.m., Hillel House, Dr. Will Herberg, "What It Means to be a Jew."

Festival of Jewish Music — 4 p.m., East Duke Music Room at Duke, Julia Mueller, viola; Ruth Friedberg, piano; John Hanks, tenor; Isabel Samfield, soprano; Peter Hellman, flute; and Frank Bennett, percussion.

Canterbury — 6 p.m., Episcopal Church, "Death and Resurrection."

SP—7 p.m., 08 Peabody, panel discussion on women's rules.

Religion Lecture — 8 p.m., Hill Hall, Dr. Will Herberg, "Religions in America: Paradox and Problems," public is invited.

Jr. Class Girls' "Powder-puff Football" League — 2 p.m., Fetzer Field, discussion of rules, technique and possible scrimmage.

Westminster Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, worship, 6 p.m., supper; 6:45, program — "Death: the Medical and Philosophical View."

UP Convention—7 p.m., Carroll Hall, nominations for NSA, student body officers, student legislature, and senior class officers.

SPU — 1 p.m., upstairs Lenoir, subject: Socialism and the Peace Movement—Is there a Necessary Connection?

MONDAY

Religion 32A class—1 p.m., Murphey auditorium, Dr. Herberg, "Religious Group Conflict in America Today," public is welcome.

SP Advisory Board—4 p.m., RP I.

Order of the Old Lampshades— 4-5:30 p.m., parlor of Nurses' Dorm.

Symposium Related Discussion— 4:30 p.m., RP II.

Course Evaluation Comm.—4:30 p.m., Woodhouse, organizational meeting.

Jr. Class Finance Comm. — 5-6 p.m., Grail, to discuss powderpuff football game.

Newman Table—6 p.m., Lenoir, informal dinner.

Statistics Colloquium — 4 p.m., 265 Phillips, Prof. Bose will lecture.

YWCA — 3-5 p.m., today-Wed., Anne Queen's office, Y-Court, interviews for committee chairmen of YWCA.

CWC—6:30 p.m., Grail Room.

TUESDAY

WAA—5 p.m., Women's Gym, interviews for the office of WAA president.

Outdoor Play Tryouts Set For Today

Tryouts will be held today for parts in seven outdoor dramas coordinated by the UNC Institute of Outdoor Drama.

The tryouts will be held in the Forest Amphitheater from noon until 5 p.m. Call-backs for actors whom directors may want to hear for a second time will be held Sunday at noon.

Anyone 18 years of age or older may try out for parts in the productions. Auditioners are expected to be available for the entire outdoor drama summer season.

Representatives will audition all persons interested in serving as actors, singers, dancers, and technicians in the productions.

The seven productions to be represented at the auditions are: "The Lost Colony" by Paul Green and produced at Manteo, N. C.; "Unto These Hills" by Kermit Hunter, produced in Cherokee, N. C.; "Home is the Hunter" by Robert Emmett McDowell, produced at Harrodsburg, Ky.; "The Founders," a new production this year to be produced at Matoaka Lake Theater, Williamsburg, Va.; "The Stephen Fostery Story" by Green, produced at Bardstown, Ky.; and "Honey in the Rock" by Hunter, produced at Beckley, W. Va.

'J.B.' Extended Thru Tuesday

Foster Fitz-Simons and David Gullette appearing in the Carolina Playmakers' production of "J.B." The play has been extended to Tuesday. Tickets are already sold out for the extra presentation Monday and Tuesday is absolutely the last day the play will run.

Demonstrators Get Another Mistrial

By JEFFREY DICK

Judge Raymond B. Mallard declared the second mistrial within a week in Orange County Superior Court when a jury announced it was unable to agree on a verdict yesterday.

The declaration came when the jury was unable to reach a verdict in the trial of Dr. Peter Klopfer after eight hours of deliberation. The jury was split 10-2 in favor of conviction in the trial of the 32-year-old Duke University faculty member charged with trespass in a sit-in at Watt's Restaurant January 3.

The first mistrial was declared Monday in the case of Dr. William Wynn, UNC faculty member, charged with trespass during the same anti-segregation protest. The Wynn jury was out for 14 hours deadlocked at 11-1 before Mallard declared the case a mistrial.

The Klopfer case has been scheduled for retrial next week along with the second Wynn trial.

Of the four cases brought up for trial stemming from the same sit-in at Watt's restaurant, only one has reached a verdict. In that case, tried during the last regularly scheduled session of Superior Court, Dr. David Smith, another Duke professor, was found guilty of trespass and

(Continued on Page 3)

Army Tests Stump Champ Cassius X

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (CPI) — Cassius Clay emerged from his rematch with the Selective Service system's aptitude test Friday smiling, but a bit nervous, and said "this was a little tougher than the last one."

Clay declined to guess how he made out on the test saying only "all right, I guess—I'll know when they call me."

He said he did have difficulty with the section of the test which involved matching up various shapes and symbols.

His remarks came after he emerged from Nicholas General Hospital here where Selective Service tests are given as part of the Army induction of personnel by local draft boards. The test given Clay was not an intelligence test, but rather one which is designed to reveal the aptitude of men entering the Army.

Results of the test were to be sent to National Selective Service headquarters in Washington for processing and results then to be returned to the local board.

It is expected to take about four weeks before the results are made known, normally the test results would go to a state headquarters

(Continued on Page 3)

Soviets Still Hold American Fliers; May Be Tried In Communist Court

BERLIN (UPI) — Soviet authorities are holding three U.S. airmen shot down by a Russian fighter and the Americans may be tried in a Communist court, an East German foreign ministry spokesmen said today.

The spokesman told United Press International the Russians are now investigating the airmen's "personal responsibility" for what the Soviets call their spy flight.

A trial may result, he said.

The United States had denied strongly the Soviet "spy-plane" charge.

The spokesman said it was "unlikely" the three U.S. Air Force officers will be tried by an East German court. He said it has not yet been determined whether the Soviets have a "legal basis" on which to try the Americans.

"In order to file charges, one must have evidence," he said.

Auction Scheduled For Memorial Hall

Wanna buy the goal post from the '63 Duke-Carolina game? Twenty-five passes to the Carolina Theater? A twenty-piece set of china?

These are a few of the hundreds of items which will go on sale at the annual Campus Chest Auction to be held Tuesday night in Memorial Hall.

Donations for the sale were made by residence halls, sororities, fraternities and numerous merchants from the Chapel Hill area.

Some more of the notable items to be sold will be a 21-inch television set, a gift certificate for a portrait photograph, a champagne-steak dinner and a set of luggage.

Two auctioneers, one of them Kemp the record man, will conduct proceedings.

Proceeds will go to five charities: The World University Service; The American Friends Committee; The O'Berry School for Retarded Children; the Murdock School for Retarded Children; the World Clothing Fund.

Campus Chest officials hope that many students attend the auction with as much money as they can muster.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Volume 72, Number 117 — Saturday, March 14, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Granite State's Political Quarry

Before all the political pundits (that is all the professional ones) really get rolling on their analyses of the New Hampshire primary, we thought we would jump in first with our own analysis. Of course many of the obvious effects of the outcome have already been stated, but some have not.

First, it is plain that the election was a disaster for Sen. Goldwater. He went into the primary as a 5 to 1 favorite, and came out an extremely poor second to a write-in candidate who didn't even set foot in the state during the campaign. Before the election, Goldwater's campaign manager said that if Goldwater got 40% of the votes or more it would be a resounding victory; if he got 35%, it would be a satisfying win; and if he got less than 25% of the total votes, it would be a disaster. The Senator polled about 18% and so it is more than safe to assume that he suffered something akin to political devastation.

There is little doubt that Goldwater will do better when he gets West of the Mississippi or South of the Monongahela, but it is quite doubtful that he will do well enough to pull his nomination hopes out of the fire.

Henry Cabot Lodge came out the big winner in the primary, but it is hardly likely that his chances for the nomination are significant at this point. In the first place, Lodge is what can be called a favorite-son-in-law in New Hampshire. The Lodge name is, and has been since colonial days, something with which one does not trifle in Massachusetts. The reputation and good offices of the Lodge family have much appeal throughout New England, and so it is difficult, even bordering on the impossible, to say that this is the beginning of a grass-roots movement that will spread nationwide.

There are however several interesting things about his victory. The votes Lodge collected would seem to be more in the line of black-balls for the other candidates than postive approvals of Ambassador Lodge. During the campaign, much was said by acute political observers to the effect that this was one of the least issue-oriented campaigns they could remember. Most of these observers thought the level of the campaign was downright insulting to voters of New Hampshire since the candidates than positive approvals of a steady diet of sacharine-coated pap.

This may be the case in so far as it deals with Gov. Rockefeller, but we doubt it applies to Sen. Goldwater. Rockefeller took very few stands on controversial issues, but he did force Goldwater into pronouncements on the United Nations, Social Security and several others. Goldwater shot from the hip on some of these, as is his habit, but he also had to contradict himself once or twice, and severely modify his previous stands on most of the others. Needless to say, his stands were not popular.

It also seems needless to say that Rockefeller didn't do his chances any good by his showing, and so the question is, who did? It could only be that slightly battered but still unbowed Mr. Nixon. He took little interest in the primary, did not campaign and did not profess to be a candidate, and yet he ran a very healthy fourth behind the three front runners. Scranton and Romney played the game like Nixon did, but their showings were far from what avowed non-candidates need to influence the party leaders.

All in all nobody really gained except Nixon, and nobody was really surprised that it happened that way. Maybe the Oregon and California primaries will be more enlightening, and it will certainly be interesting to see how Lodge does in those. If he is to be a serious contender he must come home. There would seem to be a little incongruity in the Ambassador to Viet Nam running for the presidency against the man who appointed him when the major issue will likely be Viet Nam.

It should be an interesting spring.

The News Decides To Face The Issues

The News of Orange County

If there are yet any Rip Van Winkles in Orange County who feel that Chapel Hill's problems of racial discrimination will be resolved by the courts they had as well dispel their fancies, for their own good, as soon as possible.

The idea seems to linger in some quarters that the protest movement for the elimination of discrimination will end with the rendering of court verdicts and assuming that such verdicts happen to be convictions.

This entire stand-pat philosophy is not only imaginary, but un-Christian and mis-leading to those who may in their mis-guided consideration tenaciously hold to it. However much any citizen may disagree with the methods and time-tables of militant integrationists, the unjustifiable facts of racial discrimination continue to linger here and elsewhere in the world. And so long as this situation holds, the aggravation and wrong of it will only increase in the minds of its victims and in proportion to the moral justice that should be expected in this nominally civilized age.

Disdain 'more time' . . .

Those who disdain the plea for "more time" in eliminating racial discrimination have a realistic basis for their feeling when they cite a century of waiting, notwithstanding the great progress in human relations that has been made in this period. They have a realistic basis for their feeling because they can still see and point to the facts of pure racially-based discrimination in every day activities all around them.

The businessman, private citizen, or public official who assumes that the movement for civil rights will die down if the court hands down a few stiff verdicts, or if people just don't talk about it and newspapers stop writing about it is not doing any particular injustice to the movement—but he is misleading his own potential good common sense.

Progress under pressure hard . . .

It is indeed difficult to make progress for the elimination of discrimination in times when tempers are strained, pressure is high, and positions are polarized. When the pressure is off the natural selfish penchant of humanity in general doesn't stimulate man to greater generosity toward his fellow man.

This situation is not simply applicable to Chapel Hill and Orange County, but to every community and state in this country, and also the world.

The sooner that we face the issue of racial discrimination and take steps to eliminate it on our own initiative, the sooner we will put the unpleasantness of the protest movement behind us.

Editors' Note: Since Roland Giduz is editor of The News of Orange County, and the last paragraph of the editorial above undoubtedly represents his personal sentiments, as well as the editorial policy of The News, we fully expect Mr. Giduz in his capacity as an Alderman to do an immediate about-face and vote FOR a Chapel Hill Public Accommodations law next time it comes before the Town Board.

Furthermore, we fully expect Mr. Giduz, himself, to revive the Town's proposed Public Accommodations law at the earliest possible opportunity.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists:
Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Letters To The Editors

Doors, AAUP, And Lower Quad 'Saviors'

Those Doors, Those Doors

Editors, The Tar Heel:

When will this heinous movement have its end? We were first deprived of the doors on the rest rooms in Wilson Library; now the sacred doors of the library itself have disappeared, no doubt stolen by the same dastards who have previously removed doors. There is now only one entrance through the portico of the Wilson Library. This is undoubtedly contrary to fire regulations and the plywood panels are certainly not the aesthetic equal to the handsome portals previously there. Rise up against the pernicious threat of the door-thefts. Unite to stop this desecration!

Richard Bynum-Parsons III
505 Ehringhaus

Freedom To Do Nothing?

Editors, The Tar Heel:

The recent actions of the AAUP have prompted me to make a few comments on the role of the professor in the university community. According to the DTH, at the last meeting of the AAUP five per cent of its members were present. I do not believe that this speaks well of our faculty. This ridiculously low figure leads to several comments.

The AAUP and its members will scream to high heaven at the first hint of infringement upon their "Academic Freedom." One sometimes gains the impression that academic freedom is the only issue that is relevant to the life of university professors. If this issue is so important, let us take a look at its meaning.

As far as I can tell, no one has ever successfuly defined just what academic freedom really means. However, if one were to look at the professors at UNC, one of the elements of this definition becomes clear. Academic freedom means the freedom to do nothing except sit on their academic equipment. I have been taught by innumerable teachers that freedom carries responsibility with it, responsibility which must be assumed if the freedom is to be meaningful. I fail to see the AAUP members accepting much of this responsibility.

Nevertheless, the professors have their freedom to pursue that most arid form of life—that of pure intellectualism—a mode of life divorced from any concrete action. This failure to engage in action is legitimatized in several ways.

One of the typical ones is to assert that the situation needs more study. I have not checked, but I would imagine that the average member of the AAUP has been here for at least two years. That they have been here that long and still need more time certainly does not speak well for the powers of observation of our faculty.

Another means of legitimatizing their lack of inaction is to assert that they, as intellectuals, are engaged in value-free research or in non-normative scholarly work and thus can not bother to express themselves on community situations or to act in such situations. This is literally academic gobbledygook. For the intellect to remain potent it can not be separated from the mainstream of life.

This "ivory tower" approach denies the students examples of leadership, both moral and intellectual. It denies the students intellectually because students fail to hear any intelligent dialogue. I am biased in that I am a liberal. However I would like to hear the other side. An articulate and intelligent conservative is a frightening thing to many liberals because he can muster some good arguments and thereby force the liberal to re-evaluate his own position. This stimulation is needed on the college campus to invigorate the students. Professors complain about student apathy. Student apathy usually runs in a direct relationship to the watered-down bunk they are fed in the classroom. Perhaps if students were given something to think about rather than to memorize, they might show more interest.

The students are also robbed in a moral sense. They are denied the example of an intelligent human being acting on the basis of intelligent view of the situation. They are denied the vision of the intellect and the moral sense fused into action.

The end result of these denials is a loss of respect and interest in things intellectual. The intellect seems to have become divorced from the problems of existence. I am not saying that all should be of the "how to do it" nature, but rather that the intellectuals should use their skills in examining the conditions of existence and in developing modes of action, be they liberal or conservative. The students need examples of such activity but so far they have been denied them except in th case of a very few professors.

Gary Walker
Grad. Student
Miller Hall

The Greatest? It's Poison Ivy

Editors, The Tar Heel:

What's all this talk about America America being the greatest? Only Cassius Clay is The Greatest—any fool knows that! The DTH critic made its faults plain when he said it was a series of episodes, unskillfully selected to the point that some of them are dragged out and boring. The movie itself was too long; most people I know would not watch a basketball game that long—even if Billy Cunningham, who may well be GREATER than Cassius Clay, was playing. Now that I've taken a crack at the current Chapel Hill movie attraction, I want to make my own nomination for the oscar. It is a movie that has not come to Chapel Hill yet. Time magazine has not reviewed it. Flying to Washington three days ago to take care of a small business matter, I needed some recreation, so I stopped in for a matinee showing in one of the theaters. "Grape Vines and Poison Ivy" was not what I expected it to be, for the advertisement was taken up with a picture of a hit chick . . . . hTis naturally attracted me, as it would anyone who understands our natural urges. After insisting that in Chapel Hill we get in the movies for $.85, I paid my regretted prive and went in.

The movie is about a university town, much like Chapel Hill. It is a peaceful place where professors' wives take their babies . . . to walk on Supnday afternoons.

No one realizes that within a matter of days the whole town will be undermined—not by unbelievable martians or Muscotives with spears and knives—but by its own people, its students and its professors. The grape vine is one of the most cruel and slanderous gossip lines ever written about. It begins with one person or two, who have sour grapes to eat, except instead of eating them and licking their chops, they spit them in other people's faces. The urge to gossip spreads in a slow creeping hypnotism like poison ivy, covering first this one and that. As each man is touched by the ivy, he is willing to gossip. The cause and effect motivation is entirely convincing. The university town, Crolla, harbors several houses of prostitution. About the middle of the movie, I saw the hot chick again . . .

In the daytime she was Stella Co-ed, sweet secretary to be. Her professor, fool that he was, thought a whole semester that he was only teaching her how to take dictation. A small boy in the community who sees a couple in a car in a parking lot pour magic VIGRO around the ivy plant. The next day the plant gets so big that it begins dragging the whole town down with it. No one remains spotless in the end. Stella hardly survives at all. A group of her sorority sisters are involved in drug experimentation. They claim that by taking a spoonful of ——— (which I will not mention here) each day, they can experience sex on the level of goddesses. The ——— reputedly magnifies mind images to double sizes. I am convinced that when UNC sees this movie, they will forget America America.

(Ed. Note: Portionus of the above letter were eliminated because they were in exrtmely poor taste.)

Duc Griffin
Ehringhaus Hall

Shame Is Its Only Emotion

Editors The Tar Heel:

I have read the Daily Tar Heel. The only emotion it earns after six months is shame. The Carolina students have fallen with an astigmatism affecting the grasp of real values. Time must be devoted to outdoing the next man. The old cliche, as it is currently defined—love and understanding—is either scoffed at or bellowed into fathomless dimensions, distorted by cries of racial inequality and immediate "regrooming" of the southern mind.

It is time we focused directly and envelopingly upon the human brain. The people of foreign nations have neither time nor means for analysis as we have and should not be expected to grasp and overlook one's life if "oppression" does not cease. We are the ones who are leading our country out of its proper perspective. Everyone must stop and think of the macroocsm as a not so simple tool of each man's whims and hews to be blasted and threatened in the face of so complex a convocation of words as are sprayed upon the pages of this bigoted newspaper by blind children.

David Kiser
Phi Gamma Delta House

'Saviors' Of Lower Quad

Editors, The Tar Heel:

I would like to raise a question concerning that all-inclusive, omnipotent, protectorate pillar of strength known as the Head Resident Advisor. Is it that he, who stands so steadfast, protecting us from the gross iniquities of immaturity, has the undisputed right to exert his infinite power in any rude and uninvited manner in which he pleases?

Somehow, when I look at the sterling example set forth by some of those undaunted "Saviors" of the Lower Quad (especially Lewis Dorm), I can't help but feel that the situation is hopeless. I do not object to being questioned in a courteous manner by someone who is polite enough to knock before entering someone else's room. I do object to receiving the first degree by one who bursts into my room like Gang Busters. Evidently Mr. Reese has forgotten that he is still in law school and is not the prosecuting attorney of The Perry Mason Show, Mickey Mouse Show, or whatever it is that he spends his time watching. With the "Omnipotent One's" harsh insinuation that I prove that I had not thrown a firecracker out the window (at the alleged time of the bombing, the room was locked and empty), I began to wonder if Mr. Reese was doing well in his studies, for I had always been of the opinion that it was up to the plaintive to prove the guilt of the defendant and not the innocent to always prove their innocence.

It is not so much the fact that Mr. Reese was mistaken in his accusation that annoys me, but rather his attitude and his failure to apologize either for the intrusion or the misaccusation.

There's no excuse for not being polite and courteous, escially when one is an UNINVITED and intruding visitor! Perhaps our "more mature advisors" would get better results if they themselves set a better example of refinement and MANNERS!!!!

Sincerely,
Robert Allan Freeman
319 Lewis

Heelprints

Everyone should have known how the New Hampshire primary would turn out. After all, it was the only Lodge-ical way.

* * *

The Charlotte Observer notes that it's a great year. A space man is running for senator, a woman is running for president — and, miracle of miracles, goldwater is running uphill.

* * *

Then there's the Coach Skakle doll—you wind it up and it's optimistic.

Planely, something will have to be done about our bombers and the borders.

* * *

Definition: Flattery—the art of telling people what they already think of themselves.

* * *

We realize that the mess on Cameron Avenue wasn't created by an act of God, but somebody ought to tell the University that He doesn't intend to fix it, either.

* * *

Simile: as careful as a campus politician in the last two weeks.

"Hi, Coach!"

RFK Gains Stature In Nation's Eyes

By HENRY McINNIS

Jacqueline Kennedy has been given the deep respect and high admiration she so richly deserves and we should continue to remember her this way.

There is someone else who showed his strong mettle in the days following the assassination and it was partly through his strength that Mrs. Kennedy held on so magnificently.

He was responsible for getting John Kennedy elected, more so than any one man and he was never anywhere else but at the late president's side.

He has been described as ruthless and lacking in human warmth, yet it was he whom the warm and radiant Jacqueline sought out in her despair. As much as he has gone through in personal remorse, he has been remarkably subdued.

He has been accused of sticking pins into his enemies but he kept his bitterness and grief to himself when the greatest of all enemies struck.

This man seemed far more destined than John Kennedy to meet violent death because of his position. He may yet suffer some unknowable tragedy. It will be unspeakable if he ever should.

He has been accused of using people for his own political ends, yet his one mission is to bring justice to the people who have themselves been used.

He could have remained comfortable, sleek and fat but instead, he is out on a limb, exposed to festering hatred and ridicule. He has added worn lines to his ruggedly handsome face trying to help so many others erase the lines that separate them from the mainstream of their American heritage.

He has been in the rarified and heady climes of presidential power and glory, but he was instrumental in helping the President effectively use that power to get the urgent business of the nation before the people.

The President and this man were always acting in terms of the long-range interests of the nation but in doing this, they were accused of a massive grab for power.

There must be inside this 38-year-old man the depths of despair. It shows in his eyes, though the nightmare is three months old. The meaningless end of a beautiful, blinding dream came suddenly in Dallas.

He has been widely photographed recently on his diplomatic mission representing President Johnson in Asian trouble spots. He quietly carries himself as if little had happened to him, but his eyes tell a different story.

President Johnson may want him as his running mate in November. If he gets the vice-presidential nomination, the country will have a singular opportunity to retain the Kennedy contribution and give it continuity from one brother to the other.

It would be an indication that the nation appreciates the tested abilities of Robert Kennedy.

The Chapel Hill Jail: Gloom

Ed. Note: Karen Parker is a junior in the UNC School of Journalism from Winston-Salem, N. C. On December 14, 1963, she was one of the first persons arrested following the renewal of civil rights demonstrations in Chapel Hill. She describes her stay in the local jail in this article. Karen has been arrested on other occasions, and her case is one of many currently before the Federal District Court in Greensboro.

By KAREN PARKER

"Full name, address, age, height, weight . . ."

"Karen Lynn Parker, University of North Carolina, 19, 5 feet 3 inches, 110 pounds, dark brown hair, brown eyes."

A detective fingerprinted me while a younger policeman asked me questions. I was being booked for trespassing and resisting arrest in a Chapel Hill sit-in demonstration.

They took me to the cell occupied by Rosemary Ezra. I was surprised they didn't segregate me from a white girl like Rosemary. It was a single cell about 8 by 15 feet. The walls and floor were a sickening grey. There was a dirty basin and a commode in the left corner—and no toilet tissue.

"Well, I'm finally in jail," I said. "I really don't like this place."

"This is a nice jail," Rosemary said. "In Durham we didn't have mattresses, just slats."

Rosemary had been arrested in civil rights demonstrations in Durham, Martinsville, Va., and Washington, D. C. She described each jail in detail.

I still didn't like it. This was the first jail I'd been in and I thought it was miserable. What would my parents do if they knew I was in jail? I didn't tell them because I knew they would only worry. Of course they would understand why I went to jail, but they would worry about my standing with the University. Now I had a jail record! It might hurt my chances of getting a job. But I was making a "personal sacrifice", as John Dunne, the white co-chairman of CORE had called it.

"You know any games we can play?" Rosemary asked.

"One or two I used to play with my little brother," I answered.

"Let's do something to keep from getting bored," she said.

"Let's save the games for later," I suggested. "We'll be in here a while."

We yelled over to James Foushee, the third person in the sit-in. He was alone in a large cell block across from us. We were the only people in the jail. I'd always thought all jails were filled on weekends.

James, a Negro and a native of Chapel Hill, started singing freedom songs in his deep baritone voice. We couldn't hear well enough to sing along with him, but we started singing too. "The truth will make us free . . . we are not afraid . . . God is on our side . . . we shall overcome some day . . ."

The freedom songs didn't lift my spirits like they did in CORE meetings. I didn't like being in jail and I wanted to be bailed out. We were to stay there without bail and we didn't know how long. Our hope was to fill the jails so they would have to release us all. I couldn't chicken out.

I paced around the cell. There was a window and we hadn't noticed it. I grabbed the heating pipes that ran across the ceiling and swung myself on the sill.

"It's on the street," I shouted.

Rosemary crawled up on the sill. "This is wonderful," she said. "We can talk to people on the street and we can hear the group when they come to sing to us."

I felt much better. I never liked being shut up, not even in the school infirmary.

The wind was cold but we sat there anyway. We watched cars go by and we watched the traffic lights change — green, yellow, red, green yellow . . . No one had come to sing to us. Why hadn't anyone tried to see us? Hadn't my friends heard I was in jail?

I was getting bored again when Rosemary thought of a game. We tried to think of all the towns in North Carolina that ended in "boro". We came up with 18 "boros", then 11 "tons" and 16 "villes."

Rosemary decided we could redecorate the cell. We agreed on rose walls with rose and white print wallpapers on the larger wall. We couldn't agree on the furniture. I was tired of thinking anyway.

"You know, we didn't name Hillsboro," Rosemary said.

"How in the hell could we forget Hillsboro," I said. "By the way, are they going to move us to Hillsboro? I'm tired of this place."

"You don't want to go to Hillsboro," Rosemary said. "The jail is bad. They feed you in ice trays and the bottoms of plastic Joy bottles, and they have roaches."

"It will be a change of scenery," I said. "We'll get a 13-mile ride and we can kill roaches to keep from getting bored."

A policeman came in and gave us bags, each with two hot dogs.

"I'm not going to eat," Rosemary said. We went to Leo's to eat, so I'm going on a hunger strike. You can eat if you want to."

"We'll all eat or we all won't," I said.

"Don't do it if you don't have the conviction," she said. "I feel so strongly about this I don't want to eat."

I was hungry and the hot dogs looked good. Later I found out the police purchased jail food regularly from Leo's.

We told James we were hunger-striking and pushed the bags outside the cell.

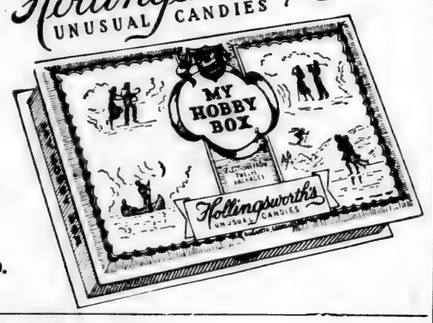
We went back to the window. A Negro man came by. "What are you doing in there?" he asked. We told him we were the first of a new wave of sit-ins. He asked if he could call anyone or do anything for us. We asked him to spread the word around the community and we asked the time. It was 8:30. We had been in jail four hours and no one had come to see us.

A few minutes later the chief of police brought a note addressed to the three of us. It was from six friends in the Journalism School and read, "We thought you were in the county jail in Hillsboro and went over there. Behave youselves and don't make the police angry. Keep your chins up and hurry up and get out of there." Two of them added a p. s.—"We'll be in there with you tomorrow."

The Press Club-Sigma Delta Chi party was that night. What was I doing in jail? I'd been looking forward to that party for a month. I could be having a grand time. All the Journalism School would be there. I could be having fun instead of sitting in jail.

I tried to stop thinking about the party. I was lucky to be a student with a little time to spare. I'd miss a few classes but I could catch up. I didn't have a job to lose or a family to support. This was not for me, it was for the Cause. It was for many others who couldn't afford to go to jail.

FOR EASTER GIVE Hollingsworth's UNUSUAL CANDIES



MY HOBBY BOX
ONLY $2.00 PER LB.

PEANUTS

Enjoy the Finest Seafood
TIP TOP FISH HOUSE
Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West
Durham Tel. 286-4494

C.W. POST COLLEGE
OF LONG ISLAND UNIVERSITY
Salutes the World's Fair with TWO 5-WEEK SUMMER SESSIONS

Enjoy a profitable summer of study and recreation at the 141-acre campus of C. W. Post College, located on the North Shore of Long Island, only 30 minutes from the World's Fair, one hour from Midtown Manhattan. On-campus facilities include: swimming, gymnasium, riding, bowling, theatre and concerts.

APPLICATIONS NOW BEING ACCEPTED for DAY & EVENING SESSIONS
JUNE 22 to JULY 24 ★ JULY 27 to AUGUST 28

NEW MEN'S and WOMEN'S RESIDENCE HALLS AVAILABLE

ACCELERATE YOUR DEGREE PROGRAM
UNDERGRADUATE COURSE offerings include studies in Liberal Arts and Sciences, Pre-Professional, Pre-Engineering, Business and Education.

GRADUATE COURSE offerings include studies in Biological Sciences, Education, English, Guidance and Counseling, History, Library Science, Mathematics, Music Education and Political Science.

DISTINGUISHED VISITING AND RESIDENT FACULTY
OUTSTANDING LIBRARY FACILITIES
APPLY NOW . . . Admission open to VISITING STUDENTS from other accredited colleges.
For additional information, summer bulletin and application, phone 516 MAyfair 6-1200 or mail coupon

Dean of Summer School, C. W. Post College, P.O., Greenvale, L.I., N.Y. 11548
Please send me Summer Sessions information bulletin. CP
☐ Women's Residence Hall ☐ Men's Residence Hall
☐ Undergraduate ☐ Graduate ☐ Day ☐ Evening
Name.....
Address.....
City.....State.....
If visiting student, from which college?.....

— Laws —

(Continued from Page 1)

ported its plans for a contribution drive for a school lunch program in Chapel Hill, aid to retarded children, and cooperation for a state youth program similar to the Peace Corps.

The committee has called for volunteers to aid in transporting surplus goods from Hillsboro to needy families in Chapel Hill several times weekly.

Art, Music, History, Fiction and more . . . on the bargain table
(Most at half-price or less!)
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 p.m.

Varsity
NOW SHOWING
Just the MAGIC and just for FUN!

WALT DISNEY'S
NEWEST AND MOST HILARIOUS ALL-CARTOON FEATURE
The Sword in the Stone
TECHNICOLOR®
Released by BUENA VISTA Distribution Co., Inc.
©1963 Walt Disney Productions

Savages Attack

LIMA, Peru (UPI)—Thousands of savage Cuquima tribe Indians, fighting with poison-tipped arrows, have trapped a 20-man government patrol in the wilds of Peru's Amazon jungle frontier with Brazil, the government disclosed Friday.

An official statement said U.S.-made B-26 bombers and Sabrejet fighters were rocket - bombing and strafing the jungles around the patrol's position pilots reported they could not see the attackers.

Other planes dropped food and arms and ammunition to the patrol, estimated the attack force at 8,000. In addition to thousands of savages, it included smugglers armed with rifles and fugitives from justice.

The government sent a relief column of troops by river from Iquitos, Amazon river port, and by forced march through the jungles from the tiny village of Requena, about 75 miles from the Brazilian frontier.

Delayed press dispatches from the area estimated battle casualties between 11 and 33 persons. The reports said at least one patrol member had been killed and two wounded.

The patrol, composed of troops and police, was ambushed while mapping a route through the jungles to intercept smugglers. Peru and Brazil have suffered heavily from contraband brought through the Amazon jungles.

20-Man Patrol

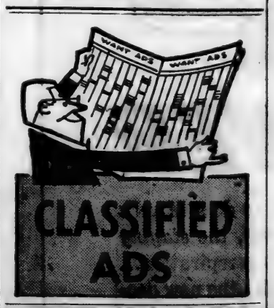
Bob's on the road to paternity!
Bob Hope
and The Global Girls in "A Global Affair" from M-G-M
NOW PLAYING
Carolina



CLASSIFIED ADS

For Sale

1960 VW, 2 DR. SEDAN, COLOR black, approximately 40,000 miles. Original owner. Phone 968-1074.

— Hillsboro —

(Continued from Page 1)

sentenced to 60 days on the roads. The jury arrived at a guilty verdict after a ten-minute deliberation.

The fourth case to be tried, the third during the special session which began March 2, is the case of Dr. Robert Osborn. Osborn's trial is presently in progress and is expected to go to the jury Monday.

The special session was originally scheduled to help accommodate the load brought on by 932 civil rights cases growing out of intense racial demonstrations in Chapel Hill.

In a surprise move, attorneys for the defendants filed a petition with the clerk of the court on the opening day of the session demanding that the cases be transferred to a federal court. The petition charged "the defendants could not receive a fair trial in any court in the state of North Carolina."

Judge Mallard termed the petition a "false and scurrilous attack upon every court in North Carolina and upon the Supreme Court as well."

The petition is scheduled to be heard in the U. S. Middle District Court in Greensboro on Tuesday. Judge Edwin M. Stanley will decide whether to allow the petition or to remand the cases to Orange County Superior Court.

— Herberg —

(Continued from Page 1)

ington School of Psychiatry.

His two main fields are social research and theology, although his work reaches into many other areas of scholarship.

UNTIRING TWIRLER

Boston (UPI)—When the late umpire Big Bill Dineen was pitching for the Boston Red Socks in 1904, he worked 37 consecutive complete games and 337 successive innings without relief.

CORRECTION

The Daily Tar Heel regrets that it failed to make a mistake yesterday. This is not our usual policy, and we apologize to all those who may have been offended by this slight.

No CPU Sunday

The Carolina Political Union meeting scheduled for Sunday night has been cancelled due to the University Party nominating convention.

Gerry Hancock, CPU chairman, announced yesterday that there would be a regular meeting the follow Sunday. The Union will meet in the Grail Room at 8:30 p.m. to elect the remaining vacant offices, and at 9 p.m. a discussion session will be held.

Dr. Raymond Dawson of the Political Science Dept. will lead the discussion on the situation in Viet Nam.

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Fragment of earthen vessel
6. Penetrates, as a dagger
11. A hue
12. Exclamation of greeting: var.
13. Manila hemp
14. Girl's name
15. Craggy hill
16. Pocketbooks
18. A relative
19. Grave
22. Heb. letter
23. Milkfish
26. First sign of zodiac
28. Slayer of Goliath
30. Jellylike material
31. Public notice
33. Bristlelike organ
34. Boat
36. Grass-like floor covering
39. Spigot
42. Worship
43. Weird
45. Language of Ancient Rome
46. Evade
47. To pay for another's soda
48. Smooth and glossy

DOWN
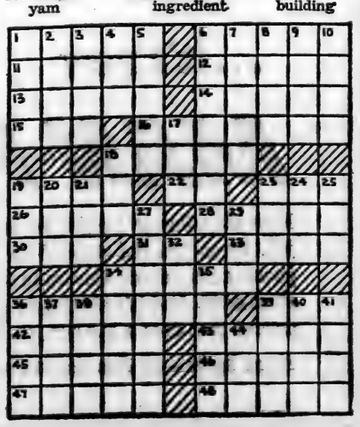
1. Begone!
2. Wandering workman
3. Like a wing
4. Fabulous bird
5. Pulled
6. Bombarded
7. A net-like fabric
8. German river
9. Internal decay of fruit
10. One's offspring: pl.
17. Exclamation
18. White yam
19. Children's game
20. Coin: Swed.
21. One thousand
23. Hail!
24. Humor
25. Girl's name
27. Leaping
29. Viper
32. ——— Quixote
34. Minute groove
35. S-shaped moldings
38. Beer ingredient
37. Jewish month
38. Carry
39. Real
40. Officer's assistant
41. Pry
44. Addition to a building



Yesterday's Answer

— Cassius X —

(Continued from Page 1)

but in a case of national importance, such as this, they are sent to Washington.

The heavyweight champion flies to Chicago Friday night to "talk to my leader" who is Elijah Muhammed, leader of the Black Muslim sect.

Asked about Malcolm X splitting off from the movement, Clay said "I was a Muslim four years before I met Malcolm X. I don't know if he was split off or not, I'll have to find out."

Malcolm X was a companion of Clay's in Florida before he won the heavyweight title last month from Sonny Liston.

Clay charged that many falsehoods have been spread about the Black Muslim movement and his connection with it. He said "they try to make us look bad, like the Ku Klux Klan or something. We hate nobody."

Sitton

(Continued from Page 1)

He said he has twice driven demonstrators to restaurants "for the purpose of their asking for service and refusing to leave if service was denied them.

"I agreed with it and I wilfully and knowingly assisted them in their act."

He said he also drove several demonstrators, including his wife, Sharon, a senior at Duke University, to the Pittsboro Road street sit-down several weeks ago.

SUCCESS

Success comes early to college women who supplement their education with Gibbs training—who obtain marketable skills that gain them quick entry into the fields of their choice.

SPECIAL COURSE FOR COLLEGE WOMEN—8½ MONTHS
Write College Dean for GIBBS GIRLS AT WORK
KATHARINE GIBBS
SECRETARIAL
BOSTON 16, MASS., 21 Marlborough Street
NEW YORK 17, N. Y., 200 Park Avenue
MONTCLAIR, N. J., 33 Plymouth Street
PROVIDENCE 6, R. I., 155 Angell Street

YWCA Elects Lewis Prexy

The YWCA Executive Board has been elected for the 1964-65 school year.

The new officers are Mary Linda Lewis, president; Rosanne Hollis, vice president; Mary Roper, secretary; Gwen Grice, treasurer; Dee Johnson, membership chairman; and Ellen Gilkeson, executive coordinator.

Interviews for committee committee chairmen will be held Monday through Wednesday from 3 to 5 p.m. Interested girls may get information concerning the positions and sign up for interviews in Anne Queen's office in Y-Court.

THE NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL Life Insurance Company
"Because there is a difference"
announces the appointment of
WILLIAM MILES BUELL
as SPECIAL AGENT
for
Chapel Hill and Vicinity
Tel. 942-6966

Only $5.98 - so, get several pairs!
FARAH MANUFACTURING CO., INC. EL PASO, TEXAS

ACC Meet At Woollen Gym

Terrapins Shoot For Ninth Straight Indoor Title Today

UNC High Hurdler Milt Bauguess In Action Today

By BILL LEE

Powerful Maryland will be gunning for its ninth straight indoor track title as the 1964 ACC Indoor Championships get under way this morning at ten o'clock in Woollen Gym and the Tin Can.

The shot put finals in both the varsity and freshman division will kick off the day's activities at 10:00 a.m., and the action will continue at a furious pace until the mile relay brings down the curtain at 10:10 p.m.

This year's meet, the eleventh annual, is dedicated to the late Dale Ranson, who was Mr. Track here at UNC until his death last fall. Ranson coached Carolina's indoor and outdoor teams for 12 years.

The Terps from College Park have been installed as heavy favorites for today's meet, which will feature the so-called field events early in the day and the running events in the evening. Last year Maryland won by 25½ points over second-place UNC.

Top challengers for the Terrapin monopoly this year are Carolina and Duke, who have acquired more depth, but are depending on weaker teams including South Carolina and Clemson to offset Maryland's depth.

Carolina has yet to be beaten in conference meets this season but have not met Maryland. So, even though the Terps are favored, the meet will be packed with new competition.

UNC Coach Joe Hilton expects the competition to be especially rough in the mile and the sprints. The conference has come up with some excellent milers including Art Maillett of UNC, Ramsey Thomas of Maryland, Al Rose, of South Carolina, George Flowers of Duke, and Dave Turner of Wake Forest. The mile finals are to be held at 8:25 tonight.

The sprint stars include Ronnie Jackson of UNC, and Mike Cole of Maryland who will be part of probably the most hotly contested spots of the meet.

Maryland comes up with a star in almost every event, but likewise, Hilton usually has someone to go up against him.

In the shot-put, the Terps claim Ernie Hearon and Walt Samora, but Hilton comes up with Bill Graham and Duke has Rod Stewart.

In the pole-vault, Maryland brings down Ed Bennett, but fighting him are Bill Busby, UNC, Julian Rainwater, Wake Forest, and Bill Jackson, Clemson.

Mike Cole is the Terps' meal-ticket in the broad-jump. He broke the conference record last week, but has to prove himself in competition before it's set down. Little opposition seems to be in his way of a first-place bid.

The Maryland hurdler is Bob Vermillion, who was last year's champ, but who meets competition from everywhere in the persons of Dale White and Milt Bauguess of UNC, and Bob Fogle of Duke.

Steve Lamb and John Prettyman who set the ACC mark this year at 1:12.5 are pretty fair Terp 600 runners, but Al Dobritch of UNC isn't exactly slow either.

The 880 also shapes up to be an exciting race with Prettyman of Maryland, Bob Bennett of UNC, and South Carolina's Bob Crombie, who comes up as a good bet to win.

Mike Folk, in his first race since early February, and Jerry Smith of UNC team up with Mel Woodcock of State, John Weisiger of Duke, and Ernie Drown of Clemson, to contest Mike George and Tom Krueger of Maryland in the 2-mile run.

The Carolina freshmen, undefeated in all competition this year, face the same problem of meeting Maryland as an unfamiliar team.

The strong frosh are led by Johnny Johnson in the pole-vault, Tilden Bridges in the high jump, Bo Wood in the shot, and Bob Ancarrow in the broad jump to take care of the field events.

Leaders in the short distances are John Levin in the 60, who has already surpassed the 6.4 freshman record, and George De Wolfe and Bob McLean in the hurdle events.

An outstanding frosh for Maryland has been high-jumper Frank Costello who has topped the bar at 6'7". The frosh meet record is 6'4¾" set by Tommy Clark in 1961.

Schedule Of Events For Today's Indoor Meet

All events will be held in Woollen Gym except those marked with an asterick (*) which will be held in Tin Can. v—varsity; f—freshman.

10:00—Shot put (v)
10:00—Broad jump (v-f)
11:30—Shot put (f)
1:00—High jump (f)
1:00—High jump (v)
2:00—600 run trials (v)
2:15—880 run trials (v-f)
3:15—High hurdles trials (v-f)
3:40—60 dash trials (v-f)
4:05—Low hurdles trials (v-f)
6:30—Pole vault warm-up (v)
7:00—Pole vault (v)
7:00—60 dash semis (v-f)
7:20—2-mile relay (v)
7:35—Mile run (f)
7:50—60 dash (v-f)
8:05—High hurdles semis (v-f)
8:25—Mile run (v)
8:35—600 run (v)
8:45—Flag Ceremonies
9:00—High hurdles (v-f)
9:15—Low hurdles semis (v-f)
9:30—2-mile run (v)
9:45—880-run (v-f)
10:00—Low hurdles (v-f)
10:10—Mile relay (v-f)

Harrison Merrill Kills Four Records With One Big Win

HANOVER, N. H. — North Carolina's All-American swimmer Harrison Merrill shattered four records here Thursday night while splashing to a first-place finish in the 500 freestyle with a time of 5:02.0.

The time toppled the Dartmouth College pool mark, the Eastern Championships record, and the ACC record and the UNC record. The latter two were held by Merrill.

The win pushed the Blue Dolphins into fourth place after the first day of the three-day Eastern Swimming Championships being held here. Merrill's performance, plus a third-place finish in the 400-yard medley relay by the UNC team of Thompson Mann, Rick Forum, Freddie Lipp and Davis Roberts, gives UNC a total of 15 points.

Yale practically sewed up the championship with a fantastic opening day performance. The Bulldogs piled up 46 points, and their closest competition came from Navy (18) and Army (17). Then came North Carolina.

Other strong teams are: Colgate (7½), Cornell (7), Villanova (7) and Princeton (7).

In placing third in the 400 medley relay, Carolina turned in a time of 3:41.8, a new school record. The old mark of 3:41.9 was set earlier this year by the same foursome.

North Carolina's big hopes for the remainder of the 30-team meet centered around backstroker Mann. Last night the Tar Heel All-American was to compete in the 200-yard backstroke, and was rated to finish second. Today it will be the 100-yard event, in which Mann holds the best time of all those competing.

Sports Shorts

Darnall Impressive In Practice

Bill Darnall, a 6-2, 185-pound sophomore from Arlington, Va., may be the man Jim Hickey is looking for to replace All-American end Bob Lacey.

Darnall, who was red-shirted last year, has been moved from the backfield to end, and has been impressive in the spring practice sessions.

"Darnall won't make as many spectacular catches as Lacey—few will," commented Hickey. "But he is extremely resourceful, quick and can run. He has good hands and catches the pass he is expected to catch.

Several freshmen are showing promise of great things to come. Hickey says he is immensely pleased with the performances of his two freshmen quarterbacks, Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver.

He said, "Talbott and Beaver give every indication they are of varsity caliber. In some spots, we're not as fortunate."

Two frosh backs who had given indication of prominence, Leon Fonvielle and Jim Fortune, have been sidelined with injuries. Tom Lampman, a 200-pound halfback from Lynchburg, Va., looks good as a ball carrier. Bo Wood, a 6-3, 200-pound end has also been impressive at a flanker spot.

Shaffer Joins Tennis Team

Charlie Shaffer, who has been resting his sprained ankle, will join the tennis team on Monday.

Shaffer, who was one of coach Don Skakle's "big five" last year, has just been ranked as the No. 14 tennis player in the South.

Skakle reports that his top three players, George Sokol, O. H. Parrish and Ted Hoehn have been hitting the ball real well but that the team won't begin their serious practice sessions until Monday.

Kruer Suffers Ankle Sprain

Injuries have plagued three of Coach Walt Rabb's key men in the early workouts.

First-string catcher Merle Kruer sprained his ankle severely while rounding first base and may be out for a couple of weeks.

Pitcher Spencer Willard and third baseman, co-captain Tom Wright have been bothered by sore arms. Wright hurt his shoulder in an intramural wrestling match and is having trouble making the long throws to first.

Spahn Admits It: Can't Throw Curve

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. —(UPI)—More and more amazing Warren Spahn revealed the best kept secret of his career Thursday—he doesn't have a curve ball.

Teammate Billy Hoeft is try-to teach him how to throw a curve here in the Milwaukee Braves' camp, which is a little like your brother-in-law trying to teach Hank Aaron how to hit, but Spahn is eager to pick one up.

"I don't have a curve ball and never did have one," admits the incredible southpaw who has been a 30-game winner 13 different times, is a cinch to wind up in baseball's Hall of Fame and will be 43 years old next month.

"During the past couple of years I've gotten by mainly on my screwball, my slider and control," he added. "I think a curve ball could help me now. That's why I'm trying to learn how to throw one from Hoeft."

Astonishing as it seems, Spahn has managed to win 350 games and possibly become the foremost left-handed pitcher in the history of baseball without owning a curve ball. That sounds utterly unbelievable but it is absolutely true. Spahn's fellow southpaw, Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers, is among those who can vouch for the fact first hand.

"Spahn told me he never could throw a curve ball at the All-Star Game in Cleveland last summer," Koufox said at the Dodgers' camp in nearby Vero Beach.

"He came up to me and asked me to show him how I hold and throw my curve ball.

Imagine him asking ME for help! It was the greatest thing that's ever happened to me since I've been in baseball."

Koufax, of course, showed Spahn, and Hoeft is doing so now.

Bryan, Mike, Charlie Will Play In Game

Carolina basketball stars Mike Cooke, Charlie Shaffer and Bryan McSweeney have accepted invitations to play in the annual Boys Home Invitational Basketball Game at High Point March 17.

The game pits the Senior All-Stars from the Carolinas Conference against the Senior All-Stars from the "Big Four" of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Tom Quinn, coach of High Point College's Carolinas Conference champs, has been named to coach his conference's seniors. The "Big Four" Coach is expected to be named within the next few days.

All profits from the game will go to the Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw.

The ACC Meets The NCAA

By DENNIS SANDERS

There's a basketball story to be told about the ACC, and now is a good time to tell it.

It started back in 1953, when the conference was formed. It's a long way from an ending.

The plot concerns loop teams' records in NCAA tournament play, but though there are eight teams in the conference only five have played roles in the NCAA productions.

Wake Forest was the ACC's first representative, dropping a second-round Eastern clash to Holy Cross in 1953. State went out in the same act the following year, when LaSalle pulled out an 88-81 win.

Duke made its first appearance in '55 and was promptly sent home when Villanova, the Blue Devils' first opponent in the 1964 show, came out on top by 74-73. In 1956, the Wolfpack returned to suffer a four-overtime, 79-78 loss to Canisius in the first round.

1957 was a golden year for ACC prestige. Carolina stormed to a 32-0 slate and scratched out a 54-53 triple-overtime wine over Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas in the national finals, to become the only conference team to bring home the coveted crown. Maryland made its appearance in '58, and became the only non-Big Four squad to participate, and the next year, Carolina returned to the stage to be ousted by Navy in the first game.

Duke dropped the regional finals in 1960, and Wake Forest, after dropping the regional finals in '61, defeated UCLA in the national consolation match. The Blue Devils came back in 1963 and finished as the No. 3 team nationally with an 85-63 romp over Oregon State turning the trick.

And now it's Duke again, trying to pad the ACC's overall 20-10 NCAA tournament record as the 26th annual championship raises the curtain around the country.

Wake Forest (7-3), Carolina (5-1), Duke (4-3), State (2-2) and Maryland (2-1) make up that 20-10 slate, which includes only those tourney games reeled off since 1953. In all NCAA play, the ACC ranks sixth with a 27-18 slate. Holding first place is the Missouri Valley Conference, with a 28-11 record in 12 appearances.

Lennie Rosenbluth was the leading tournament scorer in '57 with 140 points in five games for a 28.0 average. Another Lennie, this one of the Chappel variety, copped the same individual laurel in 1962 with a 26.8 average, garnered on 134 tallies in five contests. In 1963, Art Heyman was selected as the meet's most valuable player.

It's that time again, and Duke has the lead role. A four-game sweep to the title would vault the ACC's prestige sky-high, and it wouldn't hurt Duke's, either. The question is: do the Blue Devils have what it takes to earn the NCAA Academy Award? The answer is coming.

Top Seeded DePaul Meets NYU

NEW YORK (UPI) — Top-seeded DePaul, remembering its George Mikan glory days, returns Saturday to Madison Square Garden to meet New York University in a quarter-final round game of the National Invitation Tournament.

Second - seeded Bradley launches play in the quarter-final bracket when it engages St. Joseph's in the opening game of the doubleheader.

Another twinbill also is on tap for Saturday afternoon in the grand-daddy of all post-season college basketball tournaments. In opening round action, St. Bonaventure meets Army and Drake engages Pittsburgh.

In a tournament - opening doubleheader Thursday night, St. Joseph's whipped Miami of Florida, 86-76, and New York University eliminated Syracuse, 77-68.

For those younger fans who never had the opportunity to see the great Mikan play, DePaul proudly presents Dave Mills, whom it bills as a throw-back to the man once called "Mr. Basketball."

DePaul was something of a surprise this season, winning its first 13 games and finishing with a 21-3 record. Senior Emmette Bryant was the top scorer for the Blue Demons with an 18.3 record scoring average and Jesse Nash had a 17.6 average. Bryant is returning to action after missing 11 games with a leg injury.

RECORD WINS THE CUP

Gene Record, of Boston, Mass, captained the Carolina wrestling team last year. After graduation, he went into service and is now stationed in the Orient.

Dr. Sam Barnes, coach of the UNC grapplers, recently received a letter from Record. It said, in part:

"Up to a few days ago, I had been working hard in an office as executive officer and doing almost nothing. I heard our camp had a wrestling team and promptly investigated. It turned out that week was the regimental tournament. I wound up with a gigantic trophy for the 191-pound bracket."

Rocky Signs; Takes Four Thousand Cut

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rocky Colavito agreed to sign his $50,000 contract with the Kansas City Athletics Friday and cancelled his request for a $25,000 "trade insurance" clause, owner Charles O. Finley announced.

Colavito, taking a cut of $4,000 from his contract with Detroit last year, called Finley and said he would accept the offer.

Earlier the two had disagreed on Colavito's insistence that the contract contain a clause which would call for payment to him of $25,000 if he is sold or traded during the season. Finley said Colavito told him his Detroit contract included this stipulation.

"There are no hard feeling," Finley said. "I don't blame any player for trying to get the best contract possible."

Colavito told Finley he would leave Friday for the Bradenton, Fla., training camp, and that he had been working out at home for two weeks to get in better shape than he would have been had he been at camp.

In The

TEMPO ROOM

TODAY

THE SEVEN KEYS

In line with our current "Keep Chapel Hill Awash" campaign, we've brought the SEVEN KEYS back for a return engagement. Imbibe in time with the music from 3:30 to 6:00 today in the Neo-Tempo.

And watch for a strange new contest to be announced soon—another Tempo First

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

118

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather
Clearing and cold

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, MARCH 15, 1964 | United Press International Service

Defense Appeals

Ruby Found Guilty; Gets Death Penalty

By PRESTON McGRAW

DALLAS (UPI)—A jury Saturday convicted Jack Ruby of the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald and sentenced him to death in the electric chair.

Chief defense counsel Melvin Belli, his voice close to a shout, announced he would appeal and denounced the verdict as evidence that Dallas is "a little bit of Russia in the United States."

Ruby, nervous and tense throughout the four-week trial, remained passive as he heard Judge Joe B. Brown read the sentence passed to him by the jury.

A date for formal sentencing will be set later.

In dead stillness, Brown read the verdict reached by the eight men and four women after 2 hours and 24 minutes of deliberation: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of murder with malice . . . and assess him punishment at death."

The verdict in the deathly still courtroom was televised and broadcast nationally—as was the explosive moment of the shooting of Oswald last Nov. 24.

Belli Charges "Railroad"

Belli and his aides contend the jury had made its mind up before final arguments that stretched into early Saturday. Belli called it a "kangaroo railroad" by a "jury that was shoved down our throats."

"The greatest kangaroo railroading disgrace in the history of American law," said Belli.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade said he thought the "facts" fully warranted the death penalty. He said immediately after the handcuffed Oswald was shot to death that he would seek the death penalty.

Wade said it was a killing of "our government and law rather than men . . . Not Guilty would have put our civilization back to barbarianism."

In final arguments, he asked the jurors to show Ruby "the same compassion he showed Lee Harvey Oswald."

Wade added, in a news conference, "I am very well satisfied with it. I think it was a proper verdict. I didn't think acquittal or a term of years was the proper verdcit."

The defense based its entire case on Ruby's sanity.

"They didn't make a very good case of it and didn't ask for leniency or mercy," said Wade.

Asked what the significance of the quick verdict was, Wade said "I don't think it was significant of anything except that the jury had made up its mind by the evidence that he wasn't insane.

"The testimony that gave him the electric chair was officers' testimony showing premeditation," Wade said, "his slipping a loaded gun into the police station."

Ruby, who never took the stand in his own defense, was quoted by officers during and after the slaying of President Kennedy's accused assassin as saying:

"You rat son of a bitch, you killed the President! I hope I killed the son of a bitch! I meant to shoot him three times!"

A New Battle In An Old, Old War

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

When the 1963 General Assembly decided to rename State College, "North Carolina State of The University of North Carolina at Raleigh," it was thought that the matter was finished.

But the persistent efforts of M. Edmund Aycock, N.C. State Alumni president, has revived hopes that the name change might be brought before the General Assembly again in 1965.

The alumni fight seems to be gaining important ground with some of the people who count — the Board of Trustees and especially the Executive Committee of the Board.

Representatives of NC State Alumni Association met with the Executive Committee Friday in a closed-door session in Raleigh. Following the meeting, Aycock said the alumni got a "real good reception."

Archie Allen, trustee secretary, said "The Executive Committee apparently feels the present name" for NC State "leaves something to be desired."

Aycock and Charles Reynolds, chairman of the board of NC State Alumni Association were obviously pleased at the committees' reaction. But it is only the first step in what promises to be a long battle before any other action is taken on the name change proposal.

President Friday said yesterday that the next step would be another meeting of the Alumni with the Executive Committee.

"This meeting will be held sometime in April," Friday said. "In all probablity, the Executive Committee will make a full report to the Board on May 25 at its public meeting."

But even if the Alumni receive a favorable report from the Executive Committee and favorable action from the full Board, which many people consider doubtful, they still face the task of persuading many legislators to go along with their proposal of renaming NC State, "North Carolina State University."

A long wrangle developed over the name change when it was presented in the 1963 General Assembly. The present name for NC State was a compromise choice.

Another NC State Alumni proposal evidently isn't receiving much support from the trustees —changes in the composition of the trustees, which equally divide trustees among the three institutions comprising the Consolidated University.

The trustees currently represent the entire University, rather than any member institution.

The proposal relating to changes in the trustees was viewed in some quarters as an attempt to deconsolidate the University and set up North Carolina State as a completely separate institution.

However, Aycock recently said that this proposal has been misunderstood.

"There has not been and there is not now any movement underway nor any desire on the part of the alumni to deconsolidate this university system," he told the Executive Committee.

Aycock himself admits that the name change proposal stands a better chance of favorable consideration from the trustees than does the so-called "deconsolidation" proposal.

Aycock has repeatedly condended that the present name of NC State is "an impossible compromise name, one which is completely impractical in use and is embarrassing to the institution and which should be embarrassing to the Board of Trustees if continued."

Reynolds, who appeared with Aycock at the closed-door meeting said some of the trustees agree the present name of NC State is "impossible," but Aycock squelched further discussion of the point with the comment:

"I don't think we should discuss what the trustees said — I'd rather they spoke for themselves."

Spokesman Aycock said the "biggest worry" generated by the proposals was that separating the trustees into groups by institution would divide rather than consolidate the board.

"But this is not our intent," Aycock insisted. "We feel the proposal would strengthen the board."

The executive took no action on the proposals, "and we were

(Continued on Page 3)

Racial Plan On Agenda

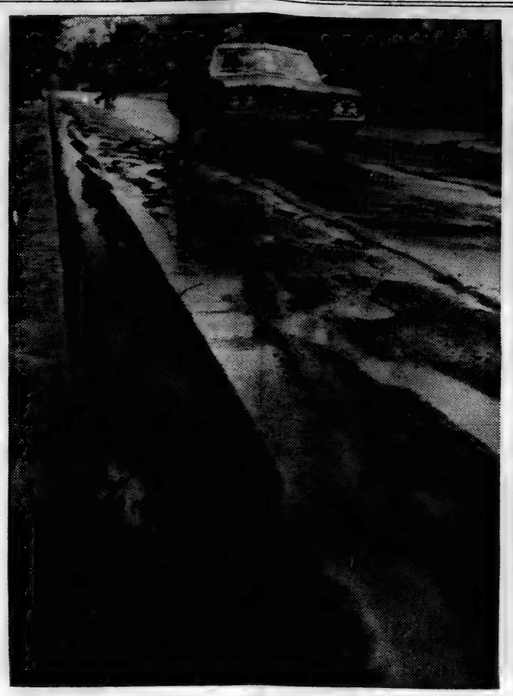
The Human Relations Committee will hear a progress report from its Adams Plan committee at its meeting Wednesday night at 8 in the Town Hall.

The Adams Plan, proposed some weeks ago by UNC philosophy professor E. Maynard Adams, would put a permanent agency in charge of local racial problems and efforts to improve

(Continued from Page 3)

SAM — Silent Sam, legendary campus guardian, stood facing North yesterday with of all things a string and cork hanging from the barrel of his trusty gun. —Photo by Jim Wallace



YECCCCCCCCH—Oil, water and mud combined yesterday to make Cameron Ave. a first class yecccch. The oil was poured to prevent dust, but yesterday's rain turned the whole thing into a gooey mess and more than one passerby was splashed by the slop. —Photo by Jim Wallace

Cameron Avenue Project Slowed

Dusty cars, bruised tires, oil-spattered raincoats. All these are likely to continue around Cameron Avenue for a while, according to University officials.

Grey Culbreth of the University engineering department said yesterday that the street was originally torn up so that new electrical lines could be installed.

"We put in nine four-inch ducts encased in concrete in order to increase the campus power from 2,300 volts to 7,200," he said. "This was necessary because our buildings and equipment are requiring more and more electricity and because some of the circuits were getting old."

As for the street repair now that the new power lines are in, Culbreth said the asphalt for the job was not available.

"We get the asphalt from a company in Durham," he said, "and it is open only in warm weather. We don't expect to get around to the paving until about the 26th of this month or later."

Giles Horney of the University maintenance department said the oil and tar put on the street late Friday was the first step toward preparing the street for paving.

"We also wanted to keep down the dust, too," he said.

The tar was diluted by Saturday's rainfall into a mixture that was splashed onto clothes by cars and made walking a hazard to footwear. Some drivers also complained that it was damaging to the finish on their cars.

J. A. Branch, business manager of the University, said the street would be repaired as soon as possible, and that he regretted the inconvenience caused by the repair (or lack of it).

Committee Progressing

The committee to select a new Chancellor met again yesterday and chm. William Medford reported that progress was still being made toward selection of a replacement for retiring William B. Aycock.

"We're still looking," was Medford's comment following the closed-door meeting. "There have been some 175 or 180 names submitted for our consideration, and we have to study each of them carefully."

An original target date of May 25 (when the full Board of Trustees meets) was set earlier for the presentation of the nomination of a new Chancellor by Consolidated University President William Friday.

"However," Medford continued, "we plan to take as much time as is needed. We hope to be able to present three names to President Friday for consideration before that date. But we will take as much time as is needed."

From the three names that the committee chooses, Friday will pick one and present it to the full Board of Trustees public meeting.

Ex-Govennor Here Tonight

Former Governor Bert T. Combs of Kentucky will speak on "Public Affairs and Newspapers" in 203 Howell Hall at 2 p.m. Monday.

Combs will be met by Governor Terry Sanford at the Raleigh-Durham Airport tonight and will ride with Sanford to the Carolina Inn, where Combs will stay.

Combs will be the guest of honor at a luncheon Monday at the Carolina Inn given by Dr. Norvail Neil Luxon, dean of the School of Journalism.

Sanford, an old friend of Combs,. recently spoke before a class seminar Combs teaches at the University of Massachusetts.

While Combs speaks in Chapel Hill, fellow Kentuckian Mark Ethridge, UNC Journalism School lecturer and chairman of the board of the Louisville Courier - Journal and Louisville Times, will speak before Combs' Massachusetts class.

Sanford's Wife Becomes Sister

Mrs. Margaret Knight Sanford, wife of North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, will be initiated into Chi Omega social sorority today.

A luncheon in Mrs. Sanford's honor will follow the special initiation.

Chapter officers conducting the initiation ceremony include Beverly Haynes, president; Maida Burch, vice-president; Gwenn Houck, secretary; Margaret Williams, treasurer; and Patsy Parker, pledge trainer.

Participating sorority advisers are Mrs. Guy B. Johnson and Mrs. James Mullen, both of Chapel Hill, and Mrs. Edwin S. Clasz of Asheville.

UP Will Convene

The University Party will hold its Spring nominating convention tonight in Carroll Hall at 7 o'clock.

Party chairman Jeff Adams said the convention will nominate Senior Class officers, four NSA delegates, and 50 seats in Student Legislature.

The convention will be run on a delegation system. Each delegation will have five votes for the first five UP members in its district and an additional vote for each 10 additional members in the district.

If all candidates are not selected on Sunday, there will be another convention on Monday to finish nominating the slate.

Singers Make Debut Tonite

UNC's Madrigal Singers make their debut this evening at 8:30 in Hill Hall.

The group of seven men and six women directed by Bill Bennett was formed last fall. Students, townspeople and a faculty member comprise the chorus.

The program will feature Vaughn William's "Serenade to Music," in which every singer has a solo.

Other selections include excerpts from Gluck's opera "Orpheus," Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," English folk songs, three Renaissance motets sung in Latin, and madrigals by Thomas Morley and John Farmer.

Accompanists are Mike Kelly, piano, and Mark Fountain, violin.

The performance is free to the public.

The Madrigal Singers will perform again on April 19 at the Baptist Church.

In Demonstration Cases

Attorneys Implicated In SBI Investigation

ITEMS

Co-Editor Will Star (?) Monday

How does today's college student stack up with those of previous years? How is he adjusting to the problems of the nuclear age, or do those problems concern him greatly?

These are among the questions a panel of three UNC professors will discuss on WUNC-TV's "Encounter" tomorrow evening.

Panelists include Raymond Dawson, political science; William Geer, history; and John Clayton, radio-television and motion pictures.

Guest moderator is Gary Blanchard, co-editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

The panelists also will consider changes within the ranks of professors and administrators.

Ambassador From Ceylon Visits

M.F. deF. Jayarantne, Ambassador the U.S. from Ceylon will be in Chapel Hill today to confer with representative faculty members and students.

The Ambassador will spend the day at the Carolina Inn en route to Florida. It is expected that UNC faculty and student body officials will arrange to speak with the Ambassador Sunday evening.

The trip was arranged by State Department officer Robert Caldwell, formerly of Chapel Hill.

Charlotte March Draws Over 500

CHARLOTTE N.C. (UPI) — More than 500 drenched Negro and white students braved a steady downpour yesterday and armed with a colorful array of umbrellas staged a mile-long march in support of the civil rights bill now before Congress.

About a dozen patrol cars, numerous foot patrolmen, Police Chief John Hord and City Manager William Veeder were on hand to see that the 4-block long procession went off without incident.

Observers described the march as the largest integrated demonstration of its kind ever to be staged in the Queen City, North Carolina's largest. Charlotte has been relatively free of any racial demonstrations in the past year and the few that have taken place have gone practically unnoticed.

Several passersby shouted catcalls at the sign-carrying demonstrators, which included students from nine Negro and white colleges, but no serious incidents occured.

The march began at Johnson C. Smith Negro University and ended about a mile away at the main post office, where representatives from each of the schools mailed a petition to President Johnson calling on him to support the bill "with every constitutional and personal power" at his disposal. A total of about 2,200 students had signed the petitions.

Joe Howell, 20, of Nashville, Tenn., a senior history major at Davidson College and coordinator of the march, termed the demonstration a "huge success-beyond our expectations" and emphasized it was not staged to protest any racial condition in Charlotte.

"It is to let the people know that there are people in the South of both races who believe very strongly in civil rights," he said prior to the march, "and believe that strong civil rights legislation is necessary in bringing this about."

There were Negro students from Johnson C. Smith and Livingston College and white students from Catawba, Queens women, Charlotte College, Pfeiffer, Lenoir Rhyne, Belmont Abbey and Davidson. There was a professor from Catawba and several from Davidson and Johnson C. Smith in the march.

Solicitor Declines Blanket Indictment Of 'Freedom' Group

By GARY BLANCHARD

A two-week investigation by State Bureau of Investigation (SBI) agents here has "raised a question" about the extent of involvement of some of the attorneys representing defendants in local sit-in cases, District Solicitor Thomas Cooper said yesterday.

Cooper indicated he was referring principally to Durham attorney Floyd B. McKissick, national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality and one of three attorneys representing the defendants. But Cooper declined to name names.

He indicated the "question" concerned the possibility that some of the attorneys may have had a hand in planning some of the numerous street demonstrations held here in the past several months.

McKissick is kown to have consulted with local integration leaders on several occasions and has spoken at rallies sponsored by local integrationists.

The other two defense attorneys are C. C. Malone of Durham and Moses Burt of Burlington. All three are Negroes.

In a telephone interview from his home in Burlington, Cooper said the essence of the SBI investigation concerns cases of "street-blocking, trespassing and the organization of deliberate violations of the law."

He said the two SBI agents conducting the investigation, Haywood Starling and Frank Satterfield, are also aiding him "in connection with the presentment given to me last week by the Orange County Grand Jury in Hillsboro," where several sit-in cases are being tried.

"The results of their investigation will determine whether a bill of indictment will be sent to the Grand Jury," he said, adding that the nature of the presentment cannot be revealed by law.

MOODY TO ASSIST

Cooper also disclosed that assistant state Atty. Gen. Ralph Moody will help him argue against removal of some 932 civil rights cases from Orange County Superior Court to Federal Court, when the motion is heard at Federal Court in Greensboro Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Defense attorneys have requested such removal on the grounds that their clients cannot get a fair trial in a state court.

SITTON LETTER

Cooper left open the possibility that he will reply to an open letter from UNC Philosophy Professor Robert Sitton, asking Cooper to clarify the meaning of "conspiracy" so Sitton can determine if he should give himself up for his indirect involvement in local demonstrations.

"My general inclination would be that I would not reply to an open letter of this type," he said. "But I may when I see it."

Generally-speaking, he said, driving demonstrators to a business to sit-in "might or might not be grounds for a conspiracy charge, depending upon the circumstances.

"I'd think there would have to be more than that involved to make someone liable for conspiracy.

"However," he said, "You don't have to directly participate in a violation of the law to be convicted of being a conspirator."

The conspiracy question has arisen as a result of six local integration leaders being charged with "inducing" a Duke University professor to violate the state trespass law by taking part in a demonstration at Watt's Grill January 3.

The six are to appear in Orange County Court on the charges tomorrow morning. They include UNC assistant psychology professor Al Amon and two UNC students, Ben Spaulding and Thomas Bynum.

NO MASS INDICTMENT

Cooper also said that he was "not under any circumstances considering the indictment of the entire Chapel Hill Freedom Committee," which has spearheaded recent integration efforts here.

"I would not indict anyone without feeling I had evidence against that particular person to convict him of the crime which I was charging him with in a bill of indictment," he said.

Author Bypasses Classic 'Hogwash'

By BOB O'STEEN

Poet, novelist, freelance writer Thad Stem Jr. spoke to the University Press Club last week, demonstrating the keen wit and sharp retorts for which he is noted throughout the State.

The North Carolina author, telling of his early days as a writer, said that on one of his first jobs (with the Florida Liberator) he so impressed the editor with his knowledge of poetry and the classics "that the editor right away put me to work selling ads."

He said he then sold his first ad to a saloon proprietor by promising to drink up the cost of the ad.

Mr. Stem said that at first, like the poet Yeats, he wrote only 12 lines per day until he got married and had to get serious. Now he writes 15,000 words a week and has sold more than 8,000 pieces.

Speaking of writers in general, he said most are petty and not too smart. "They are about as intelligent as Bible or used-car salesman."

Author of "The Perennial Almanac" and five other books, Mr. Stem said when he was in high school he was ashamed of being unable to understand classics by Carlyle and Henry James and others of that ilk. "Now," he said, "I'd as soon jump off Morehead Planetarium as to launch into reading such pretentious hogwash."

He told of a newspaper article he once wrote which wasn't printed after being bought, but said, "I didn't mind. As long as they paid me for it they could use it for Kleenex."

He said he re-submitted the same article the following year and it was published and reprinted 37 times.

Mr. Stem advised young writers never to throw unused writing away. As an example he told of when he used to cover University football games for the New York Sun "for $11, two tickets which I sold, and a free meal."

But instead of watching the game, he said, he wrote about "fruit jars, imbibing, and the spectators' antics, which the New York Sun didn't give a damn about." But he saved them, he said, and later used them in successful books.

Mr. Stem said the way he first got active in politics was by writing a simple poem about an old man at eventide, called "Crisis." He said a minister wrote an article for a religious magazine somehow relating his poem to the Stevenson presidential campaign favoring the United Nations, and "overnight I became an international expert."

Back In The Blanchard And Butler Backyards

In The DTH, It's Twisted

Editors, The Tar Heel:

The old saying "If you see it in the Sun, it's so," could be paraphrased in Chapel Hill to say: If you see it in the Daily Tar Heel it's "twisted."

The ultimate in distortion and plain mis-representation is the two photographs in the March 12 Tar Heel comparing the old Victory Village with the new Married Students Housing.

The Tar Heel showed a picture of the backyard of a Victory Village apartment.

The front of the new brick housing is shown, with landscaping clearly presented to its best advantage.

The Tar Heel figures on the contrast in rentals also is false.

We suggest that you publish a picture of the backyard of Gary Blanchard's house in Odum Village—but don't let him clean up anything first—photograph it just as it is now.

Billy G. Butler
180 Bagley Drive
Chapel Hill, N. C.

(Ed. Note: In response to Mr. Butler's suggestion, we went to Gary Blanchard's home without informing him and took a picture of the backyard (1). In order to provide an effective comparison, we then proceeded to Mr. Butler's home, also without informing him, and took a picture of his backyard (2). Finally, just so the whole matter might be set straight, we felt it only fair to include a final picture (3) showing the front of one of the old Victory Village homes, which we intended to print in the first place. Our apologies.)

Out Back Of Gary's . . . . . . And Butler's . . . . . . And A Front, Too . . .

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Volume 72, Number 118 Sunday, March 15, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel
71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Honesty—The Missing Ingredient

There is about the current gubernatorial campaign a disgusting tone of expediency on the part of two of the three major candidates—on two of the most fundamentally significant issues of our times in North Carolina.

We refer to the race issue and the Gag Law, and the stands thereon by candidates L. Richardson Preyer and Dan K. Moore. Their public positions on these two questions are almost identical with that of the third major candidate, I. Beverly Lake, but Lake's position doesn't really bother us because we never expected much from him anyway.

Lake is committed to fighting a rearguard action against progress and true justice for all Americans, and makes no bones about it. But Preyer and Moore have disappointed us deeply. We had heard great things of them both.

Now, though something approaching a political hangover has set in, not only for us but for many others throughout the length and breadth of our great state, where Preyer and Moore are concerned.

For both Preyer and Moore have shown themselves to be unwilling to stand up for what they know to be right where a fundamental democratic issue is involved; true freedom of the individual, every individual, from being victimized by the prejudices of the majority, whether that prejudice takes the form of race bigotry or irrational fear of alien philosophy.

I. Beverly Lake is so mechanistic and out of touch with reality that he honestly believes the trash he mouths about segregation and the Gag Law being equally good things.

But Preyer and Moore know better. They are men who have in the past shown that they are in touch with reality and understand the spirit of the law as well as its letter.

So any way you slice it, Lake with all of his faults, is at least being honest; whereas Preyer and Moore aren't. They are being untrue to the ideals they would supposedly uphold if elected Governor; they are being untrue to themselves; they are being untrue to those of us who look to them for leadership.

Undoubtedly they are taking refuge from admitting this dishonesty to themselves by quoting the old axiom about how one has to be a politician before he can be a statesman. There may be some truth to that old statement, but we doubt it, if only because there are so many elected officials today who got so used to being politicians — in the worst sense of that much-misused word —that they have never been able to become statesmen.

Our only consolation in this whole matter is the knowledge that, both Preyer and Moore being basically decent men, the still, small voices within their consciences remind them of their dishonesty from time to time, however much they try to quiet those whispers with rationalizations.

They talk of "preserving rights" when they know the answer to so many of our most pressing problems lies in living up to responsibilities.

They talk of amending a foolish, harmful law, when they know the course of true freedom lies in repeal.

They talk, in short, with a forked tongue. We know it, and so do they.

* * *

Statement of the week: Dr. Samuel D. Proctor, outgoing president of Greensboro A & T: "All the excitement (over civil rights) today is nothing more than birth pains of an idea whose time has come."

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters: Kerry Sipe, Administration; Jeff Dick, Municipal; John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants: Shirley Travis, Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists: Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel

The Search For Pattern

The New York Times

The news that the predicted omega minus sub-atomic particle has actually been detected by scientific instruments suggests that another major advance may have been made in the unceasing search for pattern and law underlying the apparent disorder of the universe.

Newton's law of gravitation was an early discovery in this quest since it provided the key to phenomena as diverse as the flight of an arrow and the passage of the planets across the sky. Mendeleyev's periodic table of elements was another such landmark of human thought as it introduced order into the diversity of the basic materials surrounding us, an order so illuminating that it could successfully predict elements still unknown when the great Russian chemist made his synthesis.

Now, in the confusing jungle of nuclear particles which has so baffled physicists this past decade, a similar powerful unifying principle has evidently been found, the pattern proposed independently three years ago by the American, Murray Gell-Mann, and the Israeli, Yuval Ne'eman.

As recently as five years ago physicists thought in terms of some 30 so-called "elementary particles." Use of the new powerful tools of high energy physics since then has increased the number of particles observed to almost 100, thus raising automatically the question of what basic pattern could restore simplicity to this bewildering complexity.

The Gell-Mann-Ne'eman hypothesis attempts to meet the problem by classifying the horde of sub-atomic particles into a small number of families now appears to be more than a mere arbitrary classification. The underlying theory and its extension permitted the prediction that one such family had a missing member with specified characteristics.

Now that missing but predicted member, omega minus, has been found in nature, suggesting that the proposed pattern does capture an important aspect of the reality which is beyond man's gross senses but not beyond his intellect.

Akers, Faculty And Roy Cole

And We Arouse More Antipathy

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Your brief harangue against Richard Akers will not win you any prizes for editorial excellence. If intended as constructive criticism, it neither told us why Mr. Akers opposes the name change, nor what difference it makes. It seems to me that the word "residence," which means a home, is a happy euphemism for the word "dormitory," which is a building with sleeping accommodations. The question here is trivial.

What is not trivial to me is the absolutely absurd analogy made between the name change from IDC to MRC and the lamentable dress of our unkempt marchers. You expose yourselves as petty bigots seeking any possible means to slander someone whose views are not coincident with your own.

Let me congratulate you on arousing sufficient antipathy in me toward your slanted news sheet to evoke this unconstructive outcry.

Regretfully,
Robert Bennett
203 Rosemary St.

Human Foibles In Our Crisis

Editors, The Tar Heel:

It is difficult to refrain from being mildly amused at the human foibles of the current racial crisis in Chapel Hill. Now that the integrationists have done what they told us they would do months ago, we feign shock and outrage and demand that those who have done what they told us they would do be prosecuted to the full letter of a law we specially strengthened to accommodate them. The curious aspect of our outrage, however, is the fact that it is so disproportionate to its cause as to border on the quixotic. It is as though we were frantically trying to rid ourselves of longstanding and deeply entrenched guilt by striking out at those who remind us of it. Perhaps this is what inevitably happens to gadflys. We purge our guilt by punishing them.

Our outrage is disproportionate to its cause simply because the non-violent means of protest is an incredibly mild manner of protesting evils that would easily justify violent methods of protest. Compared to the justice of its cause, the Negro student movement is without doubt the mildest, kindest revolution the world has ever known. In our own times less honorable causes have beetn advanced by methods radically more upsetting in nature. Lady prohibitionists, some may recall, actually forced their way into bars and violently destroyed private property with axes and sledgehammers. Have we forgotten so soon? Have we forgotten the suffragettes who lay down in the middle of Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington to protest for female suffrage? Has television so dulled our brains and senses that we do not recall the violent riots and bombings that accompanied the labor movement of the thirties? Have we forgotten how we ourselves openly flaunted the law of the land when we drank during Prohibition? And have we forgotten that it was this very fact that led to the repeal of Prohibition? Do we not remember even seven years ago when the State of North Carolina publicly blocked the 1955 Supreme Court decision of "deliberate speed" in school desegregation by instituting the Pearsall Plan? Where is the pot and where is the kettle in the racial crisis?

I suggest that the central reason we have taken such a pious and sanctimonious attitude toward the "scofflaws" is that we are actually burdened with guilt about our fifty years of Jim Crowism and we are subconsciously seeking to purge our guilt by striking out at those who remind us of it. Yet there is another reason, and it is that we have yet to admit to ourselves that the Negro is truly discontented and is determined to get his rights no matter what. So we strengthen the penalty for trespass to two years, naively thinking that that will deter the movement and leave us in our beloved status quo. Yet the institution of such an unrealistic and flagrantly unjust penalty is not going to stop the Negro, and it is foolish of us to think it is. The reason it is not going to stop the Negro is that in a segregated society he is already imprisoned and has nothing to lose. In fact, being in jail is a liberating experience for the Negro. He knows that his being there is an open testimony to his determination to be free and that if he is ever to be free in his lifetime he will have to go to jail to be such. Perhaps that is why we are afraid of the Negro. One always fears a person who is willing to die.

A curious part of our failure to admit that the Negro lives a miserable life and that we are the cause is our equally unrealistic belief that the Negro is being manipulated by an outside force. I was amazed to hear this position talked by a college professor before a group of other academcians. That a mature, educated man could be taken in by such cant is difficult to believe. Once again, we want so much to believe that the Negro is the happy, shuffling, grinning stereotype of Joel Chandler Harris vintage that we refuse to acknowledge that he is discontented and has sense enough to say so. James Baldwin's remarks are so pertinent here that I take the liberty of quoting him at length: "What I find appalling — and really dangerous—is the American assumption that the Negro is so contented with his lot that only the cynical agents of a foreign power can rouse him to protest. It is a motion which contains a gratuitous insult, implying, as it does, that Negroes can make no move unless they are manipulated. It forceably suggests that the Southern attiude toward the Negro is also, essentially, the national attitude. When the South has trouble with its Negroes—when the Negroes refuse to remain in their 'place'—it blames 'outside' agitators and 'Northern' interference.' When the nation has trouble with the Northern Negro, it blames the Kremlin.

And by this, by no means incidentally, is a very dangerous thing to do. We thus give credit to the Communists for attitudes and victories which are not theirs. We make of them the champions of the oppressed, and they could not, of course, be more delighted." What is needed in our racial crisis is not the infernal regions, nor the kind of hate and pettiness that would harrass them to death for months by keeping them out of school unnnecessarily or imposing unrealistic penalties for what is clearly a misdemeanor. What is needed is realism and impartiality. If we cannot show this at the present time, we will not be justified in expecting those we treat so harshly to respect the government and the judicial system under which they were tried.

Sincerely yours,
Robert M. Sitton
Department of Philosophy

Forlorner Than Horner

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Re: "What is Forlorner Than Horner?"

I think it's just fine for you to defend yourself against all comers as a champion of boxing—even against an experienced infighter like Jack Horner. But I must insist on a fair fight.

Please, Battlin' Blanchard and Take-a-Dive Dave, come out fighting from your own corner (as does Horner). May I remind you that it is highly irregular—if not downright unsportsmanlike—to begin or end your attack with the help of a third party.

As the unsuspecting third man in the ring, that punchy headline delivered in your editorial chastising Jack Horner, jarred my memory of long ago.

In fact, mine was the very same jab, thrown in late November or early December of '48, when I wrote—surely you remembered — "What is Forlorner than Horner?" in the very same Daily Tar Heel.

Now, one thing even you must admit: Jack Horner makes the headlines—and they're his own!

I do appreciate the fact that someone is still reading the heady stuff I wrote 16 years ago. But not the use of it to bludgeon a dear friend. As Sonny Liston would say, I want my title back.

Warmest regards.
William Carmichael III

Aldermen, Do Your Duty

Editors, The Tar Heel:

In the Chapel Hill Recorder's Court on March 10th Solicitor Roy Cole asked and received from Judge Stewart a "nol pros with leave" in the case of Mr. Clyde Jones. Mr. Jones was charged with disorderly conduct by a police captain who had him placed under arrest for using vile and profane language in public. Mr. Jones was also reported as dragging demonstrators to the police cars, but not at the request of the police.

We do not presume to judge the guilt or innocence of the man in question, but we are disturbed by the relegating of the case to status which, if usual procedure is followed, means it will probably not be tried. The action is particularly disturbing if it be true as reported that the officer who instigated the arrest was not consulted before the request was made by the Solicitor to the Judge or at the time the decision was made by the Judge.

Mr. Cole has insisted on trying all cases against demonstrators, even some that complaintants were willing to nol pros, on the premise that the "law must be respected." His action in this case appears highly inconsistent with his insistence on trying all cases of demonstrators and would indicate a partiality in the administration of justice in our local court.

Since the Solicitor is selected by vote of the Aldermen and is through them responsible to the community for the fair and impartial conduct of his office, the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Ministerial Association asks the Aldermen to look into the disposition of this case and the facts surrounding it and if partiality has been shown, take steps to correct the same.

Sincerely yours,
Thomas R. Thrasher
For the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Ministerial Association

"Nothing, Really — A Mere Scratch"

Heelprints

Jimmy Hoffa may be a trucker at heart, but he's going to find eight years a long haul.

* * *

Right now, the controversy over the real name of UNCR is in a poor State.

* * *

With Frank McGuire at the helm, South Carolina's basketball teams should be more gamey and more cocky.

* * *

So far, Henry Cabot Lodge's campaign hasn't been underwritten by anyone.

* * *

Did you notice how those New Hampshire voters put the nix on Nixon?

* * *

Then there's the Barry Goldwater doll—you wind it up and it walks backward.

* * *

This is the week when the UP and the SP come to their big partying of the ways.

- Plan -

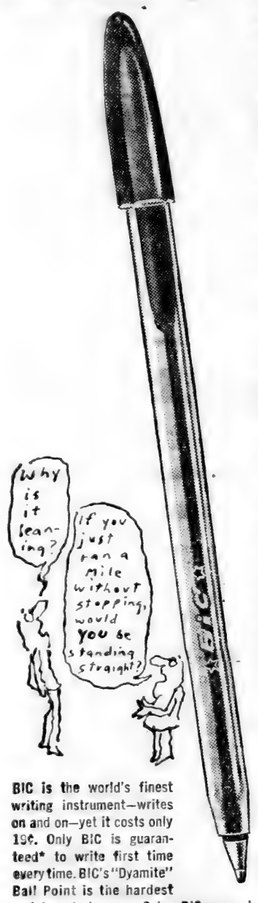
(Continued from Page 1)

the Negroes' situation in Chapel Hill.

The nine-man committee will report its progress in drafting a legal structure for the agency, and in drawing up a proposal to be made to a foundation for financing the agency. The draft and the proposal are not ready yet, but will be in time to present to the Board of Aldermen at the Board's next meeting March 24.

Members of the committee are Dr. Adams, chairman; Gordon Cleveland, the Rev. Robert Seymour, Mrs. Ross Scroggs, Human Relations Committee chairman Mrs. George Taylor, Warren Wicker, the Rev. W. R. Foushee, Charles Bowerman, and Charles Shaffer.

The Committee will also discuss the high school equivalency program, recently established here to be run by the Durham Industrial Training Center. Mrs. Taylor said that permission had been obtained from the Chapel Hill School Board to conduct the program's classes in Chapel Hill school buildings, but that the State Community College Department had asked that a different place for the classes be found in which greater exposure time could be offered.



BIC is the world's finest writing instrument—writes on and on—yet it costs only 19¢. Only BIC is guaranteed* to write first time every time. BIC's "Dyamite" Ball Point is the hardest metal made by man. Get a BIC, now at your campus store. BIC "Crystal" 19¢. BIC pens available with blue, red, green, and black ink. Made in U.S.A. *For replacement send pen to:
WATERMAN-BIC PEN CORP., MILFORD, CONN.

BIC

Seventeen Profs Granted Leaves For Next Year

Leaves of absence for 17 UNC faculty members have been announced. Some take effect in the fall of 1964, others in the spring of 1965. Leaves were granted by the trustees following recommendations of President William C. Friday and Chancellor William B. Aycock.

Avery B. Cohan, professor in the School of Business Administration, will be a visiting professor at the University of Lousanne in Switzerland.

William Grant Dahlstrom, professor in the Department of Psychology, will take a Kenan leave of absence in order to pursue special research in residence.

Douglas G. Humm, professor in the Department of Zoology, has accepted a research appointment at the National Institute of Health.

Lyle V. Jones, professor in the Department of Psychology and Director of the Psychometric Laboratory, will be a Fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Palo Alto, Cal.

Victor A. Greulach, professor in the Department of Botany, has accepted a research appointment with the National Science Foundation.

John Esten Keller, professor in the Department of Romance Languages, will take a Kenan leave of absence in order to teach on a half-time basis and devote half-time to research and writing in residence.

Billy James Pettis, professor in the Department of Mathematics, has accepted a Faculty Fellowship for research from the National Science Foundation.

John Sheridan MacNerney, professor in the Department of Mathematics, will take a Kenan leave of absence for research in residence.

Paul E. Shearin, professor in the Department of Physics, is going to do research at Stanford University.

Samuel Fillenbaum, associate professor in the Department of Psychology, will go to Harvard for a Visiting Scholarship.

John Gulick, associate professor in the Department of Sociology-Anthropology, has been granted Research Fellowships from Harvard and the National Institute of Mental Health to pursue his study of the Middle East.

Paul S. Hubbard, associate professor in the Department of Physics, will pursue research at Oxford University, England.

Dell Bush Johannesen, associate professor in the School of Business Administration, has accepted an invitation as Visiting Professor of Economics at the University of Texas.

Elizabeth Lovell McMahan, associate professor in the School of Public Health, will complete work on a doctorate from Duke University.

Ranson Theodore Taylor, associate professor in the Department of Germanic Languages, will pursue research in Germany.

James Logan Coke, assistant professor in the Department of Chemistry, will continue research at the University of Minnesota and the University of North Carolina.

Samuel Smythe Hill Jr., assistant professor and chairman of the Department of Religion, will take a post-doctoral fellowship at Harvard.

–Name–

(Continued from Page 1)

not looking for any," Aycock said.

"We were only seeking the Executive Committee's support for taking the proposals before the 1965 General Assembly." Aycock said the alumni are hoping the executive will come out publicly in favor of the proposals, but the committee didn't say whether it would do so.

The next step in the long fight will be sometime next month when the Executive Committee once again will hear proposals and arguments from NC State Alumni.

In the meantime, men like Aycock and Reynolds will be drumming up support for the name change proposal. They will probably concentrate on this point and deemphasize the proposal to divide the trustees since it hasn't received much initial approval from the men who count.

A crucial point which may mean success to the name change proposal will come from the decision of the Executive Committee of the trustees. But even if the committee doesn't report favorably, NC State Alumni will probably manage to get the controversial legislation introduced in the 1965 General Assembly, but this time they will have gathered more support.

Campus Items

AFROTC Band Will Wash Cars

The University AFROTC Band and Drill Squadrons are sponsoring a carwash on Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Crowell Little Esso Station near Eastgate to raise money to send the team to the Azalea Festival Parade on April 4 in Wilmington.

Price for the car wash will be one dollar.

Drawings Shown At Ackland

A collection of drawings illustrating the history of stage design from the Renaissance to the present time will be exhibited at the Ackland Art Center beginning Tuesday.

The drawings are part of the collection of Donald Oenslager, professor of scenic design at Yale University's Graduate School of Drama. The collection is circulated by the American Federation of Arts.

The Ackland galleries are open to the public Tuesdays through Fridays from 2 to 5 p.m. and 8 to 10 p.m.

Freshman Camp Interviews Set

Interviews for the director of Freshman Camp next fall will be held Tuesday through Thursday in the YMCA building.

Students who want to be counselors are invited to attend regular weekly meetings starting Thursday at 7 p.m. upstairs in the YMCA.

A director will be chosen from the interviewees and students attending the weekly meetings will be narrowed down during the next month until counselors are chosen.

Applications for director will be limited to students who have attended Freshman Camp either as a freshman or as a counselor.

Residence Council Sets Interviews

The Women's Residence Council is holding interviews Tuesday and Wednesday for candidates to run for chairman in the spring election. Interested girls should sign up for an interview at GM information desk.

The interviews will be held from 2-4 p.m. in RP II.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date.

TODAY

WRC will hold interviews on March 17-18 for candidates for chairman of WRC in the spring elections; girls interested should sign up at the GM information desk before Tues.

Hillel Brunch—12:30 p.m., Hillel House, Dr. Will Herberg, "What It Means to be a Jew."

Festival of Jewish Music — 4 p.m., East Duke Music Room at Duke, Julia Mueller, viola; Ruth Friedberg, piano; John Hanks, tenor; Isabel Samfield, soprano; Peter Hellman, flute; and Frank Bennett, percussion.

Canterbury — 6 p.m., Episcopal Church, "Death and Resurrection."

SP—7 p.m., 08 Peabody, panel discussion on women's rules.

Religion Lecture — 8 p.m., Hill Hall, Dr. Will Herberg, "Religions in America: Paradox and Problems," public is invited.

Jr. Class Girls' "Powder-puff Football" League — 2 p.m., Fetzer Field, discussion of rules, technique and possible scrimmage.

Westminster Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, worship, 6 p.m., supper; 6:45, program — "Death: the Medical and Philosophical View."

UP Convention—7 p.m., Carroll Hall, nominations for NSA, student body officers, student legislature, and senior class officers.

SPU — 1 p.m., upstairs Lenoir, subject: Socialism and the Peace Movement—Is there a Necessary Connection?

Family Concert — 3:30 p.m., Gerrard, "A Shakespearean Birthday" by the Duke Madrigal Singers.

Pettie Musicale — 8 p.m., Memorial Hall, Madrigal Singers.

MOVIES

Carolina — Brass Bottle

Varsity — Bachelor Tom Peeping.

MONDAY

Religion 32A class—1 p.m., Murphey auditorium, Dr. Herberg, "Religious Group Conflict in America Today," public is welcome.

SP Advisory Board—4 p.m., RP I.

Order of the Old Lampshades— 4-5:30 p.m., parlor of Nurses' Dorm.

Symposium Related Discussion— 4:30 p.m., RP II.

Course Evaluation Comm.—4:30 p.m., Woodhouse, organizational meeting.

Jr. Class Finance Comm. — 5-6 p.m., Grail, to discuss powderpuff football game.

Newman Table—6 p.m., Lenoir, informal dinner.

Statistics Colloquium — 4 p.m., 265 Phillips, Prof. Bose will lecture.

YWCA — 3-5 p.m., today-Wed., Anne Queen's office, Y-Court, interviews for committee chairmen of YWCA.

CWC—6:30 p.m., Grail Room.

NSA — 7:30 p.m., Y-Court subject of meeting will be Algerian books.

University Symphony Orchestra Rehearsal — 7:15 p.m., Rehearsal hall of Hill Hall.

Concert Series — 8 p.m., Memorial Hall, Issac Stern, violinist, admission for students by ID cards.

TUESDAY

WRC — 2-4 p.m., RP II, interviews for candidates for chairman of WRC in the spring elections.

Election Board — 3-4 p.m., Woodhouse.

Slimnastics Club — 3:45 p.m., Dance Studio.

WAA—5 p.m., Women's Gym, interviews for the office of WAA president.

Freshman Finance Comm. — 7 p.m., RP III.

Congressman Says Firms Get 'Outrageous' Interest

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Commercial finance firms making loans to students of more than 1,000 U.S. colleges and universities this week denied congressional charges of collecting "outrageous" interest rates.

The charges were made by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., who accused several commerical firms of collecting as much as 60 per cent interest annually on loans to college students and their parents.

Sen. Paul B. Douglas, D-Ill., has introduced legislation requiring interest rates charged for most college student loans to be no more than 9 per cent. Douglas introduced the bill as an amendment to the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) after Hartke made the charges.

Two of the largest firms accused of gouging by Hartke denied the charges explaining they were providing expensive billing and collecting services — as well as money — for U.S. colleges and universities.

One explanation came from Robert Keir, president of the C.I.T. Financial Corp., which owns the Tuition Plan, Inc.

"We aren't really lending money," Keir said. "We're providing a billing and collective service for over 700 colleges, mostly clerical work.

"The schools offer this service and turn over the contract of the parent to us. We handle all bookwork and place life insurance on each parent's life

"Insurance is between a quarter and a half of the charge," Keir explained. "Most parents are between 45 and 55 and many are uninsurable. We don't investigate credit. What we charge for money is secondary."

Keir noted that parents in the $15,000 a year income bracket were the biggest borrowers under the C.I.T. program. He said such families didn't like state and federal loan programs because they normally involve 10 years and charge 6 per cent interest annually.

"State programs are for needy families," Keir said. "They tend to exclude the middle group."

Rather than gouging, Keir said his firm was making a substantial social contribution by saving colleges money needed for such collecting and billing services.

Harold Logan, a spokesman for Education Funds Inc., a subsidiary of Household Finance Corp., voiced a similar defense.

"Our service cost is enormous," Logan said. "All loans have to be put on a computer."

He said that more than 300 colleges, mostly private, "furnish lists of all students to us." His firm then contacts the parent — all by mail — to offer the loans without credit checks.

"There are very few multiple-year contracts we don't have to change," Logan said. "For example the University of Denver's tuition is going up $300 next year. We have to change the loan contracts."

Hartke accused Keir's firm of charging 60 per cent interest annually for its loans. Logan's firm, Hartke said, charges as much as 54 per cent under some of its programs.

While both firms called Hartke's figures incorrect, they did admit some banks and other lenders offered lower interest rates. They placed most of the blame for the high charges on schools wishing tot keep free of the red tape involved in college loans.

Sen. Douglas' amendment apparently has heeded part of the firms' defense.

It would require the 1,500 colleges and universities taking part in the NDEA loan program to participate with loan firms charging no higher than 9 per cent annually.

Douglas said his amendment would have the beneficial effect of "encouraging colleges to cooperate with lenders offering low-cost loans.

"It would impel schools to look after the interest of their students and students' parents. All I ask is a minimum of sound business discretion," Douglas said.

Douglas praised one firm — United Student Aid Fund, Inc., a private non-profit firm located in Indianapolis, Ind. — "for keeping interest rates down to a simple 6 per cent annually."

Carolina NOW PLAYING

PEANUTS

going to Europe this Summer?

Get your free copy of the new booklet "TRAVEL TIPS FOR EUROPE." It's free and it's full of useful information you'll need. Currency, Passport and Customs regulations, even average temperatures and wardrobe hints.

And even if you've already booked passage on another tour, you'll be interested in receiving an Adams' Student Tour brochure, too. You can join an Adams tour in New York or London.

ONLY ADAMS STUDENT TOURS TAKE YOU ■ By Hydrofoil to the New York World's Fair ■ Dinner at Maxim's in Paris ■ See at Lucerne ■ Amboise ■ Outdoor Opera in Rome ■ Boat trips on Lake and Lake Lucerne ■ Lido and Follies Bergere ■ [illegible] days

ADAMS' STUDENT TOURS 5455 Wilshire Blvd. Los Angeles 90036

MAIL TODAY FOR YOUR FREE COPY OF "TRAVEL TIPS FOR EUROPE."

NAME
ADDRESS
CITY
STATE COLLEGE

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.
featuring
RARE ROAST BEEF
4 Meats—7 Vegetables ..... $2.85
All You Can Eat—It's a Cowboy's Treat
Recommended by Duncan Hines and Gourmet
RANCH HOUSE

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

Complete Formal Wear Rental Service
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

The Incredible Carlos Montoya
"... must be heard to be believed"
Memorial Hall 8:00 p.m., Friday, March 20
All Seats Reserved — Student tickets now on sale at Graham Memorial
General Public may purchase Thurs., March 19 starting at 2:30 p.m. if tickets remain.
ADMISSION $1.50

SEE LATIN AMERICA UP CLOSE

How much do you know about Latin America? About the Alliance for Progress? Are Yanquis to blame for Latinos' shortcomings? What does the Moscow-Peking split mean to Lima, Caracas, Managua? Can free enterprise cope with the staggering problems of Latin America?

These are some of the questions that TIME's Special Correspondent John Scott set out last summer to answer firsthand. "How Much Progress?" is the result—a 140-page report to TIME's publisher. It is the twelfth in a series of annual studies Scott has been making for TIME, analyzing major political, economic and social developments throughout the world.

"How Much Progress?" also includes a comprehensive bibliography and comparative tables on Latin American population, GNP, exports, prices, monetary stability, U.S. investments, and food production.

A copy of Scott's report on Latin America is available to students and educators with our compliments. Write

TIME Special Report
Box 834, Rockefeller Center
New York, N.Y. 10020

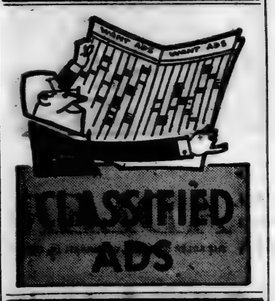
A 140-PAGE REPORT PREPARED FOR TIME'S PUBLISHER IS AVAILABLE TO COLLEGE STUDENTS AND EDUCATORS

Discards from Public Libraries

Books in this offering have only two things in common—they have seen lots of wear and they are cheap.

Assembled from discards and duplicates of various libraries, the the books include a number of excellent but beat-up titles, and none are priced at more than 50c Come in and pick them over in the old book feature case.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Until 10 P.M.



For Sale

1960 VW, 2 DR. SEDAN, COLOR black, approximately 40,000 miles. Original owner. Phone 968-1074.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Epochs
5. Extent of canvas
9. Trap
10. Arctic dwelling
12. Composition for 8 parts
13. Pert. to the throat
14. A game fish
15. Definite article
16. Iron: sym.
17. Plural ending
18. Sloths
19. Meadow
20. Constructed anew
23. A peer
24. India: poet.
25. Japanese coin
26. Stop
28. Dairy product
31. Anoint
32. Girl's name
33. Forward
34. Bone: anat.
35. Belonging to us
36. Plunge into water
38. Silk waste
40. To becloud
41. Meaning
42. Narrow roadway
43. Bodies of water
44. Confront

DOWN
1. To enclose in a box
2. Wharf inhabitants
3. God of war
4. Clique
5. Deep breaths of sorrow
6. Malaria-like illness
7. Sick
8. A kind of flat shoe
9. Serious
11. Mountain nymph
15. Fasten
18. Sum up
19. Solitary
21. Kind of factory
22. Insect
23. Famous Virginia family
25. Timid
26. Walks: colloq.
27. Passageways in a theater
28. Vehicle
29. A council: Russ.
30. Foe
32. Ponders
35. Mountain in Thessaly
36. Erase: print.
37. Not working
39. Single unit
40. Cheat

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| S | H | A | R | D | | S | T | A | B | S |
| C | O | L | O | R | | H | U | L | L | O |
| A | B | A | C | A | | E | L | L | E | N |
| T | O | R | | W | A | L | L | E | T | S |
| | | | U | N | C | L | E | | | |
| T | O | M | B | | H | E | | A | W | A |
| A | R | I | E | S | | D | A | V | I | D |
| G | E | L | | A | D | | S | E | T | A |
| | | | S | L | O | O | P | | | |
| M | A | T | T | I | N | G | | T | A | P |
| A | D | O | R | E | | E | E | R | I | E |
| L | A | T | I | N | | E | L | U | D | E |
| T | R | E | A | T | | S | L | E | E | K |

Yesterday's Answer

Say it beautifully with EASTER CARDS
Enter Easter

NOW ON DISPLAY
Easter is March 29

- CUTE
- SOPHISTICATED
- SENTIMENTAL

Easter Cards of All Kinds

FAVORS AND PARTY SUPPLIES IN THE PARTY SHOP

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

Ho-Hum! Maryland Wins Another Track Crown

The Finish Of The 60-Yard Dash: An Upset

—Photo by Jim Wallace

He's Up, But Is He Over?

Sights At ACC Track Meet

The Baton Is Passed In The 2-Mile Relay

Tar Heel Thinclads Bridesmaids Again

By BILL LEE

The University of Maryland yesterday proved beyond a doubt that they are still supreme when it comes to indoor track. When the final scores were tabulated, the Terps had amassed 82 points, 45 points more than second-place UNC who had 37.

Other team scores were South Carolina with 22, Duke with 17, Clemson 16, Wake Forest 10, NC State 6, and Virginia 5. The ACC underdogs were obviously not able to offset Maryland's strength as expected.

Coach Joe Hilton commented on the meet, "We really had not estimated Maryland to be this strong, but most of the boys ran as I expected them. Of course Mike Folk and James Meade were not at their strongest, but Art Maillett ran a good race. I expect that this meet will have a lot of reflection on the outdoor season."

One bright spot of the day for Carolina came in the 60-yard dash as Dale White and Ronnie Jackson nosed out a closed pack of runners to take first and second. Maillett's mile also brought the crowd to their feet as he finished strong for a 4:17.2 time.

But the whole story was Maryland as they dominated the scoring in most of the events. The Terps picked up firsts in the shot-put, broad-jump, 70-yard low hurdles, pole-vault, 2-mile relay, the 2-mile run, and adding an incredible amount of runner-up places.

The UNC freshmen fared a little better as Maryland was held to only an 18½-point victory margin. The final frosh team scores were Maryland 50, UNC 31½, South Carolina 15, Clemson 15, NC State 9, Duke 9, Wake Forest 6½, and Virginia 0.

Jon Levin tied the record held by several in the 60-yard dash with a 6.4 sprint. Holders of the record include Dave Sime of Duke, set in 1955. This was the only Tar Heel frosh first as they used plenty of seconds and thirds to gain second place.

The late Dale Ranson, track coach at UNC for 12 seasons was honored during the meet which was dedicated to his memory. Mrs. Ranson was also presented a plaque, and Jim Beatty spoke at the ceremonies.

In looking ahead to the outdoor season, you can be sure that the Terps will be up there again. Carolina's first meet is next week-end and will be the last round for seniors like Tommy Clark, Bob Bennett, and Mike Folk, who was not entirely whole for tonight's contest, but expects to be ready for the cinders soon.

Terp Costello Tops Clark's Frosh Record

By BILL LEE

Maryland, as expected, jumped into an early 15-point lead at the end of the afternoon events which included the shot-put, high-jump, and broad-jump.

Frank Costello, a Maryland freshman, emerged the man of the hour in yesterday afternoon's indoor events by breaking Tommy Clark's old frosh record of 6'4¾" in the high-jump. The new mark stands at 6' 7¼" as Costello cleared it by an inch, but missed three times at 6' 8".

By comparison, Clark took the varsity high-jump at 6'6". Clark holds the ACC mark at 6' 7¾", but missed three times at 6' 8". He cleared it on his fourth jump, but unfortunately it didn't count.

Clark hopes to try out for the U.S. Olympic team if he can clear 6' 10" during the spring outdoor season. He seems to be pretty optimistic about his chances. Jimmy Moore, sophomore, also showed well for Carolina by taking a fifth after only a week of practice.

Other records held up under the challenge including the broad jump record of UNC's Ken Hubbard, which was assaulted in vain by Mike Cole of Maryland. He missed by 6¼", with a jump or 23'2".

Track Results

BROAD JUMP

1. Cole (Md)
2. Chapman (USC)
3. Lelandn (Clemson)
4. Kahle (Wake)
5. Whitley (UNC)

(Distance: 23'2")

SHOT PUT

1. Samora (Md)
2. Stewart (Duke)
3. Torrice (Md)
4. Hearon (Md)
5. Christensen (UNC)

(Distance: 53'5")

HIGH JUMP

1. Clack (UNC)
2. Croft (Md)
3. Barnes (Duke)
4. Gordon (UVa)
5. Moore (UNC)

(Height: 6'6")

2-MILE RELAY

1. Maryland (Boyer, Duffey, Clark, Wann)
2. NC State
3. Virginia
4. UNC
5. Clemson

(Time: 8:04.3)

60-YARD DASH

1. White (UNC)
2. Jackson (UNC)
3. Cole (Md)
4. Wynn (Clemson)
5. Poole (Clemson)

(Time: 6.4)

ONE MILE RUN

1. Maillett (UNC)
2. Turner (Wake)
3. Krueger (Md)
4. Drown (Clemson)
5. Rose(USC)

(Time: 4:17.2)

600 YARD RUN

1. McGuinness (USC)
2. Prettyman (Md)
3. Dobritch (UNC)
4. Adams (Clemson)
5. Hemmer (USC)

(Time: 1:13.2)

70 YD. HIGH HURDLES

1. Fogle (Duke)
2. Vermillion (Md)
3. Finley (Md)
4. Sheer (Md)
5. Gatch (USC)

(Time: 8.7)

Note: Summaryl does not include five events which were completed too late for DTH deadline.

UNC Golfers Open Season At W-Salem

The UNC golf team opens season play tomorrow when they travel to Winston-Salem for a Medal Play Match with Wake Forest and Duke.

The Tar Heels have six lettermen returning from last year when the team posted a 6-4-1 mark.

Coached by Ed Kenney, the Heels' seven starting spots will probably go to returning lettermen Tommy Arnold, Les Fleischer, George Reams, Skip Tucker, Billy Stevenson and Harvey Hill and the last spot to either Ed Hoopes, Jim Gray, or a sophomore.

The Medal Play Match is an annual affair between UNC, Wake and Duke. The play slated at Winston-Salem is the first round of a 54 hole match played between the three schools. Wake Forest, defending ACC champs, was the winner in last years play while the Heels finished in third place behind the Blue Devils.

Win, Win, Win, Win With Kehoe

Everyone has heard of Casey Stengel, Bud Wilkinson, Frank McGuire and Adolph Rupp, but none of them can match the record accomplished by Maryland track coach Jim Kehoe.

With Kehoe at the helm, Maryland has dominated the ACC track scene in the 10 years of its existence. The Terps have won the first nine championships and are well on their way to another victory this year.

Kehoe was a track star at College Park in the late '30's. He still holds the Maryland school record for the 880 with a 1:50.7 mark.

Kehoe became head coach for the Terps in 1947 and since has turned out such stars as John Belitza, Ed Cooke, Burr Grim, Don Stauffer, Dick Smith and Mark Wells. Belitza holds the conference record for the pole vault with a vault of 16-1.

What makes the Kehoe story even more amazing is that Maryland gives no full scholarships except for football and basketball. Kehoe says that most of his performers come from the vicinity of College Park. He credits the high school track programs in Maryland with contributing a great deal with his success.

He says that being the track coach is one of his "secondary functions" at the university. He teaches two major courses in the Physical Education Department and serves as Intramural Director, yet still finds time to turn out the ACC's best track team.

Roll Call Of ACC Greats

By DENNIS SANDERS

Since the ACC was formed in 1953, a myriad of cagers has filtered through the ranks. Selecting the top 10 is about as easy as selecting the 10 greenest blades of grass in Kenan Stadium.

But, for what it's worth, here are this writer's choices as the all-time top ACC players. All of them were All-Conference and All-American choices, and we left out The Kid because he has another year to play.

Big Len Chappell, the ex-Wake Forest star who was player of the year twice and leading scorer in '61 (26.6) and '62 (30.1), rates high. Another Deac, Dickie Hemric, was also a two-time player of the year, and ranks among the elite.

Player of the year and top scorer (24.9) in 1963, Art Heyman, now a pro star with Chappell, joins former Duke teammate Jeff Mullins, who needs no introduction. Of earlier vintage is towering Ronnie Shavlik, who set the ACC rebounding record of 19.4 with NC State in '56.

Maryland and Virginia are represented by ex-Terp and present pro star Gene Shue and Buzz Wilkinson, who ripped the nets for 30.1 and 32.1 averages in 1954 and '55.

From UNC come Lennie Rosenbluth, player of the year in 1957 and leading scorer with a 26.6 slate in 1956, and Doug Moe. Moe never led the league statistically, but was an adept rebounder and crack defensive performer.

That's nine of the crop and the No. 10 spot is a tossup.

Former NC State guards Lou Pucillo and Vic Molodet, who pound-for-pound and inch-for-inch may be the best duo to come out of the conference, are two candidates. Pucillo, player of the year in 1959, parlayed an arching jump shot and uncanny periphial vision and ball-handling ability into All-America honors. Molodet was a deft shot and crack floor leader.

The third man on the ballot is Tommy Kearns, quarterback of the 1957 Carolina national champs.

The All-UNC unit looks like this: Rosenbluth, Lee Shaffer (top point-maker in '60 with 18.6), Kearns, Moe and either Larry Brown or Pete Brennan. Brown was an ace floor general and Brennan led the loop in scoring (21.3) and rebounding (11.7) in 1958.

Ranking high on the list were Duke's Carroll Youngkin, who paced the conference in field goal accuracy for three years, Maryland's Nick Davis, Grady Wallace of USC (the last 30-point scorer), Jackie Murdock of Wake, and Rudy D'Emilio and Joe Belmont of Duke.

Frank McGuire, the only ACC coach to guide an undefeated team and bring in a national title, is the all-time coach, with the "Old Gray Fox" from State and Vic Bubas not too far behind.

Oh, yes, the No. 1 sportscaster award goes to rotund Ray Reeve, the Squire of Wake County.

Kick up your heels in the new Adler Shape-Up cotton sock. Nothing gets it down. The indomitable Shape-Up leg stays up and up and up in plain white, white with tennis stripes, or solid colors. No matter how much you whoop it up. In the air, her Shapette, 69¢, his Shape-Up, 85¢. ADLER THE ADLER COMPANY, CINCINNATI 14, OHIO

The Hub

Town & Campus

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Varsity Men's Wear

(Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

A ROBE BY ANY OTHER NAME

With the Commencement Day just a couple of short months away, the question on everyone's lips is: "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors?" Everybody is asking it; I mean everybody! I mean I haven't been able to walk ten feet on any campus without somebody grabs my elbow and says, "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors, hey?"

This, I must say, is not the usual question asked by collegians who grab my elbow. Ordinarily they say, "Hey, Shorty, got a Marlboro?" And this is fitting. After all, are they not collegians and therefore loaded with brains? And does not intelligence demand the tastiest in tobacco flavor? And does not Marlboro deliver a flavor that is uniquely delicious? And am I not short?

But I digress. Back to the colored hoods of academic robes. A doctor of philosophy wears blue, a doctor of medicine wears green, a master of arts wears white, a doctor of humanities wears crimson, a master of library science wears lemon yellow. Why? Why, for example, should a master of library science wear lemon yellow?

Why, Why?

Well sir, to answer this vexing question, we must go back to March 14, 1844. On that date the first public library in the United States was established by Ulrich Sigafoos. All of Mr. Sigafoos's neighbors were of course wildly grateful—all, that is, except Wrex Todhunter.

Mr. Todhunter had hated Mr. Sigafoos since 1822 when both men had wooed the beautiful Melanie Zitt and Melanie had chosen Mr. Sigafoos because she was mad for dancing and Mr. Sigafoos knew all the latest steps—like the Missouri Compromise Samba, the Shays' Rebellion Schottische, and the James K. Polk Polka—while Mr. Todhunter, alas, could not dance at all, owing to a wound he had received at the Battle of New Orleans. (He was struck by a falling praline.)

Consumed with jealousy at the success of Mr. Sigafoos's library, Mr. Todhunter resolved to open a competing library. This he did, but he lured not one single patron away from Mr. Sigafoos. "What has Mr. Sigafoos got that I have not?" Mr. Todhunter kept asking himself, and finally the answer came to him: books.

So Mr. Todhunter stocked his library with lots of lovely books, and soon he was doing more business than his hated rival. But Mr. Sigafoos struck back. To regain his clientele, he began serving tea at his library every afternoon. Thereupon Mr. Todhunter, not to be outdone, began serving tea with sugar. Thereupon Mr. Sigafoos began serving tea with sugar and cream. Thereupon Mr. Todhunter began serving tea with sugar and cream and lemon.

This, of course, clinched the victory for Mr. Todhunter because he had the only lemon tree in town—in fact, in the entire state of Maine—and since that day lemon yellow has, of course, been the color on the robes of masters of library science.

(Incidentally, the defeated Mr. Sigafoos packed up his library and moved to California where, alas, he failed once more. There were, to be sure, plenty of lemons to serve with his tea, but, alas, there was no cream because the cow was not introduced to California until 1937 by John Wayne.)

© 1964 Max Shulman

* * *

Today Californians, happy among their milch kine, are enjoying filtered Marlboro Cigarettes in soft pack or Flip-Top Box, as are their fellow Americans in all fifty states of this Marlboro Country!

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

118

The Weather

Cloudy and warmer.

The Daily Tar Heel

Need something useless? Or maybe something useful? Then drop by the Campus Chest Auction tonight at 7 in Memorial Hall. Among the goodies will be a real, live wildcat or a 21-inch television. See you there?

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 1964 | United Press International Service

Al Lowenstein: No Stranger Here

Prof. Allard K. Lowenstein
—Photo by Jim Wallace

By GARY BLANCHARD
First of three articles

Al Lowenstein, the N. C. State professor whom conservative elements are trying to have fired for his participation in racial demonstrations, is no stranger to UNC.

He came here in 1945 at the age of 16 and graduated with a degree in History in 1949. In between he was a member of the wrestling team, associate editor of the DTH, and won the John J. Parker medal "for unique leadership in Student Government."

Since then he has ranged far and wide, as President of the National Student Association, assistant to former UNC President and Senator Frank Graham, aide to Sen. Hubert Humphrey, U.S. Army soldier, author of a book on racial oppression in South Africa, campaign chairman for New York Congressman William F. Ryan, delegate to the 1960 Democratic National Convention, worker with the non-Communist underground in Spain, and campaign worker in the mock election of Aaron Henry, a Negro, last year in Mississippi.

His principal characteristic is compassion for the underdog, and his principal failing or virtue is his inability to say no to requests for help.

In the foreword to his book on South Africa, "Brutal Mandate," Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt wrote: "I have known Mr. Lowenstein for many years. He is a person of unusual ability and complete integrity. I think he will always fight crusades because injustice fills him with a sense of rebellion. He wants to be of help in some way . . ."

Lowenstein was born in Newark, N.J., and moved around a lot before coming to UNC. His father is a biochemist who gave up the laboratory to be a restauranteur in New York City.

After graduation from UNC he went to work for then Sen. Frank Graham in Washington. "That was probably the greatest experience I've had, working for him for a year," says Lowenstein.

In 1950 he was invited to the National Student Association's national convention, which he had attended three times previously as a UNC undergraduate. He came away as President of the group, and immediately set to work helping to organize the non-Communist world student group, the International Student Congress.

Following his tour as president he went to Yale Law School and graduated in 1954. Then into the Army for two years.

"I was a private," he remembers. "I thought that was the only honest thing to be. I guess I still had a guilt complex from not having been able to enlist in World War II."

Upon discharge in 1956, Lowenstein worked in the Adlai Stevenson campaign, as he had in 1952.

After the campaign he accepted a one-year grant through Mrs. Roosevelt to work up an educational program about the United Nations for colleges and high schools.

Finishing that assignment, he came back to UNC in the fall of 1957 and worked for Fred Weaver, now a UNC vice-president but then Dean of Student Affairs. Lowenstein was one of four persons chosen to help set up the dormitory counselor system. While here he also took some

(Continued from Page 3)

SUNDAY NIGHT

Spearman Gains UP Nomination

Carson, Light Patterson Also Named To Slate

Merrill And Hassell Head Class Ticket

Bob Spearman has been chosen by the University Party to head their slate of Student Body officers in the spring election.

Don Carson received the vice-presidential nomination, Pricilla Patterson was selected for secretary and Jim Light will be the candidate for treasurer.

In other nominations, Harrison Merrill will run for president of the Senior Class, Pud Hassell for vice-president, Carol Miller for secretary, Dave Wiles for treasurer and Pam Hooper for social chairman.

National Student Association nominees were Pat Wilson, Pete Wales, Mike Chanin and Bo Edwards.

Legislative nominations will be made tomorrow night at 8:30 in Howell Hall.

In accepting the nomination, Spearman called for a reevaluation of the "role of student government in this mass institution."

"Traditionally we have spoken of Student Government's value as an educational experience. It needs to continue this important function, but as the University grows larger, the pressing question is 'What does Student Government do for those who are not members of the Honor Councils or Student Legislature?"

"There is an increased danger that Student Government will become alienated from the campus . . . that it will serve only itself, rewriting its election laws each year and passing new resolutions but not meeting the broad concerns of the student body.

He called for maintaining the fundamental values and traditions of the University: the Honor System based upon integrity, the right of maximum individual freedom and the right of students to self-government.

"We must give the individual students opportunity for service, leadership and personal meaning.

"This means an emphasis on residence hall community life and further investigation of a Residence College system."

Student-Faculty Relations — Spearman asked that student government offer a "request that the Administration join with us in a mutual endeavor to meet the challenges of a mass institution.

"This year has been marked by bad feelings and frictions between the administration and student government. But after April 14 let us begin anew."

Civil Rights — "I feel that my position on this has been clear. The majority of us here tonight are in fundamental agreement on the necessity and rightness of advancing human dignity and opening the horizons of opportunity to all.

"When we speak of the means by which these goals should be implemented, I am sure that neither the campus nor the members of the University Party are in complete agreement. This is healthy and necessary.

"All challenges which we face cannot be conquered in an instant and they cannot be conquered at all without continued and persistent effort."

UP Nominee Bob Spearman
—Photo by Jim Wallace

Chancellor Fears Reprisals—Sitton

By PETE WALES

Dr. Robert Sitton, UNC philosophy instructor, restated yesterday on WRAL television that Chancellor William Aycock had advised him not to participate in civil disobedience demonstrations because "reprisals might be made against the University by legislators in Raleigh."

Aycock denied Sunday that he had said this. He had refused to comment Friday on Sitton's original statement of his words in a letter published in the DTH.

Sitton also said Aycock had told him that the Speaker Ban law might be a result of Dr. Albert Amon of the UNC Department of Psychology demonstrating in front of the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh last June.

Aycock denied Sunday that he had referred to legislators at all in his conversation with Sitton, much less "certain legislators."

"I don't think anyone connected with the University should participate in civil disobedience. I think it injures the University.

"It's not on the grounds of what might or might not happen in Legislature. It's on much broader issues."

Aycock mentioned the public image of the University and the effects such arrests might have on students.

"The rest of their (students') lives, they may not know which laws to violate and which to obey."

Sitton said in his letter that he disagreed with the Chancellor.

"My conviction was and is that the free exercise of one's conscience can never, under any circumstances, harm an educational institution, whereas the cowardly refusal to take a stand would certainly sooner or later hurt our University."

Combs Defends Rights Stand, News Managing, Veto Power

Bert Combs, ex-governor of Kentucky, called 'em as he saw 'em with the fluidity and ease of a seasoned politician yesterday defending in the process public accommodations, news management and the veto power for all governors.

Ex-Gov. Bert Combs

The lecture was arranged by the journalism school on an exchange basis in which Mark Ethridge, UNC journalism professor lectured to Combs' class at the University of Massachusetts while Combs lectured here.

The immaculately dressed ex-governor spoke with an air of sincerity as he answered questions tossed to him from a packed room.

Shortly before his retirement from the Governor's chair, Combs enacted a public accommodations law through an executive order. Combs said the move was made to "show the civil rights leaders good faith and to avoid racial demonstrations in Kentucky." The issue became a campaign issue in the last gubernatorial election and was turned down just last week when the Kentucky Legislature refused to pass a public accommodations law.

The present governor, Ned Breathitt, rescinded the executive after the legislature failed to pass the accommodations act.

The economically blighted areas of Kentucky were seen by Combs as "most important."

"We are the most acutely distressed area in the U. S.," he said. The problem is one which has been growing for the last fifty years, and will not be solved overnight.

"A lot of people will have to leave the area, die or just starve before the problem is solved."

Combs said he felt every governor should have a veto power over the state legislature. "It is a necessity by which a governor has a control over the well-being of his state and effecting the programs on which he was elected."

Combs told the large audience he felt a politician had the obligation to "manage the news" in the sense of "presenting the side of the government officials." He cautioned, however, that there should be no "distortion or suppression" involved in the management.

Gals Play Football? Kenan—Friday At 3

By MAT FRIEDMAN

Kenan Stadium is quiet now. But you can feel the tension. The GAME is only three days off.

What game, you say? Well, in case you've been locked up in your room for the last month and haven't heard, the Junior Class Girls' Powderpuff Football League will open its season Friday at 3 p.m. in Kenan Stadium. The "season" will abruptly end an hour later.

All fifty players are junior class girls, as coaches Billy Cunningham and Harrison Merrill can tell you. The public is invited to laugh at, er, watch the fiasco. Just bring 25c & a handkerchief. The latter is for wiping your eyes. Campus Chest gets $50 of the receipts.

The coaching experience of both Cunningham and Merrill is about as wide as the rim of the basket, or the string on a bathing suit, depending on your point of view, so the practice sessions has presented quite a problem, for Cunningham, at least.

Merrill hasn't had any problems so far. He's just been goofing off in the pool all weekend somewhere in New Hampshire. Some people are saying he is just trying to get out of the game. He's been so upset, the rumors go, that he just jumped in the Dartmouth pool and started swimming back and forth so fast that no one could catch him.

Cunningham, for one, has been trying to figure out what to do with a squad of 25 female football. He tried holding workouts on the field, but that didn't work. So for the last few days, he has been holding secret skull sessions behind closed doors.

Reports are that Jim Hickey came down to practice Sunday looking for a good tackle. Cunningham had told him one of the interior linemen almost knocked him out. Hickey reported yesterday that all the players are knockouts. But he still needs a tackle.

Merrill, back in Chapel Hill, is said to be hoping for rain, so his team can swim. If it does rain, his executive committee, the organizers of the event, will probably drown him. Merrill, in case you didn't know, is also president of the junior class.

So if you're looking for good football Friday, go watch the football team scrimmage. But if you want some laughs and good scenery to go with them, drop by Kenan Stadium. You might see almost anything.

Student Party Meets Tonite To Nominate

The Student Party will hold its nominating convention tonight and Wednesday at 7 p.m. in 08 Peabody.

The SP decided on the order in which nominations will be heard at the convention in a meeting Sunday night.

Nominations for the four officers of the Student Body will be followed by nominations for delegates to the National Student Association, editor of the Daily Tar Heel, president of the Carolina Athletic Association, officers of the Senior class and nominees for Student Legislature.

Sunday night's meeting was highlighted by a panel discussion of the present rules for coeds at UNC.

The panel, composed of Madeline Grey, Suzi Sterling and Jeff Davis, agreed that although Carolina is the most liberal of Southern schools in women's rules, it is backward compared to northern universities.

The panel affirmed the need for women's rules on campus, but agreed the rules should and will grow more liberal in the future.

Intercollegiate Seminar Set For April 5-7

The Intercolleigiate Seminar of the 1964 Carolina Symposium will be held the first three days of Symposium Week, April 5-9.

Invitations have been sent to almost every college and university in the East, requesting them to submit several prospective delegates. From these applicants a select group of fifty will be chosen.

Participants will spend the morning examining the previous night's program in closed informal debate. Usually the main speaker of the previous night will participate in the discussion.

In the afternoon, delegates will attend the regularly scheduled Symposium student study groups to hear comments of the UNC student body. In the evening, the Intercolleigiate Seminar students will attend the featured Symposium lecture, listening to speakers such as Senator John Sherman Cooper, David Brinkley, Hans Morganthau and Adam Yarmolinsky. The purpose of these seminars is to further increase the impact of the Carolina Symposium by directly involving the leading students of many of the nation's finest colleges and Universities. The program this year is considered the most ambitious and interesting seminar ever attached to a Carolina Symposium since the program began in 1927.

A number of Carolina students are expected to participate in the Seminar. Interested persons should contact either Steve Denis, chairman, or Larry Ehrhart, vice-chairman, at the Carolina Symposium office, second floor Y-Court.

25 Negroes Fast In Kentucky Legislature

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — A group of Negroes — wearing signs that say "give me freedom or give me death" — took seats yesterday in the gallery of the Kentucky House of Representatives.

A group of 25 civil rights advocates moved into the gallery shortly after noon and took up positions which indicated they would hold a "fast and sit-in to the death."

Frank Staley Jr., Louisville Negro newspaper editor and general chairman of Allied Organizations for Civil Rights, said "we plan to remain in our seats around the clock until the House passes the public accommodations bill, or Gov. Breathitt calls for a special session."

Shakespeare Meet Set For Summer

Visitors to the annual Stratford, Ontario, Canadian Shakespearean Festival will hear talks by leading authorities on Shakespeare from Canada, the United States, and Britain at the seminars, August 2 through 16.

The seminars are organized by the universities of Canada in conjunction with the Stratford Festival. They are intended to enable Festival playgoers to increase their understanding of Shakespeare through attending the plays, listening to lectures by leading Shakespearean scholars, and taking part in discussions during a week in residence at Stratford.

For further information contact Neil Carson, Department of University Extension, Mc Master University, Hamilton, Ontario.

Rooms Deposits Due

Room reservation deposits for the summer and fall terms must be paid to the University Cashier in South Building not later than April 1, Housing Director James Wadsworth announced yesterday.

Enrollment At Record 10,415

The University Admissions Department has reported an enrollment of 10,415 for the University's spring semester, an increase of 1,120 over last year's total.

Of the total, 9,123 students are enrolled in the Division of Academic Affairs, and 1,292 students in the Division of Health Affairs. A further breakdown shows 7,260 men and 1,863 women in academic affairs, and 816 men and 476 women in health afafirs.

A breakdown by schools in the Division of Academic Affairs is as follows: General College 3,329; College of Arts and Sciences, 3,712; business administration, 700; education, 765; journalism, 82; law 352; library science, 83; and social work, 100.

In the Division of Health Affairs, registration by schools is as follows; dentistry, 232; medicine, 376; nursing, 247; pharmacy, 243; and public health, 194.

AUCTION—Campus Chest Auction co-chairmen Mike Doctor and Louise Menefee hold some of the goodies that will go to the highest bidder tonight at 7 in Memorial Hall. They include hats, umbrellas, a ham, shirts, blouses, traveling bar, and Kitty Carmichael's last blooming African violet.
—Photo by Jim Wallace

UNC Gets Grant From Wear-Ever

The Wear - Ever Aluminum Company of Kensington, Penn., has announced that UNC will be one of ten colleges and universities in the country to receive a Wear-Ever Scholarship grant of $500.

This year is the first time a Wear-Ever grant has been received by the University.

Division Sales Manager William P. Crawford presented the check to Chancellor William Aycock who said that it would be placed in the Student General Assistance Fund for use by needy and worthy students.

Model UN Has Many Elements

The United Nations Model General Assembly will be held here next February. This is one in a series of articles designed to acquaint the student body with the Model UN and provide information on how students may participate.

By DOUG TILDEN

The Model UN session combines many elements: the atmosphere of a political convention; interesting and challenging subject matter; an opportunity for personal participation; and the opportunity to meet students who, like yourself, are interested in international affairs. Students who have taken part in such conferences agree that they are exciting, educating and memorable experiences.

Carolina has been elected to host the Model General Assembly in '65 and shoulder the responsibility for the creation of an effective meeting. Preparation and administration of this conference will involve some 75 colleges covering the middle and deep South as well as the Air Force and Naval Academies.

The major responsibilities for organization will go to approximately 15 executives and committee chairmen and in turn to any number of students in the range of 300. These responsibilities include the whole gamut from art and interior decoration, through research and seminars on world problems, down to typing, folding, stuffing, etc. The over-all responsibility is personal contact, a most important function of any administrator.

Interviews for all concerned with next year's mock UN will begin tomorrow in the YMCA-CCUN office (933-2333).

Pollitt Speaks To CCC At 8

Professor Dan Pollitt of the UNC Law School will speak tonight on the "Civil Rights Legislation" which is presently awaiting consideration by the U.S. Senate.

The address is sponsored by the Committee of Concerned Citizens and will be held at 8 p.m. at the First Baptist Church of Chapel Hill.

Professor Pollitt is a specialist in Constitutional law and has written several articles on the American civil rights movement.

Pollitt's address is open to the public.

Volume 72, Number 118 Tuesday, March 17, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel
71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Contradictions As A Way Of Life

The white Southerner is a strange breed of individual, possessing many contradictions, a negative approach to most issues and a regional psyche that is unfathomable except to the most astute observers.

Given an issue in which the arguments for and against are evenly balanced, the Southerner will vote it down 3 to 1 in almost every case. He would also much prefer to think of himself as black-balling one candidate than as voting for another.

All these qualities are, as might be expected, manifested most clearly in the current civil rights fight. The ardent and bitter foes of integration say that the Negro is ignorant and that until he makes some effort on his own to educate himself and earn a place in society, we, the white, have no obligation to accept him as a human being.

This seems to be a reasonable and at least easy answer for many segregationists, but then there comes that little contradiction. James Meredith wants to go to school at the University of Mississippi, and the roof falls in. A Negro coed is denied a library card in Cheraw, South Carolina because the public library is, and as far as many South Carolina whites are concerned always should be, segregated. They don't consider the job of the librarian to be getting as many people as possible interested in books and reading. The job is just to get as many whites as possible interested in books.

And now, the new governor of Mississippi, Paul B. Johnson (who said in his inaugural address in January, "Hate or or ignorance will not lead Mississippi while I sit in the governor's chair.") is trying to close a Negro college near Jackson. Johnson is supporting a state senate bill that seeks to revoke the 1871 charter of Tougaloo Southern Christian College. The problem revolves around the fact that the 522 students at Tougaloo have been active in the civil rights movement. As in many cases, Chapel Hill being an example, this is directly equated with Communism and, as Mississippi's lieutenant governor put it, "queers, quacks and quirks."

Governor Johnson's inaugural promises may sound hollow, but the arguments of the segregationists seem completely empty in comparison. Any educational institution is vital to us, and even more vital in the South. To close, or attempt to close one because the student body agitates for what it has been denied is one of the most callous acts of political ignorance and vindictiveness.

A Gratifying Trend In The University

The Chapel Hill Weekly

The appointment of two new vice presidents of the Consolidated University is gratifying in two important respects.

Particularly gratifying is the fact that Arnold King and Fred Weaver were chosen for the posts. Both have toiled long and faithfully for the University and each richly deserves the sort of recognition the vice presidencies represent.

Among other things, Dr. King has been largely responsible for transforming the Summer Session from a sort of casual interlude into a thriving, integral part of the University's basic program.

Mr. Weaver has risen steadily through the administrative ranks, and in recent years has been particularly effective in dealings with the Trustees and the Legislature.

The Consolidated University has done well by itself in entrusting to them these new and important responsibilities.

Also gratifying is this further proof that the University looks to its own ranks first before attempting to recruit new talent. This has been the predominant trend since William Friday was named President of the University. Among those chosen from the ranks have been William Aycock as Chancellor of the University here, Hugh Holman as Dean of the Graduate School, and most recently Wayne Danielson as Dean of the Journalism School.

The trend has also been apparent along non-academic lines, particularly in sports. When head football coach Jim Tatum died, instead of bringing in an established "name" the University without hesitation gave the job to Jim Hickey who had been a Tatum assistant. The same thing happened when head basketball coach Frank McGuire departed. Dean Smith, McGuire assistant, got the nod and was the only one given serious consideration.

This trend carries with it the danger of excessive in-breeding, particularly as far as academics and administration are concerned. A fresh and unoriented point of view has definite value. But it would seem to be outweighed in the main by the simple justice of rewarding good work and the wisdom of realizing to the fullest your own potential.

The trend is bound to bolster the morale of all University personnel and encourage even more faithful and dedicated service.

As an incentive, there is practically no substitute for knowing there is always room at the top.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken

Before New Hampshire, But . . .

By WALTER LIPPMAN

Writing this piece after the New Hampshire campaign has ended but before the returns are in, I am struck by the very low estimate placed on the American voter by practicing politicians. The outstanding fact about the New Hampshire primary is that no one of the candidates, declared or undeclared, has thought it necessary to make even one considered speech addressed to an adult and informed audience.

The two leading declared candidates — Governor Rockefeller and Senator Goldwater—mentioned most of the topics, domestic and foreign, which are of vital interest to the country. Not even once has either of them discussed any of these topics with any thoroughness or with the recognition of complexity which enables a voter to judge what the candidate would do if he were responsible for action. They have mentioned Cuba, Viet Nam, NATO, inflation, the budget, taxes, and civil rights. Neither of them saw fit to treat any part of the New Hampshire electorate as fully adult and genuinely concerned. It is no exaggeration to say that the intellectual and moral level of this primary campaign reflected the degradation of the democratic process.

It is a significant comment on the quality of the primary that while the two declared candidates were traipsing all over the state like mountebanks trying to beguile the boobs, the undeclared candidates seemed to be gaining strength. I do not know how large a write-in vote Mr. Lodge will obtain. But each vote for a man who has made no speeches at all will be a reflection on the candidates who have been making speeches a dozen times a day.

* * *

What about the Rockefeller and Goldwater estimates of the intellectual and moral level of the citizens of New Hampshire? are the people as dumb as all that? If they are, the outlook for popular government is pretty dismal.

My own view is that Senator Goldwater was just being natural and was on the level to which he belongs. But in the case of Governor Rockefeller what we have been witnessing is a man acting on the prime fallacy of the public relations business. These students of human nature have found through elaborate investigations what is really quite obvious and indeed a truism. It is that most of the people can and do pay only a little attention to public affairs. Most men are quickly bored with public affairs, they are easily distracted, they are too busy, and they are interested in other things. The commercialized mass media cater to this condition of the public mind. They keep their sights down to that level.

But in public life, and indeed, I would say, in journalism and the arts, it is essential to aim higher than the average of the mass audience. For while the men and women who are informed and concerned are only a part of the people, they are a leading part. They have influence far beyond their numbers, not because they are any better than anyone else but because they are believed to have taken the trouble to earn the right to speak on some subject.

It is these influential people who are neglected and ignored in the kind of campaigning which Governor Rockefeller has stooped down to. Incidentally, this may have given a considerable advantage to the non-candidates, who are assumed to have more to say than the candidates are saying.

"That's The Trouble Dealing With People That Can Write"

Over 1964 Campaign

John Kennedy's Shadow

By DOUGLAS KIKER
N. Y. Herald Tribune

If the New Hampshire primary proved nothing else—and an awful lot of people are claiming it proved an awful lot of different things — it did confirm what everybody knew in his private heart all along:

The nation's voters still have not recovered from the political trauma they suffered on Nov. 22, when President John F. Kennedy was killed.

Why is it that 1964 is the year when so far, at least, the future seems to lie in the past? Where is the natural excitement, the quickening of the national pulse and that wonderful fever which a Presidential election gives?

When Americans elect a President they like to keep him for awhile, because the fact is that they do more than elect a President; they create him in their own minds.

Mr. Kennedy had become such an image, and his abrupt, tragic departure left a boiling wake of confusion, fear and doubt, overcast by a prevailing atmosphere of unreality.

Nothing is politically clear, and already it is mid-March. Republicans still are casting around for hard issues and an acceptable candidate to meet the emotional as well as the practical problems caused by the assassination.

The Democrats have their man whether they like him or not, but even he seems to realize that he cannot lay full claim on the office until the whole nation elects him.

Puzzling Parade

Politicking, so far, seems almost like a charade, because of this.

Here are the handful of men to whom luck, ambition and circumstance have given the chance to run for office, and they are performing now in the nation's living rooms — making speeches, taking stands, maneuvering, posturing.

But there is little real excitement among the voters as they sit and watch and identfy them.

"I've got it, you're Scranton, the reluctant candidate. You're Nixon, quiet and purposeful. You're Rockefeller, hot for the job. You're Goldwater, frustrated and beginning to get mad. You, the one standing on the chair, you're Lyndon Johnson, above it all. And you, the one holding Johnson's hand, you're Lodge."

And then someone says, "Enough of this. We're all bored and sleepy. Let's break this up and go home."

This will change in time, no doubt. Once the Republicans settle on a candidate and each party has a major spokesman, issues will naturally sharpen, the necessities of the future will preempt dreams of the past, and some sort of a national debate, resulting ultimately in a November decision, will get under way.

Last week the Republicans finished in New Hampshire and transferred their party struggle west, but the confusion left behind was causing all the comment.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge won and can prove it on paper. But he is the Republican equivalent of the late Sen. Estes Kefauver, it seems, because party leaders consider him a lackadaisical campaigner and an inept politican. And besides, he works for President Johnson.

Both Sen. Goldwater and Gov. Rockefeller spent hundreds of thousands of dollars and hundreds of man-hours pursuing the elusive Yankee loyalty, but then claimed the results didn't mean a thing, and struck out for the West.

California Republicans, not allowed write-ins, must choose between them on June 15, and the early polls favor the New Yorker, hands down. If he does win, that may spell the end of Sen. Goldwater.

But a Rockefeller victory in California might not do him any more good than the New Hampshire win will do Mr. Lodge.

The final beneficiary appears to be Richard M. Nixon, whose Gallup poll ratings are on the rise.

The Brighter Side

Mr. Nixon's political image was further brightened by a poll, conducted by research analyst Lou Harris, and released yesterday in a copyrighted story by the Rochester, N.Y. Democrat and Chronicle. Based on a scientifically-selected cross section of 1,000 homes, it showed that 37 per cent of the Republicans and independents in the area favor Mr. Nixon for President; while 23 per cent would vote for Ambassador Lodge.

The other results gave Gov. George Romney 9 per cent of the GOP and independent vote; Sen. Goldwater 8 per cent; Gov. Rockefeller 6 per cent; and Gov. William Scranton 6 per cent. Mr. Harris said the outcome was "dismal" for Gov. Rockefeller. If Nixon or Lodge fail to run, "Scranton is the bright new face GOP voters would turn to," Mr. Harris added.

At a deadlocked Republican convention, Sen. Goldwater—who couldn't win it — certainly would have a major voice in deciding who was to win. At this point, Mr. Nixon appears to be the only natural and apparent heir to the Goldwater delegate vote.

Gov. Scranton polled only 70 votes in New Hampshire, and to call this a victory is unrealistic, but to call it a defeat is equally so.

He stands now about where he stood before New Hampshire, but he can't continue there much longer if he is to have any chance.

They Question Why

The biggest question of all is not which Republican will get the nomination, but why anyone would want it this year.

Mr. Johnson has moved with dazzling speed to preempt the middle political ground; he has dug in firmly, has good logistical support, and it is difficult to see how any Republican could dislodge him.

The national outlook is good. Employment is up. The tax cut has given every wage-earner an increase in take-home pay. The chances for the civil rights bill look bare, and the President will go down fighting for it in any event. He is "heppin' the po' folks" while he placates the rich. And besides, the average American just doesn't like to have three different Presidents in so short a time.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

Letter To The Editor

On Bynum-Parson 'House Of Straw'

Editors, The Tar Heel:

In deference to the very able academic gymnastics Richard Bynum-Parsons III has set forth for my benefit, laboring under my "burthen" compels me to believe, with no little difficulty, that a final effort can be made to help him see the point. Patiently maintaining a tradition of mutual respect found in the old "Sam and Henry Letters," admired by the editors of The Daily Tar Heel, would be the reasonable way to do this, were it not for the feeling that my adversary's recent journalistic handsprings smack of those learned, and better left, in certain College courses. His ideas spring here and there and wear themselves out in inevitable fallacy. They are reminiscent of those of a minor figure in The Republic who, when asked if he saw the issue, replied that he refused to understand. Nothing new in 505 Ehringhaus.

Mr. Bynum-Parsons has come up with a worthy idea, a Monument Formula, so to speak, deserving close attention. It is unique because it is built on straw. "Would John Kennedy have gotten such a memorial had he died a more prosaic death? Is assassination sufficient reason for such a memorial?" Accordingly, on the basis of Kennedy's largely undetermined "actual greatness" or upon his record of strikes and errors in legislation, Mr. Bynum-Parsons would replace what is in reality a six inch flame, supported by a bronze plate little larger than a coffee saucer, with a broken oar. Had Kennedy been elected by more than a "tiny margin" and better satisfied some of our political views, Mr. Bynum-Parsons would replace the oar with a crutch. Eventually, the "inappropriate markers" chosen by The First Lady would begin to assume their proper meaning. At the risk that some may think I too write for financial gain, I would ask of Mr. Bynum-Parsons what he conceives to be the reason for such a monument?

In its nature to be determined by the Gallup Poll. its design solely dependent upon Official Success or Manner of Death, or is there meaning in a memorial that some of us have not grasped? In his article, Wainwright observes of the cemetery in Arlington that "a hierarchy was evident, reflected in the greater size and varying shapes of the stones which marked the graves of generals and admirals." Near the summit of the hill is the small flame, which Mr. Bynum-Parsons has compared to the smudge pots on Cameron Street. That flame is no more or less than a symbol to remind Man again that he is still so weak as to believe he has the right to take life and law into his own puny hands. Saturday morning at 11:30 in Dallas twelve men and women added fuel to that flame. Petty grievances won't put it out. We are asked to accept only this.

It is time for some of us, who use unwieldy terms, to realize how vital were "Lower-Class Emotions" in building the values of this or any free land. For though commemoration can, concededly, be carried too far, it is to be noted—for those of slippery memory—that Kennedy died in a Lincoln automobile, once viewed the Lincoln Memorial at the end of the Memorial Bridge, once campaigned near Garfield, Ohio. The flame is not out of place nor does it stand alone.

True, there is no justification for apathy: yet I fear that were Mr. Bynum-Parsons' policy of "journalistic discrimination" tenable, many similar well-meant though faulty ideas would stand, uncondemned even by faint praise. It is discrimination of the same breed that permits a handful of men, clinging to the past, to delay one of the "objetive accomplishments" of the late President, begun by Lincoln, now in the Senate. Preferable always will be the policy which tolerates Jabberwock in all its guises, which leaves straw houses to the wind. Nothing new in 505 Ehringhaus.

William M. Garnett
Law School

Charles McDowell Jr.

Organizations To Keep An Eye On

We live in a time of proliferating organizations dedicated to saving us from various things, including ourselves. Some of us have a hard time keeping all these saviors straight in our minds.

Only the other day we heard of some new organization or other that is compiling a guide to patriotic and political-action groups so that we will be able to tell who is saving us from what, and whether it is a good idea.

Pending that clarification, let us try to get ahead of the game. Below is a list of organizations that have not even been formed yet, as far as we know, but probably will be coming along any day now.

Association of Patriotic Americans to Defend the Constitution of Our Forefathers from Further Erosion—This group advocates prompt and orderly repeal of the Constitution.

Free Americans for Free Access to Literature—Demands access to the stacks of public libraries to throw out the dangerous books.

Shame-on-the-Soviet Society — Wants to shame the Soviet Union and reassure world opinion by dismantling the United States Army, Navy and Air Force, and beating all nuclear weapons into plow-shares.

Federated Council of Freedom-Lovers Determined to Free Cuba from Communism — Suggests blowing up Cuba with nuclear bombs.

Committee for Free Speech in the Cinema — Insists that the American subtitles on foreign films be at least as smutty as the original dialogue.

Free Fighters for the Extension of Educational Opportunity — Demands government-subsidized home tutors for children whose parents will not allow them to attend integrated schools.

National Mobility Committee for Absolute Balance of Education Opportunity — Advocates equipping school buses with desks and blackboards so that the children of minority groups will not lose classroom time while being transferred from neighborhood to neighborhood to provide racial balance.

American Federation to Preserve the Fundamentals of Americanism—Wants to require the playing of the National Anthem prior to sit-down strikes, lie-down strikes, street riots, indignation meetings, stonings of indignation, meetings, and bombings.

Committee for Fuller Participation in Public Affairs—Awards medals annually to the citizens of each state who have signed the most petitions.

Patriots' Index Rating Bureau —Issues monthly ratings evaluating oranizations that evaluate the records of members of Congress.

Council to Provide Counsel for Dissenters — Provides legal aid to persons arrested for disturbing the peace by booing speakers, and for persons arrested for disturbing the peace by booing persons who boo speakers.

Nuts Unlimited — Provides temporary sponsorship for any nutty idea that has not found a permanent sponsoring organization.

Heelprints

We notice that I. Beverly Lake lost his voice over the weekend. So it finally caught up with his mind, huh?

* * *

Definition: Procrastination — the next quiz.

* * *

Add five persons to the official attendance at the Eastern Regionals Saturday night. The Uconns were spectators, too.

* * *

High-school librarian Columbus M. Tart has entered the governor's race. But we thought he was booked up for the next four years.

* * *

Governor Sanford's wife is now a Chi Omega. Does that mean she has to eat at The Pines?

* * *

Then there are those clods who never drink at the fountain of knowledge, only gargle.

* * *

Quote of the Week (concerning that mess on Cameron Avenue): "I knew we were Tar Heels, but this is ridiculous."

* * *

Then there's the UNC coed doll—you wind it up and it breaks the Apartment Rule.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

Square Dancing Club—will not meet this week.

Di-Phi—7:30 p.m., 3rd Floor New West, public debate: "Is Preventive War Justifiable?"

Carolina Handbook — 4:30 p.m., all staff members meet at the Old Well (GM Lounge in case of bad weather) to have picture taken, men wear coat and tie.

Caro-Biners—7 p.m., 302 Woollen Gym.

Monogram Club—7:30 p.m., Monogram Club.

Seminars Abroad — 9 p.m., "Germany, Berlin and the Wall Between East and West." Goettingen Exchange Students will take part in leading seminar, all interested students are invited.

Badminton Intramurals — today-Fri., representatives must have entries in by 4:30 p.m. Fri.

Honor Council Training Program — 7 p.m., today and Wed., RP I.

SP — 7 p.m., 08 Peabody, today and Wed., convention.

GMAB President Applications — applications for GMAB president are now available at GM information desk.

WRC — 2-4 p.m., RP II, interviews for WRC chairman candidates.

Election Board — 3-4 p.m., Woodhouse.

Slimnastics Club — 3:45 p.m., Dance Studio.

WAA—5 p.m., Women's Gym, interviews for the office of WAA president.

Freshman Finance Comm. — 7 p.m., RP III.

MOVIES

Carolina — The Brass Bottle
Varsity — Bachelor Tom Peeping.

WEDNESDAY

Review Seminar in Office Psychiatry for the Non-Psychiatrist Physician — 1:30-2:30 p.m., "Alcoholism," south wing, Hospital.

Publications Board — 4 p.m., Woodhouse Room.

Publications Selections Board — 4:30 p.m., Woodhouse Room, choose Yack Editor and Business Manager and approved candidates for DTH Editor.

Duke-UNC Physics Colloquium— 4 p.m., 265 Phillips, "What's Intresting in Alkali Halides," coffee at 3:30 in 227 Phillips.

UP Convention — 9 p.m., Howell Hall, nominations for SL and CAA.

Jr Class "Powder Puff Football" — 3 p.m., Woolen Gym, practice.

Men's Honor Council Interview— 4-5 p.m., Council Room, GM.

Orientation Comm. — 5 p.m. RP III.

Badminton Club — 7 p.m., Women's Gym.

Basketball Club — 4 p.m., Women's Gym.

Stray Greeks — 6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

★ ★ ★

(Continued from Page 1)

graduate courses in History.

When the year was up he traveled to Russia, the Middle East and Africa, in connection with organization and information tasks for NSA and Sen. Humphrey.

During that 1958 summer he witnessed the oppression in South Africa that later became the subject of "Brutal Mandate." Returning to the U. S. that fall, he went to work for Sen. Humphrey as foreign policy assistant.

He returned to South Africa the next summer, and returned a short time later to testify for several of the tribes at the United Nations on conditions there.

The fall of 1959 he began practicing law in New York City. He also got involved in reform Democratic politics there, and ended up as campaign chairman for Congressman Ryan.

During the summer of 1960 he was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles. That fall he made a speech about South Africa at the Overseas Press Club and the MacMillan Company commissioned him to write his book.

He completed the book in the spring of 1961, then was asked to be assistant Dean of Men and an instructor at Stanford University in Palo Alto, California. In the spring of 1962 he was offered his present position, assistant Professor in Social Studies, at N. C. State. He returned to Raleigh that fall.

The spring of 1963 he applied for a leave of absence to take an administrative post with the Peace Corps. But they needed someone for the job sooner than Lowenstein could get there, so he withdrew from the offer.

His teaching position had already been filled for the fall, so he kept his leave of absence and began to think of writing a book about the U. S. racial situation.

"I had taken part in demonstrations in Raleigh that spring," he says, "and there was a lot I wanted to try and say about what was happening with race relations in general. There's a chasm growing between whites and Negroes all over the country . . . ."

But as the summer vacation opened, Lowenstein got a call from a confederation of civil rights groups in Mississippi.

"They said they needed a lawyer. The only white lawyer who'd take a civil rights case had been run out of the state. So I went, expecting to stay only about three or four days.

"It kind of grew into this mock campaign for Aaron Henry for governor."

During this campaign erroneous headlines appeared in North Carolina newspapers about Lowenstein "jumping bond."

What actually happened is that Lowenstein and two other campaign workers were going into a hotel in Clarksdale, Miss., to get rooms for the night.

"While we were crossing the street, the police—who had followed us as they always did—stopped us and said we were under arrest for violating the curfew.

"I asked them how we were supposed to get from our car to the hotel without crossing the street. They took us to jail anyway.

"The attorney said just forget the whole affair as if it was a traffic ticket. The fine has been paid. Just forget it.

"So I did. Somehow that got reported as me jumping bond, but I didn't."

In November of last year, the mock campaign behind him, Lowenstein went to Spain.

"I'd been working with the non-Communist underground there since about 1959," he says. "I'd been there three times before.

"Franco is going out soon and we're trying to get the non-Communist, non-fascist organization so they're prepared to take over."

Lowenstein returned to the U. S. in December and resumed his teaching position at N. C. State this spring.

In his numerous speaking engagements he is helping to publicize a program aimed at helping Mississippi Negroes this summer. It involves over a thousand students, teachers, lawyers and ministers spending part or all of the summer there, engaged in voter registration, educational and community center projects.

He is careful to point out that this is being done at the request of civil rights groups in Mississippi.

Lowenstein — Versatility Is His Byline

★ ★ ★

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

What SOBO Glue Has Joined Together No Man Can Put Asunder
Be Modern . . . Use SOBO
Replaces Old Fashion Goo
Proven Best by Test
BILLY ARTHUR, Eastgate

LOOKING FOR A BRIGHTER FUTURE,
and more security right now! Let me show you how our new Assured Accumultor life insurance policy can help you.
See

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4358
NEW YORK LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

BACK FOR MORE! OVER half of all Northwestern Mutual life insurance policies go to old customers coming back for more. They like what they get! Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

IN LIMITED SUPPLY AT THE INTIMATE
Original Hand Printed Wood Cuts
Numbered and Signed by the Artist.
2.98
AND
4.98
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Until 10 P.M.
ASK FOR OUR SPECIAL FRAMING ARRANGEMENT

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.
BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1
Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes
115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Committee of Concerned Citizens
presents
A PUBLIC MEETING
on
The Civil Rights Bill of 1964
Professor Daniel Pollitt
School of Law, UNC
First Baptist Church on Roberson Street
8:00 P.M. Tuesday, March 17

FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
123 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

Memorial Hall 8:00 p.m., Friday, March 20
All Seats Reserved — Student tickets now on sale at Graham Memorial
General Public may purchase Thurs., March 19 starting at 2:30 p.m. if tickets remain.
ADMISSION $1.50

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Wagers
5. "Jane ——," Bronte tale
9. French landscape artist
10. Prepared
12. Fragrance
13. Dog's skin disorder
14. Affirmative reply
15. Shine
17. Intended
18. Diminish, as the moon
21. Earth as a goddess
22. Celtic goddess
25. Rugged mountain crest
27. Satan
29. To steer wild: naut.
30. Drama: Jap.
32. Renown
33. An acrobatic feat
35. French dramatist
38. Peck
41. Variety of willow
42. Crinkled fabric
44. Canal boat
45. Glacial ridges
46. Bamboo-like grass
47. Underworld river

DOWN
1. Caliber
2. God of love
3. Male cat
4. The theater
5. Clothed in white fur
6. Baker's requirement
7. Scold persistently
8. Border
9. W. Ind. key
11. Longing
16. Loiter
17. Encountered
18. Method
19. Constellation
20. Fresh
22. Topaz humming bird
23. Margosa tree
24. Diminutive
26. Came in
28. Newt
31. Belonging to us
33. Blockade
34. Openings in dresses
35. Crowd
36. Eskers
37. Italian coins
38. A size of paper
39. Top
40. God of pleasure: Egypt.
43. Rodent

Spring Session About to Begin at
WHITE OAK STABLE
Old Durham-Chapel Hill Road
489-6191
The Professional Stable
Qualified Instructors Teach
Hunt Seat Equitation
JUMPING
Elementary Dressage
Special Classes for University Students. Transportation will be provided for minimum groups of 6.
Horses Boarded & Trained — Bought — Sold

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES
Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES
- New Moon
- Ritz-Craft
- Palace

5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East
See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD
DURHAM
Phone 596-8302

Discards from Public Libraries

Books in this offering have only two things in common—they have seen lots of wear and they are cheap.

Assembled from discards and duplicates of various libraries, the the books include a number of excellent but beat-up titles, and none are priced at more than 50c Come in and pick them over in the old book feature case.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 p.m.

NOW SHOWING Varsity

HEAD TURNING
SPRING GLAMOUR
©SCW INC.

Give a life to your drooping winter spirits with a glamorous new hairstyle —maybe a frosting — a free hour of beauty with

Merle Norman Beauty Analysis

During a complimentary make-up that will show you how easily you can be . . .

A MORE BEAUTIFUL YOU
ALL AT THE
CAROLINA BEAUTY SHOP
131 E. Franklin St.
MERLE NORMAN COSMETIC STUDIO
—Joseph, Tommie, Dot, Kittie, Hattie, Sara, all waiting to make yours a spring worth waiting for!
Free Parking 942-4058

'64 Jet-smooth Chevrolet Impala Sport Coupe (119-in. wheelbase)

New Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe (115-in. wheelbase)

'64 Chevy II Nova Sport Coupe (110-in. wheelbase)

'64 Corvair Monza Club Coupe (108-in. wheelbase)

'64 Corvette Sting Ray Sport Coupe (98-in. wheelbase)

Chevrolet will go to any length to make you happy

Things have changed a lot since a Chevy was only a Chevy. Especially your ideas of what you want a Chevy to be.

So now you have the Jet-smooth Chevrolet—17½ feet of pure luxury, bumper to bumper. The size makes it a luxury car. But not the price.

Or you can choose the thrifty Chevy II, a 15¼-foot family car with all kinds of passenger and luggage space.

This year, your choice might be the new 16-foot-plus Chevelle, sized to fit nicely between Chevrolet and Chevy II (and between parking meters, with five whole feet left over).

Then, too, there's the sporty 15-foot Corvair, so right for so many people (you girls, in particular) that we've never touched an inch of it. And finally, Corvette—still 14½ feet and still too much for any true sports-car lover to say no to.

The long and short of it is, you don't have to go to any length to find exactly the kind of car you want. Just see the five different lines of cars at your Chevrolet dealer's.

CHEVROLET

THE GREAT HIGHWAY PERFORMERS Chevrolet • Chevelle • Chevy II • Corvair • Corvette
See them at your Chevrolet Showroom

Quincy and Guests Talk About 'Heels – 5: 45 Daily – WCHL - 1360

Dentist To Fill Gap In Big Alumni Line

By LARRY TARLETON

The sign on the door at 157½ E. Franklin St. says "Andrew Miketa, D.D.S.," but Saturday at Kenan Stadium it will be "Andy Miketa, football player".

Dr. Miketa is one of a host of former Carolina football stars who will be returning to Kenan Stadium for the Varsity-Alumni game on Saturday.

At 2 o'clock (kickoff time) he will forget about filling cavities and try to open some holes in the varsity line.

Fans of the so-called "Justice era" of Carolina football will remember Andy as the 180-pound center of the 1950 Cotton Bowl team which lost to Rice 27-13. This was, of course, the last Tar Heel bowl trip until the successful Gator Bowl venture this year.

Upon graduation, Andy entered the armed services and played two years of service football then signed on with the Detroit Lions. He played with the great Lion teams of '54 and '55 under Buddy Parker, now coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Andy came back to Chapel Hill in 1956 and entered the Dental School. He received his degree in 1960 and Andy Miketa, football player became Andrew Miketa, D.D.S., at least for 363 days a year.

Saturday is the alumni's day. Now in its third year, the game seemed to be headed for disaster the first year. There didn't seem to be enough interest among the alumni and Coach Jim Hickey was about to call the game off when about twenty of the alumni called him from a downtown restaurant saying they were ready to play.

Dr. Miketa says that enthusiasm about the game has increased each year. He says that the alumni really look forward to the game and the banquet after the game. "It gives us a thrill to get out on the field again," Andy said, "Especially after a long winter. John Hammett expressed my feelings about the game in his posters when he said it was 'fall weekend in the spring' ".

The game has been plagued by bad weather and a conflict with the Azalea Festival the first two years causing attendance to be bad.

Miketa—At Home With Drill, Pigskin

How To Become A Duke Fan

By HUGH STEVENS

I went to the Eastern Regionals last weekend as a spectator, but I came away a fan. A Duke fan.

I just couldn't help it. I KNOW I'm supposed to hate Duke and all that, but when I got inside jam-packed Reynolds Coliseum and heard the pep band and listened to those cheers —well, it just seemed right for me to stand up and cheer, too.

Duke had 'em outnumbered in the stands, and at times it seemed they had more than their share on the floor, too. The first game Friday night had been billed as a close battle between the Devils and Villanova's Wildcats, and at times it WAS close (though it never really seemed that way).

Villanova's bright spot was a swift, sly guard named Wally Jones, who shoots like a man falling out of a tree but rarely misses. Duke had so many bright spots you couldn't count 'em.

Brightest of all was Jeffery Mullins, a Lexington (Ky.) lad who has suddenly become the King of a very large Hill. He's been an All-American for a long time, as everyone knows, but in the first half Friday night he was All-Universe. His shooting was deadlier than a pit viper, and he defensed Richie Moore (a soph and the Wildcats' high scorer) like a man with six arms. The only word for it was Vic Bubas' own: "Fantastic!"

Just before the half, Mullins threw one in from the parking lot, and it looked as if the Wildcats were down the drain. Amazingly, however, they came out of the locker room playing honest-to-goodness basketball in the second half, and actually seemed to scare Duke a bit. But the pep band pepped, the cheerleaders led, and young Jeffery rolled in 43 to oust the best team in the East.

The second game Friday was between Connecticut and Princeton, two teams so dull that it seemed neither could possibly win. Bill Bradley proved, even in defeat, that he is a great basketball player, but some of his teammates looked as if they had been introduced to the game rather recently. The main question in everyone's mind was whether either team would dare show up to play Duke Saturday night.

One of them did, and it was a mistake.

If Friday's crowd was wild, Saturday's was insane. (Some of those Duke fans WILL walk to Kansas City if necessary, I think.) And they had a lot to yell about.

Mullins' pre-game introduction brought a two-minute standing ovation from the fans, a great tribute to a great star. The rest of the Blue Devil introductions were lost in the din.

Tison scored first, and the noise brought me right out of my seat. Then Mullins hit, and the roof rocked. By the time he came slithering down the floor alone for his second bucket (a fantastic drive through 60 per cent of the Uconns), it was apparent that Kansas City was as close as the concession stand.

The halftime score was an unmerciful 62-27, and the coliseum crowd sat in awe of the massacre they were witnessing. When the Uconns staggered out for the final 20 minutes, someone high in section boomed, "WHAT? THEY SHOWED UP!" It did seem a miracle.

The final 101-54 margin was as anti-climactic as a Liz Taylor wedding. Perhaps the most remarkable thing was that Duke managed to score 100. Ted Mann was sent in with about six minutes to go, obviously to hold the score down. He did a bang-up job.

By the end, though, when Mullins had departed and the pep band itself was drowned out by the jubilation of 10,000 Duke fans, I just couldn't help myself. I clapped along with "I'm going to Kansas City" with those 10,000.

For there was no denying it. Duke WAS going to Kansas City, and everyone there had the same feeling. They just might come back with the key to the city.

Elon Opens UNC's Grapefruit Season

North Carolina's baseball team opens its "Grapefruit Season" this afternoon with a three o'clock game against Elon at Emerson Stadium. And after a tune-up game against the UNC frosh yesterday, Walt Rabb is still looking for his boys to show that they can hit something smaller than a grapefruit — like a baseball.

Hitting, however, is not expected to be a problem for the Tar Heels this spring. There are four ".300 hitters" in the line-up (Tom Wright, Jim Speight, Dickie Prindle and Ken Boykin) and Rabb also has the long-ball men in Ken Willard and Bill Brown. The potential is there. It's just a case of the players feeling at home up there at the plate once again. And in a short season such as the colleges play, the batters can't delay.

The varsity and frosh got in eight innings with Spence Willard, Bobby Cox and sophomore Buddy Cohoon doing the pitching for the varsity.

"I was pleased with Willard's job on the mound," said Rabb. "He's been bothered with a shoulder sprain and this was his first scrimmage work. On the other hand, Cox wasn't sharp at all."

Sophs Beattie Leonard and Mike McLaughlin and vet Bill Haywood will hurl this afternoon against Elon. In addition to this one, UNC will have two practice games against Duke, here on Thursday, there on Friday. The season opens next Monday against Connecticut.

Tankmen Finish 3rd Behind Yale, Army

Swimming coach Pat Earey needs a pole long enough to reach the clouds.

"My swimmers are all sitting on cloud nine," he said happily. "I've got to get them back down into the pool again so we can start getting ready for the National Championships March 26."

The Tar Heels assumed their heavenly perch last weekend when they surprised everybody including themselves with third place finish, behind Yale and Army, in the Eastern Championships at Hanover, N. H.

"The boys really outdid themselves," Earey said. "The Eastern Championships is strictly the big leagues of swimming, and that's the way the kids performed."

Earey only took six—the best of a club that won 12 of 14 meets and a share of the ACC Championship along with Maryland.

The six, however, swam like sixty. All-America Harrison Merrill won the 500 (5:02.0) and 1650 yard freestyles (18:09.4). Both marks represent pool, ACC and Eastern Championship records.

Thompson Mann, Carolina's All-America backstroker just missed the national record in winning the 100 back. He was half a second off the mark at :54.3—and he lost valuable time on a missed third turn. Mann also took a second in the 200 back with a time of 2:00.9.

Sophomore Rick Forum finished third in 200-yard breastroke, breaking his own school record with a time of 2:20.3.

Both Carolina relay teams finished in the money—and both set new ACC records. The medley relay team (Mann, Forum, Fred Lipp, and Davis Roberts) finished third (3:41.8). The freestyle outfit (Merrill, Mann, Roberts and John Sheldon) cut three full seconds off their best time with a mark of 3:15.0. They, too, were third.

In all, Earey's men broke five Conference, and two Eastern Championship records.

Hornung, Karras Welcomed Back By Pete Rozelle

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pro football stars Paul Hornung and Alex Karras, who were suspended last year for betting, were reinstated Monday and then welcomed back by their coaches with promises they won't be traded.

Hornung, the "golden boy" from Notre Dame who led the league in scoring three times for the Green Bay Packers, and Karras, 250-pound all-star tackle of the Detroit Lions, were banned from the National Football League last April 17 "indefinitely."

All-Campus Final Tonight

By PETE GAMMONS

Tonight at nine ATO and the Ehringhaus Aces will square off to decide the intramural All-Campus Basketball championships. Both are the Blue Division winners in their respective class.

The Aces are made up of what are commonly called the campus "jocks," consisting of one baseball captain and four football players. Baseball Captain Bill Haywood is the lone non-footballer in the starting lineup, and is averaging around seven points a game. Frank Gallagher, starting end on the football team, usually plays the pivot, flanked by Haywood and fullback Eddie Kesler. At the guards are Jimmy Gallagher and Junior Edge. Richie Zarro is the top reserve.

ATO, last year's champs, have been led all year by Sammy Simpson, who consistently has been their top scorer, averaging around fourteen points. Watts Carr usually has been the runner-up to Simpson in the scoring. Buff Moore, Jim Corbett, and Dickie Fleming should be the other ATO starters. To say that ATO is the favorite just because they are defending champs is hard to do especially since they lost last year's star, Roger Pendland, to garduation.

Sport Shorts

Mike, Mac, Charlie Play In High Point

Mike Cooke, Charlie Shaffer and Bryan McSweeney will play in the Boys Home Invitational basketball game tonight at the High Point College Gymnasium.

The game pits the "Big Four" seniors against the Carolinas Conference seniors. Joining the UNC stars on the Big Four squad are: Pete Auksel, N. C. State; Frank Christie, Richard Carmichael, Butch Hassell and Brad Brooks all of Wake Forest; and Terry Holland of Davidson who received a special invitation to play.

The Carolina Conference All-Stars won last year's game 82-81.

Talbott, Beaver Star In Scrimmage

Sophomore quarterbacks Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver tossed touchdown passes Saturday as North Carolina's football team held a full-scale off-season scrimmage session.

When the Blue team, the losers, reached field goal territory, Coach Jim Hickey gave Talbott the go-ahead to change sides and try to boot it. He made the goal good from 30 yards. He also kicked a 25-yard field goal for the Whites, the winners.

Talbott's 27-yard touchdown pass to end Frank Gallagher opened the scoring. Beaver flipped one to Max Chapman who carried it over from the 18.

Imported
PIPES & TOBACCOS

• Pouches • Humidors
• Accessories
VARLEY'S
144 East Franklin St.

HEAVENS ABOVE!
IS A HIT!
"A brilliant comedy ★★★★."
Kate Cameron, N. Y. NEWS
"It has to be one of the best pictures of the year."—Archer Winsten, N.Y. Post
"Devastating to the well-tuned funny bone!" Bosley Crowther, N. Y. TIMES
"HEAVENS ABOVE!"
Starring
PETER SELLERS
WEDNESDAY ONLY
Carolina

PATRONIZE YOUR
• ADVERTISERS •

Connoisseur's Heaven

If you have that keen sense of good taste that labels you as an expert on smart attire, you'll flip for all those innovations we have introduced this spring. You won't find another store anywhere that carries such a vast array of pure traditional clothing, all at with-in reach quotations. Dacron-wool suits from $59.95; summer sport coats from $32.50; new stove-pipe bermudas from $4.95; finest half sleeve button - down shirts in our own inimitable M-2 perfect roll and taper with longer narrow half sleeves from $5.95.
Hitch your wagon to a star and join the knowledgeable or cognoscenti who have made Milton's a clothing mecca.
MILTON'S CLOTHING CUPBOARD

GANT

COUNTY FAIR
A tweedy cotton that gives this Gant sport shirt a rugged traditional look. Add Gant's meticulous tailoring and Gant's handsome flared button-down collar and you have a truly distinctive sport shirt.
Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

©1963 VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.
"Suggested Retail Price P.O.E. $1595. Local taxes and other dealer delivery charges, if any, additional."
There are some gripping reasons.
It would be worth having big wheels on the VW just so it could have big tires.
Why? Because big tires hold the road better and last longer than little tires.
But that's only half of it.
The Volkswagen people put those big wheels on the VW so that we could have bigger brakes, too.
Obviously, the bigger the brakes the surer the stops.
The big wheels also let nice fresh air in to cool the brakes more quickly.
Which means that the VW's brakes always come back for more, no matter how hard you step on them.
The VW's wheels are bigger than they have to be because VW likes to overdo things in a big way. (like the fourth coat of paint that you really don't need, either.)
So when you drive away in your new VW, you can expect about 40,000 miles on the original rubber. (Which is roughly twice what you can hope for on most other cars.)
But you'll have to go a long way to beat the record held by Mr. Robert Walton of Homestead, Florida.
He chalked up 103,345 miles on his original set of 5 tires.
Which is quite a stretch to go without getting tired.
TRIANGLE MOTORS, Inc.
616 W. Chapel Hill St. Durham
Open Friday Nights 'til 9
AUTHORIZED DEALER

Rathskeller
ST. PATRICK'S LUNCHEON SPECIAL
A MUG OF GREEN IRISH BEER
and
A HOT PATRICK SAUSAGE PLATTER
Potato Salad and Slaw
P.S.
To luncheon and dinner patrons:
One free mug of Green Irish beer
if you have an Irish name—
I.D.'s necessary.

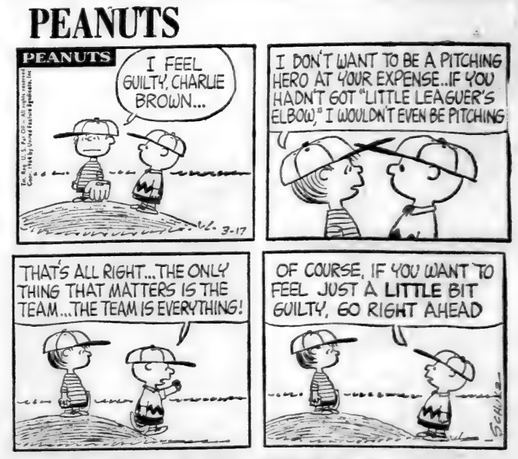
sero
OF NEW HAVEN

high caliber PURIST®
The Purist® model button down has a primary purpose in life . . . resolved to keep you in neat trim shape, no matter what the season. Made with full flare and slightly higher collar . . . in Pima cotton or Oxford cloth . . . half sleeves. This is shirtmanship.
Town & Campus

PEANUTS



La PIZZA ANNOUNCES
PIZZAGHETTI BOARD

For Those Who Really Like To Eat BIG and Spend little
A Smorges Board of Pizza and Spaghetti For Only 2.00
ALL YOU CAN EAT
All Small one Ingredient Pizzas or all Large Spaghetti with Garlic Bread
ALL YOU CAN EAT!
LA PIZZA Every Tuesday Night (Between 7-9 p.m.) LA PIZZA

★ ★ ★ The Daily Tar Heel ★ ★ ★

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, Tuesday, March 17, 1964 | SECTION B

The Favorite Sport: Fashions For Spring '64

Coordinated

by

Diane Hile

Photos

by

Jim Wallace

Fashions

by

The Fireside

The Hub

Little Shop

Models

Ella Stephenson

Gail Hearn

Nancy Pruitt

Nancy Jones

Jeanne Payne

Jim Mannino

Bobby Neville

Tom Fry

New Clothes And The National Sport

The 'Little Girl' Look Is Here; Our New Spring Fashions For '64

For every sport there is a uniform suitable—to be able to spot one team member from his or her opponent. Sports and spring go together. This is an established fact. One must dress appropriately for the sport one prefers. We hope that the Carolina student prefers a wide variety of sports—not so many as to get confused or too few as to not get enough exercises.

CROSS COUNTRY—A PREVIEW IN GENERAL

Everything across the footpaths, brick walks and through the arboretum is casually sexy. Baggy but sexy. The unhampered look adds to the straight, blunt cut hair styles and the coquettish bangs. We call it "the little-girl look." It is a great distraction to the other team.

Flowers abound everywhere. Where once bold stripes distinguished the coed from the surrounding gardens and fields, she is now camouflaged in her environment, thus making it easier for her to take short cuts to get ahead in the race.

If our across country girl still has those few extra winter pounds, she can easily "shift" her weight. The big shift is back, but this time, it is lace, frills, flowers and smocking.

GOLF—HOW TO SWING

The big shift is important here, too. Skirts, shirts and light sweaters are par for the course. Pants come in all lengths.

This year's "in" design is anybody's guess.

Teams can come in foursomes — bermudas, skirts, swimsuits and shifts—all in the same pattern and design. Culottes and wrap - arounds are great handicaps. However, the object seems to be to look as if you have these high handicaps and be sporting a low one (i.e. a skirt that looks like a culotte or wrap around.)

However, most coeds shoot way over par — especially if they know the score. Collars in shirts have turned "choir boy"—and they come in solid pastels. The "pro" shops are also selling Irish linen blouses, not to mention the ones with ruffles and lace.

TENNIS—THE BIG RACKET

First of all, love means nothing in tennis.

Therefore, a girl must score to win this game. The big racket is being a "little girl." Flowers and ruffles add quite a hit — and are a smashing success.

Low cut necklines are being predicted. However, on our campus, success will be very slow.

We have mentioned ruffles and lace. Lace is sweet. Ruffles are a backhanded way of upsetting your opponent. They are lining the neck and hems of everything and are quite distracting.

One last thought that might drive the opponent forever into the net. Lingerie is also flowered petticoat in rather underhanded or undercover, admittedly. But who said we had to play by the rules anyway?

THINKING AND SWIMMING AT THE SAME TIME

Swimsuits can or cannot leave much to the imagination. There are all kinds of suits — overblouse, two-piece, one-piece and miscellaneous. If one prefers the miscellaneous, there is infinite room for deep, plunging, diving necklines or great billowing shift type bathing suits.

No matter what kind of bathing suit you pick, make sure it looks good on you, not the model. Leather trimming and zippers are in the new lines. Wild floral prints and feminine frills are found everywhere. And yes, there is leopard skin for the eccentric and accentric alike.

The "little girl look" goes to the beach with a rash outbreak of overblouses that match the swimsuits. These high empire shifts (most of them are) are perfect to give that sweet innocent bedraggled little girl look.

With all this frippery on the waterfront, one must make sure that it's the right boy you pick to give up the race and start the chase.

Look before you drown.

PARTIES AND OTHER PSEUDONYMS

For the formal pledge weekends and other springtime festivities conformity is shed in the light of being different. The object is to get a formal dress no one else has seen or is wearing.

This is the great sport. Slinky fully-length dresses that fit in the right places are good to use as a uniform. There are no teams in this game—it's every female for herself. Jewelry is used only sparingly. Most of the new dresses have gorgeous material and simple design. Low-cut necks in the collegiate set are receiving a reluctant acceptance. Nevertheless, individuality and simplicity in formals is still the trend—a very nice trend.

For other social gatherings —bashes and the like—the fashion ranges from school-type clothes to what you found below your old shoes and dirty laundry in the bottom of your closet.

To be a well dressed beach bum you have to look cool without trying. Carolina and Greek sweatshirts are too obvious. A sweatshirt swiped from the Carolina Athletic Association is cool. Bermuda and shoe styles are optional. They can be the very latest or the very oldest—but avoid the in-between.

Seriously, the well-dressed hell raiser will find that the hell raising styles worn this year are the same as last year. This presents complications. However, we did have a beautiful spring last year and I'm sure your wardrobe was well-worn enough to try something new this year.

Tar Heel Staff Sports New Fashions; Gives Campus Both Color And Style

By DIANE HILE

Ahh! sweet spring has come to the DTH office.

—The "Hate" signs on the wall have acquired a greenish caste to them.

—There's a balmy atmosphere that surrounds each person who comes into the newsroom.

—The shrunken head that once hung from the neon light is now placed at the desk of the Associate Editor.

The New Fashion?

—There are kites and bananas everywhere.

And Spring fashions in the DTH office? Here we go.

COLORS

The colors for spring are quite radical. There is Communist Red and a more conservative staff orange (often called Monarchist Orange by the Irish.)

Black and white checks and stripes have been drawn and designed very carefully to accentuate their sharpness and contrast. However, various shades of Newsroom Grey are also noticeable.

STYLES

DTH styles for this year are very individualistic.

One editor prefers the brisk, exciting styles that a designer can capture only when he has complete control over every situation. He likes his stripes slanted in one direction — to the left, never straight up and down.

The other editor prefers the low slung belted look that makes it hard for any costume designer to sling much lower.

The managing editor is a conservative dresser. He dislikes pinks, reds and black and white checks. He likes the tight fitting and cool looking cuts as described in many and various UDT wire service feature stories.

The associate editor goes for snappy designs. They give him a feeling of importance. He likes to condemn critical cuts and does so often by wearing some dolled up designs of some heel's prints. He's very touchy about his various shades of grey—but is also known to be relative about his preferred shades.

The news editors are purely relative in their stylistic position. First, its hard to find out who the news editors are. Usually, the news editors are a conservative lot. They are fairly reasonable about their colors and cuts. However, recently a nice sort of pink and a native looking design has infiltrated the news editor's ranks.

The reporters dress in every wild design possible. This year's crop of reporters has ranged from lizzard green to kite blue. Some have advanced in their cuts and designs and become the epitome of DTH fashion—a DTH editor of sorts. The average reporters' tastes are somewhat dubious. Aside from fashion they not only like kites, but demonstrations, ice cream cones and libel.

The Sports, Photography, and Business Departments are jungles of design all their own. The politics of colors and designs do not enter into these inner sanctums. However, the Sports Department was known to be a little off-color this year.

Yes, wonderful spring has come to the DTH office. Not only are they in style, but various individuals have put non DTHers out of style.

I must make note, as the snarling ex-Woman's editor of DTH and flunky for the Business Department, that my observations of the DTH fashions have no reflection on the DTH as a paper.

The Long Formal

Story

at

Little Shop

A SPRING INVITATION

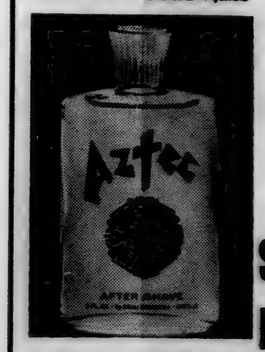
(With Emphasis on Savings)

The Most Refreshing Scent in Men's Toiletries

IS 'SCENT-SATIONAL'!

Discriminating, casual, bold. AZTEC gives you an invigorating sense of self assurance . . . keeps your skin cool and comfortable all day!

AZTEC AFTER SHAVE—$2.50



Exclusive with us!

Short Sleeve SHIRTS in Batiste Oxford Stripes, Madras Seersucker, Cottons

$4.95

★ ★ ★

SLACKS by HUBBARD in Dacron & Cotton

$8.95

SWIMWEAR by Rugby from $3.95

BERMUDAS from 5.95

65% Dacron Polyester 35% Combed Cotton

CAMPUS STYLE

W. Franklin St. "Where Chapel Hill & Carrboro Join" Phone 929-1558

"Commuter" Wash and Wear Poplin Suits

Keep that comfortably correct look all summer. Choose a cool Dacron® and cotton poplin from our broad range of colors. Colors which include: suntan, putty, olive, navy. All masterfully tailored to keep their soft shoulder shape in wilting weather, by College Hall, naturally.

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin St.

Don't go down to the sea again until you've seen the bevy or seaworthy fashions we've collected for your summer in the sun. Swimsuits, beautifully bared, add up to more fun "on the beach"

The FIRESIDE

117 E. Franklin Street

Behind The 'Little Girl' Look: 'Big Boy' Attraction

Stay At Home And Play The Piano . . .

Or A Hand Of Bridge . . .

Or Go To A Party . . .

Or Go Out . . .

For A Game Of Tennis . . .

Or In A Sports Car

Or Relax With A Drink . . .

On The Links . . .

—Sketches by Barnard

The Smooth New Look For Spring Includes Blunt Cut And Bangs

By DIANE HILE

They're shrinking heads in the beauty salons.

Once you walked into the beauty shop and came out looking as if your hair was going to take you around the world for 80 days. Now you walk out looking as if it belonged to you.

Naturalism is the look. Long, sleek, shining, healthly-looking hair that sparkles in the sunlight.

Bangs and blunt cuts are the stylists' specialties. Hair is shaped so that it falls smoothly and evenly, with a slight bit of height in the crown of the head.

TEASING AND HAIR SPRAY

Hair must look as if it was just carefully brushed and set in place. Teasing made hair look gooey and oversprayed. The now slightly ruffled-smoothed over styles still require hair spray, but it is best to put the spray on your brush and then apply it to the hair.

This simple trick gives hair body enough to keep it from flying all over the place, yet, keeps hair from getting that glued look.

Another trick for new hair styles applies to the little loose ends that fly around after most of your hair is in place. When you have combed your hair in the manner you desire, spray it lightly. Take an old scarf and place it over your head. Press the scarf over your hair lightly. When you remove it, your hair will have a smooth finished look.

CUT OF THE HAIR

If you think you can cut your own hair — watch out. The new blunt cut is not that easy to cut and cut well. It is best to go to a good stylist.

Bangs and middle - length hair are the style. "Little-girl bangs make the wearer of spring fashions as feminine and frilly as she should be. Bangs are the length that just barely touch the eyebrows. They can be combed to one side, or parted down the middle as the wearer wishes.

Bangs encourage the use of head bands and ribbons. They have also detracted from the use of heavy eyebrow pencil and encouraged the use of heavier eye liner. The amount of hair the girl wishes to use in bangs depends upon the girl. Some like just a few bangs, while others prefer a heavy line of bangs on their face.

Blunt cuts are perhaps the biggest time saver to come into style for a long time. Blunt cut hair looks neat before and after swimming. Wet stringy hair is no longer a problem. Just apply a comb, a head band and forget it.

Blunt cuts have also made hair rollers decrease in importance. Most girls have found that pin curls and clips can bend the hair just enough to give it a very casual or page boy. However, for more formal occasions, rollers give added height and a tighter bouffant or flip.

COLOR OF HAIR

Silvery shades are still with us, but the hair color must look more natural. For some reason, frosting is very popular on this campus. However, frosting and these new "little-girl" hair style do not coin-highlight rinses in almost every shade of blond imaginable—and still look natural. The "just came out of the great outdoors" shade of blond is more coordinated with the new hair styling than the ermine-lined and "not a hair out of place" look of the frosted hair.

Frosting to a moderate extent, however, can look somewhat natural. But, if your skin coloring and your frosted hair don't pass as a natural pair, it's best to let the frosting grow out.

After all the years of blonds and brunettes, the brown and ash brown hair color is "in."

Highlights, hair rinses and style is to your advantage. The brownette should look as natural as possible. Sheek, shining, brown hair can look as pretty or prettier than streaked blond or too-severe brunette hair. Your makeup and your hair color should be natural—not so natural as to look dead — but natural enough to complement.

The brunettes will have a problem of severe coloring. Softness should be stressed. Red highlights in brunette hair can often soften coloring. Jet black rinses—unless comavoided, as well as blue-black rinses.

Redheads have a problem all their own. With the new blunter straighter hair, redheads seem to be given a break. Red hair and high, teased styles were not flattering. However, the sleek and natural look plays upon the shining beauty red hair can have. Color should not be touched, and natural makeup can flatter the color. It should be a great season for redheads.

FORMAL STYLES

Along with bangs and less teasing, the hair has gone to the top of the head for formal wear. We are now getting styles called "beehives" and "doughnut holes" that are high in the crown and piled or wrapped around the top of the head. Every effort is made to avoid having the hair looking teased.

Hairpins, like grandma used to use, are needed more than ever before. Little short ends that poke out or will not stay anchored cannot be held down with hidden bobby pins amid a mass of teased hair—there is no mass of teased hair under which bobby pins can hide. If you are opposed to using hairpins because you dislike them falling down the back of your neck, insert them so that they will hook into place. This is done by inserting the pins in the opposite direction you want them to go and then turning them around in your hair so that they anchor in the right direction. The trick is easily mastered by watching a beauty operator. Hairpins can be hidden and will anchor hair without spoiling the sleek looking lines.

In formal styles, teasing is often required to get hair piled up to the top of the head. However, using a brush to smooth hair down will hide the fact that your hair was teased. Don't be afraid to use hair spray to get that smooth look. After teasing, spray and then apply a brush to move your hair about in the direction you wish it to go. It's not too hard to fix any style you want using this method.

THE GIRL WATCHERS LIKE IT

It's a known fact that our local guys like the smooth look. Healthy, pretty hair attracts our Carolina males like flys to hair spray. They say its "sexy." So, I guess it's sexy. However, watch out. There is very little difference between this new "sexy" hair style and the ratty, stringy look of the Halloween witch. If you look like you should be riding a vacuum cleaner through the pumpkin fields instead of a bicycle — forget this article. There are other ways to arrange hair "sexy."

SPRING JEWELRY

Pins lead as a popular jewelry form due to their versatility. They can be worn on all types of fabric, on most apparel and changed about in every conceivable angle. Flap-pockets on spring suit jackets can be dramatized with single bold clips. A burnished gold pin touched with diamonds lends elegance to snap-on-and-off stoles featured in wool suits.

Collarless suits demand adornment; a scarf anchored with an impressive pin, or a choker necklace worn in combination with a pin set at the shoulder level. Coats, also collarless this season, yield to scarf-pin accents for soft flattery to the face.

Sweater suits and fine knits put jewelry on display. V-necklines need fill-in focal points such as pins at the base of the neckline. A sentimental gold engraved locket centered with a diamond returns as a favorite for the plunging neckline. Ornate clasps on necklaces add design interest when worn center front.

Chanel's influence continues as cardigan suits call for jeweled touches on neck and shoulder lines. The "little boy suit" with rounded collar assumes a jeweled freshness when twin pins are placed below it and not on its edges.

Jackets in Colorful Madras

A rainbow of Madras patterns. Authentic bleeding Madras imported from India will let you express your sporting instincts. Almost weightless, they will hold their natural shape, make you feel like a burra sahib. By College Hall, naturally.

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

Spring Fills The Air

Bright notes of Spring from ROSSILLINI DEBS put you in a gay dress-up mood with young fashion fresh designs . . . cutouts . . . setback heels . . . stacked heels . . . popular toe shapes . . . Top: Black patent, 12.98. Upper center: Bone Calf, Black patent, 14.98. Lower center: Navy Calf, Black patent, 12.98. Bottom: Textured bone platinum, 12.9.

Say it beautifully with EASTER CARDS

NOW ON DISPLAY

Easter is March 29

- CUTE
- SOPHISTICATED
- SENTIMENTAL

Easter Cards of All Kinds

FAVORS AND PARTY SUPPLIES IN THE PARTY SHOP

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

at Sharyn Lynn Shoppe

Madras Jumper $12.98

"Ticking Aweigh." cotton stripped maillot top; pert skirt over stretch nylon shorts; $14.98

Spring Is Nigh and Fun Follows

CHOOSE SPORTSWEAR AND FASHIONS FROM SHARYN LYNN'S EXCITING ARRAY—TODAY

DRESS JUMPER SHIFTS
by Bobbie Brooks, R. C. Quinn, Stacy Ames, Alison Ayres.

SPORTSWEAR
by Bobbie Brooks, Cos Cob, Monocle, New Era. Sizes 5-18

SWIM SUITS
by Bobbie Brooks, Beach Party, Mariana del Mar. Sizes 5-18

LINGERIE
by Playtex, Maidenform, Aristocraft, Blue Swan

plaid Jamaica collor blouse 3.98
solid Bermuda walkers 4.98

CAROLINA—
- Sweat Shirts
- Night Shirts
- Windbreakers
- Mugs

Sharyn Lynn Shoppe
135 EAST FRANKLIN

Men's Fashions Have Smart Look

If variety is the spice of life, then the men's apparel picture for spring is alive with the greatest diversification in colors and styles in many a season.

Dark tones, including blacks, near blacks and deep tones of blue and brown have moved from the style stage center for the new season, says the American Institute of Men's and Boys' wear.

In suits the greatest upsurge is in shades of gray—light silvery grays predominate in plain smooth fabrics, fine checks, muted glen plaids and nailhead patterns. Dark shades will not disappear—it's simply means some cool, light and bright treatments are now added.

The new wide range in styling is reflected in the popularity of two-button suits and one - button styles, both of which are giving the three-button models competition. The single-button style with tailored shoulders, slightly fitted waist and restrained tailoring offers a flattering trim look and will be the choice of many.

Suit fabrics likewise are in great variety. At one end of the scales for dressy occasions are dozens of silks and silk blends—lustrous and luxurious all the way through. These are balanced by pure worsteds and many different polyester-worsted blends.

In warm weather washable cottons and cotton blends will abound, together with the tropical worsteds and woolens.

Topcoats run the same exciting gamut in colors, with the addition of camel and tan shades. As in suits, smooth sharkskin, glen plaids, houndstooth and nailhead patterns are favored. The spring topcoat gets a dressier look, too, because it is often made of lightweight suiting material, and will consequently be worn later in spring and earlier in fall. The slim, elegant look is best noted in flyfront chesterfield models and the topcoat with natural shoulders is still very popular. One such treatment with tweed on one side and poplin on the other makes a most practical coat for travel, for campus wear and for sheer utility in every man's wardrobe.

Waterproof finishes make many a topcoat acceptable in all but the heaviest downpour, while regular raincoats also boast new, high-efficiency water - proofing treatments. Plastic undercoating on some of the new fabrics achieves this effect while permitting the material to "breathe." Also be on the lookout for cotton and blended fabrics laminated to polyurethane foam—the choice of many for sports and country wear.

In shirts, the British are getting credit for the bold stripe effects now making a play for dress wear along with the ever-popular white and solid pastels. Broad and bold stripes are apparent along with narrow types, pin stripes and clusters. The new shirt collars have taken on a bit more height and width of spread, while neckwear is tending to a dressier, fuller look. Thus the wider collar spread is complimented by slightly wider ties, which more than incidentally are boasting a lot of color variety to contrast with the pale grays in suits.

Slacks for wear with sport jackets are slim and trim in both plain-front and pleated models.

The shapes of the season's hats top all for variety. There are more smart shapes, more new crowns than almost ever before. Brims still remain basically narrow. The younger set may wear a brim no wider than 1¼ inches. More conservative is the two-inch style. While crowns with the simple center crease are much favored, pinched front treatments are now in evidence, some with long side dents. The same range applies to the season's new straws, many of them as easy to shape and as crushable as fabric types.

All in all, it looks as if the straight and narrow in male apparel is due for some broadening, relaxation and diversity.

Sportswear Takes On New Look

America's colorful West and the clean blues of the seashore and mountains combine to give inspiration to three major themes in new sportswear for Spring.

Under Western influence comes all the cowboy-type things like sport shirts in calico prints or big flashy checks and trousers in denim and chambray. Rivets, contrasting stitching and novelty patterns are seen in profusion in this brand new trend.

The nautical look, introduced last season, has settled into the scene solidly this Spring, with blue in every hue evidenced widely. Sparkling navy blue joints with a range of pastels to offset to perfection a new range of silvery "pewter" grays. They also look clean and bright with white.

Even the bell bottom sailor trousers of the Twenties get into the nautical act. Salty crew-neck and boat-neck knit shirts go with the white ducks—and team well with walk shorts which are a must practically everywhere.

The sportswear picture which often transplants the ski look to summer fun, is further filled in by the trend to coordinates in smart weekend wear. Sport jackets, slacks and walk shorts are often from the same bolt of cloth. The patterns and solids they go with are coordinated in texture, and sometimes have trimming in the opposite mix-math pattern.

Not only are the colors easier on the eye because of this ensemble planning, but there are some inspired new shades to add to familiar favorites. One major color theme newly introduced is "banana," a handsome soft yellow that teams well with browns and grays. And there tre rusts and tans that do nicely with olives.

Hand-knit sweaters and hand-knit-type sweaters are popularly seen everywhere. Cables and a score of novelty stitches are widely evident, as well as the ski-type argyle patterns—all, of course, light in weight for the warmer days ahead. Spring sportswear has even borrowed parka hoods from the ski slopes, to go with sailing costumes.

Pleatless and single - pleat slacks are sharing honors this season—in flannels, gabardines and mengalines. Wash - wear cottons may be expected to be worn with the first warm week.

There is nothing to beat the current popularity of Bermuda walking shorts in Madras—that muted melange of colors that actually improves in looks with washing. Plaids and checks, and stripes and solids also come in for plenty of attention.

Not least in the fresh new wardrobe for springtime sports occasions is any of the big range of straw casual hats. Watch for them in small pert shapes or wide-brimmed sombreros. Sports caps, in cloth or leather, still have their avid followers — especially among golfers, sailors and the sports-car set.

All in all, the big word in sportswear for Spring is variety. Old favorites remain and are holding their own—while there is much that is new to add to the scene.

Fine Spring Fashions
Call for and Deserve

Tailoring & Alterations By A Master Craftsman

PETE THE TAILOR
133 ½ E. Franklin St.

Sunglasses '64

The outlook from the glasses is all colors.
Sunglasses are wild, man.
They are square.
They are large.
They are small slits.
They have pink glass.
They have green glass.
They are red and yellow.
They are sometimes impractical.
They are most often practical.
They are French or American.
They are not so much Italian.
They look delicate.
They are durable.
They are great for girl watching.
They are great for boy watching.
They are great for hangovers.
They are great for beach and hangovers.
They are great for sun.
They are great for incognito.
We need 'em.
Above all, we're ivey . . . We have to come in shades.

THE HUB WELCOMES SPRING

The Latest Look in SPORTCOATS

There is a variety of new looks in Sportscoats to add excitement to your wardrobe—with special emphasis on color, stripe and plaid variations, and fabric perfection.

—FEATURING—

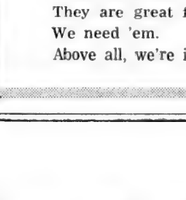
- Steeplechase, Madras and Racing Plaids
- Stripes—Multi—various
- Tattersall Checks
- Denim Solids

$29.95 Up

Sport Shirts

. . . Our Collection is ready to answer the latest style demands. All tailored to a man's taste with a smartly trim, tappered body, box pleat, locker loop, and half sleeves. One pacesetter is our imported PUNNA CLOTH PLAIDS. Check our checks, Criket Cloth Seersucker, Parchment Ground Madras, numerous stripes and solids

$4.00 up
GOLF SHIRTS



$39.95 Up

SUITS...in the mood for spring

Styled by the top designers in the industry to insure the ultimate in comfort, fashion, and fit—at prices that represent the best clothing value. Entire collection as fashioned in good traditional, taste, with subtle innovations that speak authoritively" but don't shout. Dacron-cotton, or dacron-wool blend.

STYLISH SPRING SLACKS

We have the ever popular dacron-cotton, dacron - wool dress Slacks. Priced $7.95 up. Also white Duck, priced $4.95 up.

NECESSITIES FOR SPRING

Bathing Suits and Bermudas

We are ready to help you spend your leisure in style with a large assortment of Berdas and all the latest in Swim Suits. Prices are quite basic.

A HEARTY WELCOME TO YOU

To come in and see all our new spring lines—we think there are many reasons to be excited about the arriving fashion season. Styles are so imaginative—variety at its height. A Panarama of color is woven into the 'New Looks.' One old idea that still prevails this season, as in the past, is our effort to keep . . .

ALL PRICES WITHIN A REASONABLE REACH

Into summer suits . . . Ladies Only

Easter is just around the corner and if you are looking for a suit, we suggest you personally view our collection. The styles are as fresh as springtime with special emphasis on flattering the individual. Spring is a time for color and our selection is in full bloom. whether you are looking for the cute and unique or sticking to the more conservative . . . We are sure to Suit your Fancy

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL PLUS IT'S COED CORNER

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Weather
Contemptuously cloudy.

The Daily Tar Heel

Campus Carnival comes this Friday . . . much fun . . . many girls . . . rides . . . laughs . . . see you there? . . . NO . . . why not? . . . we have to work.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 1964 | United Press International Service

BY JUDGE MALLARD

Editor Gary Blanchard Faces Contempt Action

By JEFFREY DICK

Judge Raymond B. Mallard yesterday charged Daily Tar Heel co-editor Gary Blanchard with "direct contempt expressed in testimony" tending to "discredit" Mallard and the Orange County Superior Court.

Blanchard was ordered to appear at the conclusion of the case presently being heard to "be dealt with in a proper manner."

Blanchard, appearing as a witness in the defense of Dr. William Wynn, assistant professor at UNC charged with trespass, said during the course of his testimony he felt "some of the restrictions imposed to insure the administration of orderly justice were nonsensical."

The co-editors appeared before the court yesterday to testify as to the events immediately preceding the arrest of Wynn at Watts Restaurant on Jan. 3 after Wynn and four other professors had staged an anti-segregation protest at the restaurant.

Both editors said they attended the protest as newsmen.

Co-editor Dave Ethridge took the stand after Wynn had concluded his testimony. District Solicitor Thomas "Dick" Cooper asked Ethridge if he had "written an editorial referring to the procedures of the court as being nonsense."

The defense objected to the question, and Mallard sustained the objection.

Cooper asked Ethridge if he had written editorials advocating boycotts of establishments which did not serve peoples of all races.

Ethridge told the court that the responsibility of editorials was a dual one and that he and Blanchard often collaborated in writing editorials. Ethridge admitted that in that respect, he "had written such editorials."

Blanchard was then called to the stand. After examination on the events leading up to Wynn's arrest, the prosecution began cross-examination.

Cooper asked Blanchard if "he had received information from Dr. Wynn stating that something would happen at Watts on the night of Jan. 3."

Blanchard replied, "No."

"Was the information you received from some other source?" Cooper asked.

Blanchard then replied, "Yes."

At this point, the solicitor asked several questions pertaining to the editorial which appeared in the Daily Tar Heel March 7, and the judge ordered the jury sent out of the room.

Mallard addressed the courtroom saying: "This court is not on trial. They (the witnesses) are entitled, according to the Constitution to say whatever they want to about the court . . . unless it gets to be a violation of the contempt statute."

Cooper contended the jury "had a right to know if this witness felt any of the proceedings of the court were to be regarded as nonsense." He said the information was important because the jury could use it to "weigh the credibility of the testimony offered by the witness."

Cooper said, "I'd like to ask the witness if he feels this court is nonsense." Wynn's attorneys said they would not object to such a question and the jury was brought back into the courtroom.

The solicitor resumed his questioning after the jury had been seated.

Cooper: "Do you feel the procedings of this court are nonsense?"

Blanchard: "No."

Cooper: "Do you feel this court's action in attempting to keep the court quiet and to keep it in order for its business is nonsense?"

There was a long pause.

Blanchard: "Some of the means I have felt to be arbitrary."

Cooper: "Do you feel them to be nonsense?"

Blanchard: "What do you mean by nonsense?"

Cooper then explained to Blanchard that he was using the term in the sense in which it had appeared in the Daily Tar Heel editorial and then rephrased his question.

Cooper: "Do you believe some of the actions of this court constitute nonsense?"

Blanchard: "I did feel that some of the restrictions imposed to insure the administration of orderly justice, in which all of us agree, to be nonsensical."

The State then excused Blanchard from the witness chair.

Blanchard was called to the stand again later to offer his opinion of Chapel Hill Detective Howard Pendergraph. Blanchard told the court he thought

(Continued on Page 3)

Lowenstein Talks On Stone, Helms

By GARY BLANCHARD
Second of Three Articles

"These people aren't criticizing my competence in teaching," says NC State Professor Al Lowenstein, 35, of the conservative state legislators and others trying to pressure University officials into firing him for his participation in anti-segregation protests.

"They aren't even discussing my teaching competence.

"Instead they are fishing around in all sorts of irrelevant waters to try and find some hook on which to get rid of someone whose ideas they don't like.

"This is an extension of the effort to intimidate or punish a great University. It's an attempt to create an atmosphere in which disagreement with the point of view of Sen. Stone and Mr. Jesse Helms is discouraged to the point where it tapers off to nothing."

Sen. Clarence Stone is the state legislator who helped rush the controversial Gag Law into existence last summer. Jesse Helms is a WRAL-TV editorialist who supports conservative causes in his five-minute telecast each weekday evening.

"But those people (Stone-Helms) don't represent the general view of the average American," Lowenstein continues.

"The only way they can prevail is to try and frighten everyone who doesn't agree with them into silence.

"We went through this before with McCarthy. Yell 'Red' and if that doesn't work, think up some other bad word and apply it to people, hoping it will discourage those who disagree with you.

"It's odd," Lowenstein says. "I don't think of myself as a radical. But a lot of people do, chiefly Stone and Helms.

"I'm not even a Socialist. I'm a Kennedy Democrat.

"I think the things I believe in are the conservative values of democracy—the rights of the individual, every individual, to develop; to dissent; to have an opportunity to get the good

(Continued on Page 3)

GMAB Prexy Selection Coming Up

Applications are now being accepted for President of Graham Memorial Activities Board for the 1964-65 academic year, it was announced yesterday. Interested students may pick up applications at the Information Desk at Graham Memorial.

Applications should be submitted at the Information Desk and the applicant should make an appointment with Dan Moore, President of GMAB, for an interview by the Nominating Committee. Applications will be accepted through Monday, March 23.

Any student who is regularly enrolled in the University of North Carolina and has at least a "C" average is qualified. In addition to his duties as President of GMAB, the new President will also serve as Chairman of the Graham Memorial Board of Directors.

Although the newly appointed President will officially take office after the annual meeting of the Board of Directors in May, he will begin preparations for the ensuing year immediately after his appointment. The official term of office will continue through the annual meeting of the Board of Directors in May, 1965.

Application dates for chairmanship of the six standing committees of the Graham Memorial Activities Board will be announced immediately following appointment of the new president.

ITEMS

Carnival Entries Needed Today

Entries are needed for the Campus Chest Carnival.

The deadline for entering a booth is today at noon. Turn in entries at the Campus Chest office in Y-Court with the amount of space needed on the field.

The booths will be set up on Saturday.

For further information, call Jim Light at 968-9053.

Grad Program Offered Here

This summer the UNC School of Education is offering an extensive program for graduate students and teachers with "A" certificates interested in Special Education.

The program is offered to train teachers how to deal with the problems of handicapped and mentally retarded children. There will also be courses concerned with teaching the exceptional child.

Sixty scholarships of $600 each for the twelve weeks of summer school are available for students who want a career teaching the mentally retarded. The deadline for scholarships applications is April 15.

(Continued on Page 3)

Hans Morgenthau Addresses Carolina Symposium April 5

By MILES FOY

Hans Morgenthau, political scientist and State Department consultant, will speak at the Carolina Symposium April 5, at 8 p.m.

The University of Chicago authority on cold war politics will discuss the influence of the cold war on government and industry. His topic is "The Garrison State: Growth of Economic and Political Concentration."

Newsweek Magazine has called Morgenthau "A leading spokesman for what academicians call 'the realistic school of international relations.'"

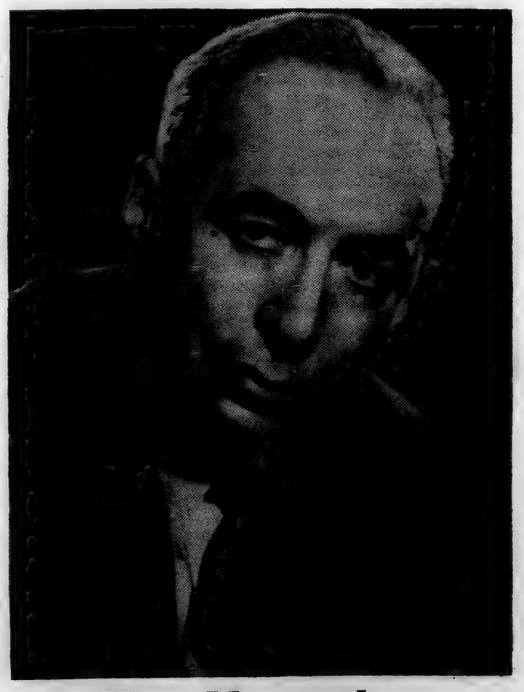
He has served as consultant to the Departments of Defense and State on numerous occasions, and has served as director of the Center for Study of American Foreign and Military Policy.

While regarding nuclear war as an "absurdity," Morgenthau does not adhere to the "better red than dead" philosophy of Bertrand Russell. He adds, however, "It is impossible to defend the values of any nation by nuclear war."

The lecturer-scholar feels that American political leaders are chained by public opinion. He has said, "You can't treat political science like a natural science. You are confronted with all kinds of historic intangibles. You have to play your hunches at times."

It was one of Morgenthau's "hunches" that caused him to abandon a promising position on the law faculty at the University of Frankfort, Germany, and flee the rising anti-Semitism of the Nazi regime in 1933. He remained in Switzerland for four years before coming to the U.S.

Morgenthau first established himself in U.S. academic circles as an assistant professor of law, history and political science at the University of Kansas City. He became a naturalized citizen in 1943.



Hans Morgenthau

PUB BOARD MEETS

The Publications Board will hold interviews for Editor and Business Manager of the Yack and will approve candidates for Editor of the DTH today at 4:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of Graham Memorial.

SAE Pledges Go Before IFC Court

The twenty-one pledges of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity accused of doing extensive damage to a Trailways bus during a drinking party March 7 will appear before the Interfraternity Council Court tomorrow night.

Attorney-General Whitney Durand said the pledges will be tried as individuals, not collectively as representatives of the fraternity.

Statements from bus company officials and the driver will be turned over to the court as evidence.

The damage was done while the pledge class was returning from an outing at Sweetbriar College in Lynchburg, Va. Cost of repair has been assessed at $754.

Inner ceiling panels were pushed up to the roof, 13 seat cushions were torn, windows were broken and the door assembly and panels of the rest room were destroyed, according to Trailways authorities.

SAE President Richard Lewis said the pledges responsible plan to make full retribution for the damage.

CARLOS MONTOYA

Some 400 tickets still are sitting at the Graham Memorial Information Desk waiting for devotees of the great guitarist Carlos Montoya. Tickets are 50c with an ID card.

Peace Corps Is Established In Carolina

Governor Sanford announced the establishment Monday of a state Peace Corps to help wage war on what he has termed the "cycle of poverty" in the state.

The announcement came at the same time as President Johnson's proposal for a "Job Corps" which was introduced in Congress yesterday.

Sanford named the group the North Carolina Volunteers, and said it will be composed of 100 college and university students who will be screened and oriented for a 10-week pilot program this summer.

"We will seek in this program to use the same energies and imagination demonstrated so successfully by college students in Peace Corps work. Participation by college students in community projects supported by the North Carolina Fund will greatly accelerate our State's war on poverty," the Governor said.

Meanwhile, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Dan Moore urged creation of a similar group in a political campaign speech in Trenton.

Moore said Monday night that using student volunteers in the war on poverty and ignorance was his idea and that the plan announced by Gov. Sanford "appears to coincide in many respects with mine."

He said his proposal "is simply a part of an overall program which I have been discussing for some time." He said all aspects of the plan "have been under consideration for some time and they shall be elaborated with care and attention to detail."

He said that if the Governor's plan coincided with his own "I am pleased that he approves of my idea and gratified that he has moved with such speed to put it into effect."

An aide to the Governor said Sanford had announced a program "he's worked on for six months. The Governor is announcing the program — not a promise."

LAST NIGHT

Dickson Chosen For SP Prexy

Davis, Gray, Shuff Also On Slate

Chused Gets Nod For Class President

Paul Dickson has been chosen by the Student Party to head their slate of Student Body officers in the spring elections.

Jeff Davis received the vice-presidential nomination, Madeline Grey was selected for secretary and Lanny Shuff will be the candidate for treasurer.

In accepting the nomination, Dickson called for a continuance of student party ideals, and cited instances in which the SP had acted.

"Concrete accomplishments in the area of dormitory life are a matter of record. This year Everett Dorm, of which I am president, has broken all records in dormitory competition. As of January, we were 600 points ahead of the nearest competitor," he said.

"It is this kind of spirit that student government can instill. This is the concern of the student, body and this is where we have succeeded.

"While the nominee from the other party calls for emphasis on residence hall community life, we can demonstrate examples of specific action taken in this area since 1953. I am afraid my opponent is 11 years too late," he added.

On the party's campaign plan, Dickson said, "The duty of the Student Party is to set forth a platform committed to liberal values off and on campus . . . To present able leaders capable of intelligently arguing for a viable student government for student autonomy . . . to provide a continuous open forum for all students, Greek or non-Greek. If the party swerves radically from these ideals, it will continue to resemble the Student Party in name only.

"This year, we will again seek more improvements, financed by the University.

"We shall ask for a more detailed definition of the campus code . . . we must clearly define its scope.

"We shall ask for a higher wage scale for those students employed by the University in Lenoir Hall, the Pine Room, Spencer Dorm, and other areas.

"On civil rights, we shall continue to support the concept of equal rights for all students. As far as I am concerned, our student constitution is color blind and we shall not deviate from complete honesty and frankness on this issue.

"As for myself, I am ready and willing," he added. "I am eager to engage in debate, to visit every room and shake every hand.

"Frankly, I am excited."

Nominations for other Student Party candidates had not been made by press time last night. They will be carried in Thursday's DTH.

Need A Shine? Look At This!

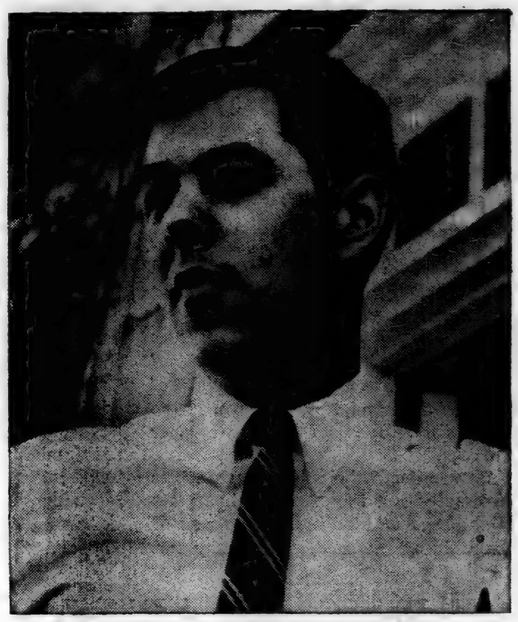
Want a beautiful girl to shine your shoes? Carolina Women's Council will be shining shoes all day Thursday and Friday in Y-Court and in front of Lenoir Hall. Proceeds will go to the Campus Chest Drive. Cheapest shine will be 25 cents, but any donations will be gladly accepted. After all, where else can you receive a good shoe shine from a Carolina Co-ed? Especially Unhappy Alison.



—Photo by Jim Wallace

SP Nominee Paul Dickson

Congress At Work On Poverty Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress went straight to work Tuesday on President Johnson's $962.5 million plan for a war on poverty. There were predictions that a bill would be ready for House action in six weeks.

Republican charges that Johnson had served up "re-heated legislative leftovers" brought an angry retort from Speaker John W. McCormack.

"The Republicans have opposed everything," he told reporters, his voice rising. "They have been very negative-minded."

McCormack said he told Johnson at a White House breakfast for congressional leaders that Capitol reaction to the anti-poverty proposals was "overwhelmingly favorable" and that he could expect quick action.

Less than 24 hours after the President sent his message to Congress, a special House subcommittee on education and labor opened hearings on the measure. The bill would organize a "job corps" for 100,000 underprivileged youths, finance anti-poverty plans, help needy students work their way through college, and provide grants and loans to small farmers and businessmen in poverty-stricken areas.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D.-N.Y.) the full committee chairman, called hearings through April with the idea of clearing a bill for floor action by May 1.

"We cannot delay another day in our attack upon this ancient enemy," said the Harlem congressman. "We cannot allow 1964 to pass knowing that America has not met its major social purpose."

Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver, chosen by Johnson to lead the attack on poverty, opened the administration's case for the bill along with Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Shriver said he was not interested in creating a "big new bureaucracy" but in using the nation's "know-how and resources to eliminate grinding poverty.

"Every dollar will be used to help the poor," Shriver said.

"There will be no leakage."

Heller said general economic growth alone cannot raise the income of the one American family in every five that earns less than $3,000 a year. Government spending could do the job, he said, but the President wants Americans to "earn their way out of poverty" through self-help.

DANCE!

The Men's Residence Council returns to the old social pattern Saturday with a combo party at the Women's Gym to be co-sponsored with the Carolina Women's Council.

The MRC, after a highly successful dance March 7 at the Carolina Inn, has contracted the Rivieras, a five-piece, four-singer combo.

Not only that, but they've spent more money on the Rivieras than on any other performers this year.

The "dance" will be from 8 to 12 p.m. and will be held on the patio next to the Women's Gym if weather permits. Admission is free.

Edwards Named YMCA President

Outgoing YMCA President Bruce Cooper announced yesterday that officers for next year have been elected.

Replacing Cooper will be Rick Edwards, a junior from Auburn, Ala. Edwards served last year as vice president of the Association.

Other officers are George H. Nicholson, III, of Chapel Hill executive vice president; James Clark of Vaughan, program vice president; Mashall Bellovin of Lynbrook, N.Y., secretary; and Doug Tilden of Orlando, Fla., treasurer.

Nominees for YMCA offices were selected for nomination by a committee of graduating seniors and voted upon by the cabinet.

The new officers will assume their duties beginning April 1.

Their first order of business will be the selection of new cabinet members. Interviews for cabinet positions will be held from March 18 to 20. Interested parties were asked to apply at Y-Court before March 18.

Any student interested in forming a cabinet position for any phase of campus interest is also invited to apply for an interview.

Volume 72, Number 119 Wednesday, March 18, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Chancellor's Troubling Objections

Everyone who knows Chancellor William B. Aycock respects him. They may not like him, but they respect him. And for a very good reason: he is a tough, talented administrator who's never too busy to let you bend his ear.

With all that, however, he is human, and therefore he is on occasion wrong. We think the current flap between him and Philosophy Professor Robert Sitton is an instance where the Chancellor is wrong.

We are not concerned whether the Chancellor did or did not specifically cite the possibility of legislative reprisal to Dr. Sitton, in cautioning him against participating in civil disobedience demonstrations. We are willing to chalk that part of the incident up to a communications failure.

We are, however, deeply concerned over the reasons the Chancellor gave for professors staying out of demonstrations.

"I think it injures the University," he said. "It's not on the grounds of what might or might not happen in the Legislature. It's on much broader grounds."

He mentioned the public image of the University and the effect such arrests might have on students. "The rest of their lives," he said, "they may not know which laws to violate and which to obey."

These are troubling objections which the Chancellor cites, unless one is an avowed anarchist, which we most decidedly are not. They are troubling because the weight of the Chancellor's considerable judgment and experience lies behind them, so they cannot be summarily dismissed.

And yet, they cannot be summarily endorsed either, precisely because the Chancellor is an administrator, and administrators put a premium on stability, on "respectability." That is the nature of the job where one is forced to deal with the public at large.

But you can have too much of stabiliti ty, of "respectability." They can come at too high a price. We think that is what is happening in the current situation.

They can come, as in the present case, at the expense of conscience and of truth. Should a man deny his conscience because some students may misread his actions and go afoul of the law for a far inferior reason than the reasonable dictates of conscience? Even assuming that might happen, is that the only possible effect? Or is it possible that his example might stir the more lethargic of us to think about the laws we live by, and whether they are just or not?

Bert Combs: A Big Fringe Benefit

The only regrettable feature about ex-Kentucky Governor Bert Combs' visit to our campus on a unique exchange-teaching visit Monday with editor-instructor Mark Ethridge is that Mr. Combs didn't have time to stay longer.

We are sure the campus would have benefited ever more greatly if he had.

Mr. Combs had many good things to say. Even more important, however, was the way he said them.

Absolute frankness was the order of the hour.

Still more significant than what he said and how he said it, though, was the fact that he was speaking at all. Hopefully Mr. Combs' acceptance of a position at the University of Massachusetts will remind us of the value to be gained from employing the talents of former public officials in this manner.

Too often political leaders with much to offer drop out of sight after they have left office. This is a pity, not only for them—so used to an active, give-and-take existence—but also to the many people who want to understand their government better but have little opportunity to learn what government looks like from up close.

Let us hope the day is not far off when UNC will have its own Official-in-Residence as Massachusetts now so fortunately does.

Mr. Combs' visit also points up the value of bringing men of the stature, knowledge and experience of Mark Ethridge to the campus. They not only give us the benefit of their own experience, but, as in Mr. Combs' case, that of their friends as well.

The Campus Dogs

Careless of pedigree, he lifts his sun-soaked head,
Regards my race to class for my degree.
Contended on his zoologic rung,
He waives with welcome my exalted place
Of Homo sapiens, all ironies,
All incongruities and oddments it entails.
He comes into the classroom to inspect
The progress of the prodigy we claim.
Perhaps he thinks when we have bared our bones,
Fetched early dark, played dead, and barked advance,
Angels will pipe and little dogs will dance.

Charles D. Wright

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor ..... Fred Seely
Associate Editor ..... Hugh Stevens
News Editors ..... Mickey Blackwell
Peter Wales
Copy Editor ..... Linda Riggs
Sports Editor ..... John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor ..... Larry Tarlton

Thoughts From Dr. Spock

By JOAN COOK
The New York Times

Unless cold-war tensions are reduced, the outlook on life of American children will be increasingly distorted and their abilities to cope with the problems of the nuclear age seriously impaired, according to Dr. Benjamin Spock, pediatrician and author.

Dr. Spock stated his views during the luncheon session of the Child Study Association of America's 40th annual two-day conference at the Commodore Hotel.

"I believe that it is no longer sufficient to protect children from the usual physical diseases and the typical emotional stresses of the past," Dr. Spock told 1,600 parents and professional workers. "Now the greatest threat to their bodily survival is from nuclear disaster."

Citing recent studies on the emotional effects of the cold war, Dr. Spock said that between 25 and 50 per cent of the children in different schools surveyed believed that there would be a nuclear war.

"Young children worry most about being separated from their parents in a disaster and about the death or maiming of their parents or themselves," he said. "Adolescents speak with bitterness about the possibility of having no future or of giving birth to deformed children.

"More disturbing to me are the evidences of an unwholesome, passive fear of the malevolence of Communists."

While children should be told about modern history "including unprincipled and aggressive actions of the Communist nations," he continued, parents should deliberately avoid alarmist phases such as 'world-wide conspiracy to destroy us,' which imply much more unity, power and ferocity among the Communist nations than exists and which are intended to cause fear and hate."

Stating his belief that the actions of Communist nations should be interpreted in the least alarmist way possible, Dr. Spock said this was not to be generous to them but "to give our children the confidence that we will be able to understand our adversaries and cope with them in the future as we have in the past, and that we may even be able to come to mutually advantageous agreements with them."

"Of course the main purpose in understanding and communicating with the Communist nations is to try to find ways to build mutual trust to make progress in such life-and-death matters as universal disarmament and the easing of political tension," he said.

"I'd let children realize that capitalist nations too have sometimes annexed their neighbors in the past," he added, "under the same illusion that this would make their borders more secure."

Dr. Spock asked parents to take a positive course of action with their children, to talk about "the gradual expansion of the peace-keeping functions of the U.N. and of the proposals for strengthening it until it might become a world government."

Youngsters, he advocated, should "join SANE or the Student Peace Union, make contributions from their allowances, walk in peace marches, write letters to the President and their Senators, learn to be a little bolder than their parents seem to be."

Don't Laugh At Clothes

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The next time you see a "college kid" in sandals, or a bread or sloppy clothes, don't laugh. He is a product of your society.

That is the conclusion of Dr. Alex C. Sheriffs, vice chancellor for student affairs on the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

Sheriffs recently psychoanalyzed college students collectively.

"In our facination for students we tend to forget that they are not a breed apart from society but a part of it," he said. "They simply reflect what's happening in society in general.

"If students are 'nutty' in some areas, the chances are that society is, too. Students simply express it in some other way than society. Because of their age and nearsightedness they tend to reflect in magnified form recent experiences or events of society."

Sheriffs explained further:

"Most of today's college students are the bumper crop of World War II babies. They lived in a family which experienced the struggles and tensions of not knowing whether loved ones would come back from War. Many got off to a pretty poor start.

"The lucky ones experienced being united but even they grew up in homes where parents wanted to make up for lost time. In early childhood the parents' model was self-centered. Too, a majority of families withdrew from the political arena after the war. This is when the extremists were able to take over and we entered the period of 'McCarthyism.'

"It took time for communications to be re-established and the majority to take over again. In the process, parents became cautious about what children said at the table. Teachers, too, were afraid to be controversial. The net result was that students became silent after growing up in homes and schools that were silent.

"So the campus extremists took over, and not the ones to the right as in their parents' day, but those to the left."

The mental health movement, loose supervision and a penchant to conform are other contributing factors, said Sheriffs.

"Although it (the mental health movement) did a lot of needed good, it also did a lot of harm," he said. Some twisted Freud's theories, especially the one in which Freud said 'neurosis grow out conflict.' This was twisted to say 'don't let your child have conflicts, he might become neurotic."

The natural outgrowth of this misconception, Sheriffs said, was the rise of progressive schools where students were allowed to do whatever they wanted."

In their desire that their children should not be "rejected," parents let them do "whatever their neighbor's child was allowed to do," Sheriffs said. "This caused the children to get the impression that their parents weren't strong enough in their own beliefs to say 'No' so they learned to reject authority.

"It's tough if children have to depend on others for authority and the kids know it's tough."

Life Is Mud For Fatalists

Editors, The Tar Heel:

You were tickled to pieces when you looked at the sugary side of things. You got a blast as you saw twelve-year-old knotheads maneuvering ten-cent kites against ragged clouds in the sky.

You thought all the natives of Africa lived in plushy, exotic jungle pads and picked up cash on the side by trotting around on the plains with white hunters in a safari, I'll bet. You looked at some of the pictures that weren't used for postcards, and saw the pockmarks of disease; the jutting bellies of the hungry; the morbidly peaceful death smile on the face of the little girl who caught a Commie steel-jacket. When you saw all this, you felt like puking.

You found that the big cities had not only skyscrapers, but red-light houses, suicides, dead teenage hoodlums with shivs in their guts, dead winos with hands frozen stiff around empty liquor bottles, and dead policemen wearing concrete shoes to carry them below to the catfish. And etc., so you don't really miss the big city.

So now you stretch out and drag on a weed and snort, "Hah! The love of God! Look at life! Every time you touch it, it turns to mud on your hands. Who needs a God who doesn't give a Suzie about all this hell?"

You won't fix anything by chopping God down; your hands are contaminated. God has a disinfectant; you'll have to do the washing.

Bill Manning
118 Mallette Street

LBJ In Bind Over Lodge

By JAY C. HAYDEN
Raleigh News & Observer

WASHINGTON — The most frustrated observer of Henry Cabot Lodge's astounding victory over Rockefeller and Goldwater in New Hampshire may be President Johnson.

The reason is that it was none other than President Kennedy who made the unusual appointment of Lodge as ambassador to Viet Nam.

The appointment, made last June 27, occasioned wide comment because of the long-standing feud in Massachusetts between the Republican Lodges and the Democratic Fitzgeralds and Kennedys. In 1961 Henry Cabot Lodge I, grandfather of the present ambassador, narrowly survived an attempt to unseat him by John F. Fitzgerald, grandfather of the late President Kennedy.

But in 1952 it was the latter who ousted Henry Cabot Lodge II from the U.S. Senate, and in 1962 the latter's son, George Cabot Lodge, bit the dust in a race against the President's brother, Edward M. Kennedy.

So it was no passing incident when President Kennedy reached out for Henry Cabot II for ambassador to South Viet Nam.

The reason for that presidential choice was plain enough. Under bitter congressional attack on account of the sinking U.S. hopes of victory in South Viet Nam, the President needed a non-Democratic buffer, a role that, for him, nobody could fill better than a Massachusetts Lodge.

Why Lodge accepted the post is much more difficult to guess; but, as things have developed, assumption of the Viet Nam ambassadorship, by tender of a Democratic President, could prove the most fortuitous incident of Lodge's career.

At any rate it is apparent that President Johnson faces a difficult choice. If he fires Lodge he thereby is likely to raise the most formidable of all Republican presidential candidates. And leaving Lodge where he is, and where he said Wednesday he intends to stay, could even better serve Lodge's frankly confessed presidential ambition.

As this writer sees it, Mr. Lodge has two main factors going for him. First, he has had vastly more experience in foreign affairs than any of the Republican presidential hopefuls and more than President Johnson, too.

Beginning his career as a newspaper correspondent overseas, Lodge became in the Senate the foremost pupil of the late Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, who boosted him into membership of the Foreign Relations Committee ahead of his normal eligibility.

Mr. Lodge was the ringleader in persuading Dwight D. Eisenhower to accept the presidential nomination in 1952, and he announced the latter's entry into the New Hampshire primary that year. Lodge almost certainly would have been re-elected to the U.S. Senate for a fourth term except that he diverted too much time from home campaigning in behalf of Eisenhower. Lodge lost to Kennedy, 1,211,984 to 1,141,247.

President Eisenhower named Lodge chief U.S. representative at the United Nations, a post which he filled for eight years, longer than any other American, with never even the suggestion of a faux pas.

Second, Lodge has been less publicized concerning the civl rights issue, which most experts believe the coming presidential election will turn on, than any other Republican candidate.

Senator Goldwater, with his main hope an unparalleled sweep of the South, clearly is tagged as the anti-civil rights candidate. Governor Rockefeller, with his election victories measured by his unusual strength in racially polyglot New York City, is counted an even more ardent civil righter than the Kennedys.

Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania and George Romney of Michigan, in their state contests, have been forced to play up heavily to nonwhite voters.

Mr. Lodge, as judged by his political utterances, is equally pro-civil rights but his state, Massachusetts, has been so outside the line of fire on that issue as to place it in the category of neutral ground.

Judged by past Republican triumphs in the South—by Hoover, Eisenhower and Nixon—that section is content if the GOP candidate is just mildly easy-going as concerns the race issue.

Attitude Toward Marriage

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

"How long do you think they'll stay married?" I overheard one woman saying to another, in discussing the Burton-Taylor affair. "I don't give them two years together after they're legally tied."

"I quite agree," nodded her friend. "People like that make a farce out of marriage. Why do they bother with it at all?"

A most sensible question; and the answer, I think, is to be found more in the cultural patterns of modern America than in the psychic or moral makeup of the celebrities on the marry-go-round.

There is a certain kind of person—in the arts or on the fringes of it—who cannot stand any permanent relationship. In more permissive cultures (and more realistic ones than ours), such persons do not marry, at least after the first time; they simply go through life as a series of liaisons.

In much of the rest of the world, society tolerates this mildly deviant behavior; nobody cares or bothers, so long as the couple live discreetly and quietly. In America, however, marriage is regarded as the norm for everybody; a man and his mistress living together openly are a scandal and an offense to the community.

These Hollywood couples, and those like them, make a mockery of marriage because our social attitudes force them to hypocritical conformity. And ours is a stupid attitude, which does more to harm the fabric of marriage in the eyes of impressionable young people than any capers or caprices of the Burtons and the Taylors.

In America, such people try to have their cake and eat it, which simply cannot be done. They marry, buy a house, have children; but neither by intention or temperament is it a permanent alliance; so the marriage is dissolved, the house is sold, the children are scattered to governesses or boarding schools or step-parents.

In Europe, and elsewhere, such people generally do not have children, which is more honest and kind. They settle for the sort of life they want to lead, and realistically give up whatever else marriage implies. They accept their own limitations, and do not pretend that marriage is for them when it is not.

They do not make a farce out of marriage, because they never enter it; they never assume its obligations, and so they never violate them. Living outside the structure, they become incapable of damaging it by their destructive examples, as they do here. And, most of all, they do not hurt the children—which is the most painful result of our blind insistence on conjugal conformity.

Heelprints

The question is, will Liz and Richard enjoy the marriage as much as they enjoyed the honeymoon?

* * *

Are relations between President Johnson and his attorney general becoming feuder and feuder?

* * *

Definition: Banker—a pawnbroker with a manicure.

* * *

There seems to be some question as to whether the Quarterly will get a quarter.

Simile: as gorgeous as the tree behind the Morehead Planetarium.

* * *

Then there's the Dairy Bar waitress doll—you wind it up and it just stands there.

* * *

I. Beverly's Lake gives the appearance of being a mile wide and an inch deep.

* * *

The gubernatorial candidate's stand on the Speaker Ban Law is no gag.

Hugh Stevens

'So This Is Football . . .'

"I've seen it all now," I said to myself.

There they were on Navy Field, clad in sweat clothes and doing strenuous calesthenics. Their beautifully conditioned builds told me immediately that they were some sort of athletic team. I raced through my mental files, but I didn't find them anywhere in my Sports Section. The clothes were right, the exercises were right, the coaches were right—but one thing was wrong; these athletes were GIRLS!

For a minute I was worried. Did I need glasses? Were those quizzes that bad? I did the natural thing—I wandered over to take a closer look.

My eyes had not deceived me—they were girls, and they were playing football, of all things.

A tall fellow standing to one side was obviously the coach. He looked familiar, but it seemed to me that I had seen him in an entirely different setting somewhere. I strolled over and asked him what was going on.

"We're having football practice," he said.

"Oh," I said. "Football practice."

"Yes," he said, "I'm Coach Cunningham, and this is my team."

Coach Cunningham? Why, of course. It was Billy—The Kangaroo Kid—The Left-handed Gun—and he was a football coach. I asked him if he needed an assistant.

"No," he said. "This team isn't that hard to coach."

I could see why. "They surely do look tough . . . er, mean," I said.

He nodded agreement. "They're in darn good shape," he said, "but I want to make sure they're ready to go on Friday."

Trying not to appear ignorant, I affirmed rather half-heartedly, "Oh, yes, Friday. Yes, they'd better be ready." To myself I wondered what in the world he was talking about.

He answered my question without my asking it.

"It's for the Junior Class Powder Puff Football Game," he said. "We've got to beat Harrison Merrill's team."

"Powder Puff Football?"

"Yes," he said. "Don't you read the Tar Heel?

"Not very often," I admitted. "I guess I've missed something."

"Well," he said, "we're going to play in Kenan Stadium this Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Should be a great game. I've got a tough team and I understand Harrison has some really fast girls."

I was becoming more and more interested. Girls playing football? It sounded great. Coach Cunningham took me over and introduced me to some of his stars.

The first was Judy "Bubbles" Allen.

"She's a pretty tricky back," Cunningham said. "You should have seen her in action against the Blind School. This has been one of her greatest seasons."

"Yeah," I agreed. "I remember how she stepped in the water bucket against Lincoln High School and nearly drowned."

"Made all the state papers," said Billy.

Next he introduced me to his All-America end, Cydne "Touchdown" Wright.

"She has beautiful form," he said. "Some scouts rate her in a class all by herself. She's been on the receiving end of more passes than any girl in Carolina history."

"She's certainly a top-notch prospect," I agreed. "I take it she's an offensive end?"

"She's pretty good on defense, too," he said. "I think she's had good coaching in the past."

Finally he brought over his quarterback, Kay "Swivelhips" Hoyle.

"She calls the plays for our team," Cunningham said, "and she does a fine job. She has a fine arm, too."

"That's not all," I blurted, then red-faced, I said "nice to meet you, uh, Swivelhips."

"Yeah, any time," she said in her gravelly voice.

I looked at my watch. "Got to go," I said to Coach Cunningham.

"O. K. See you at the game Friday?"

"Sure," I replied. "Three o'clock in Kenan Stadium right?"

"That's right," he said. "And admission is just a quarter."

"It'll be worth every penny," I said. "I can't wait."

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

YMCA Interviews for Cabinet Positions — 3-5 p.m., Wed., Fri., and Mon., president's office in Y-Court.

Foreign Students Comm. — 6 p.m., Lenoir.

Badminton Intramurals — through Fri., representatives must have entries in by 4:30 p.m. Fri.

Honor Council Training Program — 7 p.m. RP I.

SP — 7 p.m., 08 Peabody convention.

GMAB President Applications — applications for GMAB president are now available at GM information desk.

WRC — 2-4 p.m., RP II, interviews for WRC chairman candidates.

Review Seminar in Office Psychiatry for the Non-Psychiatrist Physician — 1:30-2:30 p.m., "Alcoholism," south wing, Hospital.

Publications Board — 4 p.m., Woodhouse Room.

Publications Selections Board — 4:30 p.m., Woodhouse Room, choose Yack Editor and Business Manager and approve candidates for DTH Editor.

Duke-UNC Physics Colloquium— 4 p.m., 265 Phillips, "What's Interesting in Alkali Halides," coffee at 3:30 in 227 Phillips.

UP Convention — 9 p.m., Howell Hall, nominations for SL and CAA.

Jr. Class Powder Puff Football — 3 p.m., Woollen Gym, practice.

Men's Honor Council Interview— 4-5 p.m., Council Room, GM.

Orientation Comm. — 5 p.m. RP III.

Badminton Club — 7 p.m., Women's Gym.

Basketball Club — 4 p.m., Women's Gym.

Stray Greeks — 6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

Drug Symposium — 8 p.m., School of Pharmacy, Dr. William B. Blythe, "Hormones of the Adrenal Gland."

Middle South United Nations Model General Assembly — 3 - 5 p.m., YMCA-CCUN office, today-Fri. and Mon.-Tues., interviews for executive and secretarial positions.

MOVIES

Carolina — Heavens Above

Varsity — Bachelor Tom Peeping

Rialto — Tom Jones

LOST AND FOUND

Found — spiral notebook belongto Bruce Johnson; reclaim at GM information desk.

Found — Bulova watch on intramural soccer fields, owner must identify; claim at 315 Woollen Gym.

Lost — White carcoat with hood, two books — Guide to Washington, D. C., and French Made Simple; contact Bill Amos, 423 Ehringhaus.

Lost — pair of brown-rimmed glasses; contact Bill Marks, 129 Ehringhaus.

THURSDAY

Freshman Golf — 1 p.m., Finley Golf Course, UNC vs. Myers Park HS.

SP Precinct Chairmen — 8 p.m., 305 Alumni.

Scuba Diving Club — 7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

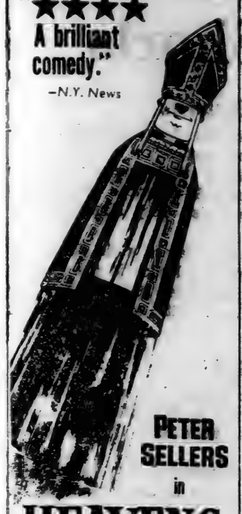
Math Colloquium — 4 p.m., 383 Phillips, Prof. Pierre E. Conner, Jr. will speak in "Weakly Complex Structures."

Freshman Camp — 7 p.m., Y-Court, election of a director for next year.

"★★★★ A brilliant comedy." —N.Y. News



PETER SELLERS in HEAVENS ABOVE!

NOW PLAYING

Carolina

OPENS THURSDAY

NOMINATED FOR 5 ACADEMY AWARDS — NATALIE WOOD "BEST ACTRESS OF THE YEAR!"

NATALIE WOOD STEVE McQUEEN in LOVE WITH THE PROPER STRANGER

The Incredible Carlos Montoya

"...must be heard to be believed"

Memorial Hall 8:00 p.m., Friday, March 20

All Seats Reserved — Student tickets now on sale at Graham Memorial

General Public may purchase Thurs., March 19 starting at 12:30 p.m. if tickets remain.

ADMISSION $1.50

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Windshield ——
6. Fluid in the veins of the gods: Myth.
11. Worship
12. Rope with running knot
13. Support for a broken arm
14. Gold coin: Old Spain
15. Hebrew letter
16. Anthropoid
18. Hypothetical force
19. Releases tension
23. Deficient in red blood cells
25. Garden tool
28. Asiatic mammal
29. Rodeo performer
30. Poker stake
31. Relieving
32. Caught, as girl's nylons
34. Close to
36. Bovine
37. Greek letter
39. Crown
42. Projecting edges of roofs
45. Rascal
46. Banishment
47. Bordered
48. Feats

DOWN
1. Stinging insect
2. Not working
3. Hawaiian food
4. Sea eagle
5. Prerogatives of sovereignty
6. Table of contents
7. Cry of a dove
8. Elf
9. Capital: Norway
10. Peruse
17. Frontiersman's shoe
19. Rips
20. Seaport: W. Germany
21. Appearing as if eaten
22. Possessing savor
23. Brazilian wallaba tree
24. Girl's name
26. Know: Scot.
27. Unit of work
29. Avoided by hayfever sufferers
31. Self
33. Performed
34. Measure of land
35. Stepped on
37. Merge
38. Employs
40. "The —— and I"
41. Prosecute judicially
43. Hewing tool
44. Contend for

LAVES FLASH
AGATE RADII
SUGAR AXILE
SEA ENTOD
BRANCH
AROUND AGEE SUNNY STRAW
CEDE SECURE
SWATHE
SAC AY SAN PROUD ABOVE
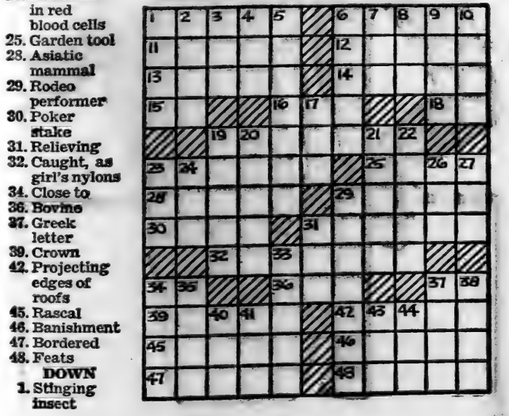
AMATEUR ONE II
TYLER EWERS

Yesterday's Answer



NOW SHOWING Varsity

THE TEMPO

Where Every Wednesday Night Is

LADIES NIGHT

From 7 to 9, Half Price on Draft Beer to ALL women.

Live Music by the . . .

"SEVEN KEYS"

POGO

-Campus Items-

Contracts Awarded For Auditorium

Contracts have been awarded and signed for construction of the new W. D. Carmichael Auditorium. The auditorium, named for the late William D. Carmichael Jr., a former vice president of the Consolidated University, will be built on the east side of Woollen Gymnasium.

Construction begins April 6, and the auditorium is expected to be completed by August, 1965.

General contractor for the auditorium is H. L. Coble Construction Co. in Greensboro. The auditorium will cost about $1.5 million and will seat 9,000. It will house a basketball court and a hydraulic lift stage.

Coed Acquitted By Women's Council

A coed was found innocent of cheating on a quiz in a Woman's Council trial last week.

Two students had turned the woman in when they saw her looking in a book of mathematical tables. The students thought she was looking up answers and didn't know that the teacher allowed the use of tables.

The teacher testified that the defendant had been in the right in using her tables.

She pleaded not guilty.

UNCG Chancellor Is Here Today

Chancellor Otis A. Singletary of WC will speak to the Graduate History Club today at 4 p.m. in 08 Peabody Hall. His topic will be the Mexican War.

Chancellor Singletary had established a national reputation as a professional historian before becoming chancellor at Greensboro in 1961. He is the author of The Negro Militia and Reconstruction and The Mexican War.

Chancellor Singletary, a Mississippion by birth, holds degrees from Millsaps College and Louisiana State University. He was a member of the faculty and administration at the University of Texas from 1954 to 1961.

The public is invited.

Ellen Allen Named Women's Coordinator

Ellen Allen, a sophomore from Lyon, Miss., has been chosen Freshmen Women's Coordinator for next year by the WRC.

The Freshman Coordinator works to integrate freshmen women into the University community and to acquaint them with rules and activities. She will be closely connected with the Women's Orientation Coordinator.

Secretary Interviews Start April 2

Interviews for the position of executive secretary to Student Government will be conducted April 2 and 3.

Applicants will be given typing and other tests by the University Employment Office before personal interviews by the selections committee.

Besides typing, the job involves working with stencils, purchasing materials and answering the telephone.

The job requires afternoon work, five days a week. Vacations are the same as those of University students plus an added two-week vacation which the secretary will take at will during the year.

Further information can be obtained by calling the UNC Student Government Offices at Graham Memorial between 2 and 5 p.m. before March 26.

Army Looks For Volunteers Here

The Department of the Army is seeking students majoring in mathematics, engineering, business administration, journalism, operations research, statistics, accounting, finance and psychology. Applicants should be graduating seniors or graduate students, have a high academic standing and a desire to pursue a career in the public service. Interested students who have not already taken the Federal Service Entrance Examination should file no later than March 19.

Bigger And Better During Symposium

The Intercollegiate Seminar of the 1964 Carolina Symposium will be far more extensive than in previous years. Seventy-five colleges, including almost every major college in the East, have been contacted and will advance prospective delegates, from which a select group of 40 will be chosen.

These students will meet from 9-12 a.m. April 6-8 in closed seminar with the previous night's speaker to evaluate his program and its effect.

"These delegates will function like a symposium within a symposium, extending the influence of the Carolina Symposium to their own campus," says Steve Dennis, chairman of the program.

A limited number of UNC students will be admitted to this seminar program. Interested persons should contact Steve Dennis or Larry Ehrhart in the Symposium office, Y-court, to pick up applications.

— Contempt —

(Continued from Page 1)

Pendergraph was "a good detective."

After Mallard dismissed the jury for the day, he told Blanchard: "You will come back to this court to be dealt with in a proper manner when the trial is over and the jury is in."

Mallard went on to state he had ordered Blanchard to appear "for direct contempt expressed in testimony under oath in court, which tends to discredit this court."

This meant that Blanchard was being brought back to court for the statements he had offered in direct testimony, and not for the editorial which appeared in the paper. The maximum penalty for direct contempt is $250 in fines, or 30 days in jail.

The editorial, entitled "Tip-Toeing On The Scales of Justice," appeared in the Daily Tar Heel on March 7. It criticized Mallard for his dictums requiring no eating, reading, or moving about in the courtroom. The paragraph at issue stated: "After several hours of this iron-hard courtroom discipline, you begin to get an idiotic urge to stand, stretch, yawn, and to say to Judge Mallard something like, 'Well, I've had enough of this nonsense. I'm going home!' "

In the first trial of Dr. Wynn, Mallard observed him reading a newspaper in the courtroom an hour after the jury had retired to decide a verdict in his case, and cited Wynn for contempt of court. The hearing on this charge has been postponed until the Wynn jury reaches a verdict in his case.

Blanchard said: "I have been instructed by my attorney, Barry Winston of Carrboro, to make no comment on the case."

-Lowenstein-

(Continued from Page 1)

things in life.

"If that's radical, then I'm a radical. But when we define the spectrum of freedom in such a fashion that I become an extreme, then we define the permissable points of view terribly narrowly.

"Yes, some people say I'm too idealistic. I've never thought much about it. All I know is that it fills me with revulsion to see people picking on other people, so I do what I can about it.

"No, I don't know why Sen. Stone dislikes me as strongly as he seems to. I don't even know the man.

Need A Job?

The following companies will recruit on campus this week.

Wed., March 18 — Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company of America; National Dairy Products Corp. (summer); Florida State Board of Health.

Thursday, March 19 — Schieffelin & Co.; Interpublic, Inc.; Lever Brothers Co.; Great Lakes Research Corp.; Burroughs Corp.; J. C. Penney Co.

Fri., March 20 — Esso Research & Engineering Co.; California Packing Sales Co.; J. B. Ivey & Co.; Aetna Life Insurance Company; Xerox Corp.; Merck & Co.

Students desiring interviews with the company representatives should contact the Placement Service, 204 Gardner Hall.

Newly elected officers of the YMCA take a break from their difficult duties. Comprising the casual crew is (L-R) Marshall Bellovia, Jim Clark, Rick Edwards, Nicky Nicholson and Doug Tilden.

Symposium's Cash Has Come Easily

"Getting money for the 1964 Carolina Symposium has been much easier than expected," says Treasurer Al Sneed. More than $10,000 has been raised to finance the program, which will be presented here April 5-9.

Facing an estimated expenditure almost 50% greater than ever before, the response from businuess and education has been "most gratifying," according to Sneed. Student donations were greater this year than ever before in Symposium history.

He divided the contributions into three categories: (1) Graham Memorial, Student Government, and the University Administration—52%; (2) state and local businesses and foundations—17%; and (3) donations from individuals and campus organizations—31%.

Student contributions that were solicited during fall registration were called "very helpful" by the treasurer. He also praised campus organizations, which include: Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Beta Theta Pi, Chi Omega, Chi Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Delta, Kappa Sigma, Phi Kappa Sigma and Pi Beta Phi.

Also, St. Anthony Hall, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Tau Epsilon Phi, Zeta Beta Tau, Zeta Psi, the Chancellor's Fund, Carolina Forum, Graham Memorial, I.F.C., Men's Residence Council, Order of the Grail, Pan Hellenic Council, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Eta Sigma, Student Legislature, YM-YWCA, Alderman Dorm, McIver Dorm, Smith Dorm and Winston Dorm.

Local businesses and foundations that gave are: N.C. Business Foundation, Forest Hills Shopping Center (Durham), N.C. National Bank of Chapel Hill, and the Sofolk Foundation.

UP MEETS TONITE

The University Party will meet tonight to nominate its candidates for Student Legislature and CAA president.

Jeff Adams, party chairman, yesterday asked all endorsed candidates to attend the meeting.

The meeting will be held in Howell Hall at 9 p.m.

TRAVEL WITH A PURPOSE

July 2 - August 30, 1964

Unique education program in search of man's past

NEGEV ARCHAEOLOGICAL SEMINAR

Visit Ancient Sites in

GREECE, JORDAN, ISRAEL

Participate in

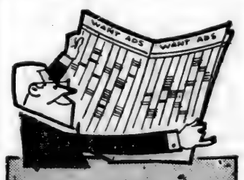
ARCHAEOLOGICAL EXCAVATION AND SURVEY PROGRAM

Archaeology of Palestine
Historical Geography of Palestine
Classical Hebrew
Courses are accredited by Associate Institutions

For further information, please write to Institute for Mediterranean Studies, 2054 University Avenue, Room 312, Berkeley, California, or contact your Local Travel Agent.

7th WEEK
Still Going Great
Held Over, Natch!
"TOM JONES"
12:18, 2:30, 4:45, 7 & 9:15
RIALTO THEATRE
Durham

What SOBO Glue Has Joined Together No Man Can Put Asunder
Be Modern . . . Use SOBO
Replaces Old Fashion Goo
Proven Best by Test
BILLY ARTHUR, Eastgate



CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

UNIQUE ADVANTAGES . . . ARE provided for Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance policy-holders and their families. May we show you? Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Used Cars For Sale

FOR SALE: HONDA 50, 600 miles, perfect condition. Call Tom McKnight 968-8268 after six.

Lost and Found

LOST BROWN LEATHER POCKetbook at Legion Hut Saturday night. Reward offered. Call 967-7071 or 929-2653.

RECORD BAR

Corner Church & Parrish Sts. Downtown Durham

108 Henderson Street Chapel Hill

25% Off

ALL $3.98 LP's ..... NOW $2.98

ALL $4.98 LP's ..... NOW $3.75

ALL $5.98 LP's ..... NOW $4.50

Complete Variety Latest Releases

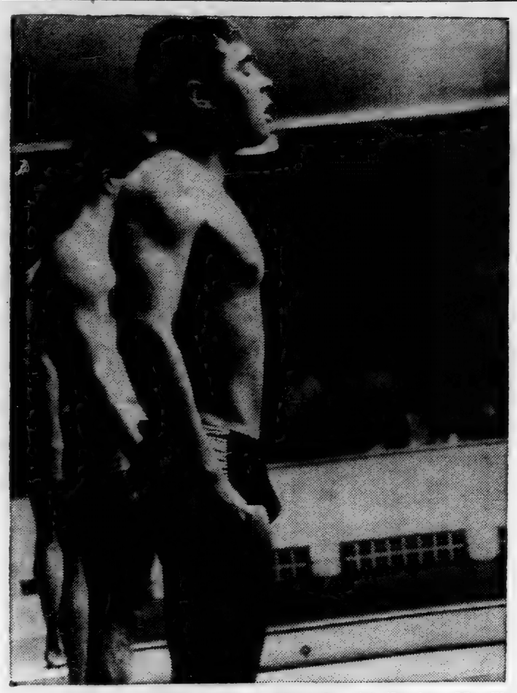
Complete Satisfaction Assured

RECORD BAR

Corner Church & Parrish Sts. Downtown Durham

108 Henderson Street Chapel Hill

Taylor Knocks Out Elon With Bat And Glove



UNC ALL AMERICA AND OLYMPIC hopeful Harrison Merrill took occasion at the recent Eastern Championships to serve notice that Uncle Sam had best reserve him a ticket to Tokyo next fall. Besides winning the mile and 500 freestyle events, Merrill placed third in the 200 with a 1:46.7 clocking. If he can continue to improve at this distance he has a grand chance for a place on the 800 meter freestyle relay.

2-1 Exhibition Win Spotlights Pitching

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Bill Taylor stepped out on the right side of the bed Tuesday morning, and Tuesday afternoon in Emerson Stadium he could do no wrong. Inserted into right field for defensive purposes in the seventh inning, Taylor came through with a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the tenth to give North Carolina a 2-1 exhibition win over visiting Elon.

It was also Taylor who allowed the game to go into extra innings—by getting the Tar Heels out of a big jam in the seventh with a shoe-string catch of a line drive, which the junior from Cary, N. C., turned into an inning-ending double play.

Elon's batters, baffled all afternoon by the deliveries of Mike McLaughlin, Beattie Leonard and Bill Haywood, finally managed to scratch pay dirt in the seventh. Trailing 1-0, the Bulldogs found home plate because UNC shortstop Jim Speight couldn't find second base.

After lead-off batter Dick Such reached first on a walk, Pete Crook slammed a double-play ball back to Haywood on the mound. But the veteran pitcher's toss was a little high and Speight couldn't find the bag with his foot. He still made the throw to first, however, and when it was wild, Such went to third. He scored moments later on Phil Cheek's sacrifice fly to right, Crook advancing to second on the attempt to nab Such at the plate.

The inning, which was bad already, could easily have been worse. Tom Piccinni lined a scorcher to short right, which probably would have scored Crook had the charging Taylor let the ball get past him. But Taylor made the catch off the top of the grass, fired to Speight covering second to double up Crook and end the inning.

Deadlocked, the Tar Heels could not get going in the eighth or ninth, but Haywood kept the Bulldogs on a pretty tight leash for three more innings, and in the bottom of the tenth the Rabbmen finally decided to splurge a bit and score a run.

Utility infielder Dickie Fleming led off the frame with a walk, off the second Elon pitcher, Jim Dailey, who had been having his control problems. Speight then got his second hit of the afternoon, a beautifully placed bunt up the first base line, which found no one covering the bag. Fleming took second.

The situation still called for the sacrifice and Bill Brown did just that, his bunt advancing Fleming and Speight up one notch.

Dailey then decided he'd rather not fool with Ken Willard, and the big boy filled the empty spot at first on an intentional pass. This set the stage for Taylor's second act.

After watching a couple of tosses go by, Taylor drilled one into left field, which would have scored two runs, but one was enough. Fleming crossed the plate and the Tar Heels had a surprisingly-hard fought exhibition victory.

Aside from Taylor, it was the UNC pitching which drew most of the raves from the fans and from Coach Walt Rabb.

Sophomore righthander McLaughlin started on the mound and turned in a good three innings. He held the visitors hitless and scoreless during his stint, which was marred only by a bit of control trouble (he walked three batters).

Leonard, another soph, was scheduled to go the middle three, but the lefty jammed the little finger on his pitching hand, and only went one inning. The injury came when Such lined one right back to the mound. It was deflected by Leonard and became the Bulldogs' first of two hits for the day.

Haywood, who was 6-4 with a 1.65 ERA last year, came on in the fifth, and the fireballing righty, who thrives on work, went the rest of the way to pick up the victory. He allowed but one hit and one base on balls, while fanning six in his six innings of work.

The Tar Heels scored their first run in the second inning on a double by Brown, a single by Ken Boykin and a fielder's choice.

DIAMOND DUST (and space-fillers)—The best wood of the day, on an otherwise off afternoon for UNC hitters, was gotten by center fielder Gary Black, who laid into a Herb Johnson pitch in the sixth and sent it screaming over center fielder Crook's head in right-center. The ball rolled all the way to the fence and Black rolled all the way to third . . . . Leonard's injury is not expected to be serious and Rabb hopes to use him again against Duke, in another exhibition here Thursday . . . . Bill Dannemann (1-1 and 2.86 last spring) and McLaughlin will probably go against the Blue practice game. The season opens Monday afternoon, when the Connecticut Uconns will be here.

Devils also . . . . UNC travels to Durham Friday for their last

TAYLOR-MADE VICTORY

| ELON | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Shields, ss | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Highsmith, lf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| G. Taylor, 3b | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Davis, 1b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Such, rf | 3 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Crook, cf | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Cheek, c | 2 | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| Piccinni, 2b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Johnson, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Daily, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 30 | 1 | 2 | 1 |

| UNC | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Prindle, 2b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Wright, 3b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Fleming, 3b | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Speight, ss | 4 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| Brown, 1b | 3 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Willard, lf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Boykin, rf | 3 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| W. Taylor, rf | 2 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| Black, cf | 4 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| Kruer, c | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| b-Shaw, c | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| McLaughlin, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Leonard, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| a-Kesler | 1 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Haywood, p | 2 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| c-Warren | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 33 | 2 | 8 | 2 |

a-singled for Leonard in 4th
b-struck out for Kruer in 6th
c-ran for Haywood in 9th

ELON ..... 000 000 100 0—1
UNC ..... 010 000 000 1—2
(1 out when winning run scored)

| PITCHING | ip | h | r | er | bb | so |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Johnson | 6 | 5 | 1 | 1 | 2 | 5 |
| Dailey | 3 1/3 | 3 | 1 | 1 | 4 | 0 |
| McLaughlin | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 3 | 1 |
| Leonard | 1 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| Haywood | 6 | 1 | 1 | 0 | 1 | 6 |

W—Haywood
L—Dailey

Will Siggy Get To Play??

Football co-captain Gene Sigmon has been receiving quite a ribbing about the Varsity-Alumni game. Sigmon has been bothered by a knee injury and is not sure whether he will be able to play in the game.

His teammates tell him he is just using the knee as an excuse because "with Stallings, Hennessey, Hawkins and Cravback, Sigmon won't get to play much."

High School Coaches Call Alumni Signals

A trio of outstanding high school football coaches have agreed to tutor the Alumni against the varsity here Saturday afternoon at Kenan Stadium.

The game, which will begin at 2 p.m., winds up spring drills for Coach Jim Hickey's Gator Bowl champions.

Pete Carr, head coach at Clinton High; Chris Carpenter, taskmaster of the Rocky Mount Blackbirds, and Gus Purcell, veteran mentor at Charlotte's Myers Park High, will direct the strategy for the returning vets.

"My one condition in coaching is an assurance of putting the ball in the air," said Purcell.

"I'm looking forward to a good game," commented the crafty Carpenter.

"I think I was chosen for my looks," injected Coach Carr. "I expect Purcell and Carpenter to supply the brain-power."

The Alumni, which will send some 30 monogram winners, plus a host of seniors who have used up their eligibility, are expected to field a rugged crew. Among the standouts will be Rip Hawkins, linebacker for the professional Minnesota Vikings.

Last year's varsity - alumni game ended in a 6-6 deadlock. Coach Jim Hickey of the varsity said his group would work all week preparing for the invasion of the old grads.

The varsity appears to be in good shape for the game except for the absence of Ken Willard, Gary Black and Eddie Kesler who have been excused to play baseball.

Ace place-kicker and defensive specialist Dave Braine reinjured the leg he hurt in last year's 16-14 win over Duke and probably will not see action.

Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver have been the standouts of the practice so far. Talbott will probably start at quarterback Saturday, but Beaver and Sandy Kinney will see plenty of action. Ron Tuthill, Ronnie Jackson and Frank Bowman will round out the backfield for the varsity. However, Hank Barden, who was injured most of last year, Tom Lampman and Max Chapman have looked good at the running back position.

Sport Shorts

Mullins, Jones Pace All-Easterns

Fantastic Jeff Mullins and reserve guard Steve Vacendak represent Duke on the All-Eastern Regions team.

Mullins and Villanova guard Wally Jones were unanimous choices of the writers, while Princeton All-American Bill Bradley was left off of two ballots, Connecticuts's Toby Kimball rounds out the team.

Mullins scored 73 points in the two games while Jones had 54 and Bradley had 52. Kimball was the leader in the Uconn's Friday night victory over Princeton and added 18 in the Saturday night hoax. Vacendak came out of the hospital to become Duke's floor leader in the two games.

The Kid's Lead Seems Safe

By scoring 73 points in the two games last weekend Duke's Jeff Mullins raised his season average to 24.4 points per game. Jay Buckley's average dropped to 13.3 while Hack Tison is averaging 11.9.

To catch Billy Cunningham, who averaged 26.0, in the ACC scoring race, Mullins must score 99 points in the NCAA finals at Kansas City this weekend.

Clay: I'll Beat Him Like I Did Sonny

CHICAGO (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay said Monday he would try to set a date to defend his title against former champion Floyd Patterson as quickly as possible.

"If it was up to me," he said, "I'd do it tonight."

Clay was informed of Patterson's "delight" that the current titleholder had accepted his challenge for a title bout.

"I'll get in contact with my manager as soon as I can and try to set it for next month," Clay said.

The Louisville Lip said he was leaving for New York Tuesday and would "go to see Patterson" at his training camp.

"Let him know I'm going to pay him a visit," Clay said, "just like I paid Sonny Liston a visit. What makes him think he can whip me?

Floyd Wants Charity Fight With Cassius

HIGHLAND MILLS, N. Y. (UPI) — Floyd Patterson said Monday "I'm delighted that Cassius Clay has accepted my challenge for a title fight. I hope he'll make the date as soon as possible."

During the weekend, heavyweight champion Clay said in Chicago he would be glad to meet former two-time champion Patterson in a "charity fight." Clay said he would donate his purse of $750,000 to the Black Muslims, if he won.

Patterson stated Monday, here at his training camp, "I don't care what Cassius does with his purse. I will be fighting for no purse—merely for the chance to take the title away from the Black Muslims."

Track

For the record, here are the results in the five events of the recent ACC Indoor Track Meet which were not carried in Sunday's DTH.

TWO-MILE RUN
1. George (Md.)
2. Krueger (Md.)
3. Taylor (Wake)
4. Woodcock (NCS)
5. Wann (Md.)
(time: 9:30.7)

880 YD RUN
1. Crombie (USC)
2. Bennett (UNC)
3. Jacobson (Duke)
4. Newton (Duke)
5. Thomas (Md.)
(time: 1:54.1)

70 YD LOW HURDLES
1. Cole (Md.)
2. White (UNC)
3. Vermillion (Md.)
4. Finley (Md.)
5. Sheer (Md.)
(time: 7.8)

ONE MILE RELAY
1. Clemson (Cone, Adams, Shaw, Wynn)
2. Maryland
3. UNC
4. USC
5. Wake Forest
(time: 3:20.2)

POLE VAULT
1. Bennett (Md.)
2. Markley (Md.)
3. Kowzum (Md.)
4. Brown (USC)
5. Thompson (Md.)
(height: 15'1-3/4")

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

THAT'S RIGHT!! MISS "FIREBIRD," LINDA VAUGHN . . . THAT CURVACIOUS BLONDE, will be here today, March 18, to help THE HUB "SWING INTO SPRING."

ADD THIS
To Your Things to Do Today—
5'7" TALL
39" BUST
23" WAIST
Plus 39" HIPS
FUN at The HUB
11-1, 2-3:30
Gifts for the First 500 Persons
THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

What color is your thumb?
Not green? Visit the Intimate. Our special selection of garden books will help you solve your horticultural shortcomings. At prices ranging from $1.49 up, there are titles on individual lawn and garden specialties as well as complete and indexed volumes for the whole spectrum. So if it's green you'd like your garden to grow (but you're a bit green at it) bring some along to the Intimate.
Actually, the crew won't even badger you if you just browse.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 p.m.

JAZZ INN QUARTET
Wednesday Night, 9-12
Pizzas, Submarine Sandwiches,
and beer
Ye Olde Taverne
E. Franklin St. Professional Building

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

DACRON COTTON PANTS
We have the widest selection of pants to ever be seen. Count them 27 different shades and hues from the lightest natural to the darkest navy.
Also the new sail cloth and diagonal twill.
These Perfect Fitting Pants priced from only
6.95 to 10.95
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

The 'NEW' Choice of Champions... presented by IZOD.

This new addition to the famous Izod line, designed for inside or outside slacks wear, maintains the high standard of the Lacoste shirt. Made with taped seams at stress points, ribbed collar, waist and cuffs, this sweater style of imported cotton lisle comes in a wide selection of colors with contrasting sleeve and waist trim. WHITE with navy, WHITE with red, WHITE with green, NAVY with white, RED with white, BLUE with navy, CLAY GREEN with olive, TAN with brown. S, M, L, XL, XXL.
Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

PEANUTS

Rathskeller's
39 — 23 — 39
FIREBIRD SPECIAL
A Mug of Beer and a Hot Firebird Sausage Platter . . . Potato Salad and Slaw— 85c
P.S. Miss Firebird will be at the Rathskeller from 1:00-2:00
. . . Come down and join the fun.

Man, the stampede's on for
BRASS RINGER

Hop to it, meet the new "Brass Ringer," it really gets around. It's clean and lean. With man-size brass eyelets and wraparound toe guard. Long on looks, strong on comfort, great on wear. Made of washable cotton duck in a new smoky white chino, also in white. Medium width, sizes 5 to 12, 13, 14. Stampede on down to your nearest store and let 'em rustle y' up a pair. Ask for "Brass Ringer" Keds® today! It's a ◎ •
Look for the blue label
United States Rubber
Rockefeller Center, New York 20, New York

MISS "FIREBIRD" — 39"-23"-39"
IN PERSON TODAY at THE HUB of Chapel Hill

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Weather
Free and clear.

The Daily Tar Heel

The Campus Chest Carnival comes tomorrow . . . rides from 4-8 p.m. . . . much fun . . . girls . . . also Saturday . . . see you there? . . . No . . . why not? . . . we still have to work.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1964 | United Press International Service

Blanchard Trial Is Dismissed

ACQUITTED—DTH Co-editor Gary Blanchard (right) chats with his attorney, Barry Winston of Carrboro, shortly after his contempt case was dismissed yesterday afternoon by Judge Raymond Mallard in Hillsboro.
—Photo by Jim Wallace

By JEFFREY DICK

Contempt charges against Gary Blanchard, co-editor of the Daily Tar Heel, were dismissed yesterday by Judge Raymond Mallard in Orange County Superior Court.

Mallard dismissed the charges against Blanchard after a twenty-minute hearing, but not before admonishing Blanchard for his conduct. Mallard said that "although the statement by Blanchard in court was considered contemptuous, due to the fact that the respondent expressed his answer to a question placed by an officer of the court, and due to the denial of any intent to bring disrespect upon the court, and due to the apparent immaturity of the respondent, the court takes no further action and respondent is discharged."

The contempt hearing was called after Blanchard, testifying for the defense of Dr. William Wynn, stated to Solicitor Dick Cooper under cross-examination that "some of the restrictions imposed to ensure the end of orderly justice," he felt to be nonsensical.

Blanchard said earlier, in response to questioning, that he did not regard the court, itself, to be "nonsense."

Attorney Barry Winston conducted the entire defense. Blanchard did not take the stand or speak to the judge during the entire hearing.

Winston addressed the bench at the start of the hearing requesting that the charges against Blanchard be dismissed. "The charges should be dismissed," Winston said, "because the respondent (Blanchard) had no intention of disrespect" to the judge or the court.

"The respondent," Winston continued, "stated, when asked by an officer of the court, that he did not regard the court and its proceedings as nonsense."

Blanchard, on Tuesday, criticized the restrictions imposed by

(Continued on Page 3)

Wynn Guilty

A jury that included two Negroes today found a University of North Carolina associate professor guilty of trespassing during a Chapel Hill civil rights demonstration.

The jury returned its verdict after 30 minutes of deliberation.

It was the second trial for Prof. William Wynn. A mistrial was declared earlier this month when the jury reported it was deadlocked 11-1 in favor of conviction after more than 14 hours of deliberation.

Orange County Superior Couprt Judge Raymond Mallard recessed court for lunch without sentencing Wynn.

The jury included eight white men, two white women and the two Negroes.

Daytona Gets Ready For Students

City Manager Norman Hickey of Daytona Beach, Fla., has promised that entertainment for college students who flock to his city for spring vacation will not be left to their own dubious imaginations.

The city recreation department and the Junior Chamber of Commerce are reported diligently at work planning a well-rounded program to keep the scholar busy during his brief respite from the rigors of academic life.

As the sun begins to loom higher in the sky, and the warm spring breezes begin to blow off of the ocean, an expected onslaught of 65,000 collegians will relax to such dramatically acclaimed attractions as Hank Slomanski, noted karate expert and formerly General MacArthur's personal bodyguard; Dr. John "Knocky" Parker and his jazz combo; the Ford Motor Company's "Folk and Jazz Winging"; and artist Howard Ellis, who will give a demonstration on how to paint a picture.

Residence College System Is Still A Dream, Not A Reality

By DAVID NORDAN

The much talked about residence college program is still more of a dream than a reality, according to William G. Long, Dean of Men. He said life in the residence halls next year will be about the same except for the new rule requiring all freshmen to live on campus.

An ad-hoc committee of numerous faculty administration, and student representatives is being conducted at this time with hopes of bringing into the light some of the more serious problems of residence hall life. But Dean Long emphasized the fact that no long range plans have been made.

The talks have been going on for some time, but were made public only about two months ago. The proposed plan would probably result in:

—social activities centering upon specific residence areas and the pooling of financial resources.
—newspapers for specific residence hall areas.
—officially changing the names of areas to specific residence college names.
—each residence college having a president and each resident hall having a chancellor.
—faculty advisors for the various residence halls or units.
—campus chaplains for the residence colleges.

Dean Long stressed that at present the ad-hoc committee is still in the stage of trying to define the problems of the present situation. "We are in the process of seeing if there is a new approach or arrangement which might result in a more benificial, pleasant, creative experience; if the program will contribute to the total education of the student." He said the program has a long way to go; there are "severe limitations."

Some of the problems under study are: (1) limitations in social life, (2) limitations in social facilities, (3) problems of space; here the dean brought out the little-known fact that the present three-in-one situation used to be a four-in-one situation. Pro-

(Continued on Page 3)

US Offers $2 Million For Cyprus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States offered Wednesday to contribute up to $2 million to send an international peace-keeping force to Cyprus.

The State Department announced the U.S. offer, made to United Nations Secretary General U. Thant.

The $2 million would go into a $6 million fund needed by U.N. Secretary General Thant to set up the peace force.

The State Department said dispatch of the peace force—which would not include U.S. troops—has been delayed in part by shortage of funds.

The State Department said it hoped most of the costs of the peace mission would be borne by countries contributing troops. It said it was "essential to move promptly to stop further needless loss of life" on Cyprus.

"It is understood," the U.S. announcement said, "that a number of other nations are actively considering contributions to make up the balance."

"By this contribution," the announcement said, "the U.S. is demonstrating its concern for peace and showing its friendship for the peoples of Greece, Cyprus and Turkey.

"It is a matter of great urgency that the U.N. peacekeeping force be established in Cyprus," the State Department said. "The United Nations must bring an end to the fighting, and through mediation find a permanent solution to this dangerous problem."

U.S. officials said the money will come from foreign aid contingency funds.

Need A Job?

The following companies will recruit on campus the week before and the week after spring vacation:

Monday, March 23—Sears, Roebuck and Company; Shell Chemical Co.; J. P. Stevens & Co., Inc.; Heritage Furniture Co. & Drexel Furniture Co.

Tuesday, March 24 — Union Carbide Corp.—Carbon Products Division; Hot Shoppes, Inc.; Insurance Company of North America; William Thomas Minor, CPA.

Wednesday, March 25 — The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company; Manning, Perkinson & Floyd, CPA's; Congoleum-Nairn, Inc.; Beavercraft (summer only); Thomasville Furniture Industries.

Wednesday, April 1 — Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Friday, April 3—Midland Mutual Life Insurance Company; Jordan Marsh, Florida.

Students desiring interviews with the company representatives should contact the Placement Service, 204 Gardner Hall.

Guitar Concert Tickets Still Are Available

Graham Memorial announced yesterday that some 250 tickets were still available for the Friday night concert of flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya.

The famed performer will present a recital of Spanish folk music at p.m. in Memorial Hall.

A guitarist from the age of eight, at which time his mother gave him his first instruction in playing the instrument, Montoya rapidly emerged as one of the foremost virtuosi of that instrument in the world.

Records and coast-to-coast personal appearances, as well as TV guest appearances have made Montoya a national celebrity, the man most largely responsible for the growing Flamenco following and interest throughout the country.

The Spanish call him "gypsy on all four sides." Montoya says that to play real Flamenco, one must have some gypsy blood in him.

Flamenco music cannot be written down because most of it is improvision. Montoya never plays a Flamenco piece the same way twice.

"It becomes easier to improvise as one plays," he says. "That is the secret of our music —improvisation. And one must have the music in his heart before he can play it on the strings."

Tickets are available at the GM Information desk for 50 cents with an ID card and $1 for dates.

Finance Committee OKs Quarterly $

The Student Legislature Finance Committee has made suggestions to the editors of the Carolina Quarterly for restoring the Quarterly's budget appropriations.

Suggestions grew out of a hearing Sunday of the Finance Committee and Quarterly staff called to discuss the Quarterly's finances and policies.

The committee recommended that the Publications Board appoint a new editor for next year who will submit an itemized budget report and statement of policy to the Finance Committee and will help edit the next issue.

The committee also suggested that the Quarterly estabiish a full-time circulation staff and attempt to circulate its editions more widely on campus.

Arthur Hays, chairman of the Finance Committee, said that the Quarterly's chances for receiving the withheld appropriations would "definitely improve with efforts to comply with these suggestions."

The Editor of the Quarterly, Louis Bourne, was cooperative about the committee's recommendations. He said the hearing suggested a "tone of optimism."

Bourne called first for more student interest and participation in the Quarterly.

Quarterly funds have been withheld by Student Government Treasurer Dick Akers for the publication's failure to meet its schedule and to submit an itemized budget.

Lowenstein Hits 'Nonsense-Logic'

By GARY BLANCHARD
Last of Three Articles

To protect academic freedom, don't exercise it.

This, says N. C. State Professor Al Lowenstein, is the type of "nonsense-logic" being employed by well-meaning people who criticize students and professors for participating in social protest activities on the grounds that it may irritate the men who passed the Gag Law.

Lowenstein, who is currently under fire from powerful state conservatives for taking part in anti-segregation protests in Raleigh and Mississippi, says he "can't think of anything that would suit Sen. Stone's purpose better than following this kind of logic.

"Then Stone wouldn't need the law. He'd have the University silenced without it."

State Senator Clarence Stone presided in the Senate over the hasty passage last summer of the law, which bans Communists from speaking on state-supported campuses.

Stone has been in the forefront of a recent move by conservative state elements to oust Lowenstein from his teaching position.

"It's important to see what these people are up to," Lowenstein continued. "The Gag Law was designed to punish and intimidate the University. But it didn't have that effect because there are no Communists at the University.

"Its total effect is to keep m.. be one or two Communists a year from speaking on any of the University's three campuses. So the men who got this law passed haven't silenced the people they hoped to.

"But then, well-meaning people come along and try to do the job for them.

"To those of us who are active in support of any controversial point of view they say, 'Oh, look what you're doing—you're getting these terrible laws passed that would ruin academic freedom at the University. We'll never get the Gag Law repealed if you act in a fashion which irritates the people who passed it.'

"And so, in the name of defending academic freedom, these well-meaning people say don't exercise it.

"But if we follow this line of reasoning, we end up abandoning academic freedom for the whole University community in the name of getting one law repealed which bans one or two Communists a year from speaking at the University.

"I say these well-meaning people who criticize faculty members and students from speaking up and acting on social issues are helping to see our freedom wither.

"It's easy to be against the Gag Law. It's much more important to be against the gag."

FIRST CANDIDATES

Seely, Stevens Seek Editorship

Hugh Stevens and Fred Seely
—Photo by Jim Wallace

Fred Seely and Hugh Stevens yesterday announced their candidacy for the co-editorship of the Daily Tar Heel.

They are the first to announce for the position now held by Gary Blanchard and Dave Ethridge. The pair has been approved by the Selections Committee of the Publications Board, and has received the endorsement of the Student Party.

Seely, a journalism major, is Managing Editor of the DTH. A junior from Asheville, he served three years in the Army prior to entering UNC. He currently holds the Quincy Sharpe Mills Journalism Scholarship.

He has served as editor of the Havelock Progress, a weekly in eastern North Carolina, and has worked on the Wilson Daily Times. He will be employed this summer with the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Stevens, the Associate Editor of the DTH, is a junior from Burlington, N. C. He is persuing a double major in RTVMP and English and attends UNC on a Jefferson Standard Foundation Scholarship.

He has been a Student Government reporter for the DTH, and was recently awarded a position in the 1964 Summer Internship Program conducted by the N. C. State Government.

In addition, both candidates have served in various Student Government capacities: Seely as chairman of the Communications and advisor to the Editors Roundtable, and Stevens with the Junior Class Cabinet and the Consolidated University Student Council.

"We feel that our acquaintance and concern with the problems of Student Government, together with our diverse journalism experience, will enable us to produce a comprehensive, objective campus paper," the candidates said in their announcement.

"We intend to focus our attention on those matters which concern our fellow students, and deal with them as fairly as possible. We will be newspapermen, not the partisan tool of any campus party or element."

"We will attempt to gather the most experienced, able staff possible," they said, "and use our own ability to work for a truly outstanding college daily.

"The editorship of the Daily Tar Heel involves many areas of concern. The editors must be administrators, writers, leaders, public servants, and businessmen. We feel that by combining our qualifications and the enthusiasm which we bring to the job, we can work effectively and honestly in each of these areas."

The election of DTH editor will take place in the regular April 14 all-campus elections.

SP Will Support Chused, Editors

The Student Party endorsed Fred Seely and Hugh Stevens for co-editors of the Daily Tar Heel Tuesday night after an hour-long floor battle over whether or not the party should endorse anyone at all.

Paul Chused was chosen to head the party's slate for Senior Class officers. Clay Moore will be the candidate for vice-president, Kay Hoyle will run for secretary, Susan Powell seeks the office of treasurer, and Roxanne Kalb will run for social chairman.

The party endorsed Neal Jackson, Bill Lucas, Karen Rawlings and Jim Brame for National Student Association.

The battle for endorsement of Seely and Stevens came when Arthur Hays moved that the party endorse no candidate. He cited a "feeling of obligation between the party and the editors which should not be the case in campus elections."

Phil Baddour spoke for endorsement, saying that the party should nominate qualified people and that endorsing the duo would help the slate.

Dick Ellis said that he felt that the editors of the paper "should be partisan if they receive our endorsement."

Seely then spoke against this in response to a question by Bill Lucas as to their policy on partisanship.

"We will criticize those who should be criticized, and we will help those who should be helped."

"If we are elected editors, we will run a newspaper, because we consider ourselves to be responsible newsmen. We will not stoop to the level of hack politicians running a Student Party rag."

The vote on Hays' motion was defeated 48-10, and the vote for Seely and Stevens was near-unanimous.

Legislative candidates were considered last night. The names were not available by DTH deadline, and will be published in tomorrow's newspaper along with UP legislative candidates.

Campus Items

Cathey Announces Exchange Program

An exchange program with the University of Puerto Rico in Rio Piedras was announced yesterday by Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey.

The trip is being financed by the Office of Student Aid. Anyone interested in applying for the exchange should pick up application blanks in the office of the chairman of the Spanish Department.

These forms should be completed and submitted for consideration to the Student Aid Office in Hanes Hall by April 6.

All applicants for the scholarship should have a reading and speaking knowledge of Spanish.

The Carolina student who is chosen to participate in the program during 1964-1965 will spend his junior year as a regular student at the university in Rio Piedras, where he will receive free registration, room and board.

The Puerto Rican who attends UNC will also receive a full exchange scholarship.

The University of Puerto Rico offers courses in business administration, education, pharmacy, the humanities and in the natural and social sciences.

Students now serving on the International Students Board will help select the exchangee.

Tri Delts Hold Spaghetti Dinner

The Tri Deltas will hold their annual spaghetti supper on Monday at the Tri Delta house, 210 Pittsboro Street. For a $1 ticket the sorority offers spaghetti, tossed salad, French bread, ice tea and dessert in their house. Dinners will be served at 5:30 and at 6:30.

The profits will go to a scholarship fund. These scholarships are awarded each spring to any woman on the Carolina campus irrespective of fraternity affiliation.

Heart Fund Plans Research Report

Scientists representing Bowman-Gray, Duke University, and UNC Medical centers will revive the past 15 years of heart research at their respective institutions for a report to be presented at the North Carolina Heart Association's 15th annual meet-

(Continued on Page 3)

SPU Lecture In Murphey Hall At 8

Hiram Hilty, professor of Spanish at Guilford College and member of a four-man team which was sent to Cuba after the hurricane last September, will speak on that country today at 8 p.m. in III Murphey Hall.

Hilty spent two months in Cuba distributing food to Cubans in the disaster area for the American Friends Service Committee, the only American relief organization to be allowed admittance to Cuba by the Castro government.

Hilty, an expert on Latin American affairs and a former missionary who spent years in interior Cuba, has the most recent account of the Cuban situation available since American newsmen and diplomats were forced to leave.

A reception will follow the lecture.

DEAN'S LIST

Five seniors and three juniors majoring in physical therapy made the Dean's List last semester.

Seniors are: Patricia Fisher, Carol Koch, Gladys Hart, Betti Smith and Elizabeth Whitfield.

Juniors are: Harriet Baugh, Virginia Freeman and Peggie

Volume 72, Number 120 Thursday, March 19, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel
71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

What The Civil Rights Bill Means

(Editor's note: This is the first of two parts on the actual meaning and effect the pending civil rights bill would have if passed by the Senate.)

Charlotte Observer

WASHINGTON—The civil rights bill now grinding noisily through Congress has given rise to widespread fears and misunderstandings.

Congressional mail shows that many whites—Northern as well as Southern—believe that the bill will take away some of their rights for the benefit of Negroes.

An intensive publicity campaign by anti-civil rights forces, partly aimed at earlier, more drastic versions of the bill now in the Senate, has added to these fears.

The questions that follow are among the most common in the minds of many citizens.

Each question is based on a charge made in a newspaper ad, brochure or statement put out by opponents of the bill, notably the Coordinating Committee for Fundamental American Freedoms and its legal expert, Mississippi lawyer John Satterfield, a former president of the American Bar Association. The committee gets most of its money from Mississippi.

The replies represent the position of the Department of Justice.

The explanatory material that follows is based on interviews with Satterfield and civil rights experts in the Justice Department.

Home

Question: Will the civil rights bill destroy your right to sell or rent your home to whom you please?

Reply: No. The bill will have no effect on discrimination in private housing.

Explanation: The President apparently already has the power to ban racial discrimination in housing by executive order.

By such a "stroke of the pen," President Kennedy 18 months ago forbade discrimination by apartment house owners and real estate developers who get federal financing. This order has not yet been tested in the courts.

President Johnson might, if he wished, extendthe order to cover private homes with FHA or VA-insured mortgages.

The Justice Department says that the civil rights bill adds nothing to this existing presidential power. In fact, a sentence in the bill specifically denies that it applies to government-insured home loans.

Opponents of the bill admit that it has no direct effect on private housing. But they argue that it would indirectly uphold the president's claim of authority to issue executive orders in this field.

Job

Question: Will the bill cost you your job, your security or your promotion to make way for a Negro?

Reply: With one exception, no. The bill forbids racial discrimination on the job but grants Negroes no special privileges.

Explanation: White fears of being displaced by Negroes stem from the "equal employment opportunity" section of the bill. This section requires companies and unions to treat workers of both races on the same basis.

But no "preference" is granted to either race. There is no requirement that a company or a union take on a certain number of Negroes to achieve a racial "mix" or "balance."

All that is required is that an employer, or a union, not turn down an otherwise qualified man because he is a Negro.

Passing over a white man to give preference to a Negro is banned, just as is the reverse.

The exception arises in the case of seniority—where separate white and Negro unions, or separate seniority lists have been maintained.

During the process of merging the locals, a worker who was No. 75 on the all-white list, for example, might find himself No. 82 on the combined list.

Business

Question: Will the bill require businessmen to keep records of the race of employees and job applicants? Will they have to let federal inspectors check their operations?

Reply: Yes.

Explanation: Without records and inspection, the government could not attempt to enforce this act.

The records are necessary, particularly from job applicants, to show if there is a pattern of discrimination in hiring.

However, a businessman who feels that the record-keeping burden on him is unreasonable is specifically authorized to go to court for relief.

School Rides

Question: Will the bill force some children to ride buses to schools outside their own neighborhood?

Reply: No. The bill specifically rules out federal action to require a "racial balance" in schools.

Explanation: The original draft of the civil rights bill authorized the federal government to get involved in efforts to "adjust racial imbalance in public school systems" caused by neighborhood housing patterns, or so-called "de facto segregation."

This authority was removed by the House Judiciary Committee. An amendment was added later on the House floor clearly banning federal action in this field.

This still leaves the way clear, however, for local school authorities to order the shifting of pupils to achieve a racial mix.

Benefits

Question: Will the bill threaten you with the loss of your social security or veterans benefits if you don't comply?

Reply: No. The government cannot cut off your pension, even if you choose to discriminate.

Explanation: The bill does permit a cutoff of federal funds to a program that discriminates against Negroes.

However, the cutoff can be applied only to the program that actually discriminates—not to any other. A community with a segregated school system, for instance, could lose its federal school aid, but it would still be eligible for federal road money.

Thus no pattern of discrimination by an individual, or by local and state officials, would bring a cutoff in your social security or veterans benefits.

Federal Aid

Question: How about federal aid to dependent children, or to the blind or disabled, or medical care for the aged, or federal unemployment compensation?

Reply: Yes, such assistance can be cut off but only as a last resort.

Explanation: These federal aid programs, and many others like them, are administered in a discriminatory fashion. If local officials persist in discriminating, and federal authorities think they have no other resort, the funds can be stopped.

Thirty days' notice must be given to Congress first, however, and the right to appeal the cutoff to the courts is guaranteed.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists:
Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mut Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Letters To The Editors

To And From O'l 505 Ehringhaus

505 Ehringhaus And The Organs

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Several of us here at the University at Raleigh were most interested in Mr. Bynum-Parsons' letter in the 10 March 1964 edition concerning the organs in your Music Department. We admire his spirit, but we wonder how one who has never taken an organ lesson in his life can speak with such authority. Freedom of speech is good, but one must exercise responsibility in his use of this freedom. It is interesting that Mr. Bynum-Parsons who really plays no instrument at all should be casting stones at those who do. It sounds to us rather like the story of the fox and the grapes.

Sincerely yours,
FRIENDS OF THE A.G.O.
(AT N.C. STATE)
Thomas A. Fraser III

Nothing New Under The Sun

Editors, The Tar Heel:

It would appear from the by-line on my esteemed roomate's letter (DTH of March 13) that there's nothing new at the DTH office either.

Haywood Smith, Jr.
505 Ehringhaus

What? Another Letter? Yes!

Editors, The Tar Heel:

The DAILY TAR HEEL of March 14 was one of the most pathetic excuses for a responsible, objective newspaper that I have ever seen. I refer in particular to the publication — as "news"—of Dr. Robert Sitton's letter on the front page. This is indefensible by any sane person's standards. My roommate very rightly drew attention to your poor taste in reprinting that maudlin article from LIFE a short while ago; this, however, is something more serious. If an ardent segregationist were to do the same thing that Dr. Sitton did, would you give his letter the same treatment? I doubt it very seriously. It is all too obvious that you are determined, under the camouflage of printing the news, to pour out a stream of propaganda.

I shall not deal here with the content of the letter itself — its weak points are apparent—with one exception. The reference to the conversation with Chancellor Aycock was, to say the least, indiscreet, the more so as it was (even compared with the substance of the letter) unnecessary. It could only have served to embarrass the Administration of the University. The professor must have taken leave of his senses in foolishly supposing that his actions, even if associated only in name with the University, can have no impact on the legislators of this state. The fact that the Legislature has passed a law such as the "speaker ban" is in itself sufficient evidence that his idealism has overcome his common sense. His blunder in drawing attention to his position in the matter was highly impolitic. The DAILY TAR HEEL'S drawing attention to this was equally inexcusable.

The upshot of this is that it is ridiculous for a trifling grouse such as that to be published on the front page; to propagandize it is a violation of what common sense dictates as the function of a responsible member of the free press in a democracy. That letter should have been placed on the editorial page, where open letters are placed. Its publication on the front page under screaming headlines shows much of a farce the DAILY TAR HEEL'S "generally good news balance" is. (The quotation is attributed to Fred Seely.)

In closing I would remark that, although you printed it, at least you put that mushy, gushy article by Henry McInnis on the editorial page instead of the front.

Haywood Smith
505 Ehringhaus

And The Grave Gets Deeper

Editors, The Tar Heel:

It appears that in my name-calling I have caused Mr. Garnett to misunderstand several of my points. It also appears that Mr. Garnett has disengaged himself from the original topic of our letters. I would like to clarify some of these misunderstandings. I did not mean to impress Mr. Garnett with the idea that my letters were jounalistic handsprings, but Mr. Garnett made himself rather vulnerable for a couple of my less respectable gibes.

I object to two separate aspects of the late President's burial. The primary objection is to the treatment which the subject has received at the hands of Mr. Wainwright ("Visit to a Grave") and similar writers, whose accounts we all have read in every newspaper. My objections to such treatment may be found in my first letter to the Daily Tar Heel on this subject, but they may be summarized: 1) Mr. Wainwright's article dealt with a private aspect of the President's life (inasmuch as any president may have privacy) and for that reason had no place in a public newspaper; 2) the article was sloppily written and tended to minimize the deeds of John Kennedy which were worthy of public notice and substitute emotional bleating: 3) Mr. Wainwright's article was not news but a description of his own misguided emotions; and 4) it was a purely commercial venture. My objection to the "eternal flame" is that one person deserves that tribute: the unknown soldier, whose grave is already so marked. It is possible to mark John F. Kennedy's grave in a thoroughly appropriate fashion without cheapening the eternal flame by its multiple use. (I do not mean to imply that the eternal flame is cheapened because it is used on John Kennedy's grave, but rather that any use of it except at the grave of the unknown soldier is cheapening.) In answer to Mr. Garnett's question what do I conceive "to be the reason for such a monument?" I must say that the ambiguity of Mr. Garnett's letter makes it necessary for me to ask, "Which monument? The torch, the oar, or the crutch?" The notions of oar and crutch are Mr. Garnett's, and I will leave the reasons for them to Mr. Garnett.

As for the eternal flame, Mrs. Kennedy has, since her husband's death, done a great many things that can be justified only by her desire to secure a niche in history for herself by utilizing the actions of her husband. An example of this is the plaque which Mrs. Kennedy has had mounted in the bedroom which she and her husband occupied in the White House. The plaque in itself is innocuous, but the inscription is more of a tribute to Mrs. Kennedy's ability to blind people to the truth than to anything else. The second paragraph of Mr. Garnett's letter is largely unintelligible. As I understand it, the concept of the eternal flame is a symbol generally used in commemoration of the unknown dead of a country. This is the way the flame is employed in London, Paris, and another part of Arlington. The reference to Jack Ruby's trial in Dallas is very confusing; it is not clear whether Mr. Garnett approves of the outcome of the trial. The reference may be interpreted either way with equal facility. God only knows what the antecedent of "this" in the last sentence of the second paragraph is.

I shall not contest Mr. Garnett's statement that the values of this land are largely based on "lower class emotion." This is strongly substantiated by Jessica Mitford's book, "The American Way of Death." Unwittingly Mr. Garnett has cited another example of the lower class values of America; "Kennedy died in a Lincoln automobile." That automobile is not worthy of the name; to be impessed by a big car is typical of America's lower class. A great many other things have been named inappropriately "Kennedy"; no doubt Detroit will come out soon with a "Kennedy Sport Coupe."

It is conceivable that the first sentence in the last paragraph of Mr. Garnett's letter was garbled somewhere between his pen and the second page of the Daily Tar Heel, but nevertheless the sentence is absolutely incomprehensible. I am advocating that faulty ideas, whether well-meaning or not, be cut from the paper by journalistically discriminating editors, who after all are there for that purpose: to edit. The relationship between civil rights legislation and our letters is rather abstruse. I used discrimination in the sense "carefully distinguishing," not "unfair or injurious distinction." I have never in this series of letters made any comments on the Senate or their civil rights policies. Surely Mr. Garnett's ideas were really springing here and there when he wrote his last paragraph, which certainly reaches the predicted "inevitable fallacy."

There is nothing new in 505 Ehringhaus merely for the sake of novelty; worthwhile ideas are not necessarily new. There is also nothing new in Mr. Garnett's letter; it is the same old house of illogic.

Richard Bynum-Parsons III
505 Ehringhaus Dormitory

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

Heelprints

We see where NASA has a new device for "retrieving errant astronauts." We suggest that they test it on John Glenn.

* * *

Looks like Senator Sam Ervin and his colleagues are trying to make a Civil Rite out of the Dixiecrat filibuster against civil rights.

* * *

A Blue Law sort of makes all that Merchants Association talk about free enterprise sound a little off-color.

* * *

Then there's the Campus Chest doll—you wind it up, give it more, and you get more in return.

Definition: Antique—something no one would be seen with if there were more of them, but which everyone wants when no one else has any.

* * *

The campus chapter of the AAUP seems to be organized on the principle of doing as little as possible for as long as possible.

So the Junior Class girls are having a football game. Well, it just goes to show they'll tackle anything.

* * *

After Mullin' the situation over, we'd say Duke might Buck (ley) all the odds and go straight to first place. Mann!

College Kids Just Aren't What They Used To Be

By ARTHUR HOPPE
San Francisco Chronicle

Dear Mom and Dad: Things are sure going fine here at college. I know you'll be proud to hear that this semester I've made a great record: Six arrests with three convictions.

This puts me at the top of my class and consequently I was elected "The Man Most Likely to Succeed." That was by the Pro-Tem Committee to Overthrow Our System of Injustice. And it's quite an honor.

So you can see why I haven't written much. I mean it takes hard work to build a record like that. Take those shop-ins. Day after day hauling those groceries up to the counter. And then fishing for Indiansan d picketing and freedom rides and marches. Boy, I didn't know college was going to be so tough.

But I don't want you to think your son's becoming a grind. I mean we had a pretty good time time at that sleep-in in the hotel lobby, singing songs and leading yells and stuff. Which reminds me. If you saw that picture in the paper of Jane and me kind of cuddled up together on the floor, don't worry. I mean we're not serious. As Jane says, "Let's not talk about marriage until we're old enough to cast our protest votes."

Your Son, Chuck

P.S. Could you send me $50? We're having a camp-in this weekend for Homeless Migrant Workers and you know how tough those rural judges are when it comes to bail.

* * *

Dear Son: I cannot tell you how much both your Mother and I deplore your recent conduct. Frankly, I am deeply shocked, particularly at the photograph of you being carried into a police van. Going limp! Is that what they teach you in college these days?

Now, don't misunderstand. Your Mother and I are for civil rights for Negroes, Indians and migrant workers. As you know, we always go out of our way to be nice to Indians, Negroes and migrant workers. So we are glad to see that you, too, are concerned about civil rights.

But what we deplore, Son, are your methods. Shop-ins! Sleep-ins! It seems we can't pick up a paper without seeing you and your friends sitting or lying around in somebody's way. There's no question in my mind that you're doing your cause more harm than good.

Why, I was talking to Mr. Rumpley at the Bank only yesterday and he said: "What's wrong with these college kids of today? I think we're coddling them too much." And a lot of other people are saying the sider your methods. Give up same thing.

So I beg you, Son, to recon this "passive resistance" nonsense. After all, "tried and true is usually best." So shape up and try to act the way we did in my day.

Your Worried Father

* * *

Dear Dad: Thanks a lot for your tip. We looked up old issues of the College Daily to check your methods. Wow! Water bombings, stealing fences for bonfires, tossing pianos out of hotel windows, painting slogans all over walls . . . You guys were real activists.

So we're now planning an Ad Hoc Panty Raid for Deprived Coal Miners' Wives. And I'm mighty proud my dad was such a red hot in his day. Only there's one thing that still puzzles all of us about your generation:

What cause were you fighting for?

Zany Unification

Raleigh News & Observer

So-called "unification of the armed services" has reached a zany point, says a news report from Washington. Actually while dodging real unification each service within itself has proved the necessity for it.

Under the unification plan which was a sort of division plan, too, the Army, the Navy and the Air Force were to stick to their fighting functions on the ground, on the sea and in the air. Now, however, both the Army and the Navy have planes and the Air Force has various "Army type" units designed to fight behind enemy lines and defend air fields. Such unification within each service may be necessary. That emphasizes the necessity for over-all unification of all the services.

Of course, there will always have to be men trained for various activities and in the use of different equipment and weaponry. Each service has emphasized that. But the result is that years after the unification of all the armed services, we have only three unified but separate services often bidding against each other for men, materials and money.

The situation we have now makes even less sense than the divisions before the pretense of unification was begun.

-Camp. Items-

(Continued from Page 1)

ing in Charlotte May 21.

The summaries for the first time will make a matter of record the significant contributions to cardiovascular knowledge made by investigators at Winston - Salem, Durham, and Chapel Hill.

Cosmos Rock And Roll Saturday

A good old-fashioned hoedown with a twist will be sponsored by the Cosmopolitan Club Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the Presbyterian Student Center.

It's a "Cosmopolitan Hoedown," an evening of country and folk dances from different countries. Clara Simon is the calier and the public is invited.

Rupen Presents Mongol Paper

Robert A. Rupen, associate professor of political science at UNC, will present a paper entitled "How the Mongolian Peoples Republic is Really Ruled" to the Association for Asian studies in Washington, D. C., Sunday.

A member of the UNC faculty since 1958, Dr. Rupen is one of the nation's foremost experts on Mongolia .

Kenan Hostess Calls It Quits

Mrs. J. C. Clamp, hostess of Kenan Dormitory, is retiring after nine years as an employee of the University.

Mrs. Clamp joined the University staff in 1951 as hostess of Alderman Dorm after being the house mother of Chi Omega Sorority since 1948.

She became Kenan's hostess in 1960.

Mrs. Clamp will be replaced by Mrs. Mabel Brittain, hostess of Nurses' Dorm.

Mrs. Brittain will be replaced at Nurses' by Mrs. John Stevens, currently the hostess of Spencer Dormitory.

Quarterly, Humor Mag Editors Now

Interviews for editor of the the Carolina Quarterly and for editor and business manager of the new humor magazine will be held by the Publications Board tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. upstairs in Graham Memorial.

The Quarterly is presently not included in next year's budget proposal. It is hoped by the Board that if editors are chosen and the magazine organized, an appropriation will be added.

The humor magazine was proposed this year by Roger Davis and has been included in the budget proposal.

when are 65% and 35% good marks?

when they're 65% DACRON* & 35% cotton in Post-Grad slacks by h.i.s.

This is the fabric combo that makes music with sleek good looks and washable durability. And Post-Grads are the bona fide authentics that trim you up and taper you down. Tried-and-true tailored with belt loops, traditional pockets, neat cuffs. Only $6.95 in the colors you like... at the stores you like.

*DuPont's Reg. TM for its Polyester Fiber

WIN A TRIP TO EUROPE

Pick up your "Destination Europe" contest entry form at any store featuring the h.i.s label. Nothing to buy! Easy to win! h.i.s offers you your choice of seven different trips this summer to your favorite European city by luxurious jet. Enter now!

HIS Slacks are found in Six great Spring Colors

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin St.

Clothiers of Distinction

COFFEE DAY—Rosalie Macklin, Mrs. Harry Macklin, Betsy Bailey and John Randall drink coffee for the Easter Seal Campaign. The proceeds from all coffee sold today at Harry's Restaurant will go to the Easter Seal Fund.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Catholic Archdiocese Blasts Wallace As 'Morally Evil'

OSHKOSH, Wis. (UPI — A Roman Catholic archdiocese Wednesday threw a "moral evil" charge at Alabama Gov. George Wallace, campaigning in the Wisconsin presidential primary, and said he is "known for promoting that type of racism which has been specifically condemned by Pope Pius XI."

The segregationist governor, bidding for votes in a state estimated to be about 40 per cent Catholic, invited a face-to-face meeting with priests and suggested that Catholics should make up their own minds whether to support him at the polls.

Wallace flew back to the politically conservative Fox River Valley from Milwaukee to wind up a two-day campaign swing in his Democratic primary battle with favorite son Gov. John Reynolds, a backer of President Johnson.

He planned to meet with a group of Protestant ministers and speak before a Young Conservative Club at Oshkosh State College.

The official newspaper of the Milwaukee Archdiocese, the Catholic Herald Citizen, hurled the charge of "moral evil." In an editorial which will go into more than a quarter of a million Wisconsin homes this week, it said:

"Moral evil does not float through the air. It walks through the world on the two feet of an individual person-directed by an evil mind and motivated by an evil heart .

"Moral evil is invading Wisconsin, Gov. Wallace of Alabama has come to our state."

The editorial said it was not the newspaper's policy to take sides in politics, but it added, "It is our duty to meet the needs of our subscribers by giving them information on which they can base solid, moral judgments."

Neither the editorial nor an accompanying article by Father John T. O'Connor flatly told Catholics not to vote for Wallace.

ARMS AND THE MAN RELATED DISCUSSION

SYMPOSIUM MEETINGS

West Cobb
4 p.m.
Dr. William M. Geer
McIver
7 p.m.
Dr. Earl Wallace
Kenan
7 p.m.
Dr. Joseph C. Sloane
Lambda Chi Alpha
5:45 p.m.
Dr. Donald Matthews

— Contempt —

(Continued from Page 1)

ing choices. "The first choice," Winston said, "was not to answer the question at all.. and thus be charged with contempt of court." He said that such action would have been called for according to the state law.

"The second choice was to answer the question contradicting the view expressed in the editorial, and thus be charged with perjury and contempt of court.

"The third choice," he continued, "was to answer the question truthfully." Winston maintained Blanchard answered the question truthfully, and was charged with contempt in doing so.

"If the respondent is found in contempt, it will have been done for his holding an opinion," Winston concluded.

The young Carrboro attorney ended his pleading with a quotation taken from a precedent case: "The law of contempt is not made for the protection of judges who may be sensitive to the winds of public opinion. Judges are supposed to be men of fortitude able to thrive in a hardy climate."

A large proportion of the audience in the courtroom left immediately after Mallard dismissed the charge. Blanchard was hustled outside the courtroom, to face news cameras and reporters.

Mallard immediately denied the motion to dismiss the charge.

Winston then asked to be allowed to plead for a reversal.

He told Mallard that Blanchard was faced with an "insolvable conflict" in that Blanchard was faced with three incriminaters.

"I am gratified by the decision," Blanchard said, "although I felt that no other just decision was possible. I want to express my deep appreciation for the expressions of support Dave and I received. It's good to know you have friends at a time like this."

PHI DELTS WIN

Phi Delta Theta won the Greek Week Field Day yesterday with a total of 19 points.

Placing second was Delta Upsilon and Alpha Tau Omega with 18. Tied for fourth was Beta and SAE with 16, Chi Psi followed with 13 and DKE and Phi Kappa Sigma had 11.

YMCA INTERVIEWS

Today's the last day for YWCA cabinet interviews.

Applicants are asked to come to Y-Court between 3 and 5 p.m. to be interviewed.

Di-Phi Backs Blanchard

The Di-Phi passed by acclamation Tuesday a resolution condemning the "harrassment" of Tar Heel Co-Editor Gary Blanchard by the Orange County Superior Court on an alleged contempt charge.

The charge against Blanchard was dismissed yesterday. Judge Raymond Mallard had charged Blanchard with disrespect after his testimony in defense of Dr. William Wynn, assistant professor of sociology on Tuesday.

The Di-Phi resolution calls the contempt charge an "affront to the freedom of the press and to the dignity of an elected officer of the Student Body of the University of North Carolina."

It described Blanchard's actions as "a submission of clarification and definition defending the Daily Tar Heel's editorial policy" as was requested by the prosecuting attorney.

Copies of the statement were sent to Judge Mallard; Thomas Cooper, county solicitor; Blanchard; and to the Daily Tar Heel.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

— Residence —

(Continued from Page 1)

blems of political organization are also under discussion. The group is seeking a means of reducing the feelings of many students that they are no more than a number of a series of holes in an IBM card. A decentralization and re-organization of political, social, intramural, and academic campus life hopefully will accomplish this goal.

The committee is exploring the possibility that such a program might engender a community feeling in the day-to-day life of the students. The program would also involve a more competitive intramural spirit.

Dean Long said the program would probably divide the residence halls into 8 independent areas, which would be laid out as follows: (1) Lower Quad, (2) Upper Quad, (3) Joyner, Alexander, Winston, and Connor; (4) Avery, Parker, and Teague, (5) Ehrnighaus, (6) Craige, (7) Morrison; and (8) Old East, Old West, BVP, and Carr.

Each of these groups would be organized into a tight political, social, intramural, academic unit.

He said that the discussion group is presently studying a dummy of the proposed program to see if it would work.

He said that a good residence college program could hurt weak fraternities unless they shape up. "The program could not possibly offer a student all the advantages of a good fraternity; but the campus needs 23 good fraternities, this goal has not been reached.

Dean Long said that so far a tremendous amount of interest about the proposed program has been shown both from on the campus and off.

Yes, the natural way to make an impression is to wear one of the exceptional quality suits found at the Varsity Men's Wear.

For only 39.95 you can be fitted in a crisp Dacron-Cotton suit that can be worn for the most casual to the most formal occasion. These are found in eight shades. So why don' you stop in today? Other fine suits from $45.00

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin St.

Clothiers of Distinction

JUST HATCHED! the gayest array ever of A&P's EASTER CANDY

Prices In This Ad Eff. thru Sat. March 21st . . .

WORTHMORE Kitchen Fresh Candies Priced Low To Save You Cash

Assorted Pops 12¼-oz. 45c 8-oz. 29c Candy Cottontails 12-oz. 33c
Coconut Creme Eggs 12-oz. 29c Non-Pariel Gum Eggs 14-oz. 33c

JELLY EGGS 1-lb. Pkg. 29c 1-lb. 12-oz. Pkg. 45c

Pee-Wee Jelly Eggs 1-lb. 35c
Chocolate Coated Coconut Cream Eggs 10-oz. 39c
Milk Chocolate Decorated Marshmallow Eggs 6-oz. 33c
Chocolate Covered Cream Eggs ..... 6¾-oz. Tray 29c
Choc. Coconut Cream Standing Bunny ..... 4-oz. 21c
Solid Milk Choc. Decorated Rabbits ..... 4-oz. 35c

Warwick Milk Choc-Covered Fruit and Nut Decorated Eggs 8-oz. Size 29c 12-oz. Size 39c

WORTHMORE ASSORTED MARSHMALLOW PANNED EGGS 12-oz. Pkg. 29c 1¼-lb. Pkg. 45c

Allgood Brand No. 1 Sliced Bacon 1-lb. Pkg. 39c

"Super-Right" Fresh PORK LOIN Whole 10-16 Lb. Avg. lb. 39c

Stock Your Freezer! All Varieties, Frozen Morton CREAM PIES 3 14-oz. Size 89c

Wisconsin Cheddar MILD CHEESE LB. 45c

Outstanding Value! All Varieties 1-lb. 3-oz. Size CAKE MIX By Ann Page 2 pkgs. 45c

Services Available

YOUR RETIREMENT INCOME... grows remarkably fast with the quick-building values of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance. We have facts and figures. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Used Cars For Sale

FOR SALE: HONDA 50, 600 miles, perfect condition. Call Tom McKnight 968-8268 after six.

Lost and Found

LOST BROWN LEATHER POCKETbook at Legion Hut Saturday night. Reward offered. Call 967-7071 or 929-2653.

For Sale

A AND O MONOCULAR MICROscope, wide angle lens, 3 objectives. Medical and dental school approved. Sacrifice at $130. Call 967-3203. 128 Polk St.

HONG KONG CLOTHING FOR men and women. All hand tailored to your individual measure in any style. Guaranteed fit, 3 to 4 week delivery. Messrs. Samaha & Baer will be at Duke Motor Lodge, Durham, Friday, March 20 with comprehensive range of samples for this season and will be honored to render expert tailoring to your individual needs as authorized representatives of Charley Chang, Hilton Hotel, Hong Kong. Since stay is brief, please phone 489-9111 for appointment, Thank you.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

Orientation Reform Comm. — 4 p.m., Orientation Office.

Middle South United Nations Model General Assembly — 3-5 p.m., YMCA-CCUN office, today-Fri. and Mon.-Tues. interviews for executive and secretarial positions.

Badminton Intramurals — through Fri., representatives must have entries in by 4:30 p.m. Fri.

GMAB President Applications — applications for GMAB president are now available at GM information desk.

Freshman Golf — 1 p.m., Finley Golf Course, UNC vs. Myers Park HS.

SP Precinct Chairmen — 8 p.m., 305 Alumni.

Scuba Diving Club — 7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

Math Colloquium — 4 p.m., 383 Phillips, Prof. Pierre E. Conner, Jr. will speak in "Weakly Complex Structures."

Freshman Camp — 7 p.m., Y-Court, election of a director for next year.

Alumni Game Tickets—on sale at Y-Court and Woollen Gym.

YWCA—3-5 p.m., Anne Queen's Office, Y-Court, interviews for committee chairman.

UP Campus Action Board — 4 p.m., Grail Room, progress of various Sub-committees.

SPU—8 p.m., 111 Murphy.

Orientation Comm.—5 p.m., RP III.

Orientation Secretariat—3 p.m., Orientation Office, basement GM.

Senior Week Comm.—8:30 p.m., RP III.

International Students Board — 4 p.m., Y-Court.

MOVIES

Carolina—Love with the Proper Stranger

Varsity—One Man's Way

FRIDAY

YMCA Interviews for Cabinet Positions — 3-5 p.m., Wed., Fri., and Mon., president's office in Y-Court.

Wesley Foundation—8 p.m., open house at Rev. Bob Johnson's meet at Wesley House.

Wesley Foundation — 6 p.m., Wesley House, supper-by reservation, call by 2 p.m.

Dr. Ernest M. Manasse—8 p.m., 213 Caldwell Hall, presentation of paper "On Interpreting Plato."

Jr. Class "Powder Puff" Football—2:30 p.m., meet on Fetzer Field in sweat shirts and bermudas.

Writer in Residence Comm.—3 p.m., 103 Bingham, compulsory.

SUNDAY

Graduate Newman Club — 8:30 p.m., Catholic Student Center.

Newman Club — 6 p.m., St. Thomas More Hall, supper and discussion.

CPU—9 p.m., Grail Room, election of officers and address by Dr. Raymond Dawson on Viet Nam.

POGO

'The Possum' Paces Aces To Cage Title

By PETE GAMMONS

Clowning Eddie Kesler, star fullback on the Gator Bowl team and a pinch hitter earlier in the day against Elon for the baseball club, turned his efforts to basketball Tuesday night and scored 22 points in leading the Ehringhaus Aces to a 38-34 victory over ATO for the All-Campus championships. Kesler capitalized on 12 of 13 foul shots and hit on a key three point play late in the first half to put the Aces ahead to stay.

The ATO's were never behind until Kesler's play. Sammy Simpson hit two early baskets for a quick 5-2 lead, and he later hit twice for their biggest lead of four points, at 10-6 and 12-8. But the Aces came right back and Jimmy Gallagher's 30 foot jumper tied the score at 12 apiece. After Dickie Flemming put in two free throws Gallagher hit on another bomb, and Kesler made his big play, with forty seconds left. Junior Edge hit at the buzzer for a 19-14 halftime lead.

The second half saw ATO play inspired and improved ball, but the Aces' coolness under fire held them off. Twice Jim Corbitt's twisting jumpers cut the lead to two, but each time Kesler sunk a pair of free throws to keep the lead. Bill Haywood's cool leadership was just as important as Kesler's sensational play, as the baseball captain controlled the ball well, and helped set up either easy shots or fouls. From the team's point of view, keeping the ball away from Sammy Simpson made the big difference, as he scored only two of his fourteen points in the second half.

Besides the outstanding play of Kesler and Haywood, the Aces got unexpected scoring help from Jimmy Gallagher, who hit three long jumpers in key situations and ended up with 9 points. Jimmy's twin brother Frank and Junior Edge didn't score much, but both did excellent defensive work, especially Gallagher, who held Jimmy Corbitt to only 4 points. Simpson was magnificent in defeat, but the tight defense kept the ball away from him in the second half. Buff Moore and Dickie Flemming both played well as the floor leaders. Corbitt and Watts Carr both played brilliantly at times, but both were erratic, and it was their inconsistency that hurt their second half drive.

But it was Kesler's night.

BOX SCORE

| Ehringhaus | fg | ft | tp |
|---|---|---|---|
| F. Gallagher | 0 | 0-1 | 0 |
| J. Gallagher | 3 | 3-6 | 9 |
| Edge | 2 | 0-1 | 4 |
| Kesler | 5 | 12-13 | 22 |
| Haywood | 1 | 1-1 | 3 |
| Ward | 0 | 0-0 | 0 |
| ATO | fg | ft | tp |
| Carr | 2 | 3-4 | 7 |
| Corbitt | 2 | 0-0 | 4 |
| Simpson | 6 | 2-4 | 14 |
| Moore | 2 | 2-3 | 6 |
| Flemming | 0 | 3-4 | 3 |
| Hollowell | 0 | 0-0 | 0 |

Halftime: Ehringhaus 19, ATO 14.

Sigmon Answers His Critics!

Gene Sigmon, co-captain of last year's Gator Bowl winners, has fired back at his critics who claim Gene will not get to play much in the Varsity-Alumni game Saturday.

Sig says, "Hennesey, Stallings and Butler may be bigger than I am, but I won more football games here in one year than any of them did in three.

Sport Shorts

Starczewski Gets the (Broken) Thumb

Junior tackle Bob Starczewski, who still has two years of football eligibility left, became a casualty of spring football drills Tuesday afternoon when he broke his right thumb.

The husky 200-pounder from Natrona Heights, Pa., is high on the list of candidates bidding for the starting left tackle spot, opposite letterman John Hill,. who'll be on the right side next fall.

The injury will keep Starczewski out of action for the remainder of practice, which ends with the Varsity-Alumni battle Saturday afternoon in Kenan Stadium.

Three Righties Face Devils Today

Bill Dannemann, Bobby Cox and Mike McLaughlin will share pitching chores this afternoon as the Tar Heels entertain Duke in a three o'clock exhibition baseball game.

It will be the first time out for Dannemann, a junior from Norfolk, Va., who compiled a 1-1 record and a 2.86 ERA last season. The lean righthander is rated a good control pitcher, who keeps the ball down low.

Cox tossed two innings against the frosh Monday and McLaughlin puzzled Elon with a hitless three-inning stint on Tuesday. The former, a senior, used a good curve for a 2-1 mark and a neat 2.22 ERA last spring. McLaughlin, a promising soph, was 4-4 for last year's Tar Babies.

And Arnie's Army Will Not Be There

It's been "golf weather" in Chapel Hill these last few days and UNC golfers hope that's the way it'll be today and tomorrow down in South Carolina.

Coach Ed Kenney takes his linksmen to Clemson today for the Tar Heels' first dual match of the young season. Tomorrow they meet the South Carolina duffers.

THE NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL
Life Insurance Company
"Because there is a difference"
announces the appointment of
WILLIAM MILES BUELL
as
SPECIAL AGENT
for
Chapel Hill and Vicinity
Tel. 942-6966

BEST DEAL IN TOWN
(Eating–That Is)
Student Special
- All the CHICKEN you can eat ..... 88c
- All the FISH you can eat ..... 69c

MONDAY - FRIDAY; 4:00 - 7:00 P.M.
GRANTS EASTGATE Shopping Center

New Mexico And Bradley NIT Favorites

NEW YORK — (UPI) — New Mexico is favored to beat New York University and Bradley is the choice over Army in the semifinal round of the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Yet it is the underdog in each case which is expected to determine the final outcome as NYU plies its power and Army presses its raw nerve against the known strengths of New Mexico and Bradley.

The two survivors will meet Saturday afternoon in a nationally televised game to decide the winner of the 27th annual NIT. The two semifinal losers also will play for third place.

The oddsmakers figure New Mexico should overcome NYU with its superior height, deliberate offense and ball-hawking defense, as it displayd to near-perfection in upsetting Drake, 65-60, in a quarter-final game Tuesday night. As for Army, which surprised Duquesne, 67-65, in overtime in the second game, some observers think the Cadets do not belong on the same floor as Bradley.

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

What SOBO Glue Has Joined Together No Man
Can Put Asunder
Be Modern . . . Use SOBO
Replaces Old Fashion Goo
Proven Best by Test
BILLY ARTHUR, Eastgate

Early Easter
The Easter Bunny reminds us that he'll be here in March this year, and suggests a few titles that are sure to delight that young heart Easter Morning . . .
A new Joan Walsh Anglund
A Pocketful of Proverbs
with its own slip-case, ..... $1.95
and
The Fuzzy Duckling
and
The Golden Bunny
big picture books, each .... $1.00
in the delightful children's book section at
The Intimate Bookshop
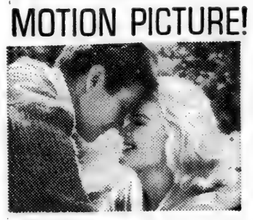
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 p.m.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
NOMINATED FOR 5 ACADEMY AWARDS
Natalie Wood "Best Actress of the Year!"
NATALIE WOOD
There is a moment-a long moment-when everything is risked with the proper stranger.
STEVE McQUEEN

A PAKULA-MULLIGAN PRODUCTION
Love WITH THE PROPER STRANGER
WRITTEN BY ARNOLD SCHULMAN
Co-starring EDIE ADAMS
Music by HERSCHEL BERNARDI
OPENS SUNDAY
THE CARDINAL
AN OTTO PREMINGER FILM

Varsity
STARTS THURSDAY
ONE man's way IS EVERYONE'S MOTION PICTURE!


FRANK ROSS presents
ONE man's way
THE STORY OF NORMAN VINCENT PEALE
STARRING DON MURRAY
CO-STARRING WILLIAM WINDOM CAROL OHMART
AND INTRODUCING DIANA HYLAND
Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

Leonard Sidelined

Coach Walt Rabb's Tar Heels received a rough blow Tuesday when x-rays revealed that sophomore lefthander Beattie Leonard would be out five weeks with a broken hand.

Leonard, a promising 6 foot, 185-pounder from Kings Mountain, was injured when he tried to knock down a line shot off the bat of Richard Such. Leonard refused to come out of the game, however, and retired the side by striking out one man and getting the third out on an infield pop to Dickie Prindle.

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.
BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1
Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes
115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

GET MORE OUT OF LIFE...ENJOY
TENNIS
"THE SIGN OF YOUR SPECIALIST IN SPORTS"
You'll love smashing 'em in style. We satisfy the satorial side of tennis too. Caps, visors, shirts, jackets, sweaters, shorts, socks, shoes. Sharp attire for rackets also—covers presses, and
CUSTOM STRINGING
by McGinty
the Sport Shop, inc.
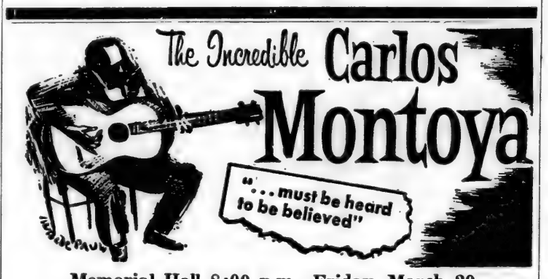
"It Pays to Play"
151 E. Franklin Chapel Hill, N. C.



Memorial Hall 8:00 p.m., Friday, March 20
All Seats Reserved — Student tickets now on sale at Graham Memorial
General Public may purchase Thurs., March 19 starting at 12:30 p.m. if tickets remain.
ADMISSION $1.50

Sparkling...
flavorful... distinctive!

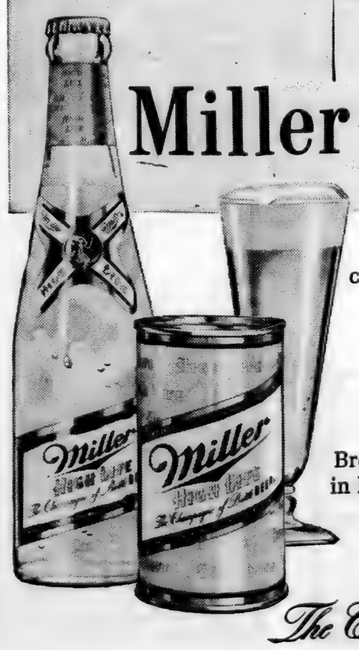
Miller High Life



Pleasure for everyone! A bright, clear taste...flavor with a deep-down goodness, sparkling with a special lightness...distinctive!
Brewed only in Milwaukee
Miller HIGH LIFE
The Champagne of Bottle Beer

FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
128 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

Variations on a summer scheme, composed by Austin Hill in a harmonious blend of 65% Dacron* (polyester) and 35% cotton poplin. And, the fabric is fluoridized with ZE PEL* for stain resistance and longer fabric life. Keep your wardrobe in tempo with both the slacks and Bermuda or Jamaica length shorts. In 18 shades, including Sand, Natural and Olive. The grand finale is the excellent tailoring in sizes 28 to 42. Slacks Shorts You'll be back for encores. Exactly as seen in the New Yorker magazine.
*DuPont Reg. T.M.
Town & Campus

PEANUTS

ACROSS
1. Areas for flowers
5. Gang
9. Shooting star
10. Looks askance
12. Section of a bird's wing
13. Flower
14. Feels displeasure
16. Station: abbr.
17. Slumber
19. Common suffix
22. Former
23. First man
27. Compassion
29. God of lower world: myth.
30. Palm starch
31. Wife of Shamash
32. A mesh-fabric
33. Fluctuate
36. Crown
39. Lassos
43. Entertain
45. Christmas song
46. An ungulate: So. Am.
47. Vestibule
48. Male red deer
49. Inflamed swelling on eyelid: var.

DOWN
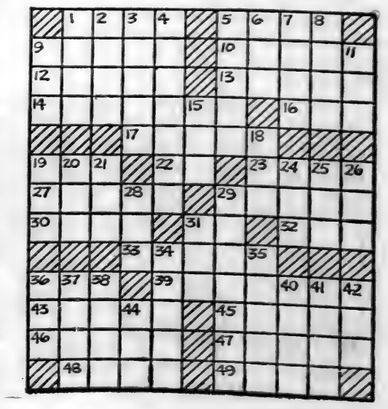
1. Tree trunk
2. Ostrich-like birds
3. Erases: print.
4. English explorer in Africa
5. Shut
6. King: L.
7. Lampreys
8. Legal order
9. Vehicle
11. Resort
15. Cowboy's nickname
18. Chum
19. Ger. spa
20. Caspian
21. Unit of work
24. Demand, as payment
25. Consumed
26. Pithy saying
28. To intimidate
29. Stabs
31. Actress ——— Gardner
34. Wide-awake
35. Laughing
36. Feline
37. Oriental nurse
38. Stage in insect development
40. Bohemian-like
41. Ripped
42. Cunning
44. Knight's title

Yesterday's Answer



U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

121

It's Carnival Time At Carolina!

The Weather

Spring arrived at 9:10 a.m.

The Daily Tar Heel

The Campus Chest carnival comes today . . . rides from 4-8 . . . rides . . . rides . . . girls . . . see you there? . . . YES . . . why? . . . we're horny, to hell with work.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1964 | United Press International Service

Symposium Adds 2 For Panel Meeting

By JOHN D. FRONEBERGER

William Sprague Barnes, Assistant Dean of the Harvard Law School, and Otto Eckstein, Professor of Economics at Harvard University, will speak here Tuesday afternoon, April 17, for the Carolina Symposium.

Their topic "International Economy and Foreign Policy in an East-West World" emphasizes the impact of the cold war upon America's position as a world power.

Dean Barnes is also director of the World Tax Series at the Harvard Law School, and director of Latin American Studies Faculty of Arts and Sciences. He is chairman of the University Committee on Inter - American Affairs.

A native of New York City, Dean Barnes received the A.B. from Yale in 1940 and LL.B. from Harvard in 1947. He was awarded the degree of Docteur en Droit from the University of Geneva in 1957.

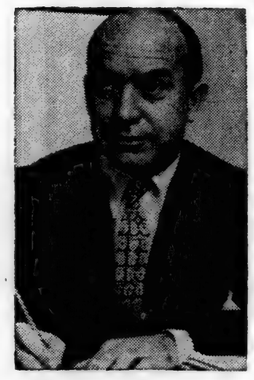
Dean Barnes is a member of the Massachusetts Bar, the American Association for Comparative Study of Law (Treasurer), and Inter-American Bar Association.

During World War II, Dean Barnes was a Captain in the Air Force and and a fighter pilot in North Africa. He flew 66 missions before being shot down and captured. He was awarded a DFC and an Air Medal. He completed the first year of Law School while a prisoner of war in Stalag Luft III.

On the other hand, Otto Eckstein, a native of Germany, is Professor of Economics. He is an authority in public finance.

A native of Germany, Professor Eckstein came to the United States in 1939 and obtained citizenship in 1945. After graduating in 1946 from Stuyvesant High School in New York, he served for a year in the U. S. Army and then entered Princeton Uni-

(Continued on Page 3)



William S. Barnes

Otto Eckstein

SL, Di-Phi Hear Beatty

Jim Beatty, UNC alumnus and US Olympic star, and former Daily Tar Heel Editor Curtis Gans will speak before Student Legislature and the Di-Phi Senate Monday and Tuesday in behalf of the North Carolina Fund Volunteer program.

The Fund is seeking 100 volunteers from local colleges to help "break the cycle of proverty" in North Carolina communities.

Beatty is director of the program and Gans is his assisant.

For 11 weeks this summer, beginning June 10, the volunteers will be trained in all facets of their work in the local level and in techniques of community education and organization.

Each volunteer will become experienced in leading community projects and will have an opportunity for a full-time paid internship during subsequent years.

Applications may be obtained at Student Government offices in Graham Memorial or at South Building.

Grail Initiates 13

Thirteen students were initiated into the Order of the Grial in pre-dawn ceremonies today.

The new Knights are: Michael Henry Chanin, Atlanta, Ga.; Stephen Neal Dennis, Kensington, Ga.; Lawrence Albert Ehrhart, III, Orleans, Mass.; James Roy Fullwood, Jacksonville, N. C.; William Geremain Hancock, Jr., Charlotte, N.C.; Neal Andrews Jackson, Raleigh, N.C.; William Wilson Lowrance, Jr., Asheville, N.C.; Joseph Franklin Martin, Chapel Hill, N.C.; Park McGinty, Atlanta, Ga.; James Bullard Meade, Washington, D. C.; William Harrison Merrill, Atlanta, Ga.; Albert Lee Sneed, Jr., Pinehurst, N.C.; Heathcote Wales, St. Thomas, Virgin Is-

(Continued on Page 3)

AN EDITORIAL

The Question Still Remains Unanswered

Judge Raymond Mallard has managed to leave a cloud of uncertainty hanging over the Orange County Superior Court which can only do violence to the free flow of justice in his court in the future.

After a careful reading of his decision in Editor Gary Blanchard's contempt of court hearing, it appears that Judge Mallard has found Blanchard guilty of contempt, but then discharged him without penalty. It is still uncertain whether Blanchard now has a criminal record for this conviction, but even more important it is uncertain whether a citizen can go into Judge Mallard's Court and give his honest opinion on a matter when asked to—with any assurance that he too will not be cited for contempt.

This undercuts one of the basic concepts that citizens of the United States hold about their court system. One should feel that there is no safer place in this country than a court room, if he is telling the truth and has committed no crime. This is obviously no longer the case.

It also would seem to be incumbent upon the judge to define his ruling in any area in which he chooses to operate. After all, he started this whole thing by telling Blanchard to return to court to face a contempt charge after the trial of William Wynn was over. It would seem that the Judge could at least finish what he started so that witnesses in the future might know if they could express an honest opinion in his court when asked. If he found Blanchard guilty of contempt he should have said so in unequivocal terms and punished him; if not, he should have dismissed the charge and said specifically he did not find the defendant in contempt.

Instead of this, Mallard tried to have his cake and eat it too. He found Blanchard guilty but refused to mete out a sentence, leaving Blanchard with little or no recourse, since appeal is virtually impossible in these circumstances.

It would also seem to be the responsibility of a judge to warn a witness that answering a particular question could put him in jeopardy of a contempt citation. While the Judge is not forced to rule if no objection is lodged, this would not seem to relieve him of his obligation to inform laymen of what the law is.

Blanchard answered the question put to him honestly. it is a matter of doubt whether Judge Mallard answered the question he raised as honestly.—DAVID ETHRIDGE.

MRC, CWC SET DANCE

Get your dates now.

The Men's Residence Council and the Carolina Women's Council are sponsoring a combo party at the Women's Gym tomorrow night from 8 to 12 p.m.

FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

Admission is free and the Rivieras combo is guaranteed to keep your ears filled with melody.

And if the weather's nice, the dance will be on the patio—right next to the outdoor pool.

THE RIDES ARE HERE — Campus Chest Carnival Co-chairmen Jean Renfrow and Jim Light survey the rides for the Carnival that arrived on the intramural field yesterday afternoon. The rides will be in operation today from 4-10 p.m. and all day Saturday.—Photo by Wallace

At Intramural Field

Rides Tonight Start Carnival Time Here

By JOHN GREENBACKER

Gambling, lottery and other mild vices will become legal for all UNC students tomorrow at the Campus Chest Carnival, all in the name of charity of course. All rides will be in full swing tonight from 4-8 p.m.

An enterprising student with money can buy the time of an East Cobb coed, if he happens to choose her legs from an assortment of others behind a curtain.

Some fortunate male will have the chance of showing the Carnival beauty queen a good time with all expenses paid if she happens to draw his lot from hundreds of others.

The queen of the Carnival will actually be the queen of the Varsity-Alumni Game, who will have her name announced at the game earlier in the afternoon.

Penn Premier Shows, the largest taveling carnival in the East, will provide rides for the day, and will feature a special mystery ride from Germany. All rides will cost 25c.

Fifty booths sponsored by clubs, residence halls, sororities and fraternities will provide assorted side entertainment at 10c a throw.

For those with sadistic tendencies, there will be numerous fraternity-sponsored booths which will allow the customer to plaster pathetic pledges with various types of goo.

For the politically minded, the Young Democratic Club will sponsor donkey rides and local Richardson Preyer supporters will sponsor a "Pitch for Preyer" booth.

For the mentally disturbed, Nurses Dorm and Ehringhaus Residence Hall will sponsor a "Lucy Psychiatric Booth."

For the hardened criminal, there will be a jail booth which for commitment costs and the youthful incorrigable for his room.

For the plain old grubby individual there will be a greased pig race.

Carnival Planner Jim Light has been very pleased with the variety and originality of this year's booths.

"I think we have a lot more orginial ideas this year than I've seen in the last two years," he said. "We have more amusements for all ages."

The Carnival's hours will be 1-7 p.m. Bring money.

Independents May Run For Legislature

Reports were confirmed yesterday that a group of candidates will declare for Student Legislature running without party endorsement, but with the co-operative endorsements of other independent candidates.

A spokesman, who asked to remain unidentified, said the group baned together "because of their common interests."

"The group," he continued, "will run without party endorsement for two reasons:

—To overcome discriminatory block voting.

When a candidate runs for an office in Fraternity court with an SP endorsement, he loses two-thirds of the votes. The same holds true for a UP candidate in Ehringhaus.

—To avoid being tied down to the whims of a particular campus political party.

We feel the only way a Legislator can represent his district well is to be obligated to it, and it alone."

The spokesman emphasized the group is not a "third party." The group ranges in political sympathy from both the left and the right, "although none are extremists" on either side.

The candidates will run in fraternity, sorority, and dormitory districts.

Listed among possible candidates for the group are: Sandy Alexander, Jean Anderson, Winborne Shaffer, Suzanne Sterling, Larry Coleman, Russ Simmons, Lewis Burton, Simmons Patterson, Teddy O'Toole, Dave McFadden, Claude Reynolds, Billy Joe Houck and Jim "J.P." Smith.

The group will be identified by a series of posters and publicity aids, similar in design.

The spokesman identified posters appearing on campus bearing the legend "Something big is about to happen" and showing a picture of two birds over an enormous egg, as part of the publicity put out by the group. He also identified a "Who" poster with a picture of an owl on it as belonging to the group.

23 Pledge Sororities During Rush

UNC's seven sororities pledged up 23 new members during informal spring rush.

They are:

Alpha Delta Pi: Rebecca Brown, Troutman; Diane Crockett, Charlotte; and Lois Ann Shepherd, North Wilkesboro.

Alpha Gamma Delta: Patricia Nash, Lowell; Ann Puckett, Mt. Airy; and Ellen Joan Soloman, Wilmington.

Chi Omega: Nancy Baum, Bath; Eva Lee Blaine, Chapel Hill; Bertram Bradshaw, Wilmington; Dianne Crooneberghs, Virginia Beach, Va.; Margo Murphy, Moorestown, N. J.; and Joyce Whitesides, Charlotte.

Delta Delta Delta: Margaret Ann Edmundson, Goldsboro; Patricia Ann McNulty, Jacksonville; Nancy Ramsey, Kinston; Mary Ellison Strother, Kinston; and Laura Jane Ward, Goldsboro.

Kappa Delta: Mary Frances Caffey, Greensboro; Lois Anne Curran, Greensboro; Ann Lynch, Pilot Mtn.; and Jeanne Mason, High Point.

Kappa Kappa Gamma: Phoebe Moore, Concord.

Pi Beta Phi: Diana Foote, Chapel Hill.

Powder Puff Football Game Today

By MAT FRIEDMAN

Can Billy Cunningham's "Blue Bruisers" stop Harrison Merrill's "Red Rompers"?

That's the question no one has been asking. But at three this afternoon in Kenan Stadium, 50 coeds will provide a hilarious answer anyway in the "Junior Class Girls Powder Puff Football Game." Admission is $.25.

They finally got Merrill out of that pool in New Hampshire and back to Chapel Hill. Now he's busy whipping 25 females into shape for today's fiasco.

At the rate he's going, they say, his girls should be ready—for the infirmary. You see, he's been making them run windsprints and take calisthenics. Everybody knows that's not fair. Carolina coeds never run—they are chased.

Coach Cunningham stirred up a little pre-game controversy yesterday by accusing Merrill of sending a spy to watch the Blue Bruisers practice. Merrill denied the charge. He said he's been doing his own spying. He confided that the huddles have been most revealing.

Many of the varsity football players watching the practices observed that the workouts have been amazingly tough. One junior tackle said his tongue was hanging out just from watching.

Everyone is still astonished by the fifty-yard touch-down run in Monday's practice, a game which ended 6-0. They are astonished because no one knows who made the run or who won the game.

All reports are that the contest will be wide open. All sorts of passes have been made in the practices and more of the same is expected today. Both coaches have been working on sweeps and pitchouts.

As far as size is concerned, the teams are pretty equal. Merrill's girls average 36-25-35 and Cunningham's 35-25-36. The difference, rumors go, is attributed to the fact that Billy's team figures to sit on the ball.

But at three today, all rumors will be forgotten when one girl puts her foot to the ball for the opening kickoff. Then, if she doesn't stub her toe, the GAME will be under way.

Oh, by the way, Merrill is still hoping for rain so his team can swim.

Girls Get In Shape With Many Push-Ups Photo by James Ward

CCC Will Lobby For CR Passage

By KERRY SIPE

Joseph Straley, chairman of the Chapel Hill Committee of Concerned Citizens (CCC), said yesterday that members of the group would be sent to Washington in the near future to lobby in favor of the civil rights bill currently before the Senate.

The CCC is a local organization primarily concerned with local civil rights problems.

"Most of our attention is still on the Chapel Hill area," Straley said. "We believe that we should have our own local law without having Washington force one on us.

"The move to shift our attention to a national level is due strictly to the uncooperativeness of the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen," he said.

Straley said the first lobbying group will probably leave for Washington on Monday or Tuesday of next week.

The group is currently comunicating with other lobbying groups in Washington. "We are studying the situation thoroughly before we make any contacts," Straley said.

The Committee is in correspondence with lobbists from the National Council of Churches and the United Auto Workers Union.

"Professor Dan Pollitt educated us on the particulars of the bill at our last meeting," he said. "We want to learn as much about the situation as possible."

Lists are being made of members of the Senate who are in favor of the bill, those who are opposed and those who are not yet committed. The group will direct their actions toward those who

(Continued on Page 3)

Volume 72, Number 121 Friday, March 20, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel
71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

What The Civil Rights Bill Means

Charlotte Observer

(Editor's note: This is the second of two parts on the actual meaning and effect the pending civil rights bill would have if passed by the Senate.)

Mortgages

Question: Will the bill forbid you to discriminate just because you have a FHA or VA-insured mortage on your home, or carry GI life insurance, or have a bank account insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.?

Reply: No. The bill specifically eliminates this possibility.

Explanation: Millions of ordinary citizens receive federal "aid" in the form of government insurance for their life, house or savings.

Fear arose that the bill would cover them because of its ban on discrimination in federally assisted programs.

So the bill was amended by the House of Representatives to make it clear that "contracts of insurance or guaranty," such as FHA and VA home loans, were not covered.

Note: Those few veterans who borrowed money directly from the VA to finance their homes are covered, but not the vast majority whose mortgages are simply insured by the VA.

Trial By Jury

Question: Will the bill permit you to be sent to jail without a trial by jury?

Reply: Yes, if you disobey a federal court order directing you to comply with the law.

Explanation: With minor exceptions, the civil rights bill creates no new crimes for which you can be fined or jailed.

But it does set forth certain discriminatory acts which a federal judge — after a trial—can order you to cease.

Then, if you don't cease, the judge can slap you in jail without a trial by jury.

Your "crime" would not be violating the civil rights act. It would be contempt of court.

But the result is the same—you're in the jail.

The Justice Department points out that there never has been a right of trial by jury for criminal contempt of court. So the bill is not taking away any right you already have.

In fact, certain new safe-guards are added. If you defy a court order enforcing the voting rights or public accommodations sections of the bill, you can't be jailed for more than 45 days or fined more than $300 without a jury trial.

For disobeying a court order involving the other parts of the bill, such as the fair employment section, you can be jailed indefinitely for contempt.

Star Chamber ?

Question: Will the bill let you be questioned, in a secret "star chamber" proceeding, with a jail sentence hanging over you if you reveal what happened?

Reply: Yes, but it's not as bad as it sounds.

Explanation: The bill authorizes the Civil Rights Commission to hold hearings to investigate complaints on discrimination.

If the commission thinks the testimony might embarrass or incriminate someone, it can hold the hearings behind closed doors. Unauthorized disclosure of the proceedings can be punished by a $1,000 fine or a year in jail.

The Justice Department says this provision is not meant to hurt anybody —just to protect people from premature or unfair disclosure of unsubstantiated charges.

The secret hearings are only to gather information; the commission has no power to make anybody do anthing.

Congressional investigating committees hold such closed-door hearings frequently.

Professions

Question: Will the bill force doctors, lawyers, barbers and small businessmen to serve Negroes even if they aren't engaged in "interstate commerce?"

Reply: It depends where your business is located. Sometimes the answer is yes; sometimes no.

Explanation: If you live in a community where there is a local law actually on the book requiring racial segregation, the new federal law will apply to every business and professional man. If you serve white people in such a town, you will have to serve Negroes too.

In other communities, the rules are different.

You will have to serve all races if your place of business is located "on the premises" of an establishment, such as a hotel or theater, covered by the bill.

You also will be covered if your place of business, such as a department store, contains a restaurant or lunch counter covered by the bill.

But you are not required to serve Negroes just because your store or office is located in the same building, or the same shopping center, with a covered establishment.

A doctor or a lawyer could have an office in a hotel, or upstairs over a restaurant, without coming under the law.

Religion

Question: Will the bill permit discrimination against you if you don't believe in God.

Reply: Yes.

Explanation: An amendment added by the House of Representatives permits an employer to refuse to hire an atheist —even if he is otherwise qualified.

This amendment was added over the objections of the bill's sponsors. A Justice Department spokesman called it "foolish."

Question: Will the bill control the selection of members and guests of private clubs?

Reply: In most cases, no.

Explanation: Bona fide private clubs do not come under the provisions of this bill. There are two exceptions:

If the club is not really "private" but allows anybody to join for payment of a small fee, such as the "Playboy Clubs," it cannot discriminate against Negroes.

If a private club is located on the premises of a covered business, such as a country club connected to a public hotel, and offers its facilities to white guests of the hotel, it also must serve Negro guests.

Blanchard Contempt Case

"Backtrack From Dilemma"
(Raleigh News & Observer)

Fortunately at the last Judge Raymond Mallard took himself off a self-imposed hook in Orange Superior Court when he backtracked from a threat to find in contempt young Gary Blanchard, editor of the Chapel Hill student newspaper, the Daily Tar Heel. Until then the Judge had seemed about to prove himself guilty of such "nonsense" as, Blanchard wrote, described some of his rulings in the court.

That term was applied by Blanchard to some rules laid down by the judge, allegedly for the purpose of keeping order in his courtroom. Not even Judge Mallard would suggest that the editor did not have a right to express his editorial opinion the paper. But when Blanchard was called as a defense witness, the Solicitor asked Blanchard what he had said editorially. He repeated what he had said. Whereupon Judge Mallard said from the bench that Blanchard was guilty of "direct contempt expressed in testimony under oath" and "tending to discredit this court."

If the Judge had stuck to this view, it would have been an absurd abuse of judicial authority. The Judge had permitted the question which required the editor to say in court what he could say with impunity in his paper. And if the repetition there had constituted contempt, the circumstances around it would have come close to entrapment. Indeed, if the Judge had deliberately let the witness be asked and required to answer a question which he knew in the courtroom would constitute contempt and then had held him guilty, that would have been a contemptile proceeding.

Fortunately for his own reputation on the bench, the Judge realized the corner into which he had painted himself. He agreed that the young editor was in a dilemma in that he would have been in contempt if he had refused to answer the question and also in contempt if he spoke of the court's "nonsense" in the courtroom. But it was the Judge who was in the fix of a "nonsense" charge outside the court or judicial "nonsense" in it. And despite his final wiggle out the Judge chiefly dramatized both.

"Pardon Me, Did You Knock?"

Humphrey Is VP Leader

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Nearly obscured by all the smoke and fury over Robert F. Kennedy is the fact that Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota is front-runner—right now, at least—for the Vice-Presidential nomination.

President Johnson has not and will not soon make up his mind. In fact, Presidential intimates now regard the contest for Vice-President as a three-way race between Humphrey, Attorney-General Kennedy, and Sargent Shriver, Cabinet-level commander of the Johnson poverty war. But Humphrey is ahead.

Thea reasons are two-fold:

Whatever their personal inclinations, most Democratic politicians across the country believe Mr. Johnson should have wide freedom of choice. They don't feel that the President's refusal to pick the Attorney-General would be an affront to the memory of John F. Kennedy.

If the President really has that freedom of choice, Humphrey is in an exceedingly strong position. The reason: the President makes no bones that he regards him as best qualified to fill the office of the Presidency itself.

The Johnson-Humphrey friendship, formed in the Senate, became intimate during those turbulent days after the assassination when the new President relied heavily on his aid and advice. They communicate, usually daily, in blunt, earthy language. Humphrey is the No. 1 White House trouble-shooter in the Senate.

One sign of the President's interest came March 8 when the Senate appeared on "Meet the Press." As soon as the program finished, the President telephoned the studio to congratulate Humphrey on his performance. Moments later, Mrs. Johnson came on the phone too. (It should be noted, however, that on Dec. 15 Mr. Johnson telephoned the same compliment to Shriver after his appearance on "Meet the Press.")

The President likes to point out that the effervescent Humphrey wouldn't mind the ceremonial folderol that is the Vice-Presidency. Mr. Johnson detested it, and he has remarked that Robert Kennedy would feel the same way. This is scarcely a valid argument against Kennedy but the President is using it.

The President believes that Shriver, like Humphrey, would fit into the routine of cornerstone - laying and delegation-greeting. And unlike Humphrey, Shriver — youthful, handsome, and Catholic—provides contrast to Mr. Johnson.

But the Shriver trial balloon for the Vice-Presidency has failed to soar. Furthermore, friends of the tightly-knit Kennedy family believe Shriver almost certainly would defer to Robert Kennedy.

That brings on the central question: can Kennedy's loyal partisans pressure the President into putting him on the ticket?

The truth is that neither the Attorney-General nor his staunchest backers believe that anything approaching political blackmail can or should be used against the President.

Accordingly, because there is no love lost between the two, a Johnson-Kennedy ticket is possible only if the President feels that the Kennedy name alongside his is vital to win. And being the proud man he is, even this possibility will diminish in proportion as Mr. Johnson feels he is being crowded by the Kennedys.

The Johnson-Kennedy relationship, though cool and strained, remains entirely civil. The talk about excessive pressures comes not from the two principals but from Kennedy - haters in the Johnson camp and Johnson-haters in the Kennedy camp. There are enough of both to go around.

The other Vice - Presidential possibilities, including Adlai E. Stevenson, can be written off—with the possible exception of Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, who in some ways is closer to the President than Humphrey or Shriver. Some of Mr. Johnson's intimates count McCarthy an outside compromise choice if a Humphrey-vs. Kennedy struggle gets overheated.

But Kennedy men would be unhappy with McCarthy, mainly because of his chilly relationship with President Kennedy. They regard Humphrey, who buried the hatchet with John Kennedy in 1960, as more acceptable.

Indeed, Humphrey alone among the Vice-Presidential possibilities has no real enemies within the party or in Washington. This may prove his strongest asset.

'Pretty Poor Americans'

Abuses Of The Rights Of Others

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Until recently I have opposed strongly the "Speaker Ban" bill. I still believe that it is an affront to rational students with even a rudimentary knowledge of the meaning of Democracy to deny them full opportunity to hear anyone they choose on any topic. However, an incident last Friday suggests to me that the bill would have merit if it was applied to those few UNC students who lack even this intuitive acceptance of democratic practices.

I was driving down Rosemary Street when a car backed into my path and stopped in the middle of the street to shift gears. When I swung right to pass around him, he darted diagonally forward and stopped in my path again. He then signalled for me to swung wide to the left around him, so he could back into the parking space I was temporarily occupying. Angered by his repeated rudeness, I refused; indicating that he could get out of my way, then do as he pleased.

He got out of his car, came back, and made abusive suggestions. Then a companion repeatedly threatened me, if I did not "Get the — out of the way." Being in a hurry, I finally acceded to their demands. I gave up explaining that repeated disregard for the rights of others was no grounds for extra courtesy on my part, especially since the request was made as a demand.

It was found in the studies of those men who were "brainwashed" during the Korean War that most of them did not understand Democracy. They were, therefore, easy prey to the Communist Chinese propaganda. As I said, I think that most UNC students do not need the "protection" of the "Speaker Ban" law. However, these two frat men (Fiji's by their pins) are exceptions. There are probably others on campus, both fraternity and independents, who need a stronger basic grounding in the principles of Democracy. Anyone who believes that abuses of the rights of others can be justified by threats and foul language is a pretty poor American.

Quentin Ludgin
102 Caldwell Hall

Heelprints

Looks as though a certain contempt charge was just so much water off a Mallard's back.

* * *

Definition: Author—a man you can shut up by closing a book.

* * *

That UNCR-N. C. State dispute has been little so far but a bunch of name-calling.

* * *

Concerning discussion over the Public Accommodations section of the Civil Rights bill, we'd say the issue isn't "free enterprise" but "fair enterprise."

Chancellor Aycock says he opposes profs taking part in civil disobedience because they may confuse students into not knowing what laws to keep and which to break. Sounds like he's prejudiced against students' ability to discriminate.

* * *

That junior high student who stole a horse to ride to school got trotted right into court.

* * *

Then there's the Harrison Merrill doll—you wind it up and it breaks a record.

Kerrying On

BY KERRY SIPE

Talk with an average American woman for five minutes, that is, if you can stay awake that long. Nobody has asked me, but if they had, I would have something to say about the degeneracy of the American female mind.

I remember when they used to give us those verbal proficiency tests in the fifth or sixth grade.. It was always the girls who could form the most words using the letters in the word "Christmas." It was always the girls who could tell the longest story about the stimulus picture of the witch riding the white horse. It was always the girls who could write the longest themes and get all the punctuation right.

But, when it came to mathematical imagination and philosophical design the girls struck out every time. The female mind mind doesn't seem to have the abstract and analytic qualities of mind necessary to inventive originality.

Psychologists call it the ability to "break the set." Try this. Name the next logical number of this series—2, 4, 6, 8 . . . Got it? Try this one—2, 4, 8, 16, 32 . . . How about this? 41, 42, 55, 95, 96, 100 . . .

With apologies to you all, the last series would continue, 112, 113, 114, 120 and so on. It's the numbers of the courses offered by the UNC Anthropology Department.

You weren't thinking of the Anthropology Department, were you? It's a little trick psychologists like to try on their subjects. They say that if you are a man, you probably came closer to getting the right answer than if you are a woman.

Just as a woman is more likely to continue thinking mathematically when set on a mathematical track, so she is more likely not to deviate from prescribed social and mental thought patterns.

The female of the species seems ever anxious to conform herself to the rigid standards that modern society demands. No one is more greatly influenced by the opinions of others than she.

It is probably the tendency towards conformity that helps a woman excel at the mechanical acts of spelling and punctuation. These are the kind of performances for which there is a strict set of rules, a single socially prescribed way of doing things.

And on top of it all is the bewildering social concept that it is feminine to be ignorant. In the movies, it's always the dumb blond that gets chased around the boss's desk, not the efficient typist or the competent stenographer.

It's feminity that a woman wants most. They live with the idea that lacy, perfumed femaleness and unlimited happiness go hand in hand.

Be gay, be thin, be witty, be soft spoken, be sexy. Be the woman behind the man. Buy new lace curtains for the kitchen. Learn to bake your own bread. Name your first-born son after his father. Collect money for the heart fund. Have plenty of bright, talented children. Help the community. Drive a station wagon. Smile.

The American girl is forced into an unyielding mold by the time she has her first steady boy friend—at thirteen.

Never is there any social popularity attached with the ideas of independence of mind, education, intelligence, ambition, and responsibility. If the mind could fill a wet bathing suit perhaps things would be different. Not even man is willing to accept the concept that women need not be passive and helpless to be sexually attractive.

Switching our focus from a social to a biological point of view, we find that the intellectual female is likely to have a more than average share of androgen, the male sex hormone, in her system.

Interestingly, androgen is also the libido-controlling hormone for both sexes. According to science, intellectual women are both more sexually charming and proficient than their pale, helpless sisters, despite the social dogma to the contrary. What was it the Roman said about a sound mind in a sound body?

It is partly the gullibleness of the American male that has caused this trend. After all, woman is out to give man what he wants.

But even more at fault is the gullibleness of the American female for falling for the stagnant Madison Avenue idea that women are much too naturally beautiful to confuse their pure and simple minds with the contents of a good book. "Sex is fun and having babies is a charming way of life."

And so their own daughters fall into the same perverted pattern and become unalterably molded by the time they have their first steady boyfriend — at thirteen.

The Quarterly's Place On Campus

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Confusion seems to be the byword in the controversy regarding the continued publication of the Carolina Quarterly. Although most recent meetings between Quarterly staff and those in charge of student government funds are producing much more accord as to the actual goals of the Quarterly than was evident in the beginning, I feel that perhaps two entirely different points of view are at work in this situation and need clarification.

First of all, the choice of material for publication, as the editors have repeatedly explained, rests solely on the merits of the work submitted, not on its origin. Despite all encouragement, it seems that relatively little material has been submitted by Carolina students; the work actually submitted was often not able to compete with other writing sent in by writers from other parts. So, the matter of publishing Carolina's creative writers rests with the writers themselves, not with this magazine's editors. And what could be more advantageous for our local writers than to compete with other amateurs around the nation and receive all the more recognition for it when they do get into print, especially since the magazine has a select national readership. A strictly "campus magazine" would hardly receive the attention of the Yale University library or the People's Republic of Bulgaria.

Regarding campus readership, I fear this is a ticklish matter. Aside from the bane of never having a rip-roarin' business and sales staff on the Quarterly and the fundamentally non-intellectual, non-literary bents of the majority of our ten thousand fellow-students, there arises the question of whether a wide campus circulation is important or not. The Carolina Quarterly is a literary magazine attempting to make known to the interested public, that is, other writers and students of English and American letters, just what is happening among young writers today. It is not Tarnation or Ram and Yew. By nature it is directed to a rather limited group of people in our society, just as scholarly journals are. The Romance Notes and Studies in Germanic Languages and Literatures are distinguished scholarly periodicals published by our Romance and Germanic Languages departments here; they are expensive and require a great deal of work —yet probably less than one-half the work they publish is by UNC scholars and their local circulation goes hardly beyond the respective departments themselves. Yet would we consider these magazines failures? Hardly!

As much as I wish every Carolina student read each issue of the Quarterly, then, I wonder whether this demand for wide circulation on campus is a realistic basis upon which to judge the usefulness and success of the magazine. The experience gained by staff members in reading manuscripts and editing a literary journal is invaluable to those aiming for a career in the publishing business; this is certainly one of the magazine's purposes and must not be overlooked, since the DTH serves this same very worthwhile function for would-be journalists.

I felt that the contrast between these two views of the magazine's purpose and successful ness needed some clarification if those concerned are to reach an agreement about its future. The Carolina Quarterly, despite red ink and sales problems, has proven itself to be one of our student body's most successful and respected undertakings in the past fifteen years. It is the only UNC magazine to survive so long, as far as I know. Let's not lose a good thing too rashly. Who knows, all this furor may have stimulated Chapel Hill's dormant literati to indignant and revolutionary retaliation in the creative writing field!

Pete Range
117 Stinson Street

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Dick Ellis And Cydne Wright

'Students For Preyer' Gets Organized Here

Dick Ellis and Cydne Wright have been named chairman and vice chairman respectively of UNC Students for Preyer, Richardson Preyer, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, has announced.

Ellis, a senior from Fuquay-Springs, is Student Government presidential assistant and a member of Student Legislature and the executive committee of the Young Democrats Club.

Wright, a junior from Greensboro, is a delegate chairman for the Mock Political Convention and a Junior Class Cabinet member. She graduated from St. Mary's last year where she was was secretary-treasurer of the Student Body and secretary of the YDC.

The two will present a Students for Preyer booth at the Campus Chest Carnival today and tomorrow. A meeting for students interested in the Students for Preyer movement will be held Tuesday.

Preyer earlier appointed Charlie Shaffer a state co-chairman for Students for Preyer. Phil Baddour was appointed one of the three area organizers.

Need A Shine? Look At This!

Want a beautiful girl to shine your shoes? Carolina Women's Council will be shining shoes all day today in Y-Court and in front of Lenoir Hall. Proceeds will go to the Campus Chest Drive. Cheapest shine will be 25 cents, but any donations will be glady accepted. After all, where else can you receive a good shoe shine from a Carolina Co-ed?

– Speakers –

(Continued from Page 1)

versity, from which he received the A.B. summa cum laude in 1951. He received the Ph.D. degree from Harvard in 1955, the year he joined the Harvard faculty. He became Associate Professor in 1960, and Professor in 1963.

Professor Eckstein has served as an economic consultant to the U. S. Treasury, the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Resources for Future, Inc., the Rand Corporation, and the Committee for Economic Development. In 1959-1960, he was Technical Director for the United States Congress Joint Economic Committee, of a special study of employment, growth, and price levels.

Professor Eckstein is editor of the "Review of Economics and Statistics" and of "Foundations of Modern Economics series published by the Prentice-Hall Company.

He is a member of the American Economic Association and the Econometric Society, and received a Guggenheim Fellowship for special studies in Europe in 1960.

– Grail –

(Continued from Page 1)

lands.

The Order of the Grail was established in 1920 as a means of recognizing outstanding men of the University who exemplify the virtue of leadership characterized by the four cardinal goals the Grail symbolizes: friendship, truth, courage, and service.

The specific problem which inspired the foundation of the Order was the growing awareness on the part of the founders of a serious lack of unity on the Carolina campus. It was felt that growing antagonism between fraternity and dormitory men was impairing the effectiveness of united campus efforts.

The membership of the Order was thus divided between dormitory and fraternity men as a means of providing a representative group qualified to discuss the problem an to attempt to find a solution.

GET PARKING LOT

The Dean of Men's Office announced today that two cement parking lots for the exclusive use of scooters and motorcycles have been constructed near Ehringhaus and Craige. Scooters parked anywhere other than these areas will be removed. No vehicles of any kind will be allowed behind Craige and Ehringhaus after 7:30 p.m.

BULETIN

Robert Osborn, Duke University faculty member, was found guilty of trespassing yesterday in Orange County Superior Court. The jury deliberated for about 10 minutes.

Osborn was charged with trespassing at a sit-in demonstration at Watts Restaurant Jan. 3.

There was one Negro on the jury.

Frautschi—Man Of Many Trades

By PETE RANGE

When thirty students from UNC and other schools from the Southeast settle down in Lyons, France, next September for UNC's first junior-year abroad program, they will not have left the Carolina ties completely behind.

There will be a UNC administration, faculty advisor, social advisor, travel aide, records department, housing office, exam giver and college dean, all wrapped up in a single package labeled "Director." And the director will not be Fernandel.

Dr. Richard L. Frautschi, Associate Professor of French in the Department of Romance Languages, has accepted this rather strenuous but rewarding position as chief cook and bottle washer of UNC's first Year-At-Lyon program.

Dr. Frautschi joined the UNC faculty in 1958 after first teaching four years at Smith College in Massachusetts and then taking his Ph.D. from Harvard. Dr. Frautschi's special field is 18 century French literature. His students know him as a strict but stimulating teacher, one who adheres rigidly to spoken French in his classes and guarantees the student a fruitful semester if he does the work prescribed.

Dr. Frautschi grew up in Madison, Wisconsin, and took his B.A. in French at the University of Wisconsin there. Afterwards he studied two years in France as a "French Government Fellow," spending time at Bordeaux, Grenoble and Paris. The remainder of his graduate work was done at Harvard.

Reflecting upon the meaning of a year at a French university for the American student, Dr. Frautschi said, "It would obviously double the college experience. You graduate with the knowledge of two universities, two languages, and two cultures instead of only one. Something like this is far more meaningful than a summer trip or tour of any kind," he continued. "In a year our people will become rather fluent in the language, and still more important, they will meet people and live with them for a long period of time. It's this direct, person-to-person exchange between two cultures which is of utmost importance."

"The Year-At-Lyon offers the American student two things: (1) a regular academic year, to be used like any other year in progressing towards a degree in good, useful courses, and (2) a very unique experience in a European culture which will have a maturing and broadening effect on the individual," said Dr. Frautschi.

"We, of course, want to get the best possible 30 students we can, although we encourage all eligible persons to apply," he said. "A certain initial maturity is required if the experience is to be worthwhile; the student should desire to grow and enrich his education, both academically and culturally. He needs an enthusiasm for exploring foreign cultures and ideas as well as an ability for adaptation to new or strange circumstances."

All students with at least sophomore standing, at least a B-minus overall average, a B average in French courses, who will have completed French 21 (or equivalent) by this June, are eligible to apply. All interested persons may receive further information and application blanks at 216 Dey Hall.

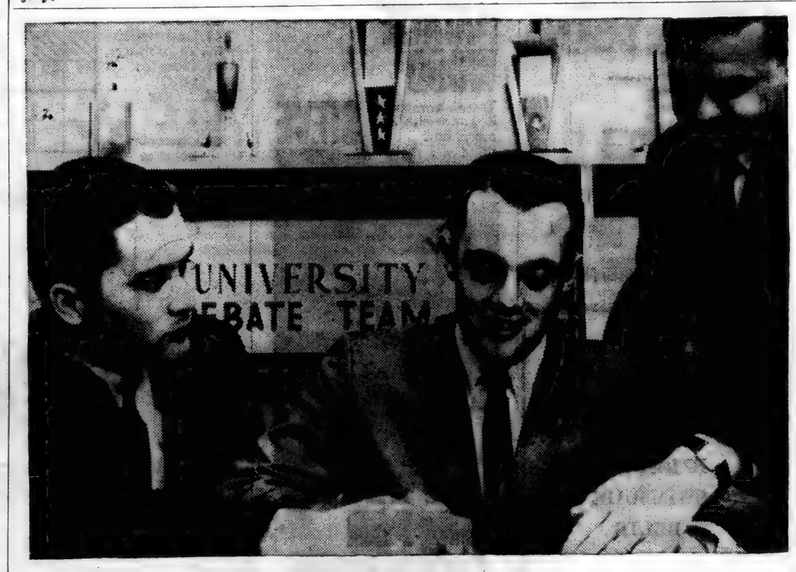
"Remind them that the deadline for applications is April 15!" said Dr. Frautschi.

"Although we hope everybody will have some realistic academic goals to give their sojourn in Lyon some sort of direction and center of gravity, there is more to this than books and hard study. The value of such an experience cannot be measured in hours, credits, or quality points," he emphasized. All students will however, be able to receive up to 30 hours credit for the year abroad.

Dr. Frautschi impresses one as having great faith in exchanges and year-abroad programs. He is very excited about the coming year and stays very busy preparing for it. His energetic tempo of life and youthful looks characterize his whole personality without betraying the seriousness of purpose which backs up his efforts.

Mrs. Frautschi and their three young children will accompany Dr. Frautschi to Lyon for the year. After graduating from Vasser Mrs. Frautschi, too, spent a year abroad—at St. Andrew, Scotland. She was also private secretary to Gen. and Mrs. Charles Lindburgh for two years before marrying Dr. Frautschi and becoming a mere de famille. Mrs. Frautschi will probably serve as unofficial counselor and social consultant for the group, especially for the girls. "Thank Heaven she's coming along!" said Dr. Frautschi.

There will be a meeting soon after Easter for all interested students to discuss the Year-At-Lyon program with Dr. Frautschi and with former exchange students at UNC, who will pass on their opinions of a year spent at a university abroad, the date will be announced later.



Haywood Clayton, Bob Powell and Dr. Donald Springen discuss pre-debate strategy before leaving for Atlanta for the Southeastern tournament.

Debaters In Atlanta For Big Tournament

Two UNC debaters are in Atlanta this weekend participating in the Southeastern regional college debate tournament at Emory University.

Haywood Clayton, captain of the UNC debate team, and Bob Powell, a freshman, are the UNC representatives.

Ten college teams are competing, and each will debate all the other entries once. The top four teams in the competition will get a chance to attend the national championship runoff at West Point.

Favorites at the regional meet are Alabama and Vanderbilt, according to Clayton. "We're the dark horse," he said.

"This is also about the strongest region in the country," Clayton said. "Most of the national champions have come from the Southeast."

Clayton led the debate team to a 28-11 season this year with wins over strong Stanford, Wisconsin and Army and two wins over Duke.

Powell, a Morehead Scholar from Thomasville, was the state high school debate champion last year. He is the only freshman to make the varsity debate team this year.

The team is coached by Dr. Donald Springen, professor of speech.

Student Legislature appropriated the funds last week to fly the debaters to Atlanta and pay their hotel bill.

GRAD HAS BOOK PUBLISHED IN VA.

A graduate of UNC, currently an English professor at Old Dominion College, announced the publication of his first novel, entitled "Time Was."

John Foster West said the novel, about 100,000 words in length, takes place in the western foothills of North Carolina.

It concerns the struggle of a poor farmer to get ahead in a harsh environment only to find that his life's goal, once achieved, is worthless.

Random House publishers say that the novel will be available by the first of next year.

A graduate of North Carolina, West helped to found the Carolina Quarterly while he was here.

He has published several short stories and poetry selections in national magazines and his book of poetry "up ego!" was published in 1951.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

YMCA Interviews for Cabinet Positions — 3-5 p.m., Fri., and Mon., president's office in Y-Court.

Wesley Foundation—8 p.m., open house at Rev. Bob Johnson's: meet at Wesley House.

Wesley Foundation — 6 p.m., Wesley House, supper by reservation, call by 2 p.m.

Dr. Ernest M. Manasse—8 p.m., 213 Caldwell Hall, presentation of paper "On Interpreting Plato."

Jr. Class "Powder Puff" Football—2 p.m., meet at Kenan Stadium in sweatshirts and bermudas, jerseys will be given out then; come whether you've been to practice or not.

Writer in Residence Comm.—3 p.m., 103 Bingham, compulsory.

Middle South United Nations Model General Assembly — 3-5 p.m. YMCA-CCUN office Fri. and Mon.-Tues., interviews for executive and secretarial positions.

Badminton Intramurals — through Fri., representatives must have entries in by 4:30 p.m. Fri.

GMAB President Applications — applications for GMAB president are now available at GM information desk.

Tickets are now on sale for the Alumni football game at Y-Court and Woollen Gym; game time is 2 p.m., Sat.

Campus Chest Carnival — 4-8 p.m., intramural field.

Publications Selections Board — 4:30 p.m., RP I, selection of editor and business manager of the Quarterly and new humor magazine.

Hillel Foundation—7 p.m., Hillel House, worship service.

MOVIES

Varsity—One Man's Way
Carolina—Love with the Proper Stranger
Free Flick—Cape Fear
Rialto—Tom Jones

SATURDAY

Campus Chest Carnival — 1-10 p.m., intramural field.
Alumni Football Game—2 p.m.

SUNDAY

Graduate Newman Club — 8:30 p.m., Catholic Student Center.
Newman Club — 6 p.m., St. Thomas More Hall, supper and discussion.
CPU—9 p.m., Grail Room, election of officers and address by Dr. Raymond Dawson on Viet Nam.
Hillel Supper Program — 5:30 p.m., Hillel House. Rabbi Simcha Kling, "Israeli Youth Today," reservations for supper may be made by calling Hillel offices.
Canterbury—6 p.m., Chapel of the Cross.
SP—7 p.m., 08 Peabody, to ratify platform, all candidates required to attend.
UP Executive Comm. — 7:30 p.m., 206 Davie Hall.
The Migrants—8 p.m., GM.
UP Legislators — 8:30 p.m., Davie Hall.

– Lobby –

(Continued from Page 1)

have not yet taken a definite stand concerning the legislation.

Straley emphasized that the move to Washington was of secondary importance to the group.

"We feel a local law on public accommodations would be much better. The proposed federal law states in effect that those local areas which have an accommodations law should go ahead and use it," he said. "Chapel Hill as yet does not have one."

The Most Magnificent Movie of the Decade Enters its 7th Record-Breaking Week.

TOM JONES

12:18, 2:30, 4:45, 7, & 9:15 p.m.

RIALTO, Durham

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES

Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES

- New Moon
- Ritz-Craft
- Palace

5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East

See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD

DURHAM

Phone 596-8302

(Advertisement)

BEAUTY NOTES

BY ALICE STONE

Here are a few facts concerning scratchy, non-catchy Erythema solare—better known as sunburn. A leading dermatologist had this to say.

"Sun ages the skin. Too much of it over long peroids destroys the elastic fibers, or connective tissues, and they become degenerated.

"These fibers are like rubber bands and hold the skin taut. If you overdo it, even with a tan, the rays get down into the connective tissues."

Forgetting skin and sun for the moment, let's speak of your hair. Is it a problem — a lank, limp, spiritless problem? Actually, you don't have a great problem at all. There are always the excellent facilities and stylists of Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon, 133½ East Franklin to serve you. Try us. Phone 943-4335.

THIS WEEK'S HELPFUL HINT: Try refrigerating birthday cake candles the day before using; they will burn slower and with even glow.

Enjoy the Finest Seafood

TIP TOP FISH HOUSE

Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West

Durham Tel. 286-4494

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Monthly from the Soviet Union in English or in Russian

Carries reviews & Marxist analysis of world developments; theoretical articles & analysis of Soviet foreign policy.

One Year Subscription ..... $3.50

IMPORTED PUBLICATIONS & PROD.

1 Union Square, N.Y.C. 3

The Incredible Carlos Montoya

"...must be heard to be believed"

Memorial Hall 8:00 p.m., Friday, March 20

All Seats Reserved — Student tickets now on sale at Graham Memorial

General Public may purchase Thurs., March 19 starting at 12:30 p.m. if tickets remain.

ADMISSION $1.50

THE NEW HUE IN EAGLE BUTTON-DOWNS: FORESEEABLE FUCHSIA

LOOKS pink,* doesn't it? ★ We chose the name for this color from among the entries in our recent competition for new color-names because of its aptness: we predict great things. Remember you heard it here first. ★ What makes our solid pink new is that it isn't solid pink: the vertical yarn (or warp) is somewhere between a Robert Shaw Coral and a Lawsy Miss Scarlet; whereas the horizontal yarn (or woof) is a sort of 'Enry 'Iggins Just You White. ★ Thus creating an illusion, but of the finest oxford cloth all the same; with button cuffs and our dear, old bulgy collar, about $7.00. If you don't know where to buy this and other Eagle Shirts in your town, please write Miss Afflerbach who does; at the address below.

*Use your imagination; this paper doesn't print in pink.

© 1964, EAGLE SHIRTMAKERS, QUAKERTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA

Eagle Shirts Are Available At Varsity Men's Wear

Black Swings Hot Bat

Hurlers Throw Cold Water On Duke

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Let the pitchers do it. For the second time in two games this proved a successful formula for the UNC baseball team, as the Tar Heel batters were once again stingy with their run production, but scored enough to beat Duke, 3-2.

Mike McLaughlin, Bill Dannemann and Bobby Cox each went three innings on the mound, and only Dannemann had any trouble with the Blue Devils, as UNC ran its exhibition record to 2-0. This afternoon, Walt Rabb's men face Duke at Durham in another practice game. Then Monday it's the real thing — at home against Connecticut.

Dannemann was touched for both of Duke's runs after two were out in the fourth, and after Gary Black's two-run double and McLaughlin's hitless pitching had given the Tar Heels a 2-0 edge.

After R. D. Carson had grounded out and Dave West had fanned, Duke second sacker Bucky Fader reached Dannemann for the Blue Devil's first hit of the afternion, a single to right field. Catcher Scotty Glacken followed with a single to right, and the two Devils ended up on second and third when Ken Willard couldn't come up with the ball cleanly and let it skip away from him.

Pitcher Charlie Young, the Devils' second and most effective of the game, then dumped a single into shallow center which plated both Fader and courtesy runner Jim Hopkins, knotting the score. Dannemann walked John Gutekunst, but struck out Tom Taylor to end the inning. From there on, the junior righthander kept the Blue Devils well in check until Cox took over in the seventh.

It was in the bottom of the seventh the Tar Heels scored their third and deciding run. With Merle Ambler on the mound, Bill Taylor drew a walk, Black singled him to third with a sharp smash to left (his second hit of the day—both in key situations), and after Cox had fouled out for the second out, Dickie Prindle grounded to second and beat out Fader's weak throw. It was an error, and Taylor scored on it.

Duke threatened in the ninth when Gutekunst reached first on an infield hit, and Biff Bracey singled him to second with another infield roller, after Taylor had skied to center. But the rally died when Sonny Odum lined to shortstop Jim Speight, who fired to Prindle to double up Gutekunst and end the game.

Black came through with the big blow in UNC's two-run second. With one out, Willard singled sharply to left, Merle Kruer forced him at second, then Taylor advanced Jon Baylin (courtesy runner for Kruer) to second with a single to left. Black then came up and whacked one over the left fielder's head. The double scored both Baylin and Taylor.

Today Rabb is expected to use Spence Willard, Bob Walker and Bill Haywood in the three o'clock game at Duke.

WHERE'S BUZZY HARRISON?

| DUKE | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Gutekunst, cf | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Taylor, 3b | 5 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Marley, lf | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Bracey, lf | 2 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Odum, rf | 5 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Carson, ss | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| West, 1b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Stallings, 1b | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Fader, 2b | 2 | 1 | 2 | 0 |
| Glacken, c | 3 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| b-Hopkins | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Stevens, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Young, p | 2 | 0 | 1 | 2 |
| Ambler, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 34 | 2 | 7 | 2 |

| UNC | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Prindle, 2b | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Fleming, 3b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Wright, 3b | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Speight, ss | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Brown, 1b | 3 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Willard, lf | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Kruer, c | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| a-Baylin | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Taylor, rf | 2 | 2 | 1 | 0 |
| Black, cf | 3 | 0 | 2 | 2 |
| McLaughlin, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Dannemann, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Cox, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 30 | 3 | 6 | 2 |

a-ran & scored for Kruer in 2nd
b-ran & scored for Glacken in 4th

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| DUKE ..... | 000 | 200 | 000—2 |
| UNC ..... | 020 | 000 | 10x—3 |

| PITCHING | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Stevens .. | 2 | 3 | 2 | 2 | 0 | 1 |
| Young ... | 4 | 2 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 4 |
| Ambler .. | 2 | 1 | 1 | 0 | 1 | 2 |
| McLau lin | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 4 | 6 |
| Dan'mann | 3 | 4 | 2 | 1 | 1 | 6 |
| Cox ..... | 3 | 3 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 1 |

W — Cox
L — Ambler

Blue Devils, Wildcats Have One Thing In Mind—UPSET!

KANSAS CITY Mo. (UPI) — Kansas State, the overlooked member of collegiate basketball's final big four, will have at least the psychological advantage to night in the opening of the NCAA championships.

The Wildcats (22-5), the Big Eight Conference champions, were ranked only 12th in the final UPI coaches' rating. Of the three other teams battling for the national crown, undefeated UCLA (28-0) was ranked first, Michigan (22-4) was second and Duke (25-4) fourth.

But Kansas State, after unexpectedly dominating the Midwest regionals last weekend, will come bursting into Friday night's closing semifinal match against UCLA on the crest of a 13-game winning streak and with everything to gain and nothing to lose. Michigan meets Duke in the first semifinal match.

Game times were 8:30 p.m., Oddsmakers, recognizing Kansas State's late season development and momentum, rated the Wildcats a two-point favorite over UCLA. Duke was rated four points over Michigan.

Ironically, each of the teams paired in the NCAA semifinals met once during the past season when Friday night's favorites were the losers. In those December games, UCLA edged Kansas State, 78-75, and Michigan bumped off Duke, 83-67.

So both Kansas State and Duke will be out for vengeance. And in the grudge match, Kansas State will have the aditional advantage — an advantage that will extend through Saturday night — of familiarity with the court and a home town crowd.

DTH Picks 'Em (Trios To)

Michigan over Duke (semi)
Kansas State over UCLA (semi)
Michigan over Kansas State (finals)

The Duke-Michigan game will be televised locally tonight over WTVD (11) Durham, and WFMY (2) Greensboro. Tip-off time is scheduled for 8:30. The finals will be carried Saturday night, and, if Duke loses tonight, the consolation game will also be televised.

ALL-CAMPUS CAGERS PICKED

FRATERNITY
Sam Simpson (ATO)
Dick Fleming (ATO)
Rick Sharp (Phi Kap Sig)
Warren Price (Sigma Nu)
Charlie Battle (Phi Delt)

DORM
Ozzie Faison (Craige B)
Bill Sessoms (Mangum)
Bob Sutton (Navy)
Eddie Kesler (Ehringhaus B)
Junior Edge (Ehringhaus B)

GRADUATE
Tommy Koontz (Med Sch 4)
Bill Jarman (Med Sch 4)
Larry Nolan (Peacocks)
Harry Johnstone (Peacocks)
Don Lineberry (Dent Sch)

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

Sparkling Spring Suggestions From Our New Arrivals!

Just received the best looking lined imported India Madras stove-pipe slim bermudas, with that special silky London Finish, at only $7.95.

Tired of your white ducks wrinkling? Our new avril and cotton won't wrinkle, and they are tailored in our own stove-pipe slim model, at a budget price of $5.95. Large choice assortment of tapered bermudas at $4.95 and $5.95.

Our own hand picked India Madras half sleeve shirts, all in finest single needle tailoring—$6.95.

You'll really flip for Milton's New Spring Look!

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

NEW FOR SPRING
SUITS
SPORT JACKETS
SLACKS
at
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Your Charge Account Invited

FASHIONS WITH Spring Zing!
You are invited to view our fresh Spring Styles, collected with special emphasis on variety—the look is unique and our collection is ready to add excitement to:
- DAYTIME
- PLAYTIME
- DATETIME

COED CORNER of the HUB of Chapel Hill

SALE
Short Sleeve SHIRTS
$3.49
Values to 9.95
Included are sport and dress shirts in solids, stripes, and madras.
SHOP EARLY FOR BEST SELECTION
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

Did the First Day of Spring Find Your Wardrobe Lacking?

Are you finding that last Spring's clothes are showing their age or lacking in style, color, and variety. If so, we have an unlimited number of suggestions that can help your situation—
Fashion Conscious . . .yet Budget Prone?
Then you owe yourself a visit to
THE HUB of Chapel Hill

New Lady Milton Spring Attraction

A classic favorite once again adorns our Lady Milton shirt cupboards—fabulous Lady Hathaway—absolutely the finest tailored shirt obtainable, in basic and suiting shirts including the pussy cat bow in polyester and cotton.

Large vacation collection of one and two piece swim suits.

You'll love our expanded assortments in our newly decorated quarters.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

PEANUTS

In Person — One Night Only
THE COASTERS
FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1964
Dance from 10 P.M. to 2 A.M. to Such Hits as: "Searchin" — "Yackety Yack" — "Charlie Brown" — "Poison Ivy"
Watch the Duke Game With Us—We'll Furnish the Television, FREE PEPSI and BEER for 25c per can during Game—AT THE DRIFTWOOD
2 miles West of Durham—Hwy 70—across from Gen. Sherman Rest.

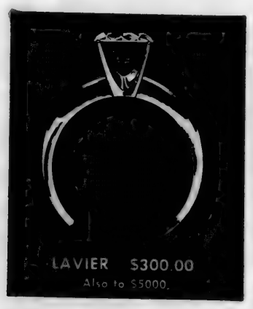
Varsity
STARTS THURSDAY
ONE man's way IS EVERYONE'S MOTION PICTURE!

FRANK ROSS presents
ONE man's way
THE STORY OF NORMAN VINCENT PEALE
STARRING DON MURRAY AND INTRODUCING DIANA HYLAND
CO-STARRING WILLIAM WINDOM CAROL OHMART
Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
NOMINATED FOR 5 ACADEMY AWARDS
Natalie Wood "Best Actress of the Year!"
NATALIE WOOD
There is a moment-a long moment-when everything is risked with the proper stranger.
STEVE McQUEEN

A PAKULA-MULLIGAN PRODUCTION
Love WITH THE PROPER STRANGER
WRITTEN BY ARNOLD SCHULMAN
EDIE ADAMS
HERSCHEL BERNARDI
OPENS SUNDAY
THE CARDINAL
AN OTTO PREMINGER FILM

for a very special occasion!



Keepsake DIAMOND RINGS
Express your pride and joy with the most precious gift, a brilliant and beautiful Keepsake diamond ring . . . a perfect gem in a masterpiece setting.
Ring enlarged to show detail. Price includes Federal Tax.
Good Housekeeping

SPECIAL STUDENT TERMS
Weldon's
JEWELERS
327 W. Main St.
Durham
The Students' Jeweler

170,000 TITLES
No, we don't carry all of them in stock, alas. But they're all available through us except for a few paperback lines. And at no extra cost. We are also able to chase down many out-of-print titles for your collection—again at no extra cost to you. Our gift-wrapping's free, we'll mail books for you if you wish, and we give quick service on everything (and quicker service when you need it.) North Carolina's number one all-'round bookshop? We call ourselves that—and welcome all complaints.
Come in for a browse or just to complain. You're welcome in North Carolina's number one all-'round bookshop.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open every night until 10 p.m.

NEW FOR SPRING
DRESS SHIRTS
SPORT SHIRTS
at
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Your Charge Account Invited

BEST DEAL IN TOWN
(Eating—That Is)
Student Special
- All the CHICKEN you can eat ..... 88c
- All the FISH you can eat ..... 69c

MONDAY - FRIDAY; 4:00 - 7:00 P.M.
GRANTS EASTGATE Shopping Center

NEW FOR SPRING
BERMUDAS
SWIMSUITS
BELTS
at
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Your Charge Account Invited

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Measurement for a gem
6. Small plug
11. Conscious
12. Hang fluttering in the air
13. Candle
14. Eat away
15. Ineffectual actors
17. Hesitation sound
18. Mineral spring
20. Underwater craft: abbr.
22. Sweet potato
25. Hastens
27. Mercator
29. Greek letter
30. Permit
32. Apportioned
34. Music note
35. Japanese coin
37. Merriment
38. A kind of boat
40. Goddess of dawn
42. Donkey
43. Jewish month
45. Shell
47. Destruction
50. To go away
53. Close to: poet.
54. An ear shell
55. Briny
56. Chairs or benches

DOWN
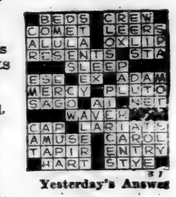
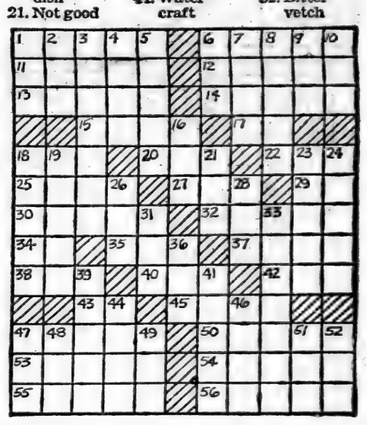
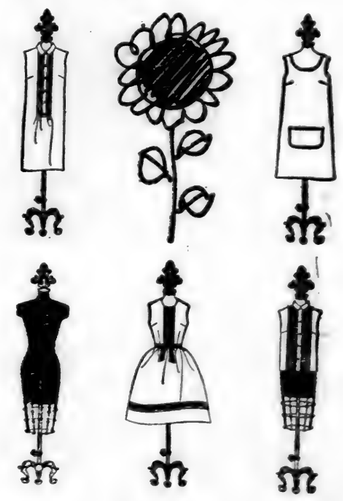
1. Family pet
2. Milkfish
3. Italian painter
4. Region
5. Conditions
6. Pronoun
7. Minute skin opening
8. Elephant's tusk
9. Guided
10. Before
16. Problem in addition
18. Spear handle
19. Oriental dish
21. Not good
23. Pins for wheels
24. Insects
26. Distress signal
28. Girl's nickname
31. Tiny
33. The Cotton state
36. The head: sl.
39. Mallet
41. Songs for one person
44. Water craft
46. Sheer
47. Owns
48. Mother of Irish gods
49. Weep
51. A veteran: abbr.
52. Bitter vetch



Yesterday's Answer



Spring is here...



and Villagers® are here to bid her welcome

Town & Campus

POGO

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

122

Rides, Booths At Carnival Today

The Weather

Great for Campus Chests.

The Daily Tar Heel

SURPRISE!

Sue Ross, assistant Dean of Women, yesterday announced that coeds could attend the Campus Chest Carnival today in Bermuda shorts or slacks.

So we will be there for sure . . . what? . . . yes, we're still horny.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, MARCH 21, 1964 | United Press International Service

AT SYMPOSIUM

Knight, Graham On Panel Meet

Dr. Frank P. Graham

Dr. Douglas M. Knight

By ALEX McFAYDEN

Dr. Frank P. Graham and Douglas M. Knight will hold a panel discussion on "Education's Responses to the Cold War" for the Carolina Symposium, Tuesday, April 7.

Graham, a past president of the University of North Carolina, is presently United Nations Mediator. Dr. Knight is the president of Duke University and has been active in several international conferences, qualifying both men as spokesmen in political and educational fields.

Dr. Knight received his A.B., M.A., and Ph.D. from Yale University where he taught English for several years. In 1953 Dr. Knight left Yale to become President of Lawrence College in Wisconsin, then became president of Duke University.

An outstanding educator—both young and active — Dr. Knight has been a member of numerous boards and delegations. He was one of three U. S. delegates to the SEATO Conference of Asian University Presidents in Pakistan and is presently a member of the board of trustees of Education and World Affairs, an organization to promote cooperation and communication among educational institutions in this country and abroad. He is also a member of the board for the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

Dr. Graham has been an active educator, advisor and mediator. In the field of education he is most noted for his efforts in consolidating UNC while president from 1930-49.

During World War II he was a member of the National War Labor Board serving as an advisor on several committees. In 1946 he was a representative in the Dutch Indonesian dispute. After resigning as president of the University, he became a senator from North Carolina.

At present Dr. Graham is the United Nations representative to India and Pakistan and has served as a mediator in several international disputes.

Regulations For Elections Are Issued

Bill Aycock, chairman on the Elections Board, yesterday issued the following statement in regard to regulations for the spring elections:

Spring elections for Student Body officers, Senior Class officers, President of the Carolina Athletic Association, President of the Women's Athletic Association, Editor(s)-in-Chief of the Daily Tar Heel, Chairman of the Women's Residence Council, Delegates to the National Student Congress, Student Legislature Representatives and Members of the Men's and Women's Councils will be held on Tuesday, April 14, 1964. Polls will be open from 10:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

As specified by the General Election Law the following events are subject to deadlines:

1. Nominations by parties—April 2, 1964
2. Nominations by selections boards—March 23, 1964
3. Nominations by petition—April 2, 1964
4. Requests for absentee ballots—April 8, 1964 by 4 p.m.
5. Submitting of campaign expense accounts — April 13, 1964, by 12 noon.

A compulsory meeting of all candidates and Party chairmen will be held Thursday night, April 2, 1964 at 8:00 in the auditorium of Howell Hall. Any absence from this meeting without the written permission of the Chairman of the Elections Board will result in the candidate being disqualified. Should such an unexcused absence occur the candidate can be reinstated by contacting the Chairman of the Elections Board within forty-eight (48) hours after the meeting and paying a $5.00 fine.

Blanchard Not Guilty, Says Lawyer

HILLSBORO—Gary Blanchard, DTH co-editor, yesterday issued a statement clarifying his position on the contempt ruling he received in the Orange County Superior Court here Wednesday.

Blanchard issued the statement shortly after his attorney, Barry Winston, was seen following Judge Raymond Mallard out of the courtroom in the direction of the judge's chambers.

The complete statement:

"My attorney, Barry Winston, has assured me that there is absolutely no question left open in connection with my contempt hearing. He assures me that I was not found to be in contempt

(Continued on Page 3)

Council Acquits One Reprimands One Thursday

One student was found innocent and another received official reprimand for an Honor Code violation in Men's Council trials Thursday night.

In the first case, the defendant was charged with an Honor Code violation for allegedly charging a series of phone calls to someone else's number.

The student had moved out of the apartment where the phone in was located. The phone and the apartment were sill in the name of his former roommate.

He told the Council that he had continued to charge his calls to his former number thinking that the telephone company would bill him for them. He and his roommate had asked that the phone be disconnected, but the telephone company had not done so.

The Council decided that he had not intended to deceive the company and found him innocent.

In the second case, a student was found guilty of lying when he gave a false name to a campus policeman.

The defendant's car had broken down on campus and the policeman had approached him and asked him his name. The student gave a false name.

The Council decided that there had been no intent to lie, but that the student had merely become angry with the policeman. It felt, from the evidence, that the policeman and the student had antagonized one another.

The student was found guilty but was given a lenient sentence of official reprimand. The Council felt that the violation had been more a question of gentlemanly conduct than serious lying.

Salinger Wants Senate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Piere Salinger former White House press secretary, Friday formally entered the race for the Democratic nomination as U.S. senator from California on a self-inspired "draft."

"I could tell you that I have succumbed to the urging of my many friends," Salinger told a news conference in his native San Francisco, "but the truth is that this candidacy is a genuine draft—a draft inspired by the candidate himself."

Salinger entered the race against incumbent Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.) who underwent brain surgery last year, and Alan Cranston, California state controller, who has the backing of the 70,000-member California Democratic Council. San Francisco financier Leland Kaiser, actor George Murphy and Fred Hall, former governor of Kansas, are the announced Republican candidates.

Three other candidates also have filed for the Democratic nomination. They are pension promoter George McLain, Walter R. (Buck Buchanan of Los Angeles and Harold E. Fields of Orange, Calif.

The portly Salinger, who served as press secretary to the late President John F. Kennedy and stayed on in the same post under President Johnson, said he was emphasizing his experience in Washington in his bid for a senate seat.

"My candidacy is based on the feeling that I can better serve the interests of California than any of the announced candidates," he said.

He announced his candidacy on the last possible day of filing for the office.

Because of the lateness of his candidacy, he admitted, many of his friends already were committed either to Engle or Cranston. Therefore, he said, he would not try to change these commitments, but would mount a "volunteer campaign" and appeal directly to the people.

MRC Names Jim Fullwood President

(See Photo Page Three)

James Fullwood, former Chairman of the Men's Residence Council Court, was elected president of the MRC Wednesday night by acclamation.

Other officers are Bob Payton, vice-president; Ron Hendron, secretary; Sonny Pepper, treasurer; Larry Coleman, chairman of the Court; and Jerry Droze, vice-chairman of the Court.

Fullwood called for a more beneficial program for next year by increasing the number of activities that directly involve male residents.

Gordon Appell announced plans for a combo party which will be held tonight and another scheduled for April 1. The parties are co-sponsored by the MRC and the Carolina Women's Council.

In other business, a report on the Residence College System was heard.

MONSOON—Jean Renfrow, Campus Chest Carnival co-chairman, stands alone on the intramural field yesterday afternoon as the rains came down. The rides, scheduled to open last night, were cancelled as the field turned into wet slop. The Carnival will now open this afternoon at 1. The rides have been held over an extra day and will also be in operation Sunday afternoon.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Carnival Ends Today With Rides, Booths

The final day of the Campus Chest Carnival, complete with rides, games and political fun, will feature an assortment of things to do — that is, if the weatherman cooperates.

An enterprising student with money can buy the time of an East Cobb coed, if he happens to choose her legs from an assortment of others behind a curtain.

Some fortunate male will have the chance of showing the Carnival beauty queen a good time with all expenses paid if she happens to draw his lot from hundreds of others.

The queen of the Carnival will actually be the queen of the Varsity-Alumni Game, who will have her name announced at the game earlier in the afternoon.

BULLETIN

Betty Ward, co-chairman of the Campus Chest, announced yesterday that the Campus Chest Carnival would continue through Sunday. The inclement weather on Friday was the reason for the extension of the Carnival.

Penn Premier Shows, the largest traveling carnival in the East, will provide rides for the day, and will feature a special mystery ride from Germany. All rides will cost 25c.

Fifty booths sponsored by clubs, residence halls, sororities and fraternities will provide assorted side entertainment at 10c a throw.

For those with sadistic tendencies, there will be numerous fraternity - sponsored booths which will allow the customer to plaster pathetic pledges with various types of goo.

For the politically minded, the Young Democratic Club will sponsor donkey rides and local Richardson Preyer supporters will sponsor a "Pitch for Preyer" booth.

Supporters of Judge Dan K. Moore, one of Preyer's opponents, will also be on hand with a booth.

For the mentally disturbed, Nurses Dorm and Ehringhaus Residence Hall will sponsor a "Lucy Psychiatric Booth."

For the hardened criminal, there will be a jail booth which for commitment costs and the youthful incorrigable for his room.

For the plain old grubby individual there will be a greased pig race.

Carnival Planner Jim Light has been very pleased with the variety and originality of this year's booths.

"I think we have a lot more original ideas this year than I've seen in the last two years," he said. "We have more amusements for all ages.

The Carnival's hours will be 1-7 p.m. Bring money.

SAE Found Guilty Of Bus Damage

One SAE pledge was put on probation and four received official reprimands for vandalism aboard a Trailways bus in Inter-Fraternity Court trials Thursday night.

The other 16 pledges aboard the bus were found innocent.

In other cases, a Phi Kappa Sigma brother was found guilty of a violation of the IFC visiting agreement and was given an official reprimand. His house was put on general probation until June.

The defendant had had a date in the Phi Kappa Sigma house after the IFC's prescribed closing hours.

In the SAE pledge case, the men involved were tried individually under IFC Court procedure regulations which state:

That the Court shall try any person who participates in "any disorderly conduct or any activity violating the mutual interests of all fraternities."

"The Court felt that the destructive activity which took place (on the bus) was not a collective action, but was rather the action of a few individuals," said Ned Martin, acting chairman of the Court.

"Due to the nature of the charge of the Attorney-General's Staff, the members of the SAE pledge class were tried as individuals and not as a group."

Big Time!

It's Craige Weekend!

Yes, social all-stars, come to the open weekend at Craige Residence Hall. There will be a combo Saturday night and a Hootenanny Sunday afternoon, and it's all open to the public.

The Casuals will play from 8.30-12:30 p.m., and refreshments will be served. Sunday afternoon a group of folksingers —The Higrants — will perform. Girls from the Nurses Dorm will be on hand for this.

The Higrants are a combination of two groups — the Migrants and the Highlanders. In addition, several groups from Craige will play.

SL HOLDS SESSION

Student Legislature approved a report from the Interfraternity Council Court regarding changes in its penalties system and passed a bill appropriating $250 to the Women's Residence Council Wednesday night.

The IFC report was passed after minor changes were made. One clause was stricken when Rep. Arthur Hays (SP) questioned its constitutionality.

The WRC appropriations bill was passed to provide funds for the printing of brochures and other literature about its activities.

Legislature adjourned early after lack of quorum was declared.

PHARMACY OPEN HOUSE

A demonstration of how pills are manufactured, displays of educational and research programs in the drug field and tours of new school facilities will highlight an open house today at the University School of Pharmacy.

Spaulding Sentenced For Check

Ben Spaulding yesterday was given a suspended sentence for giving the Orange County Superior Court a worthless check.

Judge Raymond S. Mallard gave the Carrboro Negro, a former student at UNC, a four-month sentence, suspended for five years.

The check had been used for bail of several sit-in demonstrators, and had been drawn on the account of the Congress of Racial Equality.

Spaulding pleaded nolo contendere, claiming someone had made out a bogus check on the account and exhausted the funds without his knowledge.

The suspended sentence means that Spaulding may be sent to the roads at any time a Superior Court judge desires within five years.

ZAP!

A fifty-foot long nuclear missile will be in Y-Court for five days, beginning April 4.

The Air Force defense weapon is part of the displays that will decorate the campus during the week of the 1965 Carolina Symposium.

"Arms and the Man" is the topic of this year's Symposium, and major discussion will deal with the influence of the Cold War on American society and culture.

The missile, identified as the BOMARC surface-to-air interceptor, is used to attack enemy air craft during a possible invasion. It has a range of 500 miles, and six squadrons of such missiles can provide formidable air defense for the entire continental United States.

During its visit to Y-Court, the BOMARC will stand nearly upright. It will have a wing-span of 18 feet and weight of 15,000 lbs.

Wynn Gets 90-Day Sentence

By JEFFREY DICK

HILLSBORO — Judge Raymond B. Mallard yesterday handed down 90-day road sentences to two college professors convicted of trespass. One of the professors, Dr. William Wynn, is an associate professor of psychology here at UNC. A third professor received a $50 fine. All appealed and were released on bond.

The trio, Dr. Wynn, and Drs. Frederick Herzog and Robert Osborn of Duke University, received their sentences after a 30-minute lecture by the judge.

Mallard refused to sentence Herzog to imprisonment because he "did not have the same attitude man motives" that Wynn and Osborn held.

Just before Mallard began the sentencing, he gave each defendant an opportunity to state whether or not he would again deliberateliy violate the state trespass law.

Wynn and Osborn answered they might do the same thing again under certain circumstances because of moral and theological convictions.

Both Wynn and Osborn said their judgments were based upon the will of God.

Herzog, however, answered: "I have done it once and I have seen the consequences. I can not again do the same thing."

Mallard then began to read his judgment.

"This may seem like a lecture to you, but it is not. I worship the same Christ you do. I have been taught from my youth up to now that Christians and all Christians in a democracy are the best citizens and should so conduct themselves . . .

"We have spent three weeks here in this court. How many thousands of dollars it costs the county, I don't know. You gentlemen have become part of the problem instead of an answer to it."

Mallard criticized Wynn and Osborn for their expressed convictions that they might again deliberately violate a trespass law again.

"If everyone took it upon himself to determine the laws that they would obey, we would have anarchy. In a democracy, I repeat, the Christian should be the best citizens. We have that attitude here, but two of you still reserve the right to violate the law, still inferring that should you feel that some law should be violated, you have the right to do it."

Mallard criticized Osborn for

(Continued on Page 3)

Blackwell And Clotfelter Awarded Hearst Prizes

Mickey Blackwell, DTH reporter, and Jim Clotfelter, former DTH co-editor, won eighth and eighteenth places respectively in last month's William Randolph Hearst spot news competition for stories on the same event.

The two wrote on the sit-down demonstrations in Chapel Hill Feb. 8. Blackwell's story appeared in the Charlotte Observer and Clotfelter's in the Durham Morning Herald.

Blackwell, a senior from Gastonia, won a $100 scholarship for his entry.

Clotfelter, a junior from Atlanta, received a scroll. He won a $200 scholarship last year for an editorial writing competition while he was co-editor of the DTH.

Each of the 46 accredited schools of journalism participating in the monthly contests may submit two entries. No one student may be eligible for more than two awards during the year.

Curry Kirkpatrick, former DTH sports editor, has won scholarships for $750 and $400 this year. He is among the leaders for this year's over-all individual winner.

Volume 72, Number 122 Saturday, March 21, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 933-1012. Business, circulation, advertising—933-1163. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1879.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Judge Mallard And The Christian Mandate

Judge Raymond Mallard folded up his robe in Hillsboro yesterday and, like Longfellow's Arabs, silently slipped away. But before he did, he delivered himself of a long discourse on civil disobedience and the plight of the Negro generally in North Carolina.

The discourse, apparently almost wholly extemporaneous, was only an eagle's feather from being moving, due to its obvious sincerity.

One of the things which kept it from being moving was the fact that it was wrong.

For example:

The judge pointed to one of the two Negro attorneys who had represented UNC assistant psychology professor William Wynn, and told Dr. Wynn that his Negro lawyer was a good example of a colored man who had been born and educated in North Carolina.

"He does not break the law," said the Judge. "He conducts himself with dignity and respect, and is treated with respect wherever he goes."

Except, the Judge should have added, at Watts Restaurant & Motel, The Pines, Brady's and so on. And this is only to speak of our own "enlightened" Chapel Hill—not the rest of the state, where the situation is worse.

ANOTHER THING WHICH made Judge Mallard's discourse wrong was the fact that he took refuge in self-righteous cliches when he came up against the heart of the problem he was discoursing about: What are a man's first loyalties? What is the proper priority of his committments, if he is a Christian trying to live his faith?

The Judge dismissed this question with an abruptness that reflected his inability to realize its significance ad come to grips with it.

"If everyone took it upon himself to determine the laws that they would obey," said the Judge, "we would have anarchy. In a democracy, I repeat, the Christians should be the best citizens . . . two of you (Dr. Wynn and Duke Professor Robert Osborn) still reserve the right to violate the law, still inferring that should you feel that some law should be violated, you have the right to do it."

Obviously, the Judge had not taken into account the responsible, non-violent manner in which the professors admittedly violated the state trespass law; nor had he heard the professors when they tried to explain that they had violated the law not because they felt they had the right to, but because they had an obligation to do so, under the mandate of God's law that a Christian is guilty of evil unless he actively opposes that evil.

Alluding to the very real problem of a rising crime rate, the Judge told the professors: "You have become part of the problem, instead of the answer." Obviously the Judge, in his sincere but mis-directed concern, does not realize that answers to problems are rooted in those problems, not distinct from them. It is perhaps too much to ask that he see this, for his mind through experience is shuttered by the laws he is sworn to uphold, and the law cannot ever legitimize its own disobedience. But that is not to say that such disobedience is never justified.

We believe it is justified under certain circumstances and when done in a non-violent, submissive manner (which, Dean Brandis, is the difference between Martin Luther King and Gov. George Wallace). Then civil disobedience is not only justified but desirable, in that it serves as a safety valve for frustration and prevents frustration from deteriorating into despair, with all its accompanying implications of desperate acts.

The glory of America, and the coming glory of North Carolina, is that there will soon be no further need for such a safety valve to be used, at least in the area of race and public accommodations.

In the years to come, when all of this is behind us, UNC instructors William Wynn and Albert Amon, and Duke instructors Frederick Hertzog, Robert Osborn, David Smith, Peter Klopfer and Harmon Smith, will be seen in their true light: Men who braved the winds of near universal disapproval to be true to the ideals of their God and their country, and in so doing, helped the rest of us to ultimately do likewise.

Thoughts On National Schizophrenia

SIDNEY HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: One of the most ironic symptoms of our national schizophrenia is that while we have a great respect for "education" in the abstract, we have an equally great mistrust of the educated person in the particular; it is much like our religion, which abstractly worships the Christian virtures, but is scandalized by any individual who takes the teachings of Christ "too seriously."

There is no such thing as the "dead past"—it is the future that is dead, and whether or not it comes alive for us depends largely upon the lessons we draw from the past and utilize in the present. History, in fact, may be defined as the art of trying to understand and control tomorrow.

There seems something strained and twisted to me in those persons who venerate Nature to the exclusion, or denigration, of human beings; for human beings represent the quintessence of Nature, in all its glorious possibilities and horrible potentialities.

Receiving an unexpected letter from abroad, I recalled Schopenhauer's perceptive remark: "If you want to discover your true opinion of anybody, observe the impression made on you by the first sight of a letter from him."

One of the hardest tasks for parents is to distinguish between the child and the act, behind the character and the stage the child is going through; to punish him for being bad without making him feel he "is" bad; to reprimand him for telling a lie without making him feel he "is" a liar; and our failure to make these distinctions implants the very traits we are trying to eradicate.

A man marries a woman because she reminds him of his mother, and then is irritated with her because she reminds him too much of his mother; or marries because she is quite different from his mother, and then resents her because she is so different from his mother. Such men, perhaps, should not marry at all—but they are the ones who marry first.

To look upon something inferior with distaste, without at the same time taking credit for our distaste, is the rarest and noblest form of discriminating . . . and one that moralizers are incapable of.

No woman is responsible for her face, but every woman is for her expression; and, especially after 30, a woman's attractiveness is only one-fourth face, one-fourth artifice, but fully one-half expression; if the latter is greedy, or mean, or sullen, or discontented, the other half goes for nothing.

Book Review

Stern: 'A True Artist'

By HENRY McINNIS

"All art is quite useless," said Oscar Wilde. He was right. But oh what beautiful impracticality it is!

A "useless" creature named Isaac Stern performed his art Monday night at Memorial Hall to a packed house of students and townspeople. He had impressive credentials:

The only one of the world's great violinists trained exclusively in America;

The first American artist to appear in the Soviet Union after World War II, in 1956;

The man who saved Carnegie Hall from being torn down;

The most widely travelled American artist.

It was gratifying to behold the crowd, there to hear serious classical music instead of the usual deluge of electrified, amplified guitar zombies and no-voice frauds that make up the sizeable no-talent brigade.

Here was an artist among artists and his program of Brahms, Bach, Prokofieff, Chausson, Wieniawski, Bartok and Kreisler was itself a masterwork of selectivity and taste. Mr. Stern is a modest-looking man with a lion-size share of uncommon genius. Brought to UNC by the Chapel Hill Concert Series, Stern's artistry was like pouring soothing oils on burning wounds.

Brahms' "Sonata No. 2 in A Major for Violin and Piano" was performed with a full-throated purity of tone and warmth of expressiveness which his music needs to overcome the formalistic niceties the composer felt so obliged to make in his idolatry of Beethoven. The sonata had a feminine sweetness but its tendency to molasses-like motion was checked, as one could predict, by Mr. Stern, who seldom allows himself a musical indiscretion, not even in his interpretation of Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto.

The violinist-virtuoso changed his mind about playing the Bach "Partita No. 1 in B Minor" and replaced it with Bach's "Chaconne from the Sonata No. 4 in D Minor." It proved to be a fiddling tour-de-force. The Chaconne was the name given to a stately ancient dance in triple time. Stern's interpretation would have done credit to the emaciated and demonic wizard of violinists, Paganini. It had admirable control and was clean and penetrating in its execution of Bach's melodic gift, heightened and rare sense of form and the virile quality of his themes.

The Prokofieff "Sonata No. 2 in D Major" was distinguished by pyrotechniques of both Stern and his pianist, Alexander Zakin, who gave just the right assistance to the violinist without risking his own musical identity. A century ago the critics would have accused the violinist with beating and whacking the poor instrument black and blue and they might have awarded Prokofieff the grand prize for composition in the Conservatory in Hell. The grotesque wildness of the composer's imagination made possible the most exquisite sensations of the concert.

Chausson's Poeme found the concert artist in fine fiddle with its lush and voluptuous sounds. However, Mr. Stern lacks the assertion of a Francescatti or an Oistrakh and he cannot project that special irregularity and eccentricity required to transform this almost sexual piece above the level of ordinary passion.

Next came Wieniawski's "Polonaise Brillante," which surely must have been in Oscar Wilde's mind when he said "all art is useless." Nevertheless, the piece had a strange stridency which was ever appealing in spite of bombastic leanings and extreme Polish pulchritude. It was slightly vulgar without being jaded.

A few encores were given by the stern-looking Mr. Stern, among them Bartok's "Four Romanian Dances" which were short and to the point, authentic and entirely inconsequential. "Schon Rosmarin" by the incomparable Fritz Kreisler, who died in 1962, was presented with sincerity and grace and revealed the astonishing flow of thrilling melody that was Kreisler's gift. It was only twenty-five years ago that Kreisler and Sergei Rachmaninoff toured the nation and the South.

Praise should be extended to Dr. Joel Carter, whose program notes were informative and scholarly. Also, the reviewer clutched his program with a desperate gratitude, having been in other concerts cast on the perilous oceans of doubt and inaccuracy by the "spontaneous" habit of other performers to shoot from the hip instead of preparing a formal statement of their endeavors.

Max Freedman

An Imaginary Feud

WASHINGTON — President Johnson is puzzled rather than angered by the stories of a growing coolness between himself and Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy. He knows that he did not start these reports; and he has evidence at hand that the attorney general neither encouraged nor authorized these tales of dissension.

The President also knows that only the Republican party is benefitting from these stories. He therefore wonders why some Democrats are leading themselves to this mischief-making.

Certain fundamental points which are very clear to President Johnson and Mr. Kennedy are apparently less clear to other people.

The President cannot pick his vice presidential running mate in March. This kind of decision would not only be most unwise. It also is absolutely impossible in terms of practical politics. After all, it is worth remembering that at the Los Angeles convention in 1960 Sen. John Kennedy chose Sen. Lyndon Johnson as his running mate only after his own nomination as the presidential candidate.

When he became President, Mr. Johnson made it a first charge on his conscience to keep Mr. Robert Kennedy in his administration. It was of course important to retain his services as a visible link to prove the continuity of the two administrations. But that was by no means the controlling reason.

No one has ever accused President Johnson of not being a very sensitive man and he knew with poignant intensity how great was the grief of the attorney general over the death of his brother. During this tragically difficult period the President did all he could to show his sympathy for the attorney general. He invited Mr. Kennedy to take a wide and pervasive interest in the work of the Johnson administration. Mr. Kennedy appreciated this offer but he thought, quite correctly, that his unique relationship with President Kennedy could never be duplicated with any other President. He therefore replied that for the time being at least he would prefer to restrict his activities to the Department of Justice. The President understood the wisdom, indeed the inevitability, of this position.

Since then the two men have been drawn together in a number of projects and the President's respect for the attorney general has deepened. It seems to have been forgotten by the spreaders of the rumors that the major domestic business now before the President is the passage of the civil rights bill. On this crucial issue the President and the attorney general are in unbreakable unity. Yet in defiance of these facts, persistent reports of a personal estrangement continue to fill the air. President Johnson never ceases to be astonished at the assurance with which people totally outside his administration, and with whom he has not talked, can claim to know who is in or out of his personal favor and can presume to instruct the public on this point.

If these rumors are unjust to the President, they are no less unfair to the attorney general.

To begin with the smallest point of all, it is scarcely a tribute to the political sagacity of Mr. Kennedy to represent him as conducting a sort of subterranean campaign to force his way to the vice presidential nomination. The risks and dangers inherent in this course have been eplained with copious emphasis by reporters and pundits. Isn't it barely conceivable that Mr. Kennedy has as much brains as they have or knows as much about politics as they do?

More serious by far, the rumors have revived the impression of Mr. Kennedy as a hard and ruthless politician eager for power and convetous of victory at all costs. Quite simply, these rumors amount to a libel on his character and his objectives. It would be futile to deny that Mr. Kennedy has given and taken hard blows in many political wars. But the picture of him as a cynical schemer is a discreditable absurdity. Never far below the surface in Mr. Kennedy is a sensitive nature and a shy but sturdy idealism. President Johnson is aware of these qualities in Mr. Kennedy, respects them greatly, and wonders sadly why they were not universally known.

The President and the attorney general share an unshatterable conviction that the worst possible memorial to President Kennedy would be the election of a Republican President in 1964. On that common platform they stand together and will continue to stand.

Heelprints

We see where Raleigh attorney Thomas Ellis addressed the Manteo Rotary Club on the topic "Christ Was A Conservative." Is he one of those people who go around putting up signs which say "Get Right With God?"

* * *

Concerning those folks in Raleigh who took a city-wide "tree survey": we've always been of the opinion that trees are something to leave alone.

* * *

One thing about the DTH editors—Blanchard doesn't blanch when he testifies in court.

* * *

Definition: Englishman — one who dines alone in a room filled with other hermits.

* * *

As far as Kidd Brewer's filing for the governor's race from his jail cell, you've got to admit the voters will know where he stands . . . also where he sits, where he sleeps, and where he eats.

* * *

Then there's the Kemp doll—you wind it up and it says it's moving.

Saws For Today

That to-morrow starts from to-day and is one day beyond it, robes the future with hope's rainbow hues.

—Mary Baker Eddy

* * *

Of great events stride on before
Often do the spirits
the events,
And in to-day already walks to-morrow.

—Samuel Taylor Coleridge

* * *

Every to-morrow has two handles. We can take hold of it with the handle of anxiety or the handle of faith.

—Henry Ward Beecher

* * *

I am not afraid of tomorrow, for I have seen yesterday and I love today.

—William Allen White

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

Hugh Stevens

'Bozo For Governor'

The first time you see Bruce (Bozo) Burleson, you think to yourself, "that guy is all heart." Then you realize they just don't make 'em that big.

Bozo is running for governor, all 250 pounds of him, and last Wednesday evening he expounded his amazing platform for the Student Party nominating convention.

"I plan to set up legalized gambling," he said. "I want lotteries, dog racing, horse racing and a few select gambling palaces—fully equipped, of course."

Bozo, an Asheville electronics firm employee, feels that people are going to gamble whether it is legal or not, and "if a man sits down to a penny-ante game, the state should get its cut."

Ridiculous? Maybe—but Bozo certainly doesn't think so. He says "our present revenue system is static; we have all the taxes we can stand. I can quit taking more from the little man than he can afford. Let the big man who can gamble foot the bills."

See what I mean? The guy has a heart of gold. Furthermore, in addition to taking the pressure off our pocketbooks, he calculates that the fantastic revenues that gambling could provide could allow us to have a lot of extras—including "roads ya'll never dreamed of."

The gambling system is only part of Bozo's fascinating platform. Elsewhere along the way, he's managed to come up with a solution, practical or otherwise, for almost every conceivable ill.

He plans to do away with the liability automobile insurance. "Let everybody pay a $20 fee when they buy their license," he says, "and then the state can use the money to pay off the liability claims. Whenever you see a car with a license plate on it, you'll know that man's insured."

Further, Bozo will appeal the right-to-work law ("it's unfair, and besides, with the boost to business legalized gambling will provide there won't be unemployment), and eliminate the controversial speaker ban law. ("It's just another way to eliminate the competition, and competition is healthy).

By the time Bozo drew a loud burst of applause for his stand on the speaker ban, I began to think about the reasons that cause candidates like Bozo and Raymond Stansbury, the Hillsboro plumber, to enter the governor's race.

In the first place, it costs money to run. Bozo and Ray have paid their filing fees ($250 each) and both have traveled all over the state making speeches (or, in Stansbury's case, cracking jokes) and appearing on television. Everywhere they go, they are called crackpots, clowns, and any of a million other foul names, but they keep going. Gas, oil, time—it adds up. The question is, why?

Not being one desirous of questioning another's motives, I have to admit that I just don't know.

Some will say it's for publicity reasons. Perhaps. After all, Bozo was once a professional wrestler, and Ray is undoubtedly a showman at heart. But if that's the reason, why do they go to such lengths to work out and support such long and complex platforms? Why do they risk derision by taking the unpopular stands? What is it that causes you to have a certain amount of sympathy for even their most hopeless causes?

Sometimes I think the answer to these questions is that their humor sometimes points up the sometimes mock seriousness of the so-called "real candidates." Down deep inside they are probably aware of the hopelessness of their specific goals. Indeed, most would probably be more shattered should they win than they will be when they are overwhelmingly defeated.

But for all their utter hopelessness, they serve a purpose, and it may be an important one. Their exaggerated forthrightness, no-holds-barred honesty, and determination to uphold the basic ideals which they hold dear serve to balance off the vague promises, impractical idealism, and questionable maneuverings of their "more qualified" opponents. They simply prove that if their own harangues should be taken with a grain of salt, they are not the only ones.

– Wynn –

(Continued From Page 1)

his statement in which he said he had violated the law to bear witness to God. Osborn had said he felt that "inasmuch as you have done it unto the least of us, you have done it unto me." Osborn used this justification for his actions in protesting discrimination.

Mallard looked directly at him and spoke in a firm and slow manner: "Dr. Osborn, if you believe the Negro is the lesat among you. I will deny it. Come with me to my section of the country, and I will show you just as many of the other color. Look at Mr. Malone. (The judge directed attention toward Wynn's Negro Lawyer). He is as good a lawyer as there is in this State. He grew up in North Carolina. He conducts himself with dignity and respect and is treated with respect wherever he goes."

Mallard earlier referred to Malone by saying, "I have simple faith in Jesus Christ as my savior. I believe He is Mr. Malone's savior too. I believe that Mr. Malone and I are brothers."

Finally, Mallard directed himself toward Herzog.

"I don't mind telling you that I shed a tear or two over you, Dr. Herzog," he said. "I'm not going to send you to prison; not because you didn't do the same thing, but because your attitude and motives are different. I'm going to send both of them (Wynn and Osborn) to prison."

The charges of trespass were brought after a group of professors staged an anti-segregation protest at Watts Restaurant on Jan. 3.

On that Spring Vacation Visit, Take along a Book from The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin St.

Open every night until 10 p.m.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

NOMINATED FOR 5 ACADEMY AWARDS

Natalie Wood "Best Actress of the Year!"

NATALIE WOOD

There is a moment-a long moment-when everything is risked with the proper stranger.

STEVE McQUEEN

Love WITH THE PROPER STRANGER

written by ARNOLD SCHULMAN

co-starring EDIE ADAMS

also starring HERSCHEL BERNARDI

OPENS SUNDAY

THE CARDINAL

AN OTTO PREMINGER FILM

MRC—New officers of the Men's Residence Council are: (left to right) Jerry Drose, court vice chairman; Larry Coleman, court chairman; Bob Payton, vice president; Jim Fullwood, president; Sonny Pepper, treasurer and Ron Hendren, Secretary. —Photo by Jim Wallace

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

GMAB President Applications — applications for GMAB president are now available at GM information desk.

Campus Chest Carnival — 1-10 p.m., intramural field.

Alumni Football Game—2 p.m. tickets on sale at Y-Court and Woollen.

Amateur Radio Club — 6:30-7 p.m., Caldwell Y, sign up for Morse code and radio theory.

LOST AND FOUND

Found — spiral notebook belong- to Bruce Johnson; reclaim at GM information desk.

Found — Bulova watch on intra-mural soccer fields, owner must identify; claim at 315 Woollen Gym.

Lost — white carcoat with hood, two books — Guide to Washington, D. C., and French Made Simple; contact Bill Amos, 428 Ehringhaus.

Lost — pair of brown-rimmed glasses; contact Bill Marks, 129 Ehringhaus.

Lost — dark blue overcoat, no lining — found — dark green overcoat, no lining; traded overcoats in Lenoir Hall, contact George Willets, 304 Graham.

Lost — light tan carcoat, brown leather gloves in pocket, reward, contact Max Vanpelt, 212 Manley.

Lost — black and brown 6-month old female German shepherd, call 942-3684, reward.

Lost — pair of black-rimmed glasses in black case, contact Mary Susan Kirk, 322 Spencer.

MOVIES

Varsity—One Man's Way

Carolina—Love with the Proper Stranger

Free Flick—Man with a Thousand Faces

SUNDAY

Graduate Newman Club — 8:30 p.m., Catholic Student Center.

Newman Club — 6 p.m., St. Thomas More Hall, supper and discussion.

CPU—9 p.m., Grail Room, election of officers and address by Dr. Raymond Dawson on Viet Nam.

Hillel Supper Program — 5:30 p.m., Hillel House, Rabbi Simcha Kling, "Israeli Youth Today," reservations for supper may be made by calling Hillel offices.

Canterbury—6 p.m., Chapel of the Cross.

SP—7 p.m., 08 Peabody, to ratify platform, all candidates required to attend.

UP Executive Comm. — 7:30 p.m., 206 Davie Hall.

The Migrants—8 p.m., GM.

UP Legislators — 8:30 p.m., Davie Hall.

Westminster Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, worship; 6 p.m., supper; 6:45 p.m., "The Christian View of Death."

SP Legislature Candidates — after regular meeting, 08 Peabody, required informational meeting.

Presbyterian Service — 11 a.m, Presbyterian Church, special musical program.

Presbyterian Church will participate in a special program in conjunction with the downtown churches at 7:30 p.m. at The University Methodist Church.

MONDAY

YMCA Interviews for Cabinet Positions — 3-5 p.m., president's office in Y-Court.

Middle South United Nations Model General Assembly — 3-5 p.m. YMCA-CCUN office Mon.-Tues., interviews for executive and secretarial positions.

Presbyterian Church—7:30 p.m., today-Thurs., services in the Sanctuary; Communion will be held in the Fellowship Hall.

Order of the Grail — 9 a.m.-3 p.m., Y-Court, sale of graduation invitations for seniors.

Newman Club — 6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir, informal dinner.

PEANUTS

THE THING TO DO FLY

THE WAY TO DO IT PIEDMONT

When the thing is travel—take a Piedmont Pacemaker. Flying lets you spend your holiday at home or vacationing with friends, instead of on the road. And it's economical, too. Save 75% of your return fare, with the Piedmont Xcursion Plan! Just leave on Saturday, and return any Saturday or Sunday within 30 days. Check on convenient schedules and thrifty fares the next time you travel. Call Piedmont Airlines.

PIEDMONT AIRLINES

Saturday Special

Short Sleeve Dress Shirts

$3.99

Compare at 5.95

We only have a limited supply, so shop early and save.

Colors: White
Blue
Maize

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin St.

Clothiers of Distinction

POGO

Football Rosters

– The Varsity –

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 11 | Gallagher, J., E | 56 | Harmon, G |
| 14 | Talbott, QB | 57 | Cornelius, T |
| 16 | Kinney, QB | 58 | Sadler, T |
| 17 | Faircloth, QB | 60 | Zarro, G |
| 18 | Beaver, QB | 61 | Eudy, G |
| 20 | Phillips, B | 62 | Davis, C., G |
| 21 | Pitt, B | 63 | Fratangelo, G |
| 23 | Link, B | 64 | Clayton, G |
| 24 | Brooks, E | 66 | Kaplan, G |
| 25 | Braine, B | 67 | Sledge, G |
| 26 | Haithcock, B | 68 | Davis, L., T |
| 27 | Jackson, B | 69 | Bradley, T |
| 28 | Lampman, B | 70 | Hodges, T |
| 29 | Tuthill, B | 71 | Newman, T |
| 30 | Barden, B | 72 | Hill, T |
| 31 | Fortune, B | 73 | Williams, T |
| 32 | Eason, B | 74 | Churchill, T |
| 33 | McArthur, B | 75 | Erimias, T |
| 34 | Chapman, B | 76 | Jessup, T |
| 35 | Fonvielle, B | 77 | Starczewski, T |
| 36 | Ephland, B | 78 | Meador, T |
| 37 | Darnall, E | 79 | High, T |
| 38 | Ward, B | 80 | Johnson, E |
| 39 | Edwards, B | 81 | Wood, E |
| 41 | Reardon, B | 82 | Gallagher, F., E |
| 42 | Bowman, B | 83 | Atherton, E |
| 43 | Kirvan, G | 84 | Clay, E |
| 44 | McMillan, B | 85 | Powell, E |
| 47 | Szymaitis, B | 86 | Axselle, E |
| 48 | Estes, B | 88 | Lister, E |
| 51 | Malobicky, G | 87 | Harrington, E |
| 52 | Stringer, C | 89 | Hume, E |
| 53 | Ogburn, C | | Loveday, G |
| 54 | Battistello, C | | Knott, E |
| 55 | Hanburger, C | | Golden, E |
| | | | Moore, E |
| | | | Lamb |
| | | | Warrington, C |
| | | | Prillaman, T |
| | | | Alexander, C |
| | | | Johnson, Earl |
| | | | Lail, C |
| | | | Greene, WB |
| | | | Harvey, FB |
| | | | Boggs, C |
| | | | Hasty, QB |
| | | | Byrd, QB |

– The Alumni –

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 76 | Tony Hennessey | 73 | Vic Esposito |
| 45 | Andy Miketa | 57 | Lee Baggett |
| 77 | Don Stallings | 89 | Dana Wellman |
| 67 | Jack Tillery | 68 | Jerry Cabe |
| 30 | Lenny Beck | 35 | Roger Smith |
| 49 | John Schroeder | 70 | Gene Sigmon |
| 58 | Rip Hawkins | 65 | Jim Alderman |
| 85 | Rabe Walton | 88 | Joe Robinson |
| 23 | Moyer Smith | 87 | Mac Turlington |
| 34 | Conrad Sloop | 79 | John Hegarty |
| 52 | Joe Craver | 70 | Phil Blazer |
| 51 | Fred Swearingen | 73 | Ralph Steele |
| 39 | Tom Cabe | 29 | Gib Carson |
| 14 | Junior Edge | 89 | Bruce Greene |
| 79 | Cole Kortner | 66 | Duff Greene |
| 81 | John Hammett | 75 | Earl Butler |
| | | 29 | Leonard Bullock |
| | | 65 | Jeff Newton |
| | | 12 | Ray Farris |
| | | 18 | Jud Spainhour |
| | | 15 | George Boutselis |
| | | 31 | Wade Smith |
| | | 49 | Barry Westfall |
| | | 78 | Rusty Hodges |
| | | 54 | Bob Zaback |

– Editor –

(Continued From Page 1)

of court and I have been formally and totally exonerated.

"Because of this, I do not plan to seek from Judge Raymond Mallard a clarification of his decision.

"My attorney assures me that the entire matter has been terminated in my favor, as we originally thought.

"I again wish to thank everyone who has offered moral and financial support to me during the proceedings."

CHARMACK

The Magician

P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

ABSURD

Comedy at the

TRIANGLE COFFEE HOUSE

"Except We Got Robins"

9:30 P.M.

March 22, 25, 29

Three coeds working in Europe

EUROPEAN JOBS

The trend among students is to work in Europe during the summer. Thousands of jobs (e.g. resort, lifeguarding and office work) and travel grants are available to every registered student. Some wages are as high as $400 a month. For a complete prospectus, job and travel grant applications, a $1 ASIS book coupon and handling and airmail charges send $1 to Dept. M, American Student Information Service, 22 Ave. de la Liberte, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Washes
6. To gleam, as a warning light
11. Size of type
12. Half diameters
13. Flattery
14. Belonging to the axis
15. Body of water
16. Half em
17. Old weight for wool
18. Stem
22. About
24. Awry: dial.
28. Capable of flowing
29. Stalks of grain after threshing
30. Give over
31. Safe
32. Bandage
34. American Indian
37. Affirmative vote
38. Polish river
41. Haughty
43. Aloft
45. Cen. Am. timber tree
46. Shooting star
47. Tenth President of U.S.
48. Pitchers

DOWN

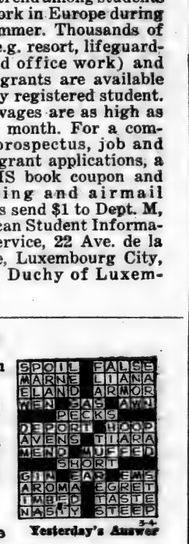
1. Young girl
2. Malarial-like disorder
3. Wandering
4. Greek letter
5. Varying weight: Ind.
6. French coin
7. Slack
8. Mine entrance
9. Fodder vat
10. Hastened
16. Conclude
19. Old Finnish poetry
20. Some
21. Covering of deck opening
22. Portion of a curved line
23. Regret
25. Grisly
26. Organ of hearing
27. Female sheep
29. Place
31. Speak
33. A fisherman's high boot
34. Young oyster
35. Host
36. Fuel
39. Affirm
40. Seines
42. Shohonean Indian
43. Highest card
44. Arch



Yesterday's Answer

Varsity

NOW PLAYING

ONE man's way IS EVERYONE'S MOTION PICTURE!

FRANK ROSS presents

ONE man's way

THE STORY OF NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

starring DON MURRAY

co-starring WILLIAM WINDOM CAROL OHMART

and introducing DIANA HYLAND

Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

MRC-CWC DANCE

Footsore after the Carnival? Don't sit down.

Take advantage of the first day of spring. Grab a girl and go straight to the Women's Gym where you'll gyrate to the scintillating strains of the Rivieras.

They're playing from 8 to 12 p.m. and it's free.

It's jointly sponsored by the Men's Residence Council and the Carolina Women's Council. MRC Social Chairman Gordon Appell has been talking about getting up with the CWC all year but they keep avoiding him.

It's guaranteed to be loud.

Thinking tomorrow's thoughts today is one kind of future life.
—Christopher Morley

* * *

The man who wastes to-day lamenting yesterday will waste tomorrow lamenting today.
—Philip M. Raskin

Lost and Found

LOST BROWN LEATHER POCKetbook at Legion Hut Saturday night. Reward offered. Call 967-7071 or 929-2653.

For Sale

A AND O MONOCULAR MICROscope, wide angle lens, 3 objectives. Medical and dental school approved. Sacrifice at $129. Call 967-3203, 128 Polk St.

FOR SALE: ONE ALAN GERTZ to the highest bidder. Contact Yo-Yo, Boris, Glue, M. Krug, B. Allen, S. Beyer, Bod, Butch, L. Heller, D. Lyman, Strident, Ibil, Machine, Pope, S. Hochfield, Vonce, A. Frankel, B. Harris, J. Levin, M. Merkin, K. Kaplan, J. Pettingill, I. Kaye, B. Goldstein, Stats or S. Rosenblum, 968-9091.

FOR SALE: HONDA 50, 600 miles, perfect condition. Call Tom McKnight 968-8268 after six.

Used Cars For Sale

MUST SELL TODAY! 1952 LINcoln, full power, 4-speed automatic, new paint, brakes. Needs valve work, but runs O.K. $100 or best offer. Dave Reichardt, 968-9157.

FOR SALE: 1960 RED VOLVO, radio, heater, white walls. Good condition. $1100. Call 968-8144.

BRAND NEW AND BRILLIANT

The Limeliters sing and play once more. Great folk standards like "No Man Is an Island," "The Best Is Yet to Come" and "Willow Tree." It's more of the best with the Limeliters.

RCA VICTOR

The most trusted name in sound

Old Men (Er, Grads) Tackle Varsity In Kenan

FIVE OF THE SENIORS who will be switching sides and playing for the Alumni for the first time this afternoon are shown here—still sporting their Jacksonville smiles. Standing, l to r, are: Barry Westfall and Gene Sigmon. Kneeling are: Joe Robinson, Junior Edge and Cole Kortner.

Kick-Off Set At 2; Talbott Will Start

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Memories mix with hopes this afternoon in Kenan Stadium when the old grads take on next fall's varsity in the Third Annual Alumni Football Game.

Kickoff time for the contest, which will match such past stars as Rip Hawkins, Junior Edge, Gib Carson and John Schroeder against hopefuls such as Danny Talbott, Bill Darnall, Bob Newman and Jeff Beaver, is set for two o'clock.

Rosters On Page 3

Alumni coaches Gus Purcell, Pete Carr and Chris Carpenter have already given away their secret attack. They're going to throw that football.

"We have Junior Edge, Ray Farris and several other capable quarterbacks," said Purcell, head coach at Charlotte's Myers Park High. "If we didn't take advantage of their great passing ability, we'd be quite foolish. And I think our line will be more than capable of offering good protection."

On the other side of the field, Jim Hickey says he wants to see how his boys, who conclude spring drills with this afternoon's game, can move the ball on the ground.

"We're not planning on pulling any punches in our offense," Hickey said. "We want, in general, to test our running game, and specifically, to test the overall ability of our new quarterbacks, Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver."

Talbott, the heralded Rocky Mount athlete who starred on both the frosh football and basketball squads, will get the starting call, as regular quarterback Gary Black has missed spring practice because of baseball. Beaver will be right behind Talbott, and both should see an equal amount of action. Of the two, Beaver is considered the sharper passer, but Talbott is rated the better all-round signal caller.

With Talbott in the starting backfield will be running back Ron Tuthill, fullback Frank Bowman and wingback Ronnie Jackson. Regular backs Ken Willard and Eddie Kesler won't be around. Like Black, they are spending the spring on the baseball team.

The varsity line will probably be soph Bill Darnall at split end, Frank Gallagher at tight end, soph Bob Newman and John Hill at the tackles, Clint Eudy ("most impressive in spring drills") and Richy Zarro at the guards, and Chris Hanburger at center.

The alumni will probably run in-and-out with great frequency most of their 40-odd players, most of whom aren't exactly in the peak of condition. For example the forward wall will average 240 pounds. Now can you ever remember a UNC line weighing that much?

RIP HAWKINS
. . . Headlines Grads

The Return Of The Greene Twins—Bruce (69) And Duff (66)

A Family Affair

Three sets of brothers will be playing for the Alumni this afternoon, adding more of the "family" touch to the annual reunion.

A pair of young men representing the Greenes, Smiths and Cabes will be suited up with the old-timers.

The Smith boys, Wade and Roger, served as co-captains of the Tar Heels during their playing days. Both are halfbacks and they hail from Albemarle.

Bruce and Duff Greene are twins. They were Carolina linemen during their undergrad days and wound up their playing days in 1962.

Tom and Jerry Cabe are from Brevard and won monograms as linemen. Tom assisted in coaching the frosh last fall. Jerry was one of the Atlantic Coast Conference's best guards and captained the wrestling team this winter.

The six brothers are among 40 or more former Carolina aces who will try to do-in the present squad, which will wind up post-season drills with the afternoon skirmish.

Hilton's Bugged Boys Face Clemson Today

By DENNIS SANDERS

North Carolina opens its outdoor track season against Clemson at Fetzer Field today and the Tar Heels will have their hands full trying to "hold that Tiger."

When the broad jump starts things rolling at 11 a.m. Coach Joe Hilton's "bugged" thinclads may be missing three prominent runners.

Ronnie Jackson has the football bug and will utilize his speed in the annual Varsity-Alumni football attraction later in the afternoon. Jackson has clipped off a 9.6 in the 100-yard dash.

Dale White, who swept the 60-yard dash in the ACC Indoor Games a week ago, has been hit by a cold bug and probably won't be able to run at full speed.

Still a third bug infected distance star Art Maillet's wrist, limiting his workouts prior to the meet.

It took a late mile relay win son last spring, 73-72. And a refor the Tar Heels to edge Clemrun of that show may be reeled off today.

"Normally I'd think we'd be a little stronger than Clemson," said Hilton, "but we've been fighting a losing battle lately with the bug and it has hurt us."

That may be an understatement. Maillet is the ACC indoor mile and cross-country chmapion and White holds the conference mark for the 60 indoors.

UNC's Harvey Whitely (21-8½) will duel Tiger Carter Leland (21-10) in the broad jump. Bob Bennett heads the Carolina 880 roster and Tom Clark will be on hand for the high jump.

Clemson will counter with Jimmy Wynn and Carol Poole in the 60-yard dash. Both finished in the top five in the Indoor Games last Saturday.

Phillies Allen Burns Up Florida Grapefruit Loop

By FELIPE TOLIVAR
(Grapefruit Correspondent)

SUN SPOTS, Fla. — Although the Dodgers and Giants have been making headlines by playing like it was September and not March, most teams aren't really very concerned about their won-lost percentages. The Grapefruit and Cactus Leagues are opportunities for the teams to get close looks at the many promising rookies and the few aging veterans who are trying to hang on, as well as limber up the regulars.

Naturally such vets as Frank Lary, Ernie Banks, Gene Conley, and Vernon Law are being closely watched, but it has been the impressive starts of certain rookies which have delighted the managers. Headlining these rookies is Richie Allen, a converted outfielder playing third for the Phillies.

Allen has already hit five homers, three triples, and knocked in 11 runs. Gene Mauch is counting on Allen, for third base was the Phils' big weakness last year, and if they are to make a serious bid for the pennant, he must come through.

The Giants, 10-1 as of Friday, have been delighted with the play of their coveted youngsters, Jim Ray Hart and Jesus Alou. Hart, who was injured last year after being recalled from Tacoma, has moved Jim Davenport to second. Alou, third in the line of Alou brothers, has been hitting well over .300 and has been dazzling on the basepaths, having been called by manager Al Dark as "a better baserunner than Maury Wills."

Shortstop Gene Alley has been making a strong bid to strengthen the Pirates' weakness at that position by hitting four homers in his first two games. The Cubs, saddled with the want of a second baseman after Ken Hubbs' death, have been pleased with Jimmy Stewart's bat (.462), although his six errors in only sixty chances leaves something to be desired.

Lovingood Learned Lesson Last Year

By BILL LEE

"I think we'll be average without a struggle." That's how Coach Bill Lovingood sizes up this year's freshman baseball team.

Lovingood, in his second year of coaching the Tar Babies, still considers himself a rookie and adds, "I'm not going to sound as ridiculous as I did last year. I claimed we had a real good catching prospect, but he kept dropping balls during game situations."

Sixty-four showed up for tryouts this year and after the first cut, 35 are left. He plans to cut once more after the football boys come out to get the squad down to 28 or 30 players. He considers the cutting as his hardest job because he is impressed by the great number of boys of equal ability. There is also always the chance of cutting somebody of varsity calibre.

Our outlook is always towards the varsity. This year we got some good pitchers and some guys who could hit." But of these hitters, only one out of five is without academic problems. Credit Lovingood with the development of Beattie Leonard, Mike McLaughlin, Bob Walker, and Buddy Cahoon, all of whom have a chance to pitch for the varsity this year.

"This year's pitching is good. They can find the strike zone. Our catching is average, and our outfield is better than last year. The infield is swarming with average college frosh candidates, and we've played pretty good ball. I was considerably encouraged by the appearance of basketball personnel."

The opening date for the freshmen will probably be April 6 against NC State. Lovingood won't mention any names until a few days before the opening date.

Rain Washes Out Rabbmen

It was wet yesterday. Too wet for baseball. As a result the scheduled exhibition game between North Carolina and Duke at Durham was cancelled.

The Tar Heels will open their season Monday, at home against Connecticut. Admission to the games in Emerson Field is by I.D. card.

Sport Shorts

UNC Will Meet Kentucky In Charlotte

North Carolina's basketball team will play host to Kentucky in Charlotte next December 7, it was learned yesterday. The Monday night contest, to be played in the Charlotte Coliseum, should feature two of the nation's stronger teams, as UNC seems ready to take its place in the top ten again, and the Wildcats are always up there.

Other non-conference opponents already on the Tar Heels' 1964-65 schedule include Alabama and VPI (in the Virginia Tech Invitational pre-Christmas tourney at Blacksburg, Va.) and Indiana.

Sunny Florida Beckons Baseball Team

Two games with Florida State and single encounters with Mississippi State, Duke and Wake Forest are on tap for the UNC baseball team, when the Tar Heels journey to Tallahasse, Fla., next Wednesday for their six-day spring trip.

The first game will be on March 26, against the host Seminoles. Mississippi State is scheduled for the 27th, Duke the 28th, Wake Forest on the morning of the 29th and Florida State again that afternoon. The Duke and Wake Forest games probably will be counted as exhibition games and definitely will not count in the ACC race.

Army Says Clay 'Not Greatest'

WASHINGTON — (UPI)—The Army announced officially today that heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay "is not qualified for induction into the Army" under the draft.

In announcing his rejection, the Army said it is satisfied that "Clay put forth his best efforts" when he was given physical and mental tests on two occasions.

It was reported that Clay failed the mathematics tests given inductees.

The tests included measurements of aptitudes for various skills needed in military service, the Army said. The second set of tests was given Clay when the first results were found "inconclusive."

The Army statement said interviews conducted by experts in the field of testing and analyzing results established that Clay had put forth his best possible efforts on the pre-induction tests.

Braves, Lobos In NIT Finals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bradley will seek to become only the third team ever to win the National Invitation Tournament three times when it meets fourth-seeded New Mexico in the final round of the 27th annual tourney this afternoon.

The second-seeded Braves humiliated Army, 67-52, Thursday night to gain the finals after New Mexico had tripped New York University, 72-65.

The championship game will be televised nationally from Madison Square Garden by the National Broadcasting Co. starting at 4 p.m. EST.

Both Bradley Coach Chuck Orsborn and Lobo head man Bob King seem to have formed a mutual admiration society for the other.

"They're one of the finest teams I've seen all year," said Orsborn, who guided Bradley to the NIT title in 1957 and 1960, and a 22-6 mark this season. "I was very much impressed with their style of play, and their defense can scare anyone."

As for King, who has led New Mexico out of basketball obscurity in two short years and into the NIT for the first time, he shares his rival's apprehension, almost to the point of using the same words.

"Bradley is one of the best teams I've seen this season," King said. He added that he planned to play the same deliberate style of offense and nagging defense that carried the Lobos to a 23-5 record.

"We've been successful with our play here and I don't plan any radical changes in our patterns," he said.

HIT ATTRACTION

See the Animals from the Zoo

ZETA PSI PLEDGES vs. THE HOG

1:30-2 Today at Campus Chest Carnival

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

Enjoy the Finest Seafood
TIP TOP FISH HOUSE
Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West
Durham Tel. 286-4494

—FREE—
Wooden Coat Hangers
Monday and Tuesday Only
Browse at Your Convenience
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

IF SHE'S NOT GETTING IN YOUR HAIR ...GET THIS

Those dainty fingers aren't about to play games in a messy, mousy mane! So, get with it! . . . get your hair shaped-up with SHORT CUT. Disciplines crew cut, brush cut, any cut; gives it life! Helps condition—puts more body, more manageability, more girls in your hair! Get it today. Old Spice SHORT CUT Hair Groom by Shulton . . . tube or jar, only .50 plus tax.

I love a man in Van Heusen "417"!

He's completely masculine and so-o-o attractive in the V-Taper fit. Slim and trim all the way. I like the casual roll of the Button-Down and the neat look of the Snap-Tab. For that smart authentic styling—sport or dress—Van Heusen's really got it!

VAN HEUSEN younger by design
V-Taper—for the lean trim look.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

123

The Weather
Cool, man.

The Daily Tar Heel

The good ol' Campus Chest makes another try at it today, with all sorts of scary rides to have fun on . . . see you there? . . . YES . . . Why, . . . We don't have to work.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, MARCH 22, 1964 | United Press International Service

On Post Office Steps

Integrationists Start 8-Day Fast Today

The Chapel Hill Freedom Committee yesterday announced that four of its members, two Negroes and two whites, would conduct an eight-day fast, starting at sunrise today and running through Easter Sunday.

The fast will be conducted on the grounds of the Chapel Hill Post Office. The group will take only water during the period, an announcement said.

In a statement released yesterday, the Freedom Committee announced "We believe that a fast is the highest form of prayer, and (we) look upon this Holy Week fast as a prayer that the city will live up to its responsibilities."

The protest is aimed at the Board of Aldermen in an effort to eliminate segregation in Chapel Hill. John Dunne, chairman of the Freedom Committee, said the fast was "not to be interpreted in any way as an ultimatum. It is simply a witness to our faith."

Chapel Hill Postmaster J. P. Cheek said earlier this week that he "had no idea what the policy of the Post Office Department would be toward any demonstrations held on Post Office property." Cheek said he had forwarded a report to Regional Director Banks Gladden in Atlanta.

Cheek also said that any decision made would not be implemented by him, but by U. S. marshals and postal inspectors.

"The only thing I will do," Cheek said, "will be to make certain that the entrances and walkways do not become blocked." He declined to specify just what means would be used in the event entrances or walkways did become blocked.

Chapel Hill Police Chief W. E. Blake said the matter "is entirely in the hands of the Post Office Department. It is government property and we have no jurisdiction."

The four persons scheduled to begin the fast are: John B. Dunne, chairman of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee; Rev. LeVert H. Taylor, field secretary, Southern Christian Leadership Conference; Patrick A. Cusick, field secretary, Student Peace Union; and James T. Foushee, a member of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee.

Cusick went on a 17-day-fast late last December. He refused to eat until he was placed in an integrated prison camp after he was convicted of trespass following a racial demonstration at the Merchants Association last summer.

★ ★ ★

Transfer Appeals Nixed By Stanley

Orange County Superior Court, and not federal court, has jurisdiction in 734 cases involving 217 persons who were arrested during civil rights demonstrations in Chapel Hill, it was ruled in Greensboro Friday.

Chief Judge Edwin M. Stanley made the ruling in U.S. Middle District Court.

The cases had been transferred to the federal court from Orange Superior Court upon the filing of a petition by attorneys for the 217 persons. The state objected, and asked that the cases be remanded.

Judge Stanley signed an order Friday granting the state's motion to remand the cases. The jurist heard oral argument on the motion last Wednesday.

In granting the motion, Judge Stanley turned aside the demonstrators' argument that they could not receive a fair trial in state courts, as the law now stands.

In answer to this contention, Judge Stanley quoted a statement made in an opinion by Judge Johnson J. Hayes in State of North Carolina vs. Jackson in 1955. It said:

"This court will not presume that the courts of the state will not decide constitutional questions in harmony with the United States Supreme Court's determination of the Federal Constitution. The Federal Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States is as binding on a state judge as it is on a federal judge, and it would be grossly improper for this court to presume that the state judges would refuse to uphold the law of the land."

Judge Stanley, who had noted the petition mentioned only trespass charges when eight others were involved, said interpretation of the state's trespass laws has remained unchanged for 75 years or more.

It holds, he said, that a person who remains on private premises after being directed to leave is guilty of wrongful entry, even if the original entry was peaceful and authorized.

(Continued on Page 3)

Meetings Tonight

The Carolina Political Union will meet at 9 p.m. in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial. Dr. Raymond Dawson of the Political Science Dept. will speak on Viet Nam, and a short discussion will follow. Election of officers will take place after the discusson period.

The Student Party will hold a meeting for all candidates to ratify the party platform. The meeting will be in 08 Peabody at 7 p.m. All legislative candidates will meet immediately after for a short informational session.

The University Party will hold a meeting of all legislators at 8:30 p.m. in Davie Hall. The meeting is required.

All independent legislative candidates will meet at 7:30 p.m. in 203 Alumni. The meeting is open to all who want to run independently and will explain the function of independents in the election.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Alumni Game Queen Nancy Ramsey

Playmakers To Produce 'Fantasticks'

"The Fantasticks," popular off-Broadway musical comedy, will be presented by the Carolina Playmakers March 24 and 25 as a special added attraction. Tickets for the production, being directed by Larry Warner, an advanced graduate student in the Department of Dramatic Art at UNC, are not covered by Playmakers season tickets.

Featured in the cast are: Richard Parks, Jacksonville, Fla.; Anne Peacock, Charlotte; John Whitty, New Bern; Roberts Batson, Manzanillo, Dominican Republic; Ed Kenestrick, Chapel Hill; Tom Hull, Durham; Graham Pollock, Gatesville; and Bill Allsbrook, Roanoke Rapids. Musical director for "The Fantasticks" is Mike Carrington, a graduate student from North Wilkesboro.

"The Fantasticks," classified by director Warner as a "fun musical," has had a long and successful run in New York. Suggested by Edmund Rostand's play, "Les Romanesques," the musical version is unusual in its simplicity. Its single setting and its small cast of eight are a far cry from the more elaborate forms of the conventional musical comedy.

Curtain time for "The Fantasticks" is 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and reserved seat tickets at one dollar each are now on sale. Reservations may be made at the Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall in Chapel Hill.

Bobby, LBJ Split Seen By Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — The politics editor of the Cleveland Press said today, "insiders say that the feud between President Johnson and Bobby Kennedy will come to an open break within 60 days."

Richard L. Maher, dean of the state's politics writers, wrote in his column in the Scripps-Howard newspaper that the Attorney General, brother of the late President John F. Kennedy, "has issued an ultimatum to Johnson either he Kennedy goes on the ticket this year as the vice presidential nominee or he will fight Johnson for the nomination."

Around Washington, Maher said, "they are saying the situation is so serious that Johnson cannot be regarded as a sure shot for the Democratic nomination."

Maher did not name any source for his story but he reported that the "Kennedy threat is of such strength that Democratic leaders are fearful of a wide open break that could split the party and give the election to a Republican."

Maher said Kennedy's supporters were working "in dozens of places" to create a Kennedy for vice president movement.

Maher said Kennedy didn't want Johnson as his brother's vice presidential candidate in 1960 and that Johnson's people "are sure he was getting ready to ditch the vice president even before the assassination of the late President Kennedy."

In private, he said, Johnson's people blame the attorney general "for touching off the Bobby Baker inquiry. The idea, they opine, was to embarrass Johnson so much he would have to get off the 1964 ticket.

President Kennedy's assassination resulted "in a clipping of the wings of Bobby Kennedy, in a lessening of his power and influence."

This, Maher said, forced the attorney general "into a power struggle" and Kennedy "is ready for the kind of infighting job in which he excels."

Maher said one of the attorney general's "major weapons" was the late President's widow, Jacqueline Kennedy.

He said that almost every time Mrs. Kennedy appears where pictures are taken, Kennedy is in the picture.

"This is a deep and far-reaching struggle," Maher said, "for unless Bobby Kennedy wins and is on the ticket to keep the Kennedy name alive or unless he can sidetrack Johnson, the Kennedy prestige will fade and the family power decline."

WILLIAM A. DARITY

North Carolina Fund Names William Darity

The North Carolina Fund today announced appointment of William A. Darity as assistant director for Community Development. Darity, native of Flat Rock, has been active in com-

(Continued on Page 3)

Carolina Graduate

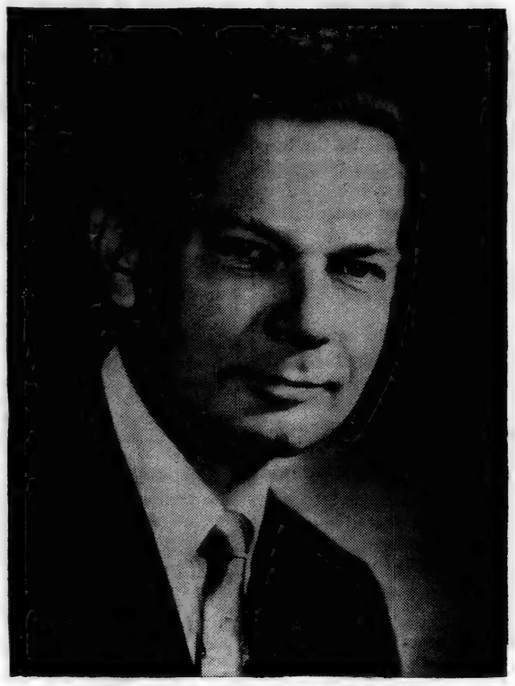
Brinkley Accepts CS Invitation For April 7



TV Newsman David Brinkley

David Brinkley, NBC-TV news commentator, has accepted the Carolina Symposium's invitation to speak Tuesday, April 7, on "The Moulding of the Public Mind."

In answer to the Symposium's invitation Brinkley said, "The subject you have chosen is one I care about very deeply."

Brinkley, briefly an English major here, and his colleague Chet Huntley have appeared on NBC-TV's "Huntley-Brinkley Report" for the past six years. They have been called coe of the best known news teams in television history.

Brinkley will soon begin his twentieth year with NBC news, having started his journalistic career on the Wilmington Star-News in his hometown of Wilmington, N. C. In 1942 he worked for United Press in Atlanta and other southern cities. The next year he began work with NBC News in Washington.

He was teamed with Chet Huntley in 1956. The two were anchor men in the national political conventions of 1956 and 1960.

Brinkley's weekly series is now in its second year. One critic has commented that, "Brinkley can never be accused of pussyfooting. He doesn't avoid touchy subjects."

A television columnist has said, "We need his civilized wit, his literate, acidic commentary, his bold exploration into forgotten corners of the world. I hope he never mellows or sings sweet songs. This fellow is unique."

His weekly "Journal" has included such a variety of subjects as irregularitiesi n the multi-million-dollar Federal Interstate Highway program, the hilarities of the world's smallest countries and an examination of James Hoffa and his Teamsters Union.

Together he and Huntley have won the TV Emmy award. Brinkley has won the Alfred I du Pont Commentators' Award, the Peabody Award, the Sylvania Award and the School Bell for Education Broadcasts.

After completing his university studies and beginning work for United Press, he met and married a fellow staffer, the former Ann Fisher. The couple have three sons: Alan, 13; Joel, 10; and John, 8. The family lives in Chevy Chase, Md.

Oral Polio Vaccine To Be Given Today

Church bells will ring throughout Durham and Orange Counties today to call residents out for their first of two polio vaccine doses.

The vaccine, the Sabin-developed oral variety, will be administered painlessly on a sugar cube.

Orange County polio drive chairman Dr. Robert J. Senior said churches in the two-county area will ring their bells just after the noon hours, from 12:15 to 12:30, as an audible reminder to the public that today is the day for the oral vaccine attack on polio.

Elementary school feeding stations will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Dr. Senior said, and facilities will be provided to give the three-strain vaccine to the major proportion of the population.

Churchgoers are asked to stop at the most convenient station to get their vaccine either before or after attending church. The four o'clock closing hour at feeding stations will allow time for all to come in for the quickly administered sugar cube of protection.

Everyone from six weeks of age up has been urged to take the newly perfected vaccine, hailed for its ability not only to immunize those not already exposed to polio, but for its additional effectiveness in killing viruses in the bodies of those who might be carriers.

It is particularly important that persons who have already received the injection-type Salk vaccine take the new oral vaccine also, because the Salk vaccine has provided almost no intestinal immunity.

The oral vaccine enters the blood stream through the intestines, and thus completely eliminates the disease from the body, in contrast to the Salk vaccine which produces only partial immunity, being administered in the muscle tissue.

The vaccine offers immunity against the three different types of polio viruses. Some of the previous vaccines have not offered this complete protection.

Some 10,000,000 persons in the U. S. have already taken the oral vaccine.

(Continued on Page 3)

The Show Goes On, And On, And On

Surprisingly enough, Campus Chest officials were seen yesterday scurrying about campus praying for rain, and trying to locate a rainmaker.

The Campus Chest had previously contacted Lloyd's of London and had taken out an insurance policy to insure the Campus Chest Carnival against rain. According to the fine print in the contract, however, it had to rain at least 0.2 inches between the hours of 2 and 6 p.m.

And rain it did. The only problem was that it rained at the wrong time. Chapel Hill was deluged with rain all day Friday and all Saturday morning. Alas and Alack! It stopped raining at 1 p.m., a scant hour before the insurance policy would cover the villainous damage the rain had done.

The Intramural field was reported as having a firm base of Chapel Hill mud deep enough to stop a Sherman Tank.

Campus Chest Chairman Betty Ward has announced the Carnival will be continued for the entire week. The booths will be erected on the intramural field Tuesday. The rides will be open to the public for the rest of the week.

Trackman Beatty Speaks To SL, Di-Phi Tomorrow

Jim Beatty, UNC alumnus and Olympic track star, will speak to Student Legislature Monday night as part of a drive sponsored by the North Carolina Fund to obtain a thousand collegiate volunteers to crusade against "the cycle of poverty." Beatty is director of the program.

His assistant, Curtis Gans, a former Daily Tar Heel editor, will speak to the Di-Phi on Tuesday.

The Fund is seeking volunteers to be trained to help communities organize and educate against the causes of poverty.

Each volunteer will become experienced in leading community projects and will have an opportunity for a full-time paid internship during subsequent years.

Applications may be obtained from the Student Government offices in Graham Memorial or at South Building.

REGISTER NOW

All students who plan to attend medical school in September, 1965, are urged to register now for the Medical College Admission Test.

Applications for this test, which will be given here on April 25, should be sent to the Psychological Corporation in New York City before April 10.

CEREMONY POSTPONED

The Greek Week Awards Presentation, a compulsory meeting for all fraternity pledges scheduled for tonight, has been postponed indefinitely, according to Gordon Fitz-Simons, chairman of Greek Week.

"Since several of the awards involve the Carnival originally scheduled Saturday, we will have the meeting sometime after the Carnival takes place," Fitz-Simons said.

The Carnival has been tentatively rescheduled for Tuesday.

MUD, SLOP AND YECCCCCH—This was the intramural field yesterday afternoon after Friday's rains had done their dirty work. As a result, the Campus Chest Carnival, originally scheduled for yesterday has been postponed. —Photo by Jim Wallace

'New Wine': The Philosophy Of Death

By HENRY McINNIS
DTH Review Editor

"Voyeurs of the dark kingdom, the eternally curious ones seek the sight of the dead, reports of fatalities of all sorts; they scour the obituary column."

The above words of UNC philosophy professor Maurice Natanson are contained in the Spring issue of "New Wine" which dwells on the subject of death. Published by the Westminster Fellowship and scheduled for sale at major campus locations on Monday, it is a superb collection of articles which offer new wine for readers who want to face the greatest and final ultimate question of existence . . . Death.

Natanson's brilliant article, "On the Meaning of Death," is by itself well worth the book's cost of 50c. He develops his point that "common sense man, ironically, is in flight from and in flight toward the phenomenon of death. Together with this flight there is an awkward gawking, a craning, a tortured movement toward the fascinating details of death."

The phenomenon of death in human existence, writes Dr. Natanson, is "complex and ambiguous. In exploring it, I shall try to honor and not diminish its subtlety." Natanson approaches the problem of how to approach the philosophical problem of death by stating that there is a conflict with the commonsense world with the every-day attitude toward death which is quick to challenge both the propriety and meaningfullness of philosophical studies.

The central thesis of Berger and Lieban's "Value Aspects of American Funeral Practices" assumes that prevailing funeral customs in the United States are characterized by a camouflaging of death. The authors intelligently probe this supposed state of affairs by relating it to the contemporary value structure of American society.

Jessica Mitford's "American Way of Death" is skillfully reviewed by Larry Isbell who offers too much of Mitford's exposition. He writes that the author "has dared to assert that our practices surrounding the preparation and burial of the dead are exercises in self-deception originating not in the needs of sincere wishes of the bereaved but in the avaricious manipulations and deceit of the funeral director and his business associates."

Albert Kates' article, "Will the Mitford Furor Affect Burial Customs?", is a somewhat prejudiced and unfair analysis which is not genuinely analytical. He answers his title in the affirmative and doggedly defends sentimentality in funeral practices when he should be concerned with higher emotion of sentiment. Kates states that "there is little doubt that the Mitford book, and far more important, the widespread publicity it is being given, will prove harmful to everyone dedicated to care of the dead. It will be quoted time and again for years to come by every Tom, Dick and Harry who for reasons of personal gain or wish to discredit sentiment in

(Continued on Page 3)

Volume 72, Number 123 Sunday, March 22, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

On Topic A, Sub-Section 1

Two Species Of Campus Campaign Creatures

The campus campaign season is upon us, and as it rolls into the high-geared rounds of speeches, debates and handshaking, it is worthwhile to note the two major campus elements which the political races usually bring to the fore.

The most important group, of course, are the candidates. Generally dedicated, qualified, and full of purpose, they are the life-blood of student government and autonomy. In the coming days and weeks, all of us will have an opportunity to meet them, find out what they stand for and why, and eventually help decide their fate the polls. This is not only our opportunity, but our responsibility as well.

By far less important, but just as certain to appear at campaign time, are those individuals whose irresponsibility is capable of overshadowing a great deal of the dedication and hard work done by the candidates and their organizations. These are the juvenile delinquents who make a practice of destroying campaign posters and similar materials put up by the candidates. In many cases, these actions are not motivated by political purpose, but are rather the outgrowth of minds in which consideration for others and tolerance do not reside.

We might remind those dedicated to destroying campaign materials that such actions are violations of the Honor Code, and therefore subject to action from the student judiciary. We would hope, however, that this menace to fair play will be eliminated not by the threat of punishment if caught, but by the application of the ideals of fair play and common sense that form the basis for our system of self-regulated student life.

How Would You Feel?

Assume you owed $80 to the government for one reason or another, and that you paid it with a check which later bounced. Assume you learn of this, immediately check with the bank and as soon as possible bring $80 in cash and your apologies to the government official to whom you originally gave check.

Assume in the meantime that a worthless check charge has been filed against you. You show up in court and prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that you did not know the check would bounce when you wrote it, that you therefore acted in good faith. Your attorneys point out that you have no criminal record and produce several letters testifying to your good character.

How would you feel when the Judge turns to you and announces that he is sentencing you to four months on the roads, a sentence that will go into effect anytime within the next five years "at the discretion of the court"?

That is how former UNC student Benjamin Spaulding felt Friday in Orange County Superior Court, when he was caught in this exact situation.

Ray Rebuts His 'Educated' Opponents

Greensboro Daily News

By a common consent that seems to suit him just fine, Mr. Raymond Stansbury, a son of historic Hillsborough variously described as grocer or plumber, is a "minor" candidate for Governor of North Carolina. He and "Bozo" Burleson, the judo expert from the hills, fill the well-worn anchor man's shoes vacated by Olla Ray Boyd, the perennial pig-farmer candiate.

If Mr. Stansbury, plucking his banjo in denim overalls, seeks to cultivate any political "image," it is frankly that of the shrewd bumpkin — l'homme de peuple.

But even "minor" candidates occasionally enliven and elevate a campaign; and Mr. Stansbury does just that in his forthright damnation of the campus gag law passed by the Legislature in June. "These people in Raleigh think they can fool the people of North Carolina," says Mr. Stansbury. "They point at the teacher and try to blame the teacher. . . . It's a sad day."

Mr. Stansbury is to be congratulated for a very unbumpkin-like statement. Even if it spoils his image, it is on its face a good bit more sensible than what his major rivals have said about the gag law. By speaking his mind Mr. Stansbury has spared himself the contortionist self-contradictions in which other candidates have ensnarled themselves. "It's a sad day," as Mr. Stansbury says — immeasurably sad when three splneddily educated men who have derived much from free academic exchange—and one of them a former college professor—grovel before a silly law. And the irony is, of course, that they do so largely because they suppose the banjo-picking crowd think it's a great piece of legislation. Maybe Mr. Stansbury will give them second thoughts.

Taking A Stand For Chin Alfalfa

The New York Herald-Tribune

We feel certain that the late Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes would have viewed sympathetically the case of Paul S. Finot, suspended from teaching his classes in Pasadena because he refuses to shave his beard. For Mr. Finot is trimly Van Dyked in the general style of Mr. Hughes and needs a friend at court.

Really, Mr. Finot is a victim of bad timing. Two centuries ago, beards were a sign of barbarism; one century ago the lack of whiskers was considered unmanly. Twenty-five years ago, we doubt whether any one would seriouly have considered raising a crop of chin alfalfa for, so to speak, general consumption.

Twenty-five years from now, perhaps, no one would dream of objecting to it—facial hair is sprouting all over the place. Meanwhile, Mr. Finot needs some legal precedents. About the only one one that occurs to us is the Hughes beard —and we don't know how that can be cited.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists:
Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol

Amen

Statement of the week, by Rev. Malcolm Boyd, Protestant Episcopal chaplain at Wayne State University in Detroit:

"Generally, when students believe they have rejected Christianity, it is apparent they have rejected a perversion of Christianity that has been their mistaken understanding of the authentic faith.

"The church needs badly to get out on the road and engage in honest dialogue with the nation's students in order to discover (a) the nature of their images of Christianity and (b) in what forms the Christian Gospel can be stated, verbally, and nonberbally, to them intelligibly and with integrity."

Cheraw Chronicle

Our friend and colleague, Gary Blanchard, editor of The Daily Tar Heel, was cited for contempt of court By Judge Mallard at Hillsboro Tuesday.

Poor Gary was caught in the middle. Appearing as a defense witness he was asked by Solicitor Thomas Cooper about an editorial that had appeared earlier in the campus newspaper criticizing Judge Mallard's rules for keeping order in the court room.

Had Blanchard refused to answer the question he could have been ordered to do so by the Judge and cited for contempt if he didn't obey. But when he did answer, politely stating, "I feel that some of the restrictions imposed to insure the administration of orderly justice—in which all of us agree—to be nonsensical," he was cited for "direct contempt" anyhow. Was Gary the victim of judicial entrapment? He should have pled the Fifth.

Better In S. C.

We read with approval Blanchard's original editorial. It was humorous in tone— tongue-in-cheek style. One would have to be inflated to a high degree with one's sense of self-importance to take exception to it and to go to all this trouble to exact vengeance.

South Carolina judges, who need take no back seat to their fellow judges in North Carolina in dignity and decorum, manage to run a taut, dignified court without all the falderal that accompanied Judge Mallard to the bench.

Personal Pomposity

The Orange County judge said Blanchard tended to "discredit this court." We would suggest that he did no such thing, that Judge Mallard himself is the one to hold his court up to ridicule by behaving in such an absurd manner.

King Louis XIV of France used to say "L'Etat, Je suis." Some judges equate their own identities with the Court in a similar manner. A wise judge understands the value of judicial restraint. He does not eagerly act in a tyrannical and intimidating manner, realizing that his strength and authority lie in public acceptance of his wisdom and in respect for the law.

Friend Of Judiciary

It is difficult to show respect when a judge does not merit it. No newspaper has more consistently defended the judiciary against strident and radical attacks against its authority and integrity over the past dozen difficult years than The Chronicle. Critics of the court system since 1954 have looked in vain to us for support.

Of course a judge must have the authority to carry out his orders. Of course he cannot tolerate disorder and disrespect in the court room. If a spectator or witness is loud, rude, argumentative or disruptive of court procedure, he should be cited for contempt. If a photographer ignores court orders not to take pictures, certainly he is guilty of contempt. If an individual or a group of people flout court orders to do or not to do something, then they are guilty, and deservedly so. But how far beyond the court room should his contempt powers extend?

Not Beyond Reproach

A judge is not above criticism. He is not above the law. He is responsible, at least in the court of public opinion, for good judgment. He is expected to set a good example. No one is in a better position to place the court in contempt or project a favorable image than the judge himself. Some young, green horn judges are so insecure they behave in an extremely stern manner to cover up their insecurity. Others have been on the bench so long they become almost rooted to it and begin to consider themselves omnipotent. Most, thank heavens, are intelligent, wise men of justice and mercy.

There are, unfortunately, few curbs on the judicial power of contempt. Judge Mallard has demonstrated that more restraints are needed. He has come close to violating the constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press and of free speech.

Impeachment Clubs

After all, even the Supreme Court does not hold itself immune to newspaper criticism. Maybe Orange County ought to form "Impeach Raymond Mallard" clubs. We suspect there would be no shortage of members around Chapel Hill.

If the federal judge hearing a defense plea to get the civil rights cases moved from Mallard's jurisdiction to his own had any doubts of the wisdom of that suggestion, Tuesday's developments ought to have resolved them.

In a North Carolina county recently a jury, outraged at the verbal lashing it received from a judge, asked the Grand Jury or the County Commissioners to take whatever legal steps were necessary to prevent the judge from ever holding court in that county again. That's the sort of reaction to judicial tyranny that one can expect from free, proud people.

Durham Herald

Judge Raymond Mallard has ended what could have been a disturbing controversy by clearing a University of North Carolina student editor of contempt of court at Hillsboro.

The student, Gary Blanchard, had been led into testimony disrespectful of courtroom procedures under cross-examination. In fact, the district solicitor had trouble getting the offending testimony on the record. His first question on Blanchard's opinion of the court was ruled inadmissible by Judge Mallard. In its final acceptable form, it drew only a reluctant admission from Blanchard that he considered some measures used to maintain courtroom order "nonsensical."

Perhaps this testimony, wrung from Blanchard to discredit him as a defense witness in a racial protest trespass case, violated North Carolina's contempt statute. Judge Mallard implied it did, and we don't presume to argue the law with Judge Mallard. But he found other factors overriding. And any other conclusion would have been disturbing, indeed.

As Judge Mallard pointed out (and this may be the cruelest blow of the whole case to a student editor), there was a presumption of "immaturity" in Blanchard's behavior. More to the point, there was a worrisome suggestion of entrapment in the whole affair. Though Blanchard's role as a witness in the trespass case was unusual, it was hardly unique. It would be ominous to believe that he or any other individual with known derogatory views on a court or judge should hesitate to appear as a defense witness lest he be forced to recant his known opinions under oath or risk conviction for contempt.

The district solicitor suggested no such aims in pursuing his questioning of Blanchard. In our view, Judge Mallard served the cause of justice and fair play by not using the student editor's role as a witness to penalize him for opinions he has a right to hold and express elsewhere.

Raleigh Times

The editor of The Daily Tar Heel, testifying as a defense witness in one of the civil rights cases in Orange County Superior Court, was in effect put on trial himself by one of the questions asked him by the solicitor. As a result, he was threatened by Judge Raymond Mallard with a citation for contempt.

Fortunately, Judge Mallard didn't go through with issuing the citation. But that lack of action by the judge yesterday doesn't alter the basic fact: That the young editor already had been, in effect, on trial.

Gary Blanchard, the editor, had written an editorial some days ago in which he criticized some of the rules set up by Judge Mallard for conduct in the courtroom during the Chapel Hill civil rights trials. Blanchard was a defense witness in one of the trials, and testified in that capacity. During cross-examination, Solicitor Thomas D. Cooper, questioned Blanchard. The solicitor asked Blanchard if he believed that some of the actions of the court constituted nonsense. The youthful editor replied: "I did feel some of the restrictions imposed to insure the administration of orderly justice . . . to be nonsensical."

It was then that Judge Mallard told Blanchard: "You will come back to this court to be dealt with in a proper manner . . . for direct contempt expressed under oath, in court, and which tends to discredit this court."

It is entirely proper now to raise the question as to whether this young man should be held in contempt for answering a question put directly to him by an officer of the court. If he had refused to answer it, would that refusal have been contempt? Should he have had opportunity to find a lawyer before he answered a question with an answer which promptly brought him a threat of contempt of court?

The judge of a Superior Court is very properly given great power in the way he operates that court. It is necessary that he have that power, for he must protect the rights of the defendant, the rights of all the people of North Carolina. He also must protect the rights of every witness in that courtroom. This young man, according to news stories, simply answered the question an official of this court asked him. In that answer, he repeated an opinion he had expressed earlier in an editorial in The Daily Tar Heel.

The difference is that when he answered the question, he was, in the opinion of the judge, expressing direct contempt for the court in the presence of the court. In the editorial, he was exercising his right to freedom of the press, a right which imposes on him the duty of commenting on matters affecting the public. There is no question about the right and the duty of the newspaper to make such comments. Only recently, the Supreme Court of the United States affirmed that right with a decision in a case involving New York Times ads concerning some Alabama officials.

There must not be any question, either, about the right of a judge to set up the rules under which his court will operate. He is responsible for what goes on in that court, and he must have the right to regulate the behavior of those in the courtroom. If Editor Blanchard had acted physically in such a way as a witness as to express contempt for the court, there would be no point in questioning this action of the judge.

News stories do not indicate that there was any such physical behavior on the part of Witness Blanchard. His only contempt, if it is contempt, came in answer to a question asked him by an officer of the court.

And, it is entirely proper to question that action of the court.

Winston-Salem Journal

Judge Raymond Mallard was wise not to press a citation for direct contempt of court against a student editor from the University of North Carolina.

The student, Gary Blanchard, an editor of the Daily Tar Heel, appeared in Superior Court at Hillsboro as a defense witness in a trespass case against a professor from the university.

In this role he was led by the solicitor into saying that some of the rules laid down by the judge for maintaining decorum were "arbitrary" and "nonsensical." Similar sentiments had already appeared in the Daily Tar Heel, but it was Mr. Blanchard's statements in court which Judge Mallard held to be in contempt.

Mr. Blanchard had no lawyer at the time, and Judge Mallard did not advise him of his right to avoid answering the solicitor's questions.

It therefore seems certain that he was not deliberately contemptuous of the court and had no desire to disturb the decorum which Judge Mallard is determined to maintain. Thus the juge's willingness to drop the contempt citation does more to uphold the good repute of the court than would the pressing of the case.

Greensboro Daily News

Perhaps Judge Raymond Mallard remembered the old saying: "There is no better test of a man's ultimate chivalry and integrity than how he behaves when he is wrong."

For the Superior Court judge, sitting on civil rights cases in Hillsboro, had seriously considered indicting Gary Blanchard, young editor of the Daily Tar Heel at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, for direct contempt of court. In an editorial Blanchard had criticized some of the iron-clad rules in Judge Mallard's court as "nonsense;" then, when Blanchard appeared in court as a witness for a civil rights defendant, the prosecutor, on cross - examination, had forced him either to support or repudiate what he had written. Blanchard stuck by his guns; whereupon he was held for possible contempt.

The young editor's lawyer noted that Blanchard, once questioned about his editorial, had no choice other than to (1) refuse to answer, thereby placing himself in contempt; (2) lie, thereby making himself guilty of perjury and contempt; or (3) admit to his actual opinion, which he did, and be charged with contempt.

The issue was whether Editor Blanchard's opinion was reasonable and not based on malice. Judge Mallard's rules barred reading, talking, eating or moving about the courtroom while court was in session. Blanchard thought the restriction on reading, in particular, was "nonsense" because it placed a hardship on students who had to appear in court every day.

Judge Mallard deserves commendation for recognizing that Editor Blanchard had a right to his opinion and that a reasonable difference might develop as to whether a ban on courtroom reading is, after all, justified. And since Blanchard was forced either to support his opinion or repudiate it in the presence of the judge, a contempt judgment under such circumstances would have been highly questionable.

A judge has plenty of authority in his courtroom. But his decisions and rules, like those of any public official, are not immune from reasonable public criticism.

"And So, The Curtain Falls — I Said, 'And So, The Curtain Falls!' — "

Are Cars Accident Prone?

SIDNEY J. HARRIS

Driving back from the airport to town, and witnessing a rather nasty crackup, it occurred to me that our statistics on auto accidents are recorded in breadth, but not in depth.

It would be interesting (and, I think, illuminating) to know what makes and models of cars are involved in most accidents in certain categories—to see if there is any significant correlation between the type and brand of car a motorist buys and the incidence of damage it is responsible for.

For example, I have a strong impression that a certain make of car in the middle price bracket appeals to a specifically aggressive kind of character—at least, this seems to be its advertising appeal. Another make in the same bracket, on the other hand, is identified in my mind with a more prudent and responsible kind of motorist.

Are convertibles involved in a high rate of accidents, out of proportion to their numbers in the automobile population? I would tentatively suggest that they are — and this is not an animus on my part, since I own a convertible.

Contrariwise, it would be my guess that station wagons are involved in fewer crackups than either convertibles or straight sedans—since many if not most of them are family cars, and are driven by women who, whatever other driving flaws they have are modest and nonaggressive at the wheel.

The people who buy Volkswagens strike me as having what traffic officers call "the right attitude" on the road. This may be partly because of the smallness and vulnerability of their vehicle, but I think it is more than that. They seem like sensible people, with decent values, and I would wager a sizable amount that the accident rate is quite low among them.

Of course, the driver who "initiates" an accident is not the same as the one who "provokes" it. My special bete noire on the road is the "square" driver—usually a man between middle and old age, with defective vision, a rigid position at the wheel, a strong sense of his rights, and an unwillingness to let anyone pass him comfortably. This sort of driver is attracted to a particular kind of car, and I can spot him a half-mile off.

Most accidents, we now know, are caused more by psychological than by physical conditions. They have little to do with weather, road or traffic. But are some makes and models more "accident-prone" than others?

Race Agency To Be Proposed

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

The Human Relations Committee will meet with the Board of Aldermen in closed session tonight to propose establishment here of an 18-member permanent agency responsible for dealing with local racial problems.

The new agency, which would concern itself with improving the Negroes' situation in housing, employment and other respects, is part of the Adams Plan proposed last month by UNC Professor E. Maynard Adams.

At a meeting Wednesday night, the Human Relations group, sitting without a quorum, heard Warren Wicker, a member of the nine-man Adams Plan Committee, detail how the new agency would be chosen and what its legal structure involves.

Mr. Wicker said the 18 members of the agency would be selected from seven separate sources.

The four chief boards in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro area, the Board of Aldermen, the Carrboro Commissioners, the Orange County Commissioners and the Chapel Hill School Board, each would name one of their members to the new agency and would appoint two persons from the community—for a total of 12.

The Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants Association and the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Ministerial Association would appoint two members each, and the University Chancellor would also send two appointees from the faculty to the agency.

The 18 members would incorporate themselves as a non-profit organization with the power to employ personnel as they saw fit. Initially, the agency would make financing proposals to foundations on a three-year plan.

Mr. Wicker reported that the committee's drafting of a legal structure and drawing up of the finance proposals have been slowed by a lack of understanding of the group.

"We would like a more specific statement from the Board of Aldermen on these points," Mr. Wicker said. "Our contacts to get money from a foundation would be based on a three-year program to salary a small staff. Then, we would hope this staff could develop some long-range programs which would require more money, possibly from State or federal sources.

"We hope to get a listing of specific purposes from this meeting with the Aldermen Sunday night—so that we can decide on concrete programs," Mr. Wicker said.

Mrs. George Taylor, chairman of the Human Relations Committee, said her committee hopes to get certain approval from the Board of Aldermen tonight so that the Board can make the new agency official at its meeting Tuesday night.

The 18-man membership of the agency makes its official status also subject to the approval of the Carrboro Commissioners, the County Commissioners and the School Board. Mrs. Taylor hopes to contact these Boards about the proposal by Tuesday.

"By the middle of April," Mrs. Taylor said, "the appointive positions on the agency should be filled, and the new group can start making suggestions as to the type of foundation to go to for financing."

If and when the new agency is established, according to Mr. Wicker, there are three possibilities of who will have direct responsibility in dealing with racial problems.

(1) Both groups, (the Human Relations Committee and the new agency) will be combined. These are not paid offices, Mr. Wicker noted, so there is no constitutional problem.

(2) The Human Relations Committee will be dissolved by amending the ordinance which created the Committee, and letting the Mayor appoint the new agency to serve alone.

(3) The present Committee and the new agency will remain apart, with members appointed to both from the community, and will have much the same functions and responsibilities.

"These matters are more appropriately handled by a committee only responsible to a certain agency, than by one responsible to the whole Chapel Hill-Carrboro area," Mr. Wicker said.

Mrs. Taylor praised the preliminary work of the Adams committee and said its work was the basis of important improvements sure to be made in the racial situation here.

"It should be known that this is not a complete solution to the current problems," Mrs. Taylor said. "But it is something that is going to bear fruit 10 years from now in Chapel Hill and Carrboro."

Mrs. Taylor said earlier that the high school equivalency program, recently established here to be run by the Durham Industrial Training Center, has finally found a home.

The Human Relations Committee was asked by the State Community College Department not to use Chapel Hill school buildings for the program because too little exposure time was offered, so the University has offered rooms in Woollen Gymnasium, Mrs. Taylor said.

'We Got Robins' At Coffee House

"Except We Got Robins," an absurd comedy by UNC graduate student Dalton Smith, will open tonight at 9:30 at the Triangle Coffee House, 1205 Duke University Rd. Mr. Smith's original play will be repeated Wednesday evening and again on Sunday, March 29, according to the regular Sunday-Wednesday-Sunday schedule adopted at the Coffee House for its one-act productions.

Dick King, a former Carolina Playmaker, will direct the short play. He previously directed "A Question of Mother," an original play by Wilton Beauchamp, also of Chapel Hill, for the Triangle Coffee House Players, and he recently appeared in another play there, "Beast" by Alan Goldsmith of Chapel Hill.

The author of the play described his work thus: "A comedy that is absurd in fantastic elements and which deals with adults treating an adult situation in an adolescent manner."

The six-member cast includes the following actors from the Chapel Hill-Durham community: Jim Zellner of Durham, who recently played the male lead in the Durham Theatre Guild's "The Night of the Iguana"; James Pipkin of Durham, who appeared in the Coffee House's recent production, "A Question of Mother"; Ben Jones of Chapel Hill, who appeared in two recent Carolina Playmakers' productions, "Little Mary Sunshine" and "Busy Martyr"; Dan Clayton of Chapel Hill, a UNC student who also appeared in "Busy Martyr"; Lise Knox of Chapel Hill, a former Carolina Playmaker, who also was seen in "Beast"; and Melody Dickinson of Durham, who performed in "The Night of the Iguana."

This month's art show at the Triangle Coffee House is a selection of oil and pastel paintings by Mrs. Zada Miller of Durham. The art exhibits change each month. A show by Kadie Yelverton of Chapel Hill will replace the current one the first week in April.

Tri Delts Hold Spaghetti Dinner

The Tri Delts will hold their annual spaghetti supper tomorrow at their house, 210 Pittsboro Street. For a $1 ticket the sorority offers spaghetti, tossed salad, French bread, ice tea and dessert in their house. Dinners will be served at 5:30 and at 6:30.

The profits will go to a scholarship fund. These scholarships are awarded each spring to any woman on the Carolina campus irrespective of fraternity affiliation.

– Polio –

(Continued from Page 1)

Only a 50-cent donation to defray the cost of the vaccine is being asked, but everyone is urged to come in for the vaccine whether or not they have the price of the donation.

Public Health nurses from the County and nurses from Memorial Hospital will assist physicians at the feeding stations, along with crews of volunteers provided by the Chapel Hill Junior Service League, the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Jaycees and the Hillsboro Jaycees.

A total of eight stations in Orange County will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. They include:

In Chapel Hill—Glenwood, Dr. Fred Vinson, Dr. George Ham, and Dr. Earl Somers; Estes Hills, Dr. Hall Fallon; and West Franklin Street, Dr. Campbell McMillan.

In Carrboro—Carrboro School, Dr. William B. Wood.

In Hillsboro—Cameron Park, Dr. J. C. Pickens; and Central High, Dr. William Clarke.

In Cedar Grove—Cedar Grove School, Dr. Robert Huntley.

In Efland—Efland Elementary School, Dr. W. G. Wisor.

The second and final feeding will be administered in May.

The vaccine program is being sponsored by the Durham-Orange County Medical Foundation and is part of a Statewide effort to put a final end to polio.

The Medical Foundation, a private organization, will spend between $30,000 and $70,000 on the campaign.

– Trials –

(Continued from Page 1)

Holding that this interpretation is valid as both state and federal laws now stand, the jurist turned to the other charges. He said the demonstrators had conceded they had no just cause to divest the state court of jurisdiction in the 542 cases not involving trespass laws.

The only contention, he continued, was that the other cases were closely related to the trespass cases and should be tried together.

Additionally, he said, the petitioners (the demonstrators) did not claim, even in the trespass cases, there is a state constitutional provision or legislation that requires segregation in either public or private places.

Concluding, Judge Stanley said, "in summary, since no discriminatory state statutes or constitutional provisions are claimed, it is abundantly clear that the petitioners must look to the state courts for the protection of any rights they may have under the Constitution and laws of the United States. If any such rights are withheld or denied, they may take their case to the North Carolina Supreme Court and then to the Supreme Court of the United States and final and conclusive determination."

The jurist also noted that none of the cases, which currently involve only warrants, had been considered by the Orange County Grand Jury, that the petition was not vertified by the petitioners, and that the nature of charges against each individual was not specified.

During the hearing earlier last week it was determined the cases were divided as follows:

192 trespass, 353 resisting arrest, 12 disorderly conduct, 35 obstructing sidewalk, 40 obstructing traffic, 96 obstructing public highway, four assault on female, one forcible trespass, and one assault and battery.

– Darity –

(Continued from Page 1)

munity development work since the early 1950's, when he worked as a public health educator in Charlotte, and Danville and Norfolk, Va.

In 1953 he became a Health Education Consultant for the World Health organization (WHO). For three years he served in the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Arab Refugees in the Gaza area of Palestine and in Lebanon, Syria, and Jordan, organizing health education. WHO made him professor of Health Education in 1956 at the School of Public Health, American University of Beirut, Lebanon. In August of 1958, he became WHO Regional Advisor on Health Education to seventeen countries in the Middle East, Africa, and Asia working with the governments of the regions in the development of health-education services in their ministries.

During 1963, Darity accepted a short-time World Health Organization appointment that took him to Geneva, Switzerland. During the same year he also served at the University of Minnesota as a consultant for the Peace Corps Volunteers to Pakistan.

Born in Flat Rock, Darity graduated from Ninth Ave. High School in Hendersonville, and went on to earn a B.S. at Shaw University in Raleigh, an M.S. in Public Health at North Carolina College in Durham, and his PH.D. degree at UNC.

-New Wine-

(Continued From Page 1)

the United States, will attack our burial customs." This is a curiously unwarranted conclusion, judging from a careful reading of Mitford's book.

"The Carolina Way of Death" by UNC's own imperishable son, Wayne King, is a reporter's neutral interview with a "typical" Raleigh funeral director who, predictably, tries to refute Mitford's charges obliquely by rationalizing his reasons for catering to the wishes of the living. However, in this case, honesty somewhat overcomes the grave fault of being mercenary about the moribund.

Certainly one of the best articles is John B. Graham's thoughtful "Acceptance of Death but eloquent article.

—Beginning of Life." He develops three ideas: people hunger to discuss ultimate questions; most people feel constrained not to discuss ultimate questions because this is not modern or scientific and anyone willing to discuss ultimate questions can find an audience. He suggests that people are afraid to look Death squarely in the face and our clumsy euphemisms . . . . (he expired and he passed away) are manifestations of our fear.

"A Way of Dying" by that ever-prolific author, Anonymous, is a poetic and reflective description of the effect of the death of a man on a woman who loved him deeply.

UNC graduate student Tom Crais' "Albert Camus on Death" is an adroit rendering of Camus' philosophy of death and a brief

Presbyterian minister Vance Barron gives a clear, literate and moving explanation of New Testament theology in relation to the Christian view of death in his article, "Immortality or Resurrection?" Barron says the pretense of man that he has some intrinsic being within himself which can survive death is an illusion. "The resurrection faith would be superfluous if man were already immortal. The very word "resurrection" presupposes a real death, an end," which Barron suggests will then leave the door open to a resurrection faith in Christ.

Other noteworthy articles include "Death in Art" by UNC's John M. Schnorrenberg, "A Quaker View" by Mrs. Eleanor Carroll; several reviews of books on death such as Clayton Stalnaker on Jules Romains' "The Death of a Nobody," and Charles Thompson on Carson McCullers' "Clock Without Hands."

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

SPU — 1 p.m., Lenoir, discussion on what it means to be a 3rd-camp peace movement.

Anyone interested in signing up for the UNC Amateur Radio classes in Morse Code and Radio Theory to be held each evening, 6:30-7 p.m., may do so in Caldwell Y.

Graduate Newman Club — 8:30 p.m., Catholic Student Center.

Newman Club — 6 p.m., St. Thomas More Hall, supper and discussion.

CPU—9 p.m., Grail Room, election of officers and address by Dr. Raymond Dawson on Viet Nam.

Hillel Supper Program — 5:30 p.m., Hillel House, Rabbi Simcha Kling, "Israeli Youth Today," reservations for supper may be made by calling Hillel offices.

Canterbury—6 p.m., Chapel of the Cross.

SP—7 p.m., 08 Peabody, to ratify platform, all candidates required to attend.

UP Executive Comm. — 7:30 p.m., 206 Davie Hall.

The Migrants—8 p.m., GM.

UP Legislators — 8:30 p.m., Davie Hall.

Westminster Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, worship; 6 p.m., supper; 6:45 p.m., "The Christian View of Death."

SP Legislature Candidates — after regular meeting, 08 Peabody, required informational meeting.

Presbyterian Service — 11 a.m, Presbyterian Church, special musical program.

Presbyterian Church will participate in a special program in conjunction with the downtown churches at 7:30 p.m. at The University Methodist Church.

GMAB President Applications — applications for GMAB president are now available at GM information desk.

The DTH wil cease publication for the holidays with its March 25 issue and resume publication with its April 1 issue.

MOVIES

Carolina — The Cardinal
Varsity — The Young Lions
Cinema — Nights of Caberia

MONDAY

YMCA Interviews for Cabinet Positions — 3-5 p.m., president's office in Y-Court.

Middle South United Nations Model General Assembly — 3-5 p.m. YMCA-CCUN office Mon.-Tues., interviews for executive and secretarial positions.

Presbyterian Church—7:30 p.m., today-Thurs., services in the Sanctuary; Communion will be held in the Fellowship Hall.

Order of the Grail — 9 a.m.-3 p.m., Y-Court, sale of graduation invitations for seniors.

Newman Club — 6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir, informal dinner.

UNC Sailing Club — 7 p.m., 106 Carroll, organizational meeting, all interested persons are welcome.

TUESDAY

Elections Board — 3 p.m., Woodhouse, spring elections.

Slimnastics Club — 3:45 p.m., Dance Studio.

Tennis Club — 4 p.m., Women's Gym, organizational meeting.

Orientation Comm. — 5-6 p.m., RP III.

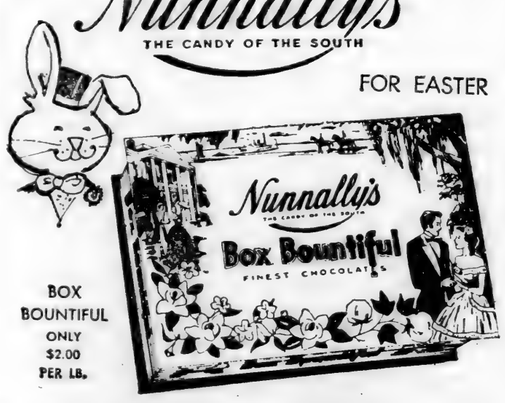
Freshman Finance Comm. — 7 p.m., RP III, organization of Frosh Sock Queen Competition.

IT'S Nunnally's THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR EASTER



BOX BOUNTIFUL ONLY $2.00 PER LB.

How to join in the fun of Shakespeare's Year in Britain for less than $45 a week

Having fun in Britain on $45 a week

| | |
|---|---|
| 3 nights in London, with breakfast | $ 8.25 |
| 4 nights in student hotels outside London, with breakfast | 8.00 |
| Lunch and dinner for 7 days | 14.00 |
| 200 miles travel by train or bus | 6.00 |
| Visit to Royal Shakespeare Theatre | .56 |
| Three visits to London theatres | 6.00 |
| Incidentals | 2.00 |
| Total | $44.81 |

See the box above for encouraging facts about Britain's low prices. For more facts, clip coupon below. Your free 10-piece Travel Kit tells you about Shakespeare's Year celebrations, gives hints on traveling around Britain on a shoestring and includes a list of comfortable but inexpensive accommodations.

April 23, 1964, is Shakespeare's 400th birthday, and Britain is celebrating with nine months of festivals and fun. Read facts below. Note Britain's low prices. Then clip coupon for free 10-piece Student's Travel Kit.

NEXT YEAR, Britain will be the liveliest spot in Europe. Here are just a few of the events you can enjoy:

Shakespeare Season of Plays. Opening night at Stratford-upon-Avon is April 23. Season lasts 7 months, includes a trilogy of histories. Seats from 56 cents.

Edinburgh International Festival. From August 16 through September 5, the Scots put on a feast of Shakespeare, music, ballet, avant garde movies—even a floodlit military tattoo. Prices start at 14 cents.

Goings-on in London. You can see Sir Laurence Olivier play Othello with the new National Theatre Company. Watch Shakespeare indoors on an Elizabethan stage at the riverside Mermaid Theatre. Or out of doors in Regent's Park (all through summer).

CLIP COUPON FOR FREE TRAVEL KIT

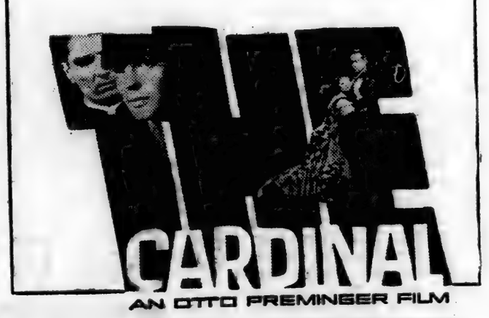
Mail coupon to British Travel Association at one of these addresses:
NEW YORK: 680 Fifth Avenue
LOS ANGELES: 612 So. Flower St.
CHICAGO: 39 So. LaSalle St.
CANADA: 151 Bloor St. West, Toronto

Please send my free 10-piece Student's Travel Kit:
Name _____ Please print clearly
College _____
Address _____
City _____ Zone _____
State _____

THE STORY OF A YOUNG AMERICAN AND HIS RISE TO PRINCE OF THE CHURCH. FILMED IN ITS ACTUAL LOCALES: NEW ENGLAND, THE SOUTH, VIENNA AND ROME.



THE CARDINAL STARRING TOM TRYON, ROMY SCHNEIDER, CAROL LYNLEY, JILL HAWORTH, RAF VALLONE, JOHN SAXON, JOSEF MEINRAD, BURGESS MEREDITH, OSSIE DAVIS, DOROTHY GISH, TULLIO CARMINATI, MAGGIE McNAMARA, BILL HAYES, CECIL KELLAWAY AND JOHN HUSTON AS GLENNON Also: Bobby (Morse) and his Adore-Belles

SCREENPLAY BY ROBERT DOZIER. BASED ON THE INTERNATIONAL BEST SELLER BY HENRY MORTON ROBINSON. MUSIC BY JEROME MOROSS. PRODUCTION DESIGNED BY LYLE WHEELER. PHOTOGRAPHED BY LEON SHAMROY IN TECHNICOLOR® AND PANAVISION®. PRODUCED & DIRECTED BY OTTO PREMINGER. A Columbia Release.

SEE "THE CARDINAL" FROM THE BEGINNING - STARTING TIMES

Carolina SUN. - MON. - TUES.

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

IN THE OLD BOOK FEATURE CASE

This week we have a rather lively lot of titles on English Literature. It is actually composed of two small libraries bought in from graduate students. Included are titles on criticism, poetry and prose.

A good, substantial lot, most of it priced at $1.00 or less per book.

The Intimate Bookshop
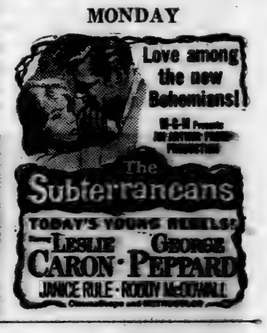
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Open every day until 10 p.m.

Varsity
SUNDAY
"THE YOUNG LIONS"
Marlon Brando, May Britt

MONDAY



See your Placement Officer for the date Equitable's employment representative will be on campus. Or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 ©1964

CLASSIFIED ADS

For Sale

A AND O MONOCULAR MICROscope, wide angle lens, 3 objectives. Medical and dental school approved. Sacrifice at $129. Call 967-3203, 128 Polk St.

Automotive

56 CHEVROLET CONVERTIBLE. Newly rebuilt motor, customized, push button windows and seats. $650. 942-7271, evenings.

POGO

Talbott Guides Tar Heels In Scoring Exercise, 48-25

What It Was Was Football??

By HUGH STEVENS

If you weren't there (and few were) ,you should have been.

Yesterday in dank, dismal Kenan Stadium a 1964 model Tar Heel steamroller, property of one James Benton Hickey, completely flattened a razzle-dazzle Alumni Blubber Brigade.

The final score was 48-25, but that was not important. What was important was the fact that Dashing Danny Talbott (who accounted for 30 points by himself) proved he is as good as they say, Hickey found a couple of more-than-passable new tackles, and the varsity showed they can be as exciting to watch as Blaze Starr.

Jeff Beaver, a freshman phenomenon like Talbott, was brilliant in spots. Chris Hanburger showed why he should be All-America next year. And the entire varsity forward wall growled like tigers in the face of some imposing opposition.

It was a wild game. At one point Junior Edge tossed the ball to Ray Farris, who calmly threw it back to him. On another occasion, Rich Zarro was almost knocked off his feet by a Phil Blazer kickoff, but he recovered his composure and returned it 15 yards. And finally there was a mysterious "Mr. X" who appeared in the game, but not in the program, for the Alumni. By the time it was over, it seemed that the only thing left to happen was for the ball to burst.

The game, which seemed at times to be a side show for the Campus Chest Carnival, began quickly to take on something of a spectacular quality. Early in the first quarter, Talbott's unit moved to the five on the strength of his deadly passing & georgeous ballhandling. When they reached the five, fancy Dan strolled out of the huddle like a state trooper, took the ball from center, and calmly smashed into the end zone.

The crowd, which was even smaller than the Liberty Bowl's, came alive. They began to sense that the team they were watching had something special. They were right, it's called class.

The Alumni came back to make a valiant effort. Ray Farris, (who was rushed so hard he may not make it to class Monday), and Junior Edge (who probably wished he was back in Jacksonville) threw and threw. In all they threw 31 times. Their main trouble was that the Varsity players caught them like colds. They knew where they got some, but the rest they just picked up in crowds. In all, the Heels picked off six errant Alumni aerials, just two less than the Alumni receivers. themselves caught. One interception, the ball was bounced around between four Varsity defenders before Frank Bowman got it in his clutches. Ed Stringer, the Varsity center, must have thought he'd worn the wrong color jersey. He caught two alumni passes to tie for their leading receiver.

Joe McLamb abruptly ended Alumni concern when he gathered in a kickoff and panted 95 yards to paydirt. I was worried. I thought he'd have a heart attack.

Before the half was over, Talbott uncorked a touchdown throw to John Atherton, and Farris tossed two of his three touchdown passes. One came on a play straight out of Lincoln High School, going Edge-to-Farris-to-Robinson. It was only one of several times the old guys used the play during the day. Later I asked Farris where it came from. He said they made it up in the huddle. I believed him.

In the second half, Talbott and Beaver each threw another TD pass, Danny added all the conversions, and then he capped the day in the closing minutes with a 34-yard field goal. "Look out boys," someone mumbled in the press box, "here he comes."

Here he comes indeed. At one point, Don Stallings, a mammoth 260-pound former pro tackle who is an assistant coach at Rocky Mount High (which Talbott attended), chased Talbott around end screaming, "I got! I got you!" The fabulous freshman calmly turned the corner, threw a look at his ex-coach, and rambled off down the field yelling "No you don't!"

Alums' Ray Farris Fires 2 TD Passes

By JOHN MONTAGUE

That scoreboard couldn't be right. At the half it read 30-19. At the end of the game it read 48-25. Was this Everett Case slowing it down against Duke? No. It was Danny Talbott running it up on the Alumni.

After two years of frustration, the varsity gridders finally beat the UNC old grads yesterday in Kenan Stadium. To put it more exactly, they smothered them.

With rising sophomore Talbott leading the way, Jim Hickey's 1964 football machine scored almost at will Saturday, while the Alumni razzle-dazzled enough in defeat to keep the game interesting for the 2,500 fans who flocked back to Kenan for a chilly, cloudy "Fall Weekend In the Spring."

Talbott, playing about half the game, scored one touchdown, threw for two more, kicked two field goals, booted four point-afters, and ran for a two-pointer. This made the Rocky Mount product responsble for 30 of his team's 48 points. Gary Black, the prospective first-string quarterback next fall, sat in the stands yesterday and watched, and perhaps wondered about his job. Black missed spring football this year because of baseball.

In fact, three-fourths of the starting backfield was absent from yesterday's game (Ed Kesler, KenWillard and Black—all playing baseball), but it didn't realliy matter. The Tar Heels on the field clearly were not lacking in scoring punch.

Jim Hickey's crew could have tightened up the pass defense a bit (the trickery of Junior Edge and Ray Farris produced some lengthy completions), but all in all it was a pleasing end to what the UNC coach termed a "very successful spring practice."

The varsity ran up a 23-0 lead midway through the second period before the grads were able to cross the goal line. The first time they got their hands on the ball, the Tar Heels marched 63 yards for the score, with Talbott and running back Ron Tuthill picking up big chunks of yardage along the ground. Talbott climaxed the drive by rolling around left end from six yards out.

After Max Chapman crashed 25 yards around right end to the eight, Talbott booted one through the up-rights from 24 yards out to make it 10-0. The varsity followed this up with a 73-yard drive in seven plays, Tuthill ramming the final eight after Talbott had turned in a key 22-yard sweep.

Jeff Beaver, the other promising soph quarterback, got into the act moments later—throwing 28 yards to Tom Brooks to set up his own seven-yard scoring scamper.

Alumni lightning then struck twice. First, Joe McLamb, a member of the 1962 varsity, streaked 95 yards with the kickoff for the grads' first score. This was followed by a 31-yard scoring pass from Junior Edge to Lenny Beck, and with 1:39 left, it was now 23-13.

Believe it or not, two more TD's were scored before the half ended. Talbott hit John Atherton in the end zone from eight yards out with 31 seconds left to give the varsity seven more. Not to be outdone, Edge pitched out to Farris, who in turn threw long to John Hammett for a 37-yarl score with four seconds left.

The pace slowed down only a little in the second half. The alumni struck first, when Farris fired his second TD pass, this time to Joe Robinson from 15 yards out after once again taking a lateral fom Edge. This cut the varsity lead to 30-25. Talbott woke up the varsity once again, however, throwing 12 yards to Atherton. Beaver then did his part, hitting big Jim Harrington with a nine-yard scoring bullet.

The finishing touch was applied by Talbott. Who else? With one minute left he booted a 34-yard field goal, and it was time to go home.

STATISTICS

| Vars | | Alum |
|---|---|---|
| 16 | First Downs | 9 |
| 287 | Yds. Rushing | 29 |
| 127 | Yds. Passing | 217 |
| 13-24 | Passing | 8-31 |
| 6 | Interc. by | 0 |
| 4/29.5 | Punting | 4/32.0 |
| 1 | Fumbles | 0 |
| 78 | Yds. Penalized | 18 |

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Varsity ..... | 10 | 20 | 7 | 11—48 |
| Alumni ..... | 0 | 19 | 6 | 0—25 |

V—Talbott 5 run (Talbott kick)

V—FG Talbott 22

V—Tuthill 8 run (Talbott kick)

V—Beaver 7 run (kick failed)

A—McLamb 95 kickoff return (kick failed)

A—Beck 31 pass from Edge (Shupin kick )

V—Atherton 8 pass from Talbott (Talbott kick)

A—Hammett 37 pass from Farris (pass failed)

A—Robinson 15 pass from Farris (run failed)

V—Atherton 12 pass from Talbott (Talbott kick)

V—Harrington 9 pass from Beaver (Talbott run)

V—FG Talbott 34

Attendance: 2,862.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Varsity Knocks Down Ray Farris Pass

—Photo by Jim Wallace

A Grad Puts Grip On Beaver

Tackle Still Big Problem Says Hickey

By PETE GAMMONS

Anytime your team scores 48 points there are a few things to applaud. In his quiet way Coach Jim Hickey felt just this way after his varsity, playing without three members of the projected starting backfield, crushed the Alumni, 48-25.

Hickey singled out quarterbacks Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver for special praise. He was also high in his praise for halfbacks Ronnie Tuthill and Max Chapman, who between them picked up 116 yards. Bill Darnall, Bob Lacey's heir apparent, also drew raves from the veteran coach. Some newcomers were also complimented. Mentioned were frosh guard Joe Fratangelo and halfbacks Tom Lampman and Bud Phillips. "Fratangelo was expected to help," beamed Hickey, "but we didn't know he'd come along this well. He should be a big help."

The tackle situation, expected to be a major problem, was not cleared up. John Hill drew praise from Hickey, but otherwise he seemed concerned. "Maybe we're expecting too much right now but they just aren't as good as we'd like to see them."

He wasn't sure whether Bob Newman, Billy High, Joe Churchill, and the presently injured Bob Starczewski, though bigger than the graduating trio, could fill their shoes.

There are still six months before the opener against State, and you can be sure Hickey will make a good effort to alleviate this concern.

Tigers Edge Heel Runners

By DENNIS SANDERS

It was a rerun of last spring's show at Clemson, but this time there was a different hero.

In their outdoor track opener, the Tar Heels came close, but Clemson's mile relay team pounded across the finish line to edge the Heels, 74-71.

The only word to describe it is ironic. Last year, Carolina overcame a 72-68 deficit in the last event (the mile relay) to skim a 73-72 win. This time, it was the Tigers' turn.

The Tar Heels took the lead for the first time on Jerry Smith's first in the two-mile run at 71-69, and a first in the mile relay would hafe been enough for either team.

Shaw Huey, Adams and Wynn zipped it off in 3:23.4 for Coach H. C. Greenfield's Tigers and walked off a cold and wet Fetzer Field victorious.

Wynn, in addition to running the first leg for the 440-yard team, collected nine points on a first in the 100, a second in the 220 and a third in the broad jump. He also anchored the winning mile relay for Clemson.

Distance star Bob Bennett of UNC finished first in the mile (4:28.0) and third in the 880. He also ran anchor in the mile relay for the Tar Heels. His efforts totaled six points.

Carolina's Tommy Clark leaped 6-4 to place first in the high jump but favored Cater Leland took first in the broad jump with a distance of 22' 1½". Leland also placed second in the triple jump (hop-skip-jump) to pad Clemson's total with eight points.

Missing from the UNC squad were dash man Ronnie Jackson and distance stalwart Art Maillet. Jackson saved his speed for the Varsity-Alumni grid game and Maillet suffered from an infected arm.

Tar Heel Dale White, hampered by a severe cold, swept the 220 in 22 seconds flat and came in second in the 100 to pick up eight points for Coach Joe Hilton's thinclads.

Junior Milt Baugess garnered his six points on a first in the 120 high hurdles (15.6) and a third place in the 330 yard intermediate hurdles.

Clemson took five firsts in the initial six events and closed the meet with nine first-place finishes. The Tigers also scored seven seconds and eight thirds.

Carolina tracksters came back to take five of the next six, with Joe Street's 186 feet-plus javeline toss starting it off. For the afternoon, UNC netted eight firsts, eight seconds and seven thirds.

Jimmy Meade captured a No. 2 finish in the two mile run for the Heels, and big Bill Graham, ran second to Clemson hefty Nelson McLaughan in the shot. McLaughan heaved the shot 49' 4½".

The cloudy gloom of the "spring" afternoon matched the spirit of Hilton's Tar Heels when Wynn broke the tape in the final event to complete Clemson's successful rerun of a show which opened a year ago.

PHARMACY DEMONSTRATION

A demonstration of how pills are made, displays of educational and research programs in the drug field and tours of the new school facilities will highlight an open house today at the UNC School of Pharmacy.

More than 200 high school students, interested in pharmacy as a career are expected to attend.

Don't Tell Danny He Can't Do It

By PETE GAMMONS

Danny Talbott, showstopper.

That's an occupation he had for three years at Rocky Mount, and Saturday he started it up again. It was his first test on the varsity, and he passed it, only by gaining 81 yards on 10 carries, completing 8 of 13 passes, scoring one touchdown, passing for two, kicking two field goals and four extra points, and running for a two-point conversion, all in less than half the game. To bad.

Many people doubted whether he could carry his high school heroism to college. They said he couldn't play basketball. He led the freshman team. However, those who attended Saturday's fiasco don't have any doubts now. Even Jim Hickey freely praised Talbott. "Danny does a lot of things exceptionally well. He ran well. He passed well, especially picking out his receivers in the end zone. He kicked well. That 34-yard field goal was from an angle."

Talbott ran the team cooly, if not cockily. Daringly rolling out to either side, he drove the Alumni linemen crazy trying to decide whether he was going to run or throw the running pass. His running appeared lackadaisical, only to burst by as many as 4 defenders down the sideline. He reminded most spectators of Roger Staubach, which is not an insult.

Bradley Wins Third NIT Title

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bradley's bumptious Braves—beat New Mexico at their own defensive game in the first half Saturday and then poured it on in the final 20 minutes to win the National Invitation Basketball Tournament for a record-equalling third time, 86-54.

A crowd of 15,137 at Madison Square Garden and a national television audience watched Bradley blank New Mexico from the floor for almost 10 minutes in the first half. During that period, fom ther 10:15 mark until 19:40 when Dick Ellis finally broke the ice for the Lobos with a basket, the Braves from Peoria, Ill., spurted to a 33-22 lead.

New Mexico, which led the nation in defense during the regular season, limiting its opposition to 55 points per game, was hurt early when Ira The large Harge, the Lobos' leading rebounder, picked up two personal fouls in the first 90 seconds and was taken out of the game at the eight-minute mark when he drew his third infraction.

In the next six minutes, while the 6-8 Harge sat idly on the bench, Bradley went on a 12-2 tear to open a 27-17 lead. The Braves never looked back thereafter.

McLaughlin Starts On Mound Monday

Sophomore righthander Mike McLaughlin, who hurled six hitless innings during the Tar Heels' two-game exhibition season, will start on the mound timorrow when UNC opens up its 1964 baseball season against Connecticut.

Gametime for the Emerson Field contest is three o'clock. The Uconns will also be here for another game Tuesday afternoon.

"I'll probably use two pitchers in the opener," said Walt Rabb late yesterday. "McLaughin will start and I'll probably bring in Bill Haywood in the latter part of the game."

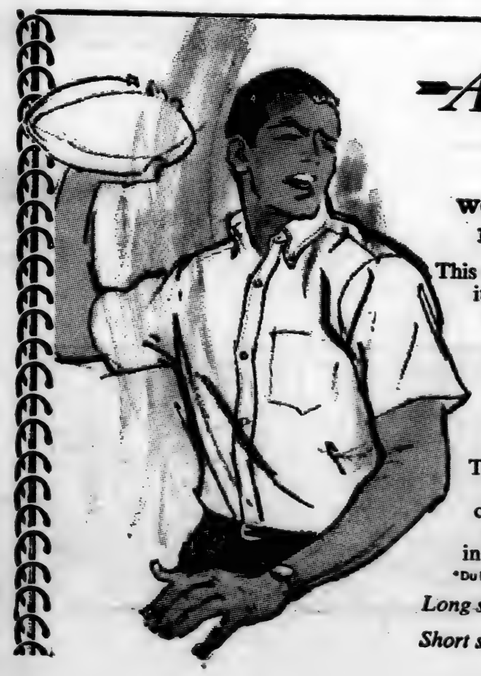
The Tar Heel coach said he would start either Bill Dannemann or Spence Willard on Tuesday, with Bobby Cox coming in in relief. All are righthanders.

The probable starting lineup looks like this, from top to bottom: Dickie Prindle, 2b; Tom Wright, 3b; Jim Speight, ss; Bill Brown, 1b; Ken Willard lf; Ken Boykin, rf; Gary Black, cf; Merle Kruer, c; and McLaughlin.

If Connecticut starts a lefthander, however, Rabb is likely to insert Bill Taylor into right field in place of Boykin.

Though Rabb won't make predictions, the general feeling is that this will be a big year for the Tar Heels, who finished with a strong 20-9 mark last spring.

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.
featuring
RARE ROAST BEEF
4 Meats—7 Vegetables ---------- $2.85
All You Can Eat—It's a Cowboy's Treat
Recommended by Duncan Hines and Gourmet
RANCH HOUSE



ARROW
DECTON
won't give you the right time of day
This remarkable shirt retains its crisp, just-ironed look all day long because it's 65% Dacron* and 35% cotton...the ideal wash and wear blend that made "Look, Ma—no wrinkles" a famous campus expression. Tailored with the popular Sussex button-down collar in true Ivy fashion and tapered to trim you in every way except price.
*Du Pont R.T.M.
Long sleeves—only $6.95
Short sleeves—only $5.95

Say it beautifully with EASTER CARDS
NOW ON DISPLAY
Easter is March 29
● CUTE
● SOPHISTICATED
● SENTIMENTAL of all kinds
RUSSELL STOVER
Easter Candies
FAVORS AND PARTY SUPPLIES IN THE PARTY SHOP
Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

124

The Weather

Springy.

The Daily Tar Heel

The Campus Chest Carnival ends tonight. The carnival, held annually to raise funds for the Campus Chest Drive, is being staged on the Intramural Field adjacent to Woollen Gym. The Carnival features rides and booths of all varieties.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, MARCH 24, 1964 | United Press International Service

Yanks Wait For Release

BERLIN (UPI) — American officials waited in vain Monday for the Soviet Union to fulfill its promise to free two U.S. Air Force men captured 13 days ago when their RB66 jet reconnaissance plane was shot down over Communist East Germany.

In Washington, the State Department said it had received no definite word on when, where or how the Soviets would release the two officers.

A spokesman said there was no information available beyond Sunday's statement by Secretary of State Dean Rusk that Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin promised the fliers would be returned "in the near future."

U.S. officials here said they were disappointed and surprised that the airmen were not released Monday.

A third officer abroad the plane when it was shot down—1st Lt. Harold W. Welch, 24, of Detroit—was turned over to American authorities Saturday. He was injured in parachuting from the airplane.

The other officers are Capt. David I. Holland, 35, of Holland, Minn., and Capt. Melvin J. Kessler, 30, of Philadelphia.

Officials here could not understand why the Russians had told the State Department of the release plan if they did not intend to carry it out immediately.

The timing of the announcement also was remarkable. Rusk's television announcement took American State Department and military officials by surprise. They first heard of it from news reports.

The Russians promise to return the airmen meant acceptance of the American statement that the aircraft had not been on an espionage flight but had strayed across the East-West German border because of a navigational failure.

The Soviets at first charged the men had been on a spy flight. They apparently changed their mind about this when the United States in a protest note demanded the fliers' release and warned their continued detention would jeopardize relations with Moscow.

Vacation Hours Of Buildings Are Released

The following hours will be observed by the Library during the Spring Holidays:

Thursday, March 26—
7:45 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Friday, March 27—
9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Saturday, March 28—
9:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.

Sunday, March 29 ..... CLOSED

Monday, March 30—
9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Tuesday, March 31—
9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Wednesday, April 1—
Resume regular schedule

The last issue of the DTH before vacation will be tomorrow. Publication will resume on Wednesday, April 1.

Graham Memorial will remain open throughout the holidays.

Lenoir Hall will be closed.

Aid Asked For Projects

The Community Welfare Committee of Student Government, in cooperation with the Inter-Church Council of Chapel Hill, has called for student aid in two community projects.

The Committee has called for volunteers to drive to the county welfare warehouse in Hillsboro on the second and third Tuesday and Thursday of each month to pick up and deliver surplus goods to 182 needy families in the Chapel Hill area.

Students interested in this program may contact Shirley Wnite at 942-1277.

The Committee is also trying to raise $2000 for a school lunch program for 100 needy elementary and high school students in Chapel Hill.

Half the money has been collected, and Easter is the deadline for the drive. Contributors may send money to Dr. Robert Seymour at the Binkley Baptist Church, 507 East Franklin Street.

The Committee and the Council have also urged students who wish to tutor fifth and sixth grade Negro students, who are unprepared to enter local integrated junior high schools, to contact Hilliard Caldwell at 929-1492.

FASTERS — Five integrationists begin their third day of fasting this morning in protest to remaining segregation practices in Chapel Hill. The demonstrators, Pat Cusick, 32, a field secretary for the Student Peace Union; the Rev. La Vert Taylor, 23, field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; James Foushee, 21; Melody Dickinson, 24, a former UNC student, and John Dunne, 21, chairman of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee, have vowed to go without food in front of the Post Office for eight days. The group said that since their fast began, numerous people have brought them newspapers, cigarettes, blankets and crushed ice. The only reported incident occurred Sunday night around midnight when someone threw eggs at them. "The response has been much more favorable than we expected," said Dunne.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Cuba Nationalization Is Backed By Court

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court ruled today that U. S. courts must treat as valid Fidel Castro's nationalization of American property in Cuba.

As a result, Cuba can legally collect $175,000 realized from the sale of some sugar belonging to a seized American company. The case will have a bearing on many others with millions of dollars at stake.

Since Congress has frozen all Cuban funds in this country, however, the Castro regime cannot get its hands on the money. The 8 to 1 decision will have a bearing on numerous other court challenges here to Cuban nationalizations. The government reported 37 cases in New York alone.

The Cuban decision upheld the position of the Justice Department, which argued that generally speaking U. S. courts must recognize as valid acts of a recognized foreign government affecting ownership of property in that country.

This is known as the "act of state" doctrine. The department contended that U. S. foreign relations could be adversely affected if U. S. courts made judgments in this area.

Today's case dealt with Castro's seizure of a shipload of sugar on Aug. 6, 1960, in Jucaro Harbor. The sugar belonged to one of 26 companies seized by the Castro regime on that day.

A New York commodity broker, Farr, Whitlock, & Co., had already contracted to sell the shipment to a customer in Morocco. The firm went ahead with the deal and realized $175,000. On order of a New York State court, these funds were placed in escrow for the stockholders of the original owners, most of whom live in the United States.

The Banco Nacional de Cuba, financal agent of the Castro government, sued to recover the money.

Federal Dstrct Judge Edward J. Dimock dismissed the suit and was upheld by the 2nd U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The second circuit said Cuba violated international law when it took the property and therefore did not have legal title to the funds.

Justice John M. Harlan spoke for the court today in a 39-page opinion.

HEAR NO EVIL, see no evil, speak no evil—Bill Allsbrook of Roanoke Rapids portrays the Mute in the Carolina Playmakers production of "The Fantasticks." The popular off-Broadway musical will be presented today and tomorrow in the Playmakers Theatre in Chapel Hill.

Regulations Released On Elections

Bill Aycock, chairman of the Elections Board, has issued the following statement in regard to regulations for the spring elections:

Spring elections for Student Body officers, Senior Class officers, President of the Carolina Athletic Association, President of the Women's Athletic Association, Editor(s)-in-Chief of the Daily Tar Heel, Chairman of the Women's Residence Council, Delegates to the National Student Congress, Student Legislature Representatives and Members of the Men's and Women's Councils will be held on Tuesday, April 14, 1964. Polls will be open from 10:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

As specified by the General Election Law the following events are subject to deadlines:

1. Nominations by parties— April 2, 1964
2. Nominations by selections boards—April 2, 1964
3. Nominations by petition— April 2, 1964
4. Requests for absentee ballots April 8, 1964 by 4 p.m.
5. Submitting of campaign expense accounts — April 13, 1964, by 12 noon.

A compulsory meeting of all candidates and party chairmen will be held Thursday night, April 2, 1964 at 8:00 in the auditorium of Howell Hall. Any absence from this meeting without the WRITTEN permission of the Chairman of the Elections Board will result in the candidate being disqualified. Should such an unexcused absence occur the candidate can be reinstated by contacting the Chairman of the Elections Board within forty-eight (48) hours after the meeting and paying a $5.00 fine.

$3,000 Damage

Arson Suspected In Phi Delt Fire

Several fires of undetermined origin broke out early Sunday morning in the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house on Pittsboro Street, causing extensive damage to a downstairs living room.

Chief William Blake of the Chapel Hill police department said arson was suspected. His department, local firemen, and officials of the N. C. Fire Insurance Commission are investigating.

Mac Boxley, Phi Delt president, said the fires were discovered about 5:45 a.m. Sunday by two fraternity members, who called the fire department and awakened the occupants of the house. Approximately 40 persons were asleep in the house when the fires were discovered.

Fire extinguishers were used to put out the blaze. Three separate windows in the living room were burned, causing damage to curtains, woodwork, and furniture. A smaller fire was also found on a basement bar, but it was put out without difficulty.

Fraternity members also said that charred broom or rake handles were found in the boiler. The damages were covered by insurance.

No estimate of the damages could be made by house officials yesterday. They also declined to comment further on the fire pending the outcome of police and fire department investigations.

Chief Blake said that the apparently separate character of the fires and the fact that some curtains were apparently ignited four feet above the floor had led police to conduct their investigation.

The first police report on the case is expected today.

Fraternity officials refused temporarily to allow photographs.

Glee Club Gives Program Tonight

By HENRY McINNIS

The Men's Glee Club will present a concert tonight at 8 p.m. in Hill Music Hall with a wide-ranging program encompassing American folk songs, excerpts from "Show Boat," specialities performed by a student singing quartet and two choral pieces with text by Carl Sandburg and Robert Frost.

A featured soprano soloist, Mrs. Bernice Otudeko, a teacher at Frank Porter Graham School in Chapel Hill, will join Glee Club director Dr. Joel Carter and accompanist Michael Kelly, in the event sponsored by University's Tuesday Evening Series.

The program in order of performance follows: "Almighty God of Our Fathers," Will James; "Plorate, filii Israel," Giacomo Carissini; "Hospodi Pomiloi," (Russian Liturgy), S. V. Lvovsky; "Missa Brevis" (1955) including "Kyrie Eleison," "Gloria in Excelsis," "Sanctus and Benedictus qui Venit," and "Agnus Dei," Healey Willan; "Who Shall Speak for the People," (Carl Sandburg), Robert Kurka; "Stopping by the Woods on a Snowy Evening," (Robert Frost), Randall Thompson.

Also, "Backe and Side Goe Bare (John Still), R. Vaughan Williams; "I Hear a Voice a-Prayin'," arr. Houston Bright, "Ol' Joe Clark," (American folk song), arr. Charles F. Bryan; solo, Bernice Otudeko, soprano; "Dark Water," Will James; "The Eddystone Light," (Sea Chantey), arr. Walter Ehret; specialities by "The Confederates," Bill Masten, Kris Silliman, Carlyle Stull and Ron Walker; "Dance, My Comrades!", (Russion folk song), Richard Bennett; Medley from "Showboat," including "Make Believe," "You Are Love," "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man," (solo: Bernice Otudeko), "Why Do I Love You?," and "Ol' Man River," solo by Ron Walker .

Debaters Lose Out In Meet

The UNC Debate Team failed to place in the finalist competition at the Southeastern Regional College Tournament at Emory University in Atlanta last weekend.

Haywood Clayton, captain of the team, and Bob Powell, former state high school debate champion, represented the team at the semi-final competition.

This was the first year that UNC had been invited to attend the Atlanta tournament.

Ten college teams, chosen by a panel of judges as the best in the South, met one another once during the semifinals. The top four teams in the competition will get a chance to attend the national championship runoff at West Point.

"We were very disappointed in the results, but there were some really good teams up against us," said Powell.

The Carolina team went into the debate as a "dark horse" entry. Favorites at the meet were Alabama and Vanderbilt.

Clayton led the debate team to a 28-11 season this year with wins over strong Sanford, Wisconsin and Army and two wins over Duke.

Powell, a Morehead Scholar, was the only freshman to make the Varsity Debate Team this year.

The team is coached by Dr. Donald Springen, professor of Speech.

'Fantasticks' Opens Tonight At 8

"The Fantasticks," an off-Broadway musical comedy, will be presented by the Carolina Playmakers today and tomorrow at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets for the production will not be covered by Playmakers season tickets.

Based on Edmund Rostand's "Les Romanesques," the play has had a long and successful run in New York.

Director of the play is UNC graduate student Larry Warner of the Department of Dramatic Arts.

Tickets are on sale at the Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall, at $1 each.

CS Goes Literary

By JANE DALLEN

"Reflections of the Conflict?; The Cold War and American Letters" will be the panel discussion of Irving Howe, Marya Mannes, John Knowles and William Coles for the Carolina Symposium on April 8.

The distinguished panel, to be moderated by William Coles, will examine the possible changes in philosophic themes, moral assumptions, and conceptions of a society in the Cold War environment.

Irving Howe is Professor of English at Hunter College. Formerly Chairman of the English Department at Brandeis University, he has taught at Stanford, Indiana, Washington, and Wayne State Universities. In 1953 Professor Howe conducted the Christian Gauss Seminar in Literary Criticism at Princeton University.

Awarded the Kenyon Review Fellowship in Literary Criticism and the Bollingen Fellowship for work on American Literature, Mr. Howe has also received awards from the National Institute of Arts and Letters, and the Longview Foundation.

Dr. Howe is the author of Politics and the Novel; Modern Literary Criticism; William Faulkner, a Critical Study; and The Basic Writings of Trotsky.

Marya Mannes, essayist, political satirist and TV and theatre critic, was on the staff of "The Reporter" from 1952-1963. Author of monthly essays for "Book Week," Dr. Mannes also has written "More in Anger," "Subverse," "Message from a Stranger," and "The New York I Know."

Awarded the George Polk Me-

(Continued on Page 3)

IRVING HOWE

JOHN KNOWLES

WILLIAM COLES

MARYA MANNES

Odds And Ends And All Sorts Of Campus Items

Jackson Scholarship Goes To Lawrence

John E. Lawrence Jr. of Shelby has been awarded the four-year Herbert Worth Jackson Scholarship to attend UNC.

The Jackson Scholarship was established in 1938 by Mrs. Jackson as a memorial to her husband, a UNC graduate in 1888 and a banker in North Carolina and later in Virginia where he was president of the Virginia Trust Company.

The scholarship is worth $3400 and is awarded only once in four years to either a graduate of a North Carolina high school or a prep school in or out of the state.

Adams Takes 3rd Place In Contest

Bert Adams, a UNC graduate student, was the third prize winner in the southeastern Metropolitan Opera competition in Atlanta.

He received the Anne duPont Peyton Memorial Award, a $100 check, and has been urged by John Gutman of the Met to go to New York for an individual hearing.

Adams, a baritone, has appeared with the NC Symphony, the University Chorus and the Chapel Hill Choral Club.

A 1961 receipient of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, Adams is completing work for his Ph.D. in sociology under a National Institute of Mental Health grant.

Bond And Outwater Get Teacher Awards

Carolyn Bond and David Outwater, both seniors, have been elected Miss and Mr. Student Teacher of 1964 at UNC and are representing the University at the state Student National Education Association (SNEA) meeting in Raleigh.

Carolyn, who graduated from Peace College, has served as program chairman of the local SNEA chapter and has been active on the Secretariat and the Carolina Handbook.

David attended Pfeiffer College and is now president of the local SNEA chapter. In December he presented a paper to the National Education Association in Washington, D. C.

They will be attending the Raleigh meeting through Saturday with eight other UNC students.

SPU Will Sponsor Speaker Tonight

David Hartsough of the American Friends Service Committee will address the Student Peace Union tonight at 8 in Gerrard Hall on the influences an American student can wield over Congressional legislation.

Hartsough believes that American students could have a decisive influence over legislation in Congress.

A graduate of Howard University in Washington, D. C., Hartsough studied for a year in Germany and has made several trips to the Soviet Union in recent years.

He is a member of the Friends Committee on National Legislation, which is sponsoring his appearance here.

Triangle Players Hold Over Show

"Except We Got Robbins," an absurd comedy in one act, will be presented by the Triangle Players at the Triangle Coffee House (formerly the Null and Void) in Durham at 9:30 p.m. on March 25 and 29. Written by Dalton Smith of UNC and directed by Ben Jones, the play is an examination of a society which traps its members or "debtors" in a net of conformity.

The cast includes Cara Landry, Dan Clayton, Lise Knox, Keith Payne and Ben Jones, all of Chapel Hill, along with Jim Zellner and Jim Pipkins of Durham.

Coed Reinstated By Women's Council

A coed was reinstated from an indefinite suspension in a hearing before the Women's Council Thursday night.

The student received the sentence April 27, 1963, when she was convicted of both Campus and Honor Code violations. She had stayed overnight in a fraternity and then lied about it to her dormitory advisor.

Indefinite suspension generally lasts for one full academic semester. A student may be reinstated at any time upon acceptance of a written request to the Council.

Gentry Appointed By Chancellor

Chancellor William B. Aycock announced the appointment of Dr. John T. Gentry as assistant dean for Program Development and associate professor of Public Health Administration, School of Public Health, beginning August 1, 1964.

Dr. Gentry belongs to the American Public Health Association; the American Association for the Advancement of Sciences; the American College of Preventive Medicine; and the American Cancer Society.

Volume 72, Number 124 Tuesday, March 24, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1879.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Polio, Poverty And Prejudice

A striking example of concerted community effort was provided Sunday when local doctors and nurses combined with members of the Chapel Hill Junior Service League, the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Jaycees and the Hillsboro Jaycees to provide polio vaccine to the community at large.

From all reports, the drive went off well and the process couldn't have been more painless.

If only this spirit of common effort could be extended to the cure of other, less physical diseases which afflict the community.

Passing out polio vaccine, however worthy, is easy compared with curing poverty and prejudice. But think of what a contribution the Jaycees and other local groups could make in this area. The possibilities are as unbounded as the opportunity is neglected.

David Brinkley, Sch ool Of Hard Knocks

There it was again, in large type, over the story about NBC News commentator David Brinkley coming to UNC for the Carolina Symposium. "Carolina Graduate," said the overline, reflecting the information in the story that Brinkley was "briefly an English major here" at UNC.

It was only a year ago that The Charlotte Observer cleared up the mystery about Brinkley's background. Not only had Brinkley never formally attended UNC, The Observer discovered, he hadn't even graduated from his high school in Wilmington, N. C.

Brinkley confirmed all this in a letter to The Observer, noting sadly that he had been trying to get the NBC Public Relations department similarly informed for several years now, but they just kept on sending out bum dope on his background.

Brinkley made it clear he wasn't trying to patch up his prestige — as, we agree, he needn't.

We only hope that with a formal degree we can do half as well as he has done without one.

The actual facts about Brinkley make us admire him even more than we did previously. A talented youngster, his high school grades were poor, reflecting the fact that he often played hookey.

His teachers at New Hanover High School recall that he was impatient with and contemptuous of routine assignments. The son of a Atlantic Coast Line Railroad laborer and a mother widowed in his early youth he was a member of a teen outfit who called themselves "Students of Benny Revelle's School of Quick Wit and Hard Knocks."

Revelle was a beach concessionaire. He employed the boys at odd jobs. They also said they picked up money on the side by charging the "rubes" 25 cents admission to the free public beach.

Two high school teachers helped guide his aimless, defiant behavior into talent-developing activity. Under their guidance and with cooperation of John Marshall, a school board member and then managing editor of The Wilmington Star, Brinkley went to work at the newspaper under a program similar to what is nw called "distributive education."

He never went back to high school to graduate. He was at UNC briefly, but never enrolled. Later, while working for United Press during World War II in Nashville, he took some night-school courses at Vanderbilt.

All of which seems only to prove that, few decent breaks make all the differdegree or no degree, talent, pluck and a ence in the world between success and failure.

Furthermore, as long as he's academically available where alma maters are concerned, we're proud to claim him as our own.

Heartening News From The N. C. Fund

It is heartening to see that the North Carolina Fund is making good use of the state's "cycle of poverty."

Jim Beatty, UNC alumnus and Olympic track star, and Curtis Gans, former editor of the Tar Heel, have been picked to head up the state's "peace corps" program of community developmet.

Now comes word that Bill Darity has been named assistant director for Community development. Mr. Darity is a Public Health specialist who received his Ph.D. degree here a few months ago.

We commend the Fund's selection of North Carolinians to do the job of helping improve North Carolina, and we are especially gratified that a good number of them are or hopefully will be Carolina graduates of the caliber of Beatty, Gans and Darity.

We have a feeling that they will go about their difficult but challenging tasks with that little bit of extra effort which characterizes a person who is helping to make his home a better place in which to live.

We remind those Carolina students interested in putting their shoulders to the wheel of self-improvement that application blanks for this summer's "peace corps" program are available at the Student Government offices and in South Building.

'Harshness At Hillsboro'

Winston-Salem Journal

Judge Raymond Mallard dealt too harshly with two of three university professors convicted of trespassing in an integration demonstration at Chapel Hill.

He meted out 90-day active prison sentences to Dr. Robert Osborn, associate professor of religion at Duke University, and to Dr. William Wynn, assistant professor of psychology at the University of North Carolina.

He was more lenient with the third, Dr. Frederick Herzog, associate professor of theology at Duke, ordering him to pay a $50 fine and court costs. The judge noted that Dr. Herzog indicated a willingness not to repeat the offense while the other two professors tacitly indicated they would again violate the trespass law if their consciences dictated.

Judge Mallard had no choice except to punish the three in some manner when they came before his court in Hillsboro. They stood duly convicted of violating the trespass law as it now stands.

But he might at least have taken into account that Dr. Osborn and Dr. Wynn as well as Dr. Herzog, engaged in civil disobedience on moral grounds. And he might have recognized that civil disobedience as a means of seeking redress of moral wrongs has a long and honorable history in democracies as well as in totalitarian states. Socrates was the first in a long line of teachers and philosophers who resorted to this method of protest.

Judge Mallard expressed a widely held view when he said that in a democracy "if everyone took it upon themselves to determine which laws they would obey, then we would have anarchy." He ruled out the position that a person sometimes feels it is right or perhaps a duty to disobey the law when his mind, his conscience or his religious faith tells him that the law is unjust.

To take the view that disobedience to law can never be justified in any circumstances is to say that every law that exists, even in a democracy, is just law. All laws, however, are not just. And often the only means of correcting them is through dramatic disobedience. This is no more than the signers of the Declaration of Independence did.

The judgment of the professors in these demonstrations may be open to question. Chapel Hill has gone as far as any other community in North Carolina in opening restaurants, theaters and similar businesses to people without regard to race. In view of the progress made there and the prospect of more progress, it is doubtful that resort to civil disobedience was necessary to dramatize injustice.

Nevertheless, these professors chose to disobey the law and to take the consequences. Since they were acting out of apparent high moral conviction, Judge Mallard might have treated them more leniently and still have fulfilled his duty to uphold the law as a deterrent to anarchy.

A Compliment To The MRC

Editors, The Tar Heel:

We would like to pay a much belated compliment to the Men's Residence Council for the dance which they recently sponsored at the Carolina Inn Ballroom. The music provided by the Duke Ambassadors was most enjoyable and provided a refreshing change from the usual beard on this campus. We hope this will not be an isolated example of what can occur at Carolina.

Sincerely yours,
Kenny Kyle
203 Pureby Road
Alice Hammond
131 Pureby Road

"I Had No Idea There Were So Many Banana Peels Around This Canal"

The Smithfield Herald

Can Poverty Be Licked?

Both Governor Sanford and President Johnson have appealed to the people to support a "war on poverty." Humanitarian groups here and there have responded to the appeal with enthusiasm, but most North Carolinians and most Americans seem to be indifferent toward anti-poverty efforts if not hostile.

Why this indifference or hostility?

One popular attitude finds expression in the frequently repeated phrase "The poor will always be with us." Many an American believes in the inevitability of poverty, just as a town commissioner in one community years ago expressed his belief in the inevitability of green flies. When a citizen complained against the prevalence of green flies, the commissioner replied, "Don't you know that we always have green flies at this time of year?"

Times Change

When the people of the "middle class" were poor in the Nineteen Thirties, they applauded the Roosevelt New Deal's war on poverty. But today's middle class, enjoying the fruits of our "affluent society," argues that "anybody who isn't lazy can make a good living nowadays." The companion argument is that government should not help people who are responsible for their own poverty.

There is considerable merit in the idea that government should withhold aid from people able to help themselves adequately. What does not have merit is the assumption that most of America's poor people are poor because they are lazy and don't want to work. The truth is that many Americans lack opportunity to climb out of their poverty.

Easy Assumption

In a country in which half the families now have incomes of between $6,000 and $10,000 a year and a fifth of the families have incomes of $15,000 or more, it is easy to assume that the problem of poverty has been licked to the extent that it can be licked. It is only when we take a close look at the low end of the economic ladder that we become aware of alarming poverty in the midst of plenty.

Can we honestly disagree with the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics when it holds that families having incomes of less than $3,000 a year are poor families? How can families with higher incomes rest with easy conscience when they are informed that 36 million people belong to families having incomes below $3,000? Can we fairly blame these low-income families for their poverty? Do the heads of most of these families refuse to work?

Who Are They?

Who are the poor? They are unemployed coal miners, unemployed factory workers, displaced farm workers who cannot find steady jobs in towns and cities, poorly educated whites and Negroes who are disadvantaged by the decreasing demand for unskilled workers, people struggling for existence in submarginal farming situations, senior citizens whose incomes are far from adequate to meet medical or even general living expenses.

Many of the poor are people caught in the "cycle of poverty," as Governor Sanford phrases it repeatedly. They have grown up in families plagued by bad housing, ill health, chronic unemployment, and ignorance. Their way of life is handed down from generation to generation.

Automation hovers over workers, destroying morale and threatening increased unemployment. Almost two years ago Lyndon Johnson was telling us that more than 25,000 workers a week were losing their jobs to automation. A few days ago Secretary of Labor Wirtz warned that the U. S. labor force is growing twice as fast as the number of jobs. The president of the National Association of Manufacturers has warned that if this trend continues, the rate of unemployment will reach almost 12 per cent by 1970. It is less than six per cent now. What will happen to the U. S. economy if we have nine or 10 million unemployed persons in 1970?

Real Need

The need for a war on poverty is real. It must be waged on several fronts. Education certainly is one front, as Governor Sanford keeps reminding us. In a world of automation, fewer workers are needed. Welfare programs that stress family guidance aimed at getting people off relief rolls are unquestionably in order. If we break the cycle of poverty, we must employ enough competent welfare workers to give impoverished families the guidance needed to make sure that children of families on relief rolls don't grow up to become heads of families on relief. And there must be co-operation between government and business in the stimulation of economic growth, so that there will be enough jobs for the educated and the rehabilitated and all who want to work.

The Dream

The American dream, from the beginning, has been a dream of better life for more and more people year after year. Not to wage war on poverty is to abandon that dream. The dream surely remains unfulfilled as long as 36 million Americans enjoy none of the benefits of today's prosperity. We need not have this many always with us. To resign ourselves to poverty makes no more sense than to resign ourselves to green flies. We are a doomed nation when we abandon attacks on the manifold threats to decent living.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

An Answer From The Local AAUP

Dear Sir:

A recent editorial in the Raleigh News and Observer on alleged faculty "apathy" at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, based upon a March 2nd meeting of the local Chapter of the American Association of University Professors, reflects at best a third-hand knowledge of what transpired at the meeting and at worst an attempt to impugn the concern and conscience of the faculty of the University at Chapel Hill.

The Chapel Hill Chapter of AAUP held its regular winter meeting on February 10th. The local civil rights situation, student and faculty academic freedom, research leaves, and faculty salaries were to be discussed. This meeting was attended by about 190 faculty members, which is an exceptional turnout by any standards but particularly as the Chapter membership is only about 150. This participation in a meeting represents the greatest participation in my memory on this campus for any similar function. Not only was the attendance large but the interest in the subject material was so great and discussion so extensive that the mandatory adjournment time was extended by thirty minutes and the last two items on the program were put off to another special meeting, namely, the meeting which attracted your attention. The resolutions presented at this latter meeting were an attempt to develop a formal consensus from the discussion of the earlier meeting. At this meeting also it was not possible to complete the full agenda despite an extension of the mandatory adjournment time.

Other evidences of real concern for the civil rights problem on the part of the faculty are the active participation of the faculty in an advertisement carrying about 1800 signatures favoring a public accommodations ordinance in the Town of Chapel Hill, and signed statements of approximately 200 faculty members indicating their participation in a boycott of institutions that discriminate because of race. Others of the faculty, equally concerned, have other views of the solution to the civil rights problem. Members of the faculty actively participate on the School Board, on the Board of Aldermen, on the Mayor's Human Relations Committee, as members of a Mayor's Mediation Committee, and as leaders in various groups concerned with civil rights and other community matters.

It might not be inappropriate to point out a few errors of fact in the editorial. The editorial stated that only about forty of the faculty were present. Actually, about forty of those present were AAUP members with a total attendance of about sixty, a fairly good representation as such meetings go. (A misadventure in distribution of notices resulted in failure of a substantial portion of the faculty to receive notice of the meeting.) Secondly, the editorial intimated that one of the decisions reached was "shelving the study idea". Actually, the members present decided to have the question of discrimination studied as the basis for a possible resolution, so that one of the results of the meeting was an endorsement of a study.

The purpose of requesting that newsmen do not attribute quotes to individual faculty members is to permit those in attendance at our meetings, which are intended for free discussion, to speak with as little limitation as possible in the hope that some ideas expressed at the beginning of the meeting might later be modified as other ideas are presented. Actually, for you to consider this a "gag" represents editorial distortion. Both of these AAUP meetings were extensively reported in the Chapel Hill Weekly which was able to develop the full savor of the discussion. All that was omitted were the names of those making each point, which in itself has little news value. Were the names to be permitted to be attached to these quotes during the meeting the discussion might not have been nearly as fruitful. On the other hand, if any of the newspaper reporters wanted a statement from any of the faculty present it was only necessary to obtain acquiescence from the faculty member involved following the meeting and both name and statement could be published. However, the purpose of these meetings is full discussion of issues of concern to our faculty and not publicity about the individual ideas of those in attendance.

The University and Chapel Hill did not become among the most integrated of educational institutions and communities in the South without continued concern and participation of many members of the faculty of the University.

Sincerely yours
Daniel A. Okun
President,
UNC Chapter of AAUP

Reader Tells Of Toronto Exchange

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Realizing the fact there has been no mention of the return trip which the UNC Toronto Exchange students took during semester break, I would therefore like to present a brief summary of that experience for those who might be interested. Since this exchange is an annual event, a short survey of the trip might possibly encourage more people to interview for participation in it next year. The Toronto Exchange is made up of two programs—one part takes place when the Canadians come to Carolina in the late fall and the other, when the UNC representatives visit Toronto during semester break.

This year the 26 boys and girls left Wednesday morning, January 29 on the bus, and arrived in Toronto the following day. We were given a brief tour of Toronto University first thing, along with a glimpse at the famous historical museum right there on the campus.

The next few days were filled with a variety of affairs and excursions. We found ourselves among the Canadian ice skaters on the Port Credit River, a spectator at the Winter Carnival Ice Show, and a member of the hockey fans at a national league game in Maple Leaf Gardens. We toured the famous O'Keefe Center, where all types of theatrical performances are presented.

One of the highlights of the trip was an outing up to the Georgian Peaks in Collingwood where we all tried our hand at skiing. Some of us found we were much better at tobogganing, and left the slopes to those with fewer bruises.

But, of course, we did not play constantly. There were numerous discussions and presentations on such topics as "Separatism — the issue between the French and English Canadians," "The Ugly American Image through the Eyes of the Canadians. Is it Valid?" All of these topics were most interesting and enlightening as we discussed them together.

The Canadian hospitality just couldn't have been better. We stayed in their homes, had several meals with them, and shared our ideas in conversation. We got together several times for informal parties when we would all agree, that it was a most successful exchange in promoting friendship, knowledge, understanding, and genuine fun between the two groups.

I really wish that all of you could have been right there with us to do and see the other things which are offered on this trip. Many of you will have this opportunity next year and I urge you to interview at the beginning of next semester for the Toronto Exchange. It is truly a most worthwhile and enriching experience.

Bonnie Haines
202 Smith

Heelprints

Simile: as miserable as a rainy spring weekend in Chapel Hill.

* * *

Looks as if the smoking and health controversy is one on which nine out of ten doctors disagree.

* * *

A news item says that the combined resources of the Department of Defense and U.S. industry have failed to produce a satisfactory all-service belt buckle. They'd better find one before our servicemen are caught with their pants down.

* * *

Then there's the Frank McGuire doll—one of these days it may wind us up.

Misery Is . . .

ACP—STUDENT LIFE, Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri, says:

Misery is dorm hours. Misery is a letter from the draft board. Misery is having your 21st birthday fall during finals week. Misery is trying to be like Harvard. Misery is a letter from home with no money in it. Misery is tuition. Misery is the life of a pledge. Misery is a new pair of Levi's.

Enjoy the Finest Seafood
TIP TOP FISH HOUSE
Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West
Durham Tel. 286-4494

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.
BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1
Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes
115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

The UNC Westminster Fellowship announces the publication of the winter issue of its Christian journal of opinion
NEW WINE on "DEATH"
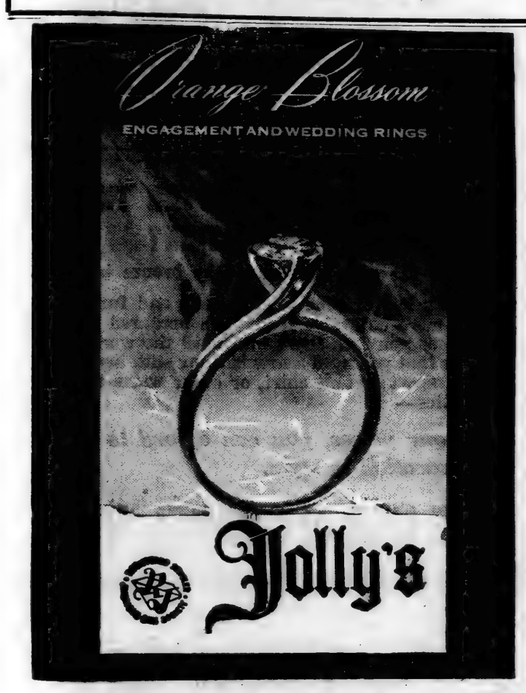
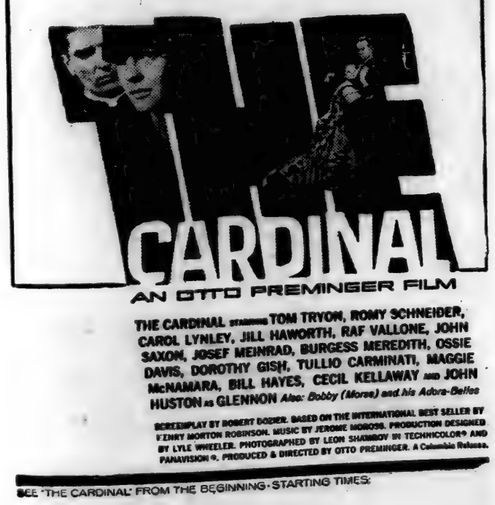
Containing the following articles:
"On the Meaning of Death" by Maurice Natanson, "Value Aspects of American Funeral Practices" by Peter Berger and Richard Liehan, "Immortality or Resurrection?" by Vance Barron, "The Carolina Way of Death" by Wayne King, "Acceptance of Death—Beginning of Life" by John Graham, "Albert Camus on Death" by Tom Crais, "Death in Art" by John Schnorrenberg, "A Quaker View" by Eleanor Carroll and Reviews of McCuller's "Clock Without Hands" by Charles Thompson, Faulkner's "As I Lay Dying" by Mary Jane Dickerson, Agree's "A Death in the Family" by Robert Morgan, Cullman's "Immortality of the Soul or Resurrection of the Dead?" by Tom Miller, Romains "The Death of a Nobody" by Clay Stalnaker, Jessica Mitford's "American Way of Death" by Larry Isbell.
Now on sale at Y Lobby, Lenoir Hall, Kemp's, Graham Memorial Information Desk, and the Hospitality Shop at NC Memorial Hospital, or by mail from Box 509, Chapel Hill, for 50c.



FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
128 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

THE STORY OF A YOUNG AMERICAN AND HIS RISE TO PRINCE OF THE CHURCH. FILMED IN ITS ACTUAL LOCALES: NEW ENGLAND, THE SOUTH, VIENNA AND ROME.



THE CARDINAL starring TOM TRYON, ROMY SCHNEIDER, CAROL LYNLEY, JILL HAWORTH, RAF VALLONE, JOHN SAXON, JOSEF MEINRAD, BURGESS MEREDITH, OSSIE DAVIS, DOROTHY GISH, TULLIO CARMINATI, MAGGIE McNAMARA, BILL HAYES, CECIL KELLAWAY and JOHN HUSTON as GLENNON Also: Bobby (Morse) and his Ashra-Belles
SCREENPLAY BY ROBERT DOZIER. BASED ON THE INTERNATIONAL BEST SELLER BY HENRY MORTON ROBINSON. MUSIC BY JEROME MOROSS. PRODUCTION DESIGNED BY LYLE WHEELER. PHOTOGRAPHED BY LEON SHAMROY IN TECHNICOLOR® AND PANAVISION®. PRODUCED & DIRECTED BY OTTO PREMINGER. A Columbia Release.
SEE "THE CARDINAL" FROM THE BEGINNING - STARTING TIMES:
Carolina NOW PLAYING

— Panel —

(Continued From Page 1)

morial Award for radio and TV reporting in 1959, she had her own TV program, "I Speak for Myself," on WNEW-TV in 1959. Dr. Mannes received an honorarary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from Hood College in 1960.

John Knowles, the 1963-1964 writer-in-residence at the University of North Carolina, has added a strong dimension to the literary interests in Chapel Hill.

A graduate of Exeter and Yale, Mr. Knowles' first novel, "A Separate Peace" won the William Faulkner First Winner Award, which was followed by his acclaimed "Morning at Antibes."

He has traveled extensively in the Mediterranean and Near Eastern countries during the last three years. His acute observations and perceptions of the American image and its effects abroad will be revealed in his latest book, "Double Vision," to be published in June.

William Coles, Assistant Professor of English at the University of Michigan, received his M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard. Dr. Coles has taught here at the University of North Carolina as well as at Harvard and the University of Virginia.

Co-editor of "Architecture in America: A Battle of Styles," he is currently finishing "Architecture and Society: The Essays of Henry Van Brunt."

AWARDS MEET

The Greek Week Awards Presentation will be held tonight at 8:30 in Memorial Hall, Greek Week Chairman Gordon Fitz-Simons announced yesterday.

The meeting is compulsory for all fraternity pledges.

Awards will be presented for scholarship, Greek Week Field Day, best carnvial booth and best overall pledge class.

UNIVERSITY PARTY MEETING

There will be a University Party meeting tonight in Davie Hall at 7.

The party will ratify its platform at the meeting.

Anyone Can Buy At
"Mail Order Prices" at Vickers
Trade-in Values up to $5.00 for your old picture tube on a New or Rebuilt
ALUMINIZED PICTURE TUBE
ONE YEAR WARRANTY $15.95 Up
ALL SIZES
VISIT OUR AUDIO DEPARTMENT
Vickers Electronics
506 E. Main St., Durham Phone 684-0527

BEST DEAL IN TOWN
(Eating—That Is)
Student Special
- All the CHICKEN you can eat ..... 88c
- All the FISH you can eat ..... 69c

MONDAY - FRIDAY; 4:00 - 7:00 P.M.
GRANTS EASTGATE Shopping Center

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Destroy
6. Not true
11. French river
12. Any climbing vine
13. African antelope
14. Protective covering
15. Skin tumor
16. Fuel
18. Beard of rye
19. Eats sparingly
21. Banish
24. Croquet wicket
28. Small plants of the rose family
29. Coronet
30. Fix
31. Bungled, as in games
32. Brief
34. Remove seeds
37. Front-page weather box
38. Printers' measures
41. Fragrance
43. Wading bird
45. To set (flowers) in earth: var.
46. One of the 5 senses
47. Unpleasant
48. Abrupt

DOWN
1. Merganser duck
2. Wan
3. WWII invasion port
4. Tavern
5. Bookkeeping books
6. Container
7. Melody
8. Tibetan priest
9. Winter ground cover
10. Merit
17. Perform
19. Small bodies of water
20. Move
21. Choke up
22. First woman
23. Writing implement
25. Simpleton
26. Metallic rock
27. Tablet
29. Little towers
31. Extinct bird
33. Intoxicating
34. Profit
35. Girl's name
36. Heads: sl.
38. Scottish-Gaelic
39. Apportion
40. Stair
42. Encountered
44. Gun: sl.

Yesterday's Answer

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

DTH Publication Schedule — the last issue before the holidays will be Wed., March 25; publication will resume Wed., April 1.

TODAY

Elections Board — 3 p.m., Woodhouse, spring elections.

Gymnastics Club — 3:45 p.m., Dance Studio.

Tennis Club — 4 p.m., Women's Gym, organizational meeting.

Orientation Comm. — 5-6 p.m., RP III.

Freshman Finance Comm. — 7 p.m., RP III, organization of Frosh Sock Queen Competition.

Middle South United Nations Model General Assembly — 3-5 p.m. YMCA-YWCA office, interviews for executive and secretarial positions.

Anyone interested in signing up for the UNC Amateur Radio classes in Morse Code and Radio Theory to be held each evening, 6:30-7 p.m., may do so in Caldwell Y.

Seminars Abroad — 9 p.m., YMCA, Fred Kirk will speak on "London and England."

Square Dancing Club—7:30 p.m., Women's Gym.

Duke-UNC Physics Colloquium— 8 p.m., 114 Physics Building, Duke University, Per - Olov Lowdin, "Some Aspects of Quantum Genetics and the Biological Problems of Mutation, Aging, and Occurence of Tumors."

Di-Phi—7 p.m., 3rd floor, New West, "Does Mode of Education at UNC Inhibit Thinking?"

Badminton Singles Intramurals —7 p.m., Woollen Gym.

SP—7 p.m., Carroll Hall, ratify platform, all candidates are required to attend.

Applications for president of GMAB must be turned in at GM Information desk by noon today.

UNC Students for Preyer—7:30 p.m., RP II and III; organization.

WEDNESDAY

Westminster Fellowship — 6:45 a.m., Presbyterian Student Center, Communion breakfast.

SP Precinct Meeting—8 p.m., RP I and II.

SP Advisory Board —7 p.m., Grail Room, fill legislative vacancies.

Foreign Student's Comm. — 6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

Stray Greeks—6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

Auto Reverberation Units
"At Mail Order Prices"
Vickers Electronics
506 E. Main St. Ph. 684-0527 Durham

Imported Easter
Novelties for GIFTS
Billy Arthur

EASTGATE

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES
Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES
- New Moon
- Ritz-Craft
- Palace

5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East
See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD
DURHAM
Phone 596-8302

Carolina
OPENS FRIDAY FOR ONE WEEK
3 Academy Award Nominations
GREGORY PECK / TONY CURTIS
"CAPTAIN NEWMAN, M.D."
EASTMAN COLOR
CO-STARRING ANGIE DICKINSON
AND CO-STARRING BOBBY DARIN AS CORPORAL ANN TOMPKINS
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

Services Available

SAVING FOR RETIREMENT . . . is so much easier when you see the results you get with Northwestern Mutual life insurance. May we show you? Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates, Telephone No. 942-6966.

Male Help Wanted

WANTED: SALESMAN WITH experience in selling men's clothing. Monday, Wednesday, Friday mornings. 9 A.M.-1 P.M. Call Mr. Rosemond 942-6610.

RALEIGH-DURHAM AIRPORT SERVICE

Taxi Service
Two Passengers (or More) for $3.00 each
Phone 942-3181
Prompt Courteous Service
CAROLINA HOLLYWOOD CAB CO.
"Call Us and Count the Minutes"

From The BOLSHOI BALLET...The Great Prima Ballerina
MAYA PLISETSKAYA in
The Little Humpbacked Horse
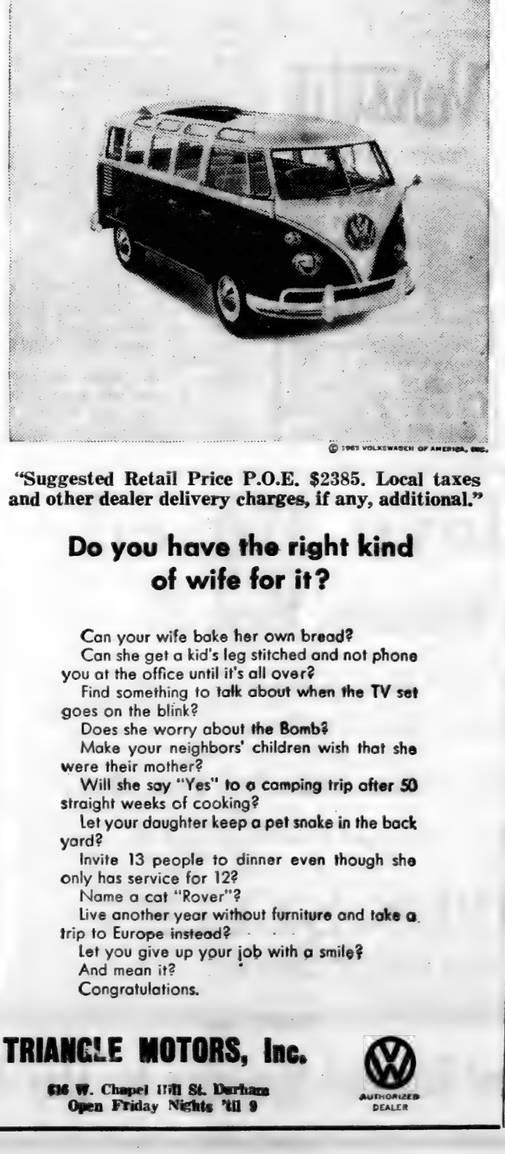
featuring VLADIMIR VASILYEV - ALEXANDER RADUNSKY
and the BOLSHOI CORPS DE BALLET
An Artkino Magicolor Feature Presentation

Shows at: 2:00 - 4:10
6:20 - 8:30
Carolina
Adults $1.00
THURS. ONLY

PEANUTS



"Suggested Retail Price P.O.E. $2385. Local taxes and other dealer delivery charges, if any, additional."

Do you have the right kind of wife for it?

Can your wife bake her own bread?
Can she get a kid's leg stitched and not phone you at the office until it's all over?
Find something to talk about when the TV set goes on the blink?
Does she worry about the Bomb?
Make your neighbors' children wish that she were their mother?
Will she say "Yes" to a camping trip after 50 straight weeks of cooking?
Let your daughter keep a pet snake in the back yard?
Invite 13 people to dinner even though she only has service for 12?
Name a cat "Rover"?
Live another year without furniture and take a trip to Europe instead?
Let you give up your job with a smile?
And mean it?
Congratulations.

TRIANGLE MOTORS, Inc.
616 W. Chapel Hill St. Durham
Open Friday Nights 'til 9
AUTHORIZED DEALER

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

IN THE OLD BOOK FEATURE CASE
This week we have a rather lively lot of titles on English Literature. It is actually composed of two small libraries bought in from graduate students. Included are titles on criticism, poetry and prose.
A good, substantial lot, most of it priced at $1.00 or less per book.
The Intimate Bookshop
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Open every day until 10 p.m.

"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE-MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.
YEA TEAM fight... fight... fight... give em... the ax the ax the ax ...hold that line fight... fight... fight... ...YEA TEAM whew pause
things go better with Coke
TRADE-MARKS
Drink Coca-Cola
Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:
Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

POGO

Haywood Fans 13 As Tar Heels Win Opener, 5-1

Batters Show Signs Of Breaking Slump

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Bill Haywood picked up yesterday where he left off last spring—except mayoe he's a little better. The 26-year-old ex-Marine pitched 7⅔ innings of strong relief as North Carolina took its baseball opener from visiting Connecticut, 5-1.

Coming on in relief of starter Mike McLaughlin with one out and the bases loaded in the second, Haywood pitched out of that jam and went the rest of the way, striking out 13 and giving up but five singles and one unearned run.

While Haywood was busy mowing down the Uconns, the Tar Heels kept themselves occupied by breaking out of the hitting slump which had plagued them in practice games. Though Uconn starter Dick Baronowski held the Tar Heels in check for three innings, UNC warmed up on Jim Parmelee in the middle innings, then gave Leo Bravakis a good working over in the seventh and eighth.

The ony hit off Baronowski was Gary Black's second-inning fly, which right-fielder Doug King's horrible misjudgment turned into a triple. Merle Kruer and Bill Taylor then walked to fill the bases, but Tom Wright fanned and Haywood fouled out to end the inning.

In the fourth against Parmelee, the Tar Heels scored twice when they shouldn't have. After Parmelee plunked lead-off man Black in the back with a pitch, Kruer singled to left and Taylor walked to load the bases. Wright struck out, but shortstop Lee Johnson booted Bill Haywood's "double play" grounder, Black scoring.

After Dickie Prindle popped up, Jim Speight wrapped an infield single off the pitcher's glove, which plated courtesy-runner Dickie Fleming — both runs unearned. Bill Brown grounded into a fielder's choice to end the inning. Except for Haywood's two-out triple which went for naught in the sixth, this was all UNC could do to Parmelee.

With Bravakis on the mound, the Tar Heels suddenly remembered how to hit, and picked up four of their eight hits in the last two innings. In the seventh, Ken Willard hit a prodigious triple to right center, scoring Brown, who had walked.

In the eighth, back-to-back singles by Wright and Haywood (the latter's leading into a two-base error by the left fielder Dorrie Johnson), and a beautiful squeeze bunt by Prindle produced two more runs. Just for kicks, Speight blasted a double to right center, but didn't score.

Sophomore McLaughlin had control troubles (five bases on balls) and this led to his early dismissal. The Uconn's only run came on an error by Wright, a walk to King and a single by Mike Haiday.

The Tar Heels play the Uconns again this afternoon at three o'clock. Junior righthander Bill Dannemann will start for UNC.

HAYWOOD MAKES HAY

| UNC | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Prindle, 2b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| Speight, ss | 5 | 0 | 2 | 1 |
| Brown, 1b | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Willard, lf | 4 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| Black, cf | 3 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Kruer, c | 3 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| d-Fleming | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Taylor, rf | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Wright, 3b | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| McLaughlin, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Haywood, p | 4 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| b-Cohoon | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 32 | 5 | 8 | 3 |

| CONN. | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Jackson, lf | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Gaffney, 2b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| f-Schaefer | 1 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| King, rf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Haiday, c | 4 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| Penders, 3b | 5 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Mottla, 1b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| e-Carroll, 1b | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Johnson, ss | 2 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Meissner, cf | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Baronowski, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| a-Haverl | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| c-Urda | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Parmelee, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Bravakis, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 31 | 1 | 5 | 1 |

a—ran for Baronowski in 2nd
b—ran for Kruer in 2nd; for Haywood in 4th and 8th
c—walked for Baronowski in 4th
d—ran for Kruer in 4th
e—struck out for Mottla in 8th
f—singled for Gaffney in 9th

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Connecticut | 000 | 000 | 100—1 |
| UNC | 000 | 200 | 12x—5 |

| PITCHING | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Baronowski | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 3 | 1 |
| Parmelee | 3 | 3 | 2 | 0 | 1 | 2 |
| Bravakis | 2 | 4 | 3 | 3 | 1 | 2 |
| M'Laugh'n | 1⅓ | 1 | 0 | 0 | 5 | 1 |
| Haywood | 7⅔ | 4 | 1 | 0 | 5 | 13 |

W—Haywood (1-0)
L—Parmelee (0-1)

Vacation Special
Short Sleeve
Dress Shirts
$3.99
Compare at 5.95
We only have a limited supply, so shop early and save.
Colors: White
Blue
Maize
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

Sokol Returns To No. 1 Spot

Netmen Meet Indiana Here

By BOB PETTIS

North Carolina's Tar Heel netmen, who have won six consecutive ACC titles, open their 1964 tennis season today by playing host to the Indiana Hoosiers.

The match will be played on the Varsity Courts, and action is scheduled to begin at 2:00.

Throughout practice sessions this month one big question has loomed through the minds of Carolina faithful: Can the Tar Heels find adequate replacements for two of last year's starters, Keith Stoneman and Bitsy Harrison?

Stoneman, ACC doubles champ in 1961 and 1963, graduated last June, and Harrison, who was seeded number 40 in the U.S., is now in the Army. Just how much the loss of these two netters will hurt the team is yet to be seen.

To fill the gaps vacated by Stoneman and Harrison, Coach Don Skakle has called upon Pete Myers, a senior and top reserve last year, and Carl Evans, the 1963 freshman champion in singles and doubles.

"We don't expect miracles," Skakle said yesterday, "but we feel that once Pete and Carl get a little more experience behind them, our attack should be exceptionally strong and fairly well balanced."

Evans and Myers will perform on either the number five or number six court against Indiana, depending on Skakle's final decision at match time.

Completing UNC's starting six are four of the toughest competitors this part of the country has ever seen. Led by ACC singles champ George Sokol, they include Ted Hoehn, O. H. Parrish and Charlie Shaffer. All are lettermen, and together they form an attack which is devastating, to say the least.

Sokol is set for battle on the number one court, the third straight year he has held that position for Carolina. But exactly who is assigned to courts two-four will again depend on Skakle's decision at 2:00.

In preparing for Indiana, Skakle remarked: "The Hoosiers have a fine team, and they certainly have one of the best squads we will face all year. We won't win by loafing . . . we'll have to hustle."

Today's contest is the first of 10 straight home games for the Tar Heels. But this week is going to be rough, because six of those matches are scheduled for the next seven days.

George Washington comes to Chapel Hill tomorrow, while Michigan State travels here for games on Thursday and Friday. UNC then entertains the University of Toledo on Saturday and M.I.T. next Monday.

Varsity
NOW PLAYING

And The Blue Devils Landed...

By DENNIS SANDERS

RALEIGH-DURHAM AIRPORT—To see their smiling faces, you'd never know that Duke's Blue Devils had been soundly thrashed by UCLA in the NCAA finals, 98-83.

In fact, the short-on-height but long-on-hustle Bruins might have scored 100 had not Vic Bubas wisely inserted Ted Mann in the game's waning moments to hold the score down.

Jay Buckley, who finally learned after three years how to roam the pivot, held the No. 2 plaque high as he and Bubas led the Blue Devil squad to the platform surrounded here by a crowd of 5,000. And right up front, beside Bubas, stood the heroic Devil whose three points late in the clash almost (?) narrowed the gap. He stood proudly, like a Mann.

"I'll have to be honest with you," Bubas said. "The boys kept telling me there'd be all of 50 people here when we came in." What he didn't know was that his team, which landed an hour and a half late, was greeted by 5,000 only because the cops (obviously Duke followers) had parked the cars so that no one could leave until the arrival.

Then Bubas turned prophet: "We finished third last year, second this year, and the way I see it there's only one place left." One Carolina student rose to the occasion well: "There are several places left," he shouted, "fourth, fifth, sixth. . . ." It was the best statement of the afternoon.

Buckley, who with Hack Tison, formed the best rebounding due since Lou Pucillo and Dan Englehardt averaged about 23 recoveries per game for State, spoke for Jeff Mullins, who was in Lexington, Ky., for the Olympic trials and the East-West cage game.

"We feel like the Beatles without Ringo," he said. The crowd would have enjoyed seeing the Beatles more. "We cheered it up last night and we feel fine now," Buckley added. He must have meant before the game.

The seniors finished their quips, and Buckley, the self-appointed master of ceremonies, asked for any requests. I started to yell, "Let's hear 'I Wanta Hold Your Hand,'" but the crowd drowned me out with, "Hack, Hack, Hack."

His sunglasses, giving him a movie star appearance, modest Tison calmly took the microphone and mumbled, "These are the first coherent words I've heard from these fellows in hours." No wonder they looked so bad against the Bruins, they couldn't understand Bubas or themselves. I couldn't either.

Denny Ferguson took a turn and dreamed, "Maybe next year, we'll be number one." I grimaced, wondered how such supposedly intelligent players could make such rash statements, and went home.

Washington College Spoils Heel's Lacrosse Debut, 17-5

By PETE GAMMONS

Washington College of St. Louis invaded the Tar Heels' home territory Monday and spoiled the lacrosse team's 1964 debut, 17-5.

Washington jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first four minutes and rolled from there, completely outplaying the hapless Tar Heels. Gene Fustings scored the first three goals in a minute twenty-five seconds, and ended up with six goals and an assist. Bruce Jaeger added two goals and four assists while Fred Weiss got two goals. Both Washington defense and attack were overwhelming throughout the whole game as ten different players scored, and poured 50 shots on Carolina goalie Harvey Stanley.

Stanley was a bulwark all afternoon in the goal, as the defense in front of him continually folded. Of the 33 shots he turned away, many of them were from close in or on screen shots, and on almost all the goals he had no chance. Washington's carefully manipulated plays time and time again set up men wide open in front of the goal to fire it home.

Tom Thayer was the lone offensive bright spot as he scored three goals, although two of them were in the closing minutes when the cause was lost. After Washington opened up a 4-0 lead, Bud Adams scored an unassisted goal to put Carolina back in the game. But the visitors scored five quick goals in the second quarter before Thayer scored his first. The first half closed at 10-2. After holding Washington to only one goal in the third quarter, the defense again fell apart falling behind 14-2 before Jeff Parker scored, only to fall behind 17-3. Thayer scored the last two goals.

Obviously the defeat was a disappointing one for coach Coney Steele, but Washington is a strong team and nationally known.

The Heels continue play Wednesday when they meet a strong Swarthmore team at 3 o'clock on Navy Field.

Golfers Split With Clemson, So. Carolina

By AL KAPLAN

UNC's golfers spent the week in the Palmetto State and came back with a win and a loss against ACC rivals Clemson and South Carolina.

Behind the strong play of Skip Tucker and Harvey Hill, the golfers defeated Clemson 14½-6½, Thursday. Tucker, a medal winner for the Heels, shot a 3 under par 68. Hill was one under at 70.

The Gamecocks of South Carolina proved to be too tough, vanquishing the golfers 21½-7½. Best scores for the Tar Heels were turned in by Les Fleischer (72) and Billy Stephenson (75).

The Tar Heels, 1-1 on the year play host to Davidson College, today at the Finley Golf Course.

Commenting on the team's play, Coach Ed Kenney said, "The whole team played very well at Clemson. South Carolina played well against us and quite steadily; they should finish near the top of the conference."

Kid Selected As All-South

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — All-America Cotton Nash of Kentucky led the District 3 South all-star team named today by the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Other first team choices were Jeff Mullins of Duke; Fred Hetzell of Davidson; Bill Cunningham of North Carolina and Denny Schultz of Tennessee.

Varsity Men's Wear
Is Your Spring Vacation
Headquarters
For
- Bermudas
- Bermuda-Length Swim Suits
- Dacron Cotton Pants
- Half Sleeve Shirts
- Knit Shirts

We can have all alterations ready before you leave.
Shop early for best selection
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

WHAT COULD BE BETTER THAN SPRING VACATION?
Lying in the sun—surrounded by bronze beauties.
There's lots of time to enjoy sun and fun and it will be more enjoyable if you are prepared to look as good as you feel. Don't wait until the weekend to discover that you need a new bathing suit, bermudas, parkas, sport or knit shirt, or other warm-weather necessities—
With our prices, you can afford to enjoy your vacation in style.
THE HUB of CHAPEL HILL

MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS NOW
WORLD'S FAIR TOURS
2, 3, 4, or 5 DAYS
GUARANTEED HOTEL ROOMS
CHOICE OF NEW YORK CITY ATTRACTIONS
IT'S FUN TO GO TRAILWAYS

Take Trailways over new turnpikes to the world's most exciting city and its greatest fair. Bring the family as Trailways is far more economical than driving. Enjoy a guaranteed hotel room from a choice of hotels. Fast convenient schedules permit daytime or overnight trips to and from New York
Reservations now being made!
2, 3, 4, or 5 Days in New York, guaranteed hotel room, admission to Fair and to selected features.
FROM $42.40 UP
Literature available on all tours
UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin Phone 942-3356
TRAILWAYS.
Easiest way to the Fair

We Have Moved
Opening Wednesday, March 25
At Our New Location Uptown—
Next To The Zoom-Zoom
Register for Free Prizes (Suits, Slacks, Ties, Belts, Shirts)
Winners Will be Announced Saturday, April 4th
CAMPUS STYLE
Next Door to the ZOOM-ZOOM

TROUSERED BY CORBIN
the man who put natural shoulders on trousers
Preferred stock...
CORBIN POPLINS
With warm weather in the offing, Corbin brings back for an encore his perennial favorite: Poplin. Tailored the Corbin way, these trousers keep improving with age: the more you wash them, the better they look and feel! Wear them on the golf course, aboard boat, or aloft in your private hammock. They hold their crisp smartness no matter what! The cut is classic Corbin with pleatless fronts. In select casual colors, such as Natural Tan, Landlubber Blue and Cornmeal. In a high count 65% Dacron® Polyester and 35% Pima Cotton Poplin, they are also made in Bermuda Length Walk Shorts and Bathing Shorts.
Town & Campus

Vacation Delights In Milton's Own Inimitable Manner

New mercerized cotton knit shirts for that sophisticated casual look —$5.95
Tired of bermudas that don't have that just right fit? Fret no more—our new stove-pipe slims have a just right taper, in a slightly shorter cut-seersucker at a mere $4.95; dacron-cotton solids poplis at $5.95 Imported India Madras shirts in new lighter and richer tones—$6.95
Large array of swim shorts including cotton seersucker from $7.95
You'll need several of our perfect roll button-down fabulous M-2's in basic solids and stripes plus new novelty stripings—from $5.95
With a sprinkling of the above suggestions, your holiday is bound to be a satorial hit.
Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Tar Heel Baseball live—play by play—begins today—WCHL-1360

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Weather
Sunny in Daytona

The Daily Tar Heel

★ ★ ★

125

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 25, 1964 | United Press International Service

Newsman Beaten By Mob

1500 Negro Students Battle Police In Jax

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Fifteen - hundred screaming, rockthrowing Negro youths battled police, set fire to a car and beat a newsman Tuesday in continuation of a bloody but seemingly pointless uprising.

The violence appeared to be leaderless mob actions, rather than acts in support of any specific integration demands.

A Negro woman was mysteriously shot to death, a white man was tied to a tree and tortured with razor slashes, and at least three other whites were injured by sniper fire when the violence erupted Monday night.

Nearly 200 persons were arrested in the violence. Police took 45 juveniles and six adults in custody Tuesday, and 127 persons were arrested Monday night.

Police sealed off the Negro section during the night but violence flared again Tuesday morning outside New Stanton High School when the building was emptied because of a bomb scare.

The high school violence triggered still other acts of vandalism, and incidents were reported throughout the city during the day. A truck line reported its vehicles were struck by rocks thrown by young Negroes and police said three Negro girls hurled bricks and stones at passing cars from an expressway bridge.

The flow of traffic into the city was interrupted by a detour which police set up on the expressway to route motorists around the Negro district.

Many whites phoned police headquarters to ask whether it was safe to venture into the city. They were given qualified answers.

The worst outburst of the day came at New Stanton High following an anonymous call that a bomb had been planted in the school.

Police rushed to the scene and tried to break up the mob by arresting one of the ringleaders, but this only infuriated the youths further.

They succeeded in freeing the Negro youth from a patrol car and continued their assault on police with rocks and bottles, despite pistol shots fired in the air by police.

In hopes that the Negro youths would quiet down if they left, the officers turned and walked away from the crowd.

SL Establishes Honor System Commission

By F. NEIL SMITH

A bill establishing the Honor System Commission passed the Student Legislature Monday night.

Introduced by Rep. Phil Baddour (SP) March 12, it gives the Commission the responsibility to concern itself with all problems connected with the Student Judiciary and to make recommendations to the Courts, the Student Legislature and the Attorney General's staff.

The Commission will prepare and administer an orientation program for candidates for the Men's and Women's Council. It will also prepare and administer orientation programs and examinations for newly elected members of the MRC and IFC Courts and members of the Attorney General's staff.

Also passed was a bill appropriating $50 from the unappropriated balance to the Coop Committee.

The amount will be used to attain legal advice to help establish a Student Cooperative. If the Student Cooperative is not established, unused portions will revert to the general surplus. If the Cooperative is established, it shall pay back the entire sum to the Student Body.

The bill was introduced March 12, by Rep. Betsy Meade (UP) and Rep. Phil Baddour (SP) for Mike Lawler, student body president.

A "majors handbook," a Sophomore Class project, went before the legislature in the form of a bill to appropriate $1500 for publication expenses.

The handbook will include educational opportunities available to undergraduates at the University. The bill was sent back to the committee for changes.

P. O. Fast Continues

Several incidents of heckling and name-calling were reported yesterday as five Chapel Hill integrationists continue their eight-day fast on the grounds of the Chapel Hill Post Office.

"Three or four people drove by and threw eggs. One threw a water-filled balloon," said John Dunne, chairman of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee, speaking for the group.

"But the incidents of kindness have far outnumbered the incidents of name-calling," he said.

The demonstrators, Pat Cusick, 32, field secretary for the Student Peace Union; the Rev. La Vert Taylor, 23, field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; James Foushee, 21; Melody Dickinson, 24, a former UNC student; and Dunne, have vowed to go without food for eight days in protest of the segregation policies of certain business establishments in the Chapel Hill area.

"We have had very favorable response in general," Dunne said. "People have stopped to talk to us and encourage us. Some brought cigarettes, blankets and other items.

"One lady brought us a vase of flowers," he said, pointing to a group of yellow flowers standing beneath the Post Office flagpole.

Pete Wales, a junior from St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, has been elected Men's Council chairman for next year. Wales has been a member of the Council for three years and has served as its scribe this semester.
—Photo by Jim Wallace

Women's Council Convicts One, Frees Another

A coed was campused for three-weeks and another was found not guilty during Women's Council trials Monday night.

The Council found the first coed guilty of having committed her sixth House Council offense. They involved lateness beyond the ten "free" minutes given a coed each semester.

The women's residence rule states "After five House Council offenses in one academic year, a student goes before the Women's Council for the sixth violation and any subsequent violations."

The second coed was charged with traveling after hours and being 1½ hours late on March 15. The Council found her not guilty.

Jazz Guitarist Charlie Byrd

'Jubilee' Features Top Jazzman Byrd

Charlie Byrd, one of the world's foremost classical and jazz guitarists, will be featured at this year's Jubilee Weekend, April 24-26.

Byrd has ben credited with making the Bossa Nova a popular jazz media after the success of his version of "Desifinada," made in collaboration with West Coast saxophonist Stan Getz.

Byrd, a native of Chuckatuck, Va., learned to play the guitar as a child from his father, and performed on a local radio station at age 12.

As a member of Special Services of the Army, Byrd toured Europe during World War II, and decided to become a jazz musician after meeting the famous gypsy guitarist Django Reinhardt in Paris.

He continued to study jazz for several years afterwards, and studied at the Hartnett National Music Studios in New York City.

Classical music reclaimed him after Byrd studied with Sophocles Papas and then, in 1954, with Andres Segovia.

Though Byrd admits "I just get more satisfaction out of the classics," he is a master of every facit of the guitar.

Never in his performances will he mix jazz and classical music in one composition by changing the melody or the tempo. "It's a wedding that loses the best of both," he says.

Every Charlie Byrd concert can be expected to contain a wide variety of sounds.

VALKYRIE SING

The Valkyrie Sing will be held in Memorial Hall April 20, it was announced yesterday.

The Order of the Golden Fleece will tap its new members immediately after the Valkyrie Sing is completed.

Betty Ward, chairman of the program, said yesterday that any group who has not been contacted by her should call her immediately at 968-9160 if they desire to enter the contest.

Berryhill Wins Top State Award

Dr. Walter Reece Berryhill, dean of the UNC Medical School, has been selected as the 16th winner of the O. Max Gardner award.

The award, named for the late Tar Heel governor, goes annually to the member of the Consolidated University of North Carolina faculty making "the greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race" during the current academic year.

Dean Berryhill was cited for his role in the development of the UNC Medical School. He received a cash grant from the $25,000 Gardner Award bequest.

The award was announced at an N.C. State dinner in Raleigh attended by about 500 Consolidated University faculty members and trustees. Mrs. George Wilson of Fayetteville, chairman of the Gardner Award Committee, read the citation commending Berryhill for leading the UNC Medical School to national prominence.

BY APRIL 5

N. C. Volunteer Applications Due

Beatty Tells Legislature About Plan

By FRED SEELY

Jim Beatty put aside running in favor of recruiting last night, and the little man seemed to do a good job.

Beatty, former world - record holder in the indoor mile run, spoke to the Student Legislature about the North Carolina Volunteers, the controversial issue which either Governor Terry Sanford or gubernatorial hopeful Dan Moore thought up.

Applications for the program are due April 5.

"The idea of North Carolina Volunteers, to be patterned after the Peace Corps, goes back to the start of the North Carolina Fund this summer," Beatty said.

The plan calls for 100 college students, split into groups of 10, to work in 10 communities chosen by Fund leaders. They would attend a three-day training program starting June 10 in Raleigh, and would then go to the locality to which they were assigned.

At the conclusion of their 10-week stay, they would reassemble in Raleigh for a statewide seminar to discuss the program, its good points and its shortcomings.

Volunteers would be paid $250 for the summer, plus room and board and a small amount for expenses.

"Governor Sanford initiated this program in an effort to curb poverty in the state," Beatty commented. "One of every three families has an income of less than $3000, and the increased automation in the state's two largest industries — tobacco and textiles — will increase the problem.

"Another thing which is holding back many of the people of the state is that there is a high incidence of high-school dropouts," he continued. "This has lowered the education mean of persons over 25 to a sixth grade education.

"Through the NC Volunteers program we hope to get a complete analysis of the problems. The students participating will be tutoring, working with the welfare departments, supervising day care centers and working as assistants to case workers.

"The exact location of the first 10 communities has not been decided. The selection board will make its final choice during April."

Beatty, a graduate of UNC in 1957, is on the staff of the North Carolina Fund.

GLENDA ANN LEE

Coed Chosen To Represent Angel Flight

By SARA ANNE TROTT

A Carolina coed was selected this week as one of 17 Air Force Angels in the nation to compete for the "Little General" title at the 1964 National Air Force ROTC Conclave, Denver, Colo.

"This will be quite an experience for me," said Miss Glenda Ann Lee, a junior from Kannapolis. "I've never been to Colorado or competed in a national beauty contest. Also—I suppose this is terrible for an Air Force Angel to say—I've never been in an airplane."

She will fly to Denver, April 8, for the five-day conclave with Miss Sally Laws, Area B-2 Commander for the Angel Flight. Miss Laws is also a junior here.

Angel Flight is a national organization for the AFROTC. The Arnold Air Society sponsors the Carolina group.

Miss Lee ranked a "Little Colonel" when selected to represent the AFROTC units in Maryland and North Carolina.

"I hope to represent UNC and Area B-2 as well as Nancy Tillman last year. She won the Little General title last year at Buffalo, N. Y.," she said.

Miss Lee is currently reigning as "Miss Kannapolis" and will compete in the "Miss North Carolina" pageant this summer.

In Denver the 17 contestants will be eliminated to four by a special committee. They will be judged on poise, personality, scholastic ability, interest in Angel Flight and beauty.

Fiddles Play Saturday In Union Grove

Looking for something "different" to do over the Easter Holidays?

If so, why not try the 40th annual "Old Time Fiddlers' Convention" that will attract some 5,000 music lovers from across the Eastern Seaboard to Union Grove in Iredell County this Saturday.

College students from as far away as the Ivy League and Florida traditionally attend the event, which began in 1924 as a benefit for Union Grove School.

Last year, the convention drew 350 contestants—some individuals, some bands—from 12 states and the District of Columbia.

Among featured performers will be "Handsome George" Pegram, one of the south's best banjo pickers, the talented "Brushy Mountain Boys" and their washboard band from Wilkes County, and the nationally-known "Mountain Ramblers" of Galax, Va.

Bascomb Lamar Lunsford of Buncombe County, folk artist who has recorded hundreds of songs for the Library of Congress, also is expected.

Music begins with a matinee Saturday, followed that night with the main program at 7 p.m. Crowds remain stationary in one of three areas—the auditorium, gymnasium and a circus tent—while the bands rotate from audience to audience.

Admirers of folk music from some of the country's leading colleges and universities will be on hand to record the event, and NBC's "Monitor" will tune in Saturday night.

LYON APPLICATIONS DUE

All students interested in spending next year in France on the Year-At-Lyon program are reminded to discuss it with their parents over the Easter holidays. Applications will be due April 15, Blanks and brochures are available in 216 Dey Hall.

On Friday, April 3, Dr. Frautschi invites all interested persons to a question-and-answer session on the program in the Faculty Lounge, 4th floor, Dey Hall, at 7 p.m. Coffee will be served.

The Other Side Of Chapel Hill: A View Of Poverty

By JEFFREY DICK

There are two sides to Chapel Hill: A side of new buildings and progress and a side of decadence and poverty.

Chapel Hill is a town which has, in the past decade, been characterized by growth. Building upon building has been erected to house the growing spheres of the University.

The entire southwest section of Chapel Hill contains some 247 new units to house married students. Two new dormitories which house over seven hundred students apiece stand, spanking new, against a background of tall pines.

The southeast section is dominated by new private construction, intended to house faculty members and their usually small families in ultra-modern ranch-style houses.

On the campus itself, an immaculate new language building houses the scientific fruits of many years of research.

One might easily say Chapel Hill is a city of new buildings, progress, and modern science. This, certainly, is one side of Chapel Hill.

The Other Side

There is, however, another side of Chapel Hill. It is a side which one will never see heralded in a newspaper for its newness. This is the side of Chapel Hill where a family of ten lives off of an income of $60 per month, a side where a three-room dwelling is home to fourteen people.

This is the side of Chapel Hill where landlords rent out houses already classified as sub-standard by a housing code described by the assistant city manager as "lax", and do nothing to repair them. On this side of Chapel Hill tenants do not have the finances to repair the inevitable damage which comes upon a house when it stands against the elements for 60 years. This is the side of Chapel Hill where tenants are at the mercy of their landlords.

Don Archer, assistant town manager, confirmed that there is another side to Chapel Hill. "The vast majority of the homes in the northwest section of Chapel Hill make up a blighted area. You will see three and four-room shack with from eight to ten people living in them. Most of these homes are not fit for habitation because of faulty sewage, poor construction and the like."

"We are at a quandry about what to do with the problem," he continued. "We would like to construct some low-cost public housing for these people. We can do it on U.S. Government money."

Paradox Exists

Before the government will give Chapel Hill money for public housing, however, the town must take several actions on its own. "The first thing we have to do," Archer said, " is to raise the standard of the building code. The second thing we have to do is to find a way to construct a home for persons displaced by the proposed construction."

"A definite paradox exists," he continued. "We can't turn these people out into the street in order to build them a new home. What are they going to do in the meantime?"

From the viewpoint of the town, then, the other side of Chapel Hill must exist, at least for a while.

The problems are compounded in many instances by reluctance to act and just plain apathy. Landlords continue to rent homes classified as substandard and the city can not be constantly aware of the transactions. Once the new people have moved in, the town can not act, because it has no place to put these people if it condemns the houses.

In 1962 the town made a survey of the houses in Chapel Hill. It complied a list of 100 homes in the northwest section of Chapel Hill which were considered to be sub-standard. The owners, in most instances landlords, were asked to make repairs which would bring their property up to a level of being "fit for habitation." Although the list was prepared in 1962, a large majority of the homes still have not been repaired.

Tenants Powerless

The tenants, Negroes, for the most part, are powerless. One tenant, head of a household of 14, said: "I haven't got the money to repair my home. Good God, it's all I can do to keep my family in groceries for the month.

Sure, I've told my landlord I'd like some repairs made, but that isn't going to make much difference. He knows I've got no place else to go and that he'll get his $40 a month even if he doesn't repair the house."

The tenant in a three-room dwelling which houses 12 people said: "We're not so bad off. At least we have windows in our home. Go down the street and look at the house on the corner.

On the corner stands a home which time has jilted to an odd angle. There are no windows in the house, just a sheet of plastic stretched loosely across the frame. Inside, you can feel the breeze blow across the room. The owner tells you the air coming through the window "isn't as bad as the draft from the holes in the floor."

All these conditions exist in the other side of Chapel Hill. Steps are being taken to eliminate the problem. The process, however, is slow.

The Federal government has approved the construction of 60 housing units. The Chapel Hill Housing Authority is in the process of buying land for the units. At the time construction begins, the town must have sufficient ordiances on its books to make construction of any new home habitable under federal standards. Sites must be acquired for the homes.

The aim of the Housing Authority is to acquire sites of land on which sub-standard houses exist, so that they might be torn down. The problem remains, however, of what to do with the inhabitants while their homes are being torn down to be replaced by new low-cost housing.

The final problem is perhaps the greatest. Can 60 units of construction housing one family

(Continued on Page 3)

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Example Of Sub-Standard Housing In And Near Chapel Hill

Volume 72, Number 125 Wednesday, March 25, 1964

Long Hair: 'I Like It Like That.'

A Clothes Rebellion?

Ed. Note: The individuals in the following report agreed to participate only if their names were not used. Most of them were still hesitant to say anything, and many of them flatly refused comment. These are their exact words:

—A boy who was wearing khaki trousers and a turtleneck sweater: "When I get up in the morning, I don't give much thought to what I put on. I try to see if it matches. When I buy clothes, I get what I like and don't give much consideration to 'what's in style'.

"I don't think anyone around here is consciously trying to be a beatnik. There are some guys in the group who criticise the guys in the fraternities for dressing a certain way. I think this comes from feelings of insecurity. There's one guy I know who always does that. It seems to be that he is so sensitive about being liked or accepted by others and that he has such a fear of being rejected, that he puts other people down before they get a chance to put him down."

—A girl who was wearing a green corduory dress and dirty sneakers: "I think not conforming to a particular style of dress or activity 'because everybody does it' is a sign of intelligence and individualism.

"No one would really call me a beatnik although I associate with the so-called 'beatniks'. Certainly they don't think I'm a beatnik.

"I don't dress exactly like the Carolina coeds. I don't own a pair of weejuns, a wrap skirt, or a madras blouse. Girls here almost wear a uniform. It's silly.

"My friends are in the 'beatnik' group. I like them because they are all individuals with different philosophies and personalities, not a bunch of conformists. If you see one Carolina coed, usually you've seen them all."

—A boy, neatly dressed but with shabby hair and a beard: "I wear my hair long because I like it like that. I don't know why I wear the beard. As far as stereotyping people according to what they wear, it all depends on what social class you're in. If you're a socialite, you frown on someone who looks sloppy and 'beat'. If you're a 'beat' you frown on someone who's wearing a tie and jacket.

"I was at a party one night and was wearing a madras shirt. A guy came up and said, 'Hey, you've got on a madras shirt. What fraternity do you belong to?'"

—A girl who has been active in the local Civil Rights movement: "I never identify myself with them—the beatniks—although someone who saw me might say I was one.

"I dress according to my mood.

"The so-called 'group' is bound together by the fact there's Harry's, there's beer and good conversation."

—A boy: "Who is a typical beatnik Ask a typical Carolina gentleman or coed, and whatever they say, that's what a typical beatnik is."

—A girl: "I dress the way I do because I like it, because I want to dress that way, because it suits me.

"I don't think I dress much differently from any other girl on campus, except maybe the sorority girls. I think it is ridiculous for everyone to dress exactly alike, right down to the same color."

'We've Had Trouble With Drugs, Stuff Like Benzedrine.'

Psychiatrist Gives His Views

The Rebels— Are They Without A Cause?

Over a cold bottle of beer, and amidst all the cigarette smoke and mournful sounds of Joan Baez that go together to make Harry's Delicatessen, there is a rebellion.

It is a strange kind of rebellion—somewhat reminiscent of an old James Dean picture called "Rebel Without Cause." Yet, it is definitely rebellion, and the so-called "beatniks" who are its participants claim a cause—whether it be real or superficial. It is more likely the latter, for the cause of the "beatnik" is made to fit the rebellion rather than the rebellion to fit the cause. At least this is how a psychiatrist at North Carolina Memorial Hospital sees it.

Dr. Clifford B. Reifler, psychiatrist at the student infirmary who is responsible for the mental health of the UNC student, has thought about the causes. He believes that much of the rebellion is a natural part of growing up while other forms of revolt are a manifestation of illness.

"Most of these students are trying to prove something," said Reifler. "Some try to show that they don't have to be the same as their father, while others rebel simply to prove themselves as an individual."

But these are not the only reasons for student rebellion. "The adolescent wants to prove himself as a man, or he may want to attach some sort of special identity to himself," Reifler says. "Others seek to prove to society that they can't be browbeaten by a strict home life. Many simply want to prove that they can be independent."

Parents very often are the scapegoat for their offsprings' actions. "Many of these kids want to get back at their parents for real or imaginary insults or deprivations. Some find getting themselves thrown in jail is a method of retaliation.

"This type of activity holds true for girls, too," Reifler said. "Often parents teach their daughters that sex is bad, and shouldn't be discussed.

"When this strict parental control is placed on sex, the result may, in such cases of adolescent rebellion, reach either of two extremes: the girl may develop a complete distaste for sex and anything reminding her of sex; or she may rebel, throw her parents' stern warnings completely over-board and become promiscuous.

"In matters of sex, the girl is looked down upon much more than is the boy. He is told to sow his wild oats now, but should the girl get pregnant out of wedlock, everyone gets up in arms.

"In such an instance, the girl's reasons are often like those of the boy who gets himself put in jail intentionally. They both hope to hurt those closest to them."

Reifler said that even religion could be used by many young people as a focus for their rebellion.

"When religion is imposed in a strictly authoritarian manner, it may force the adolescent to the same kind of a choice between two unhealthy extremes: (1) a complete rejection of religion or (2) a trend toward fanaticism as the youngster becomes over-religious," Reifler said.

"Reaction to parental teaching may also play a major role in the child's concept of the segregation-integration conflict. If the parents impose upon their children a high degree of emotional significance to segregation, these children may, again in rebellion, wind up at either extreme, just as when religion is imposed too strictly," Reifler continued.

An equation might be deduced concerning this aspect of the relationship between parents and children: greater imposition of authority in the parents equals greater feeling of need to rebel in the adolescent.

"A man should be a strong father, but it is not necessary to act like a Hitler," Reifler noted.

Are there other forms of adolescent rebellion? Dr. Reifler believes there are many.

"Sometimes a boy is made to go to college only because it's his father's wish. The boy is mechanically - minded, but his father makes him take courses in business administration. At that point, going to college may actually mean more to the father than it does to the son," Reifler continued.

"Soon, finding he can take no more and being unable to deal with his feelings about it realistically, the student unconsciously begins looking for a way to even the score with his father and at the same time get himself off the hook. He may cheat on a quiz or steal with the implied purpose of getting caught — hoping to be kicked out of school. It's obvious that this will throw disgrace on his father.

"It's amazing how many transgressions are related to the need to punish or hurt one's parental figure," Reifler said. "Other people, through resentment for parents, will confess to something they did not commit."

Reifler believes the desire by children to hurt or disgrace their parents stems from an early beginning, during which the child's emotions were forcibly supressed by the parents.

"Through their early years, some children aren't allowed to express any anger toward their family," Reifler contends. "This fosters a feeling of constant guilt in the child and the only way he can escape his guilty feeling is by forcing himself to be punished for something he didn't do, or to do something to be punished for."

Some 400 students a year visit the psychiatry section of the student infirmary. "A majority of these, aware of their own discomfort with themselves, come on their own accord," Reifler says. "By and large these are basically healthy individuals and we can usually help them clarify their problems."

But what of the so-called "beatnik"? Are his unruly manners of dress and appearance and his tendency toward being "cool" merely passing fancies or permanent personal institutions? Dr. Reifler leans toward the former: "Many young people completely work it out of their system."

"Sometimes, 'beats' (as well as 'non-beats') will look at themselves and try to identify their rational and irrational feelings. We only try to help them look at and decide for themselves."

Reifler notes that while parents may initially be at fault for their children's feelings, the individual himself is responsible for his behavior.

"If the person, no matter how 'beat' he is, is a rational person, then he must assume responsibility for his actions."

But what about the rebellion itself? Is the tendency to turn against established order a common one, or is it rare?

Dr. Reifler believes that some rebellion is natural in all adolescents, but he warns against extreme rebellion.

"Some rebellion is absolutely necessary," Reifler says, "but it should work itself out within a year or two. Then the person should be able to take his place in society.

Dr. Reifler concluded that "a mature analysis of one's life is healthy for most people. But what the adolescent often fails to realize is that he must reexamine the principles, rules and regulations set down by his parents. In so doing he must throw away his infantile acceptance and assimilate these principles within the scope of his own integrity as a mature individual."

A Look At A Local Rebellion

BLACKWELL

Mickey Blackwell, Daily Tar Heel reporter, recently completed a survey of student rebellion in Chapel Hill. Specifically, the survey dealt with the so-called "beats." Among those interviewed by Blackwell were: Dr. Clifford B. Reifler, psychiatrist at N.C. Memorial Hospital; Dr. Earle Somers, local psychiatrist and part-time instructor in the School of Medicine; Dean of Men William G. Long; Campus Police Chief A. J. Beaumont; and many of the "rebelling" students themselves; photographs are by Jim Wallace.

Beaumont— 'These Kids Don't Know How To Cry'

Arthur J. Beaumont is a hefty, wavy-headed, transplanted northerner, who is chief of the Campus Police. In this position, the former fireman keeps a close watch on the "beat" population of the University community.

Most of the so-called beats don't like Beaumont, but they respect him to a certain degree. Beaumont respects them too — but that respect is tempered with pity.

"Around Chapel Hill, we've had trouble with them taking drugs," Beaumont says. "Not narcotics, mind you, but stuff like benzedrine. Their diet is so poor that these drugs really send them reeling."

Like Dean of Men William Long, his South Building counterpart, Beaumont has had trouble getting through to the "beats." The chief showed sincere concern as he spoke of the emotion or lack of emotion shown by all of the "beats" he had come in contact with.

"These kids just don't cry—they don't know how to cry. They try to hide their emotions, not only from me but everybody else. This is why many of them crack up. These people have never begged me for mercy like a lot of the big bullies do. You can't get through to these people—they won't break down and really let themselves go. If you can't cry, you're licked—you explode," Beaumont said.

Beaumont has had a rare opportunity to see the "beats" more often than any other "outsider." From his contacts with them, Beaumont has drawn several conclusions:

"They are constantly looking for some new kick," says the chief. "They look for some new cause—drinking, taking drugs, reading, demonstrating and others. Most of the time they only hurt themselves . . . but most people just can't seem to realize this.

'Others Rebel Simply To Prove Themselves As An Individual'

The Party— Banjos, Booze And Tension

Ed. Note: The following is an interview with a student who claims to be in a "process of rebellion." This person, who asks that his name not be used, describes a typical party when members of the "beat" group get together. The interviewee stated that the parties were all about the same. He did note, however, that parties this year "aren't as wild as they have been in years past." These are his exact words.

A party is held almost every weekend, usually at the apartment of the same two or three people. Some of these parties are announced by the host, and others are not. Sometimes the group may decide to go over to someone's home, and the person has no idea they are coming.

Everyone is to bring his own booze. The boys gladly give it to the girls, who are always outnumbered.

Everyone drinks. On rare occasions there is a teetotaler present. The party seems to be no fun if you're not drinking. In two hours, practically everyone is high. Some people get very happy and others get quite depressed.

Sometimes arguments start over some guy's girl or vice versa. Very seldom are actual blows struck, but there is usually a great deal of tension—sort of like a time bomb that never goes off.

Both whites and Negroes are present at the parties.

There are usually several people present who play guitars or banjos. The group may sit around singing or just listening and drinking. If records are played, it is usually folk or Blue Grass music, sometimes rock 'n roll. The group in general prefers folk music to rock and roll. Hardly ever does the group as a whole dance. People sit around or stand around in groups talking and drinking. There are beer cans all over the place.

A group of people may play a few pranks or pull a few stunts like climbing on the roof, playing tug of war or touch football.

Sometimes, the police have to warn us to be quiet, but they haven't had to break up the parties like they did in the past.

It's An Old Revolt With New Causes

"McCarthyism" and television have been responsible for a decrease in rebellion in the last ten years, according to Chapel Hill psychiatrist Dr. Earle Somers.

"I think 'McCarthyism' was destructive to many people in the way they were thinking," Somers said. "If you disagree with the middle of the road policy, you were labeled a Communist. This stopped much of the outward rebellion and rash statements that many people were making."

Somers said that television had given people a picture of the way things should be. Before television, the movies helped shape people's thoughts.

"There is not as much rebellion as there used to be," says Somers, "especially on the social level.

"In the late 40's when I was a student here, there was a lot more diversified and spontaneous rebellion than there is now. Today, if anyone speaks out on social issues, it is so unusual that they are tagged as radicals."

Dr. Somers, who also is a part-time instructor at the UNC School of Medicine, has noticed a general decline of rebellion both professionally and socially.

Dr. Clifford Reifler, a psychiatrist at the UNC Student Infirmary and Instructor in psychiatry says, "Only their causes have changed. The rebellion itself is essentially the same.

"There hasn't been much change in the type of person who rebels," Reifler says.

Reifler said that some four per cent of UNC's 10,000 plus student population are seen each year at the Student Infirmary by the pschiatric staff. He says there is probably another four to six per cent who could use help, but who may not realize they have a problem which could be helped by psychiatric counseling, or are afraid to seek it.

William G. Long, who has served as Dean of Men for the past five years has noticed little change in the physical appearance of the "beats."

"I do believe the students in rebellion are more vocal than ever," Long notes. Many of the people in rebellion are, at least as far as they believe, concerned about other people.

"Today, the people in rebellion aren't going out just for private causes, but they are adopting some responsibility for other people—the most recent dramatic example was the sit-ins in which many of them participated."

Dean Long— 'You Can't Talk With Them'

Dean of Men William G. Long has had to call many of the "rebel" students into his office for matters ranging from misconduct to emotional instability. However, Long maintains he hasn't been able to make real contact with them.

"I know I am talking, but I'm not really having a conversation," Long says. "There is no real exchange of communication. Sometimes, however, they lead me along and feed me stuff which they think might shock me.

"It's like playing a game, and believe me, the opponent is quite formidable. It's kind of a wierd experience talking to them, because most of them are quite condescending—they think I'm trying to get them or something."

In his position as Dean of Men, Long is responsible for, among other things, the disciplining of male students. It is this duty that Long thinks stimulates resentment from the "rebels."

"I am positive I am a parental image to most of these students. I am saying things they have heard over and over at home and they resent my saying it again.

"However, I only try to get them to understand that we have a problem and I ask them to work with me to help find out the causes.

"But it's hard for me to carry this burden, because they only say, 'This guy talks just like my Dad'."

"I feel I have been singularly unsuccessful," Long says. "They don't want to accept an offer of assistance—they don't trust anybody."

Long said he has studied college board exams, high school records and IQ's of the "rebels", but they didn't match up with their performance in college.

"Many of them are quite brilliant," Long said. "They could be doing so well, but most of them are doing sub-standard work. They are very difficult to work with because they are so intelligent. You can't tell if they're feeding you a line or not."

Long cited several examples of students who had made near-perfect records on college entrance examinations, but who "entered such total rebellion" that they lost interest in everything "except their fellow rebels and the causes they advocated.

"I asked one boy why he didn't buy some new clothes and shoes. I knew his parents could afford them. The boy replied that he 'wanted his money to go to someone else' who needed it more than he did. The boy conveyed the feeling that it was good to deny himself the necessities of life. It was as though he were deliberately trying to protest the inequities of the world without affecting them.

"This boy and others with whom I've talked seem to be in rebellion against whatever the established order is.

"So often," Long continued, "they are trying to bear the burden of the world. They exercise almost total self-denial, even the common decency of washing."

Long sees the "rebels" as sticking together in common causes.

"Many of them participated in great numbers in the recent sit-in demonstrations," Long said. "I'm not trying to discredit the movement—this is just a fact."

Many of Long's contacts with the "rebels" come from behavior problems, which arise from "wild" parties. Most of the problems Long encounters are actually violations of a law, such as unlawful possession of certain drugs.

"I also get a lot of the ones who have been acting irrationally or bizarre-like," Long says. "Sometimes, they even threaten suicide. That is when I immediately send them to a psychiatrist.

"Generally, they are a quiet bunch, but when they get together and begin experimenting with new ideas, things get out of hand, and the police and administration are forced to step in."

Although Long realizes that most of the "rebels" he has talked with neither like nor trust him, he still maintains a sympathetic attitude toward them.

"We shouldn't try to pressure them into being like we are," says Long. "We could be a little less sensitive than we are, and be as understanding as possible.

"Many of them will probably grow out of this stage, and make fine citizens. So let's not condemn them simply because they aren't like we are."

From The BOLSHOI BALLET...The Great Prima Ballerina
MAYA PLISETSKAYA in
The Little Humpbacked Horse
featuring VLADIMIR VASILYEV - ALEXANDER RADUNSKY
and the BOLSHOI CORPS DE BALLET
An Arkino Magicolor Feature Presentation
Shows at: 2:00 - 4:10
6:20 - 8:30
Carolina
Adults $1.00
THURS. ONLY

PEANUTS

BEST DEAL IN TOWN
(Eating–That Is)
Student Special
● All the CHICKEN you can eat ..... 88c
● All the FISH you can eat ..... 69c
MONDAY - FRIDAY; 4:00 - 7:00 P.M.
GRANTS EASTGATE Shopping Center

GIFTS FOR YOUR HONEY
Candies, Cosmetics, Cards, Toys . . .
Something for everyone on your gift list. Free Gift Wrapping.
FROM THE
EASTER IS MARCH 29
Glen Lennox PHARMACY
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.
FREE DELIVERY
PHONE 967-7014

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

DTH Publication Schedule — today is the last issue before the holidays; publication will resume Wed., April 1.

TODAY

Westminster Fellowship — 6:45 a.m., Presbyterian Student Center, communion breakfast.
Basketball Club—4 p.m., Women's Gym.
Foreign Students Comm.—6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir, talk by Mr. Ishrish.
Badminton Club—7 p.m., Women's Gym.
SP Advisory Board — 7 p.m., April 1, Grail Room, fill legislative vacancies.
SP Precinct Meeting — 8 p.m., April 1, RP I and II.
Anyone interested in signing up for the UNC Amateur Radio classes in Morse Code and Radio Theory to be held each eveing, 6:30-7 p.m., may do so in Caldwell Y.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost—brown leather wallet, reward, contact David Yount, 320 Avery.
Lost—grey-blue zipper folder in Peabody, contact Bob Wilson, 968-9169.
Lost — duplex log slide rule, name on case, contact 313 Graham.
Lost — brown-rimmed prescription sun glasses near Circus Room, contact Gayle Munroe, 312 McIver.
Lost—dark blue overcoat, no lining; Found—dark green overcoat, no lining; both in Lenoir, contact George Willets, 304 Graham.
Lost—light tan car coat, brown leather gloves in pocket, reward, Max Vanpelt, 212 Manley.
Lost—black and brown female German shepard puppy, reward, 942-3684.
Lost—plain black-rimmed glasses in black brocade case, contact Mary Susan Kirk, 322 Spencer.

MOVIES

Carolina—Lafayette
Varsity—Lady Chatterley's Lover.

– Poverty –

(Continued From Page 1)

each, eliminate the housing problems of 100 sub-standard homes housing families of up to 14 people?

These problems exist in a year when the President of the United States has called for an all-out "war on poverty." They exist on the other side of Chapel Hill.

BASEBALL—THE ONE TO ONE PITCH

Curves are being pitched over. Low cut necklines and empire shifts are sending players way out in left field. They have to guess the curves. However, it drives the fans and the players wild while you are rounding the bases.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

WOMEN BECOME "YOUNGER" . . . when they get Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance. Hard to believe? We'll gladly explain. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates, Telephone No. 942-6966.

WANTED: SALESMAN WITH experience in selling men's clothing. Monday, Wednesday, Friday mornings. 9 A.M.-1 P.M. Call Mr Rosemond 942-6610.

"HUGE SPECTACULAR DRAMA... STIRRING! THE PICTURE IS A THING OF BEAUTY!"
—Zunser, Cue

Starring
Jack Hawkins - Orson Wells
Howard St. John - Vittorio De Sica
Edmund Purdom - Pascale Audret
TODAY ONLY
Carolina
THURSDAY
POLISH BALLET MAYA PLISETSKAYA "THE LITTLE HUMPBACKED HORSE" IN GLORIOUS MAGICOLOR

(Advertisement)
BEAUTY NOTES
BY ALICE STONE
Here are a few facts concerning scratchy, non-catchy Erythema solare—better known as sunburn. A leading dermatologist had this to say.
"Sun ages the skin. Too much of it over long peroids destroys the elastic fibers, or connective tissues, and they become degenerated.
"These fibers are like rubber bands and hold the skin taut. If you overdo it, even with a tan, the rays get down into the connective tissues."
Forgetting skin and sun for the moment, let's speak of your hair. Is it a problem — a lank, limp, spiritless problem? Actually, you don't have a great problem at all. There are always the excellent facilities and stylists of Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon, 133½ East Franklin to serve you. Try us. Phone 943-4335.
THIS WEEK'S HELPFUL HINT: Try refrigerating birthday cake candles the day before using; they will burn slower and with even glow.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Tray for type: print.
5. Bird's beak
9. Placed at a focus
10. To revoke: law
12. Respiratory organs
13. Let
14. One hundred sq. meters
15. To pass by, as time
16. Babylonian city
17. —— Christian Andersen
19. Nourished
20. Trusted
22. Property: L.
23. Goddess of harvests: It.
24. Court
26. Son: Scotch prefix
28. Consolidation
31. Goddess of destruction
32. Secular
33. Roman "II"
34. Dissolved
36. Likely
37. Watered silk
38. Small flycatcher
40. Change
41. Pitchers
42. Affirmative votes
43. Examination

DOWN
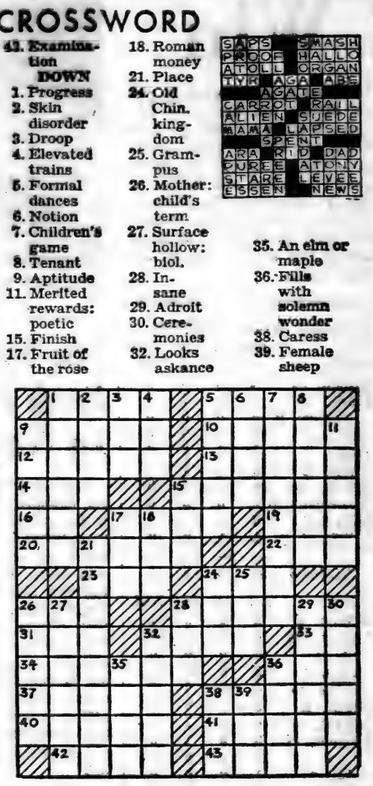
1. Progress
2. Skin disorder
3. Droop
4. Elevated trains
5. Formal dances
6. Notion
7. Children's game
8. Tenant
9. Aptitude
11. Merited rewards: poetic
15. Finish
17. Fruit of the rose
18. Roman money
21. Place
24. Old Chin. kingdom
25. Grampus
26. Mother: child's term
27. Surface hollow: biol.
28. Insane
29. Adroit
30. Ceremonies
32. Looks askance
35. An elm or maple
36. Fills with solemn wonder
38. Caress
39. Female sheep



A NEW KIND OF FOLK SOUND

Make a date with Elaine, Joyce, Leni, Babs and Judy. They call themselves "The Womenfolk." They're the most thrilling new folk group on records and their sound is fresh and different on songs like "Green Mountain Boys," "Old Maid's Lament" and "Whistling Gypsy Rover." Keep your date at your record dealer today. Don't keep five ladies waiting!
RCA VICTOR
The most trusted name in sound

EASTER MENU VALUE! "SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY SMOKED
HAM Center Slices LB. 75c Whole 12 to 16 LB-AVG. LB. 43c
"Super-Right" Quality Oven Ready
WHOLE LAMB LEG ..... LB. 63c
LAMB CHOPS RIB LB. 65c LOIN LB. 85c
Allgood Brand No. 1
SLICED BACON ..... 1-LB. PKG. 39c
Beef Chicken or Turkey
MEAT PIES JESSE JEWELL ... 4 8 OZ. PKGS. 59c
Top Quality Young 10 to 14-lb.
TURKEY HENS ..... LB. 35c
Ann Page Rich, Tomato
KETCHUP 2 1-LB. 4-OZ. BOTS. 49c
A&P
CANTALOUPES . . . 3 45-Size $1.00
CARROTS Fresh Golden . . 2 Lb. Bag 15c
ORANGES Florida Juicy . . 5 Lb. Bag 49c
Strawberries Fresh, Plump, Ripe 3 Pt. Basket $1.00
FERTILIZER–8-8-8 . 50-Lb. Bag $1.39
Chick Chick Egg Dye Small Kit 19c
Sultana Stuffed Olives 10½-oz Jar 49c
A&P WHOLE KERNEL CORN 2 1-lb 1-oz. Cans 25c
MARGARINE Ann Page Corn Oil 2 1-LB. PKGS. 49c
MORTON FROZEN CREAM
PIES 3 14-OZ. PKGS. 89c
JUST HATCHED! the gayest array ever of A&P's EASTER CANDY
Worthmore Fruit Flavored
ASSORTED CANDY POPS .... 12¼-Oz. 45c 8-Oz. 29c
Worthmore Tasty
COCOAUNT CREME EGGS ..... 12-Oz. Pkg. 39c
Worthmore Chocolate Standing
COCOANUT CREAM BUNNY ..... 4-Oz. Size 21c
Worthmore Milk Chocolate
DECORATED MARSHMALLOW EGGS 6-Oz. Pkg. 33c
Worthmore Multi-Colored, Fruit Flavored
JELLY EGGS ..... 1-Lb. Bag 29c 1-Lb., 12-Oz. Bag 45c
Worthmore Assorted Colors
MARSHMALLOW EGGS ..... 12-Oz. Pkg. 33c
Jane Parker Freshly Baked
Large Apple Pies ..... 1½-Lb. Size 39c
Jane Parker Wheat
BREAD 2 1-Lb. Loaves 33c
Prices in this ad Effective thru March 28th

Spence Willard High On Hill In 8-2 Win

By JOHN MONTAGUE

For the second straight day Coach Walt Rabb looked to the bullpen, and for the second straight day the bull-pen answered with near perfect pitching.

Tuesday afternoon it was Spence Willard coming in for starter Bill Dannemann in the fifth inning, and breezing the rest of the way as the Tar Heels stopped Connecticut again, 8-2.

Willard, who has been troubled with a sore shoulder, had no trouble of any kind yesterday. Instead it was the Uconns who were having trouble—with Willard's pitches. The big right-hander gave up only a bunt single in his five scoreless innings on the mound, while striking out five and walking but one.

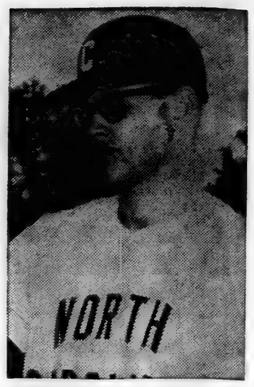
In all the Uconns managed five hits, three of them coming in the fourth frame when they touched Dannemann for two runs. Trailing 5-0, the visitors scored on a walk, a single, a triple and another single. A double-play erased one of the runners before pitcher Bob Horozy smashed the three-bagger over Bill Taylor's head in right field.

Horozy, the second of the three Connecticut pitchers, mastered the Tar Heels for four innings, giving up only Taylor's two-out single in the fifth. But starter Russ Rotico and finisher Bob Booth had problems by the bushel.

Rotico's main difficulty was not his throws to the plate, but his throws to first base. In the first inning after Jim Speight had ripped a single to right, Rotico tried to pick the blond shortstop off first. Speight ended up on third when the throw was wild and got by first baseman Ed Carroll. He scored when Bill Brown lashed a line single to left.

And Rotico had not learned his lesson. After Gary Black had walked to start the second and Merle Kruer had singled him to third, Rotico tried to catch Kruer off first. The throw zoomed over Carroll's head as Black trotted across the plate and Kruer raced to third.

Bill Taylor then walked, Tom Wright struck out, and shortstop Lee Johnson bobbled Bill Dannemann's double-play grounder, letting Kruer score and keeping Mr. Rotico in hot water. After Dickie Prindle forced courtesy runner Dick Fleming at second, Rotico tried again. His attempt to pick off Prindle was muffed by Carroll, Taylor scoring run No. 4 and Prindle going to second. Walks to Speight and Brown loaded the bases, and another error by Johnson on Ken Willard's grounder allowed Prindle to cross the plate. In all, the Tar Heels scored four runs on one hit and four errors.



SPENCE WILLARD
. . . 5 Good Innings

UNCONVINCING UCONNS

| UNC | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Prindle, 2b | 5 | 2 | 1 | 1 |
| Speight, ss | 4 | 1 | 2 | 1 |
| Brown, ib | 3 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| K. Willard, lf | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Black, cf | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Kruer, c | 3 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Taylor, rf | 2 | 2 | 1 | 0 |
| Wright, 3b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Dannemann, p | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| a-Fleming | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| S. Willard, p | 1 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 31 | 8 | 6 | 3 |

| CONN. | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Jackson, lf | 2 | 0 | 2 | 1 |
| Gaffney, 2b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| King, rf | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Haiday, c | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Penders, 3b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Carroll, 1b | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Johnson, ss | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Meissner, cf | 3 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| b-Urda | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Rotico, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Horozy, p | 2 | 1 | 1 | 1 |
| Booth, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| c-Schaefer | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 31 | 2 | 5 | 2 |

a—ran for Dannemann in 2nd; for Kruer in 3rd
b—struckout for Meissner in 9th
c—lined out for Booth in 9th

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| CONN. ..... | 000 | 200 | 000—2 |
| UNC ..... | 140 | 000 | 03x—8 |

| PITCHING | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Rotico ... | 2 | 3 | 5 | 0 | 4 | 1 |
| Horozy ... | 4 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 4 |
| Booth .... | 2 | 2 | 3 | 3 | 2 | 1 |
| Dan'emann | 4 | 4 | 2 | 2 | .5 | 2 |
| S. Willard | 5 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 5 |

W—Willard (1-0)
L—Rotico (0-1)

Six Swimmers Seek Plaudits In Nationals

Coach Pat Earey along with his six swimmers who placed third in the recent Eastern Championships travel to New Haven, Conn. today for the NCAA Championship Meet. If Thompson Mann, Harrison Merrill, Davis Roberts, Freddie Lipp, John Sheldon, and Rick Forum perform as well at New Haven, there is a strong liklihood of each making the finals in both individual and relay events. Certainly, the keen competition will demand that the boys give everything they are capable of if UNC is to make a good showing.

Lip KO's WBA

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cassius Clay kept his heavyweight title Tuesday — for the time being, anyway — by a technical knockout over the World Boxing Association WBA.

The WBA's threat to life the boxing crown from the brow of gabby Cassius for "conduct detrimental to boxing" was officially shelved by WBA President Ed Lassman "until after the Senate hearings" now going on in Washington concerning Clay's contract for last month's fight against Sonny Liston.

Heels Lose Opener, 5-4

Indiana Stuns UNC Netters

By BOB BETTIS

North Carolina, a powerhouse in tennis ever since 1928, learned yesterday that Indiana Hoosiers couldn't care less.

In sweeping two of three doubles matches, the Hoosiers captured a stunning 5-4 opening day upset over Carolina. The loss was only the third setback the Tar Heels have suffered in three years, and two of those defeats came at the hands of Miami, one in 1962 and one in 1963.

The doubles team of Al Graham and Charlie Kane put Indiana ahead 4-3 when they turned back Pete Myers and Carl Evens, 6-3, 6-2. And an Indiana victory was assured as Dave Power and Rod McNurney edged O. H. Parrish and Ted Hoehn of UNC on the first doubles court, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

The final score of 5-4 was recorded when George Sokol and Charlie Shaffer completed doubles hostilities with a 2-6, 6-3, 6-4 triumph over the Hoosiers' Charlie Fichter and Jim Binkley.

But it was action in the singles that convinced Tar Heel followers that the Hoosiers were set on carrying a victory back to Indiana. A partisan home crowd estimated at near 1,000 watched somewhat unbelievingly as UNC fell behind by 2-0.

Parrish and Shaffer, playing on the number two and four courts respectively, concluded their matches after one hour of play. They had something else in common, too, for they both lost.

Nevertheless, UNC quickly evened the score.

Hoehn, performing at the number three post, got the first point for Carolina with his 6-3, 6-2 triumph over Graham.

Then Sokol, demonstrating why UNC Coach Don Skakle likes him on court one, conquered Dave Power, 6-2, 6-4.

UNC then fell behind again, when Evans, a Kentucky sophomore experiencing his first varsity game, lost to the Hoosiers' number six man, Binkley, by a score at 3-3. Myers did just that in beating Fichter, 6-4, 8-6, but not without a struggle.

At this point all eyes centered on court five, because a UNC win here would deadlock the 6-4, 6-2 margin.

SUMMARY

Singles

Sokol (UNC) def. Power, 6-2, 6-4.
McNerney (Ind) def. Parrish, 6-4, 6-2.
Hoehn (UNC) def. Brown, 6-3, 6-2.
Kane (Ind) def. Shaffer, 6-2, 6-4.
Myers (UNC) def. Fichter, 6-4, 8-6.
Binkley (Ind) def. Evans, 6-4, 6-2.

Doubles

Graham-Kane (Ind) def. Myers-Evans, 6-3, 6-2.
Howard-McNerney (Ind) def. Parrish-Hoehn, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.
Sokol-Shaffer (UNC) def. Fichter-Binkley, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

'NEW WINE' GOES ON SALE

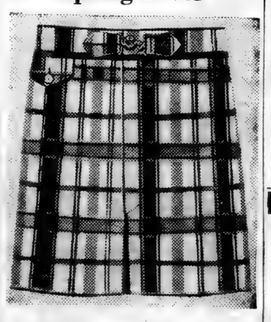
Copies of "New Wine" which features articles on the subject of death will go on sale tomorrow for 50 cents.

Places where the book can be purchased on campus are: Y Court, Graham Memorial, Lenoir Hall, Kemp's, Carolina Coffee Shop, N.C. Memorial Hospital, Hospitality Shop and the Presbyterian Church, Box 509.

"New Wine" is published by the Westminster Fellowship. Last Fall, the magazine featured the subject of Race.

Startling National Survey:
ARE COLLEGE ATHLETICS CORRUPT?
April SPORT presents the most important report ever published in SPORT . . . the shocking findings of financial corruption in college sports. Based on months of investigation of colleges and universities, it pulls no punches. Be sure to read this conclusion to "How Immoral Are College Athletics."
Also in April SPORT:
"WHAT AN OLD MAN LEARNED ABOUT FOOTBALL" by Y. A. Tittle
"HOW WE WON BACK THE DAVIS CUP" by Bud Collins
Read all about the sport scene's great favorite and controversial figures in SPORT, the magazine that keeps you apace of all events in college and pro sports. For top coverage, in-depth profiles, action-packed photos . . . Read April
SPORT
Favorite magazine of the sports stars and the sports minded!
NOW ON SALE!

Milton's Basic Ingredients For Spring Fever



New mercerized cotton knit shirts for that sophisticated casual look —$5.95

Tired of bermudas that don't have that just right fit? Fret no more—our new stove-pipe slims have a just right taper, in a slightly shorter cut-seersucker at a mere $4.95; dacron-cotton solids poplis at $5.95 Imported India Madras shirts in new lighter and richer tones—$6.95

Large array of swim shorts including cotton seersucker from $7.95

You'll need several of our perfect roll button-down fabulous M-2's in basic solids and stripes plus new novelty stripings—from $5.95

With a sprinkling of the above suggestions, your holiday is bound to be a satorial hit.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Early Easter

The Easter Bunny reminds us that he'll be here in March this year, and suggests a few titles that are sure to delight that young heart Easter Morning . . .

A new Joan Walsh Anglund
A Pocketfull of Proverbs
with its own slip-case, ..... $1.95
and
The Fuzzy Duckling
and
The Golden Bunny
big picture books, each .... $1.00
in the delightful children's book section at
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open every day until 10 p.m.

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.
BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1
Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes
115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

HAPPY EASTER
Let your enjoyable holiday begin with the finest in traditional clothing. We invite you to drop by and see our collection of spring-summer styles. Check those items that you will need if you are planning to spend your vacation in the sun
BERMUDAS — SWIM SUITS — SHIRTS
With our prices, you can afford to Spend Your Vacation in Style
THE HUB of Chapel Hill

CHARMACK
The Magician
P. O. Box 118
New York 9, N. Y.

THE TEMPO
will be open from 6 to midnight during vacation

We Have Moved
Now Open For Business
At Our New Location Uptown—
Next To The Zoom-Zoom
Register for Free Prizes (Suits, Slacks, Ties, Belts, Shirts)
Winners Will be Announced Saturday, April 4th
CAMPUS STYLE
Next Door to the ZOOM-ZOOM

Carolina
OPENS FRIDAY FOR ONE WEEK
3 Academy Award Nominations
GREGORY PECK / TONY CURTIS
CAPTAIN NEWMAN, M.D.
EASTMAN COLOR
CO-STARRING ANGIE DICKINSON
AND CO-STARRING BOBBY DARIN AS CORPORAL ZAHN TOMPKINS
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

Varsity
WEDNESDAY
D. H. Lawrence's Controversial masterpiece—
"LADY CHATTERLY'S LOVER"
THURSDAY
Please do not reveal the middle of this picture!

PARAMOUNT PICTURES presents
JERRY LEWIS as 'THE NUTTY PROFESSOR'
(A Jerry Lewis Production)
CO-STARRING STELLA STEVENS DEL MOORE · KATHLEEN FREEMAN
PRODUCED BY ERNEST D. GLUCKSMAN · DIRECTED BY JERRY LEWIS · WRITTEN BY BILL RICHMOND
JERRY LEWIS - A Paramount Release
TECHNICOLOR
FRIDAY

FRANK SINATRA
COME BLOW YOUR HORN
TECHNICOLOR
A PARAMOUNT RELEASE
SATURDAY
PAUL NEWMAN
JOANNE WOODWARD
A NEW KIND OF LOVE
TECHNICOLOR
COMING SOON
"A ROARING ENTERTAINMENT!" —New York Times

Tom Jones
EASTMANCOLOR
A UNITED ARTISTS RELEASE

Old Spice—with that crisp, clean masculine aroma!

☐ none? ☐ 1 inch? ☐ 1½ inches?

How much foam should there be?

You'll hear some people say there shouldn't be any head at all. They say phooey on the foam . . . where's the beer!

They shouldn't. Not when it's Budweiser, anyway.

Budweiser is brewed so that it will kick up a healthy head of foam. We go to a lot of trouble to let Budweiser create its own tiny bubbles, rather than pumping them in. Natural carbonation and our exclusive Beechwood Ageing are two things we just won't get modern about. It takes a lot longer this way, and costs more money. (In fact, it gives our treasurer fits.) But the results—a good head of foam, real beer taste, smoothness and drinkability—are more than worth it.

So pour your Budweiser with about an inch-and-a-half collar of foam. Two inches if it's a tall glass. Watch those bubbles gather . . . then taste. (That's what we tell our treasurer to do when he starts fussing about the high cost of bubbles and beechwood. And he just smiles and swallows his arguments.)

Budweiser®
that Bud®...that's beer!
ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS • NEWARK • LOS ANGELES • TAMPA

N.C. Library
rials Dept. x 870
apel Hill, N.C.

April Fool Edition

The Daily Red-Neck

The Weather
Earthquakes

72 Years Of Editorial Foibles

ed Oct. 14, 1492 | CARRBORO, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1964 | Complete NAACP Wire Service

GETTING READY—DTH co-editor Gary Blanchard is shown yesterday preparing his supporters with "conservative" literature for the upcoming campaign. Blanchard and David Ethridge have announced for re-election for editors of the DTH, expressing their reluctancy to run but saying "the campus needs someone of our caliber to carry on the good work." The campaign workers declined to be identified.

—Photo by John Salter.

ON APRIL 14

Lawler To Make Bid For Campus Prexy

Dickson, Spearman Express Surprise

Mike Lawler, one of the all-time popular student body presidents, yesterday announced his candidacy for re-election to the position of chief playmate in the student government "sandbox."

Lawler, running on the independent ticket, has already been backed by Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathy for the post.

Lawler's opponents, Jeff Dickson of the Student Party and Bob Spearman University Party, said they were extremely surprised at the unprecedented move by Lawler.

Dickson noted, "But gosh a mighty! Mike was supposed to be running my campaign."

Spearman reported, "That he was disappointed that he'd have such a formidable opponent in the spring election. "After all," he said, "I've been planning on being president of the student body now for three years. I'll just have to work harder."

Rumors have it that Lawler dropped five courses to retain his eligibility.

For further details see next year's April 1 Edition.

CORRECTION

The editors deeply regret their statement in yesterday's paper that a well-known campus conservative "is not fit to clean out a hog pen." We realize that it was rude and uncalled for in the tenets of today's journalism. Actually, he is fit to clean out a hog pen.

ERICKSON WITHDRAWS

UNC Athletic Director Chuck Erickson yesterday sold out his interest in the University Motel, one of two dozen local businesses still segregated.

Erickson announced his action at the weekly Athletic Department press luncheon.

"I don't mind them being segregated," Erickson said, "but I heard they were planing to 'plow the place under' if a federal Civil Rights law passes, and damned if I want to see my investment lost like that."

Merchants Association Will Fast At Town Hall

The Chapel Hill Merchants Association yesterday announced it will conduct a six-day fast next week "because most of us are too fat, and also because we're tired of tending shop."

Joe Augustine, executive secretary, made the announcement yesterday. He said he plans to burn himself slightly at the end of the fast to prove to his membership that "white men can be militant, too."

Veteran local observers said they doubted the 37 merchants scheduled to participate in the food fast would really stick with the scheme.

"I'll give you ten-to-one odds that after the first day you'll be able to find chicken bones in the vicinity," one of the observers said.

Augustine denied there would be any "fudging" and said the fast would be held on the steps of Town Hall.

Gov. Terry Sanford immediately issued a statement that town officials would be "given every resource at my command" to prevent the fasters from getting unruly.

"This is a helluva way to do business," Sanford said.

The three minor gubernatorial candidates echoed Sanford's words in varying degrees of harshness.

I. Beverly Lake said, "The only thing wrong with the Governor's statement is that it came three hours too late. If I were Governor I'd read their minds and make my statements in advance of the events which they concern."

Dan K. Moore read Lake's statement to himself, then remarked to a reporter, "This goes for me too."

L. Richard Preyer said he had studied the situation and was told to agree with the essence of Sanford's statement by Bert Bennett.

The two major gubernatorial candidates also issued statements. "I'm for legalized gambling," said Bozo Burleson, a judo expert.

"We must prevent our insurance money from going to South Dakota," said Ray Stansbury.

MILTON ROSEN has been named to the UNC Faculty as "Communist - in - Residence," Chancellor William B. Aycock announced yesterday. Rosen will teach "Contemporary Political Theory: From Marx to Helms and Back," with special emphasis on the Progressive Labor movement.

Town Is Indicted

The Town of Chapel Hill yesterday was indicted for conspiracy by the Orange County Grand Jury, operating under the instructions of District Solicitor Thomas "Dickie" Cooper.

In a sealed presentment leaked to the press hours before the initial announcement, Cooper said: "I . . . that is, the Grand Jury . . . feels that there can be no question about this matter.

"For several months now, the white majority of Chapel Hill has stood silently by in the knowledge that civil disobedience lawbreaking was about to occur.

"This amounts to the town being an accessory before the fact, which in my book equals conspiracy."

SL Adopts Speaker Ban

Student Legislature adopted an apparent strategy of "fighting a ban with a ban" last night and passed a measure preventing "any member of the N. C. General Assembly from speaking on the campus of any state-supported institution."

The student action came at a special session called in the wake of a special meeting of the General Assembly earlier in the day. The state legislators voted to extend the controversial "Gag Law" to prevent "any and all persons from speaking in, around or near the campus of any school financed in whole or in part with state funds."

Assembly President Clarence Stone rushed the measure into law by knocking three state senators in the head with his gavel when they rose to challenge the measure's constitutionality.

"I'm running this damn show," Stone said from his throne. "What I say goes. The people of the great state of North Carolina want this law, and they're going to get it."

Informed of the General Assembly's action, Consolidated University officials rushed to Raleigh but were jailed when they attempted to rush Stone on the Senate floor.

2 Indicted For Posing As Students

Joel Fleischman and Roger Foushee, former UNC undergrads, will go before the Men's Council tomorrow night to answer charges of "impersonating students."

Whitney Durand, Attorney-General, yesterday charged the two with "trying to act like students and attempting to overthrow student government at UNC."

Fleischman and Foushee issued a joint statement last night claiming they had been framed.

"This is the work of a powerful, highly-organized group in Student Government, and is a kangaroo, railroad job," the statement charged.

They named Buzzy Stubbs, Durand, Mike Lawler and Walter Spearman as the group which spurred the charges.

Reportedly, the action was brought after Fleischman, legal advisor to Governor Terry Sanford, had been initiated into a local fraternity. He charged that Stubbs and Durand were jealous because he did not pledge either of their houses and that Lawler was irritated because "he thought I was a true dormie."

Blanchard, Ethridge Seek Reelection As Co-Editors

Gary Blanchard and David Ethridge today announced their candidacy for re-election to the co-editorship of the Daily Tar Heel.

In a joint statement, the editors stated that they would "continue the policies of the past year.

"Our stand is well-known to all," they said. "We will back the tenets of that great savior I. Beverly Lake all the way, and will oppose integration all the way."

Reminding the campus that they were the present editors, the two said they will work for a bigger and better student government and for legislative integrity.

★ ★ ★

Blanchard, 35, is a veteran of 10 years of military service. He has been a Dean's List student for the last five semesters, having repeated the last 2½ years.

Ethridge, 37, is a veteran of 10 years of college life. He has never been a Dean's List student and has avoided the draft only by claiming to be a conscientious objector. A resident of New Delhi, Ga., Ethridge is the son of another famous journalist—Roland Giduz Ethridge, editor of the well-known News of Yellow County.

BULLETIN

In a surprise move, the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen last night passed unanimously the strongest civil rights package ever enacted anywhere in America at a single sitting.

The package included a Public Accommodations ordinance, a Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC) and a Fair Housing Ordinance.

A spokesman for the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee which has led agitation for such measures for several months, fainted when informed of the Aldermen's action.

In another surprise move, the Aldermen also voted to fire Town Solicitor Roy Cole for his "arbitary" and "nonsensical" handling of civil rights cases over the past several months. Cole immediately swore out a warrant charging the Aldermen with "criminal contempt" of his office.

Four Killed In Big Riot

Riots left five dead and six wounded last night after a protest rally brought on by the announcement for reelection by Gary Blanchard and David Ethridge.

The focal point of the riots was in the lower quad, where 1,000 students gathered with banners opposing the co-editors fascist stand.

"We don't want these people again," shouted one student, just as he was stabbed in the back by a member of the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF), the group which has been behind Blanchard and Ethridge since their campaign last spring.

Dean of Men William G. Long termed the episode the worst since the Doug Moe riots five years ago. "This is a disgrace," he said. "The fact that those two nuts are running again is a disgrace upon the good name of this university.

The dead were identified as Herman Goodnik, 22, Negro; Albert Simp, 21, white; Buddy Teagle, 56, white; William McNairy, 20, Negro; and Sam Slobbed, 55, spotted.

Phipps Will Head National Group

State American Legion Commander L. J. Phipps of Chapel Hill yesterday resigned his post to accept the presidency of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), a well-known national group of liberals.

Phipps said he was taking the position in an effort "to do from the inside what I've failed to do from the outside—fight Socialism."

Phipps said he was not certain how he would achieve this goal, but said he planned to start by firing Adlai Stevenson and Al Lowenstein from the ADA's executive committee.

Former UNC President Frank Porter Graham wept openly at the news of Phipps' selection. Graham said he was "too crushed" to comment at this time.

President Lyndon B. Johnson called a hurried meeting of the National Security Council and ordered FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover to look into Phipps' appointment, charging that Phipps' "has obvious conflicts of interest."

Symposium To Feature CORE Head

Silver J. Finks

Silver J. Finks, national leader of the Committee Opposing Racial Equality, will be featured speaker at the final session of the Chapel Hill Ku Klux Klan Symposium on April 9. His topic will be "Negroes and whites in integrated South Africa." He recently returned from the Congo, where he called a witch doctor a fraud and was subsequently shrunk to the height of 11 inches.

Apartment Rule Concept Changed

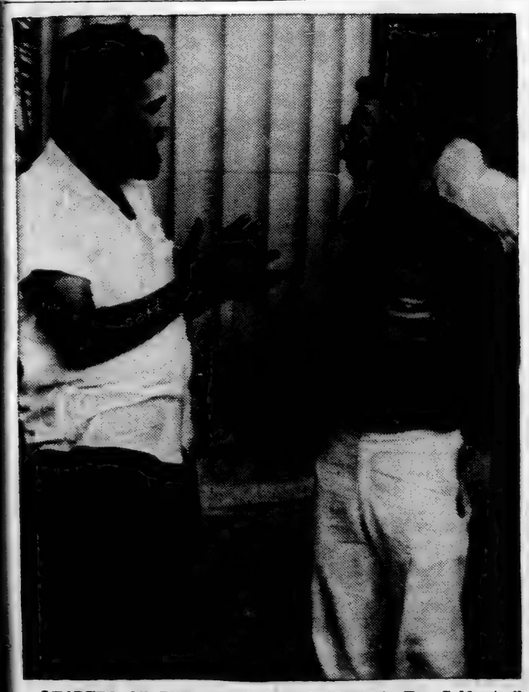
Apartments for UNC students have been abolished, according to Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael.

"I feel this to be the only solution to the problem which has plagued student bodies for the past two years," the Dean said.

This ruling will nullify the Apartment Rule previously enforcby the administration, which required that no coed be alone in an apartment with a man.

Rules applicable to students living in tents on campus have not as yet been announced.



LEADERS OF THE recently-formed "Students For Goldwater" club chat outside South Building. Nasty Nogoodnik (left) has vowed that he will not shave until Goldwater is elected President. Melvin Furdley (right) listens as Nogoodnik makes a point.

Another Morehead Named

New Morehead Scholar

By ARMISTEAD MOPPING

A Black Muslim yesterday became the first of his race to receive a Morehead Scholarship, which pays all expenses and spending money for four years at UNC.

Samuel X., a high-school dropout from Birmingham, Ala., pledged to "do all in my power to uphold the high promise placed in me by Mr. Morehead."

Roy Armstrong, secretary of the Foundation, said Samuel X. was chosen from a host of applicants for the honor.

"We were also considering Muhammed Ali, formerly known as Cassius Clay, and Malcolm X.," Armstrong said, "but both notified us they would be too busy forming self-defense rifle clubs to concentrate on studying."

John Motley Morehead, who is 137 years old this month, said he decided to lower the color bar on the scholarships he administers because "these people think like I do.

"They're for separation of the races, too."

Friday, Beaumont To Try, Too

Low campus sources revealed Friday that University President William C. Friday and Campus Safety Chief Arthur J. Beaumont will enter the Democratic primary in May.

Friday announced Saturday for the gubernatorial nomination. Beaumont has filed for director of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Friday said he expected support from North Carolina conservatives, liberals, and middle-of-the-roaders.

"With such a broad base of support," he said, "I don't expect too much trouble. The only candidate I'm really worried about is Ray Stansbury—I can't sing like he can. Of course, when you think about it, that may be an asset, not a liability."

Beaumont, informed that the office of SBI director is not an elective office, said affably, "Nobody's going to tell me what office I can get into. Every and all offices are open to me. I've got keys to them all."

Beaumont said he expected to draw heavy support from the Drama Society of North Carolina. "I've been in every campus show hereabouts for years now," he said, "and my face should be familiar to the public."

Friday vigorously denied accusations that he was running for governor in order to get out of Chapel Hill.

"Chapel Hill is alright," he said. "I don't mind the panty raids in the spring, the demonstrations all summer and winter, the fights with the alumni, the fights with the legislature, the fights over student autonomy, the fifty thousand phone calls I get every day, the problems with the budget, the speaker ban law, or any of that stuff. The only thing that bothers me is having to climb trees in my backyard all the time to get those darn kites down."

"Besides," he continued, "I don't intend to live in Raleigh after the election anyway. Joel Fleischman comes over every day and keeps us informed on what's going on over there."

He also said his experience with the legislature would help him win.

"None of the other candidates has ever had to face the Legislature and fight for a budget," he said. "And none of them has ever gotten a pay raise from the Legislature without either fighting for it or wanting it either."

Beaumont said he was basing his campaign on better enforcement of parking regulations.

"The way I see it," he said, "the careless driver is, more often than not, a careless parker, too. If we give everyone five tickets, we can revoke their

(Continued on Page 2)

CAMPUS CHAPTER OF THE STUDENT PEACE UNION (above) rushes from barracks in Kenan Stadium in practice alert for demonstration against Carolina Symposium choosing "Arms And The Man" as its 1964 topic. "The topic is too militaristic," Cadet Commander Jim Wallace explained. SPU Commander, Lt. Col. Gordon D. Cage, said he would personally lead the protest, which is scheduled to coincide with Symposium's opening session next Sunday.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted at DTH offices between 2 and 2:05 a.m. the day before the desired publication. No items will be taken over the phone. This is being done to insure a minimum of trash in the newspaper.

TODAY

Congress of Racial Equality — steps of Post Office, 3 p.m.
Merchants Association — 3 p.m. steps of Town Hall.
Chapel Hill City Council — 8 p. m., Watts Restaurant.
UP legislators — 8 p.m., big fraternity court.
SP plotters — 3 a.m., 207-A Carr St.
Amateur Arson Club — 5 a.m., back of Phi Delta Theta house, bring Zippo's.
Hillel Supper Forum — 6:30 p.m., Hillel House, discussion on "Is Liz Taylor the Essence of Jewish womanhood?"
Carolina Political Union — 9 p. m., Grail Room, discussion on "Communism and the UNC campus," led by Peter B. Young, WRAL-TV.
YMCA Interviews — 8 p.m., Y Building, for all staff positions, whites need not apply.
Men's Residence Council — 8 p.m., Woodhouse Room, trial of Gerry Good for negligence of duties.
Statistics Colloquium — 8 p.m., 108 Phillips Hall, discussion on "Why Statistics Colloquiums with long titles scare away people with their lectures."
War Resisters League — 8 p.m. Political Science Faculty Room, discussion on "Resistance to the War on Poverty."
UP Campus Action Committee — 7:30 p.m., Whitehead Dorm, Report by Faryl Sins on "Action in the Dorms."
UP Campus Action Committee — 1 a.m., Farrington Rd., discussion led by Larry Phelps.
Serbo-Croatian Table — 1 p.m., upstairs Lenoir Hall.
Goettingen Interviews — 4-6 p.m., Hanes Hall, interviews with "Desert Fox" Rommel.

MOVIES

Varsity — Naked In New York.
Carolina — I Was A Nudist In Mongolia.
Rialto — Las Nudistes
Free Flick — My Friend Flicka.

The Top Ten Books

1. A Conscientious Objector in the War on Poverty . . . Barry Goldwater.
2. Advise and Contempt . . . Raymond B. Mallard.
3. Happiness is Owning a Jew . . . George Lincoln Rockwell
4. Conscious of a Conservative . . . Nelson Rockefeller.
5. Winter of our Discontent . . . John Dunne.
6. Dr. Strangelove . . . Christine Jorgenson.
8. The Fire Next Time . . . Rev. B. Elton Cox.
9. Fun with Home Movies . . . Varsity Theater.
10. Few Points . . . Jesse Helms.

The Top Ten Songs

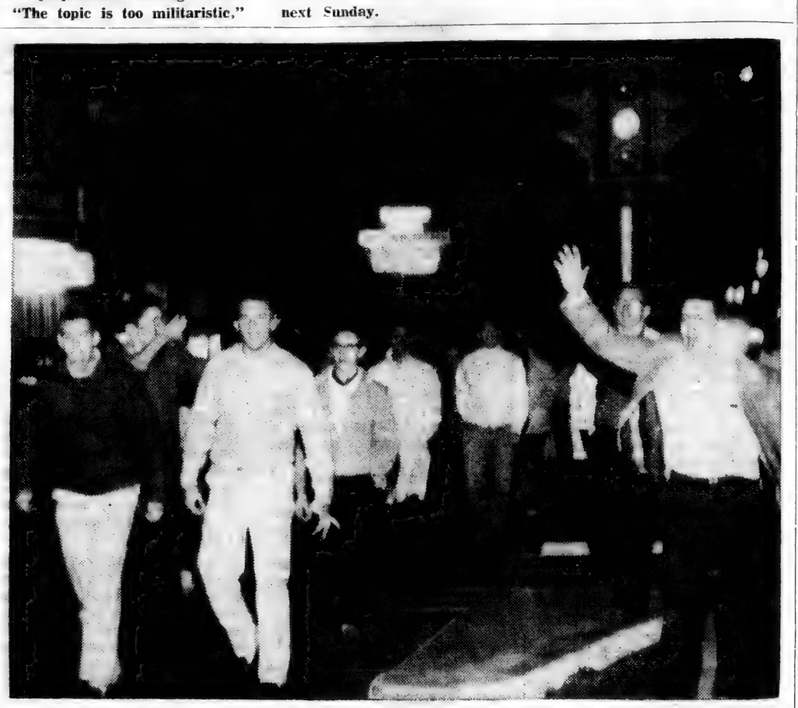
1. OOga Booga Wunga . . . . The Obscenes
2. The Demonstration Blues . . Fat Pat and the Fast 4
3. Since I Lost My Job . . . . Curry, Buzzy and Charlie
5. Baby Bobby Is My Boy . . . . Richie Pryor
6. Four Walls . . . . Jimmy Hoffa and the Truckers
7. Kansas City Blues . . . . Vic Boobas
8. Overtime All The Time . . . . Willie Blake and the Cops
9. I Hear You Knockin' But You Can't Come In . . . . Carswell and the Kids
10. I Want To Hold Your Hand . . . Finky Fred & The 4 Fairies.



DEMONSTRATORS — Screaming "We Shall Overcome," 2,000 UNC students marched down Franklin St. last night protesting segregation in Chapel Hill Freedom Committee. The demonstrators carried signs calling for intermarriage, public accommodations and better food in Lenoir Hall.

— Friday —

(Continued from Page 1)

licenses and send their cars away."

He said he intends to install parking meters everywhere in the state except for the Ram's Head Parking Lot.

"Look at the increased revenue we will obtain," said Beaumont as he paid his filing fee in pennies. "We can charge for parking anywhere, and if people got tired of parking, they will have to drive more. Then we'll get more revenue from gasoline taxes."

Asked about the backlog of unsolved crimes on the state books, Beaumont commented, "they're right down my alley."

Beaumont also said he would remain in Chapel Hill if elected. "I will set up my office in 206 South Building, since I conduct a lot of my business from there anyway. Besides, it will look good around the state if I am close to all the real crime, like trespassing and public speaking, instead of out in the towns where they have simple little burglaries and things."

Both Friday and Beaumont indicated they would hold their present offices until the elections.

"We don't want to be out of work if we should lose," they said.

Chancellor William B. Aycock is considering appointments for the offices if the two should win. Wayne King is said to be a frontrunner for the President's post, and the campus cop job is expected to be dropped entirely if Beaumont leaves.

Committee Can't Give Big Award

The Campus Committee appointed to select a recipient for the annual Moral Neutrality Award yesterday announced it was unable to arrive at a decision because of the host of applicants for the award.

"In view of our inability to agree on the qualifications of a single candidate," said Armisted Maupin-Clark Crampton-Borden Parker, tri-chairmen, "we are presenting the award to the University for steadfastly refusing to be drawn into local racial affairs."

POLICE TODAY broke up a large bookie ring operating in South Building. The ring, allegedly led by Charlie St. Bernard, had its headquarters at the Information Desk. This photograph is taken from secret police files and shows one of the ring's saleswomen issuing a tote sheet. Her name was withheld pending further investigation. —Photo by Charles Henderson

THIS IS A PICTURE of the bird which Dean of Men William Long was given yesterday by his co-workers for no particular reason.

If you have never had your photo in the Daily Tar Heel, this is your opportunity. Paste it here.

Moore, Terry Concede

Stansbury Lays Claim To Volunteer Program

Candidate Wants 500 Volunteers

The mystery of the founding of the North Carolina Volunteers was finally cleared up yesterday with the announcement by gubernatorial candidate Raymond J. Stansbury that it was actually his idea.

Governor Terry Sanford and gubernatorial hopeful Dan K. Moore immediately conceded that they had stolen the idea from the Hillsboro grocer. The two had engaged in bitter debate through the news media last month over which one had thought up the program.

"I thought up this thing a couple of years ago," Stansbury said yesterday. "Me and the boys were digging a ditch and I said to them, 'Boys, wouldn't it be great if us poor folks had someone to dig our ditches for us?"

"Well, now, the boys thought that was a right good idea, and we decided then and there to start something like this. We figured that with all those crazy kids over in Chapel Hill we could get plenty of volunteers if we gave it a high falutin' title and made it sound like they were going to do something noble."

Sanford's press agent, Graham Jones, released a statement yesterday on the matter.

"The governor has made it clear that he will not debate with any of the gubernatorial candidates, but he readily concedes that Mr. Stansbury was the first to think up the program."

A statement from Moore's headquarters echoed the governor's announcement, and added that Moore, if elected, would raise all state salaries 50 per cent.

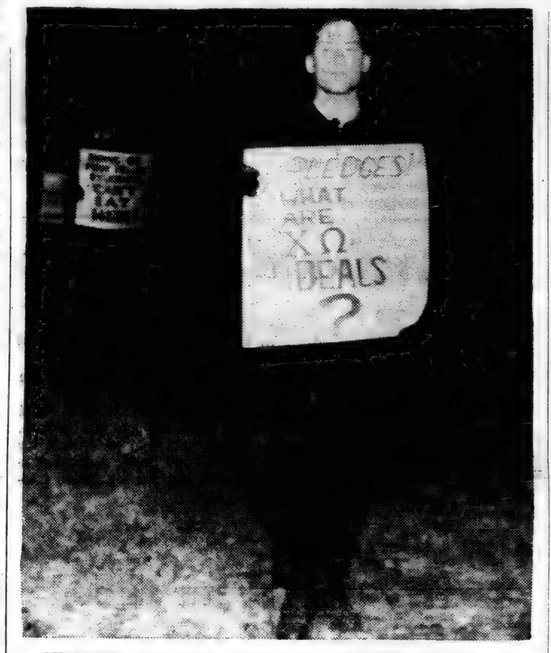
Other major candidates, L. Richardson Preyer and I. Beverly Lake, commented briefly on the situation.

"No matter who thought this thing up it's still a good idea," said Preyer. "At least, as long as Terry says it's okay it's all right with me."

"This is a socialistic, communistic piece of trash that deserves to be thrown to the dogs," commented Lake.

Stansbury's program calls for 500 college students to participate. They would be equipped with picks, shovels and banjos in Raleigh and sent out to 50 communities which the State Bureau of Poverty designated as "depressed areas." Each students would receive 50c a day and a pound of fatback.

R. L. STANSBURY, gubernatorial candidate, beams proudly as he announces the first two selections for the North Carolina Volunteers, Fred Seely (left) and David Lobdell. Stansbury reported he was "swamped" with applications.



CHARGED—The Chi Omega sorority last night was indicted by the Panhellenic Council for violating rushing regulations. Jean Dilly, Panhell president, charged the sorority with "using males to aid the house rush." This photograph shows one of the males who paraded in front of the house during informal rush last month with a sign urging prospective rushees to search for the true ideals of the Chi Omega's. —Photo by Patti Perrin.

Kornegay To Switch Party Registration

WASHINGTON — Sixth District Congressman Horace Kornegay yesterday announced he is switching his party label from Democrat to Republican so that his voting record will "make more sense" to his constituents.

Kornegay said he had been considering the move for some time, at the urging of dozens of North Carolina political observers.

"Call it an outbreak of honesty, if you will," Kornegay said. "All I know is that I can't live with my conscience anymore unless I do this.

"I talked with my friends over at the Farm Bureau, the Grange, the American Medical Association and the National Association of Manufacturers, and they agreed it was the best thing to do," Kornegay said.

He is expected to lose his bid for re-election.

ALBERT J. NERDLY, popular UNC freshman, recently participated in a nationwide survey to determine the effectiveness of new SHINE toothpaste with miracle ingredient CLOROX. Nerdly reported 17 per cent fewer teeth after four weeks. —Photo by Jim Wallace

—BULLETIN—

(From the DTH Hot Line)

Albert Amon, well-known Chapel Hill integration leader and part-time University paper grader, yesterday was named to succeed William B. Aycock as Chancellor of the University. Al (as he is affectionately called around the DTH offices) will take over immediately, instead of next July as originally planned.

Meanwhile, Governor Terry Sanford was reported resting comfortably at Rex Hospital in Raleigh after a clumsy suicide attempt. Governor Sanford, who has been first in line at the State trough for nearly four years, had expected to pluck the political plum for himself.

With the announcement of Al's appointment, the UNC Board of Trustees said the housing problem the University has been trying to solve since the end of World War II would ease considerably.

CAMPUS CHEST co-chairmen Betty Wart and Gerry Bad give Governor Terry Sanford his cut from the proceeds of the Chest fund drive. In accepting the kick-back, Sanford said "this is truly a noble gesture, and I don't mind one bit overlooking the Umstead Act."

The sun rises in the east and sets in the west.

—Joe Bissell

For A Real

Gleam

SHINE

TOOTHPASTE

Ad Department Takes It On The Lam

★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

★ ★ ★

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1964 | United Press International Service

Saturday Night In Chapel Hill

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Aycock Announces Candidates Meeting

Bill Aycock, chairman of the Elections Board, yesterday issued the following statement:

A compulsory meeting of all candidates for office in the Spring elections and all Party chairmen will be held Thursday, April 2, 1964 at 7 p.m. in the auditorium of Howell Hall. (Note the time change. The meeting was originally scheduled for 8:00, but was changed in order to avoid conflict with the meeting of the Student Legislature.)

Any absence from this meeting without the written permission of the Chairman of the Elections Board will result in the candidate's disqualification. Should such an unexcused absence occur, the candidate can be reinstated by contacting the Chairman of the Elections Board within 48 hours after the meeting and paying a $5 fine.

Nominations by party, by selections boards and by petition are due Thursday, April 2, 1964 by 7:00. Requests for absentee ballots can be picked up in Graham Memorial beginning Saturday, April 4, 1964.

Sen. Russell Attacks CR Bill Supporters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Southern opponents of the civil rights bill today accused its supporters of trying to "call the tune and do all the dancing" in debate on the House-passed measure.

The needling statement was delivered by Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) He also told Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, chief floor manager of the bill, that the Southerners will "not be ready to vote any time soon."

The exchange developed as a result of a mixup in signals which caused Humphrey and his liberal cohorts to alter their plan to hold the floor all week in defense of the bill.

King Saud's Long Reign Finally Ends

King Ibn Saud

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—The 11-year reign of King Saud of Saudi Arabia apparently is at an official end. He faces probable exile on half of his income, which once was reported at $500,000 a day.

Reports had circulated in diplomatic circles that the ailing 63-year-old monarch would be replaced by his brother, Crown Prince Faisal, 59, who stripped him of his power. A broadcast by Radio Mecca Monday night confirmed the reports.

NOTICE

As you may have noticed, the first two pages of this paper are devoted to the traditional April Food Edition. This and page four are an attempt to wrap up local happenings during spring vacation. We resume regular publication tomorrow.

MacArthur Hangs On Stubbornly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur fought stubbornly Tuesday against the ravages of age and three major operations in less than a month.

Doctors said the 84-year-old war hero had talked with his wife, Jean, and one of his doctors even though he has been under constant sedation. His "heart function and vital signs" remained stable.

There was "slight improvement" noted in a kidney malfunction that showed up after MacArthur's third operation on Easter Sunday.

But doctors at Walter Reed Army Medical Center said there was a possibility that the five-star general might be developing a stomach ulcer from the stress of the past month in the hospital.

Internal bleeding continued from his esophagus, but it was being "controlled" by a sengstaken tube, a pressurized tube inserted in the esophagus to collapse the bleeding veins.

There were "no strong indications" of an ulcer, but the doctors said it remained a possibility.

GRAHAM TO SPEAK

Kennedy Library Fund Drive Set

RALEIGH (UPI)—Gov. Terry Sanford announced today that a special memorial program is scheduled May 17 at UNC to pay tribute to the late John F. Kennedy.

Sanford said Dr. Billy Graham would speak at the program, which will be held in Kenan Stadium.

Sanford made the announcement at his news conference here. He said the program will be to raise the state's share for the Kennedy Library Fund.

Sanford said each person contributing $10 to the library drive is entitled to a ticket to the May 17 program.

The state's share for the library project is $230,000 and Sanford said a check covering the contributions will be presented at the May 17 program.

Hugh Morton of Wilmington and Grandfather Mountain was named chairman of the fund-raising drive, and State Budget Officer C. Andrew Jones of Raleigh was named treasurer.

The Kennedy Library will be located at Harvard University and will house documents relating to the Kennedy administration.

On other matters, Sanford said a better approach was needed in racially tense towns such as Williamston and Warrenton. "The solution must come from the human heart," Sanford said.

The governor refused to comment on his controversial announcement several weeks ago that the FBI had found no Communists on either the faculties or in the student bodies of state-supported colleges and universities. Over the weekend gubernatorial candidate I. Beverly Lake challenged the statement.

"I think I'll just let that the original statement stand," Sanford said.

Sanford said the State Democratic Party platform should contain "all the progress we can build into it." He added that North Carolina is in a position to achieve national leadership and should do so.

Sanford also said:

—He would not fill the vacant Guilford County seat in the Legislature's lower house until the county's two feuding Republican factions come to some agreement over where the leadership lies.

—He wants the controversy over implementing the Kerr-Mills law for providing hospital benefits for the elderly to be straightened out soon by state officials and put into effect.

—University professors who violate laws during racial demonstrations should be treated just like any other law violator.

—The SBI has not completed its investigation of unsigned leaflets which contained derogatory statements about a gubernatorial candidate.

—That the North Carolina volunteer recruiting program is continuing and the project should be organized by the end of this session in colleges across the state.

Behind The Groundswell Of Conservatism

Ed. Note: ANDREW HACKER is an associate professor of government at Cornell and author of "Political Theory: Philosophy, Ideology, Science.")

By ANDREW HACKER

New York Times Magazine

With a major contender for the Presidential nomination choosing to base his campaign on the premise that the country is growing more conservative, it is time to stop talking about textbook theories and to examine popular attitudes. For Barry Goldwater is persuaded that not only the Republican party but the general electorate is moving in his direction, and the Arizona Senator is a practical politician who claims to understand the drift of public opinion.

The rise of this political mood is interesting and important because the Americans rallying around Goldwater differ markedly from those costomarily associated with conservative causes. Traditional definitions of conservatism are of little relevance here, as recent decades have seen the emergence of new citizens with new outlooks toward politics. If American conservatism is indeed on the rise, it would be well to spell out what it is not as well as what it is and where its current strength lies.

Textbook definitions of conservatism, largly derived from the writings of Edmund Burke and like-minded European authors, have never had much application to American life. Classical conservative doctrine was a well-knit theory intended chiefly for the gentry and their loyal retainers. It presupposed a stratified and hierarchical society where each person knew his place and unquestioningly accepted the station into which he was born. Those at the top might enjoy inherited wealth and priviliges, but—so the theory ran—they had a deep sense of their obligations to those beneath them. By the same token, those consigned to humbler status would defer to their betters, not asking to participate in the official exercise of power. In such a setting, necessarily more agricultural than industrial, it was possible to talk of the blessings of tradition, order and community.

The problem, of course, is that this brand of conservatism never really crossed the Atlantic. America has not had a perscriptive ruling class surrounded by a constituency of faithful followers. A few large Eastern cities have old and wealthy families but after the early 19th century they ceased to play a political role of any real importance. The Federalists were all too short-lived, for a political party based on a small class had no chance of survival amid an expanding electorate. Jackson's defeat of Nicholas Biddle on the national bank issue was probably the final blow to traditional conservative power, and the Irish-Americans' talking over of Boston from the Brahmins was simply a mopping-up operation.

If conservatism of this sort still lingers on, it is rhetoric more than reality. Books continue to be written in Burkean accents, displaying a nostalgia for a social order that never really had a chance to take root in the New World. Writters such as Russell Kirk may be used to provide a philosophical gloss on current conservative stirrings but the fact that there is little similarity between the European tradition of deference and the American democratic mood does not trouble those who simply want a few quotations to give tone to a political speech or a popular article.

The current groundswell of conservative sentiment, then, is a homegrown product with a few intellectual antecedents. At the the same time, it would be a mistake to define this tide of feeling, as various socialogists have done, in terms of the "radical right." To be sure, many Americans are discontented and flustrated over the way things have been going in recent years. McCarthyism, obsessive anti-The postwar period has seen Communism and indiscriminate attacks on the Supreme Court, the Department of State and leaders of both parties. Yet the actual number of Americans who have been activists in the John Birch Societies, the Christian Crusades Against Communism and even the White Citizens' Councils is still proportionately small.

It is saying too much to equate the current movement to the right with the extream groups on the far fringe. The difference may be one of degree rather than of kind, but the intervals on this political scale are quite wide and the Goldwater fan in Fairfield County is a rather different animal from the John Bircher in Santa Barbara.

Indeed, those who cluster around "radical-right" groups are there more for personal reasons than as representatives of particular social groups. This does not mean that the "radical-right" should not be taken seriously or that it has not produced ugly situations in many parts of the country. However, the distorted image of political reality, generally involving conspiracies, hobored by the typical right-wing extremist is a neurotic condition that cannot be changed by rational discussion. The answer is not psychoanalytic remedy—but simply to outvote them in P.T.A.'s, library boards, party committees and eventually at the polls.

The recent growth of conservative sentiment, therefore, cannot be explained by recourse to either Burke or Birch disciples. The reason is that this new tendancy is a popular turn in the public mind, embracing millions of Americans who are neither philosophical in temperament nor maladjusted in personality. In fact, the conservatism that is emarging can claim to be part of the democratic process in that it is the outlook of quite ordinary men and women.

Far from being bookish, the typical Goldwater supporter is an outgoing enthusiast who senses that he is a part of a broadly based movement that has a chance of reaching majority proportions. Perhaps "only in America" could conservatism rise so quickly and ebulliently, becoming the mood of many rather than the settled preserve of an exclusive class.

Needless to say, there is a good deal of negative sentiment in this popular conservatism. There is opposition to high taxes, big government, powerful unions, Communism at home and abroad, foreign aid, and advances on the part of racial minorities. Yet as individuals, these conservatives are quite happy. Most are prospering as never before, and one has only to look in at a Goldwater rally to see beaming smiles rather than sullen countenances.

The explanation for this apparent paradox—political discontent amid economic affluence and social headway—lies in the fact that progress has been at such a rapid rate that Americans who have been moving ahead are not fully convinced that they will be allowed to keep all they have so recently gained.

If the conservative camp were simply confined to small business men in small towns, it would hardly be a major force in national politics today. But the fact is that most of the emerging conservatives are employes rather than employers, not a few working for large corporations as engineers, salesmen or junior executives. Tired, perhaps, of the "organization - man" label, they nevertheless realize that the traditional middle-class ethic was created for an age of entrepreneurs rather than themselves. As they have neither the opportunity nor the desire to become their own bosses, they can at least protest their individuality by embracing the conservative mood. To speak in such tones is to sound like a self-made man—even if it is not an entirely accurate reflection of one's real life story.

The common characteristic of the conservative outlook is the sense of being a superior individual. Millions of Americans can see how far they have come in recent years and are persuaded that this ascent has been due to their personal efforts. The trek from a blue collar to a white collar, or from the city to the surburbs, or from high school to college and on to a respectable job—these advances are seen as the result of intelligence, hard work and strength of character. In some cases this may be so, but in most instances it is not.

The affluence and the widening opportunities they have experienced in this country are due to favorable technological and economic conditions. Most of us have had a free escalator ride instead of having had to trudge up one stair at a time by our own efforts. But to admit this would be damaging to the ego, and conservative audiences are flattered when they are told they are genuine individualists rather than the product of impersonal social forces.

Yet if recruits to the conservative cause are superior men and women, the natural question is: superior to whom? Most conservatives, when all is said and done, have quite unspectacular incomes, homes and backgrounds. The answer, quite simply, is that they picture themselves as superior to those who have failed to get as far as they have. There is little sympathy or fellow-feeling for trade unionists or the unemployed, for Negroes or other depressed ethnic groups, or for those who require public assistance because they can not help themselves.

Indeed, the conservative sees himself as quite a different order of person from those of his fellow-citizens he deems to be his inferiors. In many ways he would like to make as clean a break from them as possible because they threaten him both politically and socially—politically, because they may have the votes that would lead to changes in the prevailing distribution of wealth and status, and socially, because they remind him of what he himself once was and might become again.

Unions, for example, symbolize for him the mass man, led either by "crookss" (Hoffa) or "Socialists" (Reuther). The trade unionists demands across-the-board raises for everyone in a particular job classification regardless of a person's competence or contribution to productivity. Conservatives identify with management, and visualize their own promotions and raises as due to their unique qualifications. It is galling to see hoards of blue-collar workers coming up in the world en mass.

By the same token, the political power of the unions appears threatening for it is clear that labor wishes to tax hard-working citizens so as to establish a welfare state for those unwiling to provide for themselves. The resentment against taxes is based on the feeling that this money ends up supporting the indolent (through unemployment compensation), the improvident (with public housing and medical care) and the immoral (by aid to unmarried mothers and illegitimate children). The conservative in America today sees himself beleaguered by powerful and insolent groups hoping to use government as an instrument to tax and destroy.

The conservative outlook, as it is now taking form, has little or no compassion for Negro Americans in their struggle for equal status. It is wondered, first of all, why legislation — let alone force—is needed to ameliorate present inequities. Once again it is asked why individual Negroes do not work hard and raise themselves as individuals.

Moreover, the very presence of Negroes—in supervisory jobs, in schools and nearby neighborhoods—is a devastating threat to one's social status. A person who lives in close proximity to Negroes, or whose children go to a mixed school, runs the risk of being suspected of being unable to do better for himself.

The flight to the suburbs, to "nice neighborhoods" and "good schools" is, in fact, a conservative retreat. The truth is that people whose own status is tenuous cannot afford to be associated with elements in society thought to be inferior. (It is almost as if a little of the color might rub off.) Having run away from the problem, there is no desire to raise it again by helping minority groups to break out of the walls that confine them. Added to this is the concern with property values. A drop in the resale value of one's home, due to a Negro invasion, can seem like the end of the world.

Quite obviously anti-civil rights sentiment, and hence an attraction to conservatism, runs deep in the South. More disturbing is the rate at which opposition to Negro equality is growing in the North, especially in middle-class suburbs. It used to be that antagonism toward Negroes was voiced privately—it was not a respectable sentiment to express in public. Now, however, Northerners are much franker in stating their feelings, a condition encouraged by the utterances of many conservative politicians.

Considering that Negroes constitute only slightly more than 10 per cent of the American population, it might be thought that the remaining 90 per cent could make way without too much discomfiture. This, however, overlooks the fact that any rise on the part of Negroes is seen as bringing in its wake a lowering of status for those who can least afford it. When the protective tissue is so thin and the potential drop so far, resistance can be all but total.

Coinciding with these developments have been almost two decades of Communist expansion throughout the world. America may be a great world power but we have been continually frustrated in our efforts to contain Soviet inroads, now only 90 miles from the Florida Keys. Conservatives have a more firmly fixed image of Communist intentions than others and a steadfast mistrust of treaties or negotiations with the enemy.

There are several reasons why those attracted to conservatism adopt a tougher stance in international dealings. One is that having ascended to higher stations in life they have the leisure and education to think about foreign policy—often for the first time—and feel that their new status makes them responsible for defending the country that has done so well by them in recent years. Another reason is that many conservatives are of fairly recent immigrant stock and possess a half-conscious awareness that they will accelerate their assimilation by an articulate display of loyalty and patriotism.

Additionally, the tough approach—chiefly military in focus—rejects proposals that we raise the living standards of black, brown or yellow people in uncommitted areas. Such neutrals are not only seen as unreliable allies but the suspicion also remains that they are inferior races not quite worthy of our help or trust. Isolationist sentiment, now joined by a ready-to-go arsenal of nuclear weapons, has never really lost its place in the conservative mind.

There is no doubting that any growth in conservative strength will have a divisive effect on society. It will increasingly cut off group from group, separating those who have done well out of post-war advances from those who have been left behind. The one segment will show little tolerance for the misfortunes of the other, and will not happily acquiesce to measures designed to alleviate social problems.

What is new in our time is that those who have failed to succeed do not constitute an electorial majority, and do not have the votes to translate their wants into legislation—despite conservative forebodings. The unemployed, dependent children, the indigent aged, and racial minorities actually stand in need of political goodwill from those who are better off. Not only has a helping hand been only grudingly extended, in many instances it is being withdrawn. The conservative ideology has plainly hardened attitudes in this direction.

Finally, widespread social and geographic mobility has heightened the conservative appeal, for it is at base a moralistic creed. People who have moved upward and outward experience feelings of rootlessness, especially when they leave towns and neighborhoods where values were settled and expectations were modest.

Living in new and often fluid settings, they are anxious to demonstrate that they still believe in "fundamentals." Hence the support for a return to basic learning in the schools, to public prayers and like symbols of all that is steadfast in a changing society.

While most of those rallying to the conservative banner are in their present positions because of the accelerated transformation in the structure of our national life, now that they have made their climb they assert their belief in traditional standards and earlier values.

The New Deal, World War II and the postwar prosperity have all combined to create a new type of citizen, an individual whose social and economic gains have yet to be consolidated on any permanent basis.

A danger inherent in such an upsurge of conservative sentiment is that it could make Americans less tolerant and easy-going, less able to laugh at themselves or to put up with the inadequacies of others. The hardening of lines—around the mouth as well as between groups and classes—may make social relations rather more difficult for all of us. Hopefully, many of our fears and insecurities will begin to evaporate as succeeding generations are persuaded that prosperity can be made permanent and that questions of status need not be so obsessive, while the children of conservative households will, despite their initial advantages, still have to make their own climb through life, they may be able to do so in a more relaxed manner. The problem, after all, is not an entirely new one.

Well over a century ago, Alexis de Tocqueville saw that the breaking of traditional barriers could produce anxieties as well as affluence. "Eager and apprehensive men of small property constitute the class that is constantly increased by the equality of conditions," he wrote. "Hence in democratic communities the majority of the people do not clearly see what they have to gain by a revolution, but they continually and in a thousand ways feel that they might lose by one."

For "revolution" read "political change" and we have the conservative outlook toward civil rights, welfare legislation and any expansion of the Federal Government's powers.

Whether or not Barry Goldwater wins the Republican nomination or the Presidency itself, he will have helped to shape a popular conservative constituency that will make its weight felt for many years to come. Its very existance will give a sharper edge to our politics, and will arouse emotions and antagonisms that have hitherto remained unvoiced. But more than Goldwater, the new conservatism is the result of the democratic process itself: the widening of new opportunities for millions of Americans who have risen to a better location in life and who at all costs want to insure that they remain there.

THIS WAS THE WEEK YOU MISSED

The Klan Rode Again...

A curious, easy-going crowd of 700 white people gathered under a full moon, bright television lights and smouldering light from a burning cross Saturday night to hear Ku Klux Klan speakers attack L. Richardson Preyer and warn that "blood will be shed."

About 40 robed Klansmen, assorted Kleagles, Kludds, Klokards and Nightingales, and about a dozen helmeted and black-booted Security Guard troops cheered a preacher in red robes and cowboy boots who called out, "We have gone to the dogs."

The rally was held in an open field near the Chapel Hill-Durham Boulevard.

The "white public" was invited and the press and curious Chapel Hill and Durham citizens came out to see the new "respectable" Klan.

"We're not a hate organization," Grand Klokard Mrs. John R. Jones of the Ladies Auxiliary assured the crowd. The word "nigger" wasn't used as much as "states rights" and the word "burrhead" popped up only once.

Calvin Craig, grand dragon of the Georgia Realm, the Invisible Empire, the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., speaking from the back of a flatbed truck, said, "Before the inauguration (of the next president) in 1965, more blood will be shed in America than in the past 10 years."

Craig, dressed in a business suit, said Negroes would instigate the violence if the federal civil rights bill fails to pass Congress, and whites would start the violence if the bill passes.

Dressed in robes of green and blue, North Carolina Grand Dragon John R. Jones of Granite Quarry indirectly blasted gubernatorial candidate L. Richardson Preyer and urged Klan support for a candidate "who believes in states rights.

"Federal judges belong in Washington," Jones said. "Federal judges don't belong in the statehouse of North Carolina." Preyer is a former federal judge.

"And thank God for the law that governors of North Carolina can't succeed themselves," he said. "Four years is plenty to put up with Terry Sanford."

Jones did not refer by name to either of the three major candidates for governor.

The rally opened with the burning of a 25-foot cross and the sounds of "The Old Rugged Cross" from a record player.

As the flames curled around the cross, it broke and fell to the ground. A number of people huddled around it, warming their hands in the brisk night air.

Rev. George Dorsett, wearing black and white cowboy boots, said the country has "gone to the dogs," and pointed to some of the young people in the crowd.

"Young boys, when you look for a wife, you want to find a thoroughbred. You don't want a mongrel . . . part white and part nigger.

"You want to find one that's got papers. If things keep going like this, you'll need papers to know who's pure."

Craig blasted local post office officials for allowing a group of anti-segregation fasters to camp out on the Chapel Hill post office lawn.

"The people of this city should move them," the Georgia Klansman said. After the rally he said the fasters were violating post office regulations by "loitering" on government property.

Later Saturday night a crowd of about 150 gathered around the post office and several scuffles broke out. One white man was arrested.

He was Melford C. Hill, 27, of Gold Hill, charged assault and battery and released on $100 bond.

Police Chief William Blake said a smoke bomb was thrown near the fasters by a passerby. He said police officers dismantled the bomb Sunday and found it was a dummy, thought to be the kind used by the armed forces.

Grand Dragon Jones called for people to take sides in the integration dispute. "If you're for integration, I say go over and join the niggers, but do something in this fight."

Bob Jones, Grand Dragon Addresses KKK
—Photo by Jock Lauterer

Georgia Grand Dragon Calvin Craige Speaks
—Photo by Jock Lauterer

All Smoke And No Fire In N. C. Grand Dragon

By JIM SRODES
The Durham Morning Herald

James R. Jones, the Grand Dragon of the North Carolina Ku Klux Klan, wore a dark suit. He shook hands, explaining that no, he was not Robert M. Shelton, the Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America, Inc.

He explained further that Shelton, who was scheduled to address a Klan rally Saturday night just outside of Chapel Hill near the Eastgate Shopping Center, was resting from a "cold and high fever." Shelton might not be able to make the rally, he added, "so I thought I would come in his place."

In a quiet voice, he began answering questions about his background.

Jones, who is 35, lives in Granite Quarry and is a salesman for a Salisbury manufacturing firm. He has a wife and a nine-year-old daughter.

He has been a Klansman since 1954 and was head of the state under the old U. S. Klan which fell apart in 1960 at the death of its founder, E. L. Edwards of Atlanta, Ga. In August, 1963, he joined the United Klans and was put in charge of organizing the newly formed group.

Jones believes in what he is doing.

He does not consider himself "a racist or hate monger." But he does believe that Negroes "have been, are now and always will be inferior to the white man."

"Now I want you to understand, if a person wants to associate with a Negro, Japanese or Chinaman, I feel that's his business. But I don't believe a person should be ordered to associate, eat or do anything with anybody he doesn't want to."

"I don't hate Negroes but I do segregate myself from them socially just as I segregate myself from sorry white people. I come in contact with all kinds of people in my business but that doesn't mean I have to associate with them on my own time, does it?"

According to Jones, the old image of Klansmen riding around at night lynching people at the drop of a bedsheet is untrue.

"Whenever you mention the Klan, people start thinking of a bunch of rabble-rousing, drunken trouble makers. But every member of the United Klans is a white Protestant gentile who has to be a responsible citizen. He has to be a taxpayer and a registered voter even though we don't care whether he is a Republican or Democrat.' '

"I don't believe in violence and neither does the Klan. But we do believe in self defense. If the Black Muslims or any other group endangers our families, property or homes,we will fight but we will not start anything."

"It is past time for the white people to band together when a Negro like this Malcolm X can get on nation-wide television and tell other Negroes to buy guns and war against the whites and then have Adam Clayton Powell, the Negro Congressman from Harlem, make a statement in Maryland that Negroes should abide only by the laws they agree with."

"If I made a statement like that, they would jack up the jail and put me under it."

...And The Fast Ended

Fasters Sit Out Last Few Minutes Easter Sunday
—Photo by Jock Lauterer

Five civil rights advocates ended an eight-day Holy Week fast Sunday and the first mass anti-segregation demonstration in a month followed.

About 50 Negroes and whites from racially-troubled Williamston motored here for a rally at the First Baptist Church that marked the end of the fast. The group included several Massachusetts ministers and seminary students.

The Williamston group participated in a march down the main street and then left for Raleigh to see Gov. Sanford. Integration leader Golden Frinks said he would urge the governor to send a full force of state highway patrolmen into Williamston.

"Law and order has broken down in Williamston and the Ku Klux Klan has taken over," the integrationist said after the rally. He said local police had informed the Klan of the integrationists' movements.

The five hungry strikers, protesting the failure of the Board of Aldermen to pass a public accommodations law, had camped on the post office lawn since Palm Sunday.

They slept in sleeping bags, used umbrellas for shelter and drank only water. The three whites in the group were sunburned.

The five ended their fast by slowly savoring bowls of soup about 1:30 p.m. Melody Dickinson, 24, white graduate of the University of North Carolina, said, after eating, "I still feel a little dizzy."

John Dunne, 21, white chairman of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee, said, "Everybody feels fine."

The other faster was James Foushee, a Chapel Hill Negro.

The fasters participated in the rally and later led a march of 170 Negroes and whites down Franklin Street. The group stopped at the post office, site of the fast, and sang several "freedom songs." There were no incidents.

Later Sunday night, however, faster LaVert Taylor was admitted to Memorial Hospital with intense stomach pains and nausea, and was given intravenous feeding. He was reported feeling better yesterday.

Frinks warned the integration rally not to be led into bloc-voting for any of the gubernatorial candidates. He said later that his remarks were aimed at L. Richardson Preyer.

Frinks also suggested that "the time is now (for Gov. Sanford) to appoint Negroes as judges . . . and to other positions."

He said the "liberal" political leadership of North Carolina "shouldn't wait until after the next governor is elected . . . to name more Negroes to the State Board of Education." He also attacked the Sanford-endorsed plan to explain the Negro's position via television.

On the Williamston racial demonstrations, Frinks said: "We are compelled to break every law that is contrary to our rights as citizens under the First and Fourteenth Amendments.

Money was collected at the rally to begin paying off what Chapel Hill leader Quentin Baker said is a $3,500 Freedom Committee debt resulting from bonds.

On Demonstrations Baker said, "We're going to start again as soon as we can."

Baker also urged spring season "selective buying" in department stores. "Wear old clothes with new dignity," he said. "Don't buy in places where you don't see one of us (Negroes) waiting on you."

Easter came to Chapel Hill in a different manner than an integrationist had threatened Feb. 2.

Dunne said "a new sense of brotherhood" caused by the fast had replaced the "great deal of antagonism and hatred which has been built up in the past four months."

Rev. B. Elton Cox, the integrationist whose threat to burn himself, Buddhist style, in the streets of Chapel Hill on Easter had brought international headlines, was nowhere to be seen Sunday.

Cox, who later said he was misquoted, and then said again that he would burn himself, was not in town, and has not been seen here since his early February statement.

Nol Pros Case Goes To The Grand Jury

The case of Clyde R. Jones, arrested during an anti-segregation demonstration here in February and charged with disorderly conduct, will come before the Orange County Grand Jury April 13.

The case was nol prossed in Chapel Hill Recorder's Court March 10 by Solicitor Roy Cole, who asked that the case not be prosecuted.

Judge William Stewart granted a nol pros on Cole's request.

Gaps in available information leave uncertain events which led to the Grand Jury's entry into the matter. However, Police Captain Coy Durham, who arrested Jones February 8 during a sit-down demonstration on Franklin Street, said he had been called to appear before the Grand Jury April 13 to testify about the Clyde Jones matter.

Orange County Agriculture Agent E. P. Barnes, foreman of the Grand Jury, would not disclose details of the Jury's planned action, or even whether the matter had come to the Jury's attention. A presentment (request for indictment was given to District Solicitor Thomas D. Cooper a week ago Friday by the Grand Jury, and presentments are legally secret until an indictment is presented to the court. However, Captain Durham said he was told when called by telephone to appear before the Grand Jury that the purpose of his appearance was to testify in the Clyde Jones case.

Captain Durham said he was telephoned March 17 by the secretary of the Grand Jury and asked to appear before the Grand Jury the next morning. He agreed. Later the same day, he was telephoned again and told that the Grand Jury was going to adjourn and that he need not appear on March 18; but that the matter would be taken up again when the Grand Jury reconvened April 13.

He said he was expected to testify April 13 about the Clyde Jones case. He said he would be in Hillsboro that day, ready to appear before the Grand Jury.

The Chapel Hill Ministerial Association wrote a letter to the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen recently requesting that the same treatment be given all civil rights cases in Chapel Hill Recorder's court.

The letter was written after Cole did not prosecute the Jones case. Jones was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct after he picked up limp demonstrators from the street. Police also were picking up other demonstrators. He was told to leave the scene by Captain Durham, but did not and was subsequently arrested.

"All Jones was doing was trying to help," Cole said after asking for the nol pros. He explained that "the police have a right to request assistance from citizens, and if a man helps them on his own, I don't think he's breaking the law."

Captain Durham said he later conferred with Cole and asked to have the Jones case put back on the docket. He said Cole declined this request, but gave no reason for doing so.

The next thing he knew about the matter, Captain Durham said, was that he was called to appear before the Grand Jury.

Cole declined to comment on the matter.

Frinks and Dunne at Easter 'Freedom Rally'
—Photo by Jock Lauterer

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Your Carolina Symposium scorecard (you can't tell the players without one) comes out tomorrow. Clip it. Also can be used for rolling cigarettes.

[127]

The Daily Tar Heel

★ ★ ★

Spring Has Sprung

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1964 | United Press International Service

Surrender Terms Asked

Brazil's Goulart May Have Fallen To Right-Wing Army

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—A rebel radio broadcast reported without confirmation late Wednesday that President Joao Goulart has signed his resignation in Brazilia.

The commander of troops supporting Goulart has asked revolt leaders for surrender terms, the radio said. There was no government confirmation of either report.

The broadcast, which originated in Sao Paulo, came only a few hours after Goulart and his aides slipped out of Rio de Janeiro by air force plane for an undisclosed destination, but believed to be Brazilia or Porto Alegre.

The rebel radio report said support for Goulart from the 1st Army in Rio de Janeiro had "totally collapsed." It said 1st Army commander Marshall Armando Ancora had asked revolt leader Gen. Olimio Mourao for peace terms and had been told they could only be "unconditional surrender."

The radio report said troops of both camps were facing each other across the state border of Minas Gerais to the north of Rio, but that there had been no exchange of gunfire.

The new development came as rebellious units scored their first victory on the second day of the revolt, the storming and seizure of tiny Fort Copacabana in Rio at the mouth of Guanabara Bay. There was no immediate mention of casualties. The seizure of the fort by the rebels denied the use of Rio port to the Goulart faction.

Fort Copacabana is within sight of the sparkling sands of famed Copacabana Beach and the city's plush tourist hotels.

Loyal marines moved in to attack pro-rebel Gov. Carlos Lacerda in his barricaded palace in Rio, but he called by radio on the people to come to his aid and the marines withdrew, at least for the moment.

The marines, under command of Gen. Candido Aragao, who was a leader in last Friday's naval mutiny in Rio, seized all of the city's radio stations and forced them off the air if they refused to join the government networks. Marines invaded and seized opposition newspaper plants.

BULLETIN

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — The government-controlled radio announced Wednesday night that President Joao Goulart has resigned. The radio said he is being succeeded by Ranieri Mazilli, president of the Chamber of Deputies.

TWO WIN SCHOLARSHIPS FROM AFROTC AIR SOCIETY

An AFROTC cadet and a member of the AFROTC Angel Flight have received $300 each in national Arnold Air Society Scholarships.

The recipients, Sally Laws of Raleigh and John Hoybach of Chantilly, Va., were chosen for their academic standings, interest, and participation in AFROTC programs.

The scholarships are awarded to outstanding AFROTC students each year.

Arnie, Jack In GGO Field

GREENSBORO (UPI) — Those formidable Yankee Clippers, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, are the co-favorites among 150 pros and 10 amateurs competing today in the opening round of the Greater Greensboro Open.

But Al Besselink, Sam Snead, defending champion Doug Sanders and dozens of other big-name golfers are waiting for a crack at the flexible winner's share, which last year totaled $5,500.

Palmer, of Latrobe, Pa., the PGA's top money winner in 1963, is seeking his first major tournament victory this year. Nicklaus, reigning Master's and PGA champion from Columbus, Ohio, hoped to improve his rating as the richest golfer on the 1964 circuit.

About the only big-name golfer not entered is South Africa's Gary Player.

Ex-Hillsboro Cop Charged With Assault

A former Hillsboro policeman has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon after a kicking incident during an anti-segregation demonstration here in December.

Larry Talbert, formerly a patrolman in Hillsboro, and Chapel Hill painting contractor Howard Pendergraph are charged with assault with a deadly weapon after the two allegedly kicked Negro demonstrator David L. Davis in the head. The demonstration occurred at the Tar Heel Sandwich Shop the night of December 19.

Both Mr. Talbert and Mr. Pendergraph have appeared in Chapel Hill Recorder's Court, Mr. Pendergraph shortly after the demonstration in question, Mr. Talbert on February 18. Both pleaded not guilty, and both cases were sent to Superior Court for jury trial by Recorder's Court Solicitor Roy Cole. It is not known when they will be tried.

The warrants against the two were drawn by Chapel Hill Police Lieutenant Graham Creel, on information and belief according to reports by several newspaper reporters at the demonstration.

Witnesses' accounts of the incident put Mr. Pendergraph and Mr. Talbert in the doorway to the Sandwich Shop, which was closed during the demonstration, allegedly kicking Mr. Davis in the head. Mr. Davis was sitting in front of the doorway at the time.

Mr. Talbert is the younger brother of Charles Talbert, former Orange County ABC police officer, now an agent of the federal Alcoholic Tax Unit in Georgia. Accord to the Hillsboro Town Clerk, Larry Talbert joined the Hillsboro Police Department in July of 1963, and resigned early last month. He came to Hillsboro from the State Prison Department, and went back to the Prison Department last month after having been offered shorter hours and better pay. He is a prison guard.

JIM WALLACE

Men's Council Selects Pete Wales Chairman

Pete Wales, junior from the Virgin Islands and Loudonville, N. Y., was elected Men's Council chairman for next year in last week's Council elections for officers.

Tony Miller, junior from Cedarhurst, N. Y., was elected vice-chairman and Stu Kagel, sophomore from Harrison, N. Y., was elected scribe.

Wales, the former scribe for the Council, has been on the Council for three years. He succeeds Pete Jason as chairman.

He is a member of Chi Psi social fraternity and is DTH news editor.

Miller has been on the Council for one year. He was chairman of the Honor System Commission last year and is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He succeeds Bryan Simpson.

Jim Wallace

DTH Photographer Gets National Award

Jim Wallace, Daily Tar Heel chief photographer, joined the list of DTH staffers winning national recognition by placing in a photo contest during the Easter Holidays.

Wallace won second place in the portraits/personalities category with a photo of Alabama's Gov. George Wallace and received an honorable mention in the series/sequence division with a photo series on a Chapel Hill sit-in.

The contest was held March 26 at the University of Missouri in connection with the 20th annual Kappa Alpha Mu National Convention. Kappa Alpha Mu is the student affiliate of the National Press Photographer's Association.

The George Wallace photo was taken last October 20 in Durham County Stadium as the Governor addressed a White Citizen's Council rally there.

The sit-in series was taken last July 19 at the Chapel Hill Merchant's Association during Chapel Hill's first sit-in.

Wallace will receive a plaque for his second place photo, and the photos will become part of a national traveling display.

The Governor

Merchant's Association Sit-In

Nixon Meets With Lodge In Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon conferred Wednesday with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to get an appraisal of the situation in South Viet Nam and to talk some politics.

Nixon, on a private business trip in Southeast Asia, said he and Lodge discussed "everything that was significant about this political year.'

The two were running mates in the 1960 presidential campaign.

Nixon, who is scheduled to stay in Viet Nam for three days, came here from Bangkok.

Before meeting Lodge, Nixon discounted any political overtones to his trip.

"I want to make it clear that I did not come to Viet Nam for the purpose of discussing politics," he said in an airport statement.

"I can imagine nothing that would be more embarrassing to Ambassador Lodge or more detrimental to American foreign policy interests in a battle area than for me to come in for the purpose of discussing politics," he said. "This is also Ambassador Lodge's view."

Lyon Discussion Period Scheduled

"Some students may have questions in their minds about the advantages and complexities of spending a year abroad — we want to answer their questions if we can."

Dr. Richard L. Frautschi, director of UNC's first Year-at-Lyon program, along with former American exchange students and native French students, will be around to do just that on Friday at 7 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge, 4th Floor, Dey Hall.

Dr. Frautschi is calling this informal discussion and question-and-answer session for the benefit of all students even remotely interested in spending the coming year studying in Lyon, France, on this university's new junior year abroad program.

"The advantages of such a program are so numerous it is hard to ge them all across to students in our brochures and articles," said Dr. Frautschi. "And we who have already studied abroad are so used to it that we cannot remember all the countless questions a student might have if he has never studied abroad.

"All interested students are invited to bring their questions and ideas about spending a year abroad to the discussion Friday evening. The procedure will be very informal and somewhat brief. Anyone may leave at any time, although the meeting will probably not last more than an hour," said Frautschi. "And coffee will be served."

Brochures and application blanks will be available at the meeting. Applications must be returned by April 15.

DR. RICHARD FRAUTSCHI

CPU TO MEET

The Carolina Political Union will meet Tuesday and Wednesday nights during Symposium week.

William S. Barnes, assistant dean of the Harvard Law School, will lead the Tuesday discussion and Rep. Frank Thompson (D-NJ) will head the discussion Wednesday night.

Orientation Interviews Are Slated Thru Tuesday

Perry McCarty, orientation chairman, and Bonnie Rains, woman's coordinator, will be holding interviews for both men and women orientation counselors today and tomorrow and Monday and Tuesday of next week from 2-6 p.m. each day.

The interviews are scheduled to last five minutes and applicants are asked to bring their completed application forms. A sign-up sheet is available at the GM information desk.

Several pilot projects are under consideration which would require the counselor and his group to do more than they have in the past. Approximately 250 men counselors are needed for next fall.

The following people have been appointed to the Orientation Committee: Ellen Allen, freshman nursing; Jim Clark, foreign students; Julien Meyer, treasurer; Bernie Bazemore, secretary.

The Committee members are Tommy Baysden, Myrtie Moon Bilbro, Lots Birinyi, Susie Branch, Dick Brodeur, Nancy Grubb, Gerry Hancock, Brenda King, Mary Stella Leak, Patsy Leffler, Ann McDaniel, Linda McDonald, Louise Menefee, Karen Phillips, Jim Smith, Neil Thomas, Dan Warren, Dick Williams, Frank Willingham, Bob Wilson and Muff Zink.

Orientation week will run Sunday, Sept. 13 through Thursday, Sept. 17. Classes start the 18th.

THE PROPER WEIGHT

Remember what you weighed at 25? If that weight was right for you then, it's probably right for you now. The North Carolina Heart Association says that an extra load of fat puts unnecessary strain on even a healthy heart.

General's Health Declines Gradually

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur battled for his life Wednesday in the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center after physicians reported declines in two vital areas—his pulse and blood pressure.

A hospital spokesman said there was a slight drop in the blood pressure of the 84-year-old soldier and a moderate rise in the pulse rate. Until issuing this report, the physicians had taken some comfort in the fact both the pulse and blood pressure were stable.

The hospital spokesman also said the general's kidney condition had worsened. A kidney malfunction developed after part of the lower intestine was removed Easter Sunday.

MacArthur also was being treated for internal bleeding from the esophagus. This was being controlled by a Sengstaken tube, a pressurized device inserted in the esophagus to collapse bleeding veins.

Despite these setbacks, MacArthur was alert and asked to see his wife, Jean, who has been at the hospital most of the time since her husband entered it March 2. Mrs. MacArthur joined the general shortly after he made the request.

MacArthur's condition has been critical for more than a week, ever since a condition caused by an old hernia resulted in a three-hour Easter Sunday operation during which doctors removed eight feet of lower intestine.

Orlans, Gross Accept Symposium Bids

Sociologist Harold Orlans

By JOHN FRONEBERGER

Dr. Paul M. Gross, Dean of the Graduate School at Duke University, and Harold Orlans, the noted sociologist presently on the Senior Staff at the Brookings Institute, will speak here Wednesday afternoon, April 8, for the Carolina Symposium.

Their topic, "The Impact of National Security on Research", examines the limits upon freedom of inquiry and expression in research.

When Dr. Gross became President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Raleigh News and Observer called him "a man of stellar accomplishments . . . whose poised calm manner belies the energy and ability that have won him international renown." Shortly afterwards, he won the Army's top award, the Distinguished Civilian's Medal.

Dr. Gross graduated from the City College of New York and received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in Chemistry from Columbia University. He did graduate work at the University of Leipzig. He has been with Duke University for over 40 years serving as professor, dean of the graduate school, dean of the University and Vice-President of the University.

He also has worked with the Army's missile programs, is president of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies and was a science adviser for the United States in the UNESCO conference in 1949. He has received countless awards for his work in chemistry.

In an age which keynotes research with progress, Harold Orlans has evaluated many national trends in the sociological fields. An anthropologist who graduated from the City College of New York, he went to work as a reporter for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin and was a fellow of the Social Science Research Council before continuing his education at Yale for a Ph.D. He then won a Fulbright Scholarship in Economics. For several years he lectured and did research for several organizations.

(Continued on Page 3)

Dr. Paul M. Gross

Candidates Meeting Is Scheduled For 7 In Howell Hall Tonight

A compulsory meeting of all candidates for office in the Spring elections and all Party chairmen will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in the auditorium of Howell Hall.

Bob Spearman, speaker of Student Legislature, announced yesterday that SL would meet at 8 p.m. tonight instead of 7:30 in order to avoid conflicting with the meeting.

Any absence from this meeting without the written permission of the Chairman of the Elections Board will result in the candidate's disqualification. Should such an unexcused absence occur, the candidate can be reinstated by contacting the Chairman of the Elections Board within 48 hours after the meeting and paying a $5 fine.

Nominations by party, by selections boards and by petition are also due tomorrow, April 2, 1964 by 7 p.m. Requests for absentee ballots can be picked up in Graham Memorial beginning Saturday.

CANDIDATES TO SPEAK

Candidates for all-campus offices will speak at residence hall throughout tht campaign.

Hall meetings have ben scheduled by the MRC Sunday-Thursday nights, and residents will have an opportunity to hear the office-seekers and question them.

Volume 42, Number 28 Thursday, April 2, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 933-1012. Business, circulation, advertising—933-1163. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Pressing Need For Diversity

What will be the impact of the recent condemnation of smoking by the U. S. Government? The conclusion: "Cigarette smoking is a health hazard of sufficient importance in the U. S. to warrant appropriate remedial action" did not come as a complete surprise but was released in a general atmosphere expecting its verdict.

Strangely enough those companies whose sales are most likely to be affected by the report did not attack its validity or condemn its finding as they have done to similar studies in the past. This was partly due to the selection of the men who made the study, for they were all men of unquestionable intelligence and character from leading universities and had all been approved by the cigarette industry. And to tighten the case, their conclusion was unanimous.

Now that the Federal government has said that smoking is harmful to health what will be the effect upon the economy?

Seventeen million people in the U. S. are employed directly or indirectly by the tobacco industries. This is a highly competitive industry, and a large percentage of its gross revenue is plowed back into promotion. The immediate effect of a significant drop in sales would result in "price squeezing" that would in turn result in laying off some of the employees.

Nationally, unemployment in the tobacco industry will not have a significant impact, but its effect will be felt painfully in certain regional areas, particularly in the Southeastern part of the United States.

The tobacco industry in North Carolina is a three billion dollar enterprise, and the state grows two-fifths of the nation's tobacco and manufactures more than one-half of all the country's tobacco products.

Tobacco is by far the most important money crop in the state, and many farmers are dependent upon the sale of their tobacco for what revenue they do receive each year. In addition to unemployment, a decline in tobacco product sale will bring a substantial decrease in tobacco purchases that will diminish an already low level of income in the agrarian society of North Carolina and other Southern states.

A third effect will be decreased government revenue, for cigarette taxes bring the Federal Government more than two billion dollars each year while state governments receive one billion dollars annually. In addition, tobacco manufacturers with profits of nearly 650 million annually, pay some 330 million in Federal corporation taxes.

This, of course, is assuming that people will become scared of tobacco products and a substantial number will give up the habit; however, some experts do not expect this to happen. These experts say that there will be a period when smoking declines, but this decline will be followed by a greater increase in smoking than ever before. After a similar scare in this country in 1954 and one in Great Britain in 1962, a noticeable slump occurred in the sale of tobacco products that lasted only about one year.

Regardless of the economic effect, which at present remains to be seen, the possible economic recession which could result from this report should impress upon North Carolina and other Southern state leaders the importance of greater economic diversity.

A Filibuster By Any Other Name

The New York Times

In the civil rights bill now being discussed in the United States Senate there is room for argument and there is need to debate the nuances of the eleven titles. It may also be proved desirable to modify language for the sake of clarity and principle.

So if Senator Russell's hardy band of eighteen Southerners would address themselves to the provisions of the bill, they could make a contribution. Senator Stennis has questioned the constitutionality of the title banning discrimination in public accommodations. And Senator Ellender, speaking on the voting title, has admitted that some registrars in his state of Louisiana do keep Negroes off the rolls.

Unfortunately, however, some speakers have already touched on the passions rather than the issues. When Senator Russell says that "I see no room for compromise on our part" and that "we will fight to the last ditch," he only echoes the Confederacy's lost cause. When he says that the bill would "destroy the free-enterprise system," he is guilty of exaggeration beyond the call of Southern duty.

And when he sets the tone for the filibuster by unearthing the most discredited racial arguments, he is sinking to an old low. Phrases such as "amalgamation and mongrelization of the races" bespeak false theories advanced by rabid racists.

The Southern bloc has a right to debate fully and fervently. But the time is past for parliamentary stalling. Sending the bill back to Senator Eastland's Judiciary Committee would be putting it into a noose. In the last ten years 120 civil rights bills have been strangled in committee. Since last June the committee has held only eleven days of hearings on the bill and heard only one witness, the Attorney General.

The place where the bill can now be properly debated is on the Senate floor. And here a distinction should be made between free speech and filibuster. They are not synonymous: filibuster is the antithesis of reason. It can only be used to obstruct. A filibuster is the legislative equivalent of force.

Where the tyranny of a minority prevents genuine argument and a free vote, there an anti-democratic process is at work. The Senate—on this, the key bill to insure the constitutional rights of all Americans—should insist on responsible government.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
News Editors — Mickey Blackwell, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Reporters: Kerry Sipe, Administration; Jeff Dick, Municipal; John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants: Shirley Travis, Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists: Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

The Beats: Who Is Really Right?

Editors, The Tar Heel:

The Wednesday, March 25, issue presented a number of articles on bohemianism on campus, which were quite interesting to read. I think Mr. Blackwell is to be commended for his reporting of administrators' opinions on beatniks, psychiatrists' opinions on beatniks, and beatniks' opinion on beatniks. But, after reading all of these articles, one is left with the feeling that bohemianism has been neatly diagnosed and trivialized. Benzedrine, beards, haircutlessness, emotional isolation and instability, sexual deviation, religious rebellion and religious fanaticism, and social protest have all been, coup de grace, wrapped up in a single package and tagged as adolescent rebellion against parental and academic authority figures.

The beatniks themselves were questioned about their "wild" parties and about their attitudes toward their own "clothes rebellion." But one wishes that they had been asked about their reasons for deviating on religious, sexual, and social questions. I think that an important question has been overlooked entirely, namely, who is really right on these issues? I think the local psychiatrists are fulfilling a valuable role on the campus, and maybe beatniks get sick, sick, sick quicker and more often than the rest of us. But even neurotics can be right in their opinions. The multiplication tables don't stop being true when madmen believe them.

I speak as a non-beatnik who likes baths, haircuts, and neckties. But I think that the presence of bohemianism and social protest on the campus might just possibly be evidence of more than the fact that some members of our university community are passing through a rebellious phase that they will outgrow. People who hold opinions strongly different from those of the majority can well be expected to show signs of stress. And people who rebel in their youth do, in fact, usually end up looking as normal and mimeographed as everyone else. But the important question, it seems to me, is whether they have good reasons for deviance now. If some of our fellow students think that their parents' world is wrong in some fundamental respects, and if this is important enough to them to isolate themselves from the rest of us by their odd behavior and even to have nervous breakdowns over it, then "a decent respect for the opinions of mankind" and a sense of charity towards others should make us stop, listen, and think. Maybe the adult world is not all that it should be, after all.

How wild should a party be? How religious should a man be? How closely should a girl imitate her mother and her sorority sisters? From the tone of the articles in your paper, it would seem as if the answers to these questions were all clear-cut. As wild as the parties the respectable majority of us have, but no more so? As religious as, but no more than, our fathers, deans, doctors, and teachers? Should a girl be enough like her white Anglo-Saxon Protestant mother and sorority sisters to be able to marry a well-clad, Greek-jeweled, young white Anglo-Saxon Protestant would-be junior executive? The answer is "maybe" to all of these. It is not a clear-cut "yes."

Timothy Ray
202 E. Rosemary, Apt. 1

Planetarium Is Too Awakening

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above . . .
Exodus 20:4

I am certain that our student body will be extremely interested to learn that our famed Morehead Planetarium now has a device that is capable of showing us what our souls will look like on their final journey up to heaven. In order to see this fantastic phenomenon one has merely to attend the Planetarium's 1964 Easter program "The Awakening." And — what an awakening!

The elongated crimson smear across the dome (meant to represent Christ's ascension into heaven) was the most sacrilegious public performance I have ever witnessed on campus.

I am afraid to imagine the many questions confused little children asked their Mothers about the spectacle. "Mommy, is that what Jesus really looked like when he went to heaven? How do you know?" That is just the point; no one knows and any attempt to depict it is a definite violation of the First Commandment quoted above.

I am very disappointed in the personnel of the Planetarium who usually does such an excellent job on its programs. This time they simply went too far in trying to do the impossible and the forbidden.

Ann Cameron
313 Spencer

"Man, That Guy Is Weird"

Extremists May Hurt

The New GOP In Georgia

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

ATLANTA, Ga. — Draw a picture of the new Republican Party in Georgia and the unmistakable profile of Sen. Barry Goldwater emerges.

This may be fine for the senator's ardent backers at the Republican National Convention in July, where he'll get most or all of Georgia's 24 convention votes under a binding pledge flatly opposed by the regular Republican leadership.

But the cost to the Republican movement here and in some other Southern states could be very high in the long run.

The reason for this paradox is that many of the hot-eyed types who forced the county and district Republican conventions here to bind their delegates to Goldwater belong not to the Republican Party but to a personality cult that might be called the Goldwater party.

No matter what happens at San Francisco, the Republican Party here may soon find itself swallowed up by the Goldwater party, acting quite independently of the senator's own wishes.

If Goldwater should win the nomination, that would be logical enough. A party tends to follow its candidate. But if, as now seems probable, Goldwater doesn't win the nomination, control of the party by Goldwater men, in the opinion of old-line Republican leaders, will convert the party into a haven for extreme segregationists.

In Mississippi and Alabama, where all-out segregation is the gospel of both parties, the ascendancy of the Goldwater party won't make much difference. But in Georgia, and perhaps such other states as North Carolina and Tennessee, the Negro vote has become crucial in winning elections.

Rodney Cook, an Eisenhower Republican on the Atlanta Board of Aldermen, will probably run for Congress this fall against moderate Democratic Congressman Charl esWeltner of Atlanta. The Atlanta Negro vote could well be decisive in a Weltner-Cook race (as it was in the election of Atlanta Mayor Ivan Allen).

Both Cook and Weltner rate high with Atlanta's swelling Negro vote, which equals about 1-3 of the city's total vote.

But Cook's Republican Party in Atlanta is now threatened by a Goldwater takeover led by extremists. Many of these extremists, in contrast to Goldwater himself, are all-out segregationists.

The regular Republicans are desperately fighting to prevent this takeover. Led by outgoing National Committeeman Robert Snodgrass and Fulton County (Atlanta) Republican Chairman Randolph Thrower, the regulars mailed an extraordinary appeal to 4,000 Republicans in Fulton County just before the recent county convention.

"Extremists . . . seem to be calling the shots (for) the Goldwater leadership," they said in their "urgent call for you to help save the Republican Party in Georgia." The letter charged that "an alien and extremist group using the Goldwater guise is seeking to gain control of the party."

But the county convention — one of many held all over the state to select delegates to district and state conventions—disregarded the appeal of the regulars and instructed its delegates to vote for Goldwater until released by him.

If cooler-headed Goldwater leaders had not intervened, the all-out Goldwater forces might have submitted their own man as temporary chairman of the county convention in place of Randolph Thrower, the regular Republican chairman.

These details are essential to an understanding of the power fight now taking place in the Republican Party as a result of Goldwater's fanatic following in the South.

Chief Goldwater strategist in the 11 Southern states is John Grenier, Alabama State Republican chairman and a shrewd political organizer. Grenier's job is to deliver about 250 delegates to Goldwater. And the way it looks today he will be spectacularly successful.

What concerns the regular leaders like Snodgrass and Thrower is not that the 250 delegates will vote for Goldwater. What they fear is that, despite Goldwater's probable defeat in the convention, control of the party machinery will be seized by the pro-Goldwater extremists, with the help of disenchanted right-wing Democrats.

In the long run, this could permanently alienate Dixie Republicans from the growing Negro vote and their brother Republicans in the North.

They fixed it! Yes, Cameron Avenue is whole again at long last. Students who have endured many weeks of dust, mud, tar, oil, grease, bumps, tire-destroying craters, mud, dust, and tar are happy again. Thank you, University officials—until next time.
—Photo by Jim Wallace

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel encourages its readers to express their views on any subject of interest, but reminds them that space requirements place certain restrictions on length.

Letters should be typed, double-space, and not longer than two pages in length. As the editorial page is made up one or two days in advance, and the volume of correspondence is often quite large, letters may not appear until several days after they are submitted. We will make every effort, however, to print ALL letters that do not violate standards of good taste, and which bear the name and address of the sender. Names can be withheld only under most unusual circumstances.

Heelprints

Frozen peaches are sometimes pretty tasty, but we'd bet that most North Carolina sandhills farmers are cool to the idea.

* * *

Then there's the Dan Moore doll—you wind up your TV set, and there he is.

* * *

Wonder if those eight days went by fast enough for Pat Cusick?

* * *

Looks as though that bathroom fall sent John Glenn's Senate plans right down the drain.

* * *

If Senator Russell of Georgia needs any good talkers for the Civil Rights filibuster, we know a certain Raleigh disc jockey that we'd like to send to Washington . . .

* * *

That rally last Saturday night certainly couldn't be dubbed Klandestine, could it?

* * *

After Daytona Beach and Jacksonville, perhaps Florida should bill itself as "The Riot State."

* * *

Looks as if some Congressmen want to call the Senator from Arkansas "Half-bright."

'Ah, Go Fly A Kite . . .'

Hugh Stevens

Have you ever returned from a vacation without a major care in the world, only to have some trivial, unimportant matter come up to cast a shadow on all the easy living, studying, and whatever - else - you - did during your holiday?

Well, I have. It happened Monday when I returned to peaceful Chapel Hill all set to dig in on the books and various other activities. I found that the Daily Tar Heel, in its own inimitable fashion, had stirred up a major controversy among the students of a neighboring institution.

It all started with a certain Kite Contest held at North Carolina State (or whatever it is) the Saturday before we were scheduled to go home for Easter. I have noted in the most recent issues of the Technician, that institution's noble newspaper, that the Daily Tar Heel's Kite Staff (meaning me, I suppose) failed to show up for the contest and respond to the engineers' "challenge."

Now kite flying is a serious business, and I think it's time someone set the record straight about this thing.

To begin with, we here at the DTH question the reasoning of our Raleigh brethern in holding a kite contest in the first place, or rather, the second place. Could it be that they were trying to jump on what seemed to be a rather nice bandwagon? If so, we are flattered by their imitation. But we must admit they muffed the job a little.

You see, the whole thing was apparently staged as a sort of grudge match between State and Carolina. Now our contest was open to all, and was put on for the enjoyment of the public, a policy by which we shall abide in the future. The notices in the NCS paper, however, urged students to "show those finks from Carolina that the students from a technical school can fly rings around students from a 'Country Club.'"

Now whether the State kite contest promoters realize it or not, they immediately lowered a potentially high-class event to the level of a mud-slinging contest. This alone was enough to give us pause in accepting their "challenge."

The second thing that gave us pause was the fact that we didn't even find out about this thing until it was almost over. Experience tells us that the only way to have a kite contest is to let somebody know about it, preferably people who own and are capable of flying kites. So, when I received a long distance call from Raleigh on Thursday before the contest, I wondered why someone had forgotten to mention the event to us, since we were the object of the challenge. After all, kites aren't built in a day (at least good ones) and this guy on the phone demanded that we produce gobs and gobs of entries from Carolina at what amounted to a moment's notice. I told him that the best we could possibly do was to send over a DTH entry to represent the whole campus.

In fact, I went ahead and constructed a kite out of Daily Tar Heel back issues, and was all set to head over there and try to uphold the flying reputation of dear ol' Carolina.

Saturday, however, dawned (if that's the word) rainy and bleak and unseasonably cold. It was the sort of day to stay inside by a warm fire, not to get out and fly kites. I figured our illustrious imitators would feel this way, too. I should have known better. They had the contest, probably out of spite, and then had the gall to complain when we didn't show up to slide in the mud, get rain down our backs, and sling mudballs at the coeds with them. I guess they figured that if they were crazy enough to go through with it, we should have been crazy enough to show up.

Well, we didn't, and we're not sorry. A meager 25 entries, sarcastic challenges, and rain just don't make such of a contest when you come right down to it. Besides, I have qualms about attempting to deal with people who publicly label their opposition "the daily yellow sheet" in their news columns. As far as we're concerned, State college students, faculty members, animals, or whatever are welcome to show up for the next real Kite Contest. We will welcome in spring with it next year. In the meantime, we've got a newspaper to produce and studies to attend to, so let's call an end to the contest season here and now.

Oh, yes, a personal word to the State contest sponsors. I did see a contest that day—from inside a warm press box. It was the alumni-varsity football game, and it was a really big show. If Danny Talbott and his cohorts are any indication, we may soon have more reason than ever to tell you guys to "GO FLY A KITE!"

—Campus Briefs—

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

Scuba Diving Club — 7:30 p.m., indoor pool.

Elections Board—will not meet as previously announced.

Compulsory Candidates Meeting —7 p.m., Howell Hall auditorium.

APO — 7 p.m., Smith basement, short special meeting.

Orientation Reform Comm.—4:15 p.m., Orientation office, final report approval.

Senior Week Comm.—7:30 p.m., RP III.

YM-YWCA—2 p.m., Y-Court, volunteer work at Dix Hill.

International Students Board—4 p.m., Y-Court.

Scabbard & Blade — 6:45 p.m., Air Science classroom 4, informal business meeting.

Order of the Old Lampshades—7:05 p.m., parlor, Nurses Dorm.

MOVIES

Carolina—Paris When It Sizzles
Varsity—A Stranger Knocks

FRIDAY

Philosophy of Science Group—8 p.m., 213 Caldwell, Bernard Davis will speak on "Criteria of Empirical Significance."

BSU—5:45 p.m., supper at BSU, discussion and worship following at the University Baptist Church.

Westminster Fellowship—8 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, bridge party.

Year-at-Lyon Program — 7 p.m., 4th floor Dey Hall, Faculty Lounge, discussion, question-and-answer session on spending a year abroad, everyone invited.

SATURDAY

Alpha Phi Omega is sponsoring a Hootenanny; individuals or groups from the University may enter; contact Jimmy Harris (308 Everett, 968-9028) or Dallas Lane (942-4789) today. Prizes will be awarded.

— Orlans —

(Continued From Page 1)

Since 1954, he has worked for the government as a Science Progress Analyst, Chief of the Nonprofit Institutions section, Chief of the Foreign Science section, a member of the National Science Foundation and Director of Studies in the 1960 White House Conference on Children and Youth.

He is presently part of the Senior Staff at the Brookings Institute studying the effects of federal programs on higher education.

Hear Ye!

FREE

Mug of

BEER, CIDER

or

COKE

with your

Lunch

Wednesday Thru Saturday

At

ZOOM-ZOOM

Attention SENIOR and GRADUATE MEN Students
Who need some FINANCIAL HELP in order to complete their education this year and will then commence work.
Apply to STEVENS BROS. FOUNDATION, INC.
A Non-Profit Educational Fdn. 610 Endicott Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.
UNDERGRADS, CLIP AND SAVE

Vacation is over and we just know you had a fine time with that lovely girl.

Let Her Know You Enjoyed Her Company with a

CARD or GIFT

Ledbetter Pickard

ANYTHING FOR THE OCCASION

CHARMACK
New York 9, N. Y.
The Magician
P. O. Box 118

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

IT SPEAKS IN THE LANGUAGE OF LOVE, LAUGHTER AND TEARS!

GREGORY PECK / TONY CURTIS

"CAPTAIN NEWMAN, M.D."

EASTMAN COLOR

CO-STARRING ANGIE DICKINSON

AND CO-STARRING BOBBY DARIN

AS CORPORAL JIM TOMPKINS

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

Shows at: 2:15 - 4:32 - 6:49 - 9:05

STRIPES, GLEN PLAIDS — NEWEST ON OFF-WHITE BACKGROUNDS!

You're always dressed to-the-minute in Archdale sport shirts! Neutral beige and off-white backgrounds—here's the news! You get fine quality woven cottons, neat ivy detailing. S, M, L.

$3.99

when are 65% and 35% good marks?

when they're 65% DACRON* & 35% cotton in Post-Grad slacks by h.i.s.

This is the fabric combo that makes music with sleek good looks and washable durability. And Post-Grads are the bona fide authentics that trim you up and taper you down. Tried-and-true tailored with belt loops, traditional pockets, neat cuffs. Only $6.95 in the colors you like... at the stores you like.

*DuPont's Reg. TM for its Polyester Fiber

WIN A TRIP TO EUROPE

Pick up your "Destination Europe" contest entry form at any store featuring the h.i.s label. Nothing to buy! Easy to win! h.i.s offers you your choice of seven different trips this summer to your favorite European city by luxurious jet. Enter now!

HIS Slacks are found in Six great Spring Colors

Varsity Men's Wear

Clothiers of Distinction

147 E. Franklin St.

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571

Delivery until 11:30 P.M.

BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1

Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes

115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

BEST DEAL IN TOWN
(Eating—That Is)

Student Special

- All the CHICKEN you can eat ..... 88c
- All the FISH you can eat ..... 69c

MONDAY - FRIDAY; 4:00 - 7:00 P.M.

GRANTS EASTGATE Shopping Center

© VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.

Volkswagen, Italian style.

"Suggested Retail Price P.O.E. $2295. Local Taxes and other dealer charges, if any, additional"

The Karmann Ghia goes to show you what happens when you turn a Volkswagen over to an Italian designer.

It comes out with a noble Roman nose, graceful curves, and a low silhouette.

In fact, classical tradition is followed right down the line.

Fenders, hoods and door frames are welded and shaped and smoothed by hand.

Seats and convertible tops are padded and stitched and fitted by hand.

Now you might think it's sort of crazy to go to all this trouble, just to turn out some fancy Italian sculpturing.

Especially since this body of work ends up on top of one of those plain VW chassis.

But consider.

The chassis includes VW's 4-speed synchromesh transmission, big 15-inch wheels, torsion bars, and an easy-to-service non-temperamental engine.

So that with the Ghia's form, and this functional interior, you've got yourself a pretty solid piece of architecture.

It's known as renaissance Volkswagen.

TRIANGLE MOTORS, Inc.

616 W. Chapel Hill St. Durham
Open Friday Nights 'til 9

AUTHORIZED SALES

Varsity STARTS TODAY

THE MOST MOVING LOVE STORY EVER FILMED.

"I'll make my own position clear: I think the film should be shown: patrons of art cinemas are, in the main, perceptive adults."
ALPERT, Saturday Review

A STRANGER KNOCKS

"One of the best films made in Denmark in recent years."
Time Magazine

Winner of 5 Danish Film Festival Awards
Best Danish Film of the Year
Best Female Performer • Best Male Performer

A TRANS-LUX RELEASE

Spring IS here—And We're

SPRING CLEANING!

While cleaning the store . . .

We Found EXCITING CLOTHES We THOUGHT were gone!

50 Classic Cardigans — Simply Gathering Dust ---------- 5.90

40 Dresses — Lucky for you ---------- 13.00

50 Blouses — We just found them! ---------- 3.90

30 Raincoats — A Clean Sweep! ---------- 15.90

10 "Things" — Maybe YOU know what they are - 6.90

Winter Collection

Sprouting Weeds—Priced to Sell

Help OUR Spring Clean Us Out!

The FIRESIDE

JANE PARKER WHITE ENRICHED SPECIAL THIS WEEK!

BREAD 2 1½ LB. LOAVES 39¢

BEEN TO AN A&P LATELY?

You'd Be Surprised At What You're Missing!

Jane Parker Large PINEAPPLE or BLACKBERRY PIES 1½-lb. Size 39c

CHIFFON CAKES 1-lb. 1-oz. Size 45c

Prices in This Ad Effective Through Saturday, April 4, 1964

A&P

"Super-Right" Whole Fresh FRYERS

Marvel ICE CREAM ½-Gal. Ctn. 49c

Lb. 24c

MEXICAN 45-SIZE SWEET CANTALOUPES 3 for 89c

LETTUCE 2 lg. hds. 33c

SALAD DRESSING ANN PAGE QUART JAR 45c

ASSORTED VARIETIES Sparkle Gelatins 5 3-Oz. PKGS. 33c

NO APRIL FOOLING!
STILL GOING GREAT
HELD OVER, 9TH WEEK
TOM JONES
12:18, 2:30, 4:45, 7, & 9:15 p.m.
(No 12:18 Show Wed.)
Art Exhibit—Paintings by James Harrill, Greece 1963-64
RIALTO, Durham

GANT

STRIPED
BUTTON-DOWN
Take the flare and fit of the famous Gant oxford button-down, add a colorful striping and you have a pleasant change of pace in your shirt wardrobe.

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

MOLADNU FIRED

It is with great regret that we report the absence, hopefully permanent, of Etadin Moladnu from our sports staff. We differed with him on a matter of taste (the guy actually liked ad men), and we found the difference to be irreconcilable. We also find this page to be irreconcilable. It was a hard decision to make as Moladnu was one of our best by Felipe "Ears" Toliver, whom we hope wil stick with us.

Town & Campus

Baseball Team Plays Yale Here This Afternoon

UNC's baseball team, after a disastrous spring vacation trip to Florida, will play host to Yale this afternoon at three o'clock at Emerson Field. Coach Walt Rabb said nonexistent hitting was the big reason his team dropped all three of its official games in Tallahassee, while splitting two practice games.

The tennis scene brightened considerably after the opening loss to Indiana, as Don Skakle's boys swept five vacation matches. The lacrosse team lost a close one to Swarthmore, while the golfers ran their record to 4-2 with wins over Davidson (twice), Georgia and Mercer.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

YOUR WIFE . . . CAN GET Northwestern Mutual life insurance at a lower premium than you—even if you are the same age. Call us for details. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates, Telephone No. 942-6966.

FOR RENT: FOUR 2-BEDROOM apartments, all new, electric heat, washer connections, large closets, tile floors, water furnished, stove and refrigerator if desired. Located 2 miles south of Memorial Hospital on the Old Lystra Road. For further information contact Philip Sparrow at 929-1521, Chapel Hill.

UNC Netters Win 6th Straight

By BOB BETTIS

Everything is back to normal on the Varsity Courts.

The pattern of events for the North Carolina tennis team was upset drastically when Indiana handed UNC's netmen an opening day defeat. The loss, Carolina's third in three years, was so shocking that the NCAA was reportedly seeking an investigation of the match.

But it was like old times yesterday as the Tar Heels captured their sixth win of the season by crushing Williams College, 9-0. The two teams meet here again this afternoon.

A UNC sweep in the singles quickly disspelled any hopes the Williamston, Mass., visitors may have had of imitating Indiana.

Ted Hoehn recorded Carolina's first point with a 6-1, 6-1 triumph over Frank Thayer on court three. That match took only 40 minutes, and George Sokol, on number one, followed with his 6-2, 6-0 win over Tom Thornhill.

Then Pete Myers turned Bill Ewen by 6-1, 7-5, while Sam Applegate, subbing for Charlie Shaffer, defeated George Boltres, 6-1, 6-0, at the fifth post.

Singles action was completed when O. H. Parrish whipped Williams' number two netter, Pete Monroe, by 6-3, 6-3 and Carl Evans outlasted Pete Allen, 1-6, 6-4, 8-6, in a two-hour duel on court six.

SUITS . . . in the mood for Spring—

$39.95 up

Style by the top designers in the industry to insure the ultimate in comfort, fashion, and fit—at prices that represent the best clothing value. Entire collection is fashioned in good traditional taste, with subtle innovations that speak "authoritatively" but don't shout. Dacron-cotton or dacron-wool blends.

LOOK YOUR BEST FOR LESS

The Hub of Chapel Hill
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

DYNAKITS & WIRED
"At Mail Order Prices"
Vickers Electronics
506 E. Main St. Durham

Control the climate in slacks and Bermudas knowingly shaped by Austin Hill in 65% Dacron* (polyester) and 35% imported linen . . . a blend that lightly keeps its lean good looks, unrumpled by soaring temperatures or high humidity. Wash-and-wear with only a moment's wait. Nine great colors to choose from . . . including brick, natural and chamois . . .

Town & Campus

Columbia – Capitol – Angel
Four Track Stereo Tapes Available at DISCOUNT PRICES
THE RECORD BAR

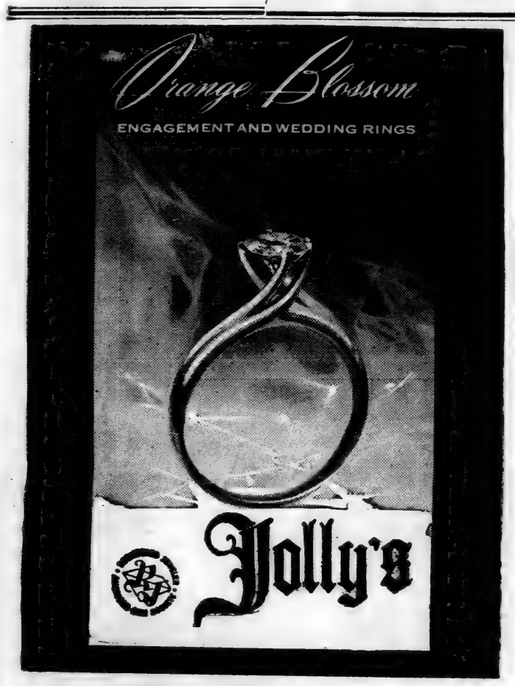
Belk Leggett Horton of Chapel Hill

everybody's singing the praises of 'WHITE LEVI'S!'

$4.50

LEVI'S SLIM FITS

Now—enjoy the trim good looks of your favorite pants style, tailored in rugged, Sanforized twill in the popular off-white and desert tones. LEVI'S Slim Fits look like a million bucks, but they're only...



FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
128 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

Belk Leggett Horton of Chapel Hill

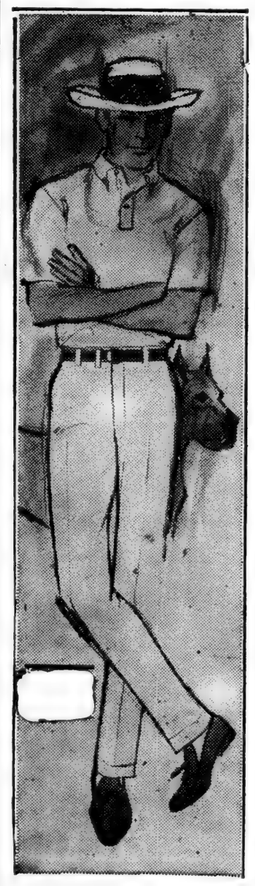
POPLIN

long on wear short on care!

5.99

Blended with service and easy-care in mind! 65% Dacron polyester with 35% combed cotton in colors completely compatible with your sport shirt collection: tan, brown, dark olive, navy, green, covert gray. 28-42".

CORBIN



TROPICAL WOOLLENS

For those who prefer fine tropical worsted trousers, Corbin has them! These crisp, lightweights in 100% Wool go with everything from sport shirt and loafers to tie and jacket. Also available are our 55% Dacron® Polyester and 45% Wool blends. They are resilient and cool! Greys and olives are in abundance. Our new colors include Ancient Madder Blue, Cornmeal, Grey Mist, Butternut Tan, and Mike Fahy's Green.

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Check These Bargains Over for Books in YOUR Field

ALL BREEDS, ALL CHAMPIONS, by Gladys Emerson Cook. A handsome and comprehensive book, including lithographs of all 116 recognized breeds of dogs. Excellent for giving — and owning. Published at $5.00.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $2.49

CHINA AND HER SHADOW, by Tibor Mende. A major book which tells what happened in China and why. Remarkable for its objectivity, presenting both Chinese and Western viewpoints. Published at $5.00.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.29

DARWIN AND THE DARWINIAN REVOLUTION, by Gertrude Himmelfarb. Biographical, historical, and philosophical study of the man whose name is synonymous with Evolution. An important book. Published at $5.95.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $3.49

THE ETHICAL ANIMAL, by C. H. Waddington. A distinguished biologist draws on philosophy, psychiatry and the social sciences to explain our modern social struggles. Published at $5.00.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.98

HER INFINITE VARIETY, by Morton M. Hunt. A study of the American Woman as lover, mate and rival. "The proper study of mankind is woman." Published at $5.95. OUR SPECIAL .. $2.49

IN THE OLD BOOK CORNER
Reference Books
A nice collection of out-of-print books for the graduate student of History or Literature. Mostly priced around $2.00 per volume.

HO HO HOFFNUNG, wordless cartoons by one of the wittiest of Englishmen, Gerald Hoffnung. Published at $3.95.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.29

IRIS FOR EVERY GARDEN, by Sydney B. Mitchell. A not-to-be missed practical guide for every one who loves Iris. Common-sense directions, how-to drawings, hints on breeding, plus a nice section of color-plates of the latest varieties. Belongs on your garden shelf. Published at $4.95.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.49

A LONG AND HAPPY LIFE, by Reynolds Price. Laid in North Carolina, this was a top seller last year. Published at $3.95.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.39

WHAT ARE YOU DOING AFTER THE ORGY, by Henry and Jim Backus. Answers a common U. N. C. problem. Published at $3.95. OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.29

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St. Open Till 10 P.M.

GRAND OPENING

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 2, 3 and 4

Come in and register for Free Prizes to be given away. Register Thursday, Friday and Saturday morning. Drawing will be held Saturday afternoon. You do not have to be present to win. Winners will be notified.

FREE PRIZES

1 Suit
1 Sport Coat
1 Windbreaker
1 Shirt
1 Tie
1 Pair Socks

Winners will have a choice of Men's or Boy's Sizes.
FREE COOKIES AND PUNCH WILL BE SERVED EVERY DAY DURING OUR GRAND OPENING CELEBRATION.

CAMPUS STYLE

THE YOUNG MISTER SHOP
chapel hill, n. c.
Phone 929-1558

103 W. Franklin St. Next to the Zoom-Zoom

HEAR TAR HEEL BASEBALL LIVE . . . WCHL-1360

The Carolina Symposium starts Sunday, and as we said yesterday, you can't tell the players without a scorecard. Clip it. Also can be used for burning crosses.

The Daily Tar Heel

The Weather

Cloudy and warm.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 1964 | United Press International Service

Symposium Adds Four To Complete Slate

REP. FRANK THOMPSON

By JOHN D. FRONEBERGER

Representative Frank Thompson, Jr. (D-N.J.) and Richard Adler, UNC graduate and composer - lyricist for "Pajama Game" and "Damn Yankees," will hold a panel discussion here Wednesday afternoon, April 8, at 4 p.m. for the Carolina Symposium.

The topic "Government and the Arts: Washington's Cold War Patronage" will focus on the effect of projected changes in the relationship between government and the arts upon artistic expression in America.

Thompson, a legislator who has demonstrated a strong interest in humanity, has represented New Jersey's Fourth District in the House of Representatives since 1954. He is a native of Trenton, New Jersey, and an alumnus of Wake Forest College, where he also received his law degree.

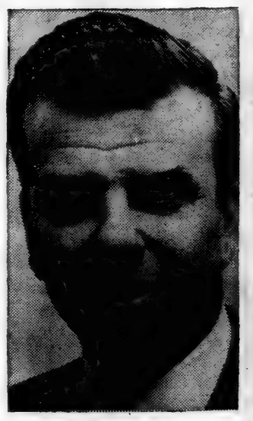
In the House he has been active in the work of the Committee on Education and Labor, working to promote such measures as impacted area legislation and the National Defense Education Act.

He also has served on the House Administration Committee and as chairman of the National Voters Registration Committee. He introduced legislation authorizing the building of the National Cultural Center in Washington and has worked to modernize immigration laws.

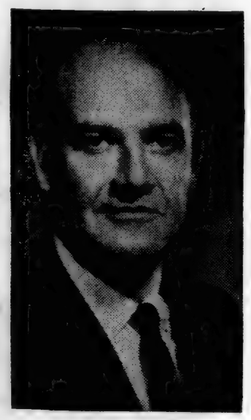
Richard Adler's music has the "spirit and brass you'd expect to find at a ball game," said Lewis Lunke in the New York Times about Adler's score for "Damn Yankees."

A native New Yorker, Adler

(Continued from Page 3)



RICHARD ADLER



SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN

By VIRGINIA CARNES

Senator George McGovern (D-S.D.) and Dr. Adam Yarmolinsky, the Special Assistant of the Secretary and Deputy Secretary of Defense, will speak Thursday afternoon, April 9, at 4 p.m. for the Carolina Symposium.

The topic: "Are We Psychologically Prepared for Peace (Disarmament?") will focus on the possibilities of the nation achieving its aims without ultimate recourse to war.

Scholar, politician, and hero McGovern was born and educated in South Dakota. After receiving his B.A. degree from Dakota Wesleyan University, where later he was to teach history, he received his M.A. and Ph.D. in History and Government from Northwestern University.

After flying 35 combat missions as a B-24 bomber pilot in WW II, he received the Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal with Three Oak Leaf Clusters.

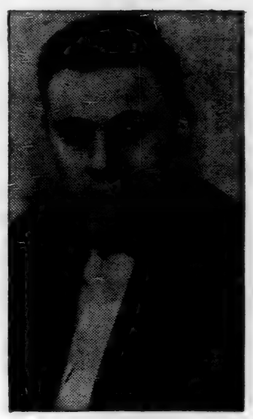
In 1956 he was elected to the House of Representatives and re-elected in 1958, serving on the Education and Labor, and Agriculture Committees.

He was a delegate to the NATO Parlimentarians Conference in 1958 and 1959, named Director for Food for Peace and Special Assistant to President Kennedy.

Elected to the Senate in 1962, McGovern became the first Democratic Senator from South Dakota since 1936.

A native of New York, Dr. Yarmolinsky received his B.A. degree from Harvard in 1943. Following service in the Army Air Force, he received his LLB from Yale Law School in 1948.

(Continued on Page 3)



ADAM YARMOLINSKY

Edit Writers Meet In Howell Today

By DAVID PRATHER

Speeches by two UNC professors and out-of-state editors will highlight the 15th annual North Carolina Editorial Writers Conference today and tomorrow.

Between 30 and 40 state editorial writers are expected.

The conference will start with a discussion at 8 p.m. Friday in Howell Hall Auditorium of "North Carolina—the Road Ahead."

Speakers at the opening session will be Dr. Rupert Vance, Kenan professor of sociology and author of two, "Human Geography of the South" and "All these People," and George Esser, executive director of the North Carolina Fund.

Presiding at the meeting will be Perry Morgan of the Charlotte News, chairman of the conference.

William Fitzpatrick, editor of the Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Star and former editorial writer for the Wall Street Journal, will kick off Saturday's session with a talk on "How to Write Editorials" at 10 a.m. in 203 Howell Hall.

Also speaking at the meeting will be Clifford Carpenter, editor of the Rochester (N.Y.) Democrat and Chronicle and chairman of the National Editorial Writers Conference. His topic is "How to Improve the Editorial Page."

A luncheon at the Carolina Inn at 1 p.m. will feature Professor Thomas Christopher of the UNC Law School talking on "Recent Supreme Court Developments on Civil Rights." The speaker will be introduced by Dickson Phillips, dean of the UNC Law School.

Four editors will participate in a shop talk session on state poli-

(Continued on Page 3)

Chi Psi Tops Pledges In Record Year

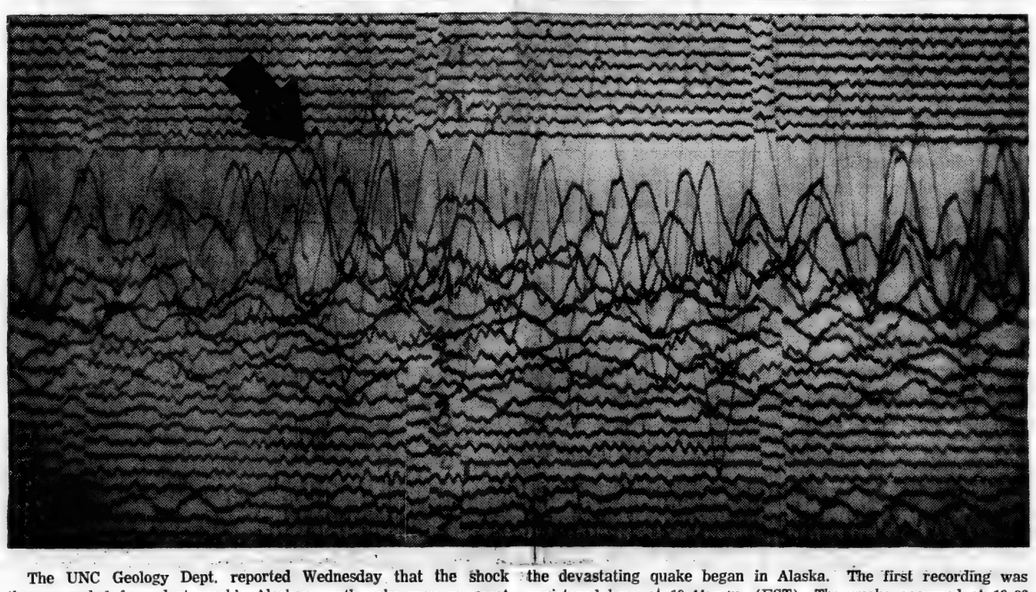
The over-all fraternity pledge scholastic average at UNC is at an all-time high according to the results of the pledge Greek Week competition announced here March 31.

The Chi Psi fraternity won the trophy for the highest grade average with a 2.573.

In the awards for the best pledge class, first place was won by Chi Psi, second place by Phi Delta Theta, and third place by Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The athletic trophy was won by the Phi Delts and the award for the best carnival booth by the SAE's.



The UNC Geology Dept. reported Wednesday that the shock they recorded from last week's Alaskan earthquake was so great that the east-west direction needle on the seismograph became stuck, placing the machine temporarily out of commission.

Department seismologists said the recording arm would have gone completely off the scale if not for the dampening service used to scale down unusually large readings by preventing the arm from swinging too far.

The reading, the largest ever received on the machine in the 10 years it has been used at UNC, was received 8 minutes after the devastating quake began in Alaska. The first recording was registered here at 10:44 p.m. (EST). The quake occurred at 10:36 p.m. (EST).

The scientists said the machine had recorded from 10 to 12 after-shocks lasting until late Tuesday afternoon. They said they expect many more smaller after-shocks lasting for a month or more.

The UNC seismograph is the only one in the state.

The only prior recording which reached the dimensions of the Alaskan quake was one which occurred in Chile some time ago.

Story by David Nordan—Photo by Jim Wallace

Duke's State $$$ Won't Affect Ban

The awarding of State funds for scientific research at Duke University does not bring the institution under the provisions of the controversial speaker-ban law passed by the '63 General Assembly, Atty. Gen. Wade Burton ruled Wednesday.

The question arose last week when the State Board of Science and Technology awarded Duke $69,429 in grants for four separate projects.

Burton, after a conference Wednesday with staff aides and Duke attorney E. C. Bryson, said the grants "are not of such a character as to bring Duke University within the purview" of the law.

The law forbids Communists or persons who have taken the Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases from speaking at State-supported colleges or universities.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Ralph Moody, who attended the conference, said Duke "is not a State-supported college by any stretch of the imagination."

The General Assembly clearly had in mind only institutions operated by the State, he said, noting that the caption of the law reads:

"An Act to Regulate Visiting Speakers at State-Supported colleges and universities.

Moody added:

"This money is not basically for the school, but for the individual projects to be carried out by the individual professors. The money goes to Duke University only as fiscal agent for disbursement to the professors. It is an incidental contractural arrangement."

Although the wording of the law covers any college or university "which receives any State funds in support thereof," Moody said research grants do not constitute support for the college itself.

The 1963 law creating the Board of Science & Technology author-

(Continued on Page 3)

TENNYSON TO SPEAK

Sir Charles Tennyson, grandson of Alfred Lord Tennyson, will speak on his grandfather's poetry in Gerrard Hall tomorrow at 8 p.m.

The talk, sponsored by the UNC Department of English, is free and open to the public.

Tennyson was knighted in 1954, and is a graduate of Cambridge who has devoted his life to public service and research of his grandfather's works.

He has published one book and several essays and studies on his grandfather who was England's poet laureate.

CHASTAIN APPOINTED

Chancellor William B. Aycock has announced the appointment of Charles Hooker Chastain as assistant professor of philosophy.

Rally For Preyer On 18th In Raleigh

Some 300 college students from throughout North Carolina are expected to attend a "Students for Preyer Rally" in Raleigh on April 18.

Plans for the rally pushing the gubernatorial candidacy of Richardson Preyer were announced Wednesday by student co-chairmen of the "Students for Prayer" campaign organization.

The student group is headed by Charlie Shaffer of the University of North Carolina, John Bynum of North Carolina State and Kitty Bernhardt of Wake Forest College.

"We're all very happy with the enthusiasm being exhibited for Judge Preyer on college campuses all over North Carolina," Shaffer said. "As a result of the hard work students are doing, we expect a turnout of about 300 students, representing every institution of higher learning in North Carolina, at the Raleigh rally on April 18.

Co-chairmen of the student organization announced that the highlight of the rally will be an address by Preyer. The candidate's wife, Emily, his State Campaign Manager, Raleigh Attorney Nat Townsend and Art Weiner, State Chairman of "Young Adults for Preyer," are also scheduled to participate.

The rally will begin at 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 18 in the ballroom of the Carolina Hotel, where Preyer has his State campaign headquarters.

"The Villagers," a folk singing group, Honey Lucas and student groups will provide entertainment.

Indian Graduate Student Is Refused Treatment In Greensboro Hospital

By JEFFREY DICK

A dark-skinned UNC graduate student from India was refused treatment at Moses Cone Hospital in Greensboro after he sustained a fractured nose in a cricket match and went to the hospital for treatment.

Officials at the hospital told Dennis Nathaniel, 29-year-old graduate student in geography, that he would have to go to the Negro hospital for treatment.

"It took us ten minutes to get to Moses Cone Hospital and I was there for another ten minutes before they turned me away," Nathaniel said. "It took us another twenty minutes to find the colored hospital."

Nathaniel said his nose "was flowing like a fountain for forty minutes" before he finally received treatment by going to the other hospital.

Nathaniel went to Greensboro last weekend to play in a cricket match with other team members from this area.

No difficulty was encountered in being treated at the Negro hospital, Nathaniel said. The Negro doctor told him he had "lost a lot of blood." The doctor temporarily repaired his injury so he could return to Chapel Hill for final treatment.

Nathaniel is expected to remain in the UNC infirmary for the remainder of the week.

The director of Moses Cone Hospital could not be reached for comment.

Dr. David G. Basile, professor of geography at UNC, said, "It is inconceivable that someone hurt would be turned away from a hospital for any reason."

Moses Cone Hospital is the object of a hearing to be held April 16, which will determine whether or not the privately owned hospital can operate on a segregated basis. The case arose when a lower court ruled that privately owned hospitals operating on federal funds could not operate on a basis of separate but equal facilities. The appeal of the case went to the U.S. Supreme Court. The final court order will open the hospital to all races, provided the court decides to certify the standing court order.

It is understood that the doctor who treated Nathaniel in Chapel Hill is planning to register a complaint with the State Medical Society protesting the way Nathaniel was handled.

When asked if the incident had affected his feelings about the United States, Nathaniel said "I would not want to generalize from this one unfortunate incident. It is the first experience I have had like this. The incident, however, should be a matter of concern to Indian nationals who are coming here.

"I was told," he continued, "that when I came here I would not be faced with this problem. Other Indians should know that there is a chance they will face some problems."

Neither Chancellor Aycock nor President Friday could be reached for comment on the matter.

Ruffin Hall Wins Color TV In Contest

Ruffin Residence Hall has been awarded a 21-inch RCA television set as a result of winning the annual Marlboro Cigarette contest.

The residence hall turned in approximately 20,000 empty cigarette packages of brands marketed by the Phillip Morris Co. The brands include Marlboro, Benson and Hedges, Alpine, Parliment and Phillip Morris Commanders.

"We had been collecting the packs since last year," said Tom Lool, chairman of Ruffin's drive for packages. "I would like to thank everyone in the hall for their help, and especially Frank Khun, Charlie Finch, Jerry Whitfield and William Schlenger."

Symposium Scorecard

SUNDAY

Sen. William Fulbright .. 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

MONDAY

Emile Benoit ..... 2 p.m.
Carroll Hall

Sen. John S. Cooper .... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall

Hans Morgenthau ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

TUESDAY

William S. Barnes
Otto Eckstein ..... 2 p.m.
Carroll Hall

Douglas M. Knight
Frank P. Graham ..... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall

David Brinkley ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

WEDNESDAY

Harold Orlans
Paul Gross ..... 2 p.m.
Garrard Hall

Rep. Frank Thompson
Richard Adler ..... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall

Irvng Howe
Marya Mannes
John Knowles
William Coles ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

THURSDAY

Adam Yarmolinsky
Sen. George McGovern .. 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall

George W. Ball ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

Wildcat Strikers Protest Contract

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Thousands of dissatisfied miners, spread wildcat strikes into five states today in protest of a new contract between the United Mine Workers Union and soft coal operaors.

It was estimated that from 8,000 to 10,000 soft coal miners were off the job in southwestern Pennsylvania, northern West Virginia, eastern Ohio, western Kentucky and southern Illinois despite efforts of UMW officials to get them back to work.

Joseph Yablonski, director of UMW District 5 here, said some locals under his jurisdiction attempted to return to work Thursday but were turned back by what he called "irresponsible pickets."

The strikes in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio centered around protests over a new contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, which went into effect Thursday. Hundreds of miners in southern Illinois and western Kentucky walked off their jobs claiming operators in these states refused to sign the new pact.

At a meeting in Bellaire, Ohio, earlier this week, 1,500 miners vowed to continue the walkout until the international UMW officers "came to them."

Press Club Hears Williams Monday

F. Bryan Williams, vice-president of James F. Fox, Inc., will speak to the UNC Press Club Monday at 7 p.m. in Howell Hall and attempt to prove that public realtors is not a dirty word.

Williams, a veteran of the Korean War, worked for McGraw Hill Publishing Co. as one of the first members of the company's editorial training program. He also trained with the National Petroleum News and Engineering News Record.

He was assistant managing editor and business editor of Fleet News, a publication of the trucking industry. He wrote some of the first public relations "how-to-" features for the industry.

As assistant business administration editor for Chemical Week, he was especially active in writing about public relations and communications.

As vice-president of James F. Fox, Inc., he is now associated with such accounts as Bigelow-Sanford, Inc., the State of Nevada, Abbott Laboratories, American Enka Corporation and Bankers Trust Company.

He was twice honored with the Jesse H. Neal Award for Editorial Excellence given by the Associated Business Publications and received an award from the State of Nevada for service to the state.

He graduated from the University of Virginia with a B.A. in English. He did graduate work at George Washington University, New York University and the New School for Social Research.

The Men Interview . . .

. . . And So Do The Girls

Volume 72, Number 128 Friday, April 3, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1879.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

A Foul Perversion Of Medical Ethics

The action of officials at Moses Cone Hospital in Greensboro in refusing treatment to an injured UNC graduate student from India is reprehensible and constitutes a foul perversion of medical ethics.

The student, Dennis Nathaniel, fractured his nose in a cricket match in Greensboro last Sunday. Bleeding profusely and in pain, he was turned away from Cone Hospital with the suggestion that he go to the local Negro hospital for treatment.

How anyone trained in the high calling of medicine could do something like this is incomprehensible. It is worth noting that the director of the hospital became mysteriously absent when called by a reporter for an explanation of the incident.

One is forced to wonder how often similar incidents have occurred at Cone Hospital in the past without gaining public attention. Indeed, one is forced to wonder about the whole climate of medical ethics at Moses Cone Hospital.

The callousness of the act only serves to underline the fundamental cruelty of segregation, which fosters the occurrence of incidents such as the one which happened to Nathaniel.

The Other Side Of The Liberty Coin

A gratifying piece of news came out over Easter vacation: WRAL-TV's request for renewal of its broadcast license is being held up while a study is made of broadcast editorializing.

This is good news mainly because such a study is long overdue. At present the limits of proper editorializing and comment in the broadcast media are vague and ill-defined, and any broadcaster who does editorialize is somewhat out on a limb. Yet the nation needs such increased comment, particularly as daily newspapers continue to dwindle in number or are absorbed by one company. More than ever before we need a diversity of editorial views, and TV-radio editorializing appears to be the best way of providing such diversity.

The fact that WRAL-TV's application for license renewal is being held up is good news for another reason, too. It means that a goodly number of people have written the Federal Communications Commission and complained about WRAL-TV's one-sidedness and fundamental unfairness in its editorializing.

What these complainants seek is not a stop to WRAL's editorializing, but an opportunity to see that rebuttals are voiced—that other points of view are presented by the station beside its own.

This is a problem that newspapers solved long ago via their Letters To The Editor column. If a reader dissents from a position the paper has taken, he can write a letter and say so, knowing that his letter will be published if it meets certain minimum standards, such as not being libelous or in poor taste.

But how is one to rebut broadcast eitorials if the station, like WRAL, never allows you to? How is dissent to flourish if it cannot be aired?

Those who have rushed to the defense of WRAL would do well to recognize that this is the issue where WRAL-TV and radio editorializing is concerned.

For, as usual, WRAL has harped on "freedom" and closed its eyes to "responsibility," the other side of the coin of liberty.

We think the FCC would perform a great service if it refused to renew WRAL's license application. The station has shown itself to be unconcerned with giving other points of view equal time to be presented. Were its example to be followed widely, dissent would starve to death.

Duke' Hairsbreadth Escape

Raleigh News & Observer

For the moment anyhow Duke University is safe from the "gag" law which its legal counsel feared might apply to it as a result of a research grant of State funds. The Attorney General, drawing a nice line, has ruled that Duke can do its own regulating of speakers on its campus since the money went to Duke professors not specifically to the institution in which they work.

Obviously even those who favor this law are anxious to avoid taking on any more protests than the ones they have already got. But private colleges need not be too sure they are going to be allowed to escape state supervision of their ideas of freedom of expression.

Irving Caryle, distinguished Winston-Salem attorney and friend of higher education, suggests private colleges better be prepared to face a law which is written to apply to any "college or university, which receives any state funds in support thereof . . ."

Undoubtedly those who are eager to protect this bad law, which was pushed through the legislature at the last minute without any hearings, will try to limit its application in hope of minimizing protests against it. Still private colleges better watch out if they wish to do their own policing of their speakers. State, Federal, local, and private money is all mixed up in the operation of facilities today. And "any state funds" could cover a lot of institutions operating under the impression that they are private and free. At this point in North Carolina they need a road map (though not one of roads built with any state money) to the certainty of academic freedom and liberty of expression.

Quite A Gal, That Mrs. Peabody

Mrs. Malcolm Peabody, the 72-year-old mother of Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, must be quite a woman. From what we have seen of her in the newspapers and on television, she's doing a pretty good job of putting the spotlight on the dark spots of prejudice in "the oldest city in America," St, Augustine, Florida.

She and her friends from Massachusetts are staying temporarily at the local jail, because they had the gross effrontery to join St. Augustine Negroes in seeking service at segregated hotels and motels in St. Augustine.

The Mayor of the city has denounced Mrs. Peabody and her friends as "northern scalawags" for their efforts, which only underlines the importance of continuing those same efforts.

We in North Carolina are faced with a similar situation. A group of ministers and others from the Boston area are presently at work in Williamston, N. C., trying to help secure for Negroes there some of the "blessings of liberty" which many of those same Negroes have fought and died for in this nation's wars.

Gov. Sanford, unlike the mayor of St. Augustine, has not termed the Bostonians in Williamston "northern scalawags." But he has responded to their presence. In a news conference the other day, the Governor implied the Massachusetts people ought to get back home and attend to their own problems.

This, of course, was begging the question.

For, as Mrs. Peabody put it so well: "We don't consider ourselves only Northerners. We are part of the U. S. A. Segregation will be abolished sooner if we work on it together."

The problem is not "northern scalawags." The problem is discrimination. The sooner we in the South come to recognize this, and recognize too that this problem is also a great opportunity, the sooner will it be unnecessary for people like Mrs. Peabody to come down and rub our noses in our neglected duty for us.

"My Friends, We Must Economize On You"

EEEEEEEEEEEEEEE . . . !!

By HENRY McINNIS

The boozed-up old broad with long blond ringlets straggled over to the wall-length mirror, a sickly smile showing through great bloodshot golf-ball eyes. Pursing her evil black lips, she paused, looking pleased, and spoke:

"Now when I was a little girl and did as I was told.

I was Papa's little angel and Mama said I was as good as gold.

But when I was very, very bad, and answered back in sass,

I was Papa's little devil and Mama said I had the brass.

Now I wish that you would tell me.

Cause I'm much too young to know! . . . . EEEEEEEEEEE!!

Enter ear-shattering trumphets, booming bass fiddles, screeching strings, seering horns and deafening orchestral thunder. Baby Jane Hudson goes flying through the dark mansion! Why, it's Bette Davis!

To understand Whatever Happened to Bette Davis, you must realize that Hollywood's primitive customs force even the greatest of actresses into playing "character" roles when they can no longer be peddled in the market as sexual creatures or sweet young things.

Actress Davis' last two movies of 1962 and 1963 heralded these two teasers: "Sister, sister, oh so fair. Why is there blood all over your hair?" (Whatever Happened to Baby Jane) "Mirror, mirror on the wall. Now who's the deadliest twin of all?" (Dead Ringer). In other words, Davis was playing "characters."

Miss Davis, 56, winner of two Academy Awards as best actress for "Dangerous" and "Jezebel" in the 1930's, was considered by Hollywood cinemoguls and Wall Street financiers to be a prime example of boxoffice poison. From 1952 to 1962, her screen vehicles failed to lure a lucrative segment of the public into the theaters.

Indeed, Davis appeared to be living in real life her reel life role in the 1950 movie, "All About Eve," in which she played a fading and desperately insecure star and woman. But she fought back the curtains of oblivion with considerable tooth and claw and even humbled herself to place an ad in a Hollywood trade paper stating, "Actress with thirty years experience in films seeks steady employment in Hollywood. Has had Broadway. Willing to travel and more affable than rumor would have it."

Soon after the ad, Bette was cast as Apple Annie in "Pocketful of Miracles," a distinct boxoffice hit, and then . . . BOOM! "Whatever Happened To Baby Jane" was made on a low, low budget with Davis co-starring with Joan Crawford in what is probably the most morbid and bizarre flick of all time.

In a lecture at State College several weeks ago, this writer asked New York film critic Bosley Crowther for his opinion of the present Davis career. He said she is unquestionably a fine acttress, but she was degrading herself with a movie like "Baby Jane."

Just why Miss Davis "degraded" herself is not at all clear judging from her superb characterization and flawless handling of the Baby Jane role. Critics of Crowther's stature should avoid joining that myopic and confused host of professional reviewers and critics who persist continually to point to Miss Davis' overwhelming presence and vitality but completely and incompetently ignore or miss the extraordinary Thespian virtuosities that are hers so victoriously.

Time Magazine's self-conscious and partial movie reviewer, mercifully nameless, could only say grudgingly of Bette in her latest release, "Dead Ringer," that she "didn't really act but shamelessly showed off. But just try to take your yes off of her." This is also the case with Time's movie reviewers, who really write but shamelessly show off their flippant and facile talents. But just try to take your eyes off their reviews. That is, if you don't mind hypocrisy and the sacrifice of substance for style.

In spite of cool critical reception, it took the 1963 Academy Awards and the perceptive public to bring Bette the recognition she deserved for her provocative return. How long wil it take the artistic intelligentsia to extend Bette Davis a real welcome back?

Notes On The Fasters, Rebels

Otelia In Favor Of The PA Law

Editors, The Tar Heel:

When I read that a group planned to fast for eight days on the Post Office lawn to dramatize their convictions of the evil of discrimination against anyone, for whatever reason, I wondered if it would change anybody's feelings, or accomplish anything.

Well, I must admit, that while lying in the streets and obstructing traffic left me cold, now when I go by the Post Office and see the whites and colored, lying on the ground, with makeshift bedding and covering, day and night, through wind & rain, and cold, that I have felt a change come over the way I feel about this whole situation. If these people are dedicated enough, and are willing to go through the discipline and the self-sacrifice that they are going through, then they must be right and their cause is just. I for one, will support the aldermen if they decide to pass the public accommodations ordinance.

I went down to Wilson this past week for my son's 29th birthday. Some one took us out to dinner at the new Holiday Inn. The first people I saw in the dining room were four or five Negroes, eating at a table. I was a little surprised, first that they had the money to eat there, and second, that they were there at all. If ever I had any prejudice about eating in the dining room with Negroes, I have gotten over it at UNC, where they eat in Lenoir Hall every day.

I don't know of anything that I would be willing to fast, or sleep out of doors for, in order to accomplish my purpose. I must say that I admire those who do have the courage of their convictions. Take a leaf from me, don't just read about them, go by the Post Office every day and see for yourself. Then, be indifferent, if you can.

I am against the Fair Employment section of the bill, for reasons that I might discuss later.

Otelia Connor

The Rebels: Not Quite Enough

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Congratulations on covering "The Rebels."

The men you interviewed mostly betray a forlorn lack of facts about what it is to be adolescent, however richly they may be endowed with theory, and ready to see parents as the targets of alleged revolt.

Your reporter extracted more information from the professional men and campus police chief than from the subjects of all the speculation—the so-called rebels themselves. That indicates how little we really know about so-called beatniks and rebels—next to nothing.

We need a look from within. I recommend Simone de Beauvoir's "Memoirs of a Dutiful Daughter" as, in an existential sense, potentially far more enlightening than so much technical loquacity.

John J. Honigmann
404 Alumni

Some Poetry On Vacations

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Us guys what come from outa state,
When we go home, we celebrate.
We all get stewed and stay out late,
And there's one thing that we all hate.
Just for gen'ral information,
We all hate a short vacation.

Spring break is just a long weekend.
Doesn't give us much time to spend
With our folks, a girl, or some friend.
So here is what I recommend.
Come on now Administration,
Howzabout a real vacation!!

We look on our Spring vacation,
Like all students, with elation.
Let me say now in summation,
What gives this Yank such irritation.
Of all the schools in the nation,
We must have the worst vacation!!

Tony Dwight
313 Mangum

Kerrying On

BY KERRY SIPE

We were sitting around the rough-hewn bar table, the intellectuals and me, oxidizing cigarettes and paying compliments to Fredrico Fellini and his gang.

"The motion picture has become the universal language!" swooned some nut with a goatee and a tankard of Lowenbrau. He seemed to know what he was saying.

"The movies are the great global educators, the conversations between two spirits, the playing grounds of purest art," he mumbled between mouthfuls of submarine sandwich.

Yes, I nodded, Yes.

"It's THE art!" he continued, punctuating the statement with his skinny finger.

Yes, I nodded, Yes.

"Every generation is symbolized by its own particular form of art," he lectured through his red linin napkin.

Yes, I nodded, Yes.

"Our generation, our times are symbolized through the art in motion, the sound, the color, the pagentry, the rhythm of the moving picture."

Yes, I nodded. Yes. I am always reluctant to condemn something that I do not understand.

He didn't ask me, so I didn't tell him that the night "8½" was shown in my home town, I stayed at home and played with my view-master.

I was lucky though. Apparently understanding modern motion pictures is the least important thing about them.

"It's not the sense they make," the guy with the sandwich said, "but the mood. You know. The mood."

The mood. The feeling of the Age. So that's why these foreign movies go over so big in this country. I thought it was because they were sexy.

It's important for people of different cultures to understand each other. This much I understand. I decided that what the industry needed was what I could give to a picture.

Isn't that how all great directors get started?

We'll call it "6 and ⅜." It's tops, matter how much the critics cry "Old Hat!" It starts by solving all the world's problems and ends by creating a few new ones.

I can see it now. It'll be fourteen seconds long, including credits. The scene opens on a blue-eyed nude standing alone in one of the craters of the moon. Soothing guitar music sings in the background. As she dances around the camera zooms in to find the print of a hob-nailed russian boot tatooed across her . . . . er . . . . euphemism. John Glenn's head and Richard Button's body flies in on the wings of an American eagle. By this time the guitar music is joined by the sound of hydrogen bombs going off in 4:4 time. The creature reaches into the hole in the side of its head (the one I forgot to mention) and takes out a bar of Bon Ami window cleaner. Using the American flag as a washcloth, he cleans the heelprint from his leading lady.

They dance around together and as they do, the camera zooms in again and a kettle drum enters the sound track. The audience is amazed to see that the hair of both their heads has grown together in one great tangled mass. An enormous beatle-wig-like vegetation covers the entire set. All is quiet for seven days and seven nights.

When the audience least expects it, Nikita Khrushchev's head on Elizabeth Taylor's body (nude of course) comes out on the hairy rug and beats President Johnson in a game of Gin Rummy.

It's all very symbolic.

A VIEW FROM THE HILL

A special sneak preview of next year's Undergraduate Bulletin has revealed to us that a diverse array of new courses will soon be offered at the University. There courses were created by popular demand and should be filled immediately. Here are just a few:

POLITICAL MARKETING 39. Prof. Henry Lawler. Special emphasis on buying and selling of Attorney-Generals. Fall and Spring. Text: Machiavelli, The Prince.

FOOD APPRECIATION 1 and 2. Freshman elective. For the beginning gourmet, a comprehensive course in the seasoning value of egg shells, fingernails, hairs, and other culinary delights. Nightly in Lenoir Hall. Prerequisite: note from physician.

CRIMINOLOGY 84. Prof. William Wynn. Prerequisite: permission of warden.

DROP-ADD 93. A study of the socio - eco - religio - psycho - political significance of pink slips, yellow slips, blue slips, and advisors. Hanes Hall and South Building.

SOCIAL PROTEST 11. Field trips to local establishments. Five labs weekly in Harry's. Wide assortment of professors available. (Honors work may be done in Intersection-Blocking 12 and Going-Limp 62).

LEGISLATIVE EXPEDIENCY 75. Intensive training in how to lead fellow students without representing them. One lab weekly in New East.

CUSTOMER RELATIONS 17. A course in courteous, efficient service by state employees. Labs in Pine Room and Book Exchange. (Related studies: Monopolies and Price-Fixing 25).

MORALITY AND CULTURE 43. Prof. Katharine Carmichael. Particular emphasis on the breeding cycle of the African violet. Application must be made two couples at a time.

SOCIOLOGY 141. Changing concepts in manners and mores. An examination of the terms "gentleman" and "lady" and an attempt to redefine these. Guest instructor from Duke (tentative). Prerequisite: membership on Men's or Women's Honor Council.

Heelprints

Looks as if the baseball team more or less fouled out in Florida.

* * *

Now that the FCC has WRAL-TV's license under consideration, we wonder if ol' Jesse will Helm and haw so much.

* * *

We hear that Henry Cabot Lodge is thinking of having New Hampshire change the name of its state capital from Concord to Conquered.

* * *

Then there's the Mike Lawler doll—you wind it up and it puts on a puppet show.

* * *

Simile: as numerous as the campus elections posters.

* * *

It will be Springtime as soon as the weatherman has thawed about it a little more.

* * *

Some candidate has suggested that they change the name of those dorm meetings to dormant meetings.

* * *

Right now, the national GOP outlook is Barely Goldwater.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel invites comments on current topics from its readers regardless of viewpoint. All letters to the editors should be typewritten, double-spaced and of reasonable length. All letters must be signed, with the address of the author. No letter considered libelous or in poor taste will be printed.

CHARMACK
New York 9, N. Y.
The Magician
P. O. Box 118

BOOKS BY CAROLINA
SYMPOSIUM
SPEAKERS

BENOIT
Disarmament and the Economy $5.75

ECKSTEIN
Multiple Purpose River Development $6.50

FULBRIGHT
Prospects for the West—$3.25

HOWE
A World More Attractive—$6.50

MANNES
More In Anger (Paper) $1.45
Subverse $3.95

MORGENTHAU
The Purpose of American Politics $5.00

Look them over at the town's nicest browsery

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open every night until 10 p.m.

— Writers —

(Continued from Page 1)

tics in the Howell Hall Lounge from 3-4 p.m.

Leaders of the shop talk will be H. W. Kendall, Greensboro Daily News; Stanley Moore, Morganton News-Herald; Jake Strother, Kinston Daily Free Press; and L. E. Austin, Carolina Times (Durham).

The conference will conclude with a 6 p.m. dinner at the Carolina Inn. Wallace Carroll, editor and publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal Sentinel, will speak.

Carroll, formerly of the New York Times Washington Bureau, will give "Reflections on Today's Newspapers."

Four Track Stereo Tapes Available at Discount Prices
The Record Bar

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES
Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES
• New Moon
• Ritz-Craft
• Palace
5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East
See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD
DURHAM
Phone 596-8302

Tar Heel Co-Editor Awarded Fellowship

Gary Blanchard, co-editor of The Daily Tar Heel, has been awarded a fellowship to the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University.

The two-year graduate program is designed to educate men for careers in the analysis and resolution of public problems as journalists, civil servants and diplomats, rather than for careers in university teaching and scholarly research.

Blanchard, twenty-five, is a senior reading for honors in Political Science at the University, and will graduate in June.

He will spend the summer in an intensive language training program at the University and leave for Princeton in the fall.

PATRONIZE YOUR • ADVERTISERS •

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
WILLIAM HOLDEN · AUDREY HEPBURN
GO ABSOLUTELY APE IN

PARIS WHEN IT SIZZLES
PRINTS BY TECHNICOLOR® A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

Belk Leggett Horton of Chapel Hill
POPLIN

long on wear
short on care!
5.99
Blended with service and easy-care in mind! 65% Dacron polyester with 35% combed cotton in colors completely compatible with your sport shirt collection: tan, brown, dark olive, navy, green, covert gray. 28-42".

Need A Job?

The following organizations will recruit on campus next week week:

Monday, April 6 — General Board of Education of the Methodist Church; Thalhimer Brothers, Inc.; Spencer Enterprises (summer).

Tuesday, April 7—Spencer Enterprises (summer); Benton & Bowles, Inc.; U. S. Geological Survey; Union Trust Company of the District of Columbia; Hallmark Cards, Inc.

Wednesday, April 8—Harvard Medical School (women); Liberty Mutual Insurance Company; Aetna Casualty & Surety Company; Electrolux Corporation.

Thursday, April 9—Liberty Life Insurance Company; Retail Credit Company, Inc.; Southern States Cooperative, Inc.; Pines of Carolina Girl Scout Council (summer).

Friday, April 10 — Harold E. Linder, CPA; Crawford & Company Insurance Adjusters.

Students desiring interviews with the company representatives should contact the Placement Service, 204 Gardner Hall.

— Duke —

(Continued from Page 1)

izes it to allocate funds to "public and private institutions of higher education, the Research Triangle Institute and similiar entities."

Duke and two State-supported institutions, UNC and N.C. State, were awarded research funds by the board a week ago.

The Duke grants went for studies by Prof. W. R. Kirgbaum, $35,969; Prof. D. W. Hill, $15,590; Prof. H. J. Humm, $11,659; and Prof. E. C. Toren Jr., $7,120.

Hear Ye!
FREE
Mug of BEER, CIDER or COKE
with your Lunch
Wednesday Thru Saturday
At
ZOOM-ZOOM
ZOOM ZOOM

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

EASY PAYMENTS . . . WILL buy security by means of life insurance. With something this important, be sure you have the best — Northwestern Mutual. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates, Telephone No. 942-6966.

Used Cars For Sale

1962 TEMPEST LeMANS CONvertible, new tires, 4 in floor with a 4-barrel, burgundy color. Call 929-1332 after 1:00 p.m.

Rentals

FOR RENT: FOUR 2-BEDROOM apartments, all new, electric heat, washer connections, large closets, tile floors, water furnished, stove and refrigerator if desired. Located 2 miles south of Memorial Hospital on the Old Lystra Road. For further information contact Philip Sparrow at 929-1521, Chapel Hill.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

Philosophy of Science Group—8 p.m., 213 Caldwell, Bernard Davis will speak on "Criteria of Empirical Significance."

BSU—5:45 p.m., supper at BSU, discussion and worship following at the University Baptist Church.

Westminster Fellowship—5 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center, bridge party.

Year-at-Lyon Program—7 p.m., 4th floor Dey Hall, Faculty Lounge, discussion, question-and-answer session on spending a year abroad, everyone invited.

Hillel—7 p.m., Hillel House, special services for the conclusion of Passover; Omeg Shabbat and refreshments following services.

Orientation Counselor Interviews —2-6 p.m., today thru Tues., for men in RP II & III, and for women in the TV lounge of GM.

MOVIES

Carolina—Paris When It Sizzles
Varsity—A Stranger Knocks
Rialto—Tom Jones
Free Flick—Picnic

SATURDAY

Chem Fems Bake Sale—9 a.m., in front of the A & P at Eastgate.

Free Flick—Suddenly Last Summer.

Alpha Phi Omega is sponsoring a Hootenanny; individuals or groups from the University may enter; contact Jimmy Harris (306 Everett, 968-9028) or Dallas Lane (942-4789) today. Prizes will be awarded.

SUNDAY

Hillel Brunch—12:30 p.m., Hillel House, proceeds go to United Jewish Student Appeal.

"College Bowl" Program — 3 p.m., Hillel House, interfraternity competition; subject is "General Knowledge."

Hillel Foundation—4 p.m., Hillel House, interviews for Hillel offices.

Canterbury — 6 p.m., Chapel of the Cross, supper followed by flick "Hand in Hand."

UP Executive Comm.—7:30 p.m., Davie Hall.

Sunday Cinema — Panther Panchali.

MONDAY

UNC Press Club—7 p.m., Howell Hall, F. Bryan Williams will speak on public relations.

— Thompson —

(Continued from Page 1)

was graduated from UNC in 1943, a member of the Golden Fleece.

After the success of his song "Rags to Riches," he composed three hit shows, "Pajama Game," "Damn Yankees," and "Kwamina." He produced "On Whitman Avenue" and "The Sin of Pat Muldoon" and two television shows.

He has received three Antoinette Perry Awards, a Critics Award, a Donaldson Award, an Evening Standard Award, and a Colgate Outstanding Award.

He is presently working on the production of "Roman Holiday" and "Tony and the Wonderful Door."

(Advertisement)
BEAUTY NOTES
BY ALICE STONE

Here are a few facts concerning scratchy, non-catchy Erythema solare—better known as sunburn. A leading dermatologist had this to say.

"Sun ages the skin. Too much of it over long peroids destroys the elastic fibers, or connective tissues, and they become degenerated.

"These fibers are like rubber bands and hold the skin taut. If you overdo it, even with a tan, the rays get down into the connective tissues."

Forgetting skin and sun for the moment, let's speak of your hair. Is it a problem — a lank, limp, spiritless problem? Actually, you don't have a great problem at all. There are always the excellent facilities and stylists of Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon, 133½ East Franklin to serve you. Try us. Phone 943-4335.

THIS WEEK'S HELPFUL HINT: Try refrigerating birthday cake candles the day before using; they will burn slower and with even glow.

Enjoy the Finest Seafood
TIP TOP FISH HOUSE
Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West
Durham Tel. 286-4494

EARN $200.00
AGENT WANTED TO SOLICIT ORDERS FOR UNIQUE NEW LOW PRICED CHAMPAGNE TONE ORCHID CORSAGE FOR MAY 10TH MOTHER'S DAY DELIVERY. NO INVESTMENT REQUIRED. FREE SALES KIT, FREE SAMPLES. PROVEN METHOD NOW USED AT NOTRE DAME & LEHIGH. FREE DELIVERY TO RECIPIENT MOTHER. WRITE IMMEDIATELY TO: FLOWER GIFT SERVICE, 34 WEST 10TH ST., NYC 11, N. Y.

DYNAKITS & WIRED
"At Mail Order Prices"
Vickers Electronics
506 E. Main St. Durham

JOBS ABROAD
STUDENTS & TEACHERS

Largest NEW directory. Lists hundreds of permanent career opportunities in Europe, South America, Africa and the Pacific, for MALE or FEMALE. Totals 50 countries. Gives specific addresses and names prospective U. S. employers with foreign subsidies. Exceptionally high pay, free travel, etc. In addition, enclosed vital guide and procedures necessary to foreign employment. Satisfaction guaranteed. Send two dollars to Jobs Abroad Directory P. O. Box 13593—Phoenix, Arizona.

— McGovern —

(Continued from Page 1)

He was in law practice with numerous legal firms until his appointment as Director of the Fund for the Republic in 1955.

After serving as Public Affairs editor for Doubleday and Company and working with various philanthropic foundations, he was called to the Department of Defense in 1961.

Author of several articles, Yarmolinsky is a trustee of the American Foundation for Continuing Education. He was staff council for the President's Committee on Business and Government Relations in 1950 and has been a lecturer at the Yale Law School and American University Law School in recent years.

BEST DEAL IN TOWN
All the Chicken You Can Eat! 88c
Monday — Friday 4 P.M. - 7 P.M.
GRANTS Eastgate Shopping Center

Villa Tempesta
Dinner Served 6 till 10 Daily
Spaghetti Lasagne (Homemade)
Rigatoni Vitello, etc.
MISS MILTON AT THE PIANO
Saturday Evening

Spring IS here—And We're
SPRING CLEANING!
While cleaning the store . . .
We Found EXCITING CLOTHES We THOUGHT were gone!

50 Classic Cardigans
Simply Gathering Dust ---------- 5.90
20 2-Piece Suits
Discovered Behind the Fireplace - 13.00
40 Dresses
Lucky for you ---------- 13.00
50 Blouses
We just found them! ---------- 3.90
20 Raincoats
A Clean Sweep! ---------- 15.90
10 "Things"
Maybe YOU know what they are - 6.90

Winter Collection
Sprouting Weeds—Priced to Sell

Help Our Spring CLEAN US OUT
The FIRESIDE

Check These Bargains Over for Books in YOUR Field

ALL BREEDS, ALL CHAMPIONS, by Gladys Emerson Cook. A handsome and comprehensive book, including lithographs of all 116 recognized breeds of dogs. Excellent for giving — and owning. Published at $5.00.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $2.49

CHINA AND HER SHADOW, by Tibor Mende. A major book which tells what happened in China and why. Remarkable for its objectivity, presenting both Chinese and Western viewpoints. Published at $5.00.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.29

DARWIN AND THE DARWINIAN REVOLUTION, by Gertrude Himmelfarb. Biographical, historical, and philosophical study of the man whose name is synonymous with Evolution. An important book. Published at $5.95.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $3.49

THE ETHICAL ANIMAL, by C. H. Waddington. A distinguished biologist draws on philosophy, psychiatry and the social sciences to explain our modern social struggles. Published at $5.00.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.98

HER INFINITE VARIETY, by Morton M. Hunt. A study of the American Woman as lover, mate and rival. "The proper study of mankind is woman." Published at $5.95. OUR SPECIAL .. $2.49

IN THE OLD BOOK CORNER
Reference Books
A nice collection of out-of-print books for the graduate student of History or Literature. Mostly priced around $2.00 per volume.

HO HO HOFFNUNG, wordless cartoons by one of the wittiest of Englishmen, Gerald Hoffnung. Published at $3.95.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.29

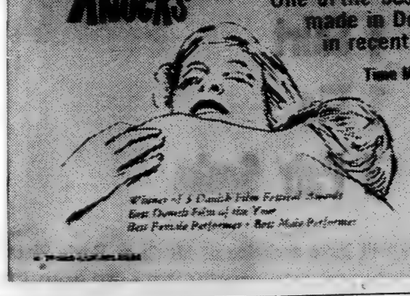
IRIS FOR EVERY GARDEN, by Sydney B. Mitchell. A not-to-be missed practical guide for every one who loves Iris. Common-sense directions, how-to drawings, hints on breeding, plus a nice section of color-plates of the latest varieties. Belongs on your garden shelf. Published at $4.95.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.49

last year. Published at $3.95.
OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.39

A LONG AND HAPPY LIFE, by Reynolds Price. Laid in North Carolina, this was a top seller

WHAT ARE YOU DOING AFTER THE ORGY, by Henry and Jim Backus. Answers a common U. N. C. problem. Published at $3.95. OUR SPECIAL ..... $1.29

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St. Open Till 10 P.M.

Varsity
STARTS TODAY
THE MOST MOVING LOVE STORY EVER FILMED.
"I'll make my own position clear: I think the film should be shown; patrons of art cinemas are, in the main, perceptive adults."
ALPERT, Saturday Review
A STRANGER KNOCKS
"One of the best films made in Denmark in recent years."
Time Magazine


Winner of 5 Danish Film Festival Awards
Best Dramatic Film of the Year
Best Female Performer • Best Male Performer

PEANUTS

POGO

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Wet, spongy land
6. Fluent
10. Roman robes
11. Dip out, as liquid
12. Sing softly
13. Splits
14. Shelf
15. Articles
16. River: Latvia
17. Not hard
19. Boss on shield
22. European kites
26. Scorches
28. Appearing as if eaten
29. Wandering
31. Bristle-like part
32. Gas
34. Pronoun
35. Maxim
38. Existing
41. Kind of beer
42. A dish of greens and dressing
43. Biblical name
44. A gentleman's manservant
45. Inquisitive
46. Unenthusiastic

DOWN
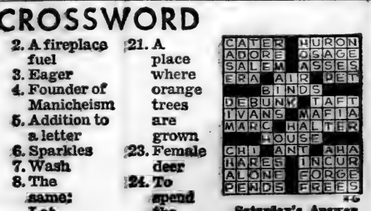
1. A long ribbonlike banner
2. A fireplace fuel
3. Eager
4. Founder of Manicheism
5. Addition to a letter
6. Sparkles
7. Wash
8. The same: Lat.
9. Good Queen ——
12. Grammatical term
13. Firearm
18. King of Bashan
20. Obstacle
21. A place where orange trees are grown
23. Female deer
24. To spend the summer
25. Placed on a chair
27. Scoff
30. Toward
33. Of the nose
35. Hunting hound
36. Pedestal part
37. Grows old
39. Song refrain
40. French island: poss.
44. Verb: abbr.



Saturday's Answer

Meet Pete Worthen—UNC's Next All-American Swimmer

Editors note: Two UNC swimmers, senior Thompson Mann and freshman Pete Worthen are participating in the AAU Indoor Championships this weekend at Bartlesville, Okla. Carolina fans have become fairly well acquainted with the exploits of Mann, during his four years here. Worthen, however, is a new arrival — still somewhat of an unknown phenomenon. The following article by DTH staffer Perry McCarty should serve as an introduction for those of you who haven't had the pleasure of meeting UNC's newest All-American.

By PERRY McCARTY

UNC freshman swim star Pete Worthen has created quite a stir among area and national swim observers for his showings as a member of this year's splendid Baby Dolphin crew. While Worthen's times 21.0 and 47.7 are remarkable indeed what is even more astounding is that he has been swimming for just a little more than a year.

Pete hails from Andover, Mass., and attended a local prep school in Boston. He was a mainstay for three years on crew and wrestling squads. In the summertime, he threw hay in Nevada.

Pete decided to spend a year at Lawrenceville before entering college. Even though a painful back injury forced him to wear a brace, he showed all the earmaks of becoming an Ivy league great as an end. After the season, he decided to try swimming figuring that it would not strain his back as wrestling easily could. Pete had trouble swimming farther than 50 yards but few could touch him at this short sprint. He finished the season as Eastern Interscholastic Champ and first Prep School All-America with a 22.2.

With the coming of spring Pete found the discus and enjoyed immediate success, though again only after many arduous practice hours, sometimes as many as four a day. Before the season was over he had thrown the college discus 155 feet.

Dartmouth was Pete's first college choice. However, a brief 18-hour visit to Chapel Hill soon changed his mind. While Pete had grown steadily and his sports and outdoor summer activity had kept him in good trim, it was not until last year at Lawrenceville that he added an additional 20 pounds to become his present swimming weight of 203.

Pete knew his swimming experience and training were hardly enough to insure his continued success at the college level. He spent ten weeks last summer with Bob Kiputh at Yale working on his stroke and swimming as much as five miles a day, a far cry from that 50 yards.

With this background Pete arrived in Chapel Hill and got his first touch of intensive competitive training under the watchful eye of Coach Pet Earey. He also credits his association with the many fine varsity performers for sharpening his own attitude toward team competition and helping each teammate do his best.

After his amazingly successful campaign Pete had this to say: "I was confident that I would improve over last year, but I had no idea my time would drop so fast. Swimming is cut and dried; you can gage your improvement every step of the way. Then too it is virtually a year-round sport and two workouts each day can become very tiring. What keeps you going through is that you always feel you can do better. The program here is on the upswing and I want to be just as much a part of it as I can."

Today Worthen is far from Bowman Gray Pool, but he is very much a part of UNC's swimming program just the same. Accompanied by Earey, he and varsity backstroker Thompson Mann are competing in the AAU Indoor Championships at Bartlesville, Oklahoma. The three-day competition began Thursday and ends Saturday.

Because of other commitments, Harrison Merrill decided to forego this trip. Mann will swim both backstroke events and both relays for the N. C. Athletic Club comprised jointly of UNC and NCS swimmers. Worthen will swim the 100 free and the freestyle leg on both relays.

While the meet will provide Worthen with his first test of a national flavor, he may very well surprise a flock of experts. The top six contestants in each event are issued a standing invitation for the Olympic qualifying meet in September.

When he returns to Chapel Hill, Pete plans to leave the pool for a month or so and throw and a possible shot at an Olym- find him here in Chapel Hill training for the outdoor circuit and ap ossible shot at an Olympic berth. Once one realizes the remarkable strides Worthen has made in the brief time he has been involved in competitive swimming it is quite likely that he has just begun to do what, ultimately, he will be capable of. One thing is certain, the rapidly rising swimming fortunes of UNC's Blue Dolphins can rest safely for three years to come on the broad shoulders of Pete Worthen.

Pete Worthen—Carolina's Wonderful Water Boy

Willard Shuts Out Yale On 5 Singles

By LARRY TARLETON

The Tar Heels broke out of an early season hitting slump and swamped Yale 9-0 yesterday behind an eight-hit attack and the five-hit pitching of Spence Willard.

The Heels rebounding from three consecutive losses on their Florida trip evened their record at 3-3 while displaying flawless fielding and pulling off four double plays one going from first to short to pitcher. Yale helped the cause by making seven errors.

UNC opened up a big lead early by scoring eight runs in the first four innings off Yale starter Jim Bourne. Leadoff batter Dickie Prindle got the first of his three hits in the first and scored on Ken Willard's line double to left. Willard then scored as third baseman Rick Sewell threw wild on Bill Brown's grounder.

Dick Fleming, subbing for the injured Tom Wright at third, rapped the Heels' first homer of the season in the second. The drive, an inside-the-park blast down the left field line, scored Merle Kruer who had singled to lead off the inning. The Heels added another run in the second and scored two more in the third when Gary Black's long drive to left rolled under the fence for a ground rule double. The Tar Heels scored again in the fourth and added thei last un in the eighth.

A doubleheader is on tap for Emerson Stadium today. St. Mary's (from Minnesota, not Raleigh) meets the Heels in a one o'clock encounter then Coach Rabb's boys take on VPI immediately afterward.

| YALE LOCKED UP | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| UNC | | | | |
| Prindle, 2b | 4 | 2 | 3 | 1 |
| Kaufman, rf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| a-Taylor, rf | 1 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| d-Hume, rf | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Speight, ss | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| K. Willard, lf | 4 | 1 | 1 | 1 |
| Brown, 1b | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Reagan, 1b | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Kruer, c | 2 | 2 | 1 | 0 |
| Hundley, c | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Black, cf | 2 | 1 | 1 | 2 |
| Fleming, 3b | 4 | 1 | 1 | 2 |
| S. Willard, p | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 34 | 9 | 8 | 7 |
| YALE | AB | R | H | RBI |
| Cody, 2b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Bartlett, 1b | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Raymond, cf | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Hunsacker, rf | 3 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| Levick, lf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Kehas, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Sewell, 3b | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| c-Hum'rey, 3b | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Stevens, c | 2 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Riordan, ss | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Bourne, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| b-Howard | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Gertman, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Tagliaferro, lf | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 28 | 0 | 5 | 0 |

a—ran for S. Willard in 2nd; lined out for Kaufman in 6th.
b—hit into DP for Bourne in 5th.
c—grounded out for Sewell in 7th.
d—struck out for Taylor in 8th.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| YALE ..... | 000 | 000 | 000—0 |
| UNC ..... | 232 | 100 | 01x—9 |

| PITCHING | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Bourne | 4 | 7 | 8 | 4 | 1 | 2 |
| Getman | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 3 |
| Kehas | 2 | 1 | 1 | 1 | 1 | 2 |
| S. Willard | 9 | 5 | 0 | 0 | 4 | 10 |

W—S. Willard
L—Bourne

Weekend Sports
(Home games in caps)

TODAY

Baseball:
ST. MARY'S, MINN. (1:00)
VPI (3:30)
Tennis:
OHIO U. (2:00)
Golf:
WILLIAMS (1:30)
Lacrosse:
VIRGINIA (2:00)
Frosh Tennis:
Baylor School (at Greenvile, S. C.)

SATURDAY

Baseball:
VPI-CORNELL (1:00)
CORNELL (3:30)

Blue Dolphins Take Sixth In Nationals

Swimmers from the University of North Carolina blasted a passel of Atlantic Coast Conference swimming records last week when they finished sixth nationally in the NCAA aquatic championships at New Haven, Conn.

"The times set by all the swimmers in action was amazing," said Coach Pat Earey. "For example, Thompson Mann swam the 100 yard backstroke in 53.2. That is six-tenths of a second better than the American record. Yet, he did not win the event."

Mann's record there topped the 1963 ACC record (54.3) and the talented Virginian also posted 1:59.0 in the 200 backstroke, bettering the standing ACC figure of 2:01.2. Both previous records belonged to Mann.

Atlanta's Harrison Merrill was clocked in the 100 freestyle at an even 48 seconds, cracking the 1963 ACC figure of 48.9, which he had set. In the 200 free, Merrill recorded 1:45.4, his record of a year ago being 1:48.9.

The 400 yard freestyle relay team, consisting of Merrill, Mann, Davis Roberts and John Sheldon, zipped through the water at 3:12.8. This compares to last year's record of 3:19.6.

The 400 medlay relay unit, featuring Mann, Rick Forum, Fred Lipp and Roberts, came in 7th in qualifying heats with the time of 3:40.0. Last year's ACC mark in this event was 3:44.1.

The NCAA's time for Carolina swimmers will be duly recorded in the ACC Conference Records, which includes all competition.

"The answer to the wholesale record-wrecking is competition," said Earey. "It is simply unbelievable what many of the swimmers do when pressed for victory. Good competition makes the strong stronger and the weak weaker."

The final NCAA ratings found UNC tied with Ohio State. Teams to finish ahead of the Tar Heels were (in order): Southern Cal, Indiana, Yale, Michigan and Minnesota. Carolina thus claims the mythical Southern championship.

Lacrosse Team Hosts UVA

North Carolina's lacrosse team will be looking for its first win in varsity competition this afternoon at two o'clock, but the outlook isn't too bright. The opponent is Virginia—one of the strongest teams in the South.

The match, to be played on Navy Field (football practice field), is the third of the season for the Tar Heel stickmen. Playing their first season as an official varsity team, Coach Connie Steele's boys have dropped games to Washington (St.L.) and Swarthmore.

Heels Blank P-Cows

By BOB BETTIS

North Carolina collected its second tennis victory over Williams College in as many days by shutting out the Purple Cows 9-0 here yesterday.

The win upped UNC's record to 7-1, while Williams' mark stands now at 2-5. The Tar Heels meet their sixth non-conference opponent of the season here today in a 2 p.m. clash against Ohio University.

Coach Clarence Chaffee of the P-Cows altered his lineup somewhat, but the strategy still did not prevent what amounted to a carbon copy of Wednesday's match, won 9-0 by UNC.

A Carolina sweep in the singles again set the tempo of the contest.

Singles summary:

George Sokol (UNC) def. Pete Monroe, 6-4, 6-1. O. H. Parrish (UNC) def. Tom Thornhill, 6-0, 6-3. Ted Hoehn (UNC) def. Bill Ewen, 6-3, 6-2. Pete Myers (UNC) def. Frank Thayer, 3-6, 6-1, 7-5. Sam Applegate (UNC) def. Pete Allen, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4. Carl Evans (UNC) def. George Boltres, 6-1, 6-3.

Golfers Win

Eddie Hooks turned in the best round of the day, an even-par 72, as the UNC golfers won their sixth match in eight tries Thursday, 14-7 over Ohio University.

TROUSERS

Our new lightweight trou sers made especially for us in narrow leg models are now in.

$6.95 up.

Varsity Men's Wear

Clothiers of Distinction

147 E. Franklin St.

Our Own Lady Milton

Bass Weejuns

Just received large shipment of Weejuns made especially for us with a narrow backstay to hide the center seam in the regular antiqued tan plus a special oil-stained leather made for us alone.

You can always count on Milton's for that distinctive difference.

Lady Milton Shop

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

WEEKEND SPECIAL

Short Sleeve Striped

Sport Shirts

$3.49

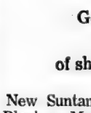
Choose from blue, grey & red in ½" Shetland Stripes. These tapered shirts were 5.95.

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin St.

Clothiers of Distinction

Your Charge Account Invited



MADRAS

IN

SPORT JACKETS

SHIRTS

BELTS

BERMUDAS

SWIM SHORTS

NOW IN STOCK

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin St.

Clothiers of Distinction

Your Charge Account Invited

Most fitting indeed!

Why do Florsheim Slip-ons fit so well?

Good question—simple answer! They're made over exclusive lasts designed only for this style of shoe! No slip; no gap; just fit!

New Suntan Cordovans & Black or Mahogany

The SUMMIT, 20063; black calf tassel slip-on.

Florsheim

GRAND OPENING

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 2, 3 and 4

Come in and register for FREE Prizes to be given away. Register Thursday, Friday & Saturday morning. Drawing wil be held Saturday afternoon. You do not have to be present to win. Winners will be notified.

FREE PRIZES

1 Suit
1 Sport Coat
1 Windbreaker
1 Shirt
1 Tie
1 Pair Socks

Winners will have a choice of Men's or Boy's Sizes. FREE COOKIES AND PUNCH WILL BE SERVED EVERY DAY DURING OUR GRAND OPENING CLEBRATION.

CAMPUS STYLE

103 W. Franklin St.

Next to the Zoom-Zoom

THE YOUNG MISTER SHOP

chapel hill, n.c.

Phone 929-1558

GET MORE OUT OF LIFE . . . ENJOY

TENNIS

You'll love smashing 'em in style. We satisfy the satorial side of tennis too. Caps, visors, shirts, jackets, sweaters, shorts, socks, shoes. Sharp attire for rackets also—covers presses, and

CUSTOM STRINGING by McGinty

the Sport Shop, inc.

"It Pays to Play"

151 E. Franklin Chapel Hill, N. C.

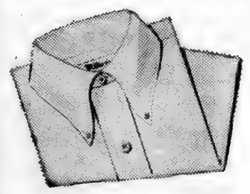
sero OF NEW HAVEN

bolder look in PLAID

The Sero button down takes on a bold look of color excitement . . . in an all cotton plaid endorsed for the best kind of casual wear . . . with added benefit of cool half sleeves. This is shirtmanship.

Town & Campus

Milton's Incomparable M-2



The same fabulous M-2's that have made us so many devotees during the fall are now detailed for the warm weather season. The same perfect roll collar button-down, with just right body taper, and longer trimmer half sleeves for that finished customized look.

Combined white batiste oxford—$5.95.

Combed blue, yellow, golden beige or olive beige batiste oxford $6.50.

New large different assortment of candy stripes in lightweight oxfords and woven broadcloths — $6.50.

You'll Love Milton's New Spring Look at Milton's.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

NEED SOMETHING?

The HUB of Chapel Hill has just what you need to augument your spring wardrobe.

Whether you need a suit, a sportcoat, a pair of slax or just a shirt, The HUB has it. Drop in today and look over our stock and we sure you'll agree that you can find exactly what you need at reasonable cost.

The Hub of Chapel Hill

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Checking Account

Checks . . . drawn against VILLAGER® simplicity and composure. Good as money in the bank. Excellent with the easy sweep and swing of the pouf-shape. Undemanding. Infinitely adjustable to a crowded life. VILLAGER® collectors will enjoy its uncrushable spirit, based on Vycron polyester and cotton. Navy or Red. Sizes 6 to 16.

The Villager

Town & Campus

HEAR TAR HEEL BASEBALL LIVE . . . WCHL-1360

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

129

The Daily Tar Heel

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, APRIL, 4, 1964

NONE INJURED

Kappa Sigma Burns —$50,000 Damage

By JOHN GREENBACKER

A raging fire did extensive damage to the Kappa Sigma Fraternity House Thursday night before Chapel Hill firemen brought the blaze under control.

Fire Chief James Stewart, who estimated the damage at approximately forty to fifty thousand dollars, said the fire was caused by either the electric wiring or the gas water heater in the building's basement.

"The fire was definitely not set deliberately," Stewart said. "We have ruled out arson."

Kappa Sigma fraternity members partying in a basement bar at 10:55 p.m. discovered the fire and rushed to warn those on the upper floors.

"I was upstairs studying when I heard someone yelling 'fire! Everybody get out,' and by the time I opened my door the place was filled with smoke," house treasurer Dick Johnson said.

"When I got downstairs I couldn't see anything," said third floor resident Harbie Moore. "I just had to feel my way out."

"It all happened in two or three minutes," Moore said. "The smoke was the worst; it was everywhere."

When the fire trucks arrived five minutes later everyone in the house, including Kappa Sigma's pet dog, had escaped safely.

Flames escaped from the basement to the second story of the building through a stairwell on the West side, and flames burned through and collapsed a large section of the main living room.

The blaze was brought under control at approximately 11:30 p.m. while a crowd of nearly 300 looked on, and was declared out at 1:30 a.m. None of the firemen were injured.

Johnson said that although the fire completely gutted the first floor, damage to the second and third floors was confined to paint blistering and extensive soot deposits.

Damage to personal property was "relatively light," according to Johnson. "Some of our clothes were discolored and all smelled like smoke," he said.

The 22 members of the house who were displaced by the fire were given shelter at other fraternity houses on campus, and many houses offered them free meals and places to meet.

Most of the displaced boys have moved to motels temporarily.

"We don't know whether we'll build a new house or repair the old one," Johnson said. "It depends on the damage."

The house has been condemned by officials and is being boarded up.

Fraternity officials said their national office will back them with full financial aid in getting a new house established.

"We would like to extend our thanks to those who have offered us aid and to the Chapel Hill Fire Department, which did a fine job in putting it out," President Neal Thomas said.

Firemen Aided By Students Battle Flames At Kappa Sigma House Thursday Night —Photo by Jim Wallace

Senior Gets $5,000 Grant

Phillip Logan Smith, senior from Winston-Salem, has been named the Corning Glass Works Foundation Traveling Fellow from UNC for next year.

Smith is awarded a grant of $5,000 to travel for one year in countries of his choice to study a project in which he is interested.

Smith's study project concerns international marketing and the relationships between United States companies and their subsidiaries abroad.

His only obligation to Corning Glass is to work at their plant in Corning, N. Y. for three months this summer.

Smith is a member of Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Beta Kappa and is reading for honors in economics.

He is president of Chi Psi social fraternity, a former chairman of the University Party, and a Morehead Scholar.

'PLUMS' OPENS TOMORROW

"Plums are Purple, Not Violet," a new play written by a UNC drama student, opens tomorrow at the Triangle Coffee House in Durham.

The play, written by Ed Kenestrick and directed by Laurel Dykstra, is about an old misanthrope who is brought out of his seclusion when a Countess, a beatnik, and a legislator with his wife come into his home.

The show stars Jim Zellner, Muriel Wilson, Sandra Siffling and Judy Logan.

MacArthur In Deep Coma

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur showed signs "of entering a peaceful coma" Friday at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

At 5:45 p.m. Gen. Leonard B. Heaton issued a statement which said only that the 84-year-old general "showed signs of entering a peaceful coma."

The spokesman who made the announcement for Heaton refused to elaborate on the brief statement.

Asked if the latest pronouncement meant that the famed general had reached the terminal stages of his illness, the spokesman said he would not go beyond the announcement.

(Continued on Page 3)

SYMPOSIUM EDITION

The special edition for the Carolina Symposium comes out tomorrow. Save it for reference, so you know what's up. The paper's extra-wide margins can also be used for making up petitions.

Firemen Inspect Burned Out Living Room Floor
—Photo by Jock Lauterer

Concerned Citizens Group Raises Money For Sit-Ins

Members of the Committee of Concerned Citizens here have raised about $400 to pay the hospital expenses of demonstrators injured in anti-segregation demonstrations during the past three months.

UNC Professor Joseph Straley, chairman of the Committee, said the fund-raising project was not specifically a Committee project though it was conducted by members of the Committee, and that funds in the Committee's treasury were not included in the $400.

The project was conducted by Mrs. Max Drake. Boxes of bread and cheese were made available to any interested persons in the basement of the First Baptist Church from 12-2 and from 5-7 p.m. every day last week. Persons eating the bread and cheese were asked to leave a donation.

Dr. Straley said the money collected would pay for almost all the hospital expenses incurred by persons injured in sit-ins and by the Rev. Lavert Taylor, who was admitted to Memorial Hospital with an upset stomach after completing a week's fast in front of the Post Office here Sunday.

Dr. Straley also said the Committee was planning to send a series of two or three-man teams of lobbyists to Washington to try to persuade Senators Sam Ervin and Everett Jordan not to delay passage of the civil rights bill now before the Senate or to weaken it with amendments.

Each team of lobbyists would go to Washington for one or two days, Dr. Straley said. Work shops are being held to acquaint them with the contents of the civil rights bill and the most effective means of lobbying.

Rev. Taylor and four other residents conducted an eight-day fast ending Easter Sunday. Other particpants in the fast included Pat Cusick, field secretary of the Student Peace Union; Melody Dickinson, former graduate student here; John Dunne, field secretary for the Congress of Racial Euality; and James Foushee, member of the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee.

Foushee also was treated at Memorial Hospital during the fast, but was released immediately.

Symposium Starts Tomorrow Night

By VIRGINIA CARNES
and HARRY DeLUNG

"Arms and the Man" is the topic of the 1964 Carolina Symposium which will present a week of distinguished speakers to the campus, beginning tomorrow.

Senator William Fulbright (D-Ark.) will speak Sun. evening at 8 on "Individual Freedom and Collective Security." He is Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and began a national controversy last week with his statement that the U. S. should abandon its economic boycott of Cuba.

The Arkansas senior Senator will focus on the fabric of American values in historical perspective and investigate the alternatives necessitated by American involvement in the Cold War.

Fulbright will be followed on Monday afternoon at 2 p.m. by Columbia professor Emile Benoit, who will analyze the economic adjustments that must be made if the stimulus of massive defense expenditures is removed. After his discussion of the topic, "If Peace Breaks Out," a 4 p.m. speech on "Civil Liberties and National Security" will be given by Sen. John S. Cooper.

The Republican Senator from Kentucky will examine the effect of the growing emphasis on national securty up in the rights of men in a democracy.

Dr. Hans Morgenthau, influential political scientist and author will cap Monday's activities with a speech on "The Garrison State." The former State Department consultant will discuss the growth of economic and political concentration and the Cold War's influence upon government and economy.

Tuesday will feature two panel discussions. At 2 p.m., William S. Barnes, Director of the World Tax Studies and Latin American Studies at Harvard University, and Otto Eckstein, professor of economics at Harvard, will discuss, "International Economy and Foreign Policy in an East-West World." The impact of the Cold War in America's position as a world power will be the emphasis.

At 4 p.m. the topic will turn to "Education's Responses to the Cold War." Douglas M. Knight, Duke University President, and Frank Porter Graham, United Nations mediator and former UNC president, will conduct the panel discussion.

David Brinkley, NBC news commentator, will deal with the question, "How free are the press, radio, television and other news media?" at 8 p.m. on Tuesday when he speaks on "The Moulding of the Public Mind."

As the week progresses, classroom seminars, dormitory discussion groups, fraternity and sorority smokers will be held. Speakers will attend to discuss specific topics with interested students in more personal, interactive groups.

Wednesday will be spotlighted by three panel discussions focusing on science and the arts. At 2 p.m. Dr. Harold Orlans, anthropologist and author, and Dr. Paul Gross, chemist and vice-president of Duke University, will discuss "The Impact of National Security on Research." They will examine the limits upon freedom of inquiry and expression in research.

Absentee Forms Available Now

Request forms for absentee ballots for the spring elections may be picked up and returned until 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Absentee ballots must be returned in a signed, sealed envelope to the Elections Board before 5:30 p.m. on election day, April 14. Forms may be picked up at GM.

Students may use absentee ballots for any one of the following reasons:

(1) Confinement in the infirmary
(2) Absence from Chapel Hill
(3) Any other reason approved by the Elections Board.

PICK 'EM UP!

If you bought items at the Campus Chest Auction and have not paid for them, you are asked to bring the money to the Campus Chest office in Y-Court Monday or Tuesday between 2 and 5 p.m. This is the last chance to pay.

UP? SP? No! GOP!

Candidate Jim Hutchins
—Photo by Jim Wallace

By JOHN GREENBACKER

Jim Hutchins of Ehringhaus Hall is probably just another face to his fellow students, but since last Saturday he has held the distinction of being Yadkin County's favorite son.

Jim, a mild-mannered and slightly corpulent student at the School of Education, was the first person to file for the Republican Primary as Yadkin's representative to the State House.

"I was prompted to file by members of both parties in Yadkin," he said. "I guess you might call them elders."

"I had some experience working in local political campaigns while I was in high school," he explained.

A transfer student from Mitchell College in Statesville, Jim was an intern in the Washington office of Congressman James Broyhill last summer, and counts this as his most important political position.

"I'll start campaigning next weekend," he said. "I don't have any organization or money backing me yet, but I have had some offers. I've asked Thomas Wooten, principal of East Bend high school, to be my manager."

In his off hours, Jim leans back in his favorite chair, toys with his pipe and reads the North Carolina election laws.

"To be eligible for election, a person must be a voter and resident of the county for one year," he says.

"I am promising the voters youthful and active representation," Jim says, and his placid attitude and mature features immediately offset the image of the immature youngster.

"I shall attempt to put Yadkin in its adequate place in the state financial setup. We need someone to snag state money for improvement."

Jim was once a Political Science major, and he thinks he will check with some of the Poli-Sci professors for ideas for future state legislation.

If Jim gets the Republican endorsement on May 5 he will have passed the big hurdle in the race for office, as Yadkin is predominately Republican.

"If I am elected I will make this position a full-time job," he promises.

Jim will graduate next January, a month before the next legislative session starts. We'll be looking for him.

Needle Fells Brave Editor

Gary Blanchard, stalwart co-editor of the DTH, swooned Tuesday at Memorial Hospital when his finger was pricked to have his blood typed.

Blanchard had bravely ventured over to give blood for a friend, but found the preliminaries somewhat overwhelming.

He was given oxygen and orange juice (he is a native of Florida) and sent home. Hospital officials refused to take his blood after observing Blanchard's traumatic reaction to the pin prick.

"It was awful," Blanchard said. "That big needle in my little finger . . .

". . . That mean-looking nurse . . . that sadistic doctor," he muttered before swooning again.

Tuesday Set For Brooks Scholarships

The 1964 winners of the Aubrey Lee Brooks scholarships to the Consolidated University will be announced Tuesday.

The scholarship foundation was created in December, 1955, by the late Aubrey Lee Brooks. Brooks was born and reared in Person County and was a distinguished figure in the political life of the state.

Claude E. Teague, special assistant to President Friday, is director of the foundation.

Three nominees from each of the 11 counties which composed the Old Imperial Fifth Congressional District will be interviewed for the scholarships Saturday and Sunday at UNC.

Symposium Scorecard

SUNDAY

Sen. William Fulbright .. 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

MONDAY

Emile Benoit ..... 2 p.m.
Carroll Hall
Sen. John S. Cooper .... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
Hans Morgenthau ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

TUESDAY

William S. Barnes
Otto Eckstein ..... 2 p.m.
Carroll Hall
Douglas M. Knight
Frank P. Graham ..... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
David Brinkley ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

WEDNESDAY

Harold Orlans
Paul Gross ..... 2 p.m.
Garrard Hall
Rep. Frank Thompson
Richard Adler ..... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
Irving Howe
Marya Mannes
John Knowles
William Coles ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

THURSDAY

Adam Yarmolinsky
Sen. George McGovern .. 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
George W. Ball ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

Volume 72, Number 129 Saturday, April 4, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1879.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examinations periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Additional Proof From Mississippi

The Senate of the good and sovereign sate of Mississippi has just passed a bill appropriating $50,000 to finance further efforts to fight the pending civil rights bill. The money is apparently headed for the Coordinating Committee for Fundamental American Freedoms, a group formed by states interested in defeating the civil rights legislation. The appropriations bill was passed unanimously by that august body of Mississippi Senators.

Aside from questions concerning the constitutionality of such an appropriation, there are several others which arise. The bill passed unanimously, so we can assume there are no Negroes in the Senate, but we do know that in some senatorial districts in Mississippi the Negroes outnumber the whites almost two to one. That would seem to cast some faint shadow of suspicion on many vocal Mississippians claim that no one in that state is denied the right to vote because of race, creed or color.

But what about the Negroes in Mississippi who pay state taxes only to see their state Senate spend it on measures designed to keep them from gaining full citizenship rights?

What makes the appropriation especially criminal is the fact that Mississippi is one of the poorest states in the nation and every penny it has is desperately needed at home.

The only solace we can take out of the whole sorry affair is that Mississippians also pay federal income tax which helps pay the salary of Emanuel Cellar, Hubert Humphrey and many other proponents of the civil rights bill.

How We Should Treat Professors

Raleigh Times

Professors are just people and should be treated just as other people are treated.

That, in substance, is what Governor Sanford said in discussing the handling of cases of faculty members of State institutions who are involved in civil rights protest. He told reporters yesterday that most people aren't subject to being fired for traffic and other minor violations. And, he said that he didn't consider it his business to decide what the University should do about professors convicted of trespass violations in civil rights cases, even though the Governor is chairman of the University Board of Trustees.

"The procedures for dealing with this situation have long been established in college and academic circles," the Governor noted. "I think professors ought to be treated just like other citizens."

This makes the greatest sense in the world. Professors should be treated just like other people, and the treatment should be dished out by the institutions involved, and not by any outside people or agencies. If people on the outside are permitted to dip into college administration, before long the outsiders are running the colleges—and running them right into the ground. That is one of the major lessons we must remember in any hurrahing regarding the current civil rights cases.

Another side to the professors-are-like-other-people sentiment came over the weekend from the North Carolina Conference of the American Association of University Professors, which has chapters in 26 colleges and universities in the state. The group adopted this resolution:

"Be it resolved that this conference affirm the rights of faculty members and students of the colleges and universities of North Carolina to protest peacefully by constitutional means against injustices to their communities.

"The practice of public protest against injustice is well established in our national traditions of freedom and justice; the right to orderly assembly by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which guarantees to all citizens freedom of expression, the right to orderly assembly and the right to petition the government for redress of grievances."

These are old and hallowed rights, and all of us should be aware of them, for they protect us just as surely as they protect the professors the resolution discusses. But it is always good, and sometimes necessary, that old and honored rights be emphasized and discussed—and if need be defended.

This is a good time to defend these particular rights and these particular people, and it is good to have these defenses of their rights and of our rights.

'Reflections' Is Out

"Reflections" magazine is finally on the street after many months of labor pains by editor Bob Brown. But regardless of how long it took to get the magazine out, it is interesting, provacating and entertaining.

It includes articles by Frank Porter Graham, Wayne King and Jim Clotfelter as well as some excellent poetry and fiction.

"Reflections" is on sale at various news stands around town, and is well worth the 65c cost. We recommend it highly.

Our Own War On Poverty

The New York Times

The Federal Government's war on poverty was little more than a vague idea when the people of North Carolina decided to act on their own last fall.

Now, with the Federal attack on poverty still just getting under way, North Carolina is quietly moving to break the cycle of poverty in which so many children are trapped.

The state's $14 million assault on poverty—the first such state plan in the nation—has not gone unnoticed by those who have put together President Johnson's program.

The Federal planners, frequently disorganized and arguing among themselves, have turned from time to time to the men who planned the North Carolina program: Gov. Terry Sanford; Paul N. Ylvisaker of the Ford Foundation, the principal contributor to the state's anti-poverty campaign; and others.

Copies of the booklet outlining the North Carolina plan have become dog-eared in recent weeks as Federal planners have sought ideas on how best to combat poverty.

President Took Notice

Even President Johnson has taken notice that North Carolina is ahead of the Federal Government.

"I want to congratulate you on your initiative in mobilizing for an attack on poverty in North Carolina," the President said in a message to state leaders in January.

Months before poverty became the subject of a Federal campaign, plans for the North Carolina program were under way, with funds supplied by the Ford Foundation, the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation and the Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation.

Last September, with the money promised and the plan outlined, Governor Sanford gave the challenge that was echoed four months later by the President:

'I have come to believe," the Governor said, "that charity and relief are not the best answers to human suffering, that the schools are not the answer so long as only a third or a half of our students finish school, that the wealth of America is not the answer if many families have fifty-some cents a day per person for all expenses."

In North Carolina, the Governor went on, "we want to go into a few communities and say to the leaders of schools, government, welfare, health, charity: 'Look, let's work together, let's see if together in a few neighborhoods near here we can't break the cycle of poverty and give these children a better chance."

Fifty-one communities both urban and rural, put together suggested plans of action.

By mid-April, those administering the program will have chosen 10 of these communities as sites for projects entitled to financial help. The local communities will operate the interracial projects and underwrite part of the cost.

The proposed projects include pre-school teaching centers, designed to offset bad home environments; counseling and job training; remedial - education centers; adult-education courses, and services in budgeting and home care for low-income families.

Funds also will be used to establish a learning laboratory, near both the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Duke University at Durham, to study methods of teaching slow learners and problem children and how to improve teaching instruction.

The anti-poverty planners will also seek to recruit college graduates to work for a year or two in the project communities as part of a sort of domestic Peace Corps.

All of these North Carolina projects—just as the Federal program unveiled by President Johnson—will focus largely on young people, seeking to help them escape from the poverty in which their families have been trapped for generations.

While generally considered one of the wealthiest and most progressive of Southern states, North Carolina has widespread poverty, particularly among Negroes, who constitute nearly a quarter of the population.

"Definitions of poverty vary," the state anti-poverty planners noted in their policy booklet. "But whatever the definition, the record in North Carolina is distressing."

'A Thrashing For Barry...'

By STU EIZENSTAT

The sound thrashing administered Barry Goldwater in the New Hampshire primary makes it necessary to evaluate the results of this primary in terms of his chances of getting the Republican Presidential nomination.

New Hampshire was vitally important to Goldwater because it was there that he hoped to show the big-money eastern Republican bosses who control the Republican Party nomination, that he could win votes in the East as well as in his native West.

The various factors which caused his demise in New Hampshire almost certainly spell out his doom on the national level:

First, when the late President Kennedy was alive, Goldwater's thesis that J. F. K. could be beaten by a candidate like himself who was strong in the South, Rocky Mountain states, and West (areas where Kennedy was weakest) had a good deal of logic behind it. Now with Johnson as President this theory holds no water, because L.B.J.'s areas of strength and weakness are precisely the same as Goldwater's. This will lead Republican party leaders to nominate an easterner to take advantage of the President's weakness in the urban East.

Secondly, New Hampshire voters and Americans in general still feel the effects of the November 22 shock and cling to L.B.J. as the great uniter of all Americans. Thus, there has been a swing back toward the middle by many former Goldwater admirers, a swing which reflects their desires to find security and unity with their fellow citizens of both parties; they sense that their support of Goldwater is inconsistent with this.

Thirdly, although many of Goldwater's theses at first glance were appealing to some, a more careful examination showed them to be vague and often contradictory. It is when forced to get specific, as he was in New Hampshire, that he leaves many of his admirers unenthusiastic. His desire to send in the Marines when Castro cut off the water supply at Guantanamo frightened many voters, and his idea for "voluntary" Social Security made many elderly voters wince. Though at first his emphasis on individual initiative and private enterprise sounded grand, such suggestion as selling the T.V.A. (second only to God in Tennessee) to private enterprise (which could not afford to provide electricity and irrigation at such presently cheap rates) were unpalatable.

Finally, perhaps from the death of John Kennedy, has come a growing awareness that the United States can no longer get exactly what she wants in foreign affairs, simply because she is "the land of the free and the home of the brave." The complexities of the world are such that the U. S. can no longer force other nations, including our allies, to do just as we think best. Perhaps we finally are beginning to realize that we do not live in the simplified world of Barry Goldwater, in which all a man has to do is roll up his sleeves, work hard, be frugal, and thus succeed, or in a world in which all the U. S. has to do is wield its long dormant Big Stick to win the world for democracy.

Otelia And The Rights Bill

Editors, The Tar Heel:

The reaction to my letter covering the week of fasting on the post office lawn was about as I expected. Most of my old friends though I had gone coo-coo. My younger friends agreed with me about the justness of non-discrimination in public accommodations.

I grew up with about as much racial prejudice as anyone else. But we knew our domestic servants as persons and were devoted to them. Negroes were not a non-entity in isolated Harlem, but there was a friendly relationship. For that reason I think these people from north of the Mason and Dixon line would do well to remain at home and try to solve their own race-relations problem. And for the same reason, I believe the problem will be resolved sooner in the south than in the north. I agree with Billy Graham that the demonstrations have gone far enough, — that the solution has got to take place in men's hearts.

I am against the Fair Employment section of the Civil Rights Bill. I believe in the right of freedom of choice in the hiring and firing of employees, and I think the last thing we want in this country is to have the strong arm of the Federal Government dictate every sphere of our lives.

I am violently opposed to "bussing" children from one district to another for the purpose of integrating the schools. Young people live under enough stress and tension these days without breaking up the neighborhoods and transporting children to strange neighborhoods and schools where they arrive on a bus before school opens, and leave on a bus as soon as the school closes, with no time or opportunity for living a normal life.

Negroes, like any other citizens, want the right to go to public places, to attend churches, and to live in locations that are now restricted, but Negroes, like all other people, are happier with their own kind—as has been demonstrated by the re-segregation of Negro children who have been accepted in all white schools. But the white person should not be blamed if he wants the same freedom of choice, especially to live with his own kind in neighborhoods.

I have always said that I had rather work with a good Negro than with anybody else. But I observe a lot of Negro employees today that I wouldn't want on my premises, and I don't want the Federal Government telling me that I must hire, and can't fire, employees who don't behave on the job and who don't try to do a good job.

I believe in the right person for the right job, regardless of skin, but the sooner the Negro realizes that he or she can't get something for nothing, and begins to measure up to the job,—by giving efficient, courteous service, the sooner this problem of Fair Employment will solve itself.

We of the older generation, who can't rid ourselves of our in-grained prejudices, will soon pass on, and the new generations will work this problem out, provided the Negro retains the respect and confidence of the white people, and denounces the Black Muslim creed and other forms of violence and race hatred. Does the Negro really want to solve the problem, or does he, as some have claimed, only want to run wild and stir up trouble? The problem demands compromise and patience on the part of both whites and Negroes, otherwise results can degenerate into a situation that bodes no good for either race.

Otelia Connor

Heelprints

A New York judge has ruled that a landlord is not required to furnish the amount of heat needed by models posing in the nude. It seems to be an altogether wise ruling, once the bare facts have been uncovered.

* * *

Definition: Modern-day miser —one who lives within his income.

Fasters' Critics

By JOHN GREENBACKER

Late Sunday night, March 22, on the corner of Franklin and Henderson streets, five local integrationists lay wrapped in quilted sleeping bags and tried to get some rest.

One young Negro man sat up, unable to sleep, and bleakly stared at a group of about six bystanders. Some looked hostile, some friendly, but most looked puzzled.

"How'd you get the right to camp out here?" asked a young man in blue jeans.

"This is Post Office land," the Negro youth replied. "It's federal property."

"Ya got to get permission to camp out down at Lejeune," Blue Jeans replied.

"We don't really call ourselves camping out," the Negro youth said.

"It's a minor point of the laws," a bespectacled student commented.

"What you call yourselves doing, anyway " Blue Jeans inquired.

"We're fasting," the Negro youth replied. "We'll be here eight days, until Easter."

"How will you keep clean?" another bystander asked.

"We've got a guy down the street who lets us use his bathroom," the Negro youth said.

"Yecch," said the bystander.

"How can anyone stand it?"

"They must be crazy," said Blue Jeans.

"I don't know," said a bystander in a white sweater. "I guess they feel it's the principle of the thing."

"You gotta be crazy to do something like this," Blue Jeans retorted.

"A lot of religious and political leaders have done the same thing," White Sweater said. "After all, Jesus Christ fasted forty days in the wilderness."

"Are you trying to equate these people with Jesus Christ?" the bespectacled student asked indignantly.

"I'm not saying that exactly," White Sweater said. "What I mean is they are all working for the brotherhood of man."

No one answered. Soon the group broke up into smaller ones of several individuals and drifted off into the night.

"It's getting pretty late," someone said, and the Negro youth rolled over to try and sleep again.

Blue Jeans, the last to leave, looked down at the five figures for a while, and then he, too, walked away.

Look At The Law

By CLYDE WILSON

The moral pretensions of some of the professors and students who are sprawling in the streets of Chapel Hill and forcing their way onto business premises against the will of the owners need to be looked at more closely.

They say they have a right to violate a law which goes against conscious. Conceding for a moment this highly questionable argument, let's see exactly what immoral law it is they are violating.

The state of North Carolina has a statute on the books requiring segregation in places of public accommodation. The law has not been enforced for years and the federal courts would throw it out if it were. So the demonstrators are not protesting a segregation law. They are protesting the right of Clarence, or Carlton or Brady to operate his business in the way that he judges to be in his own best interest.

What law is it that is affronting all these tender consciences? The law of trespass, a time-honored rule which defends the freedom of every citizen alike.

And is Clarence, who works hard, earns a living for himself and his family, pays taxes and provides a useful public service, supposed to bow down to the superior moral pretensions of people, many of whom have never done a useful thing for themselves or society?

Is he required to concede their demands even if he believes it will be taking money out of his pocket? Is he to be condemned for reacting angrily when arbitrary mobs continually try to invade his place of business and interfere with his livelihood?

The demands for a public accommodation ordinance in Chapel Hill are even more preposterous. The simple truthful fact is that the aldermen of Chapel Hill do not have the legal authority to pass such an ordinance, even if they wished to. A court could stop enforcement within 24 hours and the state would reverse it. Are they to perform an illegal act because some people demand it?

The officials of Chapel Hill are justly obligated to consult with the responsible spokesmen of the Negro residents of Chapel Hill they are not obligated to consult with gangs led by people who are not citizens of the community and some of whom are little better than vagrants and professional agitators.

If those who believe segregation is immoral can persuade the restaurant owner that they are right or persuade his customers to show him it is in his best interest to integrate, they have every right to do so. But Beyond that they cannot morally go in a society which holds freedom of the individual as its most important goal.

Hugh Stevens

'It's A Long Long Road..'

What is 72,000 miles long, costs more than $200 million a year, and is owned by more than four million people?

Did you say all the Beatle records in the world in one stack? If so, you're wrong.

It's actually North Carolina's extensive system of roads, streets, and highways, the largest secondary road system under one governmental agency in the United States.

Recently, I ran across an interesting brochure from the North Carolina State Highway Commission which tells the story of a highway system unique among the 50 states in both scope and finance.

Our State Commission has been responsible for the maintenance and improvement of all local and primary roads in the state since 1931, when the county roads were added to the state system to relieve the counties of the burdens of the depression. Under state jurisdiction, North Carolina roads became the first county system to be supported entirely by vehicular-user tax revenue (gasoline taxes, drivers' license fees, and license-plate revenue.) All roads have remained the responsibility of the State Commission, and through the years no special taxes have been levied for construction or maintenance.

The growth of the system has been truly phenomenal. In 1931 there were 46,825 miles of roads, and only 654 of them were paved. As of January 1, the total had reached 57,340 miles, and 27,835 of them were paved.

Of the 29,495 miles that have not been paved, more than 20,000 miles are graded to reasonable standards and stabilized with soil or rock so that they are all-weather roads except in extreme conditions.

With all this progress, however, there is still much to be done. Almost 10,000 miles of our roads are unimproved and easily become impassable in wet or snowy weather. The importance of this otherwise dry statistic can best be understood when you realize that according to estimates, more than 800,000 North Carolinians live on unpaved secondary roads. The future improvement of all these roads is one of the most important goals adopted by the Commission.

Statistics such as these point out graphically the immense scope of our highway operations. The extent of the system, however, is not as unique as our methods of financing it. For instance:

—There is no property tax for roads in North Carolina (a majority of the states have such a tax), and none has been levied for current operations in over 30 years.

—The State's General Fund does not aid the Highway Fund in any way.

—No borrowed money has been available to the Highway Commission for over 10 years, yet the basic state gasoline tax for current operations has not increased since the early 30's, even in the face of increased costs.

—There are no toll roads, highways, or bridges in North Carolina, a situation rare in the entire nation.

—The state is responsible for urban streets, too, maintaining more than 3,000 miles of them.

Pretty impressive, huh? It becomes even more so when you consider that ours is the only Highway Commission to have borne such financial burdens so long, and with such success.

But we're not going to sit on our laurels, apparently. During 1963, the Commission awarded contracts for construction and improvements valued at more than $75 million. More than $975,000 was spent weekly on the secondary road system alone, with the remainder going into the interstate and primary systems. This year, we will spend even more.

We could never overestimate the importance to North Carolina of such a magnificent road system. In the attraction of industry, the conveyance of farm products to market, and the safe transport of North Carolina's citizens from place to place, such roads are the essential element. In order to maintain our standards, however, we will be forced to spend more than $500 million for new construction by 1975. Obtaining such a sum will involve serious problems for our state, and may eventually create a burden for our tax structure.

But burden or not, we must get the necessary money. Otherwise, in a world on wheels, North Carolina will be left to suffocate in the exhaust fumes of the states for which it is now the pace car.

Burned Furniture Lies Piled Outside Kappa Sigma House
—Photo by Jim Wallace

"A Damned Shame"

By FRED SEELY

It looked as though a bomb had been tossed into the living room.

The gaping hole which stared out of the floor revealed blackened supports, leftover materials from the Campus Chest Carnival and a steel boiler.

The remains of Kappa Sigma gave no indication of the beauty the building once had. It was a house in which members could take pride—always clean, always well-furnished.

And now it is nothing.

"This is a damned shame," commented a bystander. "At least no one was hurt."

The charred walls were flaking slowly and the ceiling looked as though it might crumble any moment. The hole in the floor was some 10 feet across. The rug looked as though it had been sprayed with black paint.

The house smelled like burning rosin, which, indeed, was exact. Water still stood in the dining room, under tables charred from flames and blackened with smoke.

A brother came down the stairs leading to the second floor. The bottom step had separated from the rest, and he walked carefully into the living room.

"I guess I got it the worst," he said. "All I have left is one shirt. It was wrapped in a plastic bag from the laundry."

A clock in a side room had stopped at 10:57.

"I'll bet the inside of that thing looks like molten lead," commented a visitor. Others nodded in agreement.

The corners of the room and the baseboards were blackened more heavily than the rest of the room. Couches and chairs were strewn about, and it was obvious they would never again be used.

A picture of Edward R. Murrow looked down upon the charred scene. Estes Kefauver lay on the floor—the familiar smile a bit smudged, the edges of the photographed burned.

Fire Chief James Stewart and Detective Howard Pendergraph were inspecting the basement. Spectators watched through the charred hole in the living room floor, a spotlight illuminating the scene.

Furniture from the living room was piled outside on the lawn, and some 20 spectators inspected the exterior of the house.

Brothers and pledges of Kappa Sigma poked through the ruins in hopes of salvaging something. A charred scrapbook sat on a radiator beside a blackened dictionary.

"I don't know what we'll do," said a pledge. "We have a meeting at 3 at Chi Psi—I guess we'll just have to make the best of it."

And he walked slowly away, his eyes never leaving the house.

– MacArthur –

(Continued from Page 1)

It was the first time since MacArthur underwent three operations within less than a month that he gave any indications of going into deep unconsciousness.

Earlier bulletins issued by the army medical center Friday said that MacArthur was conscious although under heavy sedation.

Earlier Heaton, the Army surgeon general, had reported that there had been no bleeding from MacArthur's esophagus since early Thursday.

VALKYRIE SING

Groups wishing to enter in the Valkyrie Sing April 20 should send a representative to a meeting today at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker I, Chairman Betty Ward announced yesterday. Entry fees and information about the acts should be turned in at that time.

The annual sing is sponsored by the Valkyries, woman's honorary, and follows the tapping ceremonies of the Order of the Golden Fleece.

MOZART ON WUNC

The Mozart Spectacular, an all-day program of the best of Mozart, will be broadcast Sunday starting at 1 p.m. over WUNC radio.

The program will be interrupted at 5:15 and at 8 for the press conference and Symposium speech of Sen. William Fulbright.

Big Roundup Of Leftist Starts In Revolt-Shaken Brazil Cities

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — The anti-Communist military leaders who ousted President Joao Goulart in a swift-moving three-day revolt Friday started rounding up hundreds of his leftist followers in and out of government.

The search continued for Goulart, whose whereabouts since he fled Porto Alegre in Rio Grande do Sul state late Thursday remained a mystery. Some reports placed him at his 1-million-acre ranch on the banks of the Uruguay River while others said he was en route by car to Buenos Aires, Argentina, Montevideo, Uruguay or Asuncion, Paraguay.

Government sources said hundreds of Goulart followers in political, labor and student ranks had been detained for investigation. The sweeping nature of the purge led conservative newspapers to caution the new government against excesses.

Meanwhile, reliable but unofficial estimates placed the casualties of the revolt at around 100, inculding fewer than a dozen killed. Most of these, however, were attributed to demonstrations rather than armed hostilities.

Goulart's successor, provisional President Ranieri Mazzilli, arrived in Rio de Janerio from Brasilia to get to work on building a new cabinet and putting the machinery of government back into operation.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

Chem Fems Bake Sale—9 a.m., in front of the A & P at Eastgate.

Alpha Phi Omega is sponsoring a Hootenanny; individuals or groups from the University may enter; contact Jimmy Harris (308 Everett, 968-9028) or Dallas Lane (942-4789) today. Prizes will be awarded.

LOST & FOUND

Lost — A brown leather wallet, contact David Yount, 320 Avery, reward.

Lost — Pair of brown-rimmed prescription sunglasses in vicinity of Circus Room on Sun., contact Gayle Munroe, 319 McIver.

Lost — Duplex Log Log slide rule, name on case, contact 313 Graham.

Misplaced — Grey-blue zipper folder in 08 peabody March 17, important papers inside, contact Bob Wilson, 2nd floor Lewis.

Lost — new pipe, near Kappa Sig house, contact John Greenbacker, 968-9025.

Lost — Blue madras pocketbook with wooden handle, contact lenses and identification card inside, contact Marian Totter, 331 West Cobb.

MOVIES

Carolina — Paris When It Sizzles
Varsity—A Stranger Knocks
Free Flick — Suddenly Last Summer.

SUNDAY

Hillel Brunch—12:30 p.m., Hillel House, proceeds go to United Jewish Student Appeal.

"College Bowl" Program — 3 p.m., Hillel House, interfraternity competition; subject is "General Knowledge."

Hillel Foundation—4 p.m., Hillel House, interviews for Hillel offices.

Canterbury — 6 p.m., Chapel of the Cross, supper followed by flick "Hand in Hand."

UP Executive Comm.—7:30 p.m., Davie Hall.

Sunday Cinema — Panther Panchali.

SPU — 1 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

Westminster Fellowship — 2 and 4:30 p.m., cars leaving Presbyterian Student Center for meeting at State College.

Senior Recital — 4 p.m., Hill Hall, Martha Giggs.

Wesley Foundation — open house after Symposium presentation, Wesley House, 214 Pittsboro St.

MONDAY

UNC Press Club—7 p.m., Howell Hall, F. Bryan Williams will speak on public relations.

Orientation Counselor Interviews —2-6 p.m., today thru Tues., for men in RP II & III, and for women in the TV lounge of GM.

Fine Arts Festival Comm. — 4:30 p.m., RP II.

Enjoy the Finest Seafood
TIP TOP FISH HOUSE
Hiway 70 at Hiway 15 West
Durham Tel. 286-4494

Varsity NOW PLAYING

THE MOST MOVING LOVE STORY EVER FILMED.

"I'll make my own position clear: I think the film should be shown; patrons of art cinemas are, in the main, perceptive adults."
ALPERT, Saturday Review

A STRANGER KNOCKS

"One of the best films made in Denmark in recent years."
Time Magazine

Fresh Chesapeake Bay Oysters
From Our OYSTER BAR
STEAMED OR ON HALF-SHELL
• SPECIAL RATES FOR GROUPS
Saddle and Fox
STEAK HOUSE — OYSTER BAR
Hillsboro Rd.—Hwy. 70-Bus—Open 5 to 12 p.m.

BOOKS BY
CAROLINA SYMPOSIUM SPEAKERS

BENOIT
Disarmament and the Economy $5.75

ECKSTEIN
Multiple Purpose River Development $6.50

FULBRIGHT
Prospects for the West—$3.25

HOWE
A World More Attractive—$6.50

MANNES
More In Anger (Paper) $1.45
Subverse $3.95

MORGENTHAU
The Purpose of American Politics $5.00

Look them over at the town's nicest browsery
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open every night until 10 p.m.

CHARMACK
New York 9, N. Y.
The Magician
P. O. Box 118

Triangle Coffee House
Corner of Chapel Hill and Duke Univ. Rds.
Dinners Entertainment
This Week
Sun. - Wed. - Sun.
PLUMS ARE PURPLE, NOT VIOLET
by
Ed Kenestrick

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Asp
6. Reduce to pulp
10. Eat away
11. Pilaster
12. Culture medium
13. Coerces
15. Discuss casually
17. Anglo-Saxon letter
18. Guido's note
19. Journey
21. Pouchlike parts in plants
24. Anchored
28. One of the Barrymores
30. Loop with running knot
31. Fish nets
33. For fear that
34. "Over hill, over ——"
36. Pen-name of G. Russell
37. Owns
40. Conferences
43. To speak first
45. Prepare for publication
46. Growl
47. Projecting roof edges
49. Wither
50. A task assigned

DOWN
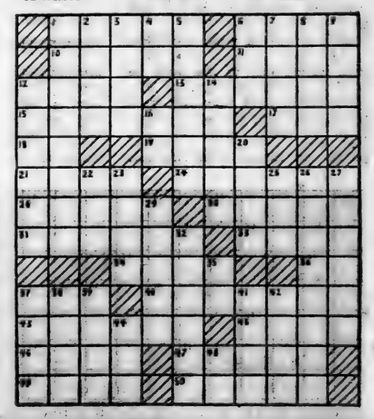
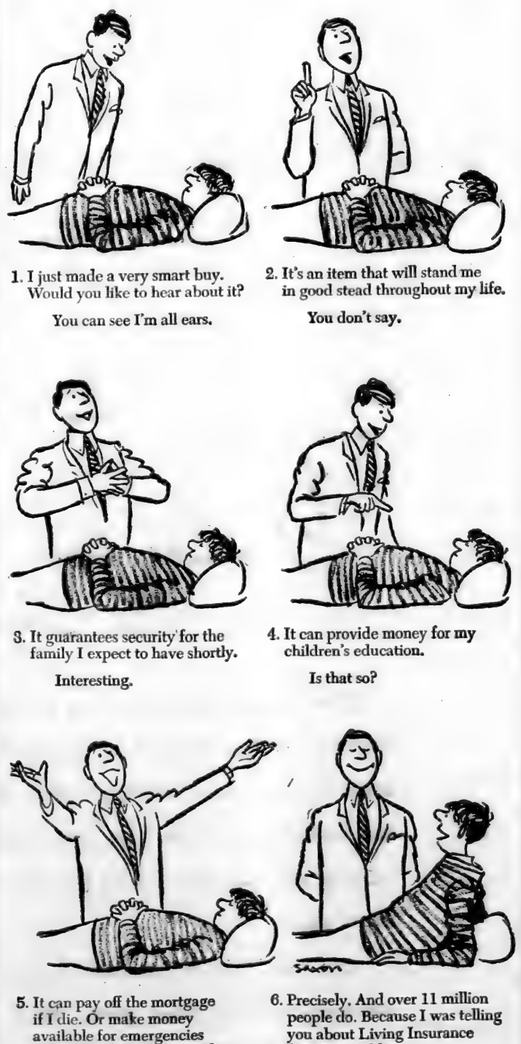
1. To lead a passive existence
2. Persia
3. Harbor
4. Man's sickname
5. Correct
6. Disfigure
7. Suffix denoting action
8. Let it stand: print.
9. Bungle
12. Entertains
14. A plant of the lily family
16. Neuter pronoun
20. A body of water
22. Greek letter
23. Dispatch
25. Spawn of fish
26. Emerson was one
27. Hate
29. Jumps
32. Old-fashioned school "tablets"
35. Hesitation sound
37. Ugly old women
38. Skin disorder
39. Mark of a wound
41. Son of Jacob
42. Paradise
44. Coin: Swed.
48. Close to

Yesterday's Answer





For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 © 1964

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
WILLIAM HOLDEN - AUDREY HEPBURN
GO ABSOLUTELY APE IN

Can beer be too cold?

Maybe we shouldn't care how cold people drink beer . . . just so they drink Budweiser. (After all, we're in business!)

But we do care. And if you think that's unusual, you ought to see the care we take to brew the beer. For instance, we could save a lot of time and money if we weren't so stubborn about our exclusive Beechwood Ageing and natural carbonation. But we are . . . and we have to pay the price. In fact, we know of no beer produced by any other brewer that costs so much to brew and age.

That's why, after we go to such fuss to brew all that taste into Budweiser, we want our customers to get it all out. And this is a fact: chilling beer to near-freezing temperatures hides both taste and aroma.

40° is just right.

To make it easy for you, we've asked all the bartenders to serve Bud at 40°. Also, every refrigerator is designed to cool Bud at 40°.

Of course, if you're on a picnic or something and the Bud is on ice and nobody brought a thermometer . . . oh, well. Things can't always be perfect.

Budweiser.
that Bud...that's beer!
ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS • NEWARK • LOS ANGELES • TAMPA

Rentals

FOR RENT: FOUR 2-BEDROOM apartments, all new, electric heat, washer connections, large closets, tile floors, water furnished, stove and refrigerator if desired. Located 2 miles south of Memorial Hospital on the Old Lystra Road. For further information contact Philip Sparrow at 929-1521, Chapel Hill.

Skaklemen Waltz To 8th Straight

Tar Heel Netters Give Ohio Gobs Of Goose Eggs

By BOB BETTIS

Slaughter. Pure and simple.

No other words can better describe what happened on the Varsity Courts yesterday as North Carolina walloped an obviously outclassed Ohio University tennis team, 9-0.

UNC Coach Don Skakle kept his number one netter, George Sokol, out of singles action and inserted three reserves into his lineup. But such a move did not weaken the Tar Heel attack in the least.

Rain-soaked courts delayed the start of the match for 35 minutes, and after ten more minutes no one could blame Ohio for watching the clouds instead of tennis balls.

So complete was Carolina's dominance that the Bobcats salvaged only one game out of the first four singles to be completed.

That one game came at the expense of O. H. Parrish, and therein lay the highlight of the contest. Parrish was ribbed considerably by his teammates for losing a point in his first set.

"I just lost it," smiled O. H.

Carl Evans, Pete Myers, and Ted Hoehn had previously put Carolina three up by capturing their matches by identical 6-0, 6-0 scores.

A Tar Heel sweep in the singles was assured when Ken Oettinger and Rich Henderson earned triumphs on courts five and six respectively.

Oettinger, a sophomore from Chapel Hill turned back Rex Roberts, 6-1, 6-0, while Henderson, a senior playing his first match of the season, whipped Ed Morris by 6-0, 6-4.

Doubles results were a reasonable facsimile of the singles.

Ohio Coach Carroll Widdows was understandably disappointed with the performance of the Bobcats. "I admit that we are not great," said Widdows, "but I also admit that we are not this bad. You've got to give credit to Skakle and his team . . . they've got a strong starting six and fairly good depth."

Widdows added that lack of experience has plagued and will continue to plague Ohio this spring.

"We have only one senior on our team and two juniors, so we are building for the next two years."

Today's match was the third of the year for Ohio, (record: 0-3) and Widdows pointed out that practice makes perfect. "We've been troubled by bad weather . . . washing out some of our matches. So we simply haven't had a chance to correct our mistakes."

The short, friendly coach was then asked to reply to one familar question.

"Yes," he remarked. "UNC is the best team we have played, will play this year, and I hope ever will play.

North Carolina's next home tilt will be on April 14 against Wake Forest College.

Singles sumary:

Ted Hoehn (UNC) def. Ted Martin, 6-0, 6-0. O. H. Parrish (UNC) def. Ken Hiatt, 6-1, 6-0. Pete Meyers (UNC) def. Mike L'Heureux, 6-0, 6-0. Carl Evans (UNC) def. John Holden, 6-0, 6-0. Ken Oettinger (UNC) def. Rex Roberts, 6-1, 6-0. Rich Henderson (UNC) def. Ed Morris, 6-0, 6-4.

Doubles summary:

Sokol and Evans (UNC) def. Martin and Hiatt, 6-0, 6-1. Henderson and Oettinger (UNC) def. Holden and Roberts, 6-0, 6-0. Talbot and Myers (UNC) def. L'Heureux and Giegel, 6-2, 6-0.

Bill Brown All Set For Put-Out On VIP's Price
—Photo by Jim Wallace

Haywood Blanks VPI As Heels Sweep Two

By LARRY TARLETON

For the second straight day, the Tar Heels came up with a shutout pitching performance as they defeated Virginia Tech 6-0 behind the 4-hit hurling of co-captain Bill Haywood.

Pitching in chilly and damp weather, Haywood threw 137 pitches, but he was tough in the clutch, stranding eight Gobblers.

The Heels enjoyed their biggest hitting day of the year as they collected 10 hits off VPI righthander John Whitesell. Dickie Prindle, Bill Brown, Ken Willard and "Hot Rod" Hundley paced the attack with two hits apiece. Bob Kaufman and shortstop Jim Speight collected the other Tar Heel safeties.

Prindle started the hitting action early, leading off with a line single to center. A walk to Kaufman and a drag bunt single by

SECOND GAME — BELOW

Speight loaded the bases. Brown scored Prindle and Kaufman with a bounder up the middle and went to second on the throw home. Willard then rapped a single to center to score Brown and Speight, to give the Heels a 4-0 lead after one inning.

Whitesell, who is also a starter on the basketball team, settled down and held the Heels scoreless until the fifth. After Speight had popped out to lead off the inning Brown rapped his second single to left. Willard then blasted a shot down the third base line which bounced off Bob Dickerson's glove for a double. Rod Hundley, fighting for a starting position, lined a single to right to score Willard and Brown and end the day's scoring.

Whitesell shut the Tar Heelr out the rest of the way, giving up only two hits in the last three innings.

Haywood seemed to be having trouble the first few innings. He walked the leadoff man in the first inning, but was bailed out of trouble by a Prindle to Speight to Brown double play. In the second inning he gave up back to back singles to Bob Dickerson and DeMoss Price before getting Tom Green to foul out to rightfielder Bob Kaufman.

After retiring the Gobblers in order in the third, Haywood ran into a siege of wildness in the fourth when he hit first baseman Randy Davis in the head with a fast ball and walked Dickerson. A fine back hand stab by third baseman Dickie Fleming again got "Old Folks" out of trouble.

An error by Speight and a base-on-balls in the fifth once again found Haywood in trouble, but he forced Marv Crutchfield to hit an easy grounder to Prindle to retire the side. Haywood coasted the rest of the way in recording his second victory of the season.

The Heels, who increased their record to 4-3, meet Cornell in the second game of a double header today at Emerson Stadium. VPI plays Cornell in the first game starting at one o'clock.

Pinch-Hitter Ken Boykin Takes Big Cut
—Photo by Jim Wallace

— BOX SCORES —

PARADISE LOST

| UNC | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Prindle, 2b | 4 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| Fleming, 3b | 4 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| Speight, ss | 4 | 0 | 1 | 2 |
| Reagan, 1b | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| c-Brown, 1b | 3 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| d-Cohoon | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Boykin, rf | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| a-Willard, lf | 3 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Shaw, c | 4 | 1 | 2 | 1 |
| Bonczek, lf-rf | 2 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Taylor, cf | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| b-Black, cf | 2 | 2 | 1 | 0 |
| McLaughlin, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Cox, p | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 30 | 5 | 9 | 5 |

| ST. MARY'S | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Payette, rf | 4 | 0 | 1 | 2 |
| Florek, 1b | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Newbauer, 2b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| Paradise, cf-p | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Clarkin, ss | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Lupden, lf | 4 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Maginuson, c | 2 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Weber, 3b | 2 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Knoedler, p | 2 | 1 | 0 | 1 |
| VonHoltun, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Buffo, cf | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 27 | 4 | 2 | 4 |

a—tripled for Boykin in 2nd
b—walked for Taylor in 3rd
c—grounded out for Reagan in 4th
d—ran and scored for Brown in 8th

ST. MARY'S ... 040 000 00—4
UNC ..... 000 030 11—5
(8 innings by agreement)

| Pitching | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Knoedler | 4⅔ | 6 | 3 | 3 | 2 | 3 |
| VonHoltun | 2⅓ | 1 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 2 |
| Paradise | ⅓ | 2 | 1 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| McLau'lin | 2 | 1 | 4 | 3 | 4 | 2 |
| Cox | 6 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 5 |

W—Cox
L—Paradise

THE HAYWOOD HEX

| UNC | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Prindle, 2b | 4 | 1 | 2 | 0 |
| Kaufman, rf-cf | 3 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Speigh, ss | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Brown, 1b | 3 | 2 | 2 | 2 |
| Willard, lf | 4 | 1 | 2 | 2 |
| Hundley, c | 4 | 0 | 2 | 2 |
| Black, cf | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| b-Boykin, rf | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Fleming, 3b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Haywood, p | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 33 | 6 | 10 | 4 |

| VPI | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Rice, rf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Taylor, c | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Crutchfield, ss | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Herndon, lf | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Davis, 1b | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| a-Currin | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Webb, 1b | 1 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Dickerson, 3b | 3 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| Price, 2b | 3 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| c-Bruce | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Green, cf | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Whitesell, p | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| d-Rogers | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 31 | 0 | 4 | 0 |

a—ran for Davis in 4th
b—struck out for Black in 5th
c—grounded out for Price in 9th
d—grounded out for Whitesell in 9th

VPI ..... 000 000 000—0
UNC ..... 400 020 00x—6

| Pitching | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Whitesell | 9 | 10 | 6 | 6 | 2 | 5 |
| Haywood | 9 | 4 | 0 | 0 | 4 | 5 |

W—Haywood
L—Whitesell

★ ★ ★

Shaw's Triple, Cox's Pitching Beat St. Mary's

John Shaw's one-out triple in the bottom of the eighth scored pinch-runner Buddy Cohoon from second base, and gave North Carolina a 5-4 victory over St. Mary's of Winona, Minnesota, in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader. The game was limited to eight innings by mutual agreement.

The win represented a comeback effort by the Tar Heels, who, perhaps puzzled by the unknown visitors from faraway, found themselves quickly in the hole, 4-0, after the second inning. UNC tallied three times in the fifth, once in the seventh and once in the eighth to pull it out and save face.

Senior righthander Bobby Cox, relieving starter Mike McLaughlin in the third, pitched six "easy" innings — stopping the Saints cold to pick up the victory. Cox allowed only one single and gave up only one walk.

Five singles—the big one a two-run rap to center by Jim Speight — produced the Tar Heels' three runs in the fifth. Shaw, Bob Bonczek, Gary Black and Dickie Prindle joined Speight in the barrage which drove starter Bill Knoedler from the hill.

Dick Fleming's seventh-inning triple off Tom VonHoltun scored Black, who had reached second on an error. And then came the final frame and Shaw's liner to center. The hit was poorly played by Jim Buffo, reserve center fielder, and hung the loss on hurler Bob Paradise. Bill Brown had started the inning with an infield single.

Sports Shorts

(culled from UPI Sports Wire)

Army opens its spring football practice today and it's fairly sage bet that Coach Paul Dietzel will introduce a new maneuver entitled, "How to stop a clock" . . . When last seen back in December, Army's upset-minded team was caught flat-footed on Navy's two-yard line with no time left for what might have been a winning play.

* * *

Doug Ford, Masters Champion in 1957, says big hitters like Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Sam Snead should be automatic favorites every time the Masters is played . . . "They can use an iron to get home on those long holes at Augusta," says Ford, "while most of the other good pros must use a wood club . . . over four rounds that makes a big difference" . . . Arnie and Snead are three-time winners, Nicklaus will be defending champ in the 1964 renewal starting April 9.

* * *

That fancy scoreboard under construction in the new stadium of the New York Mets is geared to show movie short subjects and cartoons during intervals between doubleheaders or during rain storms . . . Might be a good idea to throw in a full-length feature while games are in progress — on days the Mets are getting clobbered.

* * *

Joe Gargagiola, author, announcer and ex-major leaguer, is the host of this year's baseball television special coming up April 11 in NBC . . . Joe conducts a "dream tour" through the world of baseball of 11-year-old Jeffrey Price, a Newark, N. J. Little Leaguer . . . They'll visit the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., spring training camps and talk to many bright stars—past and present.

* * *

The 70th Penn Relays coming up at Philadelphia April 24-25 will present 14 Olympic development events including a 440-yard relay for girls . . . Our Olympic gals are gonna miss triple gold medalist Wilma Rudolph, the 1960 wonder at Rome.

UNC Trackmen In Columbia

By FELIPE TOLIVAR

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Some 40 UNC track and field hopefuls will participate in the Carolina Relays here today, the first outing for Coach Joe Hilton's thinclads since the Florida Relays, held during Spring Vacation.

Sophomore Dale White has been one of the brightest stars for the cindermen so far this spring. The Salisbury speedster turned in a 21.0 performance in the 220 yard dash against NC State, tying a school record dating back to 1952.

Other top showings have been turned in by three freshmen—Johnny Johnson (pole vault; broad jump); Jon Levin (dashes); and Bo Wood (discus). Hilton regards this year's frosh team as perhaps the finest ever assembled here.

Linksmen Top Williams For 7th Win

Skip Tucker fired a one-under par 71 and two other Tar Heels went around Finley's 18 holes in even par yesterday as the rapidly improving UNC golfers turned back Williams, 18½-2½.

It was the seventh win against only two defeats for Ed Kenney's linksmen, who are showing signs of developing into a steady golf team—something which Carolina has not had in the last few years.

"The boys are playing well," said Kenney after yesterday's match. "I am very pleased with the progress they have shown."

Team captain Harvey Bill and Billy Stephenson carded the par 72's for Carolina on the overcast afternoon. Of the seven UNC golfers, six won their matches while Les Fleischer was held to a tie by his opponent.

Hill, playing in the number one spot, defeated John Foehl, 2½-½. No. 2 Fleischer finished with a 74 in splitting his match with Bill Chapman. Tucker, No. 3, disposed of Dick Greenlee, 2½-½.

Ed Hoopes (No. 4), Stephenson (No. 5), George Reams (No. 6) and John Baldwin (No. 7) all won their matches by 3-0. Reams went around in 75, and Hoopes and Baldwin both carded 76's.

The Tar Heels, playing without their best man, Tommy Arnold, have now won their last four matches. Arnold appeared in the team's first three outings, but injured his shoulder and is expected to be out at least two more weeks.

PARDON US, P-COWS

The DTH Sports Staff offers its sincerest apologies to the Williams Purple Cows. Their tennis team did not get beat 9-0 as was reported in Friday's DTH. It was only 8-1.

"HANG TEN"
IS HERE

When you get ready to "hang ten," "goofy Foot," or impress that young "Waheenie" on the beach, wear your original surfing swim suits.

These "baggies" may well be the newest fad to hit campus.

Durable suits of sail twill cotton and rice bags, priced at only 6.95 & 7.95.

Shop early for best sizes.

Your Charge Account Invited

Varsity Men's Wear

Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin St.

GANT

STRIPED OXFORD
For when it sizzles—a half sleeve Gant shirt in classic batiste oxford stripings. Meticulously tailored in the typical Gant tradition . . . with softly flared button-down collar.

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

the ANGUS ltd. BARN
RALEIGH-DURHAM HIGHWAY
P. O. BOX 6357 - RALEIGH, N. C. - 27608
TELEPHONE 787-3508
"Beefeaters Haven"
CHARLES N. WINSTON / THAD EURE, JR.

Yes, The Barn Will Rise Again!

We want to thank all of our friends and patrons for the hundreds of thoughtful messages which we have received since the Barn was destroyed by fire. We appreciated particularly all the nice things you had to say about us.

The debris is being cleared away and construction will start soon. We'll keep you informed as we move along.

Gratefully yours,
Thad Eure Jr.
Charles N. Winston
BARNMASTERS.

GRAND OPENING

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 2, 3 and 4

Come in and register for FREE Prizes to be given away. Register Thursday, Friday & Saturday morning. Drawing wil be held Saturday afternoon. You do not have to be present to win. Winners will be notified.

FREE PRIZES

1 Suit
1 Sport Coat
1 Windbreaker
1 Shirt
1 Tie
1 Pair Socks

Winners will have a choice of Men's or Boy's Sizes. FREE COOKIES AND PUNCH WILL BE SERVED EVERY DAY DURING OUR GRAND OPENING CLEBRATION.

CAMPUS STYLE
103 W. Franklin St.
Next to the Zoom-Zoom

THE YOUNG MISTER SHOP
chapel hill, n.c.
Phone 929-1558

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

130

1964-'Arms And The Man'-1964

The Daily Tar Heel

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, APRIL 5, 1964

'Arms And The Man'

Fulbright Starts CS In Memorial

SEN. WILLIAM FULBRIGHT

Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will speak in Memorial Hall at 8 tonight to open the Carolina Symposium.

He will hold a news conference today at 5:15 p.m. which will be heard live over WUNC radio. Newsmen from all over the nation will attend, including Max Frankel of the New York Times.

It is hoped that Fulbright will elaborate on a foreign policy speech he made on the Senate floor March 25, in which he urged the nation to stop "clinging to old myths in the face of new realities."

Fulbright advocated a major revision in American foreign policy by asking the American people to stop looking upon the world's Communist nations as a block of inseparable states with its headquarters in Moscow.

"In the Cuban missile crisis of October, 1962, the United States proved to the Soviet Union that a policy of agression and adventure involved unacceptable risks," he said.

Fulbright believes that with the present lowering of world tension, it is in the best interest of the nationa to "cut loose from established myths and to start thinking some 'unthinkable thoughts'—about the Cold War and East-West relations, about the underdeveloped countries and particularly those in Latin America, about the changing nature of the Chinese Communist threat in Aisia and about the festering war in Viet Nam."

Fulbright was born in Mississippi and received his education at the University of Arkansas, Oxford University in England and George Washington Law School.

After several years as an attorney for the Justice Department, he taught at the University of Arkansas and became president of that institution in 1939.

He ran successfully for the House of Representatives in 1942 and was the author of the Fulbright Resolution of 1943 which precipitated the organization of the United Nations.

He became a senator in 1944, and held positions on the Banking and Currency and Foreign Relations Committees.

Earlier in 1962 he was appointed a member of the U. S. Delegation to the U. N. General Assembly.

A leader in the move to censure the late Senator Joseph McCarthy in 1954, Fulbright is famous for the statement, "Democracy is more likely to be destroyed by perversion of, or abandonment of, its true moral principles than by armed attack from Russia."

ARMS AND THE MAN—A BOMARC Missile stands out against the night in Y Court. The missile is one of several displays set up around the campus in connection with the Symposium title "Arms And The Man." —Photo by Jim Wallace

Hesse Is Chairman

Symposium Committees Are Responsible For Success

By VANCE BARRON, JR.

The core of Symposium activity, an office on the second floor of the Y building, unlike the eye of a hurricane, has been a scene of unmitigated confusion for the past three months. Yet out of this chaos has emerged what promises to be the finest Carolina Symposium ever.

The history of this year's Symposium is set forth in its committees, from its genesis in the Interim Committee to the Handbook Committee that will commit the Symposium to history and posterity.

How did the Symposium ever make its way out of the wilderness and into the promised land? Most of the credit must go to the able chairman, Dick Hesse, but this modern-day epic has literally a cast of thousands.

The work of formulating the theme of this year's Symposium was begun in the spring of last year. Grey Temple was chairman of the Interim Committee set up by the previous Symposium. This committee provided the transition and continuity from the old to the new. This year's officers were chosen and given the responsibility of seeing that the word became flesh.

Assisting Hesse, there are Bill Davis, Executive Secretary; Steve Dennis, Vice-chairman; Bev Haynes, secretary; and Al Sneed, Treasurer. The faculty advisor, surreptitiously known as "the great white father" of the Symposium, is Dr. David Lapkin of the Department of Economics.

The spotlight then shifts to the Program Committee, under the direction of Steve Dennis. This commilttee set about planning a schedule of the five-day affair and began to persuade prophets from foreign parts to come and hold forth. A group of 30 faculty members and students met all last spring and hashed out the final topic: "Arms and the Man: National Security and the Aims of a Free Socity."

Of course, at the bottom of every successful operation, there is that vital commodity: money. The task of securing this fell to "Evil Al" Sneed (he is at the root of all money), Treasurer and chairman of the Finance Committee. Individuals, groups and foundations from all over the state were approached and asked to support the Symposium. Governor Terry Sanford and Pres. William Friday aided in this operation.

When school opened in the fall, the Symposium had money in the bank and very little of anything else except a faith that their hopes would materialize. Campus organizations, fraternities, sororities and dormitories were asked to contribute, and the work of finding speakers went on.

The operations began to gather momentum as the Symposium moved out of the planning stage under the work of its committees.

Steve Dennis began making arrangements with his committee for the Intercollegiate Seminar. This will bring students from all over the nation to attend the Symposium and discuss the topic with some of the speakers. Larry Ehrhart is vice-chairman of this committee.

The Related Discussions Committee, under the direction of Bill Graham, Emily Klyce and Vance Barron set up meeetings in dorms, fraternity and sorority houses where faculty members and students met to discuss "Arms and the Man."

No student could escape being familiar with the 1964 Symposium, however, if he

(Continued on Page 5)

Red Carpet Is Out For CS Speakers

By MAIDA BURCH

In honor of keynote speaker Senator William Fulbright, the 1964 Carolina Symposium will open its week of lectures, seminars and informal gatherings with a banquet at the Morehead Planetarium dining room tonight.

The members of all Symposium committees, faculty members, administrative officials and townspeople will attend.

The Social and Hospitality Committee has planned luncheons and dinners through the week for the speakers who will deliver formal lectures and panel discussions. These are to be attended by invitation.

The Economics Department will entertain Emile Benoit for lunch on Monday, and William Barnes and Otto Eckstein on Tuesday.

The YMCA-YWCA plan to honor Douglas Maitland Knight at a luncheon, and Dr. Robert Davis of the Mathematics Department will entertain Harold Orlans and Paul Gross.

Irving Howe, Marya Mannes, and John Knowles will attend a luncheon given by the English Honors students and faculty advisors, and the creative writing honors students and professors.

The Carolina Playmakers will entertain Richard Adler at a

(Continued on Page 5)

Candidates Hold Meet

Gubernatorial candidates L. Richardson Preyer, Dan K. Moore and I. Beverly Lake will be featured today in the first of a series of programs on "Mixing Religion and Politics" presented by the Westminster Fellowships of UNC, N. C. State and Duke University.

Featured also in the program at 3 p.m. in the College Union Ballroom in Raleigh will be Senator Lunsford Crew, chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party. Crew will deliver a talk entitled "Is Political Participation Worth the Effort?"

Cars will leave for Raleigh today from the Presbyterian Student Center, Henderson Street, at 2 and 4:30 p.m. All interested persons may pick up additional information from the Student Center.

Investigation Of Fires Still In Progress

Mounting concern resulting from two fires within a two-week period has triggered several reactions here on campus.

Campus Police Chief A. J. Beaumont said yesterday he has noted increased concern resulting from two recent fraternity house fires here.

Beaumont said there was positively no indication of arson in the fire which gutted the Kappa Sigma fraternity house Thursday night. The fire at the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house has definitely been cited as a case of arson.

Investigators for the North Carolina Department of Insurance are reported to have considerably narrowed the range of suspects in the Phi Delta Theta fire which broke out Sunday, March 22. The investigation is still in progress.

Chief Beaumont said several fraternities have asked for aid and instruction in conducting fire drills for their houses. Beaumont also said fire alarms would be installed in all dormitories which are not fireproof. Dormitories which will receive fire alarm systems are Battle-Vance-Pettigrew, Old East, Old West, Smith and Carr.

Additional plans are being made to include all fraternity houses and other dormitories in the existing Chaupel Hill fire alarm system, presently being revised.

Fire Department officials confirmed that a report of a fire in Old West dormitory was called in Friday morning. The fire, reported as smoke coming out of an upper window, turned out to be steam escaping from a shower room.

Edit Writers Hear Esser On Friday

Some towns and counties in N.C. are going to be left behind in the race for new industry, and it's going to be necessary for many people in some poverty stricken sections of the state to migrate from rural areas to urban centers where industry prospers, it was declared here Friday night by George Esser, director of the N.C. Fund, who described the problems of joblessness, sickness, poverty, and too slow industrialization to keep pace with farm unemployment.

Speaking at the N.C. Conference of Editorial Writers, he said Ford Foundation financed the $14 million N.C. Fund drive to find not one, but many ways of relieving poverty, and the total community approach appears to be the best way.

"Many rural and agricultural counties throughout North Carolina which face unemployment for many of its people are trying desperately to attract new industry to produce new jobs and give a balanced economy in many localities over the state. However, there isn't that much industry available for all who want and need it," said Esser. "Therefore, it is inevitable that many of the unemployed must migrate to other places, to be trained in new skills and to be able to hold down different kinds of jobs."

Golden Fellowship Goes To Graduate Student In Dramatic Arts At UNC

Michael Carrington, graduate student of dramatic arts, has been awarded a John Golden Traveling Fellowship.

The grant is designed to foster closer relationships between the professional theatre in New York and educational theatres throughout the country.

Carrington will spend two weeks in New York in June attending Broadway plays and rehearsals of new plays opening in the near future.

Carrington received his undergraduate degree in music at High Point College. He will return here next year to complete work for his M.A., and plans to teach afterwards.

He was the musical director of "The Fantasticks," a Playmakes production last week.

Bershak Award To Hennessee

The Andrew Bershak Interfraternity Scholarship for four years of study at UNC has been awarded to Keith Corwyn Hennessee of Wilkesboro, it was announced today by the Office of Student Aid.

Hennessee is a student at Wilkes Central High School.

The Bershak scholarship is worth $600 per year for four years of study. Established in 1948, the scholarship fund is composed of contributions from UNC students who are members of social fraternities. It was established as a memorial to Andrew Bershak, class of 1938, who was an All-American football star.

Huge Rocket Goes On Display Here

By DONNA FAGG

A BOMARC interecpter missile for air defense has been sent by the United States Air Force for display during the Carolina Symposium.

This missile, long range and suepersonic, is designed to intercept enemy aircraft while they are still far from our borders. It has a wing span of 18 feet and a gross weight of 15,000 pounds. Traveling faster than the speed of sound at an extreme altitude, it can deliver either a conventional or a nuclear warhead more than 250 miles.

The U. S. Army is setting up an exhibit in Morehead Planetarium during Symposium entitled The Soldier—Key to Power. The five-piece display portrays the critical skills and essential qualities of the modern men who serve in Army uniform.

Included in the multi-unit exhibit is a 10-minute film documentary of the soldier from World War II to Vietnam.

Exhibits have been set up in Wilson Library by the committee headed by Mike Bissell. "Arms and the Man" is illustrated in the display cases at the main entrance, and a mobile with the names of the speakers throughout the week hangs in the hallway.

A film short in connection with the week's topic is to be run at the local theatres. The Intimate Bookshop has set up an exhibit of books which various speakers have written.

QUIET, PLEASE!

Campus Police Chief A. J. Beaumont said yesterday cables will be placed across the service roads behind the new dorms each evening at 7:30 p.m.

Beaumont said the cables will be put up each evening starting Monday in order to keep cars and motorcycles from creating noises and disturbing the residents of the dormitories.

Radio-Television Schedule

The entire Carolina Symposium will be broadcast on WUNC Radio, 91.5 FM, Sunday, April 5, through Thursday, April 8.

WUNC television will broadcast most of the Symposium programs on Channel 4 during the week, beginning with the speech by Senator William S. Fulbright on Sunday night at 8 o'clock.

SUNDAY

5:15 p.m.—Fulbright Press Conference. Radio.
8:00 p.m.—Fulbright speech. Radio, TV.

MONDAY

4:00 p.m.—Cooper speech. TV.
5:30 p.m.—Press Conference, to be announced. Radio.
6:00 p.m.—Emile Benoit. Radio (pre-recorded).
7:00 p.m.—Cooper speech. Radio (pre-recorded).
8:00 p.m.—Morgenthau speech, Radio, TV.

TUESDAY

4:00 p.m.—Knight, Graham panel. TV.
5:30 p.m.—Brinkley Press Conference. Radio (pre-recorded).
6:00 p.m.—Barnes, Eckstein panel. Radio (pre-recorded).
7:00 p.m.—Knight, Graham panel. Radio (pre-recorded).
8:00 p.m.—Brinkley speech. Radio.

WEDNESDAY

5:30 p.m.—Press Conference, to be announced. Radio.
6:00 p.m.—Orlans, Gross panel. Radio (pre-recorded)
7:00 p.m.—Thompson, Adler panel. Radio (pre-recorded).
8:00 p.m.—Mannes, Howe, Knowles, Cole panel. Radio, TV.
9:30 p.m.—Brinkley speech. TV (pre-recorded).

THURSDAY

4:00 p.m.—McGovern-Yarmolinsky panel. TV.
5:30 p.m.—Press Conference, to be announced. Radio.
6:00 p.m.—Leprince-Ringuet speech. Radio (pre-recorded).
7:00 p.m.—McGovern-Yarmolinsky panel. Radio (pre-recorded).
8:00 p.m.—Ball speech. Radio.

FRIDAY

9:00 p.m.—Ball speech. TV (pre-recorded).

SATURDAY

9:00 p.m.—Thompson-Adler panel. (Pre-recorded).

Assembly Candidates

4 Of 5 Oppose Gag Law

Four of the five candidates seeking nomination to Orange County's State House and Senate seats in the May Democratic Primary favor outright repeal of North Carolina's Speaker Ban Law.

Ed Hamilin and Gordon Cleveland, candidates for the House seat, and Don Matheson and Robert Midgette, candidates for the Senate seat, all called for immediate repeal.

Donald Stanford, a candidate for the House seat, stood alone in suggesting possible amendment rather than repeal.

The candidates gave their views on the Gag Law in answer to questions put to them by The Chapel Hill Weekly. Each candidate was asked: "Do you think the Speaker Ban Law should be repealed by the 1965 General Assembly? Amended, and if so, how? How do you feel generally about the law as it pertains to freedom of speech and academic freedom? Do you think its benefits, if any, have outweighed any adverse effects that it might have had on the University?"

Both of the candidates for the Senate stood flatly for repeal. Matheson, retired Orange County farm agent and a resident of Hillsboro, said, "The Speaker Ban Law, hurriedly passed by the 1963 Legislature is a bad law and should be repealed." Midgette, a Chapel Hill attorney, said, "The Speaker Ban Law does not effectively protect . . . and can be harmful . . . I am inclined therefore to favor repeal."

Two of the three candidates for the House were equally direct in calling for repeal. Cleveland, a political science professor at the University, said, "I firmly believe reconsideration by the 1965 General Assemly, with full hearings, will demonstrate to the people of North Carolina, the wisdom of repealing the Speaker Ban outright . . . ." Hamblin, a resident of Hillsboro and publisher of The News of Orange County, said, "Immediate repeal by the 1965 Legislature would be in order . . . ."

Stanford, a resident of Chapel Hill and a dairy farmer, said in suggesting amendment rather than repeal, "The repeal of the Speaker Ban Law in the 1965 General Assembly is an impractical consideration in view of the strong Statewide sentiment in favor of the action taken by the 1963 Assembly . . . . It is more practical to reconsider the law with the idea of an amendment."

Symposium Scorecard

SUNDAY

Sen. William Fulbright .. 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

MONDAY

Emile Benoit ..... 2 p.m.
Carroll Hall
Sen. John S. Cooper .... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
Hans Morgenthau ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

TUESDAY

William S. Barnes
Otto Eckstein ..... 2 p.m.
Carroll Hall
Douglas M. Knight
Frank P. Graham ..... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
David Brinkley ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

WEDNESDAY

Harold Orlans
Paul Gross ..... 2 p.m.
Garrard Hall
Rep. Frank Thompson
Richard Adler ..... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
Irvng Howe
Marya Mannes
John Knowles
William Coles ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

THURSDAY

Adam Yarmolinsky
Sen. George McGovern .. 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
George W. Ball ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall
Prof. Louis Leprince-Ringuet ..... 2 p.m.
Gerrard Hall

This is the full list of speakers for the Carolina Symposium, which begins tonight with the speech by Sen. William Fulbright (D.-Ark.)

Today's paper is devoted to the Symposium, and special credit should go to Harry DeLung and Virginia Carnes, publicity co-chairmen. Peter Harkness assisted on the layout. Photo credits are to Jim Wallace. The engraving on page 3 was done with the cooperation of the Durham Morning Herald. In addition, this edition could never have been published without the help of Charles Campbell and his co-workers at the print shop of the Chapel Hill

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Volume 72, Number 130 Sunday, April 5, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 933-1012. Business, circulation, advertising—933-1163. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Senator Is A Case In Point

The campus, some tell us, is sick unto death of hearing about civil rights and integration and protest, and maybe they are right, for the issue has been much before us this past year. But it occurs to us that this is irrelevant, for the problem is aggravated and the hour is late, and perhaps if enough of us get tired of reading and hearing about civil rights we will work harder to eliminate the corroding influences of race prejudice and discrimination that live on in our own small corner of the world. And perhaps, if we do this, others elsewhere will work harder to do the same. For another great argument in favor of ridding our land of racial discrimination will be with us tonight. His name is J. W. Fulbright.

Fulbright, chairman of the prestigious Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is from Arkansas. He is a former Rhodes Scholar, President of the University of Arkansas, and as a Congressman helped set up the overseas scholarships that today bear his name.

His most recent contribution to the national discourse on foreign policy was a Senate speech on March 25 in which he urged Americans to adapt themselves to a complex and changing world, to shed old moralistic myths and to dare think "unthinkable things."

"We are confronted," he said, "with a complex and fluid world situation and we are not adapting ourselves to it. We are clinging to old myths in the face of new realities and we are seeking to escape the contradictions by narrowing the permissible bounds of public discussion, by relegating an increasing number of ideas and viewpoints to a growing category of "unthinkable thoughts."

"I believe that this tendency can and should be reversed," he continued, "that it is within our ability, and unquestionably in our interests, to cut loose from established myths and to start thinking some 'unthinkable thoughts'—about the cold war and East-West relations, about the underdeveloped countries and particularly those in Latin America, about the changing nature of the Chinese Communist threat in Asia and about the festering war in Vietnam.

As we are certain Sen. Fulbright will readily admit, he was not saying anything that has not been said before. He was, in fact, paraphrasing Lincoln's famous remark to the effect that "as the occasion is new, so must we think anew and act anew."

We could not agree with the Senator more, and we respect him even more than we formerly did, for having the political guts to put down the cries of the rigid, super-patriots among us who have poured shallow cliches into our national thinking to such an extent that comments like Fulbright's were necessary, even essential.

SO HERE, THEN, we have a political leader who perceives that reality is a deep shade of grey, and is not afraid to say so, though he knows that he will win no popularity contest for reminding the nation of unpleasant facts of life which many would prefer to forget. We have a man of intellect and ability, applying his talents to the solution of pressing problems.

But note the kind of problems he is restricted to: international ones, for the most part. Where does he stand on another great issue of our time, civil rights?

Here is the tragedy. He is with the Dixiecrats. He votes "right." He is not free to aid constructively in the solution of this pressing domestic issue, though talents like his are badly needed. Instead he must go through the motions required for a Southern Congressman to stay in office—he must be negative, and so he is, but at least to less of a degree than many of his fellows.

This is indeed a national tragedy. The same goes for other Southern Congressmen, caught in the same position. They are chained to a role they must act out until their audience of constituents becomes sufficiently mature to release them from this bond.

This is a job which only we, the constituents of today and tomorrow, can perform. We must liberate our leaders from the dogma of discrimination. We must let our leaders lead in every area of concern, else we end up hobbling only ourselves. We must, each of us, take Sen. Fulbright's words about the international scene to heart and do what he and others cannot yet do—apply them to our domestic situation, particularly civil rights.

This Is The Week That Is

The many people who have worked uncounted hours planning and coordinating this year's Carolina Symposium are fairly ecstatic over the way the program has shaped up, as well they should be.

The theme of the program, "Arms and the Man," is immensely timely; the areas to be explored are all highly important; and—best of all—the participants are of a uniformly high caliber.

The fact that the keynote speaker, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, has recently become the object of much controversy and attention as a result of his March 25 Senate speech, would seem to ensure a packed house for his address tonight, and for the addresses and panel discussions to follow through Thursday.

We congratulate the people behind this year's Symposium for setting the stage for such an exciting and rewarding week. And we urge every student who can to attend as many of the programs as possible.

Carolina is in for a real experience.

★ ★ ★

Rushing around smartly is no proof of accomplishing much.

—Mary Baker Eddy

Though I am always in haste, I am never in a hurry.

—John Wesley

Manners require time, and nothing is more vulgar than haste.

—Emerson

Wisely and slow;—they stumble that run fast.

—Shakespeare

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely, Peter Wales
Copy Editor — Linda Riggs
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarlton
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacker, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Shirley Travis, Nancy McCracken
Staff Artists:
Chip Barnard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

SP Platform

The Student Party of the University of North Carolina, pursuant to its goal of promoting a more meaningful, progressive, and effectual Student Government, based on Honor, Responsibility, and Citizenship, pledges vigorous and sound leadership in the following areas:

STUDENT GOVERNMENT AND EDUCATION

Constant efforts to emphasize and enrich the educational contributions of Student Government by effective work to realize such goals as:

1. Increased student participation and voice in University policy-making through student representation on faculty and administrative committees dealing with dormitory improvements, campus development, and academic programming.
2. Increased utilizatilon of existing exchange programs with foreign universities through encouragement of living unit discussions with exchange and foreign students.
3. Publication of a free course evaluation booklet.
4. Reform of orientation to achieve such goals as: (a) increased co-educational activities, (b) increased use of summer mailing; (c) improved selection of counselors from all parts of the campus.
5. University reading day(s) before exams.

DIRECTION OF STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Responsibility and resolution to promote in the University Community a stronger commitment to the established concept of student autonomy, and to strengthen the foundation of understanding and cooperation upon which Student Government rests through:

1. Continuation of direct communication with University Trustees and Faculty in order to promote better understanding of the role and function of Student Government and to gain an effective voice for the Student Body in university affairs.
2. Initiation of a conference next fall of past and present student leaders, faculty members, and officers of the new University administration to discuss the concept and direction of student self-government at Carolina.

REDEFINITION OF THE CAMPUS CODE AND WOMEN'S RULES

Reaffirmation of faith in the responsibility of the individual student for his personal conduct through:

1. Redefinition of the Campus Code to apply solely to conduct directly relatable to the University, its student community, and the educational process.
2. Establishment of an ad-hoc committee to investigate, in cooperation with the Women's Residence Council, the possibility of letting senior women have open hours and extending apartment residence privileges to senior women provided they have written parental permission.

WIDER STUDENT PARTICIPATION

Continuation of efforts, through a vigorous direct communication campaign, to involve increased numbers of interested and qualified students from all parts of the campus, especially the non-affliated men and women, in meaningful Student Government activity.

DORMITORIES

Constant and imaginative attention to the special problems of men and women dormitory residents through:

1. Continuation of this year's efforts to use the Consolidated University Student Council and other channels to bring girls from neighboring colleges to the campus for social events; the girls to be taken to organized receptions in the women's dormitories upon arrival.
2. Active encouragement of dormitory newspapers through a strengthened Editor's Roundtable which would be used to secure common advertising and articles.
3. Continuation of the dorm leadership conferences.
4. Formation of a Speakers' Bureau under the Academic Affairs Committee to provide dormitory officers with a list of faculty members interested in speaking in men's and women's residence hall discussions.
5. A thorough evaluation of the effectiveness of the resident adviser system.

FRATERNITIES

Swift attention to the problems facing fraternities during the coming year by resolute support for responsible fraternity self-government through a strengthened IFC.

SPECIAL AREAS OF CONCERN

Rededication to the principle of a broad-based Student Government aware of the role it can play in the University community and responsive to the needs of its constituents through:

1. Urgent attention to the problem of unjustified discrimination against members of the student community, and responsible efforts to achieve by lawful means equal service and opportunities for all students.
2. Investigation directed toward obtaining a higher wage scale for students employed by the University; actually creating a minimum wage standard.
3. Active encouragement of voter registration among students eligible to vote in Chapel Hill.

Notice

With the printing of the 1964 University Party and Student Party spring platforms, the Daily Tar Heel today begins its full coverage of the all-campus campaigns and elections.

In order to insure fair and equal treatment for all candidates, we request that candidates and those submitting letters of endorsement for them follow these rules carefully:

—One campaign statement will be printed for each candidate. Candidates for President of the Student Body should confine their statements to approximately two typewritten, standard-size pages, double-spaced. The same limitation will be applied to candidates for the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel. All other candidates for the big four student body offices should limit their statements to approximately one and a half pages, typewritten and double-spaced. Candidates for NSA and all Senior Class offices will be allowed to publish statements of approximately one page each.

—Letters of endorsement for candidates will be subject to the following regulations:

1. Two letters will be published for each candidate for President of the Student Body, with the total number of signatures for both letters not to exceed 30 names.

2. One letter will be published for all other all-campus candidates. All other candidates for big four campus offices shall be allowed 15 signatures, NSA candidates 10 signatures, and Daily Tar Heel editor(s) 20 signatures.

3. No endorsement letters will be published for Senior Class candidates.

All statements from candidates should be submitted to the DTH office by 3 p.m. on Tuesday, April 7. All endorsement letters should be submitted by 3 p.m. on Thursday, April 9. The Daily Tar Heel reserves the right to edit any statements which exceed the limits listed above. The length of endorsement letters will be left to the discretion of those submitting them, but conciseness will aid handling and speed publication.

THE EDITORS

"We Can Cut Down A Little More — Some People Are Still Getting Their Mail On Time"

UP Platform

The university community faces critical challenges as a growing and changing educational institution. The mass university places new demands upon our traditional concepts and ideas. Only by the joint action of the student body, the administration, and the faculty can our educational goals and needs be met.

The University Party asks that you join with us in a New Commitment to the University of North Carolina and its continued growth as an educational leader of this nation. We shall seek the realization of this goal through the following program:

1. RESIDENCE HALL

A. Continued promotion of the Residence Hall Improvements Committee, which will work closely with the University Administration to provide and improve social and study facilities such as Joyner Hall "pilot project," financed by Student Government and the Administration.

B. Promotion of a more satisfactory residence hall community life through further investigation of a Residence College System of geographically organized living units, each complete with social and recreational facilities, and comprehensive academic and social programs.

C. Assistance for stronger residence hall newspapers through the Editors' Roundtable, with improved access to Student Government and campus news, and printing facilities.

D. Increased exchange programs between men's residence halls and women's colleges through the cooperation of Student Government, the MRC, and class officers.

II. FRATERNITIES AND SORORITIES

A. Strong Student Government support of the Interfraternity Council to assist fraternities to meet the problems of deferred rush.

B. Support for strengthened fraternity and sorority self-government through the Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils.

III. ACADEMIC AND CULTURAL

A. The establishment of a student committee to work with the Faculty Council on Honors in the re-evaluation and expansion of the academic honors programs.

B. Efforts to increase the flexibility of the undergraduate curriculum and to increase the use of small seminar sections in large lecture courses.

C. Increased course evaluation and the publishing of a booklet describing undergraduate elective courses.

D. The establishment of a Fine Arts Festival and co-operation in the expansion of the fine arts program.

E. Co-operation between the Carolina Forum and the re-established Carolina Political Union to provide speakers on topics of public concern and to provide a forum for student political discussion.

IV. CAMPUS WELFARE

A. The creation of a joint student-faculty-administration Campus Welfare Board which will concern itself with academic programming, student services, and physical plant improvements.

B. The appointment of student representatives to work with specific University and community organizations such as Lenoir Hall, the campus stores, and the Board of Aldermen, to facilitate communication and positive interaction.

C. The reactivation of the Student Library Committee to assist in the planning of the new undergraduate library.

D. Efforts to minimize the costs of education through:
—Investigation of a Student Cooperative Store.
—State Affairs Committee action to halt further tuition increases and to end the policy of self-liquidated capital improvements.

V. STUDENT RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

A. A firm commitment to the equality of all students, and realistic programs to extend and guarantee the rights, freedoms, and opportunities of all members of the student community. A further commitment to student rights and responsibilities based on the integrity of Student Government and the student judiciary.

B. Reinterpretation of the Campus Code to provide more realistic standards for student conduct and responsibility.

C. Strengthening of the IFC and MRC courts to grant them a wider jurisdiction over non-Honor Code offenses.

D. Increased utilization of the Honor System Commission to strengthen communications between students and their elected judicial councils.

E. Efforts to secure greater student representation on faculty committees.

VI. COMMUNITY AND STATE

A. A campaign to communicate the nature and goals of the University to the state through cooperation with the University News Bureau, utilization of student speeches, and radio and TV appearances.

B. Student service projects such as the North Carolina Volunteers program, to be directed toward the handicapped and poorly educated in the Chapel Hill community and throughout the state.

VII. STUDENT GOVERNMENT EFFICIENCY

A. The creation of a joint President's Cabinet composed of the presidents of different campus

(Continued on Page 5)

Soap Box By Jeff Dick

The Troublemakers: They're All Alike

It is haunting to think back to an October of over a year ago when two men were killed, scores injured, hundreds arrested, and a community sought to do battle with the United States Army in Oxford, Mississippi.

Local citizens, most of them not connected with the student body, hurled bricks, threw Molotov Cocktails, and fired guns at the Army and a contingent of U. S. Marshals in a battle that raged through a night and into the next morning.

In the end, two persons lay dead, one of them a correspondent for the Agence France Presse.

Part of the spectre of Ole Miss returned to Chapel Hill last week.

On Tuesday evening, five persons lay on the lawn of the U.S. Post Office in protest of racial discrimination in Chapel Hill. Without debating the merits of the cause they protested, I should like to reflect on the reactions toward the protest on the part of some local elements.

Maybe Paul Guillard, correspondent for the Agence France Presse had a chance to explain his mission in Oxford, Mississippi before he was shot in the back at a range so close there were powder burns on his back.

Somehow, however, I doubt it.

Two men, white, approached the scene of the protest from the East end of Franklin St. They walked with a stilted stride indicative either of a total inebriate, or, at best, a product of the mentally defective Kallikak family.

They stopped twice, halting, as if testing their nerves, and then proceeded with their act. From a range of four feet, they opened a carton of eggs and threw them point-blank at the people on the ground.

Not a word was said—they stood there looking at a mass of broken eggs and then resumed their stilted gait up the street. Almost as an afterthought, one of them turned after walking a few feet, and reached in the pocket of his jacket for another egg. It was almost humorous to see his face when, as he reached in the pocket, he broke the egg. Almost humorous, but not quite, at least for this reporter.

On that October night over a year ago, I saw another man, drunk to the point he could hardly stand, reach into the pocket of his jacket. His hand did not emerge covered with the slime of a broken egg, but with a gun. If he had been sober enough to aim it, he might have fired the gun, but in his state, the simple fact that he had the gun, and the power to kill if he chose, seemed enough to satitate his distraught psyche.

Psychologists have written volumes on the effects of social change upon the mind of man. They speak of disorganization, subsequent unbalance, and the guaranteed anonmity found in a mob.

There is one fact which stands out whenever you see this type of violence done. The people participating appear as if they do not know what they are doing. They react aknost identically, like a herd of sheep being pursued and corralled by a sheep dog. This mob never has a leader, but a collective pool of frustration.

The mob at Oxford, Mississippi, in a sense, was no different than the mob at the Newport Jazz Festival riots. They rushed, retreated, dodged and pushed, never separating, like a mass of gellatinous protoplasm.

Every once in a while, the mob is jolted from its anomnity into the rude realities of what is happening. Invariably, when this happens the press is found to be a scapegoat. What compells the mobs to retalliate against the press is hard to understand.

Is it a feeling that because the press is not related to the local problem they have no business being there?

How does the press explain to an attacking mob the obligation it has to inform?

How does the press explain to an attacking mob it has a responsiblity to inform?

Who knows?

1964 — The Carolina Symposium — 1964

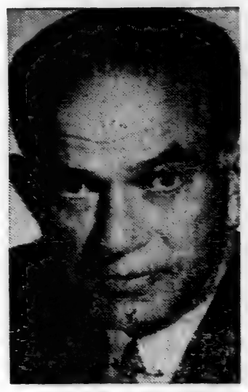
Hans Morganthau

David Brinkley

George McGovern



James William Fulbright

Frank Porter Graham

George W. Ball

Douglas Maitland Knight

John Sherman Cooper

"ARMS AND THE MAN"

Carolina Symposium

—1964—

Irving Howe

The young Irving Howe was greatly influenced by the effects of the depression in New York City. The economic pressures that were levied on his immigrant family turned this adolescent away from the routine of ordinary childhood into the world of books. From there he developed an interest in politics and social theory that led him to a distinguished career as social historian and literary critic. Currently professor of English at Hunter College, Irving Howe has published "Politics and the Novel," "William Faulkner, A Critical Study," "The Basic Writings of Trotsky," "A World More Attractive." Mr. Howe has taught at Brandeis, Stanford, Indiana, Washington, and Wayne State Universities. He is also the recipient of prizes from the National Institute of Arts and Letters, and the Longview Foundation.

Frank Thompson, Jr.

A legislator who has demonstrated a strong interest in humanity, he has represented New Jersey's Fourth District in the House of Representatives since 1954. He is a native of Trenton, New Jersey, and an alumnus of Wake Forest College, where he also received his law degree. In the House of Representatives he has been active in the work of the Committee on Education and Labor, working to promote such measures as impacted area legislation and the National Defense Education Act. He also has served on the House Administration Committee and as chairman of the National Voters Registration Committee. He introduced legislation authorizing the building of the National Cultural Center in Washington and has worked to modernize immigration laws.

Emile Benoit

A man who is deeply concerned with the possibilities of disarmament and its ensuent (economic) consequences, Emile Benoit is the author of several definitive books in this field. Currently Professor at Columbia University on the faculties of the graduate schools of business and International relations, he has served in several government agencies. He was educated at Harvard and was later Senior Economist in the U.S. Labor Department, Attache in the U.S. Embassies in London and Vienna, and economist for the McGraw Hill publishing company. In recent years he has been directing a research program on the economic aspects of disarmament and arms control. He is author of "Europe at Sixes and Sevens" (1961) "Disarmament: Its Politics and Economics" (1962) and a great many articles in economics, government and the social sciences.

Paul Gross

"A man of stellar accomplishments . . . whose poised calm manner belies the energy and ability that have won him international renown . . ." wrote the Raleigh News and Observer when Dr. Gross became President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Shortly afterwards he won the Army's top award, the Distinguished Civilian's Service Medal. He graduated from the College of New York and received his Master's and Doctor's degrees in Chemistry from Columbia University. He did graduate work at the University of Leipzig. He has been with Duke University for over forty years serving as professor, dean of the graduate school of Arts and Sciences, dean of the University, and Vice-President of the University, Division of Education. He has worked with the Army's missile programs, is president of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, and was a science advisor for the United States in the UNESCO conference in 1949. He has received countless awards for his work in chemistry.

Harold Orlans

In an age which keynotes research with progress, Harold Orlans has evaluated many national trends in the sociological fields. An anthropologist who graduated from the City College of New York, he went to work as a reporter for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, and was a fellow of the Social Science Research Council before continuing his education at Yale for a Ph.D. He then won a Fulbright Scholarship in Economics. For several years he lectured and did research for several organizations. Since 1954 he has worked for the government as a Science Progress Analyst, Chief of the Non-profit Institutions section, Chief of the Foreign Science Section, a member of the National Science Foundation, and Director of Studies in the 1960 White House Conference on Children and Youth. He is presently part of the Senior Staff at the Brookings Institution studying the effects of federal programs on higher education.

Richard Adler

His music has "the spirit and brass you'd expect to find at a ball game," said Lewis Funke in the New York Times about Adler's score for "Damn Yankees." This lyricist, composer, and producer although from New York City graduated from UNC in 1943, a member of the Golden Fleece. "Rags and Riches" was the song that put him in the big time. In less than a year he composed for two hit shows, "Pajama Game," "Damn Yankees," and later "Kwamina." He produced "On Whitman Avenue" and "The Sin of Pat Muldoon," and has done two television shows. He has received three Antoinette Perry Awards, a Critics Award, a Donaldson Award, an Evening Standard Award, and a Colgate Outstanding Award. He is presently doing the music for "Roman Holiday" and "Tony and the Wonderful Door."

He will speak with Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D-N. J.) on Wednesday afternoon, April 8, at 4 p.m. on "Government and the Arts: Washington's Cold War Patronage."

James William Fulbright

Associated with the Fulbright resolution of 1943 which precipitated the organization of the United Nations, and the Fulbright Act of 1946 which established a program for American scholars to study abroad and foreign students to attend American universities, Senator Fulbright is also noted for his active opposition to the McCarthy "red scare" purges. He is a native of Mississippi, but attended the University of Arkansas and achieved Phi Beta Kappa. He received a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford where he received honors in history and political science, graduating with a B.A. and M.A. Also a graduate of the George Washington Law School, with distinction, he was admitted to the bar in 1934 whereupon he became an attorney for the Department of Justice. He taught law at George Washington, and taught at the University of Arkansas and served as president of that institution from 1939 to 1941.

Fulbright was a member of the House of Representatives from Arkansas in 1942, and became a senator in 1944. His committee memberships have been Banking and Currency and Senate Foreign Relations. He was re-elected to the Senate in 1950, 1956, and 1962. Later in 1962 he was appointed a member of the U.S. Delegation to the U.N. General Assembly.

George W. Ball

Appointed to uphold the office of Under Secretary of State on February 1, 1961, George W. Ball took the position formerly held by Douglas Dillon. He was born in Des Moines, Iowa and later attended Northwestern University receiving his A.B. degree in 1930 and the J.D. degree in 1933. From 1933 to 1935, Ball served in the office of the General Counsel in the Treasury Department in Washington and from 1935 to 1942 practiced law in Chicago. He returned to Washington in 1942 to be Associated General Counsel of the Lend-Lease Administration, a position he held until 1944. In 1944-45 he was Director of the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, based in London. Since 1946, Ball has been a member of the law firm of Clarey, Gottlieb, Steen and Ball, with offices in New York, Washington, Paris, and Brussels. Ball is a specialist in international law.

David Brinkley

Forerunner of a new school of television commentators, David Brinkley teamed up with Chet Huntley to provide objective but enlightening news commentary. Mr. Brinkley is from Wilmington, N. C., where he worked for the Wilmington Star-News. After a short time at UNC as a visiting student, he later attended Vanderbilt University. He spent two years with the Army at Fort Jackson, S. C. and was discharged a sergeant. In 1942 he wrote for the United Press in Atlanta, Georgia, and other southern cities. The next year Mr. Brinkley got a job in Washington, D. C., with the National Broadcasting Co. as a newswriter. As television grew in importance so did his role. Holding a key position as a newscaster in the 1954-56 Congressional Elections he increased his national prominence. NBC teamed up Huntley-Brinkley in 1956. Ratings soared and since they have covered every important news event of the day. Together they have won the TV Emmy awards. David Brinkley has won the Alfred I. du Pont Commentator's Award, the Peabody Award, the Sylvania Award, and the School Bell Award for Educational Broadcasts. The New York Times writes . . . "Mr. Brinkley's extraordinary accomplishment has been not to talk too much. He has the knack for the succinct phrase that sums up the situation."

Hans Morganthau

One of the first to impart a discipline on political science as a power movement, this economist is recognized for his many contributions toward the formation of post-war diplomacy. He was born in Coburg, Germany in 1904 and spent four undergraduate years at the University of Berlin. Later he received degrees of Summa Cum Laude from the University of Munich (1927) and University of Frankfort (1929). Varied occupations followed, including an appointment to the law faculty at the University of Frankfort (1931), the presidency of the Labor Law Court of Frankfort (1931-33), instructorship at the University of Geneva (1932-35), and professorship at the Institute for International and Economic Studies, Madrid.

In 1937, he left Hitler's Germany and came to the United States, where he was naturalized in 1943. Since then he has taught at Brooklyn College, the University of Kansas City in Missouri, the University of Chicago, University of California at Berkeley, Harvard, Northwestern, the University of Wyoming, Columbia, Yale, and Princeton. Admitted to the Missouri Bar in 1943, he has been a director for the Center for Study of American, Foreign, and Military Policy. A lecturer for every branch of the service, he became a consultant for the Departments of Defense and State. His latest book is "Politics in the Twentieth Century."

John Sherman Cooper

Aware that the nobility of man depends on the truth and justice of theoretical and practical law, this jurist, ambassador, senator, and delegate has rendered distinguished service. He holds degrees from Centre College, Yale University, Harvard Law School, and several honorary degrees. A veteran of WWII serving as Second Lieutenant in the European Campaigns, he received the Bronze Star. He then headed the reorganization of the German Judicial System in Bavaria and was discharged as Captain. At home in Kentucky, he was a member of the Legislature, a county, and a circuit judge. As a Republican he was elected senator, and belonged to the Agriculture and Forestry, Public Works, and Rules Committee. He was a delegate to the UN, NATO, and UNESCO; and advisor to Secretary of State Dean Acheson; and an ambassador to India and Nepal. (Senator Cooper is a member of the Gardner, Morrison and Rogers Law Firm in Washington.)

George McGovern

A mixture of scholar, politician, and hero, he exudes confidence and energy. Born and educated in South Dakota he received his B.A. degree from Dakota Wesleyan University where he later taught history. e received his M.A. and Ph.D. in history and government from Northwestern University. McGovern flew thirty-five combat missions as a B-24 bomber pilot in World War II, receiving the Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters. In 1956 he was elected to the house and re-elected in 1958, serving on the Education and Labor, and Agriculture Committees. He was a delegate to the NATO Parliamentarians Conference in 1958 and 1959. Named Director for Food for Peace and Special Assistant to President Kennedy, he was elected to the Senate in 1962. This was the first Democratic Senatorial victory in South Dakota since 1936.

Frank Porter Graham

Hailed as a champion of the rights and dignity of the individual, however insignificant or unpopular, this mediator, educator and advisor has led three careers. He received his B.A. at UNC and also studied law here. From 1917 to 1919 he was in the Marine Corps. He later attended Columbia and was licensed to practice law by the Supreme Court. He holds the title of Doctor by virtue of thirteen honorary degrees. Elected President of UNC in 1930-49, Dean Graham consolidated the system. During WWII he was a member of several advisory committees including the National War Labor Board where he provided successful fighting for a fixed wage. After the war he was a representative in the Dutch-Indonesian dispute. In 1949 he became a senator from North Carolina, and in 1951 an administrator in the Labor Department. At present he is the United Nations representative for India and Pakistan.

Douglas Maitland Knight

An outstanding educator—both active and young—and the President of Duke University, he is thought by many leaders to be among the most promising men in his field. An alumnus of Yale University where he received his Ph.D. in 1946, he lists honorary doctorates from Ripon, Knox, St. Norbert, and Davidson. He was one of three U.S. delegates to the SEATO Conference of Asian University Presidents and is a director of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and serves on the Board of Trustees of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation. He also represents the Association of American Colleges on the National Commission on Accrediting. A member of the Nominating Committee of the Phi Beta Kappa Council, his publications include "Alexander Pope and the Heroic Tradition," "The Federal Government and Higher Education," and "Religious Implications in the Humanities."

Marya Mannes

Convinced that Americans must question their basic doctrines with "an open mind and an open heart" and that "a political system wholly repugnant to us [can] yet evolve social techniques that are in themselves valuable," she has communicated her thoughts to thousands through her speeches, writings, and television appearances. She was educated in New York's Veltin School and holds an honorary doctorate from Hood College. A former staff member of The Reporter, she was the recipient of the George Polk Memorial Award for radio and television magazine reporting in 1958. She has made frequent appearances on network television on such programs as "Tonight" and "Meet the Press" and in 1959 on her own program "I Speak for Myself." She is the author of "Message from A Stranger," "The New York I Know," "Subverse," "More in Anger," and numerous magazine articles.

Adam Yarmolinsky

A lawyer and consultant to a number of foundations, Adam Yarmolinsky is now serving as the Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense. He was born in New York City in 1922 and received his A.B. degree from Harvard in 1943. Following service in the Army Air Force Yarmolinsky received his LL.B. from Yale Law School in 1948. He was in law practice with several legal firms until his appointment as Director of the Fund for the Republic in 1955. He later served as Public Affairs Editor for Doubleday and Company, and worked with various philanthropic foundations until he was called to the Department of Defense in 1961. Yarmolinsky is the author of several articles and has lectured at both the Yale and American University Law Schools.

He will speak Thursday afternoon, April 9, at 4 p.m. with Senator George McGovern in Memorial Hall.

William Sprague Barnes

Founder of Harvard's International program in taxation, this educator has served as Assistant Dean of the Harvard Law School since 1955. After graduating from Yale in 1940, Dean Barnes was a Captain in the Air Force and a fighter pilot in North Africa. He flew 66 missions before being shot down and captured. As a prisoner of war, he became known as the "Dean of Stalagluft III" and it was in this camp that he completed his first year of Law School. In 1947 he received his LL.B. from Harvard and was awarded the degree of Docteur en Droit from the University of Geneva in 1957. An Economist and noted authority on Latin American Affairs, William Barnes has served as advisor to many South American countries in the establishment of their tax programs. He is a member of the Massachusetts Bar and the Inter-American Bar Association.

Otto Eckstein

An authority in public finance, he has served as economic consultant to numerous government and corporative agencies including: the U.S. Treasury, The President's Council of Economic Advisers, Resources for the Future, Inc., the Rand Corporation, and the Committee for Economic Development. Otto Eckstein was born in Germany and came to the United States in 1939. He graduated Summa Cum Laude from Princeton in 1951, and received his Ph.D. from Harvard in 1955, the year he joined the Harvard faculty. He is currently professor of Economics and Editor of the "Review of Economics and Statistics" and of "Foundations of Modern Economics" series published by Prentice-Hall Company. In addition to articles in various learned journals, he has published several book-length studies. In 1960 he received a Guggenheim Fellowship for special studies in Europe.

John Knowles

As a young writer who has traveled extensively in the Mediterranean and Near Eastern countries during the past three years, this writer is strongly aware of the American image and its effects abroad. His perception is revealed in his latest book, "Double Vision" which will be published in June. It deals with observations of America as seen through the author's experiences in Greece, Lebanon and Jordan. Currently teaching as the writer in residence at North Carolina, John Knowles has added a strong dimension to the literary interests in Chapel Hill. A graduate of Exeter and Yale, he has written "A Separate Peace" (which won the William Faulkner First Winner Award) and "Morning in Antibes." "Excellent . . . remarkable not only for the virtues it possesses but the faults it lacks . . . brilliant," commented "Time."

William Coles

Controversial to an unusual degree in his academic interpretation of education, this professor's fields of interest are nineteenth-century and modern literature, aesthetic theory and architecture. He received his A.B., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard. He has taught at Harvard, the University of Virginia, and the University of North Carolina, and is now an assistant professor of English at the University of Michigan. Having written articles primarily bearing on Romantic literature in various scholarly publications, he is co-editor of "Architecture in America: A Battle of Styles." Currently he is finishing "Architecture and Society: The Essays of Henry Van Brunt" and editing the correspondence of Mary Russel Mitford and Thomas Noon Talford. Privately a classicist in architectural taste, he is a Democrat in politics.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

Alpha Phi Omega is sponsoring a Hootenanny; individuals or groups from the University may enter; contact Jimmy Harris (308 Everett, 968-9028) or Dallas Lane (942-4789) today. Prizes will be awarded.

Hillel Brunch—12:30 p.m., Hillel House, proceeds go to United Jewish Student Appeal.

"College Bowl" Program — 3 p.m., Hillel House, interfraternity competition; subject is "General Knowledge."

Hillel Foundation—4 p.m., Hillel House, interviews for Hillel offices.

Canterbury — 6 p.m., Chapel of the Cross, supper followed by flick "Hand in Hand."

UP Executive Comm.—7:30 p.m., Davie Hall.

Sunday Cinema — Panther Panchali.

SPU — 1 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

Westminster Fellowship — 2 and 4:30 p.m., cars leaving Presbyterian Student Center for meeting at State College.

Senior Recital — 4 p.m., Hill Hall, Martha Giggs.

Wesley Foundation — open house after Symposium presentation, Wesley House, 214 Pittsboro St.

Carolina Symposium — 8 p.m., Memorial Hall, Senator William Fulbright, "Individual Freedom and Collective Security: A Balancing of Objectives."

MOVIES

Varsity—Stranger Knocks

Carolina — Kissing Cousins

MONDAY

Duke-UNC Theoretical Physics Seminar — 4 p.m., Phillips, Dr. Bui Duy Quang, "Neutrino Disintegration of the Deuteron," tea in 278 at 3:30.

UNC Press Club—7 p.m., Howell Hall, F. Bryan Williams will speak on public relations.

Orientation Counselor Interviews —2-6 p.m., today thru Tues., for men in RP II & III, and for women in the TV lounge of GM.

Fine Arts Festival Comm. — 4:30 p.m., RP II.

TUESDAY

Elections Board Meeting — 3 p. m., Grail, compulsory for all members.

Slimnastics Club — 3:45 p.m., Woman's Dance Studio.

Hillel — 7 p.m., Hillel House, interviews for offices.

Square Dancing Club — 7:30 p. m., Women's Gym.

WEDNESDAY

Editor's Roundtable — 3-4 p.m., discussion on the bylaws and permanent status for Roundtable.

Basketball Club — 4 p.m., Women's Gym.

Stray Greeks — 6 p.m., Lenoir.

Wesley Foundation — 6:45 p.m., Wesley House, Communion.

Badminton Club — 7 p.m., Women's Gym.

— Carpet —

(Continued from Page 1)

luncheon, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Matthews will honor Adam Yarmolinsky at a luncheon.

On Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights small dinners will be held at the Carolina Inn honoring the speakers of those days. On Wednesday night the members of the afternoon panels and evening panel will be given a dinner at the Villa Tempesta.

Following each evening address an informal reception will be held for the speakers at Graham Memorial to which the public is invited.

Members of the Social and Hospitality Committee will be at the Carolina Inn to meet each speaker as he arrives. Also a student has been assigned to escort each speaker during his stay in Chapel Hill. The student will accompany the speaker over campus as he attends classroom meetings, intercollegiate seminars, and informal coffees.

The 1964 Carolina Symposium Committee Chairmen

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Committee Members Have Worked Hard

(Continued from Page 1)

reads the Daily Tar Heel. Harry DeLung and Virginia Carnes, co chairmen of the Publicity Committee have led an active committee in showering the campus with a barrage of articles about speakers and the work of the committees, much to the dismay of the DTH staff.

They have also gained good publicity for the Symposium in state newspapers and have arranged for the televising of almost all Symposium presentations over WUNC-TV. This year Symposium will have the widest coverage in its history.

No doubt the most "striking" thing concerning the Symposium apparent to most students is the 50-foot missile in Y-Court. This is the result of the inventive imagination of Mike Bissell, chairman of the Exhibits Committee. His committee has also arranged exhibits in the library, in store windows and at other places across campus.

"Pert" Patti Perrin is chairman of the Handbook Committee that has produced the program that will be given out at all presentations. They will also publish a book containing all the addresses delivered at the Symposium for all who are interested in having a permanent copy of the event.

The committee chairman most in a dither at the moment is Maida Burch, chairman of the Social and Hospitality Committee. Maida's committee will be in charge of knowing when, where and how the speakers will spend their time when they are here.

Many students will be able to meet some of the distinguished visitors to our campus when they come to speak to various classes. Emily Klyce is chairman of the Classroom Discussions Committee.

Hob Brown has been in charge of public relations for the Symposium, and Archie Davis has been in charge of physical arrangements.

We have not mentioned the cast of thousands that have gone into making the Symposium a successful production. A special boquet goes to the secretaries who did all the real work. These were under the direction of Bev Haynes and Diana Foote.

As the time for the Symposium draws near, it appears certain that this will be the best ever. The staff can only hope that the Symposium will be as exciting and stimulating for the campus as it has been for them.

— UP Platform —

(Continued from Page 2)

organizations (MRC, IFC, Pan Hell, YMCA, YWCA) to facilitate communications and cooperation programs among these groups.

B. A re-organized Student Athletic Council to promote a student voice in athletic policy and a more meaningful relationship between the student body and athletic teams through caravans to out-of-town games, an improved status for minor sports, and better organized support of athletic events.

C. The hiring of a full-time Executive Secretary for Student Government.

D. The appointment of a Student Government Press Secretary to coordinate the communications of Student Government to the student body and campus news media.

SUMMER JOBS

for STUDENTS

NEW S'64 directory lists 20,000 summer job openings in 50 states. MALE or FEMALE. Unprecedented research for students includes exact pay rates and job details. Names employers and their address for hiring in industry, summer camps, national parks, etc., etc., etc. Hurry!! jobs filled early. Send two dollars. Satisfaction guaranteed. Send to: Summer Jobs Directory—P. O. Box 13593—Phoenix, Arizona.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Out-of-date
6. A Catholic service
10. Longed for: colloq.
11. Spoken
12. A certain walk
13. Egg-shaped
14. Willingly
15. Dried grape
16. Exclamation
17. A snow ——
19. Public notice
20. Kill
21. Consumed
22. Raise
24. Capital: Del.
26. Regret
27. Terrible
28. Jewish month
29. Pulverize
31. Greek letter
33. Velvet
35. Send forth, as rays
37. Choice group
38. Non-working bee
39. Vent
40. Reigning beauty
41. Browns in the sun
42. Fastened

DOWN

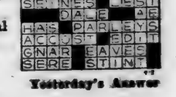
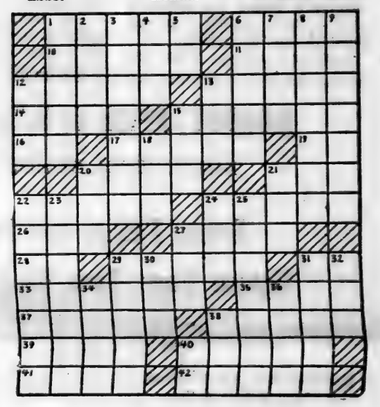
1. Inner courtyard
2. Land measure
3. Mix, as cards
4. Arrange
5. Man's nickname
6. A cinema
7. Macaws: Braz.
8. Glut
9. Slim
12. Foxy
13. Hardwood
15. Beam
18. Youth
20. Observe
21. Broad thorofare: abbr.
22. Most courageous
23. German measles
24. Clamor
25. Methodical
27. Owing
29. Hits (the ball) on the green: golf
30. Metallic rock
31. Excavated, as coal
32. Shoshonean Indian
34. King of beasts
36. Burrowing animal
38. English river
40. Book: abbr.



Yesterday's Answer



YOU CAN GET ANY KIND OF

GREETING CARD

IN THE WORLD AT LEDBETTER-PICKARDS . . .

1. BIRTHDAYS
2. WEDDINGS
3. NEW ARRIVALS
4. GET WELL
5. ANNIVERSARY
6. AND OTHERS

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

What Could be More Complete?

Varsity NOW PLAYING

THE MOST MOVING LOVE STORY EVER FILMED

"I'll make my own position clear. I think the film should be shown: patrons of art cinemas are, in the main, perceptive adults."

ALPERT, Saturday Review

A STRANGER KNOCKS

"One of the best films made in Denmark in recent years."

Time Magazine

Winner of 5 Danish Film Festival Awards
Best Dramatic Film of the Year
Best Female Performer • Best Male Performer

CHARMACK
New York 9, N. Y.
The Magician
P. O. Box 118

THE LIBRARY OF A STUDENT OF

AMERICAN HISTORY

A lively collection, centered on the American Revolution, but including material up to the Civil War. Serious students of history will find treasure here.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St.
Open 'til 10 P. M.

JOBS ABROAD

STUDENTS & TEACHERS

Largest NEW directory. Lists hundreds of permanent career opportunities in Europe, South America, Africa and the Pacific, for MALE or FEMALE. Totals 50 countries. Gives specific addresses and names prospective U. S. employers with foreign subsidies. Exceptionally high pay, free travel, etc. In addition, enclosed vital guide and procedures necessary to foreign employment. Satisfaction guaranteed. Send two dollars to Jobs Abroad Directory P. O. Box 13593—Phoenix, Arizona.

ELVIS AND HIS CAROLINA (Hillbilly) kinfolk are swinging into Chapel Hill from the BLUE RIDGE MOUNTAINS with a wagonload of joy, songs 'n fun!

ELVIS PRESLEY and the Kittyhawks, the most beautiful collection of mountain cuties ever!

THE OLD NORTH STATE NEVER HAD SUCH FUN!

KISSIN' COUSINS

SUN. - MON. - TUES.

Carolina

FILMED IN "MOUNTAIN DEW COLOR"
Shows at: 1:15 - 3:10 - 5:05 - 7:00 - 8:55

POGO

PEANUTS

CLASSIFIED ADS

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT — COLlege men earn $145.00 per week, minimum guarantee of $1,000.00 for summer. Requirement of 10 presentations weekly for 12 weeks. Plus $200-750 cash scholarships based on sales achievement. For 10 min. introductory interview come to 110 Gardner Hall, 11:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. April 6 and 7th.

Rentals

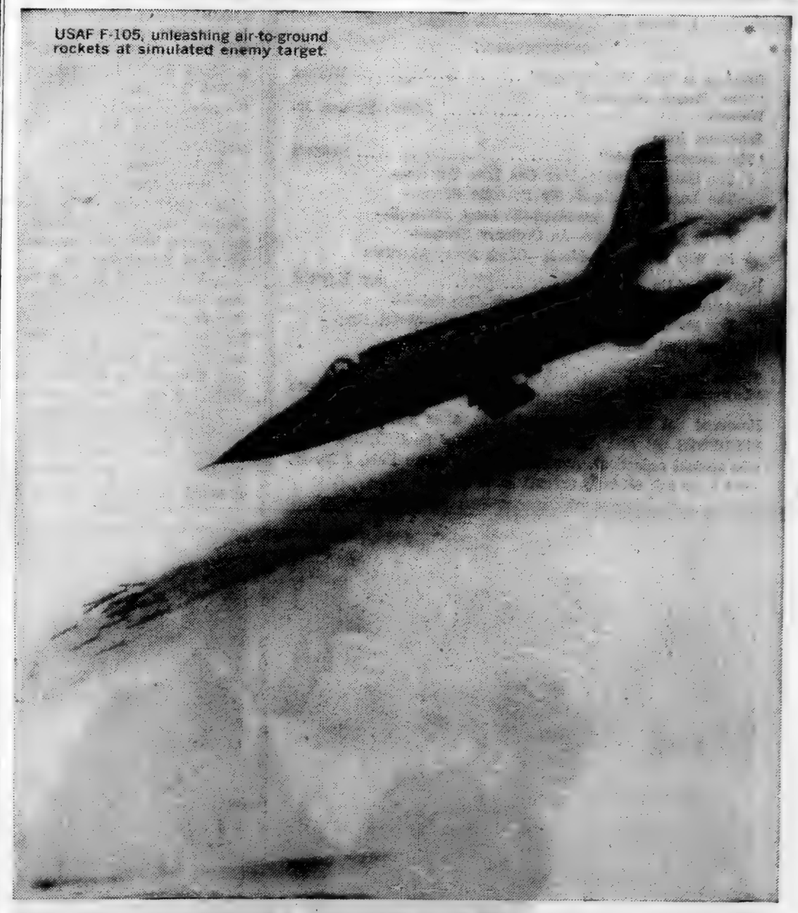
FOR RENT: FOUR 2-BEDROOM apartments, all new, electric heat, washer connections, large closets, tile floors, water furnished, stove and refrigerator if desired. Located 2 miles south of Memorial Hospital on the Old Lystra Road. For further information contact Philip Sparrow at 929-1521, Chapel Hill.



USAF F-105, unleashing air-to-ground rockets at simulated enemy target.

School's Out.

Right now, graduation seems way off in the wild blue yonder. But it's not too early to start planning. In the future, you'll look back on decisions you make today with satisfaction... or regret.

What can an Air Force career mean to you in tangible gain? The opportunity to take on executive responsibilities you might otherwise wait years to attain. And a head-start into one of a wide range of possible careers in the exciting Aerospace Age.

As an Air Force officer, for example, you may be flying a supersonic jet...helping to keep America's guard up. Or you may be in an Air Force laboratory, working to solve an intricate scientific or technological problem.

Doing jobs like these, you can hold your head high. In addition to being essential to your country, they're the beginnings of a profession of dignity and purpose.

For more information, see the Professor of Air Science.

If there is no AFROTC unit on your campus, contact your nearest Air Force recruiter.

U.S. Air Force

Ken Willard Explodes — 2 Homers, 7 RBI's

Hanburger And Tuthill Co-Captains

Center Chris Hanburger and halfback Ron Tuthill have been elected co-captains of the 1964 UNC football team.

Hanburger, a 6-0, 197 pound converted end from Hampton, Va., was given much of the credit for last year's fine team when he moved to center to fill the gap created by the graduation of Joe Craver and Bob Zaback.

Tuthill, a 5-10, 177 pounder, from Rockingham, N. C., is married and the father of two children. He was a starting halfback his sophomore year, but was relegated to second string duty last year when Ken Willard was shifted to halfback. Ron didn't let his substitute status bother him, however, and his inspired play on defense and offense was a major factor on the Gator Bowl team.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Willard Crosses Plate After Grand Slam

Cornell Falls, 12-4; Dannemann Wins

By JOHN MONTAGUE

"How would you like to be King For a Day?"

This was the comment of a tickled Ken Willard, who enjoyed one of the best hitting days anyone has had at Emerson Stadium in years yesterday, as North Carolina bombarded Cornell, 12-3.

The big left fielder blasted two homers (the first a prodigious 430 foot grand-slam shot) over the left field fence and sandwiched a run-scoring single in between to account for seven of the Tar Heel runs as UNC thoroughly mauled the visitors from Ithaca, N. Y.

The win was the sixth of the season against three losses for Walt Rabb's club. All of the wins have come at home; all of the losses on the road.

Willard's grand-slammer came in the first inning after Dickie Prindle had walked, Jim Speight had doubled him to third and Bill Brown had walked to load the bases. Victim of the blast was Al Jerome, who was tagged with the loss, though every Cornell hurler was a "loser" on this cold, drizzly afternoon.

In the sixth inning, Willard knocked another one over the left field fence, this one coming off Al Reed and with Brown, who had reached on an error, on first. The big Virginian's other RBI came in the fourth when his single to left plated Brown, who had singled and gone to third on a wild pitch.

Bill Dannemann started on the mound for the Tar Heels and shut out the visitors through six shaky ininngs, before Jerry Davis came on in the seventh and was touched for three runs in the eighth.

Dannemann gave up only four hits during his stint, but had trouble with his control—walking seven batters. Davis seemed sharp in his two innings, but was a victim of two bloop singles and three UNC errors in the eighth.

The game was called after eight innings by agreement of both teams.

In addition to their four-run outburst in the first, the Tar Heels, who rapped out 13 hits, scored another quartet of runs in the sixth. After Willard's two-run homer, Bob Hundley singled sharply through the middle, and Dick Fleming's single to left scored courtesy runner Buddy Cohoon. Fleming himself scored moments later when Prindle lashed a liner to right center.

The Tar Heels picked up single runs in the third and seventh frames. In the third, it was Gary Black's single and Danneman's well-placed triple down the right field line which did the damage.

Speight, who had three hits including two doubles, led off the seventh with a walk, went to third on an attempted pick-off which back-fired into a two-base error, and came across on Hundley's second single of the afternoon.

North Carolina now will take a four-day rest before meeting Camp Lejeune here next Thursday.

| UNC | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Prindle, 2b | 3 | 1 | 1 | 1 |
| Kaufman, rf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| g-Boykn, rf | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Speight, ss | 4 | 3 | 3 | 0 |
| Brown, 1b | 3 | 3 | 1 | 1 |
| h-Reagan, 1b | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Willard, lf | 5 | 2 | 3 | 7 |
| Hundley, c | 4 | 0 | 2 | 1 |
| e-Cohoon | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Black, cf | 2 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| a-Taylor, cf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Fleming, 3b | 3 | 1 | 1 | 1 |
| Dannemann, p | 3 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| f-Hume | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Davis, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| TOTALS | 35 | 12 | 13 | 12 |

| CORNELL | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Stofer, 2b, ss | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Durishin, 1b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| D'Laurentis, ss | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| b-Baker, 2b | 3 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| Guise, c | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Troxell, lf | 5 | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| Belote, cf | 5 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Norman, 3b | 4 | 1 | 2 | 0 |
| Bradley, rf | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Jerome, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Tucker, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| c-Hobart | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| d-Piperato | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Reed, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| i-Dublanica | 1 | 1 | 1 | 1 |
| TOTALS | 34 | 3 | 8 | 2 |

a—ran for Hundley in 1st; for Dannemann in 3rd b—singled for DeLaurentis in 3rd
c—ran for Tucker in 4th
d—walked for Tucker in 6th
e—ran & scored for Hundley in 6th; ran for Hundley in 7th
f—walked for Dannemann in 6th
g—lined out for Kaufman in 6th
h—popped up for Brown in 7th
i—singled for Reed in 8th

CORNELL ..... 000 000 03— 3
UNC ..... 401 204 1x—12
(8 innings by agreement)

| Pitching | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Jerome | ⅓ | 2 | 4 | 4 | 3 | 0 |
| Tucker | 4⅔ | 6 | 3 | 3 | 3 | 2 |
| Reed | 2 | 5 | 5 | 4 | 2 | 0 |
| Dan'emann | 6 | 4 | 0 | 0 | 7 | 5 |
| Davis | 2 | 4 | 3 | 1 | 1 | 0 |

W—Dannemann
L—Jerome

Which Way UNC??

By LARRY TARLETON

Through the first eight games Coach Walt Rabb's Tar Heels have shown flashes of the greatness that was predicted for them at the beginning of the season.

Except for the disastrous Florida trip which saw them lose all three games, the Heels have looked like real contenders for the ACC championship. Wake Forest, their biggest challenger for the crown, has swept through ten straight games including two wins over powerful Florida State, who beat the Heels twice, 9-0 and 17-3. The Deacons beat the Tar Heels 6-4 in a practice game in Florida.

Pitching, a big question mark facing Coach Rabb at the beginning of the season, has been the team's strength so far. Rabb has two dependable starters in Bill Haywood and Spence Willard, but still is looking for more depth. Sophomores Beattie Leonard broke his hand in a practice game and McLaughlin has been hampered by wildness in his two starts, walking nine men in 3⅓ innings.

However, senior righthander Bobby Cox turned in an impressive performance Friday against St. Mary's and looks like a good third starter. Southpaw Jerry Davis has been unimpressive so far, but still ranks as the best lefthander on the staff. Junior Bill Dannemann will probably see a lot of action as a starter and reliever.

Third baseman Tom Wright pulled some ligaments in his knee during the Florida trip and will be out for an indefinite period. Junior Dick Fleming has taken over for him and while failing to hit for an average has delivered a two-run homer and a triple.

Sophomore Bob Kaufman, a Richie Ashburn-type hitter and a hustler from the Enos Slaughter school, has taken over the right field position and has shown a knack for getting on base.

The Heels' hitting hasn't been up to par so far. Shortstop Jim Speight has been the best of them, although he hasn't delivered the extra base hits as expected. Big Ken Willard and Bill Brown have been improving steadily although they too haven't provided the expected long-ball punch. Centerfielder Gary Black has been a disappointment so far, but his few hits have come in clutch situations. Catchers Merle Kruer, John Shaw and Bob Hundley have provided the Heels with the best hitting from this position that they have had in several seasons.

Northern Dancer Romps

HALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Northern Dancer, E. P. Taylor's Canadian comet, ran only as fast as needed Saturday to turn back seven rivals in the $116,500 Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park and clinch his claim to the eastern three-year-old championships.

With jockey Willie Shoemaker merely chauffering the chocolate colored colt, Northern Dancer rolled under the finish line one length in front of Rex Ellsworth's California invader. The scoundrel. Cecil Carmine's Dandy K. captured third money another two and one-half lengths behind.

Northern Dancer was the heavy favorite of the crowd of 30,212, second largest in Gulfstream Park's history. One unidentified bettor pushed $50,000 through the parimutuel machine in the show pool to win $5,800 for his risk.

The big wager created a minus show pool of $16,563.50, which the track had to make up.

Northern Dancer paid $2.60, $2.40 and $2.20 across the board for a $2 bet and was the shortest priced Florida Derby winner since Tim Tam paid $2.70 to win in 1958.

The Scoundrel paid $4 and $2.20 while Dandy K. returned $2.20 for show.

ON THE LEVEL with JOHN MONTAGUE

BASKETBALL REFUSES to die.

Its been a full two weeks now since UCLA wrapped up the NCAA Championship at Kansas City, but in New York City, 96 Olympic hopefuls are keeping the hardwood going. And at a pretty good pace.

North Carolina (the state, that is) is looking even better in the Olympic trials than it did in the NCAA Tourney, where the Duke Blue Devils carried the ACC banner all the way to the finals. No fewer than six players with North Carolina ties are participating in the try-out, which will determine the 12-man squad to represent the United States at Tokyo this summer.

Of the six, UNC three—Billy Cunningham, Larry Brown and Danny Lotz. The latter graduated from Med School here last June and went into the Army, where he found the brand of basketball a little tougher than that played in the Grad Division of the Intramurals League. But Lotz was well prepared for it. He was a reserve center on the 1957 National Championship team, and in 1959, his senior year, Lotz captained the Tar Heel team which was upset by Navy in the Eastern Regionals. He still had football eligibility left, and played one year as a sub end on Jim Hickey's first team here, in the fall of 1959.

You don't have to go back as far to remember Brown. The scrappy playmaker was captain of the 1963 Dean Smith crew, which went 15-6. This past year Brown played guard for the Akron (Ohio) Goodyear Wingfoots, and was voted the most valuable player in the AAU Tourney, held two weeks ago.

Mullins, Hetzel, Branson Join UNC Trio

YOU DON'T HAVE to go back at all to remember Cunningham. In fact, you might choose to look ahead—to next season, when the Tar Heels should have their strongest team in a long, long time, provided the sophs catch on quickly.

But that's next year. Up in St. John's University Gym, where the trials are being held, it's still this year. And joining the Tar Heel threesome are Jeff Mullins (Duke), Fred Hetzel (Davidson) and Jesse Branson (Elon).

At long-range, and judging from piece-meal reports, it seems that two of these six will make the squad. They would be Brown, whose playmaking ability is needed with all those shooters, and Mullins, who is one of the best of all those shooters. Cunningham and Hetzel both have an outside chance, especially for the reserve squad of six players.

Brown was at his best Friday night as he led the AAU Stars to a 101-94 win over the NCAA Whites, which included Cunningham (5 points) and Hetzel (14 points). Brown hit 12 for 12 from the line and four field goals for 20 points. Last night "Little Larry" and his AAU teammates met the NCAA Reds (Mullins, Bill Bradley, Dave Stallworth, Mel Counts, Jim Barnes, Wally Jones and Willie Murrell—to name a few) in the finals of the Olympic trials.

From those players already mentioned, along with Walt Hazzard, Barry Kramer, Lucious Jackson, Jerry Shipp, Pete McCaffery, Ron Bonham, Joe Caldwell, Cotton Nash and Manny Newsome, Coach Hank Iba (Oklahoma State) should be able to come up with quite a squad and produce a Gold Medal for the U. S.

Tar Babies Open Season Here Monday

The freshman baseball team opens its season tomorrow when they meet NC State's Wolflets at three o'clock at Emerson Stadium.

Coach Bill Lovingood, in his second season as frosh coach, is pleased with some of his pitching recruits, especially basketball star Tom Gauntlett, whom he considers a "real pro prospect."

The freshman tennis team, coached by last year's captain Keith Stoneman, travels to Raleigh Monday to meet State's frosh.

Shaffer Visits Italy As Guest Of Magazine

Charlie Shaffer, who is continually moving on the sports front, is on special leave and is visiting Italy. The UNC senior is serving as a counselor for some 80 newsboys who won a contest sponsored by Parade Magazine, a Sunday supplement.

"It's a wonderful opportunity," said Shaffer. "I'm one of about eight college athletes who were chosen. All expenses are paid for a 10-day visit to Italy. I'm really thrilled, but I will miss playing with the tennis team."

Shaffer, who was a basketball co-captain, rejoins his tennis mates in mid-April. Coach Skakle didn't deny him the European trip, although he knows Charlie's game will suffer.

Shaffer can make up his academic absences easier than he can hone his tennis game. He's a Phi Beta Kappa.

Cavaliers Paddle Tar Heel Stickers

Virginia, the No. 4 lacrosse team in the nation, breezed through Chapel Hill Friday and sent Carolina reeling, 18-4

Reaching its highest score in two years, the Cavalier squad picked up four goals in the first period and added five more in the second. Coach Connie Steele's Tar Heels netted single goals in the second and third and scored twice in the fourth period. Virginia broke loose for seven and two in the last two stanzas. The Heels are idle until they travel to Maryland April 20.

MONDAY, APRIL 6, 8:15 P.M.

DUKE INDOOR STADIUM

Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra

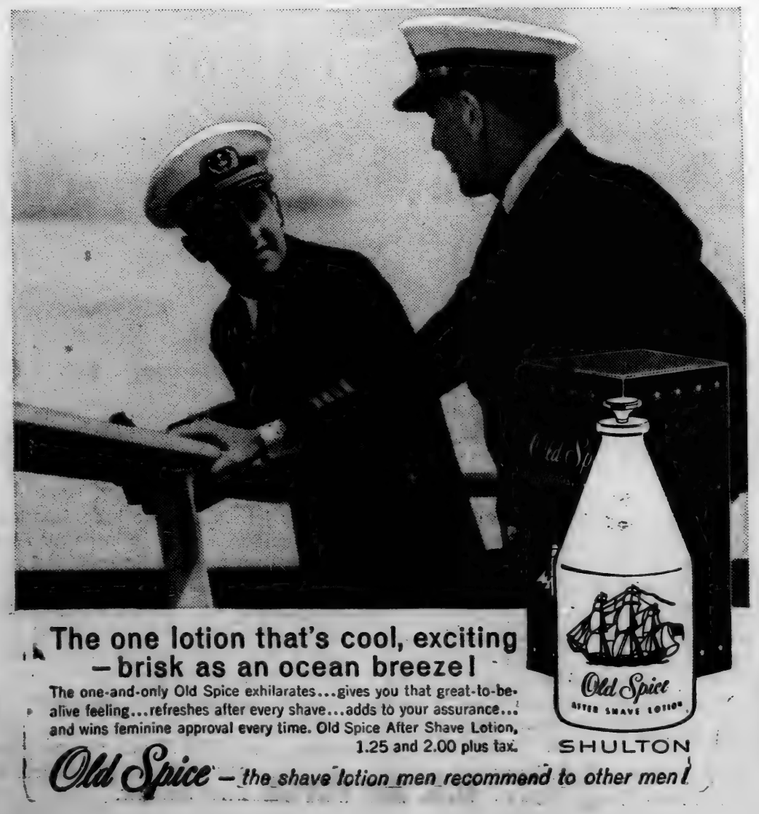
playing the kind of music most loved by American audiences

Introduction to Act III, from the "Swan Lake" Ballet ..... Tchaikovsky
Overture to "Semiramide" ..... Rossini
Piano Concerto No. 1 ..... Rachmaninoff
I. Vivace — II. Andante — III. Allegro vivace

INTERMISSION

Overture to "Die Meistersinger" ..... Wagner
"Wine, Women and Song" Waltzes ..... Johann Strauss, Jr.
Selections from "The Sounds of Music" ..... Rodgers
The Sound of Music—How Can Love Survive—
The Lonely Goatherd—My Favorite things—
Sixteen Going on Seventeen—So Long, Farewell—
Do-Re-Mi—Edelweiss—An Ordinary Couple—
No Way to Stop it—Maria—Climb Every Mountain
Pops Round-Up ..... arr. Hayman
Introduction—Bonanza—Maverick—The Rebel—
Bat Masterson—Gunsmoke—Wagon Train—Wyatt Earp—
Have Gun, Will Travel—Rawhide
Theme from "Lawrence of Arabia" ..... (b. Lyon) Jarre

Reserved Sat Tickets: $2.50 and $2.00. $1.00 REDUCTION TO STUDENTS OF ANY SCHOOL. Unreserved Seat Tickets: $1.50 (75c student reduction). Available 202-A Flowers Bldg. 8:30-5:00, April 6, or call 681-0111, ext. 211 same hours.



The one lotion that's cool, exciting —brisk as an ocean breeze!

The one-and-only Old Spice exhilarates...gives you that great-to-be-alive feeling...refreshes after every shave...adds to your assurance... and wins feminine approval every time. Old Spice After Shave Lotion, 1.25 and 2.00 plus tax.

Old Spice — the shave lotion men recommend to other men!

SHULTON

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.
featuring
Mexican Sausage Rare Roast Beef
4 Meats—7 Vegetables ..... $2.85
All You Can Eat—It's a Cowboy's Treat
Recommended by Duncan Hines and Gourmet
RANCH HOUSE

At Sharyn Lynn

MADRAS BERMUDAS
Sizes 7 to 15
6.98
Other BERMUDAS & JAMAICAS
in Solids & Patterns from 3.98
SHARYN LYNN

For that important date wear FARAH® Slacks

Expensive-looking Polycryl SLACKS cost only
$6.98 for Ivy Thins
$7.98 for Ivys

All-new Dressier Washable

Ask for Polycryl slacks by FARAH
FARAH MANUFACTURING CO., INC. EL PASO, TEXAS

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel [illegible]

Scorecard will be done on a day-to-day basis from now on, so if won't take up too much space in your pocket when you clip it for reference. If you get desperate, it's always there for an emergency, too, such as cut fingers, etc.

The Daily Tar Heel

131

The Weather

Partial clearing; warm with scattered showers likely.

Founded Feb. 23, 1893 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, APRIL 7, 1964 | United Press International Service

U. S. Not A Garrison State, Hans Morganthau Explains

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Hans Morganthau

By JOHN GREENBACKER

"I have the dubious distinction of speaking about a garrison state which I do not believe exists," Hans Morganthau said last night in Memorial Hall.

The distinguished professor of political science and modern history at the University of Chicago scored "a mistrust of the military in our midst.

"We have seen a revival of the myth of the all-powerful military," he said. "It is understandable that some people look for a scapegoat in our times.

"You find within the corridors of the Pentagon people of all opinions, the same as those of America at large," he said.

Morganthau said he believed the people of the United States were "in the surpression of growing governmental power."

"Popular revolution," he said, "against a modern government has become impossible."

He cited numerous instances in history in which the people of the world's nations have been able to stage revolutions in order to change governmental policy.

"The American Civil War was the result of a large segment of the people disagreeing with the policies of the government.

"If a government has the loyalty of the military it has no fear of the people," he said. "The coup d'etat has replaced the popular revolution."

Criticising popular apathy to the great issues of the times, Morganthau called for a reevaluation of our government. "We must not look for a scapegoat & evaluate a complex situation with absolute modes of thought."

HOOTENANNY COMING UP

Alpha Phi Omega will sponsor a hootenanny for this year's Parents Day on May 3.

The hootenanny will be held on the lawn in front of Graham Memorial and will feature folk singing groups from the University. Residence halls will receive points for participating and additional points will be given for the first three winners.

Interested individuals or groups should contact Jim Harris (968-9028) or Dallas Lane (942-4789) by Saturday.

Orientation Needs 1964 Applicants

Today is the last scheduled interview day for next fall's orientation counselors. Approximately 250 men counselors are needed; to date some 150 applicants have been interviewed.

Chairman Perry McCarty stated: "We realize the premium on each student's time during this Symposium week. To streamline things we are set up to see four students at once. Those interested students should sign up for a time at the GM desk and report promptly. The entire procedure should involve no more than ten minutes.

"It is imperative that the counselor positions be filled so that the training sessions may be arranged and final plans issued. Should the quota not be filled, interviews will carry over for a single afternoon at some later date.

"We are certain that capable and qualified students with a genuine interest in helping next year's freshmen class meet the challenge of Carolina abound on the campus. We sure would like to see a host of the tomorrow," McCarty said.

Voit Gilmore Resigns; To Seek Senate

RALEIGH (UPI) — Voit Gilmore filed today as a state senatorial candidate and said he would resign immediately as director of the U. S. Travel Service.

Gilmore, from Southern Pines file to run in the 18th senatorial district. He issued a statement to President Johnson and Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges. He is a graduate of UNC.

Barnett, Johnson Are Denied Appeal

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — A sharply divided Supreme Court Monday denied former Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett and present Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr., the right to a jury trial in the government's criminal contempt case against them.

The 5 to 4 vote means that Barnett and Johnson will be tried by the judges of the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals on charges stemming from their vain efforts to block integration at the University of Mississippi in 1962. The majority opinion cautioned however that some justices feel the punishment must not be too severe if Barnett and Johnson are found guilty without benefit of a jury trial.

Neither Barnett nor Johnson had immediate comment on Monday's ruling. Barnett was governor and Johnson his lieutenant governor in the fall of 1962 when Negro James Meredith was enrolled at "Ole Miss" amid rioting and bloodshed. Johnson was inaugurated as governor last Jan. 21.

Justice Tom C. Clark, speaking for the five-man majority, cited a century-old landmark opinion from Mississippi itself as precedent for the right of judges to punish criminal contempt without action by a jury.

A paragraph from that opinion said: "The power to fine and imprison for contempt, from the earliest history of jurisprudence, has been regarded as a necessary incident and attribute of a court, without which it could no more exist than without a judge."

Symposium Scorecard

TUESDAY

William S. Barnes
Otto Eckstein ..... 2 p.m.
Carroll Hall
Douglas M. Knight
Frank P. Graham ..... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
David Brinkley ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

WEDNESDAY

Harold Orlans
Paul Gross ..... 2 p.m.
Garrard Hall
Rep. Frank Thompson
Richard Adler ..... 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
Irvng Howe
Marya Mannes
John Knowles
William Coles ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall

THURSDAY

Adam Yarmolinsky
Sen. George McGovern .. 4 p.m.
Memorial Hall
George W. Ball ..... 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall
Prof. Louis Leprince-Ringuet ..... 2 p.m.
Gerrard Hall

Brewer, Burch Paroled; Serve Six Of 18 Months

RALEIGH (UPI)—The State Paroles Board voted unanimously yesterday to release from prison gubernatorial candidate Kidd Brewer and former Highway Engineer Robert A. Burch.

The two were convicted in 1962 of conspiring to rig highway sign specifications to favor manufacturers represented by Brewer.

Prison officials said the two would probably be freed on parole later in the day. No specific parole time was handed down but the minimum is one year.

Brewer and Burch entered the 400-man minimum custody unit at Central Prison Nov. 20 1963, as grade A prisoners after being convicted on influence peddling. Burch had been charged with altering highway sign specifications to favor Brewer's clients. Both were sentenced to 18-month terms.

Board member N. F. Ransdell said today that it was the unanimous opinion of the board that Burch and Brewer should be released. He said the parole was based purely on the men's merits.

Gadzooks!

Lampshades Initiate 25 Before Dawn

The Order of the Old Lampshades alighted on 20 new worthless initiates and five honoraries in a wet pre-dawn tapping last night.

The Order selects coeds who have shown outstanding worthless characteristics, according to Head Bulb Ellen Solomon. Most members come from the Nurses Dorm.

New initiates are:

Nurses Dorm: Charlotte James, Sue Bennett, Pat St. John, Sally Shipman, Susy Roschy, Betsy Taylor, Muff Zink, Nancy Stokes, Kay White and Nancy Tillman.

Other dorms: Chots Egenes and Dee Dee Huntsberry, East Cobb; Ginger McDavid and Alice Nicholson, McIver; June Troy, Spencer; Betsy Bradford, Smith; and Sissy Trott, Whitehead.

Sororities: Roxanne Kalb, Alpha Gamma Delta; Allison Webb Carolyn Powers (honorary), Alpha amma Delta: Allison Webb honorary), Kappa Delta; Sandra-Kelly, Mary Hamrick (honorary) and Betty Liverman (honorary), Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Darrell Farrington, assistnt to the Dean of Women, was tapped as "most honorary."

KEYNOTE SPEECH

Fulbright Attacks Defense Policies

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Sen. William Fulbright

By JEFFREY DICK

Senator J. William Fulbright charged here Sunday night that America has become overconcerned with defense in the Cold War and is, as a result, wasting money which could be used to overcome poverty and other domestic problems.

Fulbright, Democrat from Arkansas and chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called for a "re-evaluation of defense spending" and "closer scrutiny of our enormous defense budgets" as he opened the 1964 Carolina Symposium.

The Senator, now in his fourth term, told a capacity audience at Memorial Hall that "we are allowing the Russians to determine the proportion of the budget made available to the military. Enormous defense budgets suffer from non-debate and little scrutiny. Public happiness has become a luxury to be put off to some distant day."

Fulbright charged that control of the military is not being exercised by the American people. "We are permitting the military establishment to run itself and tell us what it needs." The Senator cited as an example the passage last year of a $52 million appropriation to begin construction of a new manned bomber program.

"The appropriation was passed over the objection of Defense Secretary Robert MacNamara who protested the system would be obsolete before it became functional."

The presidential "War on Poverty" was described as "at least as important to the long range security of our country as a national defense establishment and a good deal more important than a voyage to the moon.

"We can no longer afford to defer problems of urban renewal and education until more tranquil times. There might not be a more tranquil time in this generation or in this century."

Fulbright cited unemployment and poverty as an extravagant waste of human resources. He called for a "great commitment of public effort and money" as a solution to the problems.

"The first thing needed to raise the quality of American life," he continued, "is to divert the efforts of the Cold War to within America itself. There must be a coming together of the minority that is striving for creativity and the vast majority that is content with mediocrity."

Earlier in the day, Fulbright held a press conference in which he was quizzed on his position on Cuba. In referring to his

(Continued on Page 3)

MacArthur Lies In NYC Chapel

NEW YORK (UPI)—The body of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the "old soldier" whose lifetime stretched from the time of bows and arrows to the era of atom bombs, lay in repose Monday in a simple GI coffin.

Monday, the 47th anniversary of the United States' entry into the First World War that earned MacArthur the reputation of being its "fightingest general," was set aside for his family and close friends.

The upper half of the coffin was open. A flag was draped over the lower end. The body was dressed in a tropical worsted uniform. A tie—something he spurned in life even for such formal occasions as the unconditional surrender of Japan—was knotted military-fashioned about his throat.

His only insignia was the five-star emblem which only a handful of American fighting men have ever worn.

Missing from his chest was the multitude of medals the general of the Army was awarded during his illustrious career.

K Praises LBJ, JFK In Speech

KAZINBARICIKA, Hungary (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khruschev said Monday that for the first time in the history of mankind the balance of forces favors socialism rather than capitalism.

In a wide-swinging speech that included several jibes at Communist Chinese leadership for an "absence of brains," Khrushchev praised President Johnson, the late President Kennedy and other American leaders he said were gifted with common sense.

Disarmament's Econ Problems Less Than Political—Benoit

By DENNIS SANDERS

"The economic problems of disarmament are less important than the political ones," author-economist Emile Benoit told a Carolina Symposium audience in Carroll Hall Monday.

"However," he added, "since fears of the short-term economic difficulties of disarming may significantly affect political attitudes toward disarmament, the topic cannot be ignored."

The former Senior Economist in the U. S. Labor Department and current professor at Columbia University spoke on "If Peace Breaks Out", noting the economic challenge of ending the arms race.

"The political problems of disarmament are still very great," Benoit said. "We are . . . beginning to take some small steps and tentative steps in the general direction of disarmament."

He cited the limited nuclear test ban, the hot line, and the U.S.-Soviet understanding not to develop orbiting nuclear weapons as breaking the ice.

Benoit, who in recent years has been directing a research program on the economic aspects of disarmament and arms control, pointed out that there is less and less reason for the U. S. to increase its already "fantastically large" stockpile of nuclear weapons.

"Even if we were to double or triple our forces," he emphasized, "our calculations show that the fatalities would still run into tens of millions."

Stressing that a full weapons freeze would presumably involve defense expenditure cuts of $15 billion or more, Benoit added that, "This could occur without reducing our present awesome military capabilities in the least."

Emile Benoit

"A freeze on strategic weapons and delivery systems," he continued, "would probably involve a cutback of upward of $5 billion. We are currently spending $4½ billion on this sector . . . ."

He added quickly that any weapons freeze would likely be accompanied by cuts in other areas. "Our nearly $7 billion of Research, Development, Testing and Evaluation and our $2.8 billion of expenditures by the Atomic Energy Commission would probably be hit," Benoit explained.

Converting to civilian products to help defense contractors would likely be useless, according to Benoit, ". . . if civilian markets are not expanding."

"Moreover, defense firms have had relatively poor success at diversifying into civilian industry, even when the products were as much alike as military and civilian aircraft, though they have been highly successful in changing over to new types of defense products.

"Defense industry . . . obtains

(Continued on Page 3)

Cooper Defends Civil Rights

Continuing with pleas for individual freedom, another Senator, this time a Republican, said yesterday that "free proposal of ideas, exchange and exposition of ideas represents the basic composition of freedom."

Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky addressed the Carolina Symposium yesterday in the second day of the bi-annual conference.

Cooper, who was an hour late in arriving for the Memorial Hall speech spoke on "Civil Rights and Individual Freedom."

The Senator gave several examples of the losses of individual freedom in the U. S., including wire tapping, "mail cover" and discrimination.

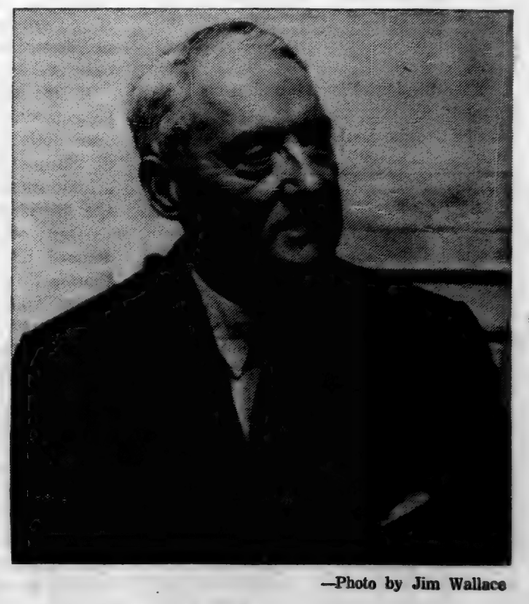
In citing these "infringements," Cooper said the Legislative and Executive branches of the Federal Government must bear some of the responsibility.

Concerning the national Civil Rights bill, the Senator said, "As a matter of law and justice the Constitutional rights are everybody's" and where they are being denied it should be corrected.

He said he thought the Civil Rights filibuster might continue on into the summer.

Following his address, Cooper answered questions from the floor. In direct reference to the N.C. Speaker Ban Statute, Cooper said "the free proposal of ideas, exchange and exposition of ideas represents the basic composition of freedom, and should not be curtailed."

Cooper was introduced by Mark Ethridge, publisher of "Newsday" and visiting lecturer at the UNC School of Journalism.



—Photo by Jim Wallace

Sen. John Sherman Cooper

Candidates Go At It In Raleigh

The major Democratic candidates for governor disagreed sharply Sunday on enforcement of a federal public accommodations act, state finances, the extent of poverty in North Carolina and the Communist speaker-ban law.

Clear lines of separation on these and other issues emerged in the first face-to-face confrontation among Richardson Preyer, I. Beverly Lake and Dan K. Moore.

They were on the platform for brief speeches and a lively question-and-answer session sponsored by a Presbyterian student group at the N. C. State Union Building. Nearly 900 persons attended.

All three candidates expressed strong opposition to a federal public accommodations measure now pending in Congress. It would bar operators of hotels, restaurants, theaters and the like from denying service to persons because of their race.

Preyer and Moore, however, promised to enforce it should it become law. Lake said he would not.

"I shall not, as governor of this state," he declared, "undertake to enforce any unconstitutional law of the federal government. It is not the responsibility of the governor of North Carolina to enforce federal laws."

Furthermore, Lake said, he would bring the state's legal power to bear on behalf of any proprietor of a public accommodations facility seeking to overturn the law.

Moore took the most optimistic view of the state's fiscal condition, saying that tax revenues during the next biennium would permit a 10 per cent boost in state workers' salaries.

He said such an increase would cost $25 million during the budget period, not the $40 million figure Sanford administration officials have quoted.

Moore also promised to work toward achievement of a $67 million program for the public schools advocated by United Forces for Education.

He did not comment on his call for $27 million in income tax relief.

Peyer took a wait and see attitude. "The question is whether it is responsible at this time," he said, "to promise these things when we don't know what the surplus will be."

Lake, quoting figures he said he received from State Treasurer Edwin Gill, warned that a deficit may face the 1965 Legislature.

When the three were questioned on poverty in North Carolina, especially in rural areas, and in their plans for coping with it, Lake declared:

"As I have traveled from the coast to the mountains, I have been looking for this poverty and I just can't find it. . . We've got a great state in North Carolina. We are not a poverty-ridden state."

Preyer called for an attack on poverty "up and down the line," but basically through edu-

(Continued on Page 3)

Volume 72, Number 131 Tuesday, April 7, 1964

The Daily Tar Heel

71 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 933-1012. Business, circulation, advertising—933-1163. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1879.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

A Madison Ave. Tale Of Two Faces

Madison Avenue has meant much to one gubernatorial aspirant, Dan K. Moore. It has lifted him from the position of a little-known attorney in the North Carolina mountains to a seemingly-qualified candidate for the state's highest office.

It has given him the image of a friendly old man who likes to talk with farmers about their cows and who likes to sit in the proverbial country store of North Carolina and talk about the small businessman as the "heart" of our nation's vast and complex economy.

This is what an admittedly-costly campaign has done for Dan K. Moore. But Madison Avenue, despite all its emphasis on "images," can do only so much.

Advertising men can only mold on a form that must already exist. To be effective the mold must be given clarity and consistency by the candidate himself.

At surface glance, Moore's image might be said to be one of clarity. But examination shows it has little—if any—consistency.

During the first joint appearance of the three major gubernatorial candidates this past weekend Moore was there to debate the issues. But hindsight shows his biggest debate was with himself.

Item: the minimum wage.

Earlier in the year, Moore answered a questionnaire for the State AFL-CIO. He told the union leadership he was in favor of raising the state's minimum wage from 85 cents an hour to $1 and further favored extending the wage to persons now exempted, such as farm laborers and domestic servants.

This past weekend, he was quoted as saying: "I don't favor increasing it at this time . . ." Then he added that the present exemptions in the law should be retained.

Item: the speaker-ban law.

Moore repeated his belief that amendments to the law were acceptable to him, if they related to permission for speakers on scientific subjects. Yet he continued to talk and contradict himself additionally.

"However, it's not really necessary," he said of amending the law. "I believe we have outstanding scientists ourselves . . ."

Dan Moore's appearance this past weekend raises serious doubts as to his qualifications for governor. Surely it is too much to ask that one agree with all of a candidate's stands on the many and varied topics in an election.

But is it asking too much that a candidate agree with his own previously-stated positions?

Dan K. Moore needs to talk more with himself than with the farmers and country-store visitors before he continues what is proving a farce of a campaign.

More Comment On The Medical Ethic

SALISBURY, N. C. (UPI) — The body of a 46-year-old Negro was found lying in a ditch today across the road from the Veterans Hospital where he had earlier sought treatment.

Hospital officials began searching Sunday night for the man, James Junior Deberry of Rockingham, who was found lying face-down in a ditch partially filled with water. An autopsy was planned later today to determine the cause of Deberry's death.

A Few Thoughts On Campus Campaigns

We have been watching the campus political campaign with an interest that can be described as somewhat less than fascination and somewhat more than boredom. Very little unexpected has happened. Some candidates are busy eating words they spoke in the past, while others are standing in back of their past statements.

The most noticeable example of this is in the President's race. Bob Spearman and Paul Dickson have both backed the student boycott and a public accommodations law in the past, and have both made public statements to that effect. Both still back the boycott, but Dixon has shifted some gears on the question of a public accommodations law.

At a Student Party meeting on February 19, Dickson said that after a good bit of thought he had come to the conclusion that a public accommodations law was necessary. We took this to mean that he favored the law since we have never run across a man who said he thought something was necessary but was against it. The fact that Dickson came to the conclusion that an accommodations law was necessary means that he obviously made a moral judgment about it first.

In Lewis Dormitory Sunday night, Dickson said he was opposed to the law when he was asked about it. He admitted that he had said the law might be necessary, but persisted that he was still against it. That just doesn't make sense. If you are against it you think it is unnecessary, and if you favor it, it can only be because you think it is needed.

If Dickson is truly against the public accommodations law, that is fine. We need articulate speakers on both sides of the question, and would only ask for a little consistency from a candidate for the presidency.

One other thing has somewhat amused us during this campaign ,and that is the frantic efforts of backers of Curry Kirkpatrick and Mickey Blackwell to get them to run against Fred Seely and Hugh Stevens for the editorship of the Tar Heel. So far these backers have had a degree of success and an equal degree of failure. They have gotten Kirkpatrick and Blackwell to agree to run four times so far, and then had them refuse to run four times. The last report (5:30 Monday afternoon) is that they are not running. Since the DTH only comes out once a day we are unable to keep up with the hourly changes, but sometime before the final hour of the election we will try to announce their decision.

Gary Blanchard, Dave Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editor — Fred Seely
News Editor — Pete Wales
Copy Editor — Nancy McCracken
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Associate Editor — Hugh Stevens
Sports Editor — John Montague
Asst. Sports Editor — Larry Tarleton
Reporters:
Kerry Sipe, Administration
Jeff Dick, Municipal
John Greenbacher, Student Government
Editorial Assistant — Shirley Travis
Staff Artist — Chip Bernard
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews — Henry McInnis
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

I Don't See Any Poverty.

Laments Of A 'Candidate'

By GARY BLANCHARD

A candidate for a campus political office let his hair down yesterday in a mythical interview.

"The only trouble with campaigning," he said, "is that so many of my constituents are clods. I find this to be the case in dormitories, fraternities and sororities."

The candidate, who declined to be identified, continued:

"I come in, see, and I give my little speech, and almost always the guy in the back row who's been picking his nose says, 'Okay, how do you feel about Big Government?'

"I tell him, 'Look Mac, that ain't got nothing to do with the office I'm running for, but I'll be glad to give you my thoughts on it.'

"And he breaks in and says, 'Aw, you politicians are all alike.'

"I have this urge to belt him, right in the teeth. But that don't win no votes so I don't.

"Then I go over to some fraternity house and meet all the guys and have dinner. Then I make my little speech and the guy at the 3rd table who's been eating with his knife and spoon says, 'Are you anti-frat?'

"I tell him, no, not especially, and he says, 'Aw you politicians are all alike.'

"So then I go over to a sorority house and after I make my little speech, nobody has any questions. I say, now's the time to ask me questions, but nobody says nothing.

"I go over to a women's dorm next, and the same thing happens. So I say to myself, 'Aw, these chicks are all alike.'

"Half the people I talk to, they don't even know there's a campaign on, much less who the candidates are.

"Then I have to go out on these joint tours with all the other candidates. We have a schedule, see, and we go to three or four dormitories — uh, residence halls— a night for a week or so.

"You oughta hear the long-winded garbage I hafta sit through. All the candidates are supposed to have five minutes or so, but they always take more. By the time my turn comes to talk the audience is bored and pooped.

"Meantime of course I am falling behind in my courses because of all the work that a campaign takes, and I am out some money, too, for campaign posters and stuff.

"Why do I do it? I dunno, really. I guess I just feel like I can do the job better than the other people that want it.

"But I wish so many of my constituents weren't clods. It's enough to drive a guy to drink. Say, speaking of drink, let's you and me go get a beer . . .

"No?

"Aw, you reporters are all alike."

After Seven Years

Chancellor Aycock Looks Ahead

By EVE HIGGINS

Chancellor William B. Aycock doesn't like to look back over his seven-year term as head of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He'd rather attend to his work and plan for the future.

But there's one thing he will admit when he steps down as Chancellor on June 30 to return to teaching at the Law School—he's "not quite as frisky" as he used to be.

Aycock became Chancellor seven years ago. Today a few silver threads in his hair give him a distinguished air, and the work load has added few wrinkles to his brow. You would think the work agreed with him.

"Twenty years ago an administrator would pack his books into a car come summertime and be off to write speeches for next year," he says. "Now we have 100 groups here in the summer, the new fiscal year begins, and administration is a 12-month operation.

Thinking back over his years as Chancellor, he commented that he hadn't tried to catalogue mistakes or successes. He spends most of his time looking ahead, not back.

"The minute school begins in the fall, I began getting ready for the next year, with total planning for the future," he said. "Day to day problems take priority, but we're always looking ahead to next year."

His first year in office, he began to plan for 1970, and plans from 1957 have unfolded in remarkable fashion. The number of students for 1963-4 was predicted to be 10,582—and 10,887 were enrolled. An estimated 11,127 students are expected to enroll next fall—according to the '57 estimate.

"The satisfaction of being Chancellor outweighs the difficulties by far," Aycock continued. "I'm not exhausted, beat up or frustrated—it's been a very interesting job. You work with a lot of wonderful people, whether they're students, faculty, administration, state officials, or alumni. Most of them are able, devoted people, and they far outweigh the people you worry about. There's rarely a chance to be disgusted."

UNC at Chapel Hill is organized in such a way, Aycock noted, that its destiny depends not on any single person, but on student, faculty and administrative cooperation.

"Anything good that has happened," he said, "I feel I've been a part of it, but only a small part. However I seem to bear the major share of responsibility for mistakes."

Aycock mentioned few real disappointments in his term as Chancellor.

"In a given day," he said, "15 to 20 things happen. If everything was bad, I'd be disgusted, but it doesn't work that way. In the total context things are generally good. Lots of things are expected to cause trouble, but that just means I have to work harder on the positive side. There are always things to take up time far out of proportion to their importance, and this will always be true."

Chancellor Aycock has found the main difference in teaching and administrative work to be that, as a teacher, one is more the master of his own destiny. What a teacher does, how well he does it, all depends on him, Aycock says. In an administrative job, however, most things are pre-shaped by someone else, he says—so many people are involved in administration that one fulfills a role in the production.

"A teacher knows when his classes meet, who his students are. Today I haven't the slightest idea what I'll be doing tonight. The 800 faculty members deal with students about 15 hours of the week. The rest of the time, the focus of student life is on Dean Cathey, Dean Carmichael, Dean Long and their assistants. They don't know," he smiled, "what they're going to do this afternoon or tonight either."

Speaking of politics and of University relations with the General Assembly, Aycock said:

"We're put here to do the best we can, to try to give the people the best institution, dollar for dollar, as is possible. I believe the University of North Carolina has been, is now, and is likely to continue to be, dollar for dollar, the best institution in the country.

"Look at the standing of the institution, the quality of its work, and point out better. This doesn't mean improvements can't be made, but in over-all evaluation, the people of the state can be proud of this institution by any standard."

Aycock remembers no one highlight in his term, nor one major problem, though he has made many important and far-reaching decisions. He noted that the Anne Carter case involving alleged cheating, had taken more time than anything else, and that the Doug Moe case, involving Moe's lying about a bribe offer, was one of the toughest to deal with.

"A certain amount of time must be spent with student government, trustees, faculty, parents, the General Assembly, administration and news medias—the problems vary," Aycock continued. "It is hard to say what pressures of the job are toughest to cope with.

"The Speaker Ban Law has taken up a tremendous amount of time this year that I hadn't anticipated. It is a matter of great importance in education," he continued, "and hence I have and will continue to spend a great deal of time on this particular matter."

Fiscal matters, dealing with budgets, planning for the future about 12 months of the year, meeting deadlines for capital expenditures, take up a great deal of the Chancellor's time. Behind his desk is a cabinet filled with books — budgets, reports, plans and problems—to which he often refers.

"Then," he added, "there are the continuous pressures, like planning future growth and research programs. There are student groups and other people to see me. It takes many hours, but it is a part of education and administration, and I enjoy it."

Ending his term at the end of a few years, Aycock said, was understood when he took the Chancellor's position.

"For me and the University, a rotating term is a good thing," he said. "It takes a stronger man than I am to think I could go at this same rate of speed forever. I don't want to kid myself," Aycock added. "Let's get some fresh blood into the University."

As to a successor, Aycock commented that there were so many good men, the trustees were finding it difficult to settle on one. The deliberations, he feels, should be over by the May meeting of the Trustees.

Does he have any advice for the new Chancellor?

"I'll be glad to share with him any information he wants, but I won't volunteer any advice," Aycock says. "I have a cabinet of studies, and all that would help him more than I could tell him in a long time."

"I've made up my mind to get in some golf—I need the exercise," he smiled. "I haven't even played bridge, or tennis or checkers. I haven't had much spare time.

"I always feel when a fellow is doing something, he should do the best he can in that job and not worry about the next one. June 30 at 5:15 p.m., I'll begin looking forward to getting back to the Law School. Until then, I'm not giving it much thought."

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

Animals On The Frat House Roof

Editors, The Tar Heels:

It is believed that approximately 11:30 p.m. the night of April 2 some animal creatures of an unidentified species were seen atop the porch of the Pi Kappa Phi frat house on Cameron Avenue. Their bodies faintly resembled those of homo sapiens. Evidently they had adapted to the human environment, for they were clothed.

The creatures seemed to respond to the presence of fire. The Kappa Sig house next door was burning and they appeared to be excited and eager. Evidently they have learned the use of some English, but they still retain much of their animal communication. This is evidenced by the fact that when a fireman mounted the fire escape on the west side the creatures warned him not to jump off, and by the fact that they jabbered unintelligible sounds to themselves and the crowd. The jabbering was doubtless the incoherent uttering of a wish to return to an uncivilized and undomesticated environment. This is an indication that their mentality could not cope with human situations. As for their warning to the fireman, they were probably misled by the fire escape (which they associated with trees) and by the fireman (probably never having seen one before, they had no idea what he was doing).

I have reported this in the interest of the advancement of science. Investigation may reveal that this species is the missing link in the primate chain. The anthropologists cannot afford to let this golden opportunity slip past.

Bill Manning
118 Mallette Street

Implications Of A Barred Door

Editors, The Tar Heel:

On Easter Monday, one of the University's Indian students, Dennis Nathaniel, suffered a nose injury during a cricket game in Greensboro. Two American white women took him to the Moses Cone Hospital for medical treatment where four hospital attendants apparently refused to give him even elementary first-aid treatment because of the color of his skin. It was not until one hour later when the group found their way to the Negro hospital that Dennis received treatment for a broken nose (compound fracture) and severe loss of blood. He will probably be hospitalized for another week and as of today (April 1st) is unable to sit up without starting another hemmorhage.

Luckily, the injury was not of a more serious nature. But what if it had been? When did medically trained personnel begin to decide who receives medical attention, or who does not, merely on the basis of skin color? This incident serves as a signal that something is grossly wrong in the rational reasoning of certain members of our society. I am definitely not a segregationist; but at the same time I am not so narrow-minded that I disagree with every argument that they may present. Until now, I have remained silent like the majority of our "respectable" public, waiting for the courts to eventually settle our petty "barber shop-restaurant" bickering. But this extreme situation points out a part of the racial issue which is so outrageous and irrational that it must be brought to the attention of every concerned literate.

The innocent individual involved is not Negroid, but Caucasian. He is not a citizen of this country, but a guest in it. He is not an unintelligent animal but a brilliant recipient of the Danforth Foundation Scholarship working on his doctorate degree in geography. He is not a member of our native "dirt" (black or white) but is an esteemed university professor in his own country.

I have known Dennis since September, 1963 when we both began our graduate work here. I would not be afraid to bet that he has made more lasting friendships and acquaintances on this campus than most of those who read this article. Everyone who knows Dennis appreciates his warm smile, alert mind, natural curiosity, and genuine personality — yet indirectly all of us have allowed this fine individual to suffer a very deep personal injury.

Larry W. Stiffler,
Dept. of Geography

An Indictment Of Greensboro

Editors, The Tar Heel:

I have on the desk before me a card from Mr. Dennis Nathaniel. This same Dennis, who so thoughtfully sent us an Easter card, was refused even the simplest first-aid services at one of Greensboro's finer hospitals on Easter Monday. The trip to L. Richardson was prolonged because Dennis and his friends did not know the way; this caused Dennis to lose an unnecessarily large amount of blood from his seriously broken nose. Of even greater concern, however, is the humiliation and profound personal hurt which Dennis experienced.

Dennis Nathaniel is an East Indian, son of a Presbyterian minister. He is in this country as a Danforth Foundation Fellow and is working toward his doctorate at the Univ. of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is a person who would command respect as a Christian and as a scholar no matter what the color of his skin.

Earlier this year Dennis visited us in Greensboro and was favorably impressed with our city. He toured our industrial areas, our residential areas, and our college campuses; he shopped in our stores, worshipped in one of our churches, and was made welcome by the citizens whom he met. Of this we can be proud. However, we as Greensboro citizens should view ourselves with remorse knowing that when Dennis, a stranger a long way from home, needed our help he was refused.

That not all Greensboro residents always have available the medical services which they need, because of the color of their skin, is a serious indictment against our city. Such an indictment becomes more than a domestic sociological problem when a foreign visitor in our country goes back to his home carrying this sort of impression of our lack of human compassion and concern.

Yours truly,
(Mrs.) Dorothy Stafford Mason

Heelprints

In light of the resumed relations with Panama, the only question is why we didn't cross that canal when we came to it.

* * *

Candidate Preyer's call for a higher minimum wage indicates primarily that he is looking for a higher minimum vote.

* * *

Definition: Career woman—one who'd rather go out and be an employee than stay home and be boss.

– Lake, Preyer, Moore Battle In Raleigh –

(Continued from Page 1)

cation. Moore advocated help for farmers wishing to remain on the land and he urged greater industrialization.

The controversial speaker-ban law enacted by the 1963 General Assembly drew general approval from the three candidates. None said he would advocate its repeal.

However, Preyer suggested amendments to permit Iron Curtain scientists and artists to speak on state-supported campuses on their specialties. Moore hinted that this may be a good idea, but he expressed the opinion that it isn't necessary.

Lake took the firmest stand in support of the act, saying he would bar all Communists from state-supported forums, regardless of their topics.

For the opening of the program, thet three candidates delivered talks of about 15 minutes each.

Lake called for a reaffirmation in the "faith of the people in freedom as distinguished from faith in an all-powerful government." He continued his long-standing criticism of the federal civil rights bill.

Moore's talk concerned his ideas of the role of the governor and Preyer discussed the future of the state.

The questions asked during the second-half of the program ran the gamut of public affairs.

Preyer said he favored an increase in the state's minimum wage. Moore suggested holding-off on such a measure until the 1965 General Assembly has a chance to look at the state's economic picture, and Lake indicated disapproval with the concept of government-decreed minimum wages.

Lake said, "It is my position that wages should be fixed by some source other than the Legislature."

Moore and Preyer said they could see some justification for state help to church related colleges, but that the decision should be up to the institutions. Lake opposed any such financial aid.

– Benoit –

(Continued from Page 1)

a great dynamism by being operated for private profit by private management, yet it is almost wholly dependent on non-private markets. It is important that we understand why this is necessary," he remarked.

Citing benefits of these activities as too long-range, Benoit stated that they could not offer tangible, timely and reliable returns to the private investor unless the government stepped in to create a market for such activities.

– Fulbright Speech –

(Continued from Page 1)

speech of March 2 in the Senate, Fulbright maintained his statement on Cuba "has been misinterpreted."

Fulbright said the reference to Cuba in his speech was but a minor point, "but because of its partisan implications the speech has been grossly exaggerated in proportion to its importance."

Fulbright said his mention of Cuba had been an attempt to put the issue in its proper perspective. "The reference has been grossly misinterpreted as to its importance," he said.

Elaborating on his position on the boycott with Cuba, Fulbright said: 'The policy of persuading allies to boycott is a failure—that is a fact—I do not advocate, however, that we trade with Cuba.

"We should keep up pressure until the Cuban government changes or they give us good reason to believe they will cease subversion in the Latin American countries. They are a grave threat, especially as a source of subversion."

When asked for his opinion as to the existence of a split between Russia and Red China, Fulbright replied: "There are definite differences between the two countries. The best way America can take advantage of it is to keep her mouth shut."

Fulbright said attempts should be made to dissuade Russia from imperialist designs on other countries. "Progress has been made," he said.

He cited as examples the Test Ban Treaty, the "hot line" and cultural exchanges between the United States and Russia. "China," he said, "is still openly hostile to this country."

Fulbright commented briefly on the Speaker Ban Law at a reception following his speech. He said he was basically opposed to the idea of a Speaker Ban Law. "Which is better," he asked, "to hide communism like it is something good which everyone would welcome if it were around, or to bring it out in the open to expose how truly bad communism is?"

Snow, Livestock, Drivers, Rains, Warnings Spice Up Life In Suburban New Orleans, La.

By United Press International

Torrential rains drenched the South Monday and a half storm battered suburban New Orleans.

Snow piled up to 8 inches deep in Minnesota. Wintry winds whipped snow across the central and northern plains.

Livestock and hazardous driving warnings were posted from northern New Mexico to Montana and eastward into Minnesota.

More than 10 inches of rain fell in 24 hours at Enterprise, Miss., near Meridian, and Suttle, Ala., measured nearly 7 inches.

Goulart Adviser Arrested

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Deposed President Joao Goulart's top military adviser was arrested Monday on charges of desertion as he returned from Uruguay where he had fled with his ex-chief.

War Ministry sources said Gen. Argemiro Assis Brasil was seized as he stepped off the plane which brought him from Montevideo. He was accompanied by his wife.

Tight censorship was imposed by the new government of provisional President Ranieri Mazzilli. Mass arrests continued as the new regime rounded up Communists and fellow-travelers.

Life in Brazil's major cities continued to return to normal and banks reopened for the first time this month. The Cruzeiro, which dropped to an all-time low of 2,000 to the U.S. dollar at the peak of the rebellion, strengthened to 1,350. The stock market moved upward and trading was brisk.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH office in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found will be run on Wednesday and Saturday of each week.

TODAY

GM Publicity Comm. — 7 p.m., GM, attendance required, will adjourn in time for Symposium speaker.

Frosh. Finance Comm. — 6:30 p.m., RP III, "Freshman Sock Sale."

Seminar—"Spain, Switzerland & Austria"—9 p.m., YMCA, for students planning to travel in Europe.

Elections Board Meeting — 5 p.m., Grail, compulsory for all members.

Slimnastics Club — 3:45 p.m., Woman's Dance Studio.

Hillel — 7 p.m., Hillel House, interviews for offices.

Square Dancing Club — 7:30 p. m., Women's Gym.

MOVIES

Carolina — Kissing Cousins
Varsity—A Stranger Knocks

WEDNESDAY

Editor's Roundtable — 3-4 p.m., discussion on the bylaws and permanent status for Roundtable.

Basketball Club — 4 p.m., Women's Gym.

Stray Greeks — 6 p.m., Lenoir.

Wesley Foundation — 6:45 p.m., Wesley House, Communion.

Badminton Club — 7 p.m., Women's Gym.

Dix Hill Comm. — 2 p.m., Y-Court, bingo party at Hospital, two wrapped "White Elephant" prizes.

Foreign Students Comm.—6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir.

CWC — 6 p.m., Grail Room.

Westminster Fellowship — 6:45 a.m., Presbyterian Student Center.

THURSDAY

Scuba Diving Club — 8 p.m., Indoor Pool.

Scabbard & Blade—7 p.m., Air Science Classroom No. 4, informal business meeting.

THE LIBRARY OF A STUDENT OF

AMERICAN HISTORY

A lively collection, centered on the American Revolution, but including material up to the Civil War. Serious students of history will find treasure here.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.

Open 'til 10 P. M.

The New York Life Agent on your campus is a good man to know.

Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4358

NEW YORK LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY

Help Wanted

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT — COLlege men earn $145.00 per week, minimum guarantee of $1,000.00 for summer. Requirement of 10 presentations weekly for 12 weeks. Plus $200-750 cash scholarships based on sales achievement. For 10 min. introductory interview come to 110 Gardner Hall, 11:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. April 6 and 7th.

Rentals

FOR RENT: FOUR 2-BEDROOM apartments, all new, electric heat, washer connections, large closets, tile floors, water furnished, stove and refrigerator if desired. Located 2 miles south of Memorial Hospital on the Old Lystra Road. For further information contact Philip Sparrow at 929-1521, Chapel Hill.

SUMMER FACULTY COUPLE (no children) desires to sublet furnished house or apartment, both summer sessions. Reference: Dr. and Mrs. Richard Potthoff, Phone No. 942-6035. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hudson, 606 Broad St., Salem, Va., 24153.

Services Available

GROWING FAMILY? BE SURE your life insurance grows with it. Our company has special ways to help you do this with minimum cash outlay. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Sale — Miscellaneous

GOOD LOOKING, CLEAN MObile home—45' x 10' Brookwood. Fully furnished (including TV, air cond., washer). For sale, call Dick Akers, 942-2683. A good price.

Used Cars For Sale

1952 CADILLAC: RADIO AND heater, new muffler, tune-up, and carburetor. Good condition. Very reliable. 942-3828.

CHARMACK
New York 9, N. Y.
The Magician
P. O. Box 118

Show Your True Character in A SECRET AGENT SWEATSHIRT

Three Intrigue-ing Colors

- Explosive Orange
- Camouflage Green
- Sinister Blue

Large and Extra-Large

$5.25 ppd.

Send check or M. O. to Ripley, 15 E. 26 St., NYC 10

Carolina

LAST TIMES TODAY

MGM Presents ELVIS PRESLEY in KISSIN' COUSINS

Panavision™ METROCOLOR

DURHAM MOBILE HOME SALES

Featuring the Finest in MOBILE HOMES

- New Moon
- Ritz-Craft
- Palace

5 miles out at Miami Blvd. & Hiway 70 East

See PHIL DICKENS or KENNETH STUBBLEFIELD

DURHAM
Phone 596-8302

BEST DEAL IN TOWN

All the Chicken You Can Eat! 88c

Monday — Friday 4 P.M. - 7 P.M.

GRANTS Eastgate Shopping Center

Varsity NOW PLAYING

FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS $100 up
128 Fayetteville Raleigh, N. C.

For Your Summer Travel

- International Drivers' Licenses
- Eurailpasses
- Auto rentals & sales
- Tours, short or long
- Hotel reservations

All at no extra Cost!

Continental Travel Agency

171 E. Franklin St.

Phone 942-4151

"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE-MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.

courses....ugh register...rush stand...wait... shuffle...go... twitch...fidget ...yawn...stop move...nearer nearer...filled ...pause

things go better with Coke

TRADE-MARK

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by: Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

POGO

PEANUTS

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Cloth made from mulberry bark: pl.
6. Sharp spine
10. Snum
11. Leather flask for oil
12. Small edible fish
13. Colorless
14. Weird
15. Woodland gods
17. Roasted
19. Assam language
20. Moody
21. A sovereign or pound sterling: Brit. sl.
23. Legendary king of Corinth
25. Capital
26. Pause
27. —— the Red, explorer
28. Whether
29. In the coming month
32. Harsh
35. Russian river
36. Trust
37. Troops halting place: mil.
38. Veiid
39. Classics group
40. Green vegetable
41. Cuts (vegetables) into small cubes

DOWN

1. A circus employee
2. Mean values
3. Speaking many languages
4. Island in a river: G.B.
5. One of the Dakotas: abbr.
6. Classify
7. Drama
8. Reprove severely
9. Music note
12. God of earth: Egypt.
13. Father: affect.
15. Noah's first son
16. Covers, as with turf
18. Fire-arm
21. Visionary
22. Hooked
23. Malayan dagger
24. Umpire
25. Back
27. Before
29. Snoop
30. Low spirits
31. Single unit
33. Membrane
34. Old measures of length
37. High priest
38. Seaport: abbr.
39. TV's Mr. Sullivan

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| P | A | S | S | E | | M | A | S | S | |
| A | C | H | E | D | | O | R | A | L | |
| S | T | R | U | T | | C | O | A | T | E |
| L | I | F | E | | R | A | I | S | I | N |
| Y | O | | F | L | A | K | E | | A | D |
| | | S | L | A | T | | | A | T | E |
| B | R | E | E | D | | D | O | V | E | R |
| R | U | F | | O | I | D | E | | | |
| A | B | | P | O | U | N | D | | M | U |
| V | E | L | U | R | E | | E | M | I | T |
| E | L | I | T | E | | D | R | O | N | E |
| S | L | O | T | | B | E | L | L | E | |
| T | A | N | S | | K | E | Y | E | D | |

Yesterday's Answer

EUROPE YOU...AND MERCEDES

Seasoned travelers know that the only way to see Europe is by car. Now, with the Mercedes-Benz European delivery plan, you can let us arrange for delivery of your Mercedes-Benz at the lower European retail price and save hundreds of dollars. We will make all delivery arrangements. The roads of Europe will provide you with glorious memories to last a lifetime — and at home our expertly trained Mercedes-Benz mechanics will service your car for you. We can assure you, in Europe and at home, your new Mercedes-Benz will provide you with a lifetime of unequalled driving pleasure. See us for full details today.

MERCEDES-BENZ

OLD HICKORY MOTORS

PHONE 477-2102
3341 Roxboro Rd. Durham

Oh No! Not Another Prediction By The DTH....

Another chapter in the same old dull story of the American League will be unveiled again this year according to the authoritative DTH selection staff.

The same staff, which takes great pride in its inaccurate predictions, picked Michigan over Kansas State in the NCAA cage finals and Sonny Liston in 5 rounds. It now forecast the 14th pennant in 16 years for the Dan Topping-Del Webb owned Yankee dynasty.

The selection staff was made up of ten members of the DTH sports and news staff. Each member submitted a ballot ranking the teams in their predicted finish. Ten points were awarded for first place, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc. The Yankees finished with 96 votes, 18 more than the Twins and White Sox, who tied for second.

The staff agrees with Connie Mack that pitching is 75 per cent of baseball except in the case of the Yankees. But then the Yankees probably have the best pitching, too. Even without Yogi Berra, who decided to stop hitting balls and start pushing buttons for them, the Yanks just have too much material to finish lower than first.

Yogi is looking for big years from a healthy Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, who saw limited action last year because of numerous injuries. Berra says that he doesn't think that Maris has lived up to his potential and feels that this will be Roger's year (he thinks he'll hit .270.).

The Senor from Tampa, Al Lopez, who is the only manager to break the Yankee monopoly (with Cleveland in 1954 and Chicago in 1959) says he is going to do it again. Of course he says it every year, but somehow his plans don't seem to materialize. Lopez received a hard blow when third baseman Pete Ward injured his back in the first workout and hasn't played since.

Minnesota manager Sam Mele's salary was cut last year when the Twins slumped to third, but Mele is determined to replenish his pocketbook this year. He has moved hard-hitting Bob Allison to first base to make up for rookie Tony Oliva and has benched slick-fielding Vic Power.

Ex-marine and ex-Yankee Hank Baurer has been hired to "get tough" with the constantly overrated Orioles. He has a new first baseman in Norm Siebern, but must get good years from Jackie Brandt, Brooks Robinson and Chuck Estrada, who missed most of last season with a sore arm.

For the 14th time in 15 years, the Tigers are picked to be the most improved team in the league and they could be. The Tigers helped themselves with the trades that brought Jerry Lumpe, Dave Wickersham, Ed Rakow and Don Demeter under Chuck Dressen's leadership.

Just when the baseball situation was looking better in Cleveland, they were struck with a cruel blow when manager Birdie Tebbetts suffered a heart attack which will keep him out most of the year. Coach George Strickland has been named interim manager. Strickland is depending on young players like Max Alvis, Vic Davalillo and Al Luplow and newcomer Leon Wagner to pick up a dead franchise.

When the Red Sox find out who is manager, Dick Stuart or Johnny Pesky, they will probably begin another youth movement. Youngsters like Tony Conigliaro, Rico Petrocelli and Dalton Jones have been more impressive than the veterans in spring training.

The Angels traded away their only run-producer, and must depend on their weak pitching to finish ahead of the Senators and A's. Colavito, Gentile and Finley comprise the best murderer's row in the league, but the A's don't have the pitching, fielding, management of first-class sheep. The Senators don't have anything but a nice stadium and Gil Hodges.

How They'll Finish (Maybe)

1. New York
2. Chicago
3. Minnesota
4. Baltimore
5. Detroit
6. Cleveland
7. Boston
8. Los Angeles
9. Kansas City
10. Washington

Ex-UNC Star Brown Goes To Olympics

Former UNC basketball star Larry Brown was named to the 12 - man Olympic basketball squad.

Others selected were Joe Caldwell, Arizona State; Jerry Shipp, Phillip 66ers; Lucious Jackson, Pan American; Jeff Mullins, Duke; Jim Barnes, Texas Western; Mel Counts, Oregon State; Walt Hazzard, UCLA; Bill Bradley, Princeton; Pete McCaffrey and Dick Davies, Goodyear and George Wilson, Jamaco Saints.

Brown's ball-handling and free throw shooting led his AAU all-star team in the elimination championship played in St. John's arena.

Just Arrived
For Spring
SWIM WEAR

The Perennial Favorite is still back . . . The swim walker in Madras dac-cotton & seersucker fits better than ever with four new colors this season. These shorts can't miss.

8.95 - 9.95

The newest fad . . . Baggies are the newest idea in swim wear, these sun worshipers favorites are featured in 6 different colors. You must try a pair on to appreciate their fit.

6.95 - 7.95

Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin St.

Mann Takes Second In Bartlesville Meet

By PERRY McCARTY

UNC's Thompson Mann and Pete Worthen gave a good account of themselves as they faced what Coach Pat Earey termed "some of the best swimming in the world" at the AAU Indoor Championships in Bartlesville, Oklahoma, this past weekend.

Senior All-America Mann posted a 1:58.2 for a fifth place in the 200 backstroke. This represents Mann's best effort at the longer 200 and shaves yet another eight-tenths off his previous ACC standard.

